I. NOTICE OF ACTION.

a. STATUTE.

Statute.]—By the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, s. 2, so much of any public general act relating to notice of action is repealed as to the United Kingdom.

b. TO WHOM GIVEN.

1. Persons Acting in the Execution of their Office.

Justices.]—In an action against a magistrate, for having, in the execution of his office, acted maliciously, and without reasonable and probable cause, he is entitled to notice of action, as required by 11 & 12 Vict. c. 44, s. 9. Kirby v. Simpson, 10 Ex. 358; 2 C. L. R. 1286; 23 L. J., M. C. 165; 18 Jur. 983.

In such case, the question whether he acted bonâ fide, or used his office colourably, does not arise. Ib.

In an action against a magistrate for acts done in the execution of his office, the judge is to decide whether notice of action is necessary, and the jury is not to decide the question of bona fides. Ib.

Whether a magistrate acts bonâ fide is a question for the jury; and if the plaintiff seeks to maintain his action, on the ground that the magistrate acted so illegally as to have disentitled himself to any notice of action, it lies on the plaintiff to cause this question to be put to the jury. Hazeldine v. Grove, 3 Q. B. 997; 3 G. & D. 210; 12 L. J., M. C. 10; 7 Jur. 262.

A magistrate is entitled to notice of action when he acts as a magistrate, though what he does is not strictly within the scope of his office. Bird v. Gunston, 2 Chit. 459; 4 Dougl. 275.

So, where he acts upon a subject-matter of complaint over which he has authority, but which arises out of his jurisdiction. Prestidge v. Woodman, 2 D. & R. 43; 1 B. & C. 12. S. P., Graves v. Arnold, 3 Camp. 242. See 3 R. R. 355, n.

A lord of the manor, being also a justice of the peace, is entitled to notice of an action brought against him for taking away a gun in the house of an unqualified person; for it will be presumed that he acted as a justice. Briggs v. Evelyn, 2 H. Bl. 114; 3 R. R. 354.

Where the mayor of an ancient borough, in which he was also a justice of the peace, took a fee of 4*s.* from a publican resident within the borough for renewing his annual licence; although it appeared that for fifty-seven years a similar fee had been uniformly received by the mayor for the time being, from every publican within the borough applying to have a licence:—Held, that such fee was illegal, and that the mayor was not entitled to notice of an action to recover it back, as the fee could not be taken by him by virtue or in execution of his office as a justice of the peace. Morgan v. Palmer, 4 D. & R. 283; 2 B. & C. 729; 2 L. J. (o.s.) K. B. 145; 26 R. R. 537.

One magistrate committing the mother of a bastard to custody for not affiliating the child, was entitled to notice of action, though, by 18 Eliz. c. 3, s. 2, jurisdiction over the subject-matter was committed to two magistrates. Weller v. Toke, 9 East, 364.

Officers of the Revenue.]—It is necessary in an action for money had and received against an excise officer to recover duties received by him after the act imposing them was repealed, and he had paid them over to his superior. Greenway v. Hurd, 4 Term Rep. 553. See 3 R. R. 355, n.

To an action against a defendant, who was a land-tax commissioner, for authorising a seizure of the plaintiff's goods for land-tax, which had been previously redeemed, but without his knowledge, he pleaded not guilty by statute, and stated in his particulars that he relied upon 38 Geo. 3, c. 5, and 21 Jac. 1, c. 12. The plaintiff, being unable to prove that he had given notice of action under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c, 20 s. 19, and being also unable to prove the particulars, to shew that the defendant had waived the benefit of that statute, was nonsuited:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to notice of action, and that the nonsuit was right. Thomas v. Williams, 1 D. & L. 624; 13 L. J., Ex. 87.

Government Stores.]—A robbery having been committed at the government stores K., an inspecting officer of the coast-guard having charge of the stores, suspecting that S. was guilty of the felony in question, gave him into custody and prosecuted him before the magistrates on the charge of feloniously taking the said government stores. The magistrates dismissed the charge, and S., without giving K. a month's notice of action, brought an action against him for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution:—Held, that he was entitled to notice of action under 16 & 17 Vict. c. 107, s. 313, and that, in acting as he did, he acted in the execution of or by reason of his office. Spitty v. Kitchin, 15 W. R. 903.

Intention to Act.]—The surveyors of highways of a parish received payment from an inhabitant of an assessment of a highway rate which was neither signed, allowed, nor published according to 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 50. s. 27, but which appeared to have been made under an earlier repealed act. In making the rate and receiving payment, the surveyors intended to act in the performance of the duties of their office. In an action brought to recover back the money paid:—Held, that they were entitled to notice of action, pursuant to s. 109. Judge v. Selmes, 40 L. J., Q. B. 287; L. R. 6 Q. B. 724; 24 L. T. 905; 19 W. R. 1110.

Bona Fides.]—In an action against a judge of a county court for making an order for committing a party to gaol for disobedience of an order for payment of instalments, after due service upon him of a writ of prohibition, the jury was told, that if the judge acted under a bonâ fide belief that his duty as judge of the county court rendered it incumbent on him to do so, notwithstanding the prohibition, the act must be considered as done in pursuance of the 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, and he was entitled to notice of action:—Held, no misdirection. Booth v. Clive, 10 C. B. 827; 2 L. M. & P. 283; 20 L. J., C. P. 151.

Upon the trial of an action against an officer of the customs, it is the duty of the judge, unless the facts are admitted, to hear the evidence, and decide whether the officer did the act complained of honestly believing that his duty called upon him to do it, in which case the provisions as to notice of action would be applicable. Arnold v. Hamel, 9 Ex. 405; 2 C. L. R. 499; 23 L. J., Ex. 137.

A magistrate sued for detaining goods on a suspicion of felony is entitled to notice of action if he proceeded under a bonâ fide belief that he was executing his duty, although it is proved that he had no reasonable ground of suspicion. Wedge v. Berkeley, 6 A. & E. 663; W. W. & D. 271; 1 N. & P. 665; 6 L. J., M. C. 86.

So, if he does an unjustifiable act (as in person unjustifiably arresting an individual), but really believes that he has a right to do the act, in his capacity of justice, he is entitled to notice of action. Ib.

If a justice acts, believing that his jurisdiction extends to the subject-matter in question, he is entitled to notice of action, though it may turn out, on investigation, to be a case over which no justice of the peace has jurisdiction. Jones v. Williams, 5 D. & R. 654; 3 B. & C. 762; 1 Car. & P. 459, 669; 3 L. J. (o.s.) K. B. 112; 27 R. R. 474.

If a person claims a right to act as a justice, he is entitled to notice of action, although the ground on which the plaintiff goes is a denial of such right. Ib.

But a magistrate is not entitled to notice of action for a trespass committed by him, where, from the circumstances, the jury think he was not acting bonâ fide under an impression that what he did was within the scope of his duty as magistrate. James v. Saunders, 4 M. & Scott, 316 ; 10 Bing. 429 ; 3 L. J., M. C. 105.

A disturbance took place in C. upon the liberation of a prisoner. A magistrate seized the plaintiff because he was going towards the prison. The plaintiff was not concerned in the disturbance, which was going on out of sight of the place where he was seized by the magistrate :—Held, that he was not entitled to notice of an action of trespass brought against him by the plaintiff for the assault. Ib.

An excise officer was entitled to notice under 23 Geo. 3, c. 70, s. 30, before an action was brought against him for an act not warranted by his official capacity, if done bonâ fide in the supposed execution of his duty. Daniel v. Wilson, 5 Term Rep. 1.

A constable who takes a party into custody, bonâ fide believing that he has committed an offence against 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30 (Malicious Trespass Act, is entitled under s. 41, to notice of action, although he did not see the trespass committed, and there is no proof of any complaint made to him by the owner of the property injured. Ballinger v. Ferris, 2 Gale, 111 ; 1 M. & W. 628 ; 1 Tyr. & G. 920 ; 5 L. J., M. C. 133. See Gosden v. Elphick, 4 Ex. 445 ; 19 L. J., Ex. 9 ; 13 Jur. 989.

When poor law guardians are acting in discharge of their public duty they are entitled to notice of action in respect of anything done by them in the discharge of such duty, unless it is shown that they have acted malâ fide ; and it is to be assumed, in the absence of proof to the contrary, that they have acted bonâ fide. Walker v. Nottingham Union, 28 L. T. 308.

Mistake or Misfeasance.]—Where a bailiff of a county court, under a warrant against the goods of A., by mistake takes those of B. this is an act done in pursuance of the act which entitles the bailiff to notice of action under 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, s. 138, 13 & 14 Vict. c. 61, s. 19, and 15 & 16 Vict. c. 34, s. 6. Burling v. Harley 3 H. & N. 271 ; 27 L. J., Ex. 258 ; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 789.

By a local act, a borough court was empowered to try "actions of assumpsit, covenant and debt, and actions of trespass and trover, provided the sum or damages sought to be recovered shall not exceed 50*l.*" And in actions commenced, "for anything done in pursuance of that act," notice of action must be given. In an action against an officer of the court for neglecting to levy, and making a false return to a fieri facias, issued on a judgment for 50*l.*, and 6*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.* for damages :—Held, that notice of action was necessary, part of the cause of action being for a misfeasance in making a false return. Joule v. Taylor, 7 Ex. 58 ; 2 L. M. & P. 615 ; 21 L. J., Ex. 31.

Persons improperly Appointed.]—A surveyor of highways having been appointed by the inhabitants in vestry, but informally, cut down, in the supposed exercise of his duty as surveyor, a tree which was overhanging the highway so as to be a nuisance to it :—Held, that he was entitled to the protection of 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 50, s. 109. Huggins v. Waydey, 15 M. & W. 357 ; 16 L. J., Ex. 136.

In an action against a person for the penalty given for acting as a magistrate without a proper qualification, the defendant is not entitled to notice of action. Wright v. Horton, Holt, 458 ; 1 Stark. 400 ; 2 Chit. 25 ; 6 M. & S. 50 ; 17 R. R. 665.

The 7 & 8 Vict. c. 19, after reciting that "courts are holden in and for sundry counties, hundreds and wapentakes, honours, manors, and other lordships, liberties and franchises, having by custom or charter jurisdiction for the recovery of debts and damages in personal actions," provides that the judge of every such court shall have power to appoint persons to act as bailiffs of the court, and in the execution of the process thereof ; and that one month's notice of action is to be given before any action is commenced against any bailiff of any such court for anything done in pursuance of his duty as such bailiff. The defendant acted as bailiff of a borough court in executing the process of such court, in aid of the serjeant-at-mace of the borough. Neither the defendant nor the serjeant-at-mace was appointed as bailiff of such court by the judge of the court :—Held, that the defendant was, therefore, not a bailiff entitled to notice of action within 7 & 8 Vict. c. 19. Tarrant v. Baker, 14 C. B. 199 ; 2 C. L. R. 78 ; 23 L. J., C. P. 21 ; 18 Jur. 15 ; 2 W. R. 62.

Bailiff receiving Indemnity.]—The receiving an indemnity from the execution creditor does not deprive the bailiff of a county court of his right, under the 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, s. 138, to notice of action. White v. Morris, 11 C. B. 1015 ; 21 L. J., C. P. 185 ; 16 Jur. 500.

Persons acting in a Double Capacity.]—A party making a distress for two causes, as to one of which he is justified and entitled to notice of action, is nevertheless, liable in trespass as to the other. Lamont v. Southall, 5 M. & W. 416.

Replevin.]—A declaration that the defendant on the plaintiff's land took his goods and detained them against sureties and pledges. Plea, that the goods were taken under a warrant issued by a justice of the peace to enforce an order of quarter sessions for payment of costs of an appeal against a poor rate :—Held, that this was an action of replevin, and that no notice of action or demand of the perusal of the warrant was necessary. Gay v. Matthews, 4 B. & S. 425 ; 33 L. J., M. C. 14 ; 8 L. T. 674 ; 11 W. R. 922—Ex. Ch.

The Municipal Corporations Act (5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 76), s. 133, which, for the protection of persons acting in the execution of that act, enacts that "all actions shall be tried in the county," &c., and entitles the defendant in case of success to his full costs as between attorney and client, applies to replevin, although one of the provisions of the section by which a month's notice of action is to be given, is not applicable to that form of action. Jones v. Johnson, 6 Ex. 133 ; 2 L. M. & P. 177 ; 20 L. J., M. C. 169.

2. Acts done in pursuance of Statute.

What are.] — A local act for watching a town empowered the commissioners therein named to appoint a constable and assistant constables, "for executing all such warrants, as the justices of the peace acting for the counties palatine of Lancaster and Chester, or either of them, shall from time to time direct to them to be executed within the town." Another section enacted that no plaintiff should recover for "anything done in pursuance of the act" :—Held, that a constable appointed under the act, and directed by a warrant of a justice acting for the counties palatine to enter a house and seize goods under 11 Geo. 2, c. 19, s. 7, was not entitled to notice of action. Shatwell v. Hall, 10 M. & W. 523; 2 D. (N.S.) 567; 12 L. J., Ex. 74.

—— Actions on Contract.]—A. contracted by deed with a local board of health to execute works according to a specification, and that the works should be begun, proceeded with, and completed to the satisfaction of their surveyor. Payment was to be made by instalments, upon the certificate of the surveyor. It was provided that if A., from bankruptcy, insolvency, or any cause whatsoever, should not proceed with the works according to the satisfaction of the surveyor, it should be lawful for the board of health, after three days' notice, to employ other persons to complete the works, and that the deed should, at the expiration of the notice, be void at the option of the board of health, and the amount already paid to A. should be considered the full value of the works which should up to that time have been executed, and the materials on the premises should become their property without any further payment:—Held, that in an action by A. against the board of health for not allowing him to complete his contract, no notice of the action was requisite under 11 & 12 Vict. c. 63, s. 139, which enacts that no writ shall be sued out against the local board of health, or the clerk or other person acting under the direction of the board, for anything done or intended to be done under the provisions of the act, until one month after notice. Davies v. Swansea Corporation, 8 Ex. 808; 22 L. J., Ex. 297.

A local act directed that the guardians of a parish should be sued in the name of their vestry clerk, and required notice to be given of any action for anything done in pursuance of the act. Notice was not necessary in an action for work and labour. The direction only applied to actions of tort. Fletcher v. Greenwood, 4 D. P. C. 166; 1 Gale, 34.

—— Obstructing Highway.]—An action was brought against a surveyor of highways for allowing and causing a heap of gravel, which had been placed for the purposes of the repair of the highway, to remain upon it, without taking any care or precaution to guard against damage to persons passing along it, contrary to his duty in that behalf:—Held, that the action was brought for a thing done in pursuance of, or under the authority of, 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 50, and therefore, that he was entitled to notice of action. Davis v. Curling, 8 Q. B. 287; 15 L. J., Q. B. 56; 10 Jur. 69. See Young v. Davis, 2 H. & C. 197; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 79; 9 L. T. 145; 11 W. R. 735—Ex. Ch.

In pursuance of a resolution at a vestry, that it would be advantageous if a weighing-machine were erected to check the weight of materials purchased by the highways, the surveyors caused a machine to be placed in the highway:—Held, that although the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 50, gave no express power to erect weighing machines, the surveyors were acting in pursuance of the act, so as to entitle them to notice of an action for injuries sustained by a party in driving over a heap of earth excavated for the weighing machine. Hardwich v. Moss, 7 H. & N. 136; 31 L. J., Ex. 205; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 804; 4 L. T. 802.

—— Negligence.]—A Trinity House pilot, who in navigating a vessel negligently runs against and damages another vessel, is not within the protection of the 4 Geo. 4, c. 125 (Pilot Act) s. 84, which enacts that all actions brought for anything done in pursuance of the act shall be brought in the county where the cause of action arises. Lawson v. Dumlin, 9 C. B. 54.

The plaintiff was a driver employed by contractors who had contracted with the defendants, a metropolitan vestry, to provide them with horses and drivers for their carts used in watering the streets under the powers of 18 & 19 Vict. c. 120. The defendants negligently supplied a cart with a defective axle, and by reason thereof the plaintiff, whilst driving the cart for the purpose of watering the street, was thrown off and injured:—Held, that the defendants were entitled to notice of action under 25 & 26 Vict. c. 102, s. 106, because the supply of the water-cart to the plaintiff for the purpose of watering the streets was a thing "done or intended to be done" under the powers of the vestry under the act empowering them to water the streets. Edwards v. St. Mary, Islington, 58 L. J., Q. B. 165; 22 Q. B. D. 338; 60 L. T. 725; 37 W. R. 347; 53 J. P. 180—C. A.

An act for paving a town enacted, that no plaintiff shall recover in any action against the commissioners for anything done or to be done in pursuance or under the authority of the act, unless notice in writing shall have been given to them. The commissioners were sued for an injury occasioned by the negligence of some paviors, their servants:—Held, that they were entitled to notice of action. Mason v. Birkenhead Improvement Commissioners, 6 H. & N. 72; 29 L. J., Ex. 407; 2 L. T. 632.

The building of a police station is an act done by justices in the execution of their office; and the justices, if sued for negligence in the building or maintaining thereof, and for damage arising therefrom, are entitled to the protection afforded by 11 & 12 Vict. c. 44. Hardy v. North Riding JJ., 50 J. P. 663.

By a railway act, a company was empowered to make and maintain a railway; all persons were to have liberty to use the same, with carriages properly constructed, upon payment of tolls; and the company was empowered to provide locomotive engines and carriages for the conveyance of goods and passengers. It enacted, that no action should be brought against any person for anything done or omitted to be done in pursuance of the act, without notice:—Held, that the company was not entitled to notice where an action was brought against them for negligence in carrying a passenger, as they were sued merely as carriers, and not for anything done or omitted under the act. Carpue v. L. B. & S. C. Ry., 5 Q. B. 747; D. & M. 608; 3 Railw. Cas. 692; 13 L. J., Q. B. 133; 8 Jur. 464.

A railway company was empowered by act of parliament to carry goods and passengers on the railway, and to keep in repair the fences of the same. The act contained a clause, that no action should be brought against the company for anything done or omitted to be done in pursuance of the act, unless fourteen days' previous notice of action was given of such intention. The company undertook to carry some horses by the railway, but in consequence of the fences of the railway having broken down, the train was upset and the horses injured:—Held, that the company, being sued in its capacity of carriers, was not entitled to notice of action. Palmer v. Grand Junction Ry., 4 M. & W. 749; 7 D. P. C. 232; 8 L. J., Ex. 129.

—— Nuisance.]—The Metropolitan Police Act, 2 & 3 Vict. c. 47, having created several acts misdemeanours, inflicts a penalty, on summary conviction, in various other offences, and among them the laying shells on a thoroughfare. It likewise enacts, that any person found committing any offence punishable either upon indictment or as a misdemeanour upon summary conviction by virtue of the act may be apprehended by the owner of the property on or with respect to which the offence shall be committed, or by his servant, or any person authorised by him, and detained until he can be delivered to a constable; and notice in writing must be given of all actions against any person for anything done in pursuance of the act. A person employed by the owner to keep clean a thoroughfare, finding that another person was in the habit of laying oyster-shells upon it, consulted an inspector of police, and by his advice gave that party into custody. An action having been brought:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to notice of action, this being an act done in pursuance of the statute. Danvers v. Morgan, 1 Jur. (N.S.) 1051; 4 W. R. 21.

—— Obstructing Canal.]—A railway company was empowered to divert a canal; and it was enacted that, if by any accident or in the execution of any works authorised by the act (otherwise than from the neglect or mismanagement of the canal company), or by reason of the bad state of repair of the railway company's works, the canal should be so obstructed that boats could not pass, the railway company should pay the canal company, by way of ascertained damages, 10*l.* at least for every hour during which the obstruction should continue, and if it should continue beyond seventy-two consecutive hours, or should have been occasioned by any wilful act of the railway company, then at 20*l.* per hour at least by way of ascertained damages; and that, in default of payment on demand on the railway company's treasurer, the canal company might recover the sum by action. It was also enacted that no action should be brought for anything done or omitted to be done in pursuance of the act, or in the execution of the powers or authorities given by it, without twenty days' notice:—Held, that an action for liquidated damages incurred by obstructing the canal was an action for something done in pursuance of the act, and that the limitation clause applied. Kennet and Avon Canal v. G. W. Ry., 7 Q. B. 824; 4 Railw. Cas. 90; 14 L. J., Q. B. 325; 9 Jur. 788.

—— Excessive Charges by Railways.]—By a railway act it was enacted, that no action should be brought for anything done, or omitted to be done, in pursuance of the act, or in the execution of the powers or authorities given by the act, unless twenty days' previous notice in writing should be given. The company having, contrary to the provisions of the act, made excessive charges for the carriage of goods, and claimed and received the amount of such charges from the plaintiff:—Held, that, in an action for money had and received, to recover the sums so extorted, the company was entitled to notice of action. Kent v. G. W. Ry., 3 C. B. 714; 4 Railw. Cas. 699; 4 D. & L. 481; 16 L. J., C. P. 72.

Action against a railway company for money received by the company for the use of the plaintiff. Plea, no notice of action. The action was for overcharges. By a section of the company's act, no action shall be brought for anything done in pursuance of the act, unless notice in writing is given to the company. After verdict for the company:—Held, that the plea was bad for not averring that the action was for a thing done in pursuance of the act; and that the section did not apply to such an action. Garton v. G. W. Ry., El. Bl. & El. 837; 28 L. J., Q. B. 321; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 1244; 7 W. R. 478—Ex. Ch.

—— Act passed subsequently.]—The effect of the Public Health Act, 1875, which makes improvement commissioners under local acts urban sanitary authorities, is to reconstitute them as new bodies under the act, vesting in them as such new bodies the powers given by the local acts as well as those given by the public health act; and such commissioners in subsequently doing any act in the exercise of the powers originally conferred by their local acts are acting under the Public Health Act, 1875, and consequently are entitled in respect of such act to any protection or privilege given by that act to members of local authorities acting under its provisions. Lea v. Facey, 56 L. J., Q. B. 536; 19 Q. B. D. 352; 58 L. T. 32; 35 W. R. 721; 51 J. P. 756—C. A.

Sect. 19 of 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 41, by which, in all actions for anything done in pursuance of that act, the venue is to be local, and the defendant to receive notice of action, applies only to such acts as a constable might at the date of the statute have been called upon to perform; therefore the section does not apply in the case of a constable acting under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, 1878. Bryson v. Russell, 54 L. J., Q. B. 144; 14 Q. B. D. 720; 52 L. T. 208; 33 W. R. 34; 49 J. P. 293—C. A.

—— Slander.]—At a meeting of the London County Council held for the purpose of hearing applications for music and dancing licences, upon the plaintiffs applying for a renewal of such a licence for a place of entertainment belonging to them, the defendant, a member of the council, stated that he had been to the place in question, and had witnessed a most indecent performance there, and gave that as his reason for voting against the renewal. In an action of slander brought by the plaintiffs in respect of such statement:—Held, that the defendant was not entitled to notice of action under ss. 8 and 9 of 11 & 12 Vict. c. 44, words spoken not being "anything done" within the meaning of those sections. Royal Aquarium v. Parkinson, 61 L. J., Q. B. 409; [1892] 1 Q. B. 431; 66 L. T. 513; 40 W. R. 450; 56 J. P. 404—C. A.

To an action for slander, the defendant pleaded that the words were spoken while he was acting as clerk of the markets of Dublin, and in pursuance of statutes entitling him to a month's notice of action for any act done in pursuance of them, and that no notice was given:—Held, good, and that words spoken whilst acting in pursuance of the statutes were as much within their protection as acts done. Murray v. M'Swiney, Ir. R. 9 C. L. 545.

—— Omission.]—An omission to do something which ought to be done in order to the complete performance of a duty imposed upon a public body under an act of parliament, or the continuing to leave any such duty unperformed, amounts to "an act done or intended to be done" within the meaning of a clause requiring a notice of action. Jolliffe v. Wallasey Local Board, 43 L. J., C. P. 41; L. R. 9 C. P. 62; 29 L. T. 582.

The defendants were sued by a private person for not maintaining a public road in reasonable and proper repair:—Held, that their omission to do so was "an act done," which entitled them to the protection afforded by s. 95 of the Towns Improvement (Ireland) Act, 1854. Butler v. Bray Township Commissioners, Ir. R. 11 C. L. 181.

The omission to do something which ought to be done in order to the complete performance of a duty imposed on a public body by act of parliament amounts to "an act done or intended to be done in pursuance of the act" within the meaning of the clause requiring notice of action to be given to the public body. Wilson v. Halifax Corporation, 37 L. J., Ex. 44; L. R. 3 Ex. 114; 17 L. T. 660; 16 W. R. 707.

Reasonable Ground of Belief—Bona Fides.]—A statute enacted that no plaintiff should recover in any action commenced against any person, for anything done or performed in execution or under the authority of the act, unless notice thereof, in writing, should be previously given twenty-eight days before the commencement of the action:—Held, that a notice was necessary in those cases only in which the party against whom the action was brought had reasonable grounds for supposing that the thing done by him was done in execution of or under the authority of the act. Cooke v. Leonard, 6 B. & C. 351; 9 D. & R. 339; 5 L. J. (O.S.) M. C. 99; 30 R. R. 348. See Spooner v. Juddow, 6 Moore, P. C. 257; Mason v. Newland, 9 Car. & P. 575.

Where a statutory protection is given to persons having acted in pursuance of the statute, a party is not entitled to the protection merely because he believed, bonâ fide, that he was so acting. There must be reasonable ground for the belief. Cann v. Clipperton, 10 A. & E. 582; 2 P. & D. 560; 8 L. J., Q. B. 268.

If the party acted under a reasonable though mistaken persuasion, from appearances that the facts were such as made his proceeding justifiable by the statute, he is entitled to protection though the real facts were such that the statute clearly affords no justification. Ib.

Trustees of a paving act were entitled to notice of action for anything done in pursuance of the act. They were authorised to abate any hog-sty, necessary house, or nuisance in the parish, on complaint of any inhabitant:—Held, that, whether a brothel was a nuisance within the meaning of this provision or not, if the trustees took steps to put down such a house bonâ fide, they were entitled to notice of action. Norris v. Smith, 2 P. & D. 353; 10 A. & E. 188; 8 L. J., Q. B. 274.

By a local act persons were compelled, under a penalty, to perform the duties of overseers; and no action was to be commenced against any person for anything done in pursuance of the act until notice, in writing, had been given. Overseers appointed under the act had assented to the imprisonment of a party in a workhouse, who was incorrectly supposed to have been a pauper and a lunatic. They had intended to act under 9 Geo. 4, c. 40, s. 38, but had not complied with its provisions:—Held, that this was not a thing done in pursuance of the local act and that the overseers were not, therefore, entitled to notice. Elliot v. Allen, 1 C. B. 18; 14 L. J., C. P. 136.

To give a defendant the benefit of a provision in a statute requiring notice of action, it is sufficient that the jury find that he intended to act in pursuance of such statute. Cox v. Reid, 13 Q. B. 558; 18 L. J., Q. B. 216; 13 Jur. 563.

A party entitled to notice of action, where the acts complained of are done by him in a particular character or under a particular authority, is entitled to such notice if he has acted under a bonâ fide belief that he filled that character or had that authority, and the absence of reasonable grounds for such belief is only evidence of the non-existence of such bonâ fide belief. Booth v. Clive, 10 C. B. 827; 2 L. M. & P. 283; 20 L. J., C. P. 151; 15 Jur. 563.

The question on which the right to notice of action turns is, whether a defendant acted in honest ignorance, or belief that he was acting by reason of his office, and this question is entirely for the judge; and to enable him to decide it he must receive so much of the evidence as will raise that question. Arnold v. Hamel, 9 Ex. 405; 2 C. L. R. 499; 23 L. J., Ex. 137.

A board for repair of the highways of a parish, by a resolution, referring to a previous resolution of the inhabitants that a footway should be open to the public, ordered the surveyor to open the same, and remove all obstructions there might be to the enjoyment of the road by the public. Sect. 69 of 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 50, gives a summary power to remove encroachments on carriage-ways; s. 72 imposes a penalty on persons who obstruct footways; and s. 73 gives a power, by order of a justice, to remove any matter or thing laid upon any highway so as to be a nuisance. In an action against the members of the board and the surveyor for breaking a gate of the plaintiff across the footway, the bona fides of the defendants was admitted:—Held, that they might reasonably believe that they were acting in execution of the power to remove obstructions in public roads, and, therefore, were entitled to notice of action. Smith v. Hopper, 9 Q. B. 1005; 16 L. J., Q. B. 93; 11 Jur. 302.

The plaintiff was fishing near a spot where A. had a private right of fishery. The defendant, who was the servant of A., acting under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, and bonâ fide, and reasonably believing A. to be the owner of a private fishery in the place where the plaintiff was fishing, although he was not in fact the owner, apprehended him and took away his net:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to the protection of the act. Hughes v. Buckland, 3 D. & L. 702; 15 M. & W. 346; 15 L. J., Ex. 233; 10 Jur. 884.

In order to entitle a party to a notice of action for a thing done in pursuance of 24 & 25 Vict. c. 99, s. 33, consolidating the law against offences relating to the coin, it is enough that he honestly and bonâ fide believes he is acting in pursuance of the act, whether there is reasonable ground for such belief or not. Herman v. Seneschal, 13 C. B. (N.S.) 392; 32 L. J., C. P. 43; 6 L. T. 646; 11 W. R. 184.

The proper question for the jury is, whether the defendant bonâ fide believed in the existence of a state of facts which, if it had existed, would have afforded a defence to the action. Roberts v. Orchard, 2 H. & C. 769; 33 L. J., Ex. 65 9 L. T. 727; 12 W. R. 253—Ex. Ch.

Therefore, where 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 103, provided that any person found committing any offence punishable either upon indictment or upon summary conviction, by virtue of that act, might be immediately apprehended without a warrant, and s. 113 also required notice of action for anything done in pursuance of the act, in an action by the plaintiff, a shop-woman of the defendant, for giving her into custody on the charge of stealing a florin:—Held, that it would not have been sufficient to leave to the jury the question whether the defendant honestly believed that the plaintiff had wrongfully taken the florin, and that in giving the plaintiff into custody he was executing a legal power, but the question ought also to be left to the jury whether the defendant believed that the plaintiff had been found committing the offence. Ib.

To entitle a defendant to notice of action under a statute, he must honestly intend to put the law in motion, and really believe in the existence of a state of facts which, if it existed, would have justified him in doing as he did. Heath v. Brewer, 15 C. B. (N.S.) 803; 9 L. T. 653.

In an action for false imprisonment for giving the plaintiff into custody on a charge of larceny, the defendant set up as a defence that he had had no notice of action, to which he was entitled under s. 113 of 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96; for that he had caused the plaintiff to be arrested under s. 103, believing he had found her committing a felony. The jury found that she had not committed the felony, but that the defendant bonâ fide believed, and on reasonable grounds, in the existence of facts which would have justified him in acting as he had done. On this finding the verdict was entered for the defendant. The plaintiff had not been apprehended on the spot where the defendant believed he had found her committing the felony, and the question, whether or not she had been "immediately apprehended," had not been left to the jury:—Held, that this was a question of fact for the jury which ought to have been left to them, and that there must therefore be a new trial. Griffith v. Taylor, 46 L. J., C. P. 152; 2 C. P. D. 194; 36 L. T. 5; 25 W. R. 196—C. A.

By the Larceny Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 103), any person found committing a theft may be immediately apprehended without a warrant, and by s. 113 notice of action must be given before anyone can be sued for anything done in pursuance of the act:—Held, that, to entitle a person to such notice of action, it is sufficient if he honestly believed that the person whom he apprehended was found by him committing a theft, and that if he might have so believed, it is no reason for disentitling him to such notice that a jury might think there was no reasonable ground for his so believing. King v. Chamberlain, 40 L. J., C. P. 273; L. R. 6 C. P. 474; 24 L. T. 736; 19 W. R. 931.

Where a plaintiff, under a claim of right, had taken forcible possession of premises, and committed several outrageous acts, the attorney of the owner of the premises having been sent for on the following day, gave the plaintiff, whom he found still on the premises, in charge, under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30:—Held, that although not justified in so doing, he was entitled to notice of action. Cann v. Clipperton, 2 P. & D. 560; 10 A. & E. 582; 8 L. J., Q. B. 268. S. P., Beechey v. Sides, 9 B. & C. 806; 4 M. & Ry. 634; 8 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 71.

A fenreeve having the care of lands over which the plaintiff was making a road, asked him by what authority he acted; the plaintiff said, by authority of the magistrates, but did not exhibit any warrant, whereupon the defendant apprehended and took him before a magistrate:—Held, that he was entitled to notice of action under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 41, although the plaintiff was not committing a malicious injury. Wright v. Wales, 5 Bing. 336; 2 M. & P. 613; 3 Car. & P. 96; 7 L. J. (O.S.) M. C. 60; 30 R. R. 622.

Under 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, ss. 103 and 113, the two questions to be answered in the affirmative, in order to entitle a defendant to notice of action, are, first, did he honestly believe that the person whom he has given in charge had committed a felony; and, secondly, that the same person had been found committing it. Wynyard v. Marks, 15 L. T. 591.

A., by the direction of his tenant, arrested on a Sunday two men, one of whom had just before wilfully broken one of his windows, and locked them up for two hours in a room of the house. The man who had committed the damage afterwards brought an action against A. for false imprisonment:—Held, that A. was entitled to notice of action under the 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 41. Jones v. Howell, 29 L. J., Ex. 19; 8 W. R. 151.

A party having apprehended another, and proceeded against him before a justice, under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 24, for a malicious injury to property, the justice dismissed the complaint, being of opinion that the party charged had acted under a reasonable supposition of right. An action being brought for the arrest:—Held, that the defendant, if he acted under a bonâ fide belief that the case fell within the statute, was entitled to notice of action; and that, in default of notice, the jury might properly be directed to find for the defendant, if they thought that he had acted bonâ fide. Reed v. Cowmeadow, 6 A. & E. 661; 7 Car. & P. 821.

A plaintiff, who was lessee for an unexpired term of years of a house, of which the defendant was the reversioner, being in prison, and a quarter's rent being in arrear, the defendant took possession of the house, whereupon the plaintiff's wife broke some of the windows, for the purpose of obtaining admission. The defendant gave her into custody, and charged her, under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 24, with breaking four panes of glass. No notice of action had been given, and the question of bona fides was not submitted to the jury:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to notice of action, if he bonâ fide believed himself entitled to give the wife into custody; and that, as the question of bona fides had not been left to the jury, there ought to be a new trial. Horn v. Thornborough, 3 Ex. 846; 18 L. J., Ex. 349.

In an action by a tenant against his landlord for a malicious charge of felony, under s. 45 of 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, for stealing fixtures let to him, it is not necessary to give a notice of action. Dowell v. Benningfield, Car. & M. 9.

In an action for imprisoning a party upon a charge of felony under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, s. 44, in pulling down part of a house, and selling the materials:—Held, that the defendant was within the protection of s. 75, if he bonâ fide thought he was acting in pursuance of the act; and that the jury was properly directed to find whether or not he did so think. Rudd v. Scott, 2 Scott (N.R.) 631; 9 L. J., M. C. 97.

An owner of property is not justified in giving a person into custody found (popularly speaking) committing a nuisance against his premises, nor is he entitled to notice of action for having done so, unless he is fairly justified in believing that the person had the intention to soil or deface them within the 2 & 3 Vict. c. 47, s. 54, or the intention to commit damage or injury or spoil to them within the 24 & 25 Vict. c. 97, s. 52. Bayley v. Aldred, 10 L. T. 523.

Existence of Act unknown.] — In order to entitle a party to notice of action for a thing done in pursuance or in the execution of an act of parliament, it is not necessary that he should, at the time of doing the act, be cognisant of the existence of the act giving him such protection, or that he should be acting strictly in the execution of it. Read v. Coker, 13 C. B. 850; 1 C. L. R. 746; 22 L. J., C. P. 201; 17 Jur. 990; 1 W. R. 413. S. P., Danvers v. Morgan, 1 Jur. (N.S.) 1051; 4 W. R. 21.

Honest Belief must be possible.]—Where a statute provides that before an action is commenced against any person for anything done in pursuance of the statute notice of action shall be given, in order to entitle a defendant to such notice, on the ground that "he honestly believed in the existence of those facts which, if they had existed, would have afforded a justification under the statute," the facts of the case must at least be such that he could so honestly believe, and such as to afford evidence to go to the jury that he did so. Leete v. Hart, 37 L. J., C. P. 157; L. R. 3 C. P. 322; 18 L. T. 292; 16 W. R. 676.

The defendant hearing at night a noise, and seeing a man at the back door of his house, believed that an attempt was being made to break into it, and acting on that belief, and on his wife telling him that the plaintiff was the man, he gave the plaintiff, a respectable neighbour, who happened to be passing the front of the house at the time, into custody. In an action for this false imprisonment, the defendant pleaded not guilty by statute 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, which by s. 113 requires, in actions for anything done in pursuance of the act, notice of action to be given:—Held, that, an attempt to break into a house not being an offence within the act, the defendant did not believe in a state of facts which, if it had existed, would have afforded a justification under the act, and was therefore not entitled to notice. Ib.

The defendant purchased some fruit of the plaintiffs, itinerant vendors, and directed them to take it to his residence, where it would be paid for. The fruit was accordingly taken to his house, and there paid for by his butler on the plaintiffs presenting the defendant's order to that effect. The defendant returned home about three hours afterwards, when, being under the impression that he had himself paid the plaintiffs, and that they had been paid twice, as soon as he learnt that the butler had paid them, he sent a constable after them, who found them seven hours later in the same day at a town five miles from the defendant's residence, and there arrested them on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences. Any person found committing such offence may, by 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96, s. 103, be immediately apprehended without warrant, and s. 113 gives the protection of notice before action for anything done in pursuance of that act:—Held, that the defendant, though he acted bonâ fide, could not believe that he was arresting the plaintiffs immediately they had been found committing the offence with which they were charged, and that, therefore, he was not entitled to the protection of s. 113. Downing v. Capel, 36 L. J., M. C. 97; L. R. 2 C. P. 461; 16 L. T. 323; 15 W. R. 745.

A. had communicated to B. & Co., who were distillers, a method of rectifying spirits, and they were to pay him an annuity, and sixpence a gallon on all spirits rectified by his method, and to keep an account. A. having a sum due to him, B. & Co. offered to pay it at their solicitor's office, and to produce the account there. A. sent B. & Co. a letter, stating that he should come to the distillery for a sight of the account and for payment, to which G., one of the firm of B. & Co., replied by letter, stating that if A. came to the distillery and either rang or knocked he would be punished. A. went to the distillery (which was within the metropolitan police district), and gently rang the gate-bell, when H., who was the cashier of the firm, gave A. into the custody of a policeman on a charge of having rung the bell, contrary to the 2 & 3 Vict. c. 47, s. 54:—Held, in an action for false imprisonment by A. against G. and H., that this was not a case within that act, and that G. and H. were not justified under that act, and that they were not entitled to notice of action. Home v. Grimble, Car. & M. 17.

A woman having been taken into custody on a charge of concealing the birth of her illegitimate child, a justice of the peace made an order for the examination of her person, under which order she was examined by a medical man. In an action against him for an assault, there being no authority at common law or by statute to make the order:—Held, that he was not entitled to notice of action under 11 & 12 Vict. c. 44, s. 9 (which provides for the giving of notice before any action against a justice of the peace for anything done by him in the execution of his office), inasmuch as though he might have acted bonâ fide, in the belief that he had authority to make the order for her examination, there was nothing in fact on which he could ground such belief. Agnew v. Jobson, 47 L. J., M. C. 67; 13 Cox, C. C. 625.

Servant claiming to have Authority of Owner.] —Where a defendant claims the protection of 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, as having acted within s. 28 as the owner's servant, or by the owner's authority, in arresting the plaintiff, the jury should be asked not only whether the defendant acted bonâ fide, but also whether he had a reasonable belief that he was servant of, or had the authority of, the owner. Kine v. Evershed, 10 Q. B. 148; 16 L. J. Q. B. 271; 11 Jur. 673.

Person acting when disqualified.]—A person who is in fact disqualified from being a member of a local authority, but who acts in the bonâ fide belief that he is a member, is entitled to notice of action under s. 264 of the Public Health Act, 1875. Lea v. Facey, 56 L. J., Q. B. 536; 19 Q. B. D. 352; 58 L. T. 32; 35 W. R. 721; 51 J. P. 756—C. A.

Contractor or Builder.]—The defendant was a contractor engaged in making a sewer for a vestry; one of his men, who was employed to take care of a horse and cart, and who had no right to go home to dinner or leave the horse and cart, took them to his house and left them outside whilst he was having his dinner; the horse ran away and damaged the plaintiff's railings: — Held, that the defendant was not entitled to notice of action under s. 106 of the Metropolis Management Act, 1862. Whatman v. Pearson, 37 L. J., C. P. 156; L. R. 3 C. P. 422; 18 L. T. 290; 16 W. R. 649.

The defendant contracted with the metropolitan board of works to make a new sewer to the satisfaction of the engineer of such board, and in the course of carrying out such contract he made a dam across the old sewer to keep back the sewage, and unintentionally neglected sufficiently to pump out the sewage, so that on three separate occasions it entered the plaintiff's house and injured it:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to notice of action under s. 106 of the Metropolis Management Act, 1862, as the injury complained of was the result of "an act done or intended to be done under the powers of such board," by a contractor acting under their direction, within the meaning of such section. Poulsum v. Thirst, 36 L. J., C. P. 225; L. R. 2 C. P. 449; 16 L. T. 324; 15 W. R. 766.

The defendant contracted with a local board of health to dig wells for them according to a specification prepared by the surveyor, the works to be done to the satisfaction of such surveyor, and the digging to be done entirely under his direction; the surveyor to have power, if he considered the materials or works improper, of making the contractor remove them, or of removing them at the contractor's expense, and of ordering the dismissal of workmen with whom he should be dissatisfied, or of dismissing them himself; the board to have the power of making alterations and additions. The defendant was sued for having left a hole, excavated in working one of the wells in a highway, without light by night, whereby a party, who was driving a carriage along the highway, fell into the hole, and was bruised, and his carriage injured:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to notice of action under the 11 & 12 Vict. c. 63, s. 139. Newton v. Ellis, 5 El. & Bl. 115; 24 L. J., Q. B. 337; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 850; 3 W. R. 476.

By the Metropolitan Building Act, 18 & 19 Vict. c. 122, s. 108, no writ or process shall be sued out against any district surveyor or other person for anything done or intended to be done under the provisions of the act till one month after notice of action:—Held, that the words "or other person" were restricted to a class, and intended to protect persons of the same class as a district surveyor or persons who had official duties cast upon them by the act, and did not include a builder, who while building a house adjoining the plaintiff's had negligently underpinned the party-wall and thereby caused damage to his house. Williams v. Golding, 35 L. J., C. P. 1; L. R. 1 C. P. 69; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 952; 13 L. T. 291; 14 W. R. 60; 1 H. & R. 18. See Breedon v. Murphy, 3 Car. & P. 574.

Person acting under Direction of Vestry.]—By the directions of an officer of the vestry board, the defendant, in the honest belief that such officer was authorised by the board to give such directions, erected a urinal on the wall of the plaintiff, such a work being a thing within the powers of the vestry board to erect under 18 & 19 Vict. c. 120, s. 88. The officer had no express orders from the board to erect this particular work, but the parish afterwards paid the expenses of it:—Held, that the defendant, as he acted bonâ fide under the direction of an officer of the board, in the erection of works which the board was empowered to order by virtue of 18 & 19 Vict. c. 120, s. 88, was a person within the meaning of 25 & 26 Vict. c. 102, s. 106, entitled to notice of action. Chambers v. Reid, 13 L. T. 703; 14 W. R. 370.

Held, also, that the words in 25 & 26 Vict. c. 102, s. 106, "their or any of their directions," are not to be limited to the "board or vestry," but to be extended to the words following, "clerk, surveyor, contractor, officer," &c. Ib.

By the 25 & 26 Vict. c. 102, s. 106, no writ or process shall be sued out against or served upon . . . the metropolitan board of works, or any vestry or district board, or their clerk or any clerk, surveyor, contractor, officer, or person whomsoever, acting under their or any of their directions, for anything done or intended to be done under the powers of such board or vestry under the metropolitan acts, until one month after notice:—Held, that the section intended only some act done by virtue of the powers vested in the board or vestry and under their authority, and that, therefore, a person who had received notice from a district board to drain into a sewer, and in doing so committed a trespass, was not entitled to notice of action. Doust v. Slater, 10 B. & S. 400; 38 L. J., Q. B. 159; 20 L. T. 525.

Private Person distinguished from Constables, &c.]—A private person who gives another into custody on a charge of having committed an offence against 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 29, is not entitled to notice of action under s. 75, as that section only applies to constables and other officers, and persons of that kind. Brooker v. Field, 9 Car. & P. 651.

The 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 30, s. 41, which makes certain provisions as to actions brought for anything done in pursuance of that statute, applies only to the case of parties exercising particular powers conferred by that statute. Thomas v. Saunders, 5 B. & Ad. 462.

The 24 & 25 Vict. c. 96 (the Larceny Consolidation Act), s. 113, requiring a month's notice in writing to be given before the commencement of any action or prosecution against any person "for anything done in pursuance of the act," has no application to the ordinary case of a private individual prosecuting another for a felony, and such a person is liable for malicious prosecution without the safeguard of notice provided by that section. Mercer v. Gooch, 15 L. T. 219.

Constables and Watchmen.]—By an act for improving a town, commissioners were appointed, and were authorised to appoint, by writing, a clerk, and also such surveyors, constables, watchmen, and other officers, deputies, or assistants, for the execution of the purposes of the act, as they should from time to time think proper. The commissioners were also empowered to appoint such a number of able-bodied men as they should think proper to be employed as watchmen during the night-time; and it should be lawful for such watchmen, and they were required in their stations, to apprehend and secure all malefactors, and all suspected persons who should be found wandering and misbehaving themselves during the hours of keeping watch. The watchmen were to be sworn in as constables, and were to be invested with the like powers and authorities as any constables were invested with or enjoyed by law. No action should be commenced against any person or persons for anything done or to be done under or by virtue of the act until a month's notice should have been first given in writing to the clerk of the commissioners of the cause of action :—Held, first, that the section requiring notice to be given was not confined to acts done, or directed to be done, by the commissioners, but applied to acts done by constables and watchmen ; secondly, that evidence of the defendants acting as constables and watchmen under the commissioners in the town was primâ facie sufficient to entitle them to the protection, without proof of their appointment ; and, thirdly, that where the watchmen had reasonable ground of suspicion that a felony had been committed by the plaintiff, and went to the plaintiff's house to apprehend him for such felony, but beat him, and used much more violence than was necessary for effecting his apprehension, they were protected by the section requiring notice. Butler v. Ford, 1 C. & M. 662 ; 3 Tyr. 677 ; 2 L. J., M. C. 109.

Action against Company—Action in rem.]—It is provided by s. 8 of 6 & 7 Will. 4, ch. c., that "no action to which the" City of Dublin Steam Packet Company "shall be liable in respect of any damage alleged to be done . . . to . . . any ship on the high seas . . . shall be brought . . . unless one calendar month's previous notice in writing shall have been given . . . to the said company." A damage action in rem having been commenced against a vessel belonging to the City of Dublin Steam Packet Company in respect of a collision on the high seas without any notice of action having been given to the company :—Held, that the action, being in rem, was not an action against the company within s. 8 of 6 & 7 Will. 4, ch. c., and that notice was not required. The Longford, 58 L. J., P. 33 ; 14 P. D. 34 ; 60 L. T. 373 ; 37 W. R. 372 ; 6 Asp. M. C. 371—C. A.

The 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 105, s. 8, which requires notice to be given one calendar month before bringing any action in any of his Majesty's courts against the City of Dublin Steam Packet Company, has reference merely to actions in personam against the company, and not to actions in rem against the company's vessels. The Mullingar, 26 L. T. 326.

—— Treasurer.]—The 39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 69, s. 184, directed that the West India Dock company should be sued in the name of their treasurer, and extended the protection of the 24 Geo. 2, c. 44, for privileging justices of the peace in actions brought against them as such, to the lord mayor and aldermen of London, acting under the act beyond the limits of the city ; and directed that no action should be commenced against any person or persons for anything done in pursuance or under colour of the act until after notice in writing :—Held, that the treasurer of the company was a person within the protection of the clause, and being sued for an act done by the company which induced an injury to the plaintiff, was entitled to such notice before action. The notice is necessary in actions for trespasses or torts. Wallace v. Smith, 5 East, 114 ; 1 Smith, 346.

—— Commissioners.]—An action against the Melbourne Harbour trust commissioners is an action brought against a "person" within the meaning of s. 46 of the Melbourne Harbour trust act ; and notice in writing thereof complying in form or in substance with the requirements of the section is necessary. Union Steamship Co. of New Zealand v. Melbourne Harbour Commissioners, 53 L. J., P. C. 59 ; 9 App. Cas. 365 ; 50 L. T. 337 ; 5 Asp. M. C. 222—P. C. See Boyd v. London and Croydon Ry., 4 Bing. (N.C.) 669 ; 6 Scott, 461 ; 6 D. P. C. 721 ; 7 L. J., C. P. 241.

Injunction—No Notice required.]—The court of chancery will grant an injunction to restrain a nuisance being committed or continued by a metropolitan local board, notwithstanding a month's notice of the proceeding has not been given in accordance with the Metropolis Local Management Acts Amendment Act, 1862, s. 106. Att.-Gen. v. Hackney Board of Works, 44 L. J., Ch. 545 ; L. R. 20 Eq. 626 ; 33 L. T. 244.

Where the principal object of an action against a local board of health is an injunction to restrain an immediate injury, it is not necessary to give a month's notice of the cause of action under s. 264 of the Public Health Act, 1875 ; and it makes no difference that damages are claimed by way of subsidiary relief. Flower v. Low Leyton Local Board, 46 L. J., Ch. 621 ; 5 Ch. D. 347 ; 36 L. T. 760 ; 25 W. R. 545—C. A.

Sect. 106 of the Metropolis Local Management Acts Amendment Act, 1862, which requires that before any proceeding is instituted against a district board a month's notice shall be served on them by the person intending to take the proceeding, does not apply to actions in equity—per North, J. That section does not apply to an action for an injunction to restrain a nuisance—per Lopes, L.J. (Cotton and Lindley, L.JJ., not dissenting). Bateman v. Poplar Board of Works, 56 L. J., Ch. 149 ; 33 Ch. D. 360 ; 55 L. T. 374—C. A.

A local board, assuming to act under the authority of s. 39 of the Public Health Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 55), erected a public urinal partly upon a highway and partly upon a strip of land belonging to the plaintiff, and so near to other adjoining land of the plaintiff as to be a nuisance to her and her tenants, and to depreciate the value of her property :—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to a mandatory injunction to restrain the board from continuing the urinal upon her land or so near thereto as to cause injury or annoyance to her or her tenants, and that in such a case notice of action under s. 264 is not required. Sellors v. Matlock Bath Local Board, 14 Q. B. D. 928 ; 52 L. T. 762.

The provision of s. 109 of the Highways Act, 1835, as to notice of action, does not apply where the principal object of the action is an injunction. Phelips v. Hadham District Board, 1 Cab. & E. 67.

—— Damages in Substitution for.]—Where an action against a sanitary authority was bonâ fide and in substance brought for an injunction to prevent them from causing a nuisance in the future by continuing to discharge sewage into a stream, but the judge at the trial thought that under the circumstances an injunction was not then needed, because, though a nuisance was caused by such discharge of sewage in an exceptionally dry season, which at the time of the trial had passed away, it was not likely to recur except in such a season, and he accordingly refused an injunction, but gave 25*l.* damages :—Held, that he had power to give such damages in substitution for an injunction in accordance with the chancery practice under Lord Cairns' act, though no notice of action had been given as required by s. 264 of the Public Health Act, 1875. Chapman v. Auckland Union, 58 L. J., Q. B. 504 ; 23 Q. B. D. 294 ; 61 L. T. 446 ; 53 J. P. 820—C. A.

Other Cases where no Notice required.]—The section of the Poor Law Amendment Act giving to the commissioners, &c., protection by way of notice and limitation of action, does not apply to actions resulting from suits in equity against them to restrain acts in the nature of a nuisance. Bevan v. Clifton Union, 2 W. R. 598.

Clauses in local act providing that person aggrieved by the commissioners appointed to carry it into execution should appeal to the quarter sessions, and that twenty-one days' notice should be given before any action or suit was commenced for anything done in pursuance of the act, do not apply to the case of a person claiming as an incumbrancer of the rates which the act gave authority to assess and levy and instituting his suit in order to give effect to his incumbrance. Drewry v. Barnes, 3 Russ. 94 ; 5 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 47 ; 27 R. R. 20.

c. When and How to be Given.

1. Form and Requisites.

Time for Giving.]—A notice of an action against a justice for an act done by him in execution of his office, under an order, in a matter in which he has no jurisdiction, may be given before the quashing of the order, the act itself being the cause of action, and such cause of action being complete before the quashing, although the action itself cannot be brought until after the quashing. Haylock v. Sparke, 1 El. & Bl. 471 ; 22 L. J., M. C. 67 ; 17 Jur. 731.

Second Writ—One Notice.]—Where the notice stated the nature of the writ intended to be sued out, and also the cause of action ; and a writ was sued out and served, but afterwards discontinued ; and within the time allowed by the statute another writ ejusdem generis was sued out and served, in which another person was joined as defendant : the court, after verdict, held that the notice was sufficient. Jones v. Simpson, 1 C. & J. 174 ; 1 Tyr. 32 ; 9 L. J. (O.S.) M. C. 45.

Length of Notice.]—In an action against a justice of the peace for anything done by him in the execution of his office, the day both of delivering the notice and that of bringing the action must be excluded. Young v. Higgon, 6 M. & W. 49 ; 8 D. P. C. 212 ; 9 L. J., M. C. 29 ; 4 Jur. 125.

In a case where one calendar month's notice of action was necessary, notice of action was given on the 28th of a month, and an action commenced on the 29th of the following month :—Held, sufficient. Freeman v. Read, 4 B. & S. 174 ; 32 L. J., M. C. 226 ; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 149 ; 8 L. T. 458 ; 11 W. R. 802.

The 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 50, s. 109 (Highway Act), requiring twenty-one days' notice of action against justices or others for anything done under the act, does not impliedly repeal the privilege of justices to have a month's notice under the 24 Geo. 2, c. 44, s. 1. Reg. v. Barton Inhabitants, 12 A. & E. 470 ; 4 P. & D. 182 ; 4 Jur. 987.

Under the Metropolitan Works Act, 25 & 26 Vict. c. 102, s. 106, a notice of action left with the foreman of a contractor, at a yard of his where there was an office, on the day from which a calendar month expired the day before action, is sufficient, although it did not come to the hands of the defendant until the day afterwards. Moody v. Delhick, 4 F. & F. 938.

Indorsements.]—The name and place of abode of the plaintiff's attorney should appear on the back of the notice of action (when the notice of action has been served by the attorney) ; and it is not sufficient that they should appear in the body or at the foot of it. Collins v. Hungerford, 7 Ir. C. L. R. 581.

Where a notice of action was signed by the plaintiff himself, but indorsed by his attorney :—Held, that the notice was sufficient, the indorsement by the attorney being all that the statute requires. Morgan v. Leach, 10 M. & W. 558 ; 2 D. (N.S.) 522 ; 12 L. J., M. C. 4.

It is sufficient, in indorsing the attorney's name, to put the initial only of his christian name. Mayhew v. Lock, 2 Marsh. 377 ; 7 Taunt. 63.

It is sufficient, if signed by a firm of two attorneys who are partners, and are employed by the plaintiff ; and if signed T. & W. A. W. this is good, though the christian name of one is T. A., and of the other W. A., if there was no other firm of the same surname in the same place at which the notice bore date. James v. Swift, 6 D. & R. 625 ; 4 B. & C. 681 ; 2 Car. & P. 237 ; 4 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 43.

A notice was indorsed by Messrs. England and Shackles as attorneys for the plaintiff ; but before action brought the partnership was dissolved, and the action was brought by Mr. England alone :—Held to be no ground of objection. Hollingworth v. Palmer, 4 Ex. 267 ; 18 L. J., Ex. 409.

A description of the attorney, as of a place in London, when in fact the place is in Westminster, is bad. Stears v. Smith, 6 Esp. 138.

When signed thus—"Given under my hand at Durham the 11th day of, &c. Richard Ratcliffe, attorney for, &c." :—Held, insufficient. Taylor v. Fenwick, 3 Bos. & P. 553, n. ; 7 Term Rep. 635, n. ; 3 Dougl. 178.

An indorsement by an attorney of the place of his office is an indorsement of his place of abode. Roberts v. Williams, 4 D. P. C. 483 ; 5 Tyr. 583 ; 1 Gale, 315 ; 5 L. J., M. C. 23.

An indorsement with the name of the plaintiff's attorney, and the words, "of Birmingham," as describing the place of his abode, is sufficient. Osborn v. Gough, 3 Bos. & P. 551.

In Wrong Court.]—A notice of an action in the common pleas was insufficient to support an action in the queen's bench. Elstob v. Wright, 3 Car. & K. 31.

Description of Occupation.]—A party may describe himself by the addition of what he really is, e.g. "dealer," although in the commitment he is described as a labourer. Mason v. Barker, 1 Car. & K. 100.

Form of Action.]—The notice need not state the form of action ; it is sufficient to state the cause of action. Prickett v. Gratrex, 2 New Sess. Cas. 429 ; 8 Q. B. 1020 ; 1 Car. & K. 651 ; 15

L. J., M. C. 145 ; 10 Jur. 566. S. P., Ford v. Abdy, 5 L. J. (O.S.) M. C. 41.

Cause of Action.]—A notice of action must state the substantial cause of action intended to be relied on clearly and explicitly, and in such a manner as will not be likely to mislead, and so probably prevent a tender of amends. Taylor v. Nesfield, 3 El. & Bl. 725 ; 2 C. L. R. 1312 ; 23 L. J., M. C. 169 ; 18 Jur. 747 ; 2 W. R. 474.

In an action against a justice of the peace for an act done within his jurisdiction, the notice of action must state that the act was done maliciously, and without reasonable and probable cause, or it will not be sufficient within s. 9 of 11 & 12 Vict. c. 44. Ib.

A notice is not vitiated by being in the form of a declaration, and unnecessarily ample, if it expresses the cause of action with sufficient clearness. Gimbert v. Coyney, M'Clel. & Y. 469 ; 29 R. R. 828. And see Robson v. Spearman, 3 B. & Ald. 493.

—— Place and Time.]—A notice of action does not clearly and explicitly contain the cause of action, if it omits to mention the place where the act complained of was done. Martins v. Upcher, 1 D. (N.S.) 555 ; 2 G. & D. 716 ; 3 Q. B. 662 ; 11 L. J., Q. B. 291 ; 6 Jur. 582.

A notice to a special constable stated the grievances to be, that he, on the 30th January, at S., arrested and imprisoned the plaintiff on a charge of felony, and took him then in custody to D., detained him twelve hours in custody, and caused him to be taken before certain justices of the peace at D. on the 31st of the said month :—Held, that the time and place of committing the grievances were sufficiently specified. Jones v. Nicholls, 1 New Sess. Cas. 524 ; 13 M. & W. 361 ; 2 D. & L. 425 ; 14 L. J., Ex. 42 ; 8 Jur. 989.

A notice of action against an officer of the metropolitan police, under 10 Geo. 4, c. 44, s. 41, must specify the time and place of the act complained of. Breese v. Jerdein, 4 Q. B. 585 ; 2 G. & D. 720 ; 12 L. J., Q. B. 234 ; 7 Jur. 490.

A notice of action accurate in every particular except as to the date, which was wrong only by a day, is a sufficient and valid notice. Green v. Hutt, 51 L. J., Q. B. 640 ; 46 L. T. 888 ; 46 J. P. 599.

A notice of an action against a vestry for something done, or intended to be done, under the powers of the Metropolis Management Amendment Act, 1862, sufficiently states the cause of action within the meaning of s. 106 of that act, although it contains an inaccurate statement as to the place where the injury complained of occurred, provided such inaccurate statement is not calculated to mislead the defendants. Martins v. Upcher (3 Q. B. 662) distinguished. Madden v. Kensington Vestry, 61 L. J., Q. B. 527 ; [1892] 1 Q. B. 614 ; 66 L. T. 347 ; 40 W. R. 390 ; 56 J. P. 471.

A notice of action against a magistrate for acts done in the exercise of his office, not stating the place in which the acts complained of had been committed, is insufficient. Forbes v. Lloyd, Ir. R. 10 C. L. 552—Ex. Ch.

A notice stating that a trespass was committed in a house described as in "West Square, Lambeth," is sufficient, though the correct legal description would have been "in the parish of St. George the Martyr." Gibbs v. Stead, 8 B. & C. 528 ; 6 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 378.

A notice stated the cause of action thus :—"For that you on the 10th day of May, 1844, with force and arms, caused an assault to be made upon me, and then caused me to be beaten, and to be forced and compelled to go along divers public streets and roads to a prison, to wit, at Louth, in, &c., and to be unlawfully imprisoned and kept in prison there for forty days then next following." At the trial, the proof was confined to the imprisonment in the gaol at Louth, under an invalid warrant :—Held, that the notice sufficiently stated the place of the injury so as to enable the plaintiff to recover in respect of such imprisonment. Jacklin v. Fytche, 14 M. & W. 381 ; 15 L. J., Ex. 102.

Justices convicted A. under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 68, in his absence, of keeping an unlicensed theatre. Immediately after the conviction, he, being in the presence of the justices, asked leave to go to his home. One of the justices said if he went he must go in custody. He was detained for a day and a night. A warrant not returnable on a day certain was issued by the justices. It recited a conviction, adjudging A. to pay a penalty of 5*l.* and 12*s.* costs, and directed the sums to be levied by distress. Under this warrant his goods were seized and sold. A conviction was drawn up, adjudging him to pay a penalty, but silent as to costs ; and there was no evidence that in fact the justices had adjudicated on the costs. The conviction was quashed. Notice of action was given to the justices for that they, "at H., on the 1st day August," &c., imprisoned A., and also for that they "on the said 1st day," &c., seized his goods :—Held, that the notice was sufficiently certain as to averment of place. Leary v. Patrick, 15 Q. B. 266 ; 4 New Sess. Cas. 258 ; 19 L. J., M. C. 211 ; 14 Jur. 932.

Amount Recoverable.]—In an action against a justice for taking goods, the plaintiff cannot recover more than the value stated in his notice. Stringer v. Martyr, 6 Esp. 134.

Variance in.]—A notice to a constable, in pursuance of 10 Geo. 4, c. 44, s. 41, mentioned apprehension, detention in custody, and imprisonment, as the cause of action. The declaration contained two counts—one for the cause of action stated in the notice, and the other for taking the goods of the plaintiff. A verdict was given for him upon the first count only :—Held, that the variance was not material. Breese v. Jerdein, 4 Q. B. 585 ; 2 G. & D. 720 ; 12 L. J., Q. B. 234 ; 7 Jur. 490.

Construction of Notices.] — In construing notices of action under the various statutes requiring them, the court will not subject them to too nice and narrow an examination ; the object being that they should be plain and intelligible to plain men. Jones v. Nicholls, 1 New Sess. Cas. 524 ; 13 M. & W. 361 ; 2 D. & L. 425 ; 14 L. J., Ex. 42 ; 8 Jur. 989.

A notice of action against bricklayers, for negligence in repairing a public sewer, is not to be construed with the same strictness as is generally required in pleading, provided there is a sufficient cause of action shewn upon the face of it ; therefore a notice under a local act "that the defendant made, altered, repaired, cut, dug, worked, and enlarged the sewer in so negligent, incautious, unskilful, improvident, and improper a manner, that the plaintiff's premises fell, and were greatly damaged, weakened, and destroyed," is a sufficient notice, though the proof was, first, that the defendant had not propped and shored up the house in the progress of the work; and, secondly, that the immediate cause of the injury was the falling of other houses, which drew the plaintiff's after them. Jones v. Bird, 1 D. & R. 497; 5 B. & Ald. 837; 24 R. R. 579.

But a notice against a toll-gate keeper, "for demanding and taking of the plaintiff toll for and in respect of certain matters and things particularly mentioned and exempted from the payment of toll in and by an act of parliament intituled, &c.," is too uncertain, and bad. Freeman v. Line, 2 Chit. 673.

A notice of an action for breaking and entering the plaintiff's house, and seizing goods, which goods were "lying and being in and upon my dwelling-house," will not support a charge in the declaration of taking the plaintiff's goods. Elstob v. Wright, 3 Car. & K. 31.

But a notice of action given to the high bailiffs of a county court under 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95, s. 138, which stated that the action would be brought "to recover compensation in damages for a trespass and excessive levy committed by you and your officers on the 3rd day of December, 1863, by selling and disposing of certain goods and chattels in and upon the premises," is not bad for not stating whose goods were seized, nor the amount of damages sought to be recovered. Burton v. Le Gros, 34 L. J., Q. B. 91; 11 L. T. 270; 13 W. R. 46.

In an action against a local board acting under the Public Health Act, 1848 (11 & 12 Vict. c. 63), for not having properly filled up a trench which the board had caused to be made in a road for laying down a sewer, by reason of which that part of the road gave way, and the plaintiff's horse was injured, the notice of action given in compliance with s. 139 stated that the board did by their "labourers, servants, and others on or about the 13th of May last negligently, carelessly, and improperly leave a certain portion of the road or highway in an insufficient and improper state of repair, whereby a horse" of the plaintiff "sank into the road or highway, and was thrown therein," and injured:—Held, that the notice was not limited to a complaint of an injury from non-repair of the road, but was applicable to a cause of action arising from an act of misfeasance, and was therefore a sufficient notice of the cause of action. Smith v. West Derby Local Board, 47 L. J., C. P. 607; 3 C. P. D. 423; 38 L. T. 716; 27 W. R. 137.

A notice stated that a writ would be issued against the defendant for that he had caused a distress to be levied at the plaintiff's office of business. The declaration was for breaking and entering, and seizing the plaintiff's goods:—Held, that the notice was sufficient. Hillingworth v. Palmer, 4 Ex. 267; 18 L. J., Ex. 409.

When in the Name of a Party who was Dead.]—A notice in these words:—"I do hereby, as attorney for A. P. and E. P. (the plaintiff), and in pursuance of the statute, give you notice that an action will be commenced against you for recovery of compensation in damages for an illegal seizure and distraint, and for the value of the property seized." A. P. was dead at the time of the service of the notice:—Held, that the notice, being in the name of a party who was dead, was insufficient. Pilkington v. Riley, 6 D. & L. 628; 3 Ex. 739; 18 L. J., Ex. 323.

Statement of Names.]—If a notice of action against a magistrate for wrongful distress under a conviction states the person to whom the warrant is directed, it must state it correctly. Aked v. Stocks, 4 Bing. 509; 1 M. & P. 346; 6 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 100; 29 R. R. 614.

One Notice to Several Persons.]—A separate notice to each of several persons intended to be sued is sufficient to found a joint action against all for acts committed in pursuance of an act of parliament, which provided that no plaintiff shall recover in an action for anything done in pursuance thereof without notice to the defendant or defendants of such intended action, although none of the other persons who are afterwards joined in the action are named in the notice to either of them. Agar v. Morgan, 2 Price, 126; 19 R. R. 567, n.

A notice of action against a magistrate is sufficient to warrant a writ and proceeding against the magistrate and a constable jointly. Jones v. Simpson, 1 C. & J. 174; 1 Tyr. 32; 9 L. J. (O.S.) M. C. 45.

Contained in Several Documents.]—The notice of action mentioned in s. 264 of the Public Health Act, 1875, need not be contained in one document; a series of letters will suffice if the cause of action is clearly stated, and the other requirements of the section are complied with. Lamley v. East Retford Corporation, 55 J. P. 133—C. A.

Where a statute requires a month's notice of action to be given before the commencement of an action, a letter written to the defendant six weeks before action, threatening proceedings unless an apology was made and certain costs were paid, is not such a notice as the statute requires. Wynyard v. Marks, 15 L. T. 591.

Sufficiency of Notice.]—A letter from the plaintiff's attorney, declaring that he is instructed to take legal proceedings unless goods are delivered up, is not a sufficient notice of action. Lewis v. Smith, Holt, 27. S. P., Mason v. Birkenhead Improvement Commissioners, 6 H. & N. 72; 29 L. J., Ex. 407.

Where trustees of a paving act were entitled to a certain number of days' notice of action for anything done in pursuance of the act, a notice that, unless the name of the party on whose information they had taken certain steps were given up, proceedings would be taken against them, is bad because conditional, and because it should have specified that the action would be commenced at the expiration of the number of days mentioned in the act. Norris v. Smith, 2 P. & D. 353; 10 A. & E. 188; 8 L. J., Q. B. 274.

One person acted as clerk to two bodies of public officers. A notice of action was given him addressed to him as clerk to the one body, the cause of action arising under the authority of the other body:—Held, insufficient. Hider v. Dorrell, 1 Taunt. 383.

A notice signed by "A. E. P., solicitor, acting on the behalf and as the prochein amy of the plaintiff," who was an infant:—Held, sufficient, where notice was required to be given "by the attorney or agent." De Gondouin v. Lewis, 2 P. & D. 283; 10 A. & E. 117; 9 L. J., Q. B. 148; 3 Jur. 1168.

A notice of action to a bailiff of a county court is not bad because it describes him as having acted under a statute which does not relate at all to county courts, or to the matter in question; if it gives him notice of the action and of the cause thereof it is sufficient, and such a reference to a wrong statute may be rejected. Macgregor v. Galsworthy, 3 Car. & K. 8.

A plaintiff having, after notice of action for extortion by a railway company in carrying his goods, served the company with a demand of interest under 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 28:—Held, that an arbitrator, under a submission of all matters in difference, might award the plaintiff interest, notwithstanding the notice of action did not contain a demand of interest. Edwards v. G. W. Ry., 11 C. B. 588; 21 L. J., C. P. 72.

Particulars of demand in a plaint in a county court were, first, for unlawfully entering premises and seizing cattle under colour of a distress; secondly, for unlawfully selling three other cattle not distrained; thirdly, for not having the cattle so sold appraised before selling them; and, fourthly, for continuing on the premises and proceeding to sell the cattle after an abandonment of the distress. A notice of action given as under 5 & 6 Vict. c. 54, s. 19 (Tithe Commutation Act), stated that the plaintiff would bring his plaint against the defendant for having on the 11th of March entered his premises and seized three heifers there, and for having continued there several days, and also for that the defendant against the plaintiffs will on the 17th March did seize, sell, and remove from the plaintiff's premises three heifers belonging to him:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to go into evidence in support of the fourth item, as it was one for which no notice of action was necessary; or, if necessary, the notice given was large enough to apply to it. Howard v. Remer, 2 El. & Bl. 915; 23 L. J., Q. B. 60; 2 W. R. 55.

2. Service.

Service of a notice of action to a magistrate by a clerk of the attorney is sufficient, and the notice need not be served by the attorney himself. Morgan v. Leach, 10 M. & W. 558; 2 D. (N.S.) 522; 12 L. J., M. C. 4.

By 8 & 9 Vict. c. 20, s. 138, any notice, writ, or other proceeding at law or in equity may be served by being left at or transmitted through the post directed to the principal office of the company, or one of their principal offices where there shall be more than one:—Held, that a notice of action against the Great Western Railway Company for an overcharge for the carriage of goods from Bristol to London, served upon the superintendent of the Bristol station by the plaintiff, who resided at Bristol, was insufficient, inasmuch as the secretary was in London, and the control of the railway was carried on and the ordinary meetings of the directors were held there. Garton v. G. W. Ry., El. Bl. & El. 837; 27 L. J., Q. B. 375; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 1036; 6 W. R. 677.

3. Proof.

Necessity for.]—A witness, who served a notice of action, did not know the handwriting of the plaintiff, whose signature the notice purported to bear, and no evidence was given of his handwriting:—Held, sufficient without such proof, as it was enough that the notice should have been served on his behalf. Forman v. Dawes, Car. & M. 127.

Waiving.]—The mere act of a magistrate cannot waive the necessity of proving a notice of action. Therefore, where a magistrate had sent to the plaintiff a paper writing reciting the notice that had been served on him, and tendering amends in respect of the matter contained in such notice, proof of such notice was still required. Martins v. Upcher, 1 D. (N.S.) 555; 2 G. & D. 716; 3 Q. B. 662; 11 L. J., Q. B. 291; 6 Jur. 582.

In an action against a justice of the peace for acts done in the execution of his office, the proof of notice of action is a necessary part of the plaintiff's case, and must be given by him, though the want of it is not relied upon in pleading by the defendant. Lawrenson v. Hill, 10 Ir. C. L. R. 498.

d. Pleading Want of Notice.

Necessity of.]—Where an act provided that a plaintiff should not recover in any action for anything done in pursuance of the act unless twenty-one days' notice of action should be given:—Held, that the defendant must plead the want of such notice, or he could not avail himself of it. Davey v. Warne, 14 M. & W. 199; 15 L. J., Ex. 253. S. P., Law v. Dodd, 1 Ex. 845; 17 L. J., M. C. 65.

Under the County Courts Act, 1846, to take advantage of want of notice of action, it must be specially pleaded. Smith v. Pritchard, 2 Car. & K. 699.

Sufficiency of.]—To an action against a clerk of the pasture-masters of a borough, under a local act, for money received by the pasture-masters to the plaintiff's use, he pleaded that the debt arose out of the sale of a heifer of the plaintiff by the pasture-masters after the passing of the local act and 5 & 6 Vict. c. 97; that the sale of the heifer was a thing done in pursuance of the first-mentioned act; and that no notice of action had been given to the defendant, or to the pasture-masters:—Held, that the plea contained no sufficient averment that the thing complained of was a thing done in pursuance of the powers and authorities given by the local act. Peck v. Boyes, 7 Scott (N.R.) 436; 6 Man. & G. 726.

In trover, a defendant pleaded that the grievance was committed after the passing of 7 & 8 Vict. c. 19, for regulating bailiffs of inferior courts; that he had been duly appointed to act as bailiff in execution of the process of the Tolzey Court of Bristol, which court has, by charter, jurisdiction for the recovery of debts; and that he at the time of committing the grievance was a bailiff of the court, and that the grievance was a thing done in pursuance of his duty as such bailiff, and that no notice of action was given:—Held, sufficient, and that he was justified, on the ground that he was bailiff de facto. Braham v. Watkins, 4 D. & L. 42; 16 M. & W. 77; 16 L. J., Ex. 9.

e. Effect of Omission to Give.

Bars Right of Action as well as Costs.]—The proviso in s. 143 of the Turnpike Act, 3 Geo. 4, c. 126, is not confined to that part of the section which immediately precedes it, but extends to the whole matter in the section; and, therefore, if a party seeking to recover the penalties imposed by that act omits to give the requisite notice, or to commence his action within the prescribed time, he is not merely barred of his right to costs, but of his right of action altogether. Cobbett v. Warner, 1 H. & N. 388; 26 L. J., Ex. 11—Ex. Ch.

b. JOINDER OF PARTIES.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XVI.

Plaintiffs—Same Person also Defendant.]—A party cannot be both plaintiff and defendant in an action at law; and therefore, where a plaintiff sued as executor, and the defendant pleaded that the promises were made jointly with the plaintiff, the court held it a good plea in bar. Moffatt v. Van Mullingen, 2 Chit. 539; 2 Bos. & P. 124, n.; 15 R. R. 506; S. P., Teague v. Hubbard, 8 B. & C. 345; 6 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 326. And see Lloyd v. Williams, 2 M. & S. 484.

Action by A. and two others on a contract, on the deposit of goods by the three with the defendant, not to give them up without the joint order of the three. Breach, that they were given up without such joint order. Plea, that they were given up to A. at his request:—Held, a good plea; for A. being disabled from suing for what he himself procured to be done, could not sue, though joining the others with him. Brandon v. Scott, 7 El. & Bl. 234; 26 L. J., Q. B. 163; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 362; 5 W. R. 235.

Action by A., B. and C., against D., as one of the indorsers of a promissory note drawn by E. in favour of C., D. and (himself) E., then in partnership, and by them indorsed to A., B. and C. Plea, that C., one of the plaintiffs, was liable as an indorser together with D.:—Held, good. Mainwaring v. Newman, 2 Bos. & P. 120; 5 R. R. 554.

—— Interest—What Requisite.]—A testator bequeathed certain leaseholds to A. for life, with remainder to his children, and directed that A., whom he made his executor, should from time to time, and at the proper periods, renew the leases. He also gave an annuity to B., which he charged on the residue of his personal estate. Some years after the testator's death B. filed a bill against A. to enforce payment of the annuity, and also as next friend of the infant children of A., praying that the leases might be renewed for their benefit:—Held, that B. and the infants were improperly joined as plaintiffs, their respective interests being wholly unconnected with each other, and the bill was on this account dismissed at the hearing. Anderson v. Wallis, 4 Y. & Coll. 336. Affirmed, 1 Ph. 202.

Several persons having distinct demands, and not being able to sue on behalf of themselves and others, cannot be co-plaintiffs. Jones v. Garcia Del Rio, Turn. & R. 297; 24 R. R. 64.

A single copyholder is not relieved in equity for an excessive fine, because this is determinable at law; but, to avoid multiplicity of suits, several copyholders may join to be relieved against a general fine which is excessive. Cowper v. Clerk, 3 P. W. 155.

Bill by one tenant of the manor of A. suggesting a custom for the tenants of that manor to cut turf in the manor of B. Where several persons have the same right and are disturbed, such bills are entertained to avoid a multiplicity of suits, since one or two determinations will establish the rights of all parties, on the footing of one common interest; but in all such bills all parties, or a determinate number, join in the name of the rest. Here only one brings a bill in the general right, and not in a distinct right. Bill dismissed. Baker v. Rogers, Sel. Ch. Ca. 74.

Certain consignments of oil were made from Colombo to certain persons resident in England. During the voyage several of the casks in which the oil was contained leaked. Some part of the oil which so escaped was wholly lost, but the greater part was collected together and sold in one mass by the captain in the course of the voyage for 750*l*. The consignees then agreed to share the proceeds in proportion to their respective losses:—Held, that, several actions having been brought by the shipholder against the consignees to recover freight and average, they might all join in one bill against him for an account and equitable set-off. Jones v. Moore, 4 Y. & Coll. 351.

A person, though uniting in himself several characters, having distinct conflicting rights, may maintain a suit as sole plaintiff, but the court will not, in a suit so constituted, decide upon the conflicting interests which his claim embraces, and will decree according to the supposition most favourable to the defendant. Blease v. Burgh, 2 Beav. 221; 9 L. J., Ch. 226.

Semble, where a party is made a co-plaintiff having no interest in one of the objects sought by his co-plaintiff, and the bill is sustainable only in respect of that object, it must be dismissed. Denton v. Davy, 1 Moore, P. C. 15.

If, of several co-plaintiffs, some have an interest in the matter of the suit, and others have no interest, a general demurrer will hold to the whole bill. Musgrave v. Vick, 5 L. J. (o.s.) Ch. 150.

Bill dismissed for misjoinder, and because, though one plaintiff had an interest to maintain the suit, the other had not, and the interest of the former was not that claimed by the bill. Barton v. Barton, 3 K. & J. 512.

Persons not having a common interest in the subject of the suit cannot be joined as co-plaintiffs. Page v. Townsend, 5 Sim. 395.

Parties having adverse or inconsistent rights in the subject matter of a suit cannot be joined as co-plaintiffs. Fulham v. McCarthy, 1 H. L. Cas. 703; 12 Jur. 757.

Nor can a party who has no interest be joined as a plaintiff with one who has. Ib.

—— Ord. XVI. r. 1.]—Ord. XVI. r. 1, of the Rules of the Supreme Court of Judicature only applies to cases where it is doubtful in which a number of plaintiffs, or in what number of plaintiffs, and whether jointly or severally, the legal right to relief exists, and also cases in which several plaintiffs having separate rights claim the same relief. Smurthwaite v. Hannay, 63 L. J., Q. B. 737; [1894] A. C. 494; 6 R. 299; 71 L. T. 157; 43 W. R. 113; 7 Asp. M. C. 485—H. L. (E.) S. P., Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co. v. Tsune Kijima, 64 L. J., P. C. 146; [1895] A. C. 661; 11 R. 508; 73 L. T. 37; 8 Asp. M. C. 23—P. C.

Ord. III. r. 1, of the County Court Rules, 1889 (similar to R. S. C., Ord. XVI. r. 1), does not authorise the joinder of the legal personal representatives of persons, whose deaths are alleged to have resulted from the same act of negligence, as plaintiffs in an action to recover compensation, the cause of action in respect of the death of each person being separate. Carter v. Rigby, 65 L. J., Q. B. 537; [1896] 2 Q. B. 113; 74 L. T. 744; 44 W. R. 566; 60 J. P. 581—C. A.

—— Parties supposed to be legally entitled.]—Sect. 19 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1860, does not apply where it is clear on the face of the record that it is impossible both plaintiffs should be entitled to recover. Bellingham v. Clark, 1 B. & S. 332; 4 L. T. 405; 9 W. R. 667.

A. obtained from the Heralds' College a grant of arms, to be borne by him and his descendants and the descendants of his brother; he died without issue, leaving two nephews, the sons of his brother. One of the nephews and another person were appointed executors of his will:—Held, that, even assuming the executors could claim the document by action, the provisions of the above statute did not apply where the two nephews were the plaintiffs so as to enable the nephew executor to recover. Stubs v. Stubs, 1 H. & C. 257; 31 L. J., Ex. 510.

—— Joinder in What Cases.]—Under Ord. XVI. r. 1, an action of libel may be brought by two or more persons jointly, although they are not in partnership or otherwise jointly interested; and in such a joint action a single verdict of 40*s.* having been returned for the plaintiffs, the Court of Appeal refused, on the motion of the defendant, to disturb the verdict. Booth v. Briscoe, 2 Q. B. D. 496; 25 W. R. 838—C. A.

Where two owners of distinct properties joined as plaintiffs in a suit to restrain a nuisance, it was held a misjoinder; but by consent the court heard the case as if distinct bills had been filed. Appleton v. Chapel Town Paper Co., 45 L. J., Ch. 276.

The plaintiff brought an action for an account of royalties to which he was entitled for user by the defendant company of his patent. The patent was dated in 1873, and the user was alleged to have begun in that year. The statement of claim showed that in the years 1875 and 1876 the plaintiff had assigned shares in his patent to several other persons, retaining himself only one-sixth. The company at the hearing took the objection that the other persons interested in the patent should have been made parties:—Held, that one of several joint owners of a patent can sue for an injunction, and even for an account, without joining the other owners. Sheehan v. G. E. Ry., 50 L. J., Ch. 68; 16 Ch. D. 59; 43 L. T. 432; 29 W. R. 69.

—— In Respect of Wrongs.]—Different plaintiffs who have different rights may each sue the same defendant in respect of separate injuries, though arising out of one transaction. Knight v. Legh, 4 Bing. 589; 1 M. & P. 528; 6 L. J. (o.s.) C. P. 128; 29 R. R. 645.

An action cannot be maintained jointly by two where the wrong done to one is no wrong done to the other. Barratt v. Collins, 10 Moore, 446.

A declaration that an action of trespass was depending wherein A. was plaintiff, and the now plaintiffs were defendants, in which action the plaintiffs appeared by D., their attorney, and the action was defended by him as such attorney; and that the defendants wrongfully, maliciously, and unlawfully upheld and maintained the action on the part of A. against the plaintiffs, by reason whereof they have been injured, prejudiced, and aggrieved in and about their defence in the action, and incurred and been obliged to pay sums of money in and about their defence. At the trial the jury found a verdict for the plaintiffs for the amount only of the bill of costs paid by them to D. as their attorney:—Held, that the action was maintainable jointly by the plaintiffs, the expenses of the defence in the former action being a joint and not a several damage. Pechell v. Watson, 8 M. & W. 691; 11 L. J., Ex. 225.

Where the defendants contemplated erecting premises which would if completed, it was alleged, interfere with the ancient lights of two messuages, one of which belonged to a husband and the other to his wife, separate actions were brought by husband and wife claiming (inter alia) an injunction and damages. The title of the wife did not appear. On a motion for an injunction, the defendants admitted the right of the plaintiffs, and had previously offered to amend their plans accordingly. They objected, however, to paying two sets of costs:—Held, that, if it should turn out that the wife was not entitled to her separate use, the taxing master should disallow any extra costs occasioned by bringing two actions instead of one. Heimbs v. Newcastle Co-operative Society, 76 L. T. 109.

Effect of Non-joinder.]—If one of two part owners of a chattel sues alone for a tort, and the defendant does not plead in abatement, the other part owner may afterwards sue alone, and the defendant cannot plead in abatement to such action. Sedgworth v. Overend, 7 Term Rep. 279.

A defendant pleaded in abatement that the promises in the declaration alleged were made jointly by him with other persons. The plaintiff proved a separate debt due from the defendant, as well as a joint debt due from him and another:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the amount of both debts, and that the defendant might have pleaded in abatement to part of the count, and in bar to the residue. Hill v. White, 8 Scott, 249; 6 Bing. (N.C.) 26; 8 D. P. C. 13; 9 L. J., C. P. 5.

A plaintiff declared against A., B. and C. for 35*l.* due in respect of work done for them. They pleaded that the work was done for them jointly with D. It appeared that one portion of the work was done for A.; another portion, to the amount of 4*l.*, for A., B., C. and D.; a third for A., B. and D.; and a fourth for A. and B.:—Held, that the plea was an answer to the action. Hill v. Williams, 6 Bing. (N.C.) 23; 8 Scott, 245; 8 D. P. C. 63; 9 L. J., C. P. 3; 3 Jur. 1077.

A plea in abatement of the non-joinder of co-contractors resident within the jurisdiction, alleging that the contract was made with the defendant and such resident co-contractors, and also with other co-contractors resident without the jurisdiction, is bad; the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 8, requiring the defendant to state in his plea that all are resident within the jurisdiction, and to verify the residence of all by affidavit. Joll or Gell v. Curzon (Lord), 4 C. B. 249; 4 D. & L. 810; 16 L. J., C. P. 172; 11 Jur. 737.

A plea in abatement to an action ex contractu must, to be a good plea, set forth the names of all the parties with whom the defendant was a co-contractor. Crellin v. Brook, 1 Car. & K. 571.

In scire facias against A. and B. to repeal a patent granted to A. and B., A. cannot plead in abatement that B. assigned all his share and interest in the patent to A. before the writ was sued out, and has not since had any interest therein. Reg. v. Betts, 15 Q. B. 540; 19 L. J., Q. B. 531; 14 Jur. 912.

If in fact the party having no interest was joined in order that he might collusively prejudice the other defendant, application should be made to the court for remedy, as against an abuse of process. Ib.

A plaintiff obtained a judgment in an action against a public officer under 7 Geo. 4, c. 46, and subsequently sued out a scire facias against fifteen persons, whom he charged as members of the company, of which the defendant was the public officer; the sheriff returned as to all the defendants that they had nothing, and were not to be found in his bailiwick; twelve of the defendants voluntarily appeared, and the plaintiff declared against them. Upon demurrer assigning for cause that it did not appear that the then defendants who had not come forward were included in the proceedings:—Held, that such an objection could only be an irregularity, and to be taken advantage of on motion under 4 & 5 Anne, c. 16, and not upon demurrer; that the objection of non-joinder could not be raised upon demurrer, because there was nothing on the face of the record to shew that the defendants in question were alive; and that the writ could not, therefore, be abated on the ground of non-joinder. Fowler v. Rickerby, 9 D. P. C. 682; 2 Man. & G. 760; 3 Scott (N.R.) 138; 10 L. J., C. P. 149.

Defendants — No Relief claimed.]—It is a general rule that no one need be made a party against whom, if brought to a hearing, the plaintiff can have no decree; thus a residuary legatee need not be made a party; and for the same reason, in a bill brought by the creditors of a bankrupt against the assignees under the commission, the bankrupt himself need not be made a party. De Golls v. Ward, cited 3 P. W. 311.

It is not right in any case to make a man a party to a suit unless you can obtain a decree against him. Petch v. Dalton, 8 Price, 12. S. P., Leathes v. Nemitt, Ib., 562.

Bill for relief against an award made by some members of the East India Company. The arbitrators and some of the members were made defendants; demurrer to the whole bill allowed, for plaintiff can have no decree against them; they ought to be examined as witnesses. Steward v. East India Co., 2 Vern. 380.

A plaintiff cannot make defendant a corporation in whom he shews no liability, and against whom he prays no relief, merely for the purpose of discovery, and a corporation so made a party may demur. Saunders v. Saunders, 3 Drew. 387; 25 L. J., Ch. 26; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 1008; 4 W. R. 27.

The only case in which a person, against whom no relief is prayed, is allowed to be made a party, is that of the agent of a corporation. Le Texier v. Anspach (Margravine), 15 Ves. 164. But see 2 Ves. 284.

Assignment not discovered.]—A party having an interest in the subject-matter of a suit by virtue of a partnership had parted with his interest prior to the date of filing the bill. The plaintiff, nevertheless, made him a defendant, and he by his answer disclaimed. The plaintiff was ordered to pay such defendant's costs without being entitled to them over, the court being of opinion that the plaintiff might have easily ascertained the fact of the assignment, and it not appearing that he had attempted to do so. Teed v. Carruthers, 2 Y. & Coll. C. C. 31; 6 Jur. 987.

—— Joinder when allowed.]—The proprietor of a copyright must file separate bills against each bookseller taking copies of a spurious edition for sale. Dilly v. Doig, 2 Ves. J. 486.

There must be separate bills upon distinct invasions of a patent, otherwise a right of fishery, or the custom of a mill. Ib., 487.

The plaintiff was tenant to the father of the defendants of a colliery, under a lease and subsequent agreements. On the father's death, he continued to hold under the defendant, the heir, on the same terms; he filed this bill against the two defendants, as executors of their father, and against the one as heir, for an account under the agreement both in the lifetime of the father and since his death; the defendants demurred separately, as being improperly joined in the suit, and the demurrers were allowed. Ward v. Northumberland (Duke), 2 Anstr. 469.

When an executor has committed a breach of trust by selling the trust property to a purchaser with notice at an undervalue, a bill against the executor and purchaser for administration of the trust and restoration of the property sold is not multifarious. Pyrah v. Woodcock, 24 L. T. 407; 19 W. R. 463.

A. and B., who were employed by a company, concealed the true state of the company, and thereby were enabled to buy shares in the company at an undervalue:—Held, that B. might be liable for damages to persons who had sold shares to A., though B. had derived no advantage therefrom, and that therefore a bill to impeach a sale to B. and a sale to A. was not multifarious. Walsham v. Stainton, 1 De G. J. & S. 678; 3 N. R. 56; 33 L. J., Ch. 68; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 1261; 9 L. T. 357; 12 W. R. 63.

Where the case against one defendant is so entire as to be incapable of being prosecuted in several suits, but yet another defendant is a necessary party in respect of a portion only of that case, such other defendant cannot object to the suit on the ground of multifariousness. Att.-Gen. v. Poole Corporation, 4 Myl. & C. 17; 8 L. J., Ch. 27; 2 Jur. 934, 1080. Affirmed sub nom. Parr v. Att.-Gen., 8 Cl. & F. 409; 6 Jur. 245.

It is difficult to lay down a rule as to multifariousness applicable to all cases, but if a case is an entire case as against one defendant an objection for multifariousness cannot be made by another defendant who is connected only with some portion of the whole case. Ib.

—— Alternative Relief claimed.]—In an action by a company against L. and T., the claim stated that L., through T., who professed to be, and in fact was, the agent of L., contracted to take a certain number of debentures in the company, which contract L. had failed to perform; and that L. denied that T. was authorised by him to make the contract. The company prayed for specific performance of the contract or for damages against L., or in the alternative, if it should appear that T. had no authority to act as L.'s agent, then for specific performance and damages against T. T. having applied to have judgment entered up in his favour, or to have his name struck out as a defendant:—Held, that, under the circumstances stated in the claim, the company was entitled to join L. and T. as defendants, and to claim alternative relief against them. Honduras Ry. v. Le Fevre, 46 L. J., Ex. 391; 2 Ex. D. 301; 36 L. T. 46; 25 W. R. 310—C. A.

When a plaintiff claims relief as against each of two defendants in the event of his failing to get relief against the other, he is not bound at the hearing to declare against which of the two he intends to proceed. Child v. Stenning, 47 L. J., Ch. 371; 7 Ch. D. 413; 38 L. T. 232; 26 W. R. 265. S. C. in C. A., 48 L. J., Ch. 392; 11 Ch. D. 82; 40 L. T. 302; 27 W. R. 462.

Where a plaintiff seeking relief in the alternative against two defendants succeeds as against one of them, but his claim against the other is dismissed with costs, the costs of the unsuccessful claim must be borne by the plaintiff, and not by the defendant against whom he succeeds. Ib.

A plaintiff seeking alternative inconsistent relief against different defendants has a right to have the first alternative tried out. In such actions counsel for the second defendant may address the court against and cross-examine the witnesses of his co-defendant. Ib.

Where the cause of action against one defendant is totally disconnected with that against the other defendants, except so far as it arises out of an incident in the same transaction, there is a misjoinder, and it is not the case contemplated by the Judicature Act, Ord. XVIII. r. 1. Burstall v. Beyfus, 53 L. J., Ch. 565; 26 Ch. D. 35; 50 L. T. 542; 32 W. R. 418—C. A.

The Judicature Act, Ord. XVI. r. 3, applies to a case where a plaintiff has different causes of action in respect of the same wrong against two defendants, against whom he seeks relief in the alternative. Child v. Stenning, 46 L. J., Ch. 523; 5 Ch. D. 695; 36 L. T. 426; 25 W. R. 519—C. A.

A plaintiff sued S. in respect of an alleged trespass upon land which had been demised to the plaintiff by W., who had covenanted for quiet enjoyment. By his statement of defence, S. alleged that he had, before the demise to the plaintiff, acquired from W. a right of way over the land demised. The plaintiff then amended his statement of claim, making W. also a defendant, and claiming in the alternative, if the court should be of opinion that S. was entitled to a right of way as against W. and persons claiming through him, damages against W. for breach of his covenant for quiet enjoyment. W. demurred:—Held, that Ord. XVI. r. 3, authorised the plaintiff to make S. and W. defendants to the same action. Ib.

Relief in the alternative cannot be given upon inconsistent allegations in the same pleadings. Evans v. Buck, 46 L. J., Ch. 157.

Where an action was brought by trustees of a settlement to enforce payment of a sum of money against the representative of a covenanting party, and the representative, by her defence and counter-claim, averred that, according to the true construction of the settlement, the sum was not payable, and claimed that if the sum was payable according to the true construction, the settlement might be rectified, making the surviving tenant for life under the settlement a defendant to the counter-claim for that purpose only:—Held, on demurrer by the tenant for life, that she was improperly made a party. Ib.

When alternatively to the principal relief a bill prays relief for which some of the parties are not necessary, it is not multifarious. Wilson v. Lloyd, 42 L. J., Ch. 559; L. R. 16 Eq. 60; 28 L. T. 321.

—— Actions of Tort.]—In actions on contracts, the plaintiff is obliged to sue all the contracting parties; but in actions for torts he may sue all the parties implicated, or any one of them. Scott v. Godwin, 1 Bos. & P. 67. S. P., Sutton v. Clarke, 6 Taunt. 29; 1 Marsh. 429; 16 R. R. 563.

In trespass against several, the plaintiff can only recover against all for matters in which all are jointly implicated. Aaron v. Alexander, 3 Camp. 35; 13 R. R. 742.

So in trover. Nicoll v. Glennie, 1 M. & S. 588.

Two or more defendants, against each of whom a separate cause of action is pleaded, cannot be joined in an action, such a joinder being inadmissible even where there is a joint claim for an injunction, as well as separate claims for damages. Ord. XVI. and the rules thereunder deal only with the joinder of parties, and have no reference to the joinder of causes of action. Sadler v. G. W. Ry., 65 L. J., Q. B. 462; [1896] A. C. 450; 74 L. T. 561; 45 W. R. 51—H. L. (E.) Affirming 14 R. 774; 60 J. P. 37—C. A.

—— Fraud and Misrepresentation.]—Observations on the practice of making solicitors, agents, and arbitrators parties to a suit, alleging against the principal defendant fraud, in which the co-defendants were not implicated. Mathias v. Yetts, 46 L. T. 497—C. A.

—— Joinder for Purpose of Discovery or Costs.]—The court will not allow the joinder of solicitors or others as defendants against whom no further relief is sought beyond discovery or payment of costs. Burstall v. Beyfus, 53 L. J., Ch. 565; 26 Ch. D. 35; 50 L. T. 542; 32 W. R. 418—C. A. S. P., Barnes v. Addy, 43 L. J., Ch. 513; L. R. 9 Ch. 244; 30 L. T. 4; 22 W. R. 505; and Hutchins v. Hutchins, Ir. R. 10 Eq. 453.

The practice of making the agents of a party defendants when nothing but costs is prayed against them, as it deprives him of their evidence, is improper, and should be met by directing an issue. Atwood v. Small, 6 Cl. & F. 232.

In an action against a corporation, where an officer of the corporation against whom no relief was claimed was made a defendant for the purpose of discovery:—Held, that, inasmuch as, under Ord. XXXI. r. 4, such discovery could be obtained by an order to deliver to him interrogatories, he was improperly joined as defendant, and that his name should be struck out. Wilson v. Church, 9 Ch. D. 552; 39 L. T. 413; 26 W. R. 735.

A vestry, incorporated under the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, having resolved to incur certain unauthorised expenditure, an action for an injunction was commenced by the Attorney-General, at the relation of a ratepayer, against the vestry and the movers and seconders of the resolution, passed by the vestry and some of their supporters. On motion on which the individual defendants were unrepresented, the vestry consented to a perpetual injunction without costs, and the plaintiffs then moved for judgment against the individual defendants in default of pleadings, and asked that they might be ordered to pay the costs of the action. The statement of claim did not ask for costs against the vestry:—Held, that it was irregular to make the individual members of the vestry defendants for the sole purpose of making them pay costs, and that, as no costs were asked against the vestry, there was no necessity for an indemnity to the vestry, from costs occasioned to it by the individual defendants having led the vestry astray, and that the action, therefore, must be dismissed as against the individual defendants, but without costs on either side. Att.-Gen. v. Bermondsey Vestry, 51 L. J., Ch. 848; 46 L. T. 852; 30 W. R. 872. Affirmed, 52 L. J., Ch. 567; 23 Ch. D. 60; 48 L. T. 445; 31 W. R. 463; 47 J. P. 453—C. A.

The rule, that officers of a corporation may be made co-defendants to a bill against the corporation, applies to a bill of discovery, as well as to a bill for relief, and members of the corporation may be joined with the officers. Glascott v. Copper Miners of England, 11 Sim. 305; 10 L. J., Ch. 30; 5 Jur. 264.

A nominal defendant (clerk to a board of health) must answer the plaintiff's bill in his official capacity. Deeks v. Bailey, 21 L. T. 581.

An application to remove his name from the record on the ground of want of interest refused. Ib.

—— Solicitor.]—Solicitors who were made parties with other defendants to an action, the statement of claim in which showed no reasonable cause of action as against them:—Held, entitled under Ord. XXV. r. 4, to an order dismissing the action as against them with costs, and striking their names out of the proceedings. Burstall v. Beyfus, 53 L. J., Ch. 565; 26 Ch. D. 35; 50 L. T. 542; 32 W. R. 418—C. A.

To make solicitors or others parties to an action without seeking any relief against them, except payment of costs or discovery, is vexatious. Ib.

An agreement had been come to between A. and B. The agreement was broken by B., and, as the claim alleged, the breach was accompanied by false instructions to counsel given by solicitor, and by the solicitor's false statements upon oath:—Held, on an action for injunction consequent upon the breach by B., that on the claim as alleged there was no right of action against the solicitor for costs. Blackburn Union v. Brooks, 26 W. R. 57.

J., of K., caused a sum in S. S. stock, belonging to another person of the same name, to be transferred into his own name, and then into the name of a broker for sale, and who accordingly sold it for him; in a bill against the representative of J., of K., and the S. S. company, the solicitor for the broker is not a necessary party. Harrison v. Pryse, Barnard. 324.

Generally it is not necessary to make an attorney a party because he has title-deeds in his possession, although it may become so under particular circumstances. Fenwick v. Reed, 1 Mer. 114.

If a motion is intended to lay the foundation for a subsequent application against the solicitor of some of the parties, the solicitor in his personal capacity ought to be made a party to that motion. Van Sandau v. Moore, 1 Russ. 441; 4 L. J. (o.s.) Ch. 177.

One of two solicitors, in partnership, obtains an order in the name of a client; the partnership is dissolved, and the client and the other partner come as co-petitioners to discharge the order, and for other relief:—Held, that it was a misjoinder for such other partner to unite in it. Sangar v. Gardiner, C. P. Coop. 119.

—— Architect—No Cause of Action shown.]—The architect of the defendant company was made a party to the action, but the statement of claim showed no cause of action as against him:—Held, that his name must be struck out of the proceedings, and the costs paid by the plaintiffs, including the costs of an affidavit made by the architect upon the application for such an order. Amos v. Herne Bay Pavilion Co., 54 L. T. 264.

—— Contractor.]—Contractors should not usually be joined as defendants in an action against their employers for damages done in carrying out their contract. Serff v. Acton Local Board, 55 L. J., Ch. 569; 54 L. T. 379.

—— Witnesses.]—A mere witness cannot be made a defendant for discovery of what he is examinable to, unless he is interested. Plummer v. May, 1 Ves. 426.

General rule that a mere witness is not to be made a party; exceptions in the cases of arbitrators, and attorneys, and corporations, whose officers and servants are made parties. Dummer v. Chippenham Corporation, 14 Ves. 252.

A mere witness cannot be made a defendant to a bill for discovery. Portugal (Queen) v. Glyn, 7 Cl. & F. 466; West, 258.

Where witness is made party merely for purpose of discovery, it is demurrable. How v. Best, 5 Madd. 19.

Rule that mere witness, having no interest, ought not to be made party, is not without exception. Whitworth v. Davis, 1 Ves. & B. 550.

It is a principle in equity that a witness, as such, shall not be made a party. Mulock v. Malone, Wall. Lyn. 5.

It is improper to join as defendants in a bill of discovery parties who may be examined as witnesses at law, the only exception to the rule being that of a bill against the devisee and witnesses of a bill. Jones v. Maund, 3 Y. & Coll. 347.

Bill for discovery in aid of an action; demurrer by mere witness allowed, though discovery would be more beneficial than an examination at law, and notwithstanding a charge of interest in defendant as to which he may be called by plaintiff, waiving the objection, and if called against him, may be examined on the voir dire. Fenton v. Hughes, 7 Ves. 287.

Want of Parties.]—Since the Judicature Acts there is no such thing as a demurrer for want of parties. The proper course is to take out a summons under Ord. XVI. r. 13, to have the necessary party or parties added. Werdermann v. Société Générale d'Electricité, 45 L. T. 514; 30 W. R. 33—C. A. S. P., Abouloff v. Oppenheimer, 30 W. R. 429. See also Sheehan v. G. E. Ry., 50 L. J., Ch. 68; 16 Ch. D. 59; 43 L. T. 432; 29 W. R. 69.

Order staying Proceedings.]—Pleas in abatement being abolished, an order staying proceedings in an action until others are joined as co-plaintiffs is purely a matter of discretion. Roberts v. Holland, 62 L. J., Q. B. 621; [1893] 1 Q. B. 665; 5 R. 370; 41 W. R. 494.

Duty to point out Parties required.]—Case of joint liabilities, in which it is incumbent on the defendant, who objects that other persons are necessary parties, to point out who are the persons he requires to be brought before the court. Wilson v. Goodman, 4 Hare, 63.

Upon an objection for want of parties, not necessary to point them out by name, if described so as to enable the plaintiff to make them parties. Att.-Gen. v. Jackson, 11 Ves. 369.

No general rule whether demurrer for want of parties should state the parties. Pyle v. Price, 6 Ves. 781.

A demurrer for want of parties must either name or else sufficiently describe the proper parties, for the purpose of enabling the plaintiff to amend his bill by adding them. A demurrer ore tenus for want of a particular party is good, notwithstanding that a demurrer generally for want of parties has previously been overruled. Observations upon Pyle v. Price (6 Ves. 779) and Att.-Gen. v. Poole Corporation (4 Myl. & C. 17). Pratt v. Keith, 3 N. R. 406; 33 L. J., Ch. 528; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 305; 10 L. T. 15; 12 W. R. 394.

If a plea for want of parties points out the class of persons who ought to be made parties, it is not necessary to aver that they are living. Barlow v. Sewell, 7 L. J., Ch. 126; 2 Jur. 151.

—— Liability of Plaintiff for Costs.]—A plaintiff is not justified in adding persons as defendants to a suit merely because the original defendant insists, by his answer, that they are necessary parties; persons so added having been dismissed, the plaintiff was ordered to pay the costs. Williams v. Page, 24 Beav. 654; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 102; 6 W. R. 235.

Defect of Parties may be cured or waived.]—If person named defendant, but who has never been served with subpœna or appeared to bill, appears by counsel, and consents to be bound by decree, the defect is cured. Capel v. Butler, 2 Sim. & S. 457; 4 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 69. See also White v. Hall, 1 Russ. & M. 332; Pitt v. Brewster, Dick. 37; Banister v. Way, Dick. 686; and dicta of Lord Thurlow in Harford v. Browning, 1 Cox, 307.

A defect of parties may be cured at the hearing by the undertaking of the plaintiff to give full effect to the utmost rights which the absent party could have claimed; those rights being such as do not affect the rights of defendants. Harrey v. Cooke, 4 Russ. 34; 6 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 84.

If at the hearing plaintiff waives the relief he prays against a particular person, the objection for want of his being a party will have no weight. Pawlet v. London (Bishop), 2 Atk. 296.

Striking out Defendant.]—When the court is of opinion that a defendant is an improper party to an action, it will order the name of such defendant to be struck out of the record before the hearing, notwithstanding he may have filed his defence. Vallance v. Birmingham and Midland Land Corporation, 2 Ch. D. 369; 24 W. R. 454.

—— Under General Liberty to amend.]—Under an order to strike out the name of one defendant and giving general liberty to amend, the plaintiff is not justified in striking out the name of another defendant. Wymer v. Dodds, 48 L. J., Ch. 568; 11 Ch. D. 436; 40 L. T. 420; 27 W. R. 675.

When striking out Parties, or Discontinuance, is Proper Course.]—See post, DISCONTINUANCE, cols. 221, 222.

—— Application at Trial.]—The judge on a trial has power to strike out the name or names of one or more of several defendants, although such defendant or defendants may have let judgment go by default. Greaves v. Humfries or Humphreys, 4 El. & Bl. 851; 24 L. J., Q. B. 190; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 473; 3 W. R. 371: Johnson v. Goslett, 18 C. B. 728; 25 L. J., C. P. 274; 4 W. R. 655.

In case of a misjoinder of defendants in an action on contract, an amendment of striking out the name of the defendant or defendants misjoined, if made at all, must be made at the trial, and cannot be made afterwards. Robson v. Doyle, 3 El. & Bl. 396; 2 C. L. R. 671; 18 Jur. 652.

—— Misjoinder not by Mistake.]—The 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 37, which enables the court or judge, in the case of the misjoinder of a defendant in an action on contract, to amend such misjoinder as a variance at the trial, does not apply where the party whose name is sought to be expunged has been joined, not by mistake or by inadvertence, but designedly for the purpose of seeking to fix him with liability. Wickens v. Steel, 2 C. B. (N.S.) 488; 26 L. J., C. P. 241; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 671; 5 W. R. 610.

Costs of Non-joinder or Misjoinder.] — See COSTS.

c. UNAUTHORISED PROCEEDINGS.

Authority of Solicitor and Liability for Costs.]—See SOLICITOR.

Application by whom.]—A motion to take a bill off the file, the suit having been instituted without the plaintiff's authority, cannot be made by the defendant. Wheeler v. Bulwer, Hayes, 479.

Mental Incapacity.]—A bill may be taken off the file, if filed in the name of a plaintiff who is in a state of mental incapacity, semble. Wartnaby v. Wartnaby, Jac. 377.

Where one of several co-plaintiffs was of imbecile understanding at the time of the filing of the bill, and his name was used without authority, the court would not order the bill to be taken off the file. Aliter, if he were the sole plaintiff. Branagan v. Gorges, 7 Ir. Eq. R. 225.

Quære, could the court under such circumstances order the imbecile plaintiff's name to be struck out of the bill. Ib.

The court, upon the motion of a defendant, supported by affidavits, suggesting that the bill had been filed without any authority from the person named as the plaintiff, such person being so imbecile as to be unable to give any authority for the purpose, and that the suit was instituted for litigious purposes in the name of the plaintiff, but by another defendant in the suit, referred it to the master to inquire whether any authority was given by the plaintiff for the filing of the bill, and whether the institution of the suit was for his benefit, and whether it was for his advantage that the same should be prosecuted. On the master's reporting in the negative, and that the bill was filed under the authority of one of the defendants, the court ordered the bill to be taken off the file, and the costs of the other defendants to be paid by the defendant who had instituted the suit. Blake v. Smith, Younge, 594.

Other Cases.]—Under peculiar circumstances a bill filed in the name of a company without its sanction was allowed to remain on the file, in order that the shareholders might have an opportunity of considering whether they would adopt the suit. The opinion of the shareholders can only be obtained through a general meeting. East Pant Du United Lead Mining Co. v. Merryweather, 4 N. R. 541; 2 H. & M. 254; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 1231; 13 W. R. 216.

A subordinate officer of a foreign government cannot, without its authority, file a bill in the name of his government against the superior officer in this country. Liberia Republic v. Imperial Bank, 25 L. T. 866.

A petition for the appointment of new trustees and a vesting order was presented in the names of several co-petitioners, and an order made. Upwards of a year afterwards an application was made to the court by persons who had been joined as co-petitioners that the order might be rescinded on the ground that they had only recently heard of the petition, which was in no way authorised by them:—Held, that the order made could not be rescinded by the court, but should be amended by striking out the names of the applicants as co-petitioners, and treating them as not having been served with the petition. Savage, In re, 15 Ch. D. 557; 29 W. R. 348.

Staying Proceedings when unauthorised.]—See STAYING PROCEEDINGS, infra, col. 301.

Indemnity for Costs.]—An action having been brought in the names of the executors of the surviving trustee under a deed of separation to recover from the husband arrears of certain payments alleged to be due to the wife thereunder, the executors obtained a judge's order to stay the proceedings on the ground that the action was brought without their sanction; the court directed that the action might proceed upon an indemnity against costs being given to the executors to the satisfaction of the master, it appearing from the affidavit of the wife (unanswered) that the testator, though he had not executed the deed, had consented to become a trustee, and had acted in the trust. Orchard v. Coulsting, 6 Scott (N.R.) 843.

And the master having fixed the indemnity at 300*l.*, the court refused to interfere. S. C., 7 Scott (N.R.) 414.

An official assignee of a bankrupt or an insolvent who has been made a plaintiff in an action without his authority is entitled to an indemnity from costs. Laws v. Bott, 16 M. & W. 300; 16 L. J., Ex. 279.

Motion to strike out Plaintiff's Name—Discontinuance.]—A company, named as a co-plaintiff in an action, served a notice of motion on the solicitors who had issued the writ for an order that the name of the company might be struck out of the writ, and that the solicitors might be ordered to pay the company's costs, on the ground that the writ had been issued without its authority. Before the motion could be heard the solicitors served a notice that the plaintiffs wholly discontinued the action:—Held, notwithstanding the discontinuance, that the court had jurisdiction to make the order asked for. Gold Reefs of Western Australia v. Dawson, 66 L. J., Ch. 147; [1897] 1 Ch. 115; 75 L. T. 575; 45 W. R. 285.

Execution for Costs—Repayment.]—Semble, where money has been recovered under an execution from a person improperly made plaintiff in respect of costs ordered to be paid by him without his knowledge, the court will order it to be repaid. Fricker v. Van Grutten, 65 L. J., Ch. 823; [1896] 2 Ch. 649; 75 L. T. 117; 45 W. R. 53—C. A.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XVI. r. 2, et seq.

1. Plaintiffs.

Duty of Court.]—Where an action appears to the court to be defective for want of parties, it is the duty of the court, under r. 11 of Ord. XVI., to order the necessary parties to be added. Van Gelder v. Sowerby Bridge Flour Society, 59 L. J., Ch. 583; 44 Ch. D. 374; 63 L. T. 132; 38 W. R. 625—C. A.

Substitution.]—The court cannot substitute one plaintiff for another under Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XVI. r. 13, except by the first plaintiff's consent, and where he admits that he has commenced his action improperly; but in a proper case the court will add a plaintiff and give him the conduct of the action. Emden v. Carte, 50 L. J., Ch. 492; 17 Ch. D. 169; 44 L. T. 344; 29 W. R. 600.

Addition of—Bonâ Fide Mistake.]—A plaintiff can only be added under Ord. XVI. r. 2, where there has been a bonâ fide mistake. Clowes v. Hilliard, 46 L. J., Ch. 271 ; 4 Ch. D. 414 ; 25 W. R. 224.

"Bonâ fide mistake" in Ord. XVI. r. 2, includes a mistake of law as well as of fact. Duckett v. Gover, 25 W. R. 455.

An action to restrain the flooding of land had been brought in the names of A. L., a married lady, who was tenant for life, her husband, and the two trustees of her marriage settlement. The husband had no interest in the land under the settlement, and the trustees were merely releasees to uses. Before the hearing A. L. died, and the case was argued on behalf of the plaintiffs, on the basis that the legal estate was in the trustees. The defendant's counsel at the hearing argued that there was no person to represent the land before the court, and the plaintiffs applied to join, as co-plaintiff, the only child of the marriage, a minor, who was entitled to remainder: —Held, that the minor was rightly joined as a plaintiff. Cupples v. Strahan, 29 L. R., Ir. 120 —C. A.

A plaintiff claimed an injunction or damages against the defendant for an alleged violation of a covenant restraining her from building in a particular manner. After the commencement of the action the plaintiff was advised that there was something in her title which might act as a personal bar to her obtaining relief ; and she accordingly applied for leave to amend by making the owner of a neighbouring house, who, she alleged, was entitled to the benefit of the same covenant, a co-plaintiff :—Held, that, as the real question was the effect of the covenant, the amendment ought to be allowed. Walcott v. Lyons (28 Ch. D. 584) distinguished. Ayscough v. Bullar, 58 L. J., Ch. 474 ; 41 Ch. D. 341 ; 60 L. T. 471 ; 37 W. R. 529—C. A.

A shareholder brought an action on behalf of himself and the other shareholders against the company's solicitors and vendor to set aside an alleged secret and fraudulent contract, and to recover a large sum of money for the company from their solicitors, the company being joined as defendants instead of plaintiffs. A demurrer to the statement of claim by the defendants, other than the company, on the ground that the action could only be maintained by the company, was allowed ; but the plaintiff obtained leave, under Ord. XVI. r. 2, to amend his writ and statement of claim by adding the company as plaintiffs, the production by him of any authority from the company to sue in their name being held to be unnecessary. Duckett v. Gover, 46 L. J., Ch. 407 ; 6 Ch. D. 82 ; 25 W. R. 554.

—— Old Practice.]—A new plaintiff with a distinct title cannot be introduced into a suit by amendment. Peek v. Spencer, 39 L. J., Ch. 538 ; L. R. 5 Ch. 548 ; 22 L. T. 459 ; 18 W. R. 558.

When a cause, being brought to a hearing, is ordered to stand over to amend by adding parties, a new plaintiff cannot be added ; and if a new plaintiff be added improperly, and no other step taken, the court will permit the record to be re-amended by striking out the name of the newly-added plaintiff, and making him a defendant. Soper v. Myers, 3 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 48.

Under an order made at the hearing, that the cause should stand over, with liberty to the plaintiff to amend his bill by adding parties, as he should be advised, or showing why he was unable to bring all proper parties before the court, the plaintiff is not entitled to add parties as co-plaintiffs, and introduce new statements and charges in the bill relating to such co-plaintiffs. Milligan v. Mitchell, 1 Myl. & C. 433 ; 7 L. J., Ch. 37. And see S. C., 3 Myl. & C. 72.

Adding Co-plaintiff—Original Plaintiff having no Right to Sue.]—The tenant for life of a trust fund brought an action against the trustees to make them liable for an improper investment. The trustees by their defence alleged that they had made the investment in question at the request of the plaintiff. The plaintiff thereupon applied for leave to amend by adding as co-plaintiff his son, who had a reversionary interest in the fund:—Held, that Ord. XVI. r. 11, does not authorise the allowing a plaintiff who has no right to sue to amend by joining as co-plaintiff a person who has such a right. Walcott v. Lyons, 54 L. J., Ch. 847 ; 29 Ch. D. 584 ; 52 L. T. 399—C. A.

When a plaintiff company based its right of action upon a deed by which the effects of a company that had been wound up had passed to the plaintiff company, leave to add as plaintiffs the directors of the old company was not allowed on the court holding that the deed had not the effect contended for. New Westminster Brewery Co. v. Hannah, 24 W. R. 899.

Action in Name of Dead Man.] — When an action is commenced by mistake in the name of a dead man, the court has no power to amend by striking out his name and substituting the names of his executors. Clay v. Oxford, 4 H. & C. 690 ; 36 L. J., Ex. 15 ; L. R. 2 Ex. 54 ; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 944 ; 15 L. T. 286 ; 15 W. R. 109.

Incapacity of Plaintiff pending Action.]—The plaintiff, subsequently to the commencement of the action, became incapable from infirmity of transacting business. The plaintiff's brother took out on behalf of the plaintiff a summons for leave to amend by adding himself as next friend:—Held, that, in the absence of evidence that the action was commenced without the plaintiff's sanction, the plaintiff's summons must be allowed. Cardwell (Lord) v. Tomlinson, 54 L. J., Ch. 957 ; 52 L. T. 746 ; 33 W. R. 814.

Covenant with Separate Covenantees.]—The plaintiff and two other persons conveyed to the defendants certain pieces of land, and by the deed of conveyance the defendants entered into a separate covenant with each of the vendors, his heirs and assigns, to make a road over the property conveyed, and to allow the vendors, their respective heirs, tenants, and assigns, to use the road. In an action by the plaintiff alone for specific performance of the covenant :—Held, that the other two covenantees ought to be added as parties. Dix v. G. W. Ry., 55 L. J., Ch. 797 ; 54 L. T. 830 ; 34 W. R. 712.

Agreement not to Trade — Assignment of Goodwill.]—The plaintiffs in March, 1886, employed the defendant as brewer's traveller, under an agreement restraining him from becoming employed in the sale of beer, spirits, tobacco, or cigars within a limited area for two years after leaving the plaintiffs' service without the plaintiffs' written consent. The plaintiffs in March, 1887, assigned their business of brewers, with the goodwill, to a company, agreeing verbally with the company that they should employ the plaintiffs' travellers. The defendant entered the company's service, and left them in September, 1887, and became employed in a similar business. The plaintiffs brought an action against the defendant for an injunction:—Held, that leave might be given to the plaintiffs at the trial to add the company as co-plaintiffs without putting the plaintiffs on terms as to costs. Showell v. Winkup, 60 L. T. 389.

Doubt as to Parties.]—Plaintiffs contracted with a vestry to pave a public road with asphalte and to keep the pavement in repair for fifteen years, the pavement when laid to be the property of the vestry. Shortly after the pavement was completed defendants, acting under statutory powers, laid down a tramway along the pavement, but so constructed and maintained their tramway as to occasion unnecessary damage to the pavement. It being doubtful whether an action commenced by the plaintiffs against the defendants on the above facts was brought in the name of the right plaintiffs, the court, under Rules of Court, Ord. XVI. r. 2, ordered the vestry to be added or substituted as plaintiffs, on the terms that the vestry was to be indemnified by the original plaintiffs for all costs and expenses. Val de Travers Asphalte Paving Co. v. London Tramways Co., 48 L. J., C. P. 312; 40 L. T. 133.

Remaindermen — Executor.]—An action was brought to compel the defendants specifically to perform an agreement into which they had entered to accept a lease of a coal-mine from the plaintiff. When the agreement was entered into, and when the action was commenced, it was supposed that the plaintiff was tenant for life of the property under the will of her husband, and that she had a power of leasing. After notice of trial had been given the plaintiff died, and her executor obtained the common order of revivor. After this it was discovered that the plaintiff was tenant for life of the property under her marriage settlement, and that she had no power of leasing. She had signed the agreement "for myself and those entitled after me," though this did not appear in the statement of claim. The persons entitled in remainder, of whom the executor was one, desired to adopt the action and to be added as co-plaintiffs, alleging that the agreement had been entered into with their knowledge and approbation:—Held, that r. 13 of Ord. XVI. applied, and that the remaindermen must be added as co-plaintiffs with the executor in his representative capacity. Long v. Crossley, 49 L. J., Ch. 168; 13 Ch. D. 388; 41 L. T. 793; 28 W. R. 226.

Personal Representative.]—When a plaintiff filed her bill as being the legal personal representative of the person through whom she claimed title, and it was afterwards discovered that she was not the legal personal representative, though she was beneficially interested in a share of the subject-matter of the suit, which was a debt contracted upwards of fifty years before the bill was filed, leave was given, at the hearing of the cause, to add the legal personal representative as co-plaintiff; and the bill being amended by so doing, and by introducing sufficient statements to show the title of the new plaintiff, and also the beneficial interest of the original plaintiff:—Held, that such amendments were proper to be allowed in the discretion of the judge. Maughan v. Blake, 37 L. J., Ch. 109; 17 L. T. 278; 16 W. R. 66.

Where Original Plaintiff going Abroad.]—In an action for an injunction to restrain the defendants from using certain premises as a small-pox hospital, application was made under Ord. XVI. r. 13, by the plaintiff to join another person, with his consent, who was an inhabitant of the same neighbourhood, on the ground that since the action was brought the original plaintiff had given up business, and was going abroad. The application was refused on the ground that the cause of action was injury to the plaintiff's own property only, and it was not "necessary, in order to enable the court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the action," that any other person should be added as plaintiff within Ord. XVI. r. 13. Dalton v. St. Mary Abbotts, Kensington, 47 L. T. 349.

Receiver — Constitution of Action.]—H., a partner in a firm of solicitors, received money from R., a client, for the purpose of investment; but the money was not invested. On the death of another partner, his executors brought a partnership action, and H. was appointed one of the receivers. H., without the knowledge of his co-receiver, gave R. a memorandum stating that he held the title-deeds of certain property, on which the firm had an equitable mortgage, on behalf of R. as security for her money, and he subsequently placed the deeds in a box marked with R.'s name. R. afterwards obtained possession of the box and deeds and claimed to retain them. H. was subsequently removed from the receivership, and L. appointed in his place. The action was originally brought by the receivers against R. alone, but was amended by adding H. and the executors of the deceased partner as defendants:—Held, that the action was properly constituted by making the new receivers plaintiffs and R. a defendant. Hills v. Reeves, 31 W. R. 209—C. A.

Trustee—Cestui que Trust.]—Ejectment in the name of one who was a cestui que trust, having an equitable estate only. At the trial an application was made to the judge to amend by adding the names of two trustees, who had the legal estate. He allowed the amendment:—Held, rightly allowed. Blake v. Done, 7 H. & N. 465; 31 L. J., Ex. 100; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 1306; 5 L. T. 429; 10 W. R. 175.

A declaration contained two counts; the first was for damages for breach of an agreement whereby the plaintiff let furniture to the defendant; and the second was for money awarded by a valuer to be paid by the defendant to the plaintiff for damage done by him to the furniture. The agreement in the first count was made by a trustee for the plaintiff (who was then a married woman) with the defendant, and the plaintiff was not a party to it; but she was a party to the submission to arbitration on which the second count was founded, and the trustee was not. The plaintiff having obtained an order from the master, under the C. L. P. Act, 1852, s. 34, to add the trustee as a plaintiff:—Held, that he had power to make the order, and that he had properly exercised his discretion in making it. De Gendre v. Bogardus, 41 L. J.,

C. P. 107; L. R. 7 C. P. 409; 26 L. T. 733; 20 W. R. 663.

Statute of Limitations.]—A debt having been contracted with the firm of A., B. and C., an action was brought by B. and C., after the death of A., to recover it. The plaintiff's attorney having discovered, after notice of trial, that eight other persons were partners in the firm when the debt was contracted, the court allowed the plaintiffs to amend the writ of summons and subsequent proceedings by adding the names of the eight other persons as plaintiffs. It was sworn that the Statute of Limitations would be a bar to a fresh action. Carne v. Malins, 6 Ex. 803; 2 L. M. & P. 498; 20 L. J., Ex. 434.

Amendment of Character in which Plaintiff Sues.]—In an action for work done and materials provided by an administratrix of a coach-builder, it appeared that upon his death his widow took out administration, and caused carriages to be prepared for the defendant, the materials used being part of the estate of her deceased husband, with the exception of one shaft. After this work had been done the widow died, and the administratrix took out administration de bonis non:—Held, that the cause of action was part of the estate of the intestate, and not of the widow, and therefore passed to the administratrix de bonis non, and that the declaration might be amended at nisi prius by stating that she sued, not as administratrix of the deceased, but as administratrix de bonis non. Moseley v. Rendell, 40 L. J., Q. B. 111; L. R. 6 Q. B. 338; 23 L. T. 774; 19 W. R. 619.

Consent of Plaintiff on being added.]—A person cannot be added as plaintiff without his consent in writing, even although he be indemnified against costs. Tryon v. National Provident Institution, 55 L. J., Q. B. 236; 16 Q. B. D. 678; 54 L. T. 167; 34 W. R. 398.

The case of trustees and cestui que trust is not excepted from the general rule of Ord. XVI. r. 11, so as to enable the court or a judge to dispense with the consent in writing of the trustee upon the application of a cestui que trust to amend by adding his trustee as co-plaintiff in an action in respect of the trust property. Besley v. Besley, 57 L. J., Ch. 464; 37 Ch. D. 648; 58 L. T. 510; 36 W. R. 604.

In ejectment, the evidence showing title in a party not joined, he cannot be joined without his consent, nor can the claimants recover without proof of the transfer of his title to them. Frampton v. Williams, 2 F. & F. 603.

The court will not add a party to the record under s. 19 of the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 126, who is a trustee for a person who objects to his being so added. Sturgis v. Smith, 5 L. T. 586.

In an action by the equitable assignee of a debt, or chose in action, an application under Ord. XVI. r. 2, to add the name of the assignor as plaintiff will not be granted where there is no proof of his consent, or that an indemnity has been tendered to him. Turquand v. Fearon, 48 L. J., Q. B. 341; 4 Q. B. D. 280; 40 L. T. 191; 27 W. R. 396.

—— "Own Consent in Writing."]—The consent of a person to be added as a plaintiff, or the next friend of a plaintiff, in an action must, under r. 11 of Ord. XVI. of the Rules of Court of 1883, be "his own consent in writing"—that is, it must be his consent in writing, and must be signed by him; and a written consent on his behalf by his solicitor, signed by the solicitor, though written and signed in his presence, is not sufficient to bind him. Fricker v. Van Grutten, 65 L. J., Ch. 823; [1896] 2 Ch. 649; 75 L. T. 117; 45 W. R. 53—C. A.

The consent required by Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XVI. r. 13, to be given by a person whom it is proposed to add as plaintiff need not have been in writing, but a statement by the solicitor acting for the existing plaintiff that he has authority from the proposed new plaintiff to consent on his behalf would have been accepted by the court. Cox v. James, 51 L. J., Ch. 184; 19 Ch. D. 55; 45 L. T. 471; 30 W. R. 228. See now Ord. XVI. r. 11.

Under Ord. XVI. r. 11, of the Rules of Court, 1883, no person can be added as a plaintiff to an action without his written consent. The plaintiff brought an action upon a contract against the defendant, who insisted that one L. should be joined as a co-plaintiff as being a party to the contract, or, in the alternative, that all proceedings in the action should be stayed until he was so joined:—Held, that, inasmuch as L. had not consented to have his name added as a co-plaintiff, the court had no right by a roundabout process to make an order which would practically override the provisions of Ord. XVI. r. 11. Jackson v. Krüger, 54 L. J., Q. B. 446; 52 L. T. 962.

Motion to strike out Name of Plaintiff added without Authority—Who may make.]—On a motion to strike out the name of a company which had been added by amendment as a co-plaintiff on the ground that the company had not authorised the use of its name:—Held, that the motion was wrong, as such a motion could only be made by the company itself, but that the consent of the company must be obtained as necessary to sustaining the action under the rule in Foss v. Harbottle (2 Hare, 461). Duckett v. Gover, 46 L. J., Ch. 407; 6 Ch. D. 82; 25 W. R. 554.

Application, how made.]—An alteration in the parties to an action will not be made upon an ex parte application. Tildesley v. Harper, 3 Ch. D. 277.

No Demurrer for want of Parties.]—Since the Judicature Acts there is no such thing as a demurrer for want of parties. The proper course is to take out a summons under Ord. XVI. r. 13, to have the necessary party or parties added. Werdermann v. Société Générale d'Electricité, 19 Ch. D. 246; 45 L. T. 514; 30 W. R. 33—C. A.

An objection for want of parties ought to be taken by interlocutory motion, and cannot be entertained at the hearing. Sheehan v. G. E. Ry., 50 L. J., Ch. 68; 16 Ch. D. 59; 43 L. T. 432; 29 W. R. 69.

A statement by way of defence, that the plaintiff at the time of bringing the action was a married woman, is no defence, and may be demurred to. Aboulaff v. Oppenheimer, 30 W. R. 429.

Adding New Plaintiffs at Trial.]—In an action by a company, lessees for a long term of eleven houses, of which ten were unlet and in their possession when the writ was issued, and by their tenant of the remaining house as co-plaintiff, for an injunction and damages in respect of an alleged nuisance from noise; the tenant, after delivery of the statement of claim and notice of trial, refused to go on with the action as co-plaintiff. The other ten houses having in the meantime been let, the plaintiff company applied at the trial for leave to amend by adding as co-plaintiffs two of the new tenants, who consented to be added. The application was granted, as being within the discretion given by Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. XVI. r. 11, of allowing the names of any parties, whether plaintiffs or defendants—"whose presence before the court may be necessary in order to enable the court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the cause or matter"—to be added. House Property and Investment Co. v. Horse Nail Co., 54 L. J., Ch. 715; 29 Ch. D. 190; 52 L. T. 507; 33 W. R. 562.

A judge has power, in ejectment, to amend at the trial by adding names of parties in whom the legal estate is vested, so as to raise the real question. Blake v. Done, 7 H. & N. 465; 31 L. J., Ex. 100; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 1306; 5 L. T. 429; 10 W. R. 175. S. C. at nisi prius, 2 F. & F. 575.

Adding Plaintiff after Trial.]—An action in personam was brought in the name of G. S. and others against the owners of the "D. of B." in respect of a collision between that vessel and the "V." At the trial, on the application of the defendants, the judge ordered that the names of the several plaintiffs should be given, and the writ amended. The name of F. was, by mistake, given as the name of the owner of the cargo on board the "V.," and inserted in the writ. The case eventually went, on appeal, to the house of lords, where the "D. of B." was pronounced alone to blame for the collision. After this judgment, but before the reference had been held for the assessment of damages, it was ascertained that F. was not the owner of the cargo, and an application was thereupon made to have the name of A. & Co., the real owners of cargo, added or substituted for that of F.:—Held, that the decree of the court in a damage action pronouncing which vessel is to blame for a collision is not a final judgment where damages remain to be assessed; and that the court had power to make the order asked for. The Duke of Buccleuch, 61 L. J., P. 57; [1892] P. 201; 67 L. T. 739; 40 W. R. 455; 7 Asp. M. C. 294—C. A.

2. Defendants.

Adding Joint Contractors.]—Upon an application under Ord. XVI. r. 11, by the defendant or defendants on the record, that other defendants be added, the court or judge may exercise a discretion, and the order will not be made unless it is shown that the non-joinder complained of will prejudice the parties to the action, or that "the presence before the court of additional parties is necessary in order to enable the court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the cause or matter." Ledue v. Ward, 54 L. T. 214; 5 Asp. M. C. 571.

Semble, that under Ord. XVI. r. 11, the court has a discretion to order other defendants to be added, but such discretion ought to be exercised as nearly as possible in accordance with the principles upon which a plea in abatement would before the Judicature Act have succeeded or failed. Wilson v. Balcarres Brook Steamship Co., 62 L. J., Q. B. 245; [1893] 1 Q. B. 422; 4 R. 286; 68 L. T. 312; 41 W. R. 486; 7 Asp. M. C. 321—C. A.

Where an action is brought against one only of several joint contractors, the defendant is entitled, as of right, under Ord. XVI. r. 11, to have his co-contractors joined as defendants, on the authority of Kendall v. Hamilton (4 App. Cas. 504). Pilley v. Robinson, 57 L. J., Q. B. 54; 20 Q. B. D. 155; 58 L. T. 110; 36 W. R. 269.

Where one of two joint contractors is sued alone, the action will not be stayed until the other is joined, if the plaintiff shows that such other, although within the jurisdiction, cannot be found. Robinson v. Geisel, 64 L. J., Q. B. 52; [1894] 2 Q. B. 685; 9 R. 555; 71 L. T. 70; 42 W. R. 609—C. A.

Since the abolition of pleas in abatement, the proper course for a defendant desirous of raising the objection of the non-joinder as a defendant of some one jointly liable with him is to apply by summons at chambers, supported by an affidavit stating the facts, and showing that the person alleged to be jointly liable is within the jurisdiction, to have the action stayed. MacArthur v. Hood, 1 Cab. & E. 550.

M. and R. entered into certain contracts with P. to build a mansion, and subsequently assigned to S. & Co. all their share, right, and interest in all moneys then or thereafter to become due and owing under, or which should be or become payable by P. in respect of, any matters connected with or arising out of the said contracts. In an action by S. & Co. against P. for an account, and for payment of what was due to them under the said contracts, P. moved, under Ord. XVI. r. 11, that M. and R. should be added as parties to the action:—Held, that, although the Queen's Bench division had the same jurisdiction as that exercised by the Chancery division in actions taking the shape of a general dealing with the subject-matter, yet it was not within the simplicity aimed at in the Queen's Bench division to join the parties as defendants, no relief being sought against them by the plaintiffs, and that the court would not join them as plaintiffs without notice to them, and hearing them as to their interest and the terms on which the order should be made. Sanders v. Peek, 50 L. T. 630; 32 W. R. 462.

—— Foreigner resident out of Jurisdiction.]—Where an action is brought against one joint contractor only, the other being a foreigner resident out of the jurisdiction, the defendant is not entitled as of right to have the other joint contractor added as a defendant under Ord. XVI. r. 11. Wilson v. Balcarres Brook Steamship Co., supra.

Action by One Executor—Absconding Executor.]—One of two executors having absconded, the other executor sued a mortgagor. The court refused, on the application of the defendant, to add the absconding executor as defendant. Drage v. Hartopp, 54 L. J., Ch. 434; 28 Ch. D. 414; 51 L. T. 902; 33 W. R. 410.

Plaintiff in Doubt from whom Redress to be sought.]—In an action by shipowners against shipbrokers for breach of a warranty of the authority of a principal to charter the plaintiffs' ship, the court has jurisdiction under rr. 7 and 11 of Ord. XVI. to join the principal as a co-defendant in the action. Smurthwaite v.

Hannay (63 L. J., Q. B. 737 : [1894] A. C. 494) discussed and explained. Bennetts v. McIlwraith, 65 L. J., Q. B. 632 ; [1896] 2 Q. B. 464 ; 75 L. T. 145 ; 45 W. R. 17 ; 8 Asp. M. C. 176—C. A.

Action in rem—Compulsory Pilotage—Joinder of Pilot.]—Where an action in rem has been brought against a ship and her owners for damage by collision, and compulsory pilotage has been pleaded, an order ought not afterwards to be made for the joinder of the pilot as a defendant (assuming there was jurisdiction to make the order) if the effect of so doing would be to embarrass the trial of the action. The Germanic, 65 L. J., P. 53 ; [1896] P. 84 ; 73 L. T. 730 ; 44 W. R. 394 ; 8 Asp. M. C. 116—C. A.

Change of Character.]—The court being asked to convert an action against the lords of the admiralty for an injunction in respect of alleged trespass into a maintainable action by giving the plaintiffs leave to amend the writ by suing the lords individually, and adding as parties the servants of the admiralty, who were the trespassers, refused such leave and dismissed the action, but without prejudice to any action maintainable by the plaintiffs. Raleigh v. Goschen, 67 L. J., Ch. 59 ; [1898] 1 Ch. 73 ; 77 L. T. 429 ; 46 W. R. 90.

Necessary Parties—Mining Lease—Lessor.]—In an action by a copyholder to restrain the working of coal under his land by A., who claimed to be entitled to do the acts complained of by virtue of a lease from B., the lord of the manor, B. was by amendment added as a defendant, on the allegation that he claimed the right by himself and his lessees to work the coal, that he justified the acts of A., and that he had received and claimed to be entitled to receive from A. rents and royalties in respect of such wrongful working. On summons by B. under Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. XXV. r. 4, that the amended statement of claim might be struck out as against him on the ground that it disclosed no reasonable cause of action against him, and that the action might be dismissed as against him :—Held, that the lessor had been properly added as a defendant. Shafto v. Bolckow, Vaughan & Co., 56 L. J., Ch. 735 ; 34 Ch. D. 725 ; 56 L. T. 608 ; 35 W. R. 562.

Local Board—Clerk.]—An action having been brought against the clerk of a local board of health, the court allowed the writ of summons and subsequent proceedings to be amended by substituting the board as the defendant instead of the clerk. Bolingbroke (Lord) v. Townsend, 42 L. J., C. P. 255 ; L. R. 8 C. P. 645 ; 29 L. T. 430.

Libel — Proprietor of Newspaper.]—In an action for libel which had been brought against the publisher of a newspaper, it appearing after issue joined, in answer to interrogatories, that A. B. was the sole proprietor of the newspaper, the court, in the exercise of its discretion, made an order, on the application of the plaintiff under Ord. XVI. r. 13, that A. B. should be added as defendant, the court imposing the terms that when joined as defendant he should have the same rights as he would have had if the action were then commenced. Edward v. Lowther, 45 L. J., C. P. 417 ; 34 L. T. 255 ; 24 W. R. 434.

Administration Action.]—When in an administration action the title of the plaintiff as a beneficiary was doubtful, and the trustee of the will was the sole defendant, the court, on the application of the trustee, ordered that the person interested in disputing the claim should be made a defendant. Day v. Radcliffe, 24 W. R. 844.

Bill—Trustee for Company.]—In an action on a bill against the acceptor, he sought to add the name of a company as a defendant under Ord. XVI. r. 13, upon the following grounds : that the acceptance was given for the purchase-money of a ship which he had agreed to purchase of the plaintiff ; that in entering into the agreement for such purchase he had acted as a trustee for the company, to whom the ship was afterwards conveyed in pursuance of the agreement ; and that the plaintiff made fraudulent representations with regard to the ship, by reason of which the company had been put to useless expense, which they claimed to recover from the plaintiff. The court refused the application. Norris v. Beazley, 46 L. J., C. P. 169 ; 2 C. P. D. 80 ; 35 L. T. 846 ; 25 W. R. 320.

"Questions involved in the Cause or Matter."]—In an action by a shipowner against consignees for sale of a cargo, claiming a declaration of lien upon money deposited by the latter with a dock company under s. 493 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, the court has jurisdiction to add as defendants the shippers of the cargo who wish to raise a counterclaim in respect of alleged breaches of the contract of affreightment. Montgomery v. Foy, Morgan & Co., 65 L. J., Q. B. 18 ; [1895] 2 Q. B. 321 ; 14 R. 575 ; 73 L. T. 12 ; 43 W. R. 691 ; 8 Asp. M. C. 36—C. A.

B. agreed to purchase freehold hereditaments of A., who purported to sell under a power of sale contained in a mortgage to A. by C., as trustee and executor of the will of D. After acceptance of the title, and preparation of the conveyance, B. received formal notice from unpaid residuary legatees of D. of a claim by them to the property contracted to be sold. In an action by A. for specific performance of the agreement, a motion by B. that the residuary legatees, who had given notice of their claims, might be added as defendants to the action, was refused with costs, as no question arose which, for the purpose of being effectually adjudicated upon and settled, required that these residuary legatees should be added as parties. Harry v. Davey, 45 L. J., Ch. 697 ; 2 Ch. D. 721 ; 34 L. T. 842 ; 24 W. R. 576.

The lessee for a term of years under a lease containing a covenant to repair agreed with D. to sell and assign to him the residue of the term, he undertaking to indemnify the lessee, without mentioning her assigns, in respect of any breach of covenant. D. entered into possession under that agreement, but no deed of assignment to him was executed, and upon the lessee's death her executors, having distributed her estate, assigned for a nominal consideration the residue of the term to her son, who henceforth received the rent from D. and paid it to the lessors. At the expiration of the term the lessors sued the son for breach of the covenant to repair, and he claimed indemnity from, and brought in D., as third party. The action was referred to an official referee, who, upon the application of the defendant, made an order adding the lessee's executors as defendants in order to enable them to claim indemnity from D. Neither the plaintiffs nor the executors objected to this order being made, but D. opposed it :—Held, upon these facts, that the official referee in adding the executors as defendants rightly exercised his discretion under Ord. XVI. r. 11. Byrne v. Brown, 58 L. J., Q. B. 410 ; 22 Q. B. D. 657 ; 60 L. T. 651—C. A.

Infringement of Patent — Application by Maker of Machine used by Defendant.]—A patentee brought an action against the purchaser of a machine for infringement without joining the maker. The maker, who, though resident abroad, had taken out a patent in England for his machine, applied, under r. 11 of Ord. XVI., to be added as a defendant, upon the ground that he would be prejudiced by the action :—Held, that the application did not come within r. 11. Moser v. Marsden, 61 L. J., Ch. 319 ; [1892] 1 Ch. 487 ; 66 L. T. 570 ; 40 W. R. 520—C. A.

Foreclosure—Mortgagor in Possession.]—A mortgage was created of certain land by A., who subsequently went into liquidation. The trustee in the liquidation sold the equity of redemption to B. An action was brought by the mortgagee against B. for foreclosure. The security was insufficient, and it was necessary to obtain possession as soon as possible. On demanding possession, however, the mortgagee found that A. was in possession and refused to go out. The mortgagee asked for leave to amend the writ in the action by adding the name of A. as a defendant, and by including, as part of the relief sought, a claim for recovery of possession of the mortgaged property :—Held, that the leave could not be granted. Sutcliffe v. Wood, 53 L. J., Ch. 970 ; 50 L. T. 705.

Husband and Wife.]—In an action against a husband for goods sold to the wife dum sola, it is not competent to the judge at nisi prius to amend the record by making the female a co-defendant. Garrard v. Giubilei, 11 C. B. (N.S.) 616 ; 31 L. J., C. P. 131 ; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 540 ; 5 L. T. 609 ; 10 W. R. 213. Affirmed, 13 C. B. (N.S.) 832 ; 31 L. J., C. P. 270 ; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 1077 ; 10 W. R. 565—Ex. Ch.

Mortgagee of Tenant.]—The mortgagee of a tenant who has incurred a forfeiture cannot be heard on an application for relief under 23 & 24 Vict. c. 126, s. 2, and cannot be made a party to the action of ejectment under Ord. XVI. r. 13, of the Judicature Act, 1875. Mills v. Griffiths, 45 L. J., Q. B. 771.

Application not Ex parte.]—An application to add a defendant to an action must not be made ex parte. Colbeck, In re, Hall v. Colbeck, 36 W. R. 259.

Such an application should, in general, be by summons in chambers. Wilson v. Church, 9 Ch. D. 552 ; 39 L. T. 413 ; 26 W. R. 735.

Service of Writ.]—When two actions had been consolidated on an application by the plaintiff to add new defendants to the consolidated action before trial, and to make W., one of the present defendants, a party to the action in a representative character, the court, under the Judicature Act, Ord. XVI. rr. 14, 15, ordered that the proposed new defendants should be added without service of any writ, and that W. be made a defendant in his representative character without any further indorsement on any writ, such order to take effect unless the new defendants and W. should respectively show cause to the contrary within eight days after service thereof. Wortley, In re, Culley v. Wortley, 46 L. J., Ch. 182 ; 4 Ch. D. 180 ; 25 W. R. 295.

Not added at Instance of Third Party.]—A person added as a defendant in an action under Ord. XVI. r. 17, is not entitled under that rule to have another person, against whom he may have a claim, so added. Walker v. Balfour, 25 W. R. 511.

After Decree.]—A decree was made in 1875 against the corporation of Birmingham, as the sanitary authority of Birmingham, granting a perpetual injunction to restrain them from allowing sewage to flow into a river, the injunction being suspended for five years to give the borough an opportunity to execute certain works. At the expiration of that period the plaintiffs desired to enforce the injunction, but in the meantime the B. T. and R. Board had succeeded to the rights and liabilities of the corporation of Birmingham in respect of the sewage :—Held, that under r. 13 of Ord. XVI. such an amendment could not be made after final decree, and that the decree could only be enforced against the board by an action. Att.-Gen. v. Birmingham Corporation, 15 Ch. D. 423 ; 43 L. T. 77 ; 29 W. R. 127—C. A.

After Judgment.]—Defendants to an infringement action served a third party notice for indemnity upon the B. Company, who were not parties to the action. The B. Company appeared as third parties in the action, and admitted their liability to the defendants ; and the court ordered that they should have liberty to appear at the trial, and should be bound by the decision of the court on any question as to the indemnity arising between them and the defendants, but not otherwise. The B. Company were not made defendants, and filed no pleadings, but they appeared at the trial as third parties, and the court gave judgment partly in favour of the plaintiffs and partly in favour of the defendants, but made no special order as to the third parties. The plaintiffs appealed, and after judgment had been given allowing their appeal, with costs against the defendants, the plaintiffs asked for an injunction and costs against the third parties (who had appeared on the appeal), and, if necessary, for an order to amend so as to make them defendants :—Held, by Cotton, L.J., that the court had no jurisdiction to give a judgment against these third parties as if they were defendants, and that it would be wrong after judgment on appeal to grant liberty to amend so as to enable the court to give relief against the third parties which was not asked for at the trial ; by Lindley, L.J., that the court had jurisdiction to grant the liberty to amend applied for, but that it should not be exercised in the present case ; and held by the court that under Ord. XVI. r. 54, the court had jurisdiction to order the third parties to pay the costs both of the appeal and in the court below, and that, as the third parties had in reality fought the plaintiffs and failed, an order for the payment of such costs must be made against them as well as against the defendants. Edison and Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland, 58

Where judgment in a foreclosure action has been pronounced, but has not been drawn up and entered, and it was discovered that there were puisne mortgagees, leave was given under Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. XVI. r. 11, to amend the writ and statement of claim by making the puisne mortgagees defendants. Keith v. Butcher, 53 L. J., Ch. 640; 25 Ch. D. 750; 50 L. T. 203; 32 W. R. 378.

Order at Trial.]—An order was made at the trial to add as a co-defendant a person to whom the defendant had assigned his interest pendente lite. Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160; 38 L. T. 461.

After Verdict.]—An application to amend parties by reason of a misjoinder cannot be entertained after the verdict has been returned. Wickens v. Steel, 2 C. B. (N.S.) 488; 26 L. J., C. P. 241; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 671; 5 W. R. 610.

e. REPRESENTATION OF PARTIES.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XVI. r. 9.

Plaintiffs—In what Cases.]—Ord. XVI. r. 9, only extends to persons who have or claim some beneficial proprietary right which they are asserting or defending in the cause or matter. Temperton v. Russell, 62 L. J., Q. B. 300; [1893] 1 Q. B. 435; 4 R. 302; 68 L. T. 425; 41 W. R. 321; 57 J. P. 518—C. A.

—— Same Interest.]—A writ was issued by the plaintiff, "on behalf of himself and numerous parties having the same interest," under Ord. XVI. r. 9. The claim was by the plaintiff, on behalf of himself and the other owners of a ship, against the defendants for freight and dues for the use of the ship. The defendants applied to add the names of the other owners as plaintiffs, under Ord. XVI. r. 13, on the ground that the case was not within r. 9, and also in order that the defendants might have the liability of the other owners, as plaintiffs, for costs:—Held, that the action was rightly brought by a single plaintiff under r. 9, and that the case was not within r. 13. De Hart v. Stephenson, 45 L. J., Q. B. 575; 1 Q. B. D. 313; 24 W. R. 367.

The plaintiffs sued the defendants, who were the presidents and officers of certain trade unions, "as well on their own behalf as on behalf of and as representing all the members of each of the societies to which they respectively belong," for maliciously and wrongfully inducing certain persons to break their contracts with the plaintiff, and claimed damages and an injunction:—Held, that the members of the trade unions had not "the same interest in one cause or matter" within the meaning of Ord. XVI. r. 9, and that the words above set out must be struck out. Temperton v. Russell, supra.

A plaintiff, in order to enable him to file a bill on behalf of himself and other persons, must have had a common interest with such persons. Fawcett v. Lawrie, 1 Dr. & Sm. 192; 8 W. R. 699.

Where the absent partners in a numerous partnership are to be bound by proceedings taken in a suit in their absence, it is necessary that the parties who represent them on the record should have interests identical with those of the absent parties; and the court in such case, in making a decree which is to bind absent parties, must ascertain by strict proof that the parties by whom the cause is conducted have the interests which they allege that they have, and upon which their title to sustain the suit is founded. Clay v. Rufford, 8 Hare, 281; 19 L. J., Ch. 295; 14 Jur. 803.

An action oy certain members of a church-building committee, on behalf of themselves "and all others the subscribers" to the building fund, against a former member of the committee for an account, cannot be maintained. Strickland v. Weldon, 54 L. J., Ch. 452; 28 Ch. D. 426; 52 L. T. 247; 33 W. R. 545.

—— Question of Convenience and Discretion.]—Where a class of persons entitled is numerous, it is a question of convenience whether the court will require them all to be made parties. Harvey v. Harvey, 4 Beav. 215. S. P., Cockburn v. Thompson, 16 Ves. 321.

An order made at the hearing of a cause, and giving the plaintiffs leave to amend for the purpose of adding parties, showing why they were unable to bring all proper parties before the court, is sufficiently complied with by an amendment stating that the plaintiffs sue on behalf of themselves and all persons (other than the defendants) who fill a particular character, and alleging that the persons filling that character are so numerous, that if they were individually made parties, the suit could not be effectually prosecuted. Milligan v. Mitchell, 1 Myl. & C. 511; 7 L. J., Ch. 37; 1 Jur. 888.

Liberty to sue on behalf of oneself and other persons who are too numerous to be brought upon the record is dependent neither upon the discretion of the court, nor upon the disposition of such persons to concur in the suit. Williams v. Salmond, 2 Kay & J. 463; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 251; 4 W. R. 64.

But if such persons have an interest which might be affected in case the suit were allowed to proceed, as on their behalf at the instance of the plaintiff, or if full justice cannot be done to the defendants without having all such persons personally upon the record, the court will not allow the suit to proceed. Ib.

—— Plaintiff barred from Suing.] — Some individuals of a class may file a bill on behalf of themselves and the others of that class praying an account, though the plaintiffs have executed separate releases which would bar their right, the bill charging that those releases were obtained fraudulently. Williams v. Smith, 7 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 129.

Semble, that when a bill is filed by two stockholders, entitled to separate sums of stock, on behalf of themselves and all other holders of the same stock, praying relief, if it should appear that one of the plaintiffs is not entitled to relief by reason of some equitable circumstances peculiar to himself, the court may nevertheless, in that suit, give the relief sought, and is not bound to dismiss the bill. Corballis v Grand Canal Undertakers, 3 Ir. Eq. R. 29.

Defendants—in what Cases.]—By the rules of a labour protection league it was provided that any member who became permanently disabled by an accident was entitled to have a levy made for his benefit on all the members of the league. The plaintiff brought an action against two officers of the league to enforce his rights under the rules:—Held, that the two officers were rightly ordered to represent all the members of the league under Ord. XVI. r. 9, and that the fact of their opposing such order was immaterial. Wood v. McCarthy, 62 L. J., Q. B. 373; [1893] 1 Q. B. 775; 5 R. 408; 69 L. T. 431; 41 W. R. 523.

An intended husband told his intended wife that he wished every farthing of her property to be settled on her. She then expressed herself willing that he should have a life interest if he survived her, upon which he said he would have counsel employed. Nothing, however, was done until the evening before the marriage, when the intended husband, who was a retired solicitor, began to prepare the settlement of all the lady's property and a small portion of his own, and brought it to her at five o'clock on the morning of the wedding. From her evidence it appeared that he did not explain the settlement to her, nor was any other solicitor employed in her behalf. There were several mistakes in the deed, and it was evident that it had been hastily prepared. The husband having died, the wife for the first time discovered that the settlement gave a moiety of her property after her death to her husband absolutely. The wife then commenced an action against the trustees of the settlement and one of the several next of kin of the husband for the rectification of the settlement by omitting the words giving the moiety to the husband:—Held, that the court had power to decide the question between the parties then before the court. Lovesy v. Smith, 49 L. J., Ch. 809; 15 Ch. D. 655; 43 L. T. 240; 28 W. R. 979.

Bill by a legatee wrongly described by the testator, for his legacy, one of the next of kin being a party: a decree was made without requiring the other next of kin, who were numerous, to be brought before the court. Bradwin v. Harpur, Ambl. 374.

When upon the construction of a will questions had arisen as to what classes of representatives of the testator were entitled, and great difficulty was foreseen in attempting to find the heir, who in the result might be held not entitled, the court made an order under Ord. XVI. r. 9a, appointing persons to represent the various classes of representatives of which some or one might be held to be entitled, before the questions of construction came on to be decided. Peppitt, In re, Chester v. Phillips, 46 L. J., Ch. 95; 4 Ch. D. 230; 35 L. T. 902; 25 W. R. 211.

Semble, that where a bill seeks to disturb a settlement and release executed by a majority of the members of an association, on the footing of an account stated as to the whole affairs of the association, submitted to all its members, the principle of allowing an individual to represent a class cannot well be applied. Stupart v. Arrowsmith, 25 L. J., Ch. 153; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 153; 4 W. R. 219.

Where appointees are numerous they may be represented as defendants to a suit by some on behalf of the rest. Milbank v. Collier, 1 Colly. 237.

Appointees being very numerous, and bill filed by some on behalf of all, court will dispense with general rule requiring all appointees to be parties. Manning v. Thesiger, 1 Sim. & S. 106; 1 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 28. S. P., Saunders v. Richardson, 2 Drew. 128; 2 Eq. Rep. 540; 2 W. R. 245.

The directors of a joint-stock company, consisting of upwards of 500 members, made certain calls, which the majority of the shareholders paid, but which six of them, alleging that the calls were fraudulently made, refused to pay, and filed their bill, on behalf of themselves and all other the shareholders except the defendants, against the directors, trustees, and secretary of the company, praying for an account of the debts and assets of the partnership, a receiver, an injunction to restrain the defendants and all officers and servants of the company from dealing with the partnership property, an account of the debts and liabilities of the company, and to have the property applied towards the payment of its debts and liabilities:—Held, that some at least of the absent shareholders who had paid up the disputed calls ought to be made parties to the suit. Richardson v. Larpent, 2 Y. & Coll. C. C. 507; 7 Jur. 691.

In a representative action by a plaintiff on behalf of himself and all other bondholders:—Held, that a dissentient bondholder — it not appearing that there were any others who dissented — should be added as a defendant, but not in a representative character. Wilson v. Church, 9 Ch. D. 552; 39 L. T. 413; 26 W. R. 735.

The plaintiff, a bondholder of a railway company, sued "on behalf of himself and all the bondholders of the company other than the defendant B.," but did not obtain an order under Ord. XVI. r. 9, that B. should be sued as representing all bondholders who dissented from the plaintiff's claim. One of the bondholders took out a summons whereby he stated that neither the plaintiff nor the defendant B. properly repre-ented the interests of himself and certain other bondholders, and applied to be made a defendant:—Held, that the applicant was entitled to be made a defendant, to represent the bondholders who dissented from the plaintiff's view. Fraser v. Cooper, 51 L. J., Ch. 575; 21 Ch. D. 718; 46 L. T. 371; 30 W. R. 654.

Trustees—Cestui que Trust.]—Ord. XVI. r. 7, of the Rules of Court, 1875, enabling trustees to represent their beneficiaries in an action, applies to an action under the Partitions Acts, 1868 and 1876. Simpson v. Denny, 10 Ch. D. 28; 27 W. R. 280.

Where the trusts of a will are not completed, the surviving trustee is the proper person to bring an action for a debt due to the testator's estate, and the cestuis que trust need not be parties. Cross, In re, Harston v. Tenison, 51 L. J. Ch. 645; 20 Ch. D. 109; 45 L. T. 777; 30 W. R. 376.—C. A.

In an action for sale and partition, the plaintiffs were trustees for sale of two-thirds of leasehold property, and the defendants were trustees for sale of the remaining third part after the death of a tenant for life. The cestuis que trustent not being parties:—Held, that the trustees for sale sufficiently represented their cestuis que trustent, and a sale and partition were directed without notice to the parties beneficially interested. Stace v. Gage, 47 L. J., Ch. 608; 8 Ch. D. 451; 38 L. T. 843; 26 W. R. 605.

To entitle a third person not named as a party to a contract, to sue either of the contracting parties, that third person must possess an actual beneficial right which places him in the position of cestui que trust under the contract. By a deed of separation between husband and wife, the husband covenanted with the trustees to pay them an annuity for the use of the wife and two eldest daughters, and also to pay to the trustees all the expenses of the maintenance and education of the two youngest daughters. On one of the two youngest daughters subsequently attaining sixteen the husband refused any longer to maintain her, whereupon she brought an action by her next friend against the husband and the trustees of the separation deed to enforce the husband's covenant, the trustees having refused to allow their names to be used as plaintiffs:—Held, that upon the construction of the deed the plaintiff was not in the position of cestui que trust under the covenant so as to entitle her to maintain the action, but liberty was given to her to amend by adding the trustees, the wife, and the other daughters, or any of them, as plaintiffs. The trustees refused to be joined as plaintiffs, and the statement of claim was amended by making the wife a co-plaintiff:—Held, that she had such an interest as entitled her to sue, the deed being an arrangement between the husband and wife, and the trustees being introduced on her behalf in order to get over the difficulty that the husband and wife could not at law sue each other, so that the trustees were to be considered trustees for the wife, and if they refused to sue, she could sue in equity. Gandy v. Gandy, 54 L. J., Ch. 1154; 30 Ch. D. 57; 53 L. T. 306; 33 W. R. 803—C. A.

—— Refusal of Trustee to sue — Special Circumstances.]—By his will the testator appointed executors, and bequeathed, amongst other legacies, the sum of 10,000*l.* to J. M. J. M. settled 8,000*l.*, part of such legacy, upon his children, and E. B. and J. H. were appointed trustees of the settlement. The 8,000*l.* was paid by the executors of the testator's will to E. B., one of the trustees of the settlement, upon his sole receipt, and the same was subsequently converted by him to his own use. He absconded and was made bankrupt, and a trustee in bankruptcy was appointed. An action was then commenced by C. M., one of the children of J. M., against the executors of the testator's will, and also against the trustee in bankruptcy of E. B. and J. H., to recover the 8,000*l.* The plaintiff by his statement of claim alleged that, although he had requested the defendant J. H. so to do, such defendant had refused to take or concur in any proceedings for the recovery of the 8,000*l.* from the estate of the testator, or from his executors. A summons was taken out on behalf of the defendants, the executors of the testator, asking that the action might be dismissed with costs as against them, on the ground that the statement of claim disclosed no reasonable cause of action against them:—Held, that, although a mere refusal to sue on the part of a trustee did not entitle a cestui que trust to sue in his own name, yet the circumstances of this case were special enough to render it proper that he should so sue. But held that, in order to guard against a multitude of actions, all the other cestuis que trust must be made defendants to this action. Meldrum v. Scorer, 56 L. T. 471.

How far Decision Binding on Person Represented.]—When a general right is fairly contested and established against a representative class, parties not actually parties are still bound by representation, so far as the general right is tried and established. Sewers Commissioners v. Gellatly, 45 L. J., Ch. 788; 3 Ch. D. 610; 24 W. R. 346.

The plaintiffs filed a statement of claim, seeking to carry out against the defendant a decree establishing a general right of common. The defendant demurred on the grounds, first, that he was no party to the original suit, and therefore not bound by the decree; and, secondly, that under an act of parliament the plaintiffs were prohibited from taking proceedings, except such as were supplemental to the original suit the decree in which they sought to enforce), without the leave of a certain body, and that they did not state that they had obtained such leave:—Held, that the defendant was bound by the decree, so far as it established a general right of common. Ib.

Held, however, that (the proceedings being original and not supplemental), the demurrer must be allowed on the second ground, with liberty for the plaintiffs to amend by obtaining leave, and that in case they obtained such leave the costs of the demurrer should be reserved. Ib.

Where a court of equity directs an issue in a cause in which there are many parties, and selects some to have the conduct of the trial, giving all leave to attend, all are bound by the result. Malone v. Malone, 8 Cl. & F. 179; West, 637; 2 Dr. & Wal. 491, 536; 3 Ir. Eq. R. 536.

Interlocutory Proceedings—Inquiry in Chambers—Adding as a Defendant.]—Two actions were brought, raising the question of the amount of remuneration payable to the trustees of a railway company reorganisation scheme, in each of which actions the plaintiff sued on behalf of himself and all holders of certificates for bonds and shares under such reorganisation scheme. By an order made on the 15th July, 1881, in one of the actions, an inquiry was directed as to what sum, in addition to 6,000*l.* in the statement of claim mentioned, was fit and proper to be allowed to the defendants as a quantum meruit for their services in connection with the reconstruction of the railway company. The plaintiff in the other action applied that he might be at liberty to attend such inquiry, and to contend that no further sum, beyond the 6,000*l.*, ought to be allowed, and that he might, if necessary, be added as a defendant to the action. The evidence on the inquiry was closed, and everything was complete for decision:—Held, that it was not usual in a representative action to allow a person fairly represented to attend subsequent proceedings, unless such person was joined as a party to the action, and thereby made liable to costs; that the court would not be justified in adding the applicant as a defendant to the action, because, not only had he supported the motion upon which the order directing the inquiry was made, but it was too late for him to come forward and thrust himself into the litigation, especially when it was considered that the inquiry which he desired to attend was directed by an interlocutory order made so long ago as to be incapable of being disturbed by appeal. Conybeare v. Lewis, 48 L. T. 527.

Service and Indorsement of Writ.]—When two actions had been consolidated, on an application by the plaintiff to add new defendants to the consolidated action before trial, and to make W., one of the present defendants, a party to the action in a representative character, the court under Ord. XVI. rr. 14, 15, ordered that the proposed new defendants should be added without service of any writ, and that W. be made a defendant in his representative character without any further indorsement on any writ, such order to take effect unless the new defendant and W. should respectively shew cause to the contrary within eight days after service thereof. Wortley, In re, Culley v. Wortley, 46 L. J., Ch. 182; 4 Ch. D. 180; 25 W. R. 295.

Foreclosure Action — Persons interested in Equity of Redemption.]—In a foreclosure action an order had been made in chambers, under Ord. XVI. r. 9, authorising two of a large class of persons, all having the same interest in the equity of redemption, to defend in the action on behalf and for the benefit of the others:—Held, that a foreclosure order could not be made unless all the persons interested in the equity of redemption were parties to the action. Griffith v. Pound, 59 L. J., Ch. 522; 45 Ch. D. 553.

Power to consent to Judgment.] — Persons authorised by the court to defend an action on behalf of others having the same interest cannot consent to judgment against them; the proper course in case there is no defence is to submit on their behalf to judgment. Rees v. Richmond, 62 L. T. 427.

Title of Action — Creditors' Administration Action.]—Where neither the title of the writ nor of the statement of claim in a creditor's administration action shew that the plaintiff is suing "on behalf of himself and all other creditors" of the deceased, the title of the statement of claim must be amended by adding those words. It is not sufficient that a statement to that effect should appear in a paragraph of the statement of claim. Tottenham, In re, Tottenham v. Tottenham, 65 L. J., Ch. 549; [1896] 1 Ch. 628; 74 L. T. 376; 44 W. R. 539.

f. ABSENT PARTIES.

Interlocutory Application.]—In an interlocutory application with which some of the parties to the action who had no interest in such application were not served, an order nisi was made to be binding on the absent parties three days after service unless they shewed cause. Wilson v. Church, 9 Ch. D. 552; 39 L. T. 413; 26 W. R. 735.

Compromise in Relation to a Trust—Jurisdiction.]—Ord. XVI. r. 9a, of the R. S. C. 1883, which enables the court, in proceedings concerning a trust, to sanction a compromise so as to bind persons who are not parties to the proceedings, gives no jurisdiction to bind persons, however few in number, who have expressly dissented from the compromise. Compromise sanctioned as against absent persons, who had expressed no opinion, on provision for payment to dissentients of the maximum amount which they could in any event be entitled to claim. Cullingham v. Sloper, 64 L. J., Ch. 149; [1894] 3 Ch. 716; 12 R. 87; 71 L. T. 456—C. A.

Out of the Jurisdiction.]—Where the defendants who have appeared are only interested in two-thirds of the mortgaged property, the persons entitled to the other third being merely named as defendants out of the jurisdiction, a mortgagee cannot obtain a decree for the sale or foreclosure either of the whole property or of the two-thirds. Caddick v. Cooke, 1 N. R. 463; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 454; 7 L. T. 844; 11 W. R. 395.

The court may proceed with a cause so far as a final order can be made, notwithstanding the absence of an interested party who is out of the jurisdiction; but where the suit was brought to enforce a charge upon the produce of the estate of an absent party, in the hands of his agents and consignees, in performance of an agreement to which the consignees were parties, the court refused to direct an account to be taken of the amount of such produce received by the consignees; for as the absent party would neither be bound by the account of what was due to the plaintiff in respect of the charge on the estate, nor be compelled by the decree for payment of what was so found due, to allow in the accounts of his consignees the payments to be made by them in pursuance of such decree, the accounts of the receipts of the produce of the estate by the consignees could not be taken for any final purpose. Kirwan v. Daniel, 7 Hare, 347.

Where a plaintiff is abroad on foreign service with his regiment, the defendant who might have pushed on the proceedings, cannot, on the plaintiff's return some years afterwards, discharge the bill on account of the delay. Mullins v. Townsend, 2 Dow & Cl. 430; 5 Bli. (N.S.) 567.

Where the person whose interests are sought to be affected by the decree is out of the jurisdiction of the court, the suit cannot proceed in his absence. Brown v. Blount, 2 Russ. & M. 83.

Where a defendant is out of the jurisdiction, and cannot be made to appear, it amounts to the same thing as if the process had been taken out for want of an appearance, and carried on to a sequestration. Darwent v. Walton, 2 Atk. 510.

Interpleader upon opposite claims; interpleader, all the defendants, but one, residing out of the jurisdiction, in Scotland. The plaintiff, after a reasonable time, having used due diligence to bring them in, being decreed to give up the subject to the only defendant appearing, protected afterwards against the others by injunction; and order that service on the attorney should be good. Stevenson v. Anderson, 2 Ves. & B. 407; 13 R. R. 126.

Stock was invested in the names of two persons upon trust, as was alleged, for the petitioners. The only evidence of the trust was the statements in the petition and verifying affidavits of a letter written by the donor for the purposes of the application. One of the alleged trustees being resident in some place unknown out of the jurisdiction, a petition was presented, praying that the stock might be transferred to the petitioners; but the court refused to make the order in his absence, though it was stated that he declined to act, and the other trustee submitted to act as the court should direct. Dunbar, In re, 2 Jo. & Lat. 120; 8 Ir. Eq. R. 71.

There is no need to make persons parties who are out of jurisdiction of court, but it is usual to apply to reserve liberty to alter decree as to them. Att.-Gen. v. Balliol College, 9 Mod. 407.

In order to dispense with a person being made a defendant, it is not sufficient to allege that he absconded a year before the bill was filed. Penfold v. Nunn, 5 Sim. 405.

Where a bill was brought to recover the arrears of an annuity, and the grantor was alleged to be and in fact was out of the jurisdiction:—Held, that the cause must stand over till he should be made a party. Smyth v. Chambers, 4 Y. & Coll. 40.

Intervention.]—A party permitted to intervene as a defendant in a cause after it had been heard, on further directions, he having been out of the jurisdiction during the previous proceedings, and now submitting to be bound by them. White v. Hall, 1 Russ. & M. 332. Representation by Persons having same Interest.]—See REPRESENTATION OF PARTIES, supra, cols. 663 et seq.

Saving Rights of.]—Equity will not permit a decree to be made use of to evict the interests of persons not parties, and who were tacitly protected by it. Foley v. Gough, 1 Ball & B. 448.

A decree always guards the rights of persons not parties to the suit, for it gives relief on the terms that such persons be not prejudiced. Shine v. Gough, 1 Ball & B. 447.

Objection that a person having the same interest with plaintiff is not a party, overruled; plaintiff taking his relief with a saving of the rights of such absent person. Moore v. M'Kay, 2 Moll. 137.

A decree made in the absence of a material party, but without prejudice to his rights and interests. Willats v. Busby, 5 Beav. 193; 10 L. J., Ch. 1.

A. executed a voluntary settlement of real estate in favour of his wife and children, and afterwards contracted to sell it for valuable consideration. The purchaser filed a bill for specific performance against the vendor, his wife and children, and the trustees in whom the legal estate was vested. One of the children was out of the jurisdiction, and did not appear. The court decreed a specific performance, and ordered the trustees to convey to the purchaser saving the rights of the absent party. Ib.

The court may, under the 40th General Order of August, 1841, make the decree, saving the right of an absent party, as where neither a representative nor assets of an executor. Daubuz v. Peel, 1 Coop. C. C. 365.

And see the cases of objection for want of parties collected and discussed. Ib.

On a devise of real and personal estate charged with the testator's debts and legacies, upon trust for his nephew for life (the only son of the testator's only brother), in strict tail male, remainder to the nephew's first and other sons, remainder to testator's own right heirs, and in the event of failure of heirs of his brother, and of the estate going over to right heirs more remote, then he charged the estates with payment of a sum to his niece; the nephew died without issue, having survived his father:—Held, in a suit by the niece, the administrator of the nephew, limited for the purposes of the suit, was a sufficient representative of the personal estate of the nephew in the cause, and that the heir of the surviving trustee appointed by the testator and the personal representative of the testator should properly be parties; but that the defendant not having objected to their being necessary parties, the court, under the 40th Order, August 1841, would make a decree saving their rights. Faulkner v. Daniel, 3 Hare, 199.

To a suit for the execution of a trust, created for the benefit of the plaintiffs and other specified creditors, against the trustees (the fund having been brought into court), the person who created the trust, or his personal representative, is a necessary party; and it is not a case in which the court will, under the 40th Order of August, 1841, make a decree saving the rights of such party when absent, although the defendants say that the trust fund is insufficient for the purposes for which it was created, and that there is, therefore, no surplus to be paid to the absent party. Kimber v. Ensworth, 1 Hare, 293; 11 L. J., Ch. 151; 6 Jur. 162.

Semble, the 40th Order of August, 1841, enabling the court to make a decree saving the rights of absent parties, does not apply to cases where the security of an absent party might be prejudiced by the decree, or where the effect of the decree might be to transfer the legal interest in property in which the absent party is equitably interested. Ib.

Where it appeared, by a statement in an answer, that C., who was not a party to the suit, had an interest in the subject-matter of the suit, but the objection on account of C.'s absence was not taken by any of the answers:—Held, that this was a case within the 40th of the General Orders of August, 1841, and the court made a decree in the suit saving the rights of C. Feltham v. Clark, 1 De G. & Sm. 307.

Decree made under the 40th Order of August, 1841, without prejudice to the rights of absent parties. Maybery v. Brooking, 7 De G. M. & G. 673; 25 L. J., Ch. 87; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 76; 4 W. R. 155.

Undertaking to make Party.]—Where the personal representative of one of several trustees who had committed a joint breach of trust was not before the court, the decree pronounced upon an undertaking to make him a party. Att.-Gen. v. Newbury Corporation, C. P. Coop. 72.

Effect of.]—The court will only decree the usual preliminary inquiries where the absence of a necessary party is suggested by the answer of an accounting party, and who at the hearing objects to a more extensive decree. Bass v. Wellsted, 7 Jur. 618.

The court will neither decide a question between a class of persons and a party claiming adversely to that class, nor decree the distribution of a fund amongst a class of persons without evidence that all the members of such class are parties to the proceeding. Hawkins v. Hawkins, 1 Hare, 543; 11 L. J., Ch. 428; 6 Jur. 638.

A decree obtained without making parties those whose rights are affected thereby, is fraudulent and void as to those parties; and a purchaser under it with notice of the defect is not protected by it. Giffard v. Hort, 1 Sch. & Lef. 386.

After the trustees of a charity had put in their answer in a suit, and before the hearing, one trustee died, and another resigned. New trustees were appointed in their stead, but were not made parties to the cause before the hearing. After the cause was heard, and judgment pronounced, an information was filed against the new trustees, praying the benefit of the former proceedings against them, and that they might be removed as persons not duly qualified. The new trustees, by their answer, made a case to shew that the decree, if enforced, would be prejudicial to the charity, and insisted that it ought not to be made against them:—Held, that the new trustees came in under the founder, and not under the trustees for whom they were substituted; that the issue on the information was not merely whether the new trustees were bound or not by the decree; that having been trustees at the time of the decree, they ought to have been made parties; that not having been parties, they were not so bound by the former proceedings as to be precluded from making a case, by way of defence to the suit; and that the statement in their answer of further facts for that purpose was therefore not impertinent. Att.-Gen. v. Foster, 2 Hare, 81; 12 L. J., Ch. 44; 6 Jur. 1032.

g. Change of Parties.

1. On Death.

a. When Cause of Action Survives.

Generally.]—Where the cause of action is money due, or a contract to be performed, gain or acquisition by the labour or property of another, or a promise by a testator expressed or implied, the action survives against the executor; otherwise, if it is a tort, or arises ex delicto, supposed to be by force and against the peace. Hambley v. Trott, Cowp. 375.

Injury to Freehold Property.]—The plaintiff, in an action for a mandatory injunction and damages for obstruction of light to freehold property, died more than six months after the commencement of the action, and three months after her death B. J., her executor and devisee, obtained the common order, under Ord. XVII. r. 2, to carry on proceedings against the defendant. The defendant moved to discharge the order on the ground that the cause of action did not survive:—Held, that the plaintiff's equitable right to a mandatory injunction devolved to B. J. as her devisee, and that B. J., as her executor, was at least entitled to continue the action for the recovery of damages in respect of injury committed during a period of six months prior to the plaintiff's death. Jones v. Simes, 59 L. J., Ch. 351; 43 Ch. D. 607; 62 L. T. 447.

After judgment for the plaintiff upon a special case in an action to recover damages for injury to land by working the mines beneath, the defendant died. The judgment directed that the damages should be assessed by an arbitrator, upon certain principles laid down by the court:—Held, that the defendant's widow, who was also his executrix, would not be added as a defendant under Ord. L. r. 4, and that the maxim actio personalis moritur cum personâ applied. Chapman v. Day, 49 L. T. 436—C. A. Reversing 31 W. R. 767.

Injury to Personal Estate.]—Whenever the pleadings in an action, whether founded on contract or on tort, shew that injury has been done to a man's personal estate as distinguished from his person or reputation, the action, in case of the death of the plaintiff, survives to and may be continued by his legal personal representative. Twycross v. Grant, 48 L. J., C. P. 1; 4 C. P. D. 40; 39 L. T. 681; 27 W. R. 87—C. A.

Semble, that even if the injury can only be inferred this is still sufficient. Ib.

The position of an administrator is the same in this respect as that of an executor. Ib.

An action for defamation, either of private character or of a person in relation to his trade, comes to an end on the death of the plaintiff, but an action for the publication of a false and malicious statement, causing damage to the plaintiff's personal estate, survives:—Held, therefore, that a claim for falsely and maliciously publishing a statement calculated to injure the plaintiff's right of property in a trade-mark was put an end to by the death of the plaintiff after the commencement of the action only so far as it was a claim for libel, but that so far as the claim was in the nature of slander of title the action survived, and could be continued by his personal representative, who would be entitled to recover on proof of special damage. Hatchard v. Mège, 56 L. J., Q. B. 397; 18 Q. B. D. 771; 56 L. T. 662; 35 W. R. 576; 51 J. P. 277

Mandamus to enforce Statutory Duty.]—An action for a mandamus to compel a local authority to make such sewers as may be necessary for effectually draining their district in pursuance of s. 15 of the Public Health Act, 1875, survives to the executors of an owner of premises within the district dying after the commencement of the action. Peebles v. Oswaldtwistle Urban Council, 65 L. J., Q. B. 499; [1896] 2 Q. B. 159; 74 L. T. 721; 44 W. R. 513; 60 J. P. 516—C. A.

Liability ex Contractu implied by Foreign Law—Waste.]—A testator, domiciled in England, died leaving considerable property in that country. He was also entitled as "possessor" to the usufruct of three estates in Austria, Hungary and Croatia, held under three family settlements or fidei-commisse. Every fidei-commiss was subject to the jurisdiction of the land court of the district in which the property was situate, and on every change of possession (which could take place only on succession) the successor made a declaration to the court that he took possession. It was a fundamental principle of Austrian, Hungarian, and Croatian law that the "possessor" was bound to maintain the subject-matter of the fidei-commiss, and transmit it to his successor in the state in which he received it; and upon his death his allodial estate was liable for dilapidations. A creditor's action was brought in England by the successor under the fidei-commisse, against the executrix and trustees of the testator for administration of his real and personal estate, the plaintiff claiming damages for dilapidations. The executrix objected that no claim could be maintained in England in respect of any act or default committed abroad, unless such act or default shewed a good cause of action both in the foreign country and in England, and that, the claim being in the nature of a claim for waste, no action would lie in England:—Held, that the action rested on an implied contract or obligation and not on tort, and that the maxim actio personalis moritur cum personâ did not apply. Batthyany v. Walford, 56 L. J., Ch. 881; 36 Ch. D. 269; 57 L. T. 206; 35 W. R. 814—C. A.

Infringement of Trade-mark or Patent.]—An action by the registered owner of a trade-mark claiming an injunction restraining infringement and fraudulent imitation, and the usual consequential relief, is not extinguished by the death of the plaintiff, but survives to his personal representatives. Oakey v. Dalton, 56 L. J., Ch. 823; 35 Ch. D. 700; 57 L. T. 18; 35 W. R. 709.

Where there are two assignees of a patent, and one of them dies, the action for an infringement in his lifetime descends to the survivor, who is entitled to recover the whole damages. Smith v. L. & N. W. Ry., 2 El. & Bl. 69; 17 Jur. 1071.

Sale by Father of Infant's Property—Compensation.]—According to the law of Peru, a father is entitled to administer the estate of his infant child, and to receive for his own benefit the income during the child's minority. A father during the infancy of his daughter sold (as it was alleged, improperly) a part of her property for much less than it proved to be worth. After his death the daughter claimed compensation out of his estate for the loss occasioned by this disadvantageous sale:—Held, that the father stood in such a fiduciary position towards the daughter that the rule actio personalis moritur cum personâ did not apply to the demand, and that, as the sale had been made without justification, the father's estate must account for the amount which would have been received from the property had it been retained in specie. Concha v. Murrieta, 40 Ch. D. 543; 60 L. T. 798—C. A.

Action by Director against Co-directors for Contribution—Death of one Defendant.]—L. and two others were directors of a company, and on various occasions authorised loans to be made out of the funds of the company. The company afterwards brought an action against another director for such unauthorised loans, and recovered judgment against him, which he discharged. He then brought an action for contribution against the three directors, of whom L. died after the commencement of the action, and his administrator was made a defendant:—Held, that the action survived against L.'s estate. Ramskill v. Edwards, 55 L. J., Ch. 81; 31 Ch. D. 100; 53 L. T. 949; 34 W. R. 96.

Breach of Promise of Marriage—Special Damage.]—No action lies for damages for breach of promise of marriage against the personal representatives of the promisor, unless in respect of special damage—that is, actual loss to the temporal estate of the promisee, flowing directly from the breach, or which may reasonably be supposed to have been in the contemplation of both parties at the time of the promise as the probable result of the breach of it. Finlay v. Chirney, 57 L. J., Q. B. 247; 20 Q. B. D. 494; 58 L. T. 664; 36 W. R. 534; 52 J. P. 324—C. A.

Misrepresentation.]—The plaintiff advanced money on a mortgage of certain property on the faith of certain representations made to him by the solicitor who negotiated the mortgage for him that the security offered was a good one. These representations were untrue, and were known by the solicitor, when he made them, to be so. The misrepresentation was not discovered until after the solicitor's death, and shortly after that the plaintiff commenced this action against the solicitor's executors to recover the amount lent, and the arrears of interest:—Held, that although the plaintiff would have had a good claim against the solicitor himself if he had been alive, yet that never having asserted it in his lifetime, he could not now, after the death of the person who was to blame for the loss, assert it against his representatives. Young v. Wallingford, 52 L. J., Ch. 590; 48 L. T. 756; 31 W. R. 838.

By the law of Scotland, if there is a pecuniary loss occasioned by a fraudulent misrepresentation, and the party guilty of it dies, an action can be maintained against his executor if he is lucratus—that is, possessed of assets. Davidson v. Tullock, 6 Jur. (N.S.) 543; 8 W. R. 309.

Tort—Action against Sole Partner in Firm.]—The plaintiff brought his action for damages and an injunction against the firm of T. & Co. for torts committed by the firm. The firm consisted of T. alone, who died more than six months after the commencement of action, and the action was continued against his executors:—Held, that T. having died more than six months after the commission of the acts complained of, no action either for damages or injunction could be maintained against his executors; although the action had been commenced in the lifetime of the testator, and although the executors continued the business in the name of the firm. Kirk v. Todd, 52 L. J., Ch. 224; 21 Ch. D. 484; 47 L. T. 676; 31 W. R. 69—C. A.

—— Property or Proceeds Appropriated.]—By a decree in 1870 it was declared that H. and F., and the estate of their deceased partner, were liable to the plaintiffs for minerals taken by them under the plaintiff's farm, and that H. and F. were liable to compensate the plaintiffs for user of all roads and passages under the farm, and inquiries were directed—1. As to the quantity of minerals taken and their value. 2. What quantity of minerals had been carried by the defendants through the roads or passages under the farm. 3. What, upon the result of the second inquiry ought to be paid by the defendants as wayleave for the user of the roads and passages. 4. Whether the farm, and the mineral property of the plaintiffs under it, had sustained any and what damage by reason of the way in which the defendants had worked under the farm. Pending these inquiries F. died, and his executrix moved to stay proceedings under the second, third, and fourth inquiries:—Held, by Pearson, J., that the fourth inquiry must be stayed; but that, as the estate of F. had derived profit from the trespasses to which the second and third inquiries related, it was liable after his death, and that those inquiries must be prosecuted. But held, on appeal, by Cotton and Bowen, L.JJ. (dissentiente Baggallay, L.J.) that proceedings under the second and third inquiries must also be stayed, for that, apart from cases of breach of contract, a remedy for a wrongful act done by a deceased person cannot be pursued against his estate, unless property, or the proceeds or value of property, belonging to another person have been appropriated by the deceased person and added to his estate. Phillips v. Homfray, or Fothergill v. Phillips, 52 L. J., Ch. 833; 24 Ch. D. 439; 49 L. T. 5; 32 W. R. 6—C. A.

—— Extraordinary Traffic — Recovery of Expenses — Summary Procedure.]—The summary procedure provided by s. 23 of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, for recovery of expenses incurred in repairing damage to roads caused by extraordinary traffic from the person by whose order it has been conducted is founded on tort. Proceedings under the section cease on the death of the person in whose lifetime and by whose order the damage was caused. Story v. Sheard, 61 L. J., M. C. 178; [1892] 2 Q. B. 515; 67 L. T. 423; 41 W. R. 31; 56 J. P. 760.

—— Arbitration purporting to bind Representatives.]—When an action of tort dying with the person is referred to arbitration by an order made by consent, and with a stipulation that the award shall bind the representatives in case of the death of either party, and the plaintiff dies before the award, the action abates and the plaintiff's executors cannot be substituted. Bowker v. Evans, 54 L. J., Q. B. 421; 15 Q. B. D. 565; 53 L. T. 801; 33 W. R. 695—C. A.

Distress.]—A. had his goods distrained on for rent (no rent being due), and was obliged to pay 9*l.* 13*s.* to procure the distress to be withdrawn. A. died, and his executrix brought an action for the taking the goods; and the declaration stated that the goods were detained till A. paid 9*l.* 13*s.*, whereby his personal estate was diminished:—Held, that, on this declaration, the executrix could only recover damages to the amount of 9*l.* 13*s.* Lockier v. Paterson, 1 Car. & K. 271.

Personal Injuries.]—A plaintiff in an action for a personal injury died before verdict:—Held, that his legal representatives could not enter a suggestion of the death under s. 137 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, and proceed with the action. Flinn v. Perkins, 32 L. J., Q. B. 10; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 1177; 7 L. T. 364; 11 W. R. 95.

An action for personal injuries is within the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 139. Therefore, where a plaintiff in such an action died between verdict and judgment:—Held, that judgment signed within the time prescribed by that section was regular. Kramer v. Waymark, 4 H. & C. 427; 35 L. J., Ex. 148; L. R. 1 Ex. 241; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 395; 14 L. T. 368; 14 W. R. 659.

Of Member of Corporation.]—A suit by a corporation does not become defective on the death of some of the members; otherwise, of a suit by the members in their individual characters. Blackburn v. Jepson, 3 Swanst. 138.

In suit by dean and chapter upon abatement by death of dean, the suit may be revived by his successor by mere bill of revivor. Pakenham v. Casey, 8 Ir. Eq. R. 524.

Of Husband or Wife.]—If the bill be brought by husband and wife for a demand in her right, and the husband dies, it is in nature of a chose in action and survives, and the cause does not abate. Pary v. Juxon, 3 Ch. Rep. 40.

Where husband and wife commenced an action for money lent by the wife before marriage, and she died pending the action:—Held, that it thereby abated. Checchi v. Powell, 6 B. & C. 253; 9 D. & R. 243; 5 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 122.

Where a sole plaintiff (a married woman) in a suit for a partition and for the apportionment of mortgage debts, died, leaving two co-heiresses, and her husband tenant by the curtesy who then became bankrupt, the common order for revivor was made. Gibbons v. Eydon, 18 L. T. 899.

Of Partners.]—Semble, that where one of several partners, plaintiffs, dies, the suit survives to the others. Anderson v. Wallis, 4 Y. & Coll. 336. Affirmed, 1 Ph. 202.

Of Co-plaintiff—Joint Tenant.]—Where joint tenants file a bill, and one dies, his interest survives the other, and therefore there is no abatement. Wright v. Dorset, 3 Ch. Rep. 66. Sed quære as to tenants in common. S. C., 1 Eq. Abr. 1.

—— Next of Kin.]—Suit ordered to be revived on the application of two surviving plaintiffs against the same defendants, one of the co-plaintiffs, who claimed as next of kin, having died, after application, without legal representation. Ure v. Lord, 2 Dr. & Sm. 263; 34 L. J., Ch. 225; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 1042; 11 L. T. 263; 13 W. R. 41.

—— Tenant for Life and in Fee.]—Bill by two persons, claiming, one to be tenant for life of an estate, the other to be tenant in fee (subject to the first plaintiff's life estate) of one-third of the entirety, against a defendant, W., who claimed the entirety by an adverse title, and other defendants who claimed the remaining two-thirds under the same title as the second plaintiff, alleging that W. had begun to cut timber on the estate, and threatened to cut the whole, and praying that he might be restrained. The first plaintiff died:—Held, that revivor was not necessary; and that the surviving plaintiff had a sufficient interest in the subject matter to continue the suit. Wilson v. Wilson, L. R. 9 Eq. 452; 18 W. R. 801.

In a suit for specific performance of a contract for sale to a railway company by a tenant for life of one-third and owner in fee of other two-thirds of real estate, after the cause was set down for hearing on notice of motion for decree the first plaintiff died. An order was made to enable the surviving plaintiffs to prosecute the decree as if the tenant in tail, who had succeeded the deceased plaintiff, had been originally a defendant. Williams v. Llanelly Railway and Dock Co., 39 L. J., Ch. 820; L. R. 10 Eq. 401.

Devisee.]—Devisee of a deceased plaintiff may obtain an order to revive under the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 52. Gilbert v. Tomlinson, 6 Jur. (N.S.) 532; 8 W. R. 467.

A sole plaintiff died, having devised the estate which was the subject of the suit:—Held, that the devisee was not entitled to an order to revive under the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 52. Laurie v. Crush, 32 Beav. 117; 1 N. R. 225; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 453; 7 L. T. 662; 11 W. R. 275. S. P., Dendy v. Dendy, 5 W. R. 221.

An administration suit was instituted by a trustee of a will against the residuary devisees and legatees, one of whom was a co-trustee with the plaintiff. The plaintiff died after decree, and the suit was revived by an original bill against the same parties by a trustee appointed in the place of the original plaintiff. The new plaintiff having died:—Held, that the suit might be revived by the common order at the instance of one of the defendants, who was a residuary devisee and legatee, but was not and did not intend to become a trustee. Edmonson v. Sharp, L. R. 12 Eq. 198; 19 W. R. 709.

The heir-at-law being made a defendant to a claim filed by a simple contract creditor of a testator, died, having by his will devised the estate sought to be made assets to his son upon trust for sale, and upon further trust out of the proceeds thereof to pay a legacy to his executors :—Held, on a motion to revive the suit against the devisee and executor of the heir-at-law, that this was a transmission of interest within s. 52 of the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, but that the order, being ex parte, is liable to be discharged. Lowe v. Watson, 1 Sm. & G. 123.

An order to revive, under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 52, made, in order to bring before the court the devisee of a defendant who had died before decree. Durham (Earl) v. Legard, 34 Beav. 442.

In a suit relating to real estate, the sole plaintiff, dying before decree, having devised the estate, the devisee may be brought before the court by the common order, under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 52, and a supplemental bill is unnecessary. Eyre v. Brett, 34 Beav. 441 ; 6 N. R. 181 ; 34 L. J., Ch. 400 ; 13 W. R. 732, 763.

A sole plaintiff having died after decree, an order to revive against his devisee was made. Ledford v. Bedford, 35 Beav. 342.

Death of both Parties—Ex parte Application.]—Where plaintiff and defendant die, pending an action which survives as between the respective personal representatives, the court will, upon ex parte application, order the action to be continued in the names of their respective personal representatives. Sellors v. Goode, 30 L. R., Ir. 298.

One Party becoming Representative of Other.]—When a sole plaintiff dies before decree, and a defendant becomes his legal personal representative, the common order to revive cannot be made. Bates v. Bates, 41 L. J., Ch. 280 ; L. R. 13 Eq. 138.

Where there is a sole plaintiff in a suit and a sole defendant, and the defendant dies, having appointed the plaintiff his sole executor, an order to revive may be obtained by the plaintiff, as executor, against the persons beneficially interested, who have been summoned to attend the proceedings in chambers. Pedder v. Pedder, 29 L. J., Ch. 64 ; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 1145 ; 1 L. T. 19 ; 8 W. R. 15.

A sole plaintiff died after decree, leaving a co-defendant his executor, who proved the will and obtained an order to revive, thus becoming plaintiff and co-defendant ; his name was struck out as co-defendant. Greene v. Greene, Ir. R. 5 Eq. 224.

Sole Petitioner.]—When a sole petitioner dies after an order made on the petition directing inquiries, and whilst those inquiries are pending, the court will order the petition to be continued and carried on by the representatives of the petitioner. Atkins's Estate, In re, 45 L. J., Ch. 117 ; 1 Ch. D. 82 ; 24 W. R. 39.

Infant's next Friend.]—When the next friend of an infant plaintiff dies pending the action, a new next friend may be appointed on an ex parte motion in court. Daly v. Daly, 9 L. R., Ir. 383.

Executor—Libel.]—An executor may, under 17 Car. 2, c. 8, s. 1, enter up judgment on a verdict obtained by his testator in an action for libel. Palmer v. Cohen, 2 B. & Ad. 966.

—— Arbitration purporting to bind Representatives.]—Where an action of tort dying with the person is referred to arbitration by an order made by consent, and with a stipulation that the award shall bind the representatives in the case of the death of either party, and the plaintiff dies before the award, the action abates, and the plaintiff's executors cannot be substituted. Bowker v. Evans, 54 L. J., Q. B. 421 ; 15 Q. B. D. 565 ; 53 L. T. 801 ; 33 W. R. 695—C. A.

Order to continue Proceedings before Probate.]—Where, after an order directing the trial of issue of fact before a jury, one of the plaintiffs died within fourteen days of the date fixed for the trial, the court, on the application of his executors, made an order continuing the proceedings, the executors undertaking to apply forthwith for probate, and to produce the same at the trial of the action if obtained. Hughes v. West, 13 L. R., Ir. 224.

One Co-Plaintiff dying before Judgment—Application after Judgment.]—An action for damages was brought by several plaintiffs having separate causes of action. Two of the plaintiffs died before the trial, but no application was made to put off the trial, and judgment was given for the defendants and the action dismissed. The executors of the deceased plaintiffs applied under Ord. XVII. r. 4, for an order to carry on the action against the defendants :—Held, that the order ought not to be made : Cotton, L.J., holding that the court had no jurisdiction to make such an order after final judgment : and Lindley and Lopes, L.JJ., holding that, whether the court had jurisdiction or not, it was not necessary or desirable to make such an order in the present case. Arnison v. Smith, 58 L. J., Ch. 335 ; 40 Ch. D. 567 ; 60 L. T. 206 ; 37 W. R. 405—C. A.

Order by whom Obtained.]—Order made on the application of the sole defendant appointing a person to represent the estate of the plaintiff, who had died insolvent and apparently intestate, in order that the defendant might have an opportunity to move for dismissal of the action for want of prosecution. Wingrove v. Thompson, 11 Ch. D. 419 ; 27 W. R. 910.

A person served with notice of an administration judgment, and having obtained liberty to attend the proceedings under it, is in the same position as a party to the action, and is entitled to obtain an order of course to revive the action on the death of the sole plaintiff. Burstall v. Fearon, 53 L. J., Ch. 144 ; 24 Ch. D. 126 ; 31 W. R. 581.

Claim ordered to stand over for the plaintiff to obtain administration to or bring the representative of A. B. before the court. No steps having been taken, ordered that plaintiff bring a proper representative before the court, and within fourteen days set down the claim for hearing, or in default that stand dismissed with costs. Pearce v. Wrigton, 24 Beav. 253.

Application where and to Whom made.]—Semble, that applications for an order to carry on proceedings under the Judicature Act, 1875, Ord. L. r. 4, may be made to a judge at chambers. Crane v. Loftus, 24 W. R. 93.

An order to revive under Judicature Act, Ord. L. r. 4, is an order of course. Roffey v. Miller, 24 W. R. 109.

A sole petitioner having died, an order was made ex parte for her representatives to carry on the petition. Atkins's Estate, In re, 45 L. J., Ch. 117 ; 1 Ch. D. 82 ; 24 W. R. 39.

Sole Defendant in Administration Action.]—In a creditor's action for administration against an executrix, a decree had been made and a summons taken out for a receiver ; but pending the summons the sole defendant died. The court, on the application of the plaintiff, appointed an interim receiver whose powers were to extend for ten days after the appointment of an administrator de bonis non, the plaintiff undertaking to use all possible speed in obtaining the appointment of such administrator and to accept short notice of motion to discharge the receiver. Parker, In re, Cash v. Parker, 48 L. J., Ch. 691 ; 12 Ch. D. 293 ; 40 L. T. 878.

Of Defendant—Adding Party.]—An action was brought against three defendants claiming damages in respect of their alleged conspiracy and false representations. Before the action could come on for trial one of the defendants died. Administration was taken out to his estate. The plaintiff did not apply for an order of course to continue the proceedings against the administrator, but he obtained in chambers an order giving him leave to amend the writ and statement of claim by adding the administrator as a defendant, and by making allegations that the estate of the intestate had been benefited by reason of the matters complained of in the action. The administrator was served with notice of the summons on which this order was made, but did not appear on the hearing, and the order was drawn up on the production of an affidavit of service of the summons on him. The order as drawn up was dated as of a day prior to the date of the filing of the affidavit. The writ and statement of claim, having been amended in pursuance of the order, were served on the administrator. He then entered a conditional appearance and moved to discharge the order for irregularity :—Held, that the order had been regularly made under Ord. XXVII. r. 1, and Ord. XVI. r. 13, but that the administrator ought not to have been served with the summons ; that the order must be amended by striking out the affidavit of service, and must bear date the day on which the affidavit was filed. Ashley v. Taylor, 48 L. J., Ch. 406 ; 10 Ch. D. 768 ; 39 L. T. 573 ; 27 W. R. 228.

—— Application by Successors to compel Plaintiff to proceed.]—Where an action has abated as against a defendant before judgment, and the plaintiff has refused or neglected to make his successors in interest parties to the action, the old practice still prevails, and the proper course is for the defendant's successors to apply for an order against the plaintiff that he obtain an order to prosecute the proceedings against them within a limited time, or that, in default, the action may stand dismissed as against them without costs. Motion v. King, 29 W. R. 73.

—— Revivor—Counterclaim.]—On the death of a defendant who has delivered a counterclaim, it is necessary that his representatives, if they wish to prosecute the counterclaim against the plaintiff in the original action, should obtain an order of revivor against him. An order of revivor of the original action obtained by the plaintiff against them does not authorise them to prosecute the counterclaim against him. Andrew v. Aitken, 51 L. J., Ch. 784 ; 21 Ch. D. 175 ; 46 L. T. 689 ; 30 W. R. 701.

One of Several Defendants in Same Interest—Absence of Personal Representative.]—Pending an action to make several defendants liable for a breach of trust, H. S., one of the defendants, died before decree, having made his will, appointing executors, who had not proved the will. It appearing that the liability of the surviving defendants was the same as that of H. S., the court made an order that the suit should proceed in the absence of a personal representative of H. S. Hibernian Joint Stock Co. v. Fottrell, 13 L. R., Ir. 335.

Appointment of Representative.]—Bill and interrogatories served on E., who took no notice of them. Bill consequently ordered to be taken pro confesso against him. Judgment drawn up accordingly. Upon attempting to serve E. with judgment, it was found that he was dead at date of the decree, leaving no legal representative. Ordered, that upon filing an affidavit verifying the circumstances under which the application was made E.'s widow be served with notice that within six weeks from the date of such service the court would appoint a representative, and direct payment, unless in the meantime the widow appeared to contest. Alford v. Espinach, 36 L. T. 367.

The defendant to a foreclosure action died insolvent before foreclosure absolute ; there was no legal representative of his estate ; an order was made in chambers appointing one of his next of kin to represent his estate for the purposes of the action. The court refused to make the foreclosure absolute in the absence of a properly constituted representative of the mortgagor. Aylward v. Lewis, [1891] 2 Ch. 81 ; 64 L. T. 250 ; 39 W. R. 552.

No Legal Personal Representative—Proceeding in Absence.]—On the true construction of Ord. XVI. r. 46, it is necessary, in order to bind the estate of a deceased person who has no legal personal representative, that the order of the court should state that the judge has proceeded in the absence of any person representing or entitled to represent the estate of the deceased person, or has appointed some person to represent such estate. Richerson, In re, Scales v. Hayoe, 62 L. J., Ch. 708 ; [1893] 3 Ch. 146 ; 3 R. 643 ; 69 L. T. 590 ; 41 W. R. 583.

Proposed New Party resident outside Jurisdiction—Ex parte Application.]—Upon the death of an accounting party in an action, the court may, upon an ex parte application under Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. L. r. 4, make an order that the action be continued between the continuing parties and the executor of the will of the deceased party, notwithstanding that such executor is resident in and has proved the will in Ireland. For the purposes of making such an order, the court will require an affidavit shewing the circumstances under which the order is applied for. Jameson v. Marshall, 46 L. T. 480. But see Morrice v. Smart, 73 L. T. Jour. 398, Oct. 14, 1882.

Death of Sole Defendant after Notice of Trial—Trustee in Bankruptcy—Proceedings to bind Official Receiver.]—The sole defendant to an action who was a trustee in bankruptcy died after the action was set down for trial. The plaintiff amended the writ and statement of claim by making the defendant's executors and the official receiver in bankruptcy parties. All the new defendants appeared, and the executors put in a defence; the official receiver took no steps beyond appearance. The plaintiff then gave the official receiver and the executors notice that the action had been restored to the paper for trial, but did not give fresh notice of trial nor serve the official receiver with notice of motion for judgment. At the hearing the executors appeared, but the official receiver did not:—Held, on the merits, that the plaintiff was entitled to the relief sought, but the official receiver having been made a party, a motion for judgment against him must be made upon notice served upon him in the usual way. Johnston v. English, 55 L. J., Ch. 910; 55 L. T. 55; 35 W. R. 29.

Representative — Amending Pleading.]—An heir-at-law will not be allowed to take the answer of his ancestor off the file on the ground that it contains admissions made in ignorance of facts since discovered, and to file a supplemental answer in place of it. Towne v. Horne, 2 Jur. 936.

Enforcement of Order.]—An order for payment of a sum of money by one defendant to another was enforced pending an abatement to the suit by the death of the plaintiff. Jones v. Williams, C. P. Coop. 488.

Amending Order—Death of Sole Trustee Intestate.]—Upon the death of a sole surviving trustee intestate, the court made an order for the appointment of new trustees, and ordered certain lands forming part of the estate to vest in the new trustees "for the estate therein now vested in the heir-at-law of the deceased trustee." After the order had been passed and entered administration was taken out to the estate of the deceased trustee. Upon motion that the order of the court might be altered by substituting the legal personal representative for the heir-at-law of the intestate trustee in accordance with s. 30 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, the court made a new order, that, notwithstanding the previous order, the land should vest in the new trustees "for all the estate therein now vested in the legal personal representative" of the deceased trustee. Pilling's Trusts, In re, 26 Ch. D. 432; 32 W. R. 853.

Service of Order.]—A defendant, after appearing to a bill, died. The residence of his personal representative could not be discovered. Substituted service of an order to revive the suit allowed to be made on the solicitor who had originally appeared for the deceased and on the proctors who had solicited probate. Kent v. Metropolitan Ry., 16 L. T. 171.

Of Appellant after Appeal set down—Order of Revivor.]—A defendant, P., gave notice of appeal from a judgment, and set it down. After this he died, and his executrix obtained an order of course at the Rolls that the appeal might be carried on and prosecuted by her in like manner as it might have been carried on and prosecuted by P. if he had not died:—Held, that the order was sufficient, and that the executrix was entitled to proceed with the appeal. Ranson v. Patton, 17 Ch. D. 767; 44 L. T. 688—C. A.

Execution on Judgment.]—When a change had taken place by death in the parties entitled to execution on a judgment, the executors of the party who obtained the judgment obtained leave to issue execution on an ex parte application. Mercer v. Lawrence, 26 W. R. 506.

Where judgment is obtained by several executors, and one of them dies after the entering of judgment, the survivors may issue execution in the name of all the plaintiffs, and it is unnecessary to have any order for leave to do so. Baird v. Thompson, 14 L. R., Ir. 497.

The executors of a deceased plaintiff whose judgment remains unsatisfied cannot (where no order has been made for the proceedings to be continued in their names) apply under Ord. XLII. rr. 8 and 23, for a receiver of a sum due to the defendant under a will, and for an injunction to restrain him from dealing therewith. Norburn v. Norburn, 63 L. J., Q. B. 341; [1894] 1 Q. B. 448; 10 R. 10; 70 L. T. 411; 42 W. R. 127.

After the death of a judgment debtor the court has no jurisdiction, on the ex parte application of the judgment creditor, to make an order appointing a receiver of the interest of the deceased judgment debtor in real estate, for the purpose of satisfying the judgment debt, when the person on whom the real estate has devolved is not a party to the proceedings. Shephard, In re, Atkins v. Shephard, 59 L. J., Ch. 83; 43 Ch. D. 131; 62 L. T. 337; 38 W. R. 133—C. A.

An execution on a fi. fa. sued out on the same day as but after the defendant died is irregular. Chick v. Smith, 8 D. P. C. 337; 4 Jur. 86.

—— Sequestration.]—A trustee having failed to comply with an order directing him to pay money into court, a writ of sequestration was issued against his estate and effects, and subsequently the sequestrators were authorised to sell certain chattels in their possession belonging to the trustee. Before any sale was effected the trustee died, and a creditor's action was brought, in which the usual judgment was made, and a receiver appointed. The trustee's estate was insolvent, and the receiver and the administrator of the deceased trustee commenced an action against the sequestrators to restrain them from selling the chattels and moved for an injunction:—Held, on the authority of Hyde v. Greenhill (1 Dick. 106), that sequestration to compel the performance of a duty is not determined by the death of the person against whose estate and effects sequestration has been issued; and proceedings may therefore be continued against his legal personal representative. Pratt v. Inman, 59 L. J., Ch. 274; 43 Ch. D. 175; 61 L. T. 760; 38 W. R. 200.

Duty of Plaintiff's Solicitor.] — Plaintiff's solicitor should certify abatement to the registrar in order to prevent the suit coming into the paper. In cases of default, the defendants are entitled to the costs of the day. Saner v. Dearin, 14 Beav. 651.

Effect of Order—Liability for Costs.] — A defendant having died after issue joined and notice of trial given, a suggestion of his death was made, and his administratrix appeared and pleaded to the suggestion. The plaintiff afterwards applied at chambers for leave to discontinue on payment of the costs of the pleas to the suggestion, but the judge made the usual order on payment of costs:—Held, that the order was right, for that 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 138, put the administratrix in the same position as if she had been the original defendant in the action. Benge v. Swaine, 15 C. B. 784; 2 C. L. R. 1382; 23 L. J., C. P. 182.

When a legal personal representative of a party to a suit, either during the original proceedings before the court of first instance, or after decree for the purposes of appeal, has elected, and obtained an order, to continue the suit, he is personally liable for the costs, without prejudice to any right he may have to recover them from the estate which he represents. Boynton v. Boynton, 27 W. R. 141—C. A. Affirmed, 4 App. Cas. 733; 41 L. T. 450; 27 W. R. 825—H. L. (E.)

Costs.]—When a party claims his costs out of a fund paid into court in an old suit, and a second suit is instituted with respect to the fund, which latter suit afterwards abates, the proper course for the claimant to adopt is to present a petition, entitled in both suits, stating the special facts of the case, and praying relief accordingly. Harris v. Rich, 43 L. J., Ch. 440.

—— Reviving Order for Payment of.]—The provision abolishing the rule that there shall be no revivor for costs, contained in 33 & 34 Vict. c. 28, s. 19, does not apply where the abatement took place before the passing of the act. Doggett v. Eastern Counties Ry., 40 L. J., Ch. 292; L. R. 6 Ch. 474; 24 L. T. 309; 19 W. R. 497.

Upon application made by the representative of a plaintiff, who predeceased his co-plaintiff:—Held, that he was not the proper person to make the application. Ib.

A decree for the delivery of the possession of lands and title-deeds and payment of money was made, with costs to be paid by the defendants. One of them having performed all that he was directed by the decree to do, except paying the costs, died before the costs were taxed:—Held, that there could be no revivor for the costs. The general rule is, that there can be no revivor for untaxed costs; and whether the abatement is caused by the death of the party to pay, or the party to receive the costs, is immaterial. Bowyer v. Beamish, 2 Jo. & Lat. 228; 8 Ir. Eq. R. 63. Morgan v. Scudamore (2 Ves. J. 313; 3 Ves. 195). Barry v. Stawell (Fl. & K. 1; 3 Ir. Eq. R. 18, 146) observed upon.

The general rule being, that there shall be no revivor for costs alone, yet where the costs have been taxed previous to the abatement, it seems there is a right to revive merely for the purpose of having them paid; and where the abatement has happened by the death of the party in whose favour the costs were awarded, it is the settled practice of the court that his representative may revive for such purpose. Lowten v. Colchester Corporation, 2 Mer. 113; 16 R. R. 187.

Entering Judgment nunc pro tunc.]—The proviso, "that it shall be competent for the court, or a judge, to order a judgment to be entered nunc pro tunc," applies only, as formerly, to cases where it is delayed by the act of the court. Lanman v. Audley, 2 M. & W. 535; 5 D. P. C. 596; 6 L. J., Ex. 136. S. P., Fishmongers' Co. v. Robertson, 3 C. B. 970; 4 D. & L. 656; 16 L. J., C. P. 118.

The power of the court to enter up judgment nunc pro tunc does not depend in any way upon 17 Car. 2, c. 8, s. 1, but exists at common law, and may be exercised although the death of a party takes place before the term ensuing the verdict, and although also more than two terms intervene between verdict and judgment, if the delay is not of the party seeking to enter up judgment. Evans v. Rees, 4 P. & D. 36; 12 A. & E. 167; 9 L. J., Q. B. 317.

Or if it appears that the delay was occasioned by the taxation of costs, and no fault is specifically imputed to the plaintiff. Blewitt v. Tregonning, 4 A. & E. 1002.

After verdict for a plaintiff, with leave reserved to move for a nonsuit, or verdict for the defendant, the defendant died before a motion could be made. The rule nisi was afterwards obtained in his name:—Held, that the rule might still be made absolute to enter the verdict for the defendant; it appeared that the executors authorised the motion, and that the judgment might be given on such verdict under 17 Car. 2, c. 8, s. 1. Freeman v. Rosher, 13 Q. B. 780; 18 L. J., Q. B. 340. S. P., O'Neill v. Bergin, Ir. R. 10 C. L. 452.

It is only where delay in signing judgment has arisen from the act of the court that judgment can be entered nunc pro tunc, two terms having elapsed since the verdict. Freeman v. Tranah or Tranch, 12 C. B. 406; 21 L. J., C. P. 214; 16 Jur. 1141.

An action for negligence was tried in the sittings out of term. The judge directed a nonsuit upon the ground that there was no evidence of negligence, but stayed execution until the fifth day of the following term, that the plaintiff might move to set aside the nonsuit. The plaintiff died before the next term. In that term a rule was obtained by the defendant to enter judgment of nonsuit nunc pro tunc, so that he might tax costs thereon; but the court, taking into consideration the fact that the nonsuit was only provisional and subject to its approval, and that the action abated before any final judgment could be pronounced, discharged the rule. Hemming v. Batchelor, 44 L. J., Ex. 54; L. R. 10 Ex. 54; 33 L. T. 16; 23 W. R. 398.

Revivor for Purposes of Appeal.]—By a marriage settlement the property of the wife was vested in trustees upon trust for the wife, for her separate use, and in case there should be no issue (which event happened) for the wife, her executors, administrators, and assigns, if she survived her husband, but if she died in his lifetime then for the husband for his life, and subject thereto for such persons as should be of the wife's own kindred as she should by will appoint, and in default of appointment, for such persons as would be entitled under the Statutes of Distribution in case she had died intestate and unmarried. The marriage was dissolved in 1871, and in 1872 the wife in a suit instituted by her against her late husband and the trustees of the settlement obtained a decree that she was absolutely entitled to the property comprised in the settlement. By her will, dated in 1877, the wife disposed of the property as if it were her own absolutely, and died in 1881, in the lifetime of her late husband:—Held, in the absence of special circumstances, that the next of kin of the wife were not now entitled to an order to revive the suit or to carry on proceedings therein for the mere purpose of appealing against the decree of 1872. Fussell v. Dowding, 53 L. J., Ch. 924; 27 Ch. D. 237; 51 L. T. 332; 32 W. R. 790.

Where, after his action had been dismissed, the plaintiff died, the court in which the suit had been pending, notwithstanding that the time for appealing had then expired, made an order giving liberty to the plaintiff's personal representative to carry on proceedings, in order that he might be in a position to apply to the court of appeal to entertain an appeal. Leahy v. Tobin, 19 L. R., Ir. 433.

—— Discretion of Court—Length of Time.]—It is in the discretion of the court whether it will allow an action which has become defective by the death of a party or otherwise to be revived. An administration suit in which a decree was made by the court of chancery in the year 1833 having become defective by the deaths of some parties and the bankruptcy of another, and no step having been taken in it for thirty-nine years, an order of revivor was allowed for the purpose of enabling a party to appeal from an order made in the year 1836 (in case the court of appeal should give leave to appeal), the court being of opinion that no person had altered his position, or incurred any liability, or suffered any loss on the faith of the order from which it was desired to appeal. Curtis v. Sheffield, 51 L. J., Ch. 535; 20 Ch. D. 398; 46 L. T. 80.

Where bill to revive suit for forty years back not allowed. Price v. Morgan, 2 Ch. Ca. 215.

Suit abated in 1829; bill of revivor filed in 1836; order to revive in 1841:—Held, cause effectually continued. Foster v. M'Mahon, 11 Ir. Eq. R. 287.

Semble, there is no rule requiring a bill of revivor, for any purpose, to be filed within six years of the abatement. Ib.

After a decree, the bar to the right of reviving the suit, which arises from delay in the proceedings, depends altogether on the discretion of the court. Higgins v. Shaw, 2 Dr. & War. 356; 1 Con. & L. 400.

If a bill of revivor is filed at any time within twenty years, after a decree for an account, the court will not refuse relief, unless there has been such a variation of the rights of parties as to occasion danger of working positive injury and injustice to other persons. Ib.

A suit which has been abated for more than twenty years cannot be revived. Bland v. Davison, 21 Beav. 312.

A suit having become abated by death of a plaintiff upwards of thirty years ago, and other events having subsequently occurred which would have caused abatements, the court, at the instance of a party desiring to wind up the suit and get the fund out of court, made a supplemental order of revivor nunc pro tunc. Mackenzie v. Gear, 36 L. J., Ch. 507; 15 W. R. 529.

A bill was dismissed on appeal in December, 1867. No steps were taken until November, 1872, when an order nisi for inrolment was granted, notwithstanding the time for inrolment had expired. One of the defendants died in December, 1872. On the 16th January, 1873, the court ordered an inrolment subject to the plaintiff presenting his petition to the House of Lords within a given time. It was then ascertained that by the death of another defendant in 1870 the suit had become abated, and the registrar refused to draw up the order. The common order to revive having been refused, the plaintiff filed a bill of revivor, to which the executors of one of the deceased defendants demurred:—Held, that the court had a discretion to grant a decree for revivor after the time for inrolment had expired, and would exercise it, except under special and extraordinary circumstances of neglect or delay. Patch v. Holland, 29 L. T. 419.

2. On Bankruptcy.

Sole Plaintiff — Continuance of Action by Trustee.]—Although now an action is not abated by the bankruptcy of a sole plaintiff, he can himself take no further steps in it, but the trustee may obtain an order of course to continue it. Jackson v. N. E. Ry., 46 L. J., Ch. 723; 5 Ch. D. 844; 36 L. T. 779; 25 W. R. 518—C. A.

—— Earnings of Personal Labour by Undischarged Bankrupt.]—The plaintiff, who was an architect, sued for remuneration in respect of employment under a contract made in 1877, and for damages for an alleged wrongful dismissal from such employment in 1880. The plaintiff was adjudicated bankrupt in 1878, and had never obtained his discharge:—Held, that the cause of action for remuneration and damages passed to the trustee, and that the proper course was to add him as co-plaintiff in the action, and give him the conduct of the action. Emden v. Carte, 51 L. J., Ch. 41; 17 Ch. D. 768; 44 L. T. 636—C. A. Affirming 29 W. R. 600.

—— After Notice of Trial.]—After issue had been joined and notice of trial given by a sole plaintiff in an action, he filed a liquidation petition, under which a trustee of his property was appointed. When the action came on for trial no one appeared for the plaintiff or for the trustee, and there was no evidence that any notice of the action had been served on the trustee:—Held, that Ord. L. r. 1, applies only when the cause of action survives or continues in some person who is before the court; that the action had abated, and that the only order which could be made was to strike the action out of the list. Eldridge v. Burgess, 47 L. J., Ch. 342; 7 Ch. D. 411; 38 L. T. 232; 26 W. R. 435.

—— Effect of Election by Trustee not to continue Action.]—Where the trustee of a liquidating debtor elects under the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, s. 142, not to continue a pending action commenced by the debtor, such election is not a bar to a subsequent action by the trustee in his representative capacity founded on the same cause of action. Bennet v. Gamgee, 46 L. J., Ex. 33; 2 Ex. D. 11; 35 L. T. 764; 25 W. R. 81. Affirmed, 46 L. J., Ex. 204; 36 L. T. 48; 25 W. R. 293—C. A.

—— Refusal of Trustee to proceed—Stay of Proceedings.]—Where the plaintiff is adjudicated bankrupt after action brought, and his trustee declines to proceed with the action, it may be stayed by an order in chambers, and the defendant need not plead the bankruptcy in bar. Warder v. Saunders, 10 Q. B. D. 114; 47 L. T. 475.

—— Refusal of Trustee to proceed—Stay of Proceedings — Assignment of Assets.] — The plaintiff in an action, after notice of trial given, was adjudicated a bankrupt. The trustee in bankruptcy refused to continue the action, and submitted to an order staying the proceedings. Subsequently the plaintiff having obtained his discharge, took an assignment of the chose in action from the trustee, and thereupon applied in chambers for an order removing the stay, which was refused. Upon appeal:—Held, that the plaintiff could not, as assignee of the cause of action, be in any better position than the trustee, and that, therefore, in the absence of special circumstances which would have enabled the trustee to have the stay removed, the plaintiff was not entitled to the order. Selig v. Lyon or Lion, 60 L. J., Q. B. 403; [1891] 1 Q. B. 513; 64 L. T. 796; 39 W. R. 254.

The plaintiff in an action having become bankrupt, his trustee in bankruptcy elected not to continue the action, and thereupon an unconditional order was obtained by the defendants staying further proceedings. B. having purchased the trustee's interest, commenced a second action for the same relief as that asked by the former action. Upon motion to dismiss the second action, as an abuse of the process of the court, and as frivolous and vexatious:—Held, that the action ought not to be dismissed in a summary way as frivolous and vexatious, as the motion gave rise to a question that required consideration, namely, whether the order staying the proceedings in the former action was equivalent to a judgment for the defendants. Bean v. Flower, 73 L. T. 371—C. A.

—— Abatement—Reassignment by Trustee.]—After the defence in an action had been delivered the plaintiff was adjudicated bankrupt, and the right of action passed to the official assignee. The bankrupt obtained his discharge, and the official assignee reassigned to the bankrupt the right of action:—Held, that the cause of action continued, and that the action did not become abated by reason of the bankruptcy. Barker v. Johnson, 60 L. T. 64.

—— Adoption of Proceedings.]—The assignee of a bankrupt need not adopt the suit in the form in which it has been instituted by the bankrupt, although he elects to prosecute the demand; he may file a new original bill. Poole v. Franks, 1 Moll. 78.

—— Executor and Residuary Legatee.]—In an administration suit, where the plaintiff, who was an executor and a residuary legatee, had become a bankrupt, the court, at the application of the plaintiff as executor, ordered the suit to be revived against his trustee in bankruptcy, as representing his beneficial interest. Laidler v. Laidler, 21 W. R. 822.

—— No Notice of Bankruptcy given.]—When a plaintiff becomes bankrupt or insolvent, if the assignee does not proceed with the suit, the bill will be dismissed without costs, and the common form of order will not be departed from, though the plaintiff has taken steps in the suit without giving notice of the bankruptcy or insolvency, and so led the defendant to incur costs subsequently to and without notice of it. Meiklam v. Elmore, 4 De G. & J. 208; 28 L. J., Ch. 515; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 904; 7 W. R. 645.

—— Deed of Assignment—Pending Suit.]—A registered deed of assignment in trust for creditors executed by the plaintiff pending the suit does not cause an abatement as upon bankruptcy, so as to deprive the defendant of his right to move to dismiss for want of prosecution. Pickering v. Cape Town Ry., L. R. 7 Eq. 224.

Liability for Costs.] — Assignees who are brought before court by supplemental bill may be liable to costs of whole suit. Whitcomb v. Minchin, 5 Madd. 91.

When a plaintiff becomes bankrupt or dies, and his assignees or representatives carry on the suit, they can only do so upon payment of all costs which he had been ordered and was liable to pay. Cook v. Hathway, 21 L. T. 484.

A plaintiff, after the hearing of a cause, but before judgment was given, became bankrupt, and obtained his order of discharge; and in the same interval a motion by the defendant for the revivor of the suit by the assignees of the plaintiff was refused. The bill having been dismissed, with costs, with liberty to the defendant to apply in respect of them, a motion by him, that the plaintiff might personally pay the costs, was refused. Boucicault v. Delafield, 10 Jur. (N.S.) 1063; 13 W. R. 65—L.JJ. Affirming 10 L. T. 902.

One of Several Defendants jointly and severally liable.]—When two of five defendants, jointly and severally liable to the plaintiff, had become bankrupt:—Held, that the action might proceed against the other three defendants without bringing the trustees in bankruptcy of the two bankrupt defendants before the court, or giving them notice of the proceedings. Lloyd v. Dimmack, 47 L. J., Ch. 398; 7 Ch. D. 398; 38 L. T. 173; 26 W. R. 458.

Receiving Order—Pending Action—Adding Official Receiver.]—The making of a receiving order against a party to an action does not cause a "change or transmission of interest or liability" so as to make it necessary or desirable that the official receiver should be added as a party to the action. Proceedings actually pending against the debtor at the date of the receiving order are dealt with by s. 10 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, not by s. 9. Berry, In re, Duffield v. Williams, 65 L. J., Ch. 245; [1896] 1 Ch. 939; 74 L. T. 306; 44 W. R. 346; 3 Manson, 11.

Sole Defendant—After Issue joined.]—After issue joined in an action by the indorsees against the acceptor of a bill of exchange in which the defence was that the plaintiffs took the bill without value, and after notice that the defendant had been defrauded of it, the defendant, who was a sole defendant, filed a petition in liquidation, and a trustee was appointed. The bankruptcy court refused to restrain the action, but restrained the plaintiffs from enforcing any judgment they might obtain in the action either against the property or person of the debtor, and the trustee declined to admit the plaintiff's claim:—Held, that the bankruptcy court was the proper court in which the plaintiffs ought to prove their debt, and that there was no ground for making an order under Ord. L. r. 2, that the trustee be made a party to the action or be served with notice thereof. Barter v. Dubeux, 50 L. J., Q. B. 527; 7 Q. B. D. 413; 44 L. T. 596; 29 W. R. 622—C. A.

—— After Demurrer set down.]—Where a defendant became bankrupt after a cause was set down for argument on demurrer, the court refused to strike it out of the paper at the suggestion of the plaintiff, although the assignees refused to give security for costs. Flight v. Glossop, 4 D. P. C. 135 ; 1 Hodges, 222.

—— After Notice of Trial.]—A defendant became bankrupt after service of notice of trial, and the common order of revivor was then made against his trustee, and served on him. The trustee did not enter an appearance. Notice was served on him that the action was restored to the paper for trial, but he did not appear at the trial :—Held, that it was not necessary for the plaintiff to file the pleadings or a notice of motion for judgment as against the trustee under r. 6 of Ord. XIX. of the Rules of Court, 1875. Chorlton v. Dickie, 49 L. J., Ch. 40 ; 13 Ch. D. 160 ; 41 L. T. 467 ; 28 W. R. 228.

—— Confession of Defence.]—When a defendant is adjudicated bankrupt after action brought upon an act of bankruptcy which occurred before action brought, the plaintiff may confess that the property claimed was in the order and disposition of the defendant at the date of the act of bankruptcy, and sign judgment under Ord. XX. r. 3. for his costs. Champion v. Formby, 47 L. J., Ch. 395 ; 7 Ch. D. 373 ; 26 W. R. 391.

—— Trustee's Liability to Costs.] — The plaintiff brought an action against H. for an injunction to restrain the infringement of a patent. H. put in a defence alleging want of novelty, and denying the infringement, and then filed a petition for liquidation of his affairs by arrangement. The plaintiff obtained an order of course by which the trustees in liquidation were added as defendants to the action, and served it on them. The trustees never moved to discharge the order. At the hearing H. did not appear, but the trustees appeared and cross-examined the plaintiff's witnesses as to infringement ; and Kay, J., found that there had been an infringement, directed an account of the profits, allowed the plaintiff to prove in the liquidation for the amount of the profits made by H., and gave the plaintiff costs as against all the defendants. On appeal (besides the points taken in the court below, that the claim was for unliquidated damages not provable in the liquidation, and that the trustees ought not to be ordered to pay costs) the trustees argued that there was no jurisdiction to make the order adding them as defendants :—Held, that the decision of Kay, J., was right and must be affirmed, and that the trustees, having submitted to the order making them parties and examined witnesses, had rendered themselves liable, at the discretion of the judge, to all the costs of the action. Watson v. Holliday, 52 L. J., Ch. 543 ; 48 L. T. 545 ; 31 W. R. 536—C. A. Affirming 20 Ch. D. 780.

The defendant in an action became bankrupt, but no order was made under Ord. XVII. r. 4, making the trustee a party ; the trustee, however, elected to go on with the action and appeared by counsel at the trial :—Held, that he had made himself a party to the action and was liable to the plaintiffs for costs. London School Board v. Wall, 8 Morrell, 202—C. A.

Where a trustee in bankruptcy had been substituted for the bankrupt as a defendant in an action against the bankrupt, and had asked for a statement of claim :—Held, that by so doing he had adopted the action as it stood, and must personally pay the costs of an appeal from an interlocutory order which had been made against the defendant before his bankruptcy, although he had given notice to the plaintiff that he did not intend to proceed with the appeal. Borneman v. Wilson, 54 L. J., Ch. 631 ; 28 Ch. D. 53 ; 51 L. T. 728 ; 33 W. R. 141—C. A.

Application to strike off Trade-mark — "Action."]—The registered owner of a trade-mark having, since notice of an application to strike the trade-mark off the register, gone into liquidation, leave was given under Ord. L. r. 4, to serve notice of the application on the trustees in liquidation. The term "action" in Ord. L. does not confine the operation of that order to proceedings in actions. Rowe's Trade-mark, In re, 48 L. T. 388.

3. In Case of Infants.

a. On Birth pending Suit.

Before Judgment or Decree.]—Before issue joined, an infant tenant in tail, born pendente lite, may be made a party by amendment. Greer v. Mercer, 3 Ir. Eq. R. 385.

A tenant in tail coming in esse before issue joined, may be made a party by amendment of the bill. Knox v. Knox, 2 Ir. Eq. R. 33.

Where a suit involves a question in which the children of the plaintiff are interested, and a child is born after the bill is filed, the court will, on the objection taken at the hearing, order the cause to stand over, with liberty to amend by bringing the child born since the institution of the suit before the court. Leyland v. Leyland, 6 L. T. 149 ; 10 W. R. 149.

Sect. 52 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, enables the court to make an order to the effect of the usual supplemental decree where the object is to bring before the court the trustees under a settlement of the property of an infant plaintiff made after the institution of the suit. Atkinson v. Parker, 2 De G. M. & G. 221.

Before decree, a supplemental order may be obtained under s. 52 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, against an infant who has been born since the filing of the bill, and is a necessary party to the suit. Pickford v. Brown, 1 Kay & J. 643. S. P., Barrett v. White, 3 W. R. 526.

An infant can be bound by proceedings in a suit taken after his birth by obtaining the usual supplemental order, and then taking out a summons calling upon the infant to shew cause why he should not be bound by the proceedings taken after his birth. Occleston v. Fullalove, 32 L. T. 428.

The provisions of the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 61, extend to a special case. Palmer v. Flower, 41 L. J., Ch. 193 ; L. R. 13 Eq. 250 ; 25 L. T. 816 ; 20 W. R. 174.

When, after an administration suit had been instituted, a child was born who took an interest in the property :—Held, that there was jurisdiction to make an order under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 52, bringing the child before the court and directing that he should be bound by the previous proceedings in the suit. Egremont v. Thompson, L. R. 4 Ch. 448 ; 17 W. R. 900.

When proceedings had been taken in a suit after it had become defective by the birth of children :—Held, that there was no jurisdiction to make a supplemental order under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 52, bringing before the court the children who were infants, and directing that they should be bound by the proceedings; but that a bill was necessary for the purpose. Auster v. Haines, 38 L. J., Ch. 385; L. R. 4 Ch. 445; 17 W. R. 900. Reversing 20 L. T. 152.

A bill to revive a suit which had become abated and defective by the marriage of one of the female plaintiffs and the birth of children should be an original bill in the nature of a supplemental bill against the new defendants, and should allege the facts stated in the original bill, but against the original defendants should be merely a supplemental bill. Hildyard v. Field, 25 L. T. 784; 20 W. R. 198.

In an administration suit, before an order on further consideration, two children of one of the parties were born who were interested in a fund impounded to answer certain liabilities, but were not made parties, and the suit being about to be wound up, it was sought to bring those children before the court by supplemental order:—Held, that a supplemental bill must be filed. Garrett v. Lancefield, 11 W. R. 869.

Where trustees have power to invest a fund in land, and, a suit being instituted, such investment is directed in chambers, the court will not make an order to revive against infants not parties, but in esse at the time of the order in chambers, without being satisfied that everything is for their benefit. Freeman v. Whitbread, 12 W. R. 619.

After Judgment or Decree.]—Where an infant, who is a necessary party to an action, has come into existence after the date of the judgment, and proceedings have been taken under the judgment since the birth of the infant, but before an order under Ord. XVII. r. 4, adding the infant as party, has been applied for, the proper course is to obtain an order prefaced with a direction that the action be continued against him, and that an inquiry be made whether it is for his benefit that he should be bound by such proceedings, and that if it be so certified he is to be bound thereby. If it should not be so certified it is open for the plaintiff to proceed by supplemental action. Peter v. Thomas-Peter, 53 L. J., Ch. 514; 26 Ch. D. 181; 50 L. T. 176; 32 W. R. 409, 515.

After decree in an administration suit an infant was born, who shortly after his birth became interested in possession, and was a necessary party, but was, by inadvertence, overlooked. Sales were made and approved, and upon the investigation of one of the titles the omission was discovered:—Held, that it was not a case for revivor; and a supplemental order was made, that the proceedings should be of the same force and effect as if the infant had been made a party immediately after his birth. Walker v. Walker, L. R. 9 Eq. 663; 22 L. T. 201.

After decree in an administration suit children were born who were interested in the estate to be administered. Subsequently to their birth, two orders were made in the suit without the children being brought before the court:—Held, that the proceedings which had taken place since the children's birth could not be made binding upon them by a supplemental order. Scott v. Duncombe, 39 L. J., Ch. 644; L. R. 9 Eq. 665; 22 L. T. 540.

After a decree was made in an administration suit the number of a class interested in the residue of the estate of the testatrix was increased by the birth of a child of one of the tenants for life. Some proceedings were taken in the suit after his birth:—Held, that the infant could not be bound by the proceedings by means of the common order to revive, but that a supplemental bill must be filed. Askew v. Rooth, 44 L. J., Ch. 200; 31 L. T. 819.

When an infant interested in an action is born after decree, an order may be obtained binding the infant by all proceedings up to the time of his birth, and then a summons may be taken out calling on the infant to shew cause why he should not be bound by the proceedings subsequent to his birth. Scruby v. Payne, 34 L. T. 845.

Where there is a gift in a will to all the children of A., and A. marries a second time and has another family, a common administration suit having been in the meantime instituted and decree taken, the second family can be brought before the court by supplemental order in a particular form. Robinson v. Frampton, 12 Jur. (N.S.) 933; 15 L. T. 172; 15 W. R. 54.

Upon the birth of a child who is a necessary party as one of a class entitled, the usual supplemental order may be obtained after decree. Grunwell v. Garner, L. R. 8 Eq. 355; 20 L. T. 693.

The court knowing the facts of a cause recently heard, will make an order that an infant born pending the suit should be bound by the decree, though it was made in her absence, as a party to the suit. Jebb v. Tugwell, 24 L. J., Ch. 670.

b. On Attaining Twenty-one.

Abatement.]—Infant coming of age does not abate suit brought by administrator during minority. Anon., Cary, 22.

An infant suing by prochein ami comes of age; afterwards publication passed, and the cause came on to be heard; it was objected that the suit was abated; but the court overruled the objection, and proceeded to hear the cause: and in such cases the course is to proceed to hearing without any change in the proceedings. Cur. Can. 464.

Bill by administrator durante minori ætate abates by infant coming of age; therefore supplemental bill is necessary. Stubbs v. Leigh, 1 Cox, 133.

By the infant's coming of age, administration durante minori ætate ceases, and suit by such administrator is thereby determined for that the infant cannot go on therewith, but must begin anew, unless a decree to account were had, in which case the infant on a bill brought for that purpose may be allowed to go on therewith. Jones v. Basset, Pre. Ch. 174.

The next friend of a sole plaintiff, an infant, ought not to take proceedings in the cause in the name of such plaintiff after the plaintiff has attained the age of twenty-one. Brown v. Weatherhead, 4 Hare, 122; 9 Jur. 787.

Striking out Name.]—A co-plaintiff, who was an infant when the suit was instituted, moved, on coming of age, that his name might be struck out of the bill. Motion granted. Acres v. Little, 7 Sim. 138.

Bill filed by two infants; one attained twenty-one before decree; her name as a co-plaintiff struck out on her application, with the costs of the application. Guy v. Guy, 2 Beav. 460; 9 L. J., Ch. 289; 4 Jur. 313, 500.

An infant feme covert was, by her next friend, made a co-plaintiff in a bill against her husband and others:—Held, that, upon her coming of age and disapproving of the suit, she was entitled to have her name struck out of the record as co-plaintiff, but the application having been made very soon after her attaining twenty-one, and it being suggested that it was made under the influence of the husband, the court postponed making the order for a short period, and ascertained from the lady herself, in the absence of her husband, her wishes on the subject. Cooke v. Fryer, 4 Beav. 13; 5 Jur. 287.

Upon motion of an infant co-plaintiff, who obtained his majority after decree, the court ordered his name to be struck out as plaintiff, and to be introduced as defendant in any future proceedings, if the next friend asked for it. Bicknell v. Bicknell, 2 N. R. 98; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 633; 8 L. T. 377; 11 W. R. 657.

Infant coming of age may dismiss bill filed for him, but cannot make prochein ami pay costs unless he prove suit improperly instituted. Anon., 4 Madd. 461.

New Defence.]—Where a decree has been made against an infant defendant who put in the common answer by his guardian, the general rule is, that such defendant on coming of age has the privilege of putting in a new answer, stating a different case, and of going into evidence in support of that case. The privilege does not extend to foreclosure suits. Kelsall v. Kelsall, 2 Myl. & K. 409.

An infant defendant, on attaining twenty-one, discharged the solicitor who had acted for her in the suit. Afterwards that solicitor was served with a subpœna for her to hear judgment. He returned the subpœna to the plaintiff's solicitor, and stated at the same time that the defendant had come of age, and that he was no longer employed for her. Some months afterwards the cause was heard, but without the defendant having been served with a subpœna to hear judgment, or anyone appearing for her at the hearing, and a decree was made in which she was described as an infant:—Held, that she was entitled to put in a new answer to the bill. Snow v. Hole, 15 Sim. 161; 10 Jur. 347.

An order directing an issue "with the consent of all parties in the cause" is erroneous so far as it purports to be with the consent of an infant party. Quære, whether, if the infant gave consent, he is bound by it. But if the order for the issue was a right order, to be made if the infant had not consented, it is immaterial whether he ought to be bound by the consent or not, especially as he was relieved from the effect of the consent by being allowed, on coming of age, to make a new defence. Quære, whether it is clear on the authorities that an infant defendant in a case such as this is entitled after coming of age to put in a new answer and make a new defence. Malone v. Malone, 8 Cl. & F. 179; West, 637; 6 Jur. 177; 3 Ir. Eq. R. 536, 546; 2 Dr. & Wal. 491, 536.

Application to repudiate.]—An infant plaintiff coming of age during the progress of the cause, and disapproving of the proceedings, cannot appear in the proceedings by counsel other than those who appear for the plaintiffs generally; he can only complain of or repudiate the proceedings by a special application. Ballard v. White 2 Hare, 158; 7 Jur. 506.

Revivor pendente lite.]—Where a testator appointed his two infant sons trustees on their attaining the age of twenty-one, and an administration action was commenced on the elder son attaining twenty-one, in which the infant son was made a plaintiff, and the elder son was made defendant, on the younger son attaining twenty-one, and becoming a trustee, and thus changing his interest and liability, the court, on an ex parte application under Ord. XVII. r. 4, of the Rules of Court, 1883, made him a co-defendant. Goold, In re, Goold v. Goold, 51 L. T. 417.

A testator in an administration suit died, leaving an infant his sole executor. Thereupon letters of administration were granted to the guardian of the infant for the use of the latter, and until he should come of age. Subsequently the usual order for administration was made on the summons of the creditors of the estate. On the infant's attaining majority he refused to prove the will, and thereupon letters of administration, with the will annexed, were granted to another creditor:—Held, that the suit, which had thus become abated, might be revived by substituting the last-named creditor for the infant's guardian as defendant. Taylor, In re, Sewell v. Ransford, 27 L. T. 816; 21 W. R. 244.

4. On Lunacy.

Change of Status.]—A suit instituted by a next friend on behalf of a person of unsound mind, not so found by inquisition, becomes absolutely abated by a change in his status. Beall v. Smith, 43 L. J., Ch. 245; L. R. 9 Ch. 85; 29 L. T. 625; 22 W. R. 121.

If he becomes of sound mind there is no pretext for the continued intervention of the next friend; if he is found a lunatic by inquisition, and is thus placed under the protection of the crown, the suit should be continued only with the sanction of the court in lunacy. Ib.

Every proceeding taken in the suit after the inquisition, whether or not a committee has been appointed, is irregular and void, and a contempt of the court in lunacy. Ib.

Staying Proceedings.]—A suit being properly instituted, the proceedings not to be stayed on the ground of the plaintiff's subsequently becoming imbecile. Wartnaby v. Wartnaby, Jac. 377.

Committee.]—A sole plaintiff became lunatic, and a committee was appointed after issue joined and before decree. The committee applied for a supplemental order under s. 52 of the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, and the order was made. Danger v. Stewart, 3 L. T. 770; 9 W. R. 266.

Where a plaintiff becomes a lunatic before decree, and a committee has been appointed, an order of revivor and supplement may be obtained under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 52, for the purpose of joining the committee as co-plaintiff. Timpson v. L. & N. W. Ry., 11 W. R. 558; 1 N. R. 562.

Where the plaintiff, a person of unsound mind, not so found, suing by a next friend, becomes a lunatic during the progress of the action, and a committee is appointed, the committee may obtain an order under Judicature Act, Ord. L. r. 4, for leave to continue the action. Green's Estate, In re, Green v. Pratt, 48 L. J., Ch. 681; 41 L. T. 30.

—— Change of.]—After decree in suit, in which lunatic and his committee were defendants, committee died, and new one was appointed:—Ordered, on motion, that new committee be named as such in all future proceedings in the cause. Lyon v. Mercer, 1 Sim. & S. 356.

On the change of the committees of defendants in a suit, it was ordered upon a motion that the names of the new committees respectively might be substituted in future proceedings for the names of the former committees. Saumarez v. Saumarez, 9 L. J., Ch. 317.

In a suit to which a lunatic and his committee were defendants, the court declined, before decree, to make an order on motion substituting a new committee as defendant. Rudd v. Speare, 3 De G. & Sm. 374.

5. On Marriage.

Effect of.]—Infant plaintiff a ward of court having married, proceedings stayed till husband shall appear. Brummell v. M'Pherson, 7 Ves. 237.

Administrator durante minore ætate obtains a decree to account, the infant marries, and a new administration during her minority is granted to the husband. Coke v. Hodges, 1 Vern. 25.

Upon the marriage of female plaintiff, revivor alone will not do, where the interests of third person, viz. trustees and the issue, must be brought forward, making a supplemental bill necessary. Merrewether v. Mellish, 13 Ves. 161.

An answer filed when the cause was abated by the intermarriage of co-plaintiffs, will be taken off the file for irregularity. Nash v. Hayes, 2 Hog. 286.

A female plaintiff applied by her next friend that proceedings in a cause instituted before November, 1874, might be carried on against her husband, whom she had married since the order made on further consideration:—Held, that it was not necessary to apply to the court, but that the order might be obtained from the registrar. Darcy v. Whittaker, 33 L. T. 778; 24 W. R. 244.

A feme sole entitled to property, which in the event of her marriage would be settled for her separate use, filed a bill for purposes connected with such property. After replication, but before decree, she marries. The court made an order, giving leave to the plaintiff to name A. B. her next friend, and reviving the suit against her husband. Trezevant v. Broughton, 5 W. R. 517.

A bill to revive a suit which had become abated and defective by the marriage of one of the female plaintiffs and the birth of children should be an original bill, in the nature of a supplemental bill against the new defendants, and should allege the facts stated in the original bill, but against the original defendants should be merely a supplemental bill. Hildyard v. Field, 25 L. T. 784; 20 W. R. 198.

A female petitioner after the preparation and stamping of the petition married:—Held, that a petition was within s. 53 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, and that amendment only, and not a petition, was necessary. Robinson v. Hewetson, 1 Drew. 307; 1 W. R. 100.

A suit for administration was instituted in the name of three infants by their next friend. After this one of them, a female, married before decree. The next friend and the other parties to the suit were unaware of the marriage, and she and her husband were unaware of the existence of the suit until after a decree had been made. The vice-chancellor declined to make an order of revivor, considering that the defect could not be remedied without a supplemental bill; but, the defendants consenting, an order of revivor was made by the lords justices. Griffin v. Morgan, L. R. 4 Ch. 351; 19 L. T. 809; 17 W. R. 342.

Bill filed by feme covert, stating her to be a spinster, her solicitor being ignorant of the marriage till after the decree. On motion by consent, the husband obtained leave to prosecute the decree under terms. Farrer v. Wyatt, 5 Madd. 449.

On the abatement of a suit by the marriage of a female plaintiff, who is also next friend of infant plaintiffs in the suit, a defendant is entitled to an order that the suit may be revived within a limited time, or that the bill may be dismissed as against him, with costs. Crispe v. Braddy, 9 L. J., Ch. 108.

Where a feme plaintiff marries, and the husband dies before revivor, a bill of revivor is unnecessary, but the subsequent proceedings ought to be in the name and description acquired by the marriage. Godkin v. Ferrers (Earl), Mitf. Pl. 47.

The court will make a supplemental order bringing the trustees of the marriage settlement of an infant plaintiff who has married during the pendency of the suit, and after a decree before the court. Atkinson v. Parker, 2 De G. M. & G. 221; 22 L. J., Ch. 20; 16 Jur. 1005; 1 W. R. 43.

Where, upon an administration decree, funds had been ordered to be carried to the separate account of A., an infant, and upon A.'s marriage the funds had been settled, with the approval of the court, as belonging to A. absolutely:—Held, that the parties beneficially interested were entitled to file an original bill for the purpose of obtaining a declaration of their rights, and that in such a case it would not have been proper to file a bill of revivor, the order to carry to a separate account not being equivalent to a decree finally determining the rights of the parties. Noble v. Stow, 5 Jur. (N.S.) 1115; 7 W. R. 709.

When the interest of a sole plaintiff has determined by marriage after decree, an order of revivor may be made. Hobson v. Shearwood, 15 W. R. 887.

A defendant feme sole at the time of filing her answer, having subsequently married, and the plaintiffs having taken no step in the cause for more than two months, she and her husband moved to dismiss the bill:—Held, that the plaintiffs must enter the rule to proceed within eight days, and in default thereof that the bill be dismissed with costs. Church v. Nugent, 1 Dr. & Wal. 259; Sau. & Sc. 554.

6. On Assignment and Transmission of Interest.

Assignment before Action.]—F. commenced an action against the firm of W. & Co., to recover from them lithographic stones, which the firm claimed to be their property. Before the issue of the writ, F. had assigned his property in the stones to J. W., and the suit was subsequently, by leave of the court, amended by making J. W. a co-plaintiff:—Held, by the Master of the Rolls, that F. was properly retained as a plaintiff; but on appeal (per Law, C.), semble, that the order giving leave to amend should not, under the circumstances, have been made. Foster v. Ward, 9 L. R. Ir. 447—C. A.

A local authority, having compulsory powers of purchase, gave notice to a landowner to treat, and the amount of compensation was assessed by a jury. Before completion the landowner conveyed the land to the plaintiffs, subject to the claim of the local authority:—Held, that the plaintiffs could maintain an action against the local authority for the specific performance of the contract arising out of the notice to treat and subsequent assessment of value, without joining as plaintiff the landowner to whom the notice was given. Burr v. Wimbledon Local Board, 56 L. T. 329; 35 W. R. 404.

Assignment pendente lite.]—A trustee in bankruptcy commenced an action to obtain a declaration that a deed, which purported to be an absolute conveyance of real estate by the bankrupt, was in fact a mortgage, and to redeem such mortgage; and subsequently sold and assigned his interest in the subject-matter of the action to C., who claimed to carry on the action in the name of the original plaintiff:—Held, on the application of the defendant, that C. was bound to mend the title of the action so as to shew that he was the real plaintiff, and to introduce such averments in the statement of claim as would disclose his title. Seear v. Lawson or Chatterton v. Lawson, 50 L. J., Ch. 139; 16 Ch. D. 121; 43 L. T. 716; 29 W. R. 109—C. A.

The trustee in bankruptcy of a man who had conveyed away some real property absolutely, commenced an action against the grantee to have it declared that the conveyance was a mortgage, and that the deed ought to stand as a security only for the money advanced. The action had proceeded no further than the issue of the writ, when the trustee sold and assigned the subject-matter of the action to a purchaser for value:—Held, that the assignee from the trustee in bankruptcy was entitled to continue the action. Seear v. Lawson, 49 L. J., Bk. 69; 15 Ch. D. 426; 42 L. T. 893; 28 W. R. 929—C. A.

The assignee of the interest of a defendant in the subject-matter of an existing suit in which an order has been made, is not entitled to institute a fresh suit in respect of such interest. Lambert v. Turner, 1 N. R. 12; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 1223; 7 L. T. 521; 11 W. R. 51.

Some of the plaintiffs, who had an equitable interest only in the property in question, mortgaged their interests pending the suit:—Held, at the hearing, that the mortgagee was a necessary party. Solomon v. Solomon, 13 Sim. 516; 7 Jur. 806.

Where parties to an administration suit have, pendente lite, mortgaged their shares, the mortgagees may be made parties to the suit by a supplemental order, under s. 52 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86. Brandon v. Brandon, 9 L. T. 570; 3 N. R. 287.

In a foreclosure suit, when the plaintiff, after the chief clerk's certificate, transferred the mortgage to a new mortgagee:—Held, on an ex parte application by the new mortgagee with the consent of the original mortgagee, that an order of revivor and supplement could be made. Bibby v. Naylor, L. R. 17 Eq. 14; 22 W. R. 52. S. P., James v. Harding, 3 Eq. R. 757; 3 W. R. 474.

On an ex parte application by the three continuing mortgagees and the new mortgagee with the consent of the other original mortgagee, an order of revivor and supplement was made under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 52. Ingham v. Waskett, 40 L. J., Ch. 399; L. R. 11 Eq. 283; 24 L. T. 55; 19 W. R. 427.

Where, after a bill filed, but before subpœna, the defendant assigned the subject-matter:—Held, that the assignee was a necessary party, and the court would, if necessary, restrain any further assignment. Powell v. Wright, 7 Beav. 441.

Assignment after Decree.]—In an administration suit where, after decree, the sole plaintiff assigned all his interest to a stranger, the common order to revive the suit was made at the instance of the assignee, the plaintiff consenting. Mallock v. Still, L. R. 15 Eq. 293.

Where one of two plaintiffs had assigned his interests after decree, and the chief clerk's certificate had been made after the assignment, the common order of revivor was made against the assignee without prejudice to any question whether he was to be bound by the certificate. Vibart v. Vibart, L. R. 6 Eq. 251; 16 W. R. 997.

If a party to a foreclosure action has assigned his interest after decree, the assignee may be made a party to the action even after the order for foreclosure absolute. Campbell v. Holyland, 47 L. J., Ch. 145; 7 Ch. D. 166; 38 L. T. 128.

An order for revivor will be made, where the object is to continue accounts of trustees, against one of whom, as a defendant, accounts were directed by the decree in the original suit; the order at the same time constituting such trustee, together with his co-trustees appointed pendente lite, co-plaintiffs. Williamson v. Jeffries, 10 L. T. 330; 12 W. R. 402.

Where after a decree a mortgage of the subject-matter of the suit was created, subsequently to which an order was made upon further consideration, without the new mortgagees being made parties:—Held, that s. 52 of the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, applied, and that a supplemental bill was not necessary in order to bring the subsequent mortgagees before the court. Freeman v. Pennington, 31 L. J., Ch. 216; 5 L. T. 514; 10 W. R. 184—L.JJ.

"Devolution of Estate by Operation of Law."]—A garnishee order was made absolute in favour of judgment creditors of W. attaching a judgment debt recovered by W. against S.:—Held, that this was a devolution of estate by operation of law within Ord. L. r. 2 (1875), and that the judgment creditors of W. were entitled to be added as co-plaintiffs in the action of W. against S., but not to have the conduct of the action. Wallis v. Smith, 51 L. J., Ch. 577; 46 L. T. 473.

Transmission before Decree.]—An order of revivor may be made under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 52, at the instance of a plaintiff against a co-plaintiff on whom a new interest has devolved. Foster v. Bonner, 33 L. J., Ch. 384.

Where the interest of the sole plaintiff has been transmitted to a person whose title can be disputed in the cause, no order of revivor can be made under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 52. Accordingly, where the sole plaintiff assigned his interest in the subject-matter of the suit before decree:—Held, that such an order could not be made. Greenhalgh v. Rumney, 5 N. R. 463.

Sect. 52 of the Chancery Practice Amendment Act, 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, providing that upon a suit becoming defective by reason of transmission of interest, an order to the effect of the usual supplemental decree may be obtained, as of course upon an allegation of the transmission of interest, applies to cases where the rights of the plaintiff are affected by a settlement executed after the institution of the suit. Atkinson v. Parker, 2 De G. M. & G. 221 : 22 L. J., Ch. 20 ; 16 Jur. 1005 ; 1 W. R. 43.

An order of revivor may be obtained on application of a plaintiff against a co-plaintiff on whom the interest of a defendant has devolved after an order on further consideration. Battison v. Hobson, 40 L. J., Ch. 378 ; 24 L. T. 57 ; 19 W. R. 402.

Where a change of interest takes place by means of probate of a will being granted to one of four executors, who did not originally prove, he may be brought before the court by a common supplemental order. Haldane v. Eckford, 14 L. T. 14 ; 14 W. R. 306, 328.

Transmission after Decree.]—A married woman, who had obtained a protection order under 20 & 21 Vict. c. 85, s. 21, on the ground of causeless desertion, was a defendant without her husband to a suit for administration of the estate of a testator who died after the desertion giving her a beneficial interest in his property, and a decree was made for accounts and inquiries. Shortly after this the protection order was discharged, on the application of the husband, on the ground that there had never been any desertion. The plaintiff thereupon obtained a supplemental order under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 52, to bring the husband before the court :—Held, that such an order was proper. Rudge v. Weedon, 4 De G. & J. 216.

A. B., entitled to a share of the produce of a testatrix's real and personal estate, instituted a suit for its recovery, and obtained a decree. C. D. afterwards filed a bill of revivor and supplement, stating that A. B. was domiciled at Stuttgart, and that, by a decree of the court there, he had been appointed curator bonorum, and directed to get in the property for A. B.'s creditors. The bill prayed a revivor, and liberty to prosecute the original suit for payment and additional relief. A general demurrer was allowed, on the ground that the relief thus prayed could only be obtained by original bill. Staehle v. Winter, 20 Beav. 550 ; 3 W. R. 580.

Addition of Plaintiffs at Trial.]—In April, 1876, an agreement was entered into between the plaintiffs and the defendant for the purchase by them of a patent. In January, 1877, the plaintiffs brought an action to have the agreement set aside on the ground of fraud. The defendant, by his defence, denied the fraud, and by way of counter-claim claimed to have the agreement specifically performed. During the progress of the evidence it turned out that, a few days after the date of the agreement, the plaintiffs had transferred all their patent rights to a limited company. Upon the application of the plaintiffs at the trial of the action, the court allowed the pleadings to be amended, by adding the company as plaintiffs. Ruston v. Tobin, 49 L. J., Ch. 262.

Addition of Defendant at Trial.]—An order was made at the trial to add as a co-defendant a person to whom the defendant had assigned his interest pendente lite. Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160 ; 38 L. T. 461.

Application at Trial held too late when Objection raised in Defence.]—An objection to part of a plaintiff's claim, on the ground that his interest in the subject-matter of the action had only accrued at a date subsequent to the transactions out of which such part of the claim arose, having been made in the defence, it was held too late at the trial to apply under r. 14 of Ord. XVI., to add an additional party as co-plaintiff in respect of the former title. Nobel's Explosives Co. v. Jones, 49 L. J., Ch. 726 ; 42 L. T. 754 ; 28 W. R. 653—C. A.

Defendant whose Interest has ceased pending Action.]—A defendant whose interest has ceased pending the suit cannot obtain payment of his costs. Wymer v. Dodds, 48 L. J., Ch. 568 ; 11 Ch. D. 436 ; 40 L. T. 420 ; 27 W. R. 675.

Order of Course.]—An order to revive under Ord. L. r. 4 (1875), is an order of course. Roffey v. Miller, 24 W. R. 109. S. P., Jackson v. North Eastern Ry., 46 L. J., Ch. 723 ; 5 Ch. D. 844 ; 36 L. T. 779 ; 25 W. R. 518—C. A. ; and Ashley v. Taylor, 48 L. J., Ch. 406 ; 10 Ch. D. 768 ; 27 W. R. 228.

7. In Other Cases.

Striking out Plaintiff.]—A co-plaintiff may retire from a suit if he procures a sufficient person to enter into a bond to the clerk of records and writs to answer the costs of the defendant up to the time of the retirement. Drake v. Symes, 30 L. J., Ch. 358 ; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 394 ; 4 L. T. 192 ; 9 W. R. 427.

Making Co-Plaintiff a Defendant.]—One of two co-plaintiffs who had authorised the institution of a suit refused to proceed therein. The other plaintiff obtained on motion an order to amend, by making him a defendant, and to pay the costs. Brown v. Sawer, 3 Beav. 598 ; 10 L. J., Ch. 240 ; 5 Jur. 500.

Where it appeared that the association of a cestui que trust and trustee, as co-plaintiffs on the record, might materially injure the interests of the former, the court gave leave to amend the record by striking out the name of the trustee as plaintiff, and making him a defendant. Hall v. Lack, 2 Y. & Coll. C. C. 631.

The bill sought to charge trustees with mismanagement and misapplication of the trust estate. The answer insisted that one of the two co-plaintiffs had acquiesced. The court, upon motion, gave leave to amend by making such co-plaintiff a defendant on payment of costs of application, and giving security for costs already incurred. Costs of misjoinder reserved to hearing. Bather v. Kearsley, 7 Beav. 544 ; 13 L. J., Ch. 321.

Where, after a bill filed by some members of a company, on behalf of themselves and the other members, to rescind a purchase they had made, on the ground of fraud, it appeared that their title to relief might be prejudiced by the acts of two of the plaintiffs who had acted as agents for the company, some of which they contended they ought not to be bound by, they were permitted to amend the bill by striking out their names as plaintiffs, and making them defendants. Small v. Attwood, 2 Y. & J. 512.

Semble, an order to amend after the replication, by converting a plaintiff into a defendant, is consistent with the practice of the Court of Exchequer. Attwood v. Small, 6 Cl. & F. 232 ; 2 Jur. 200, 226, 246.

h. PERSONS SUING IN FORMÂ PAUPERIS.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XVI. rr. 22-31.

1. In what Cases.

Criminal Matters.] — A prosecutor cannot prosecute in formâ pauperis without special cause. Rex v. Clarke, 3 Burr. 1308.

The court will not allow a party to prosecute in the K. B. in formâ pauperis on the common affidavit of poverty, but special grounds must be laid for such an application. Rex v. Wilkins, 1 D. P. C. 536.

—— Defendant.] — A motion to defend in formâ pauperis upon an attachment for a contempt denied. Rex v. Pearson, 2 Burr. 1039.

A defendant removing an indictment by certiorari without good cause cannot be admitted to sue in formâ pauperis. Rex v. Reynolds, 1 W. Bl. 230.

In an information under the excise laws, the court will admit a defendant to defend in formâ pauperis, on an affidavit, that he is not worth 5*l.*, over and above his wearing apparel. Att.-Gen. v. Dummie, 2 C. & M. 393; 4 Tyr. 284; 3 L. J., Ex. 86.

Costs Unpaid.]—Where a plaintiff has failed in one action and commences another for the same matter without having paid the costs of the first action, a judge properly exercises his discretion in refusing the plaintiff leave to sue in formâ pauperis. McCabe v. Bank of Ireland, 59 L. J., P. C. 18; 14 App. Cas. 413; 61 L. T. 416; 38 W. R. 257—H. L. (Ir.)

Public Right — Subscriptions.] — Upon a petition for leave to prosecute an appeal in formâ pauperis, it appeared that the petitioner sought as one of the public to establish a right of fishing in a tidal river adjoining land belonging to the defender, and that subscriptions had been collected to assist the petitioner in the litigation:—Held, that in the circumstances the application could not be granted. Bowie v. Ailsa (Marquis), 58 L. J., P. C. 7; 13 App. Cas. 371; 60 L. T. 162—H. L. (Sc.)

No Cause of Action.]—A party is not entitled to sue in formâ pauperis if, on his own affidavit, the court can see that he has no cause of action. Cobbett, In re, 3 H. & N. 155; 27 L. J., Ex. 199; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 145; 6 W. R. 282.

If it appears that the plaintiff has no meritorious cause of action, the court will discharge an order authorising him to sue in formâ pauperis. Hawes v. Johnson, 1 Y. & J. 10.

To what Proceedings Extending.]—The privilege of suing in formâ pauperis does not extend to a step collateral to the cause, such as a rule calling on his attorney to pay the costs of the day incurred through his negligence. Bell v. Port of London Assurance Co., 1 L. M. & P. 641.

Proceedings on Crown Side.]—A party to proceedings on the crown side of the Queen's Bench division cannot be admitted to proceed as a pauper. Mulleneisen v. Coulson, 57 L. J., Q. B. 464; 21 Q. B. D. 3; 58 L. T. 562; 36 W. R. 811.

—— Appeal from County Court.]—Appeals from inferior courts, although under Ord. LIX. r. 4, they are to be entered in the crown paper, are not proceedings on the crown side of the Queen's Bench division within Ord. LXVIII. r. 1; and therefore the court has jurisdiction to allow appellants from such courts to appeal in formâ pauperis. Mulleneisen v. Coulson (21 Q. B. D. 3) distinguished. Clements v. L. & N. W. Ry., [1894] 2 Q. B. 482; 9 R. 223; 42 W. R. 338; 58 J. P. 816—C. A.

Misconduct.]—A party will not be deprived of the privilege of defending himself in formâ pauperis, on account of his misconduct, semble. Murphy v. Oldis, 1 Hog. 219.

Misconduct in a former cause is no ground for refusing a party liberty to sue as a pauper in another, for the subject before in dispute. Bowyer v. M'Evoy, 1 Ball & B. 562.

Appeals.]—An appeal may be prosecuted in formâ pauperis. Bland v. Lamb, 2 Jac. & Walk. 402. See Clarke v. Wyburn, 17 L. J., Ch. 159; 12 Jur. 167.

—— Order previously Obtained.]—When a party has obtained the common order to sue in formâ pauperis at any stage of the suit, it will carry him through all subsequent stages; and no special order is required to enable him to appeal without payment of a deposit. Drennan v. Andrew, L. R. 1 Ch. 300; 14 L. T. 39; 14 W. R. 444.

—— No previous Order.] — Where a party who has not sued or defended as a pauper in the court below desires to appeal in formâ pauperis, the application for leave should be made ex parte to the Court of Appeal. The court will require the provisions of Ord. XVI. rr. 22-24, to be followed in such a case. Goldberg, Ex parte, 62 L. J., Q. B. 127; [1893] 1 Q. B. 417; 4 R. 232; 68 L. T. 142; 41 W. R. 210—C. A.

Where a party who has not sued or defended as a pauper in the court below applies for leave to appeal in formâ pauperis, the court will follow by analogy Ord. XVI. rr. 22, 23, and 24, and not the old practice as to such appeals. Roberts, In re, Kiff v. Roberts, 33 Ch. D. 265; 35 W. R. 176—C. A.

—— To Privy Council.]—See COLONY.

Suing in Own Right.]—Indulgence of suing in formâ pauperis extends only to persons suing in their own rights. Paradice v. Sheppard, Dick. 136.

A single creditor filed a bill in formâ pauperis, to set aside an assignment of property by an insolvent previously to his insolvency. Demurrer to the bill allowed, although the assignee in insolvency refused to take any steps to set aside the assignment. Davis v. Snell, 3 L. T. 394; 9 W. R. 209. Affirming 6 Jur. (N.S.) 1134.

Executors and Administrators.]—An executor or administrator cannot sue or defend in formâ pauperis, unless semble he is beneficially interested. Oldfield v. Cobbett, 3 Beav. 432.

An administrator having been admitted at the Rolls to sue in formâ pauperis, the order was discharged. Paradice v. Sheppard, 6 Beav. 586, n.

A., being executrix of a will, and entitled under it to an equity of redemption, filed a bill to redeem, offering to pay what, if anything, should be due on the mortgage, and praying for relief as the testator's representative:—Held, that she could not sue as a pauper. Fowler v. Davies, 16 Sim. 182; 17 L. J., Ch. 287; 12 Jur. 321.

—— Beneficial Interest.] — If a personal representative has also a claim himself as an incumbrancer, that takes the case out of the rule that a personal representative cannot sue in formâ pauperis. Anon., 2 Moll. 338.

A defendant who defends as executor, and is in contempt, may be admitted to defend in formâ pauperis, for the single purpose of clearing his contempt. Oldfield v. Cobbett, 1 Coll. 169; 13 L. J., Ch. 177; 8 Jur. 352.

An application by a party sued as executor for leave to defend the suit in formâ pauperis refused, though, in addition to the usual affidavit, he swore that he had been prevented, by an injunction, from receiving any assets; and semble, the result would have been the same if he had sworn that there were no assets. Oldfield v. Cobbett, 1 Ph. 613; 15 L. J., Ch. 116; 10 Jur. 2. And see 8 Beav. 294.

The plaintiff, the executrix, being also devisee and legatee, the court made an order that she might sue in formâ pauperis. Flattery v. Anderdon, 11 Ir. Eq. R. 586.

R., claiming in right of his wife certain property, administers to her and her sister, who claimed to be next of kin of C. deceased, whose residuary property had been handed over in another suit to other next of kin. R.'s wife and sister dying, the next of kin in possession dies, and R. sues in formâ pauperis, and gets a common order, and moves for an injunction, is dispaupered, and his motion refused. On petition for leave to sue in formâ pauperis:—Held, that the plaintiff, being entitled in jure mariti as well as representative, was able to sue in formâ pauperis. Rogers v. Hooper, 1 W. R. 474.

Husband and wife allowed to defend an administration suit in formâ pauperis where the wife was sole executrix, and separately interested in the estate. Everson v. Matthew, 3 W. R. 159.

An administratrix having a beneficial interest in the subject-matter of a suit, admitted to sue in formâ pauperis. Parkinson v. Chambers, 1 Kay & J. 72; 24 L. J., Ch. 47; 3 W. R. 34.

A party suing in a representative character may sue in formâ pauperis upon showing a beneficial interest in the subject-matter of the suit. Martin v. Whitmore, 17 W. R. 809.

But where an administratrix obtained an order for leave to appeal in formâ pauperis, upon an ex parte application supported by an affidavit which merely stated that she had a beneficial interest, without specifying how derived, such beneficial interest not appearing upon the pleadings, and the affidavit also did not aver that she had not, as such administratrix, assets wherewith to prosecute the appeal, the order was, upon subsequent application by the plaintiff, discharged, with leave for the administratrix to file a fresh affidavit. Ib.

Husband and Wife or Next Friend.]—Cases stated in which a feme covert suing by her next friend has been admitted to sue in formâ pauperis. Observations on Pennington v. Alvin (1 Sim. & S. 264). Dowden v. Hook, 8 Beav. 399; 14 L. J., Ch. 383; 9 Jur. 544.

Semble, a married woman may sue in formâ pauperis, but the pauper order cannot be obtained as of course. Coulsting v. Coulsting, 8 Beav. 463; 14 L. J., Ch. 385; 9 Jur. 587.

A mother of infant under seven years of age, not living apart from the father, but prevented by him from having access to the infant, was permitted, on application being made ex parte for that purpose, to present a petition under 2 & 3 Vict. c. 54, in formâ pauperis, without a next friend, and without payment of the stamp of 1*l.* required by the orders of the court. And held that, upon such an ex parte application, it was no improper suppression to forbear stating that the intended petitioner had relatives in good circumstances, it not being shown that any of them would have been willing to act as her next friend. Hakewill, Ex parte, 3 De G. M. & G. 116; 22 L. J., Ch. 662; 17 Jur. 334; 1 W. R. 205, 278.

R., claiming in right of his wife certain property, administers to her and her sister, who claimed to be next of kin of C. deceased, whose residuary property had been handed over in another suit to other next of kin. R.'s wife and sister dying, the next of kin in possession dies, and R. sues in formâ pauperis, and gets a common order, and moves for an injunction, is dispaupered, and his motion refused. On petition for leave to sue in formâ pauperis:—Held, that the plaintiff, being entitled in jure mariti as well as representative, was entitled to sue in formâ pauperis. Rogers v. Hooper, 1 W. R. 474.

An order obtained ex parte by a married woman for leave to file a bill and sue in formâ pauperis without a next friend:—Held, irregular, and discharged. Page v. Page, 16 Beav. 588; 17 Jur. 336; 1 W. R. 206, 262.

A married woman, living apart from her husband, allowed to sue in formâ pauperis without a next friend. Order made ex parte. Lancaster, In re, 2 Eq. R. 512; 18 Jur. 229; 2 W. R. 337.

On an application on behalf of a married woman for leave to file a bill in formâ pauperis, and without a next friend, she had made an affidavit that she had not 5*l.* in the world, and was unable to find anyone who would be her next friend; the bill had been settled and signed by counsel. The court held, that it ought to be informed of some of the facts on which it was proposed to file the bill; but, in order to save the parties expense, the statement that the bill had been settled and signed was taken as a positive guarantee that the bill was proper, and the order was made accordingly. Wellesley v. Mornington, 2 Eq. R. 675; 18 Jur. 552; 2 W. R. 552.

Liberty given to a married woman to file a bill without a next friend, and sue in formâ pauperis. Forster, In re, 18 Beav. 525. S. P., Barnes, In re, 31 L. J., Ch. 455; 5 L. T. 787; 10 W. R. 464.

Leave given to a married woman, who had filed a bill by her next friend in formâ pauperis, to prosecute an appeal in formâ pauperis, the next friend refusing to allow his name to be used for the purpose of the appeal, and the married woman deposing that she knew no person who would allow his name to be substituted. Crouch v. Waller, 4 De G. & J. 43; 28 L. J., Ch. 514; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 326.

The rents and profits of real estate were given by will to trustees, for the benefit of a married woman for life, with remainder to her children. Her husband obtained protection under the Insolvent Debtors Act, but was wholly unable to maintain his wife, who was in consequence in indigent circumstances. On a bill by the wife, suing in formâ pauperis and without a next friend, against the trustees, the assignees, and the husband:—Held, that she was entitled to a settlement. Barnes v. Robinson, 1 N. R. 257; 32 L. J., Ch. 143; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 245; 7 L. T. 617; 11 W. R. 276.

A married woman suing without a next friend, her husband not being a party, applied for leave to appeal in formâ pauperis:—Held, that her husband as well as herself must make the affidavit required by Ord. XVI. r. 22. Roberts, In re, Kiff v. Roberts, 33 Ch. D. 265; 35 W. R. 176—C. A.

Infant.]—An infant may sue in formâ pauperis by his next friend. Bryant v. Wagner, 3 Jur. 460.

An order for an infant to sue in formâ pauperis by his next friend was obtained ex parte, on an affidavit by the infant, in the common form, as to his own property:—Held, that such an affidavit was clearly insufficient, and that the order had rightly been discharged, with costs. Lindsay v. Tyrrell, 2 De G. & J. 7; 5 W. R. 617. Affirming 24 Beav. 124; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 1014; 5 W. R. 482. And see 6 W. R. 143.

Trustee Relief Act.]—A claimant allowed to proceed in formâ pauperis for payment of money out of court paid in under the Trustee Relief Act, 1847. Money, In re, 13 Beav. 109; 20 L. J., Ch. 274; 15 Jur. 51.

Winding-up.]—Order ex parte for a person carrying in a claim under a winding-up to sue in formâ pauperis. Fry, Ex parte, 1 Dr. & Sm. 318; 3 L. T. 462; 9 W. R. 51.

Peeress.] — A peeress allowed to sue as a pauper. Wellesley v. Wellesley, 16 Sim. 1.

Examination pro interesse suo.]—A person having been examined pro interesse suo, was permitted to prosecute, and make out her right in formâ pauperis. James v. Dore, Dick. 788.

2. Practice.

Motion on Summons.]—Leave to present a petition in formâ pauperis will be granted on motion; but such leave may also be obtained by summons in chambers. Lewin, In re, 33 W. R. 128.

Jurisdiction of County Court.]—A judge of a county court has power to allow parties to sue in formâ pauperis. Chinn v. Bullen, 8 C. B. 447; 7 D. & L. 297; 19 L. J., C. P. 42; 14 Jur. 201.

Amount of Property.]—An application to sue in formâ pauperis in this court must be made on an affidavit that the plaintiff is not worth 5*l.* (now 25*l.*) except the matter in question in this suit. O'Donnell v. M'Mahon, 9 Ir. Eq. R. 471.

The meaning of the common affidavit required on application for leave to sue or defend in formâ pauperis is, that the party has not 5*l.* in the world besides, &c., available for the prosecution or defence of the suit; and if he can make the affidavit with truth in that sense, the omission to set forth the details of his means, and the circumstances which render them unavailable, is not such an omission of material facts as will induce the court on that ground alone to discharge the order. Dresser v. Morton, 2 Ph. 286; 1 Coop. C. C. 376.

It appearing on affidavit that a pauper defendant was entitled to property exceeding 20*l.* in value, the court, on motion, ordered him to be dispaupered. Goldsmith v. Goldsmith, 5 Hare, 125; 15 L. J., Ch. 264; 10 Jur. 561.

The affidavit as to property filed in support of an application to be allowed to sue in formâ pauperis, ought to except nothing but the wearing apparel, and the matters in question in the cause. Perry v. Walker, 1 Coll. 229; 13 L. J., Ch. 75; 8 Jur. 680.

An officer having half-pay amounting to 150*l.* a year (which is not alienable) will not be allowed to proceed in formâ pauperis, and that notwithstanding he has taken the benefit of the Insolvent Act. Boddington v. Woodley, 5 Beav. 555; 12 L. J., Ch. 15; 6 Jur. 960.

A suit was instituted against several defendants, all of whom having died, a bill of revivor and supplement was filed against the administrator of the last surviving defendant, and he obtained the common order to sue in formâ pauperis. This defendant was tenant at will of a cottage, worth 10*l.* per annum, was also in receipt of an annuity of 20*l.* per annum, and claimed to be entitled to further property, but which he alleged was not available for paying the costs of his suit:—Held, that the common order to sue in formâ pauperis must be discharged. Burry Port Co. v. Bowser, 26 L. J., Ch. 319; 5 W. R. 325.

Plaintiff was confessedly entitled, under a codicil, to the interest of 800*l.* consols. He claimed by the suit, and in opposition to that codicil, a greater interest in the testator's estate. A motion to dispauper him was refused. Allen v. M'Pherson, 5 Beav. 485.

—— Possession or Receipt of Property in Question.]—A farming tenant who has valuable crops on his farm, but no other property, will not be admitted to defend in formâ pauperis, although he has in the suit been restrained from selling or removing the crops. Ridgway v. Edwards, L. R. 9 Ch. 143; 29 L. T. 906; 22 W. R. 288.

Affidavit that defendant is not worth more than 5*l.* except in matters in question, of which he had possession, will not entitle him to defend in formâ pauperis. Spencer v. Bryant, 11 Ves. 49; 8 R. R. 85.

A party being in possession and enjoyment of the property in question, which was worth 140*l.*, and 10*l.* a year, dispaupered. Taprell v. Taylor, 9 Beav. 493.

Pauper order discharged, the party being in receipt of an annuity, though it was the subject of the suit. Butler v. Gardiner, 12 Beav. 525; 19 L. J., Ch. 473.

The court refused to dispauper a plaintiff, although in the possession of property, and in the exercise of a business; the possession of the property being wrongful, the wrongful possession acquiesced in by the adverse party, and the business being necessary to the maintenance of himself and family. Perry v. Walker, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 676; 6 Jur. 846.

—— After Payment of Debts.]—A plaintiff suing in formâ pauperis, carrying on a considerable business, and having the possession of property greater in amount than 5*l.*, though not after payment of his just debts, dispaupered. Perry v. Walker, 1 Coll. 229; 13 L. J., Ch. 75; 8 Jur. 680.

A pauper plaintiff was shown to be in possession of 50*l.* a year; but he swore that he was not worth 5*l.* after his just debts were paid. The court thereupon ordered him to specify the debts, which specification being unsatisfactory he was dispaupered. Raxworthy v. Raxworthy, 7 L. J., Ch. 136.

Affidavit by Whom made.]—The affidavit to ground an order to be admitted to sue in formâ pauperis must be made by the party, not by a third person. Wilkinson v. Belsher, 2 Bro. C. C. 272.

Affidavit of a party convicted of perjury admissible to enable him to sue as a pauper. Bowyer v. M'Evoy, 1 Ball & B. 56.

Denial of Allegations.] — Pauper order discharged, the particular circumstances tending to show that the plaintiff was not a pauper, not being specifically denied. Mather v. Shelmerdine, 7 Beav. 267.

An order by which the defendant was admitted to defend in formâ pauperis, was, under the circumstances of the case, discharged, notwithstanding the affidavit of the defendant that his property did not amount to 5*l.*, and his denial of the allegations by which the plaintiff endeavoured to prove the contrary. Romilly v. Grint, 2 Beav. 186 ; 9 L. J., Ch. 109.

At what Stage.]—A plaintiff may be admitted to sue in formâ pauperis after the commencement of the action. Brunt v. Wardell, 3 Man. & G. 534 ; 4 Scott (N.R.) 188 ; 1 D. (N.S.) 229 ; 11 L. J., C. P. 17. S. P., Pitcher v. Roberts, 2 D. (N.S.) 394 ; 12 L. J., Q. B. 178 ; 7 Jur. 466 : Doe d. Ellis v. Owens, 9 M. & W. 455 ; 1 D. (N.S.) 404 ; 10 M. & W. 514 ; 2 D. (N.S.) 426 ; 12 L. J., Ex. 53 ; 7 Jur. 91 : Holmes v. Penney, 9 Ex. 584 ; 2 C. L. R. 1004 ; 23 L. J., Ex. 132 ; 2 W. R. 256.

No Retrospective Operation.]—A pauper may obtain the order at any time during the progress of the suit ; but it has no retrospective operation. Doe d. Ellis v. Owen, supra.

Pauper leaving England.]—A pauper plaintiff who will be absent from England for eighteen months will be ordered to give security for costs, or the proceedings will be stayed until his return. Foss v. Wagner, 2 D. P. C. 499.

Effect of Order on Solicitor.]—A claimant in a chancery suit in March, 1851, retained an attorney, to conduct it upon the ordinary terms. In July an order was obtained from the Master of the Rolls, by which the claimant was made a pauper. In December an order was obtained from the Master of the Rolls, by which the claimant was dispaupered from the 31st of October preceding :—Held, that the order of December operated between the parties only of the chancery suit, and not as between attorney and client, and therefore that the attorney was not entitled to charge for services rendered by him whilst the first order was in force, viz. between July and December. Holmes v. Penney, 9 Ex. 584 ; 2 C. L. R. 1004 ; 23 L. J., Ex. 132 ; 2 W. R. 256.

Held, also, that the attorney was entitled to recover for payments made to the law stationer for parchment and paper, but not for copying. Ib.

Held, also, that he could not recover for counsel's fees which had not been paid. Ib.

Order operates from Service.]—An order for suing in formâ pauperis takes effect only from the time when it is served on the defendant or otherwise brought to his knowledge, and therefore a defendant who succeeds is entitled to his costs incurred before that time. Fray v. Voules, 9 B. & S. 60 ; L. R. 3 Q. B. 214 ; 16 W. R. 399.

An order to sue in formâ pauperis is ineffectual until served ; and the party obtaining it was held, on that ground, liable to pay divers costs. Ballard v. Catling, 2 Keen, 606 ; 7 L. J., Ch. 186. S. P., Smith v. Pawson, 2 De G. & Sm. 490 ; 17 L. J., Ch. 454 ; 12 Jur. 819.

An order for leave to sue in formâ pauperis is not inoperative, although it is not served, where there is no mala fides in withholding it, and no step has been taken in the cause inconsistent with the order. Semble, the same rule applies to orders of court generally. Church v. Marsh, 2 Hare, 652 ; 13 L. J., Ch. 12 ; 8 Jur. 54.

Suppression of Facts.]—A plaintiff claiming partly under the heirs of a French subject, and through an instrument of doubtful construction, obtained an order of course at the rolls to sue in formâ pauperis, upon the simple allegation of his poverty :—Held, that the order was irregular, on the ground of the suppression of the facts, which ought to have been presented for the consideration of the court upon the application. St. Victor v. Dereveux, 6 Beav. 584 ; 13 L. J., Ch. 102 ; 8 Jur. 26.

Irregularity.]—Where a plaintiff had obtained an order to sue in formâ pauperis, and the defendant had answered, and replication had been filed :—Held, that the defendants could not, three years afterwards, have the order to sue in formâ pauperis discharged for irregularity. Parkinson v. Hanbury, 4 De G. M. & G. 508 ; 1 Eq. R. 368 ; 22 L. J., Ch. 979 ; 1 W. R. 400, 509.

An order to allow a plaintiff to sue in formâ pauperis had been obtained on an affidavit, which was defective for the want of an addition of his profession or occupation :—Held, that the effect was a mere irregularity, and that after several months had elapsed, in which the defendant might have examined the affidavit, and in which various steps had been taken in the cause, it was too late for the defendant to move to set aside the order for the defect, and dispauper the plaintiff, although it was sworn that the defendant had only acquired knowledge of the defect three days before the motion. Seymour v. Maddox, 19 L. J., Q. B. 525.

Certificate required.]—On an application for leave to sue in formâ pauperis, a certificate of counsel must be produced that the petitioner has a good cause of action. Atkinson, In re, 23 L. R., Ir. 509.

In pauper suits it is the duty of counsel to satisfy himself, by an inspection of the accounts, that it is a case in which a decree for an account should be granted. Iles v. Flower, 6 L. T. 843.

The hand of counsel to the petition of a pauper, certifying that he has good cause of action, is for the information of the court ; and it is not necessary that a rule, admitting the plaintiff to sue in formâ pauperis, be drawn up on reading such certificate. Bryant v. Wagner, 7 D. P. C. 676 ; 3 Jur. 893.

Inspection of Case and Opinion.]—The defendant in an action where the plaintiff is suing as a pauper is not entitled to inspection of the case laid before counsel and his opinion thereon upon which the permission to sue as a pauper was obtained. Sloane v. British Steamship Co., 66 L. J., Q. B. 72; [1897] 1 Q. B. 185; 75 L. T. 542; 45 W. R. 203—C. A.

Motion — What Matters included in.]—A plaintiff may, on one motion, apply to be admitted to sue in formâ pauperis, and by prochein amy. Bryant v. Wagner, 7 D. P. C. 676; 3 Jur. 893.

Staying Proceedings until Payment of Costs.]—The Court of Exchequer stayed the proceedings in a pauper suit until the costs of a former suit in chancery were paid. Calvert v. Rooth, 4 Y. & Coll. 514.

Proceedings stayed until part of costs of former suit by same party suing in formâ pauperis in cases only of great vexation. Wild v. Hobson, 2 Ves. & B. 112.

When a pauper makes default in proceeding to trial, in pursuance of notice, and is resident without the jurisdiction of the court, on an application for the costs of the day, for not proceeding to trial, the defendant is entitled to make the payment of the costs a condition precedent of further proceedings. Cross v. Port of London Assurance Co., 18 L. J., Q. B. 72; 13 Jur. 125.

Notice of Motion—Signature.]—Ord. XVI. r. 29, which provides that no notice of motion shall be served on behalf of a pauper unless it is signed by a solicitor, does not apply to a pauper who elects to sue in person, and to whom, therefore, no solicitor has been assigned. Jacobs v. Crusha, 63 L. J., Q. B. 526; [1894] 2 Q. B. 37; 9 R. 392; 70 L. T. 524; 42 W. R. 387—C. A.

Assigning Counsel and Solicitor.]—In pauper suits the court will not compel a solicitor to act for the pauper; but the course is to assign to him counsel and a six clerk, and it is the duty of the six clerk to appoint one of the sixty clerks of his office to act on the part of the pauper. Lewis v. Kennett, 3 Russ. 466.

Where the master has reported that a defendant was unable, by reason of poverty, to employ a solicitor to put in his answer, the court, by one order, directed counsel and a solicitor to be assigned to the defendant, for the purpose of putting in his answer, and that a habeas corpus should issue against him, and that the plaintiff's clerk in court should attend with the record on the return of the writ, in order that the bill might be taken pro confesso against the defendant, unless he should, in the meantime, put in his answer. Welford v. Daniel, 9 Sim. 652; 3 Jur. 650.

The plaintiff sued in formâ pauperis, and had had counsel and a six clerk assigned to him. He had also, before and at the time of the decree, and since, in the registrar's and master's offices, employed a solicitor, who did not appear to have been changed by him, or discharged by the court:—Held, that he could not present a petition, not having the sanction of such solicitor, or some other officer of the court. Perry v. Walker, 2 Y. & Coll. C. C. 655; 13 L. J., Ch. 75; 8 Jur. 53.

A person suing in formâ pauperis must obtain the six clerk's certificate of the propriety of an appeal from a decision of the court below, before he can be heard. Emperingham v. Short, 11 L. J., Ch. 36; 5 Jur. 1076.

Appearance in Person.]—A pauper plaintiff, to whom counsel and solicitor had been assigned, gave notice of motion, and appeared in person in support of it:—Held, that a pauper plaintiff so circumstanced could not appear in person. Parkinson v. Hanbury, 4 De G. M. & G. 508; 1 Eq. R. 368; 22 L. J., Ch. 979; 1 W. R. 400, 509.

A person who has been admitted to sue as a pauper, but to whom no counsel has been assigned, is entitled to be heard in person. Tucker v. Collinson or Cotterell, 55 L. J., Q. B. 224; 16 Q. B. D. 562; 54 L. T. 263; 34 W. R. 354—C. A.

Appearance by Counsel.]—On the trial of an action brought in formâ pauperis, a king's counsel or a serjeant may appear for the plaintiff alone without a junior. James v. Harris, 7 Car. & P. 257.

Compromise.]—As a general rule, the court will not uphold any agreement of compromise between a plaintiff suing in formâ pauperis and the defendant, having for its object the deprival of the plaintiff's attorney of his costs; and, therefore, a plea of release puis darrein continuance was set aside by the court. Wright v. Burroughs, 3 C. B. 344; 15 L. J., C. P. 277; 10 Jur. 860.

Changing Solicitor.]—A plaintiff suing in formâ pauperis, having obtained a final decree, entered a rule to change her solicitor. Upon a motion by the solicitor that the rule should be rescinded, and the carriage of the decree restored to him, or that the plaintiff should pay to him the costs incurred, the court refused the application, without prejudice to any lien he might have on the fund. M'Ghee v. Mahon, Fl. & K. 93.

Account.]—Where a plaintiff suing in formâ pauperis establishes title to an account from the defendant, it is no objection to his obtaining a decree for an account that the defendant has produced evidence, uncontradicted by the plaintiff, to show that the balance of the account will be against the plaintiff. Smith v. Taggart, 1 L. J. (o.s.) Ch. 90.

Trespass—Injunction.]—A pauper defendant had committed various acts of trespass against the plaintiffs, which it was sought to restrain by injunction:—Held, on demurrer, that the power of recovering damages at law against a pauper did not constitute an adequate remedy; and that a bill for an injunction would consequently lie. Hodgson v. Duce, 4 W. R. 576.

From what Payments Exempted.]—A party admitted to sue in formâ pauperis is exempt from the payment of interlocutory as well as final costs, except in cases for not proceeding to trial pursuant to notice. Pratt v. Delarue, 2 D. (N.S.) 322; 10 M. & W. 509; 12 L. J., Ex. 25; 7 Jur. 91.

—— Amendment.]—The court will not allow as a matter of right, that a plaintiff, who sues in formâ pauperis, shall amend the declaration, after demurrer thereto, without payment of costs. Fowler v. Bank of England, 6 Q. B. 878; 2 D. & L. 790; 14 L. J., Q. B. 178; 9 Jur. 107.

Plaintiff suing in formâ pauperis shall not amend by leaving out defendants, without paying their costs. Wilkinson v. Belsher, 2 Bro. C. C. 272.

—— Not proceeding to Trial.]—Where a pauper in an action against magistrates of the northern division of the county of Lancaster, for a cause of action arising there, laid the venue in the southern division, and at the assizes withdrew the record:—Held, that he ought to pay the costs of the day, although not dispaupered. Thompson v. Hornby, 9 Q. B. 978; 16 L. J., Q. B. 152; 11 Jur. 169.

A plaintiff sued in formâ pauperis does not render himself liable to costs by countermanding notice of trial. Doe d. Pugh v. Price, 2 B. C. Rep. 311; 11 Jur. 170.

If a pauper withdraws his record because he is not prepared with a certain necessary document at the assizes, the court will compel him to pay the costs of the day. Doe d. Lindsey v. Edwards, 2 D. P. C. 471. S. P., Gore v. Morphew, 8 D. P. C. 137; 1 W. W. & H. 331.

If a person suing in formâ pauperis neglects to proceed to trial pursuant to notice, the defendant is entitled to the costs of the day, but not to dispauper him. Waller v. Joy, 16 M. & W. 60; 4 D. & L. 338; 16 L. J., Ex. 17. S. P., Pratt v. Delarue, supra.

Although the omission occurred through the negligence of the attorney's clerk. Hodges v. Toplis, 3 D. & L. 786; 2 C. B. 921; 15 L. J., C. P. 195; 10 Jur. 438.

—— Non-appearance at Trial.]—A plaintiff, suing in formâ pauperis, who applies for the restoration to the list of an action which has been dismissed owing to his absence through illness, may be required to pay the costs thrown away as a condition of his application being granted. Jacobs v. Crusha, 63 L. J., Q. B. 526; [1894] 2 Q. B. 37; 9 R. 392; 70 L. T. 524; 42 W. R. 387—C. A.

Dismissing Bill.]—Plaintiff obtained an order to sue in formâ pauperis, and filed two bills of complaint. Plaintiff afterwards obtained an order ex parte dismissing her own bill without costs:—Held, that the plaintiff being a pauper, cannot dismiss her own bill ex parte without costs. Parkinson v. Hanbury, 4 De G. M. & G. 508; 1 Eq. R. 368; 22 L. J., Ch. 979; 1 W. R. 400, 509.

A pauper plaintiff having moved to dismiss the bill as against two defendants, the court ordered it to be on payment of costs. Pearson v. Belsher, 3 Bro. C. C. 87. See also Corbett v. Corbett, 16 Ves. 407.

Payment of Costs out of Fund.]—Relief granted to plaintiff suing in formâ pauperis in a cause occasioned by their own default, on the terms that as the recovery afforded the means of payment, they should pay dives costs out of the fruit of the decree. M'Donough v. O'Flaherty, Beat. 54.

After a plea of payment of money into court the plaintiff obtained an order to sue in formâ pauperis. A judge, therefore, made an order that the money should remain in court, to abide the event of the cause, unless the plaintiff would take it out in full satisfaction. The defendant having obtained the verdict, the court ordered that the money should be paid out to him in satisfaction of his costs antecedent to the order to sue in formâ pauperis. Casey v. Tomlin, 7 M. & W. 189; 8 D. P. C. 892; 10 L. J., Ex. 87.

Court Fees.]—A plaintiff suing in formâ pauperis, who has obtained a verdict, is entitled to have judgment signed without payment of fees, though the amount of the verdict is more than 5*l*. Hoare v. Coupland, 1 L. M. & P. 57; 19 L. J., Q. B. 150; 14 Jur. 247.

A person suing in formâ pauperis is entitled to the chief clerk's certificate without paying the court fees, even though the order enabling him to sue has been made after the certificate was ready. Thomas v. Ellis, 8 Ch. D. 518; 26 W. R. 839—C. A. See Ord. XVI. r. 25.

Liability of Solicitor to pay Costs.]—A pauper's solicitor will be ordered to pay the costs of any irregular proceeding. Brown v. Dawson, 2 Hog. 76.

Taxation of Plaintiff's Costs—Costs out of Pocket.]—Under the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883. Ord. XVI. rr. 24, 25, 26, 27, 31, a successful plaintiff in an action in formâ pauperis tried before a judge and jury is entitled upon taxation as against the defendant to costs out of pocket only, and cannot be allowed anything for remuneration to his solicitor or fees to counsel. Carson v. Pickersgill, 54 L. J., Q. B. 484; 14 Q. B. D. 859; 52 L. T. 950; 33 W. R. 589; 49 J. P. 612—C. A.

A plaintiff suing in formâ pauperis, who recovers a verdict above 5*l*. and obtains a certificate for his costs, is only entitled to recover from the defendant such costs as he has paid and is liable to pay; and therefore on taxation, fees to his counsel and attorney, which are not payable by him, are not to be allowed. Dooley v. G. N. Ry., 4 El. & Bl. 341; 3 C. L. R. 110; 24 L. J., Q. B. 25; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 28; 3 W. R. 76.

If one is admitted to defend a suit in chancery in formâ pauperis, his solicitor can only recover of him money actually paid out of pocket for the defence of the suit. Philipe v. Baker, 1 Car. & P. 533.

Where the plaintiff, a pauper, had a decree for the duty and costs, and the master taxed full costs, yet, on motion, the court ordered plaintiff and his solicitor to make oath before a master of what they had paid, or were to pay, and that to be allowed, but no further. Angell v. Smith, Pre. Ch. 219.

Defendant to a bill by a pauper plaintiff put in a plea and demurrer, which were both overruled; and it was insisted that he should have no costs, being at none; but Lord Somers ordered him his costs like other suitors, for though he is at no costs, or but small costs, yet the counsel and clerks do not give their labour to the defendant, but to the pauper. Scatchmer v. Foulkard, 1 Eq. Abr. 125.

The general rule is, that a party who sues or defends in formâ pauperis shall have only such costs as he has paid or become liable to pay; but the court has a discretion in each case. An heir-at-law defending in formâ pauperis, in a suit to establish a will, was held under the circumstances to be entitled only to pauper costs. Stafford v. Higginbotham, 2 Keen, 147; 6 L. J., Ch. 314.

Party suing in formâ pauperis and proving successful, declared entitled to ordinary costs. Roberts v. Lloyd, 2 Beav. 376.

Plaintiff a pauper; costs of impertinence expunged from the answer ordered to be taxed as dives costs to be paid into court. Rattray v. George, 16 Ves. 232.

Where costs are awarded to a party suing or defending in formâ pauperis, they ought in general to be dives and not pauper costs. But the existing practice of the taxing-masters, whose costs are awarded simpliciter to a party suing or defending in formâ pauperis, is to tax them as pauper costs only; and therefore, where it is intended that the party should have dives costs, the decree or order ought to contain a special direction to that effect. Rubery v. Morris, 1 Macn. & G. 413; 1 H. & Tw. 400; 16 Sim. 481; 18 L. J., Ch. 444; 12 Jur. 689.

The plaintiff had obtained an order to dismiss his bill as against a pauper defendant:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to dives costs. S. C., 16 Sim. 433.

A pauper asking for costs of an abandoned motion is entitled to dives costs. Mornington (Lady) v. Keane, 24 L. J., Ch. 400; 3 Eq. R. 578; 3 W. R. 429.

When a pauper plaintiff obtains a decree for payment of money, it is to be drawn up on stamps as in a dives suit. Hansard v. Kemeys, 1 Jac. & Walk. 189.

A married woman filed a bill suing in formâ pauperis, under an order of the court, without a next friend, and obtained a decree. On an unsuccessful appeal, the appellant was ordered to pay to the plaintiff herself dives costs. Wellesley v. Wellesley, 1 De G. M. & G. 501; 21 L. J., Ch. 738.

One of the defendants was admitted to sue in formâ pauperis. The decree ordered generally that the costs of all parties should be taxed and paid out of the estate; the costs of the pauper defendant shall be taxed as dives costs. Wallop v. Warburton, 2 Cox, 409; 2 R. R. 89.

If a trustee defendant is in the situation of being sued in formâ pauperis, but is clearly entitled to his costs out of the estate, his costs will be ordered to be taxed as dives costs. Ib., 411.

—— Appeal—Irregularity.]—Where a respondent suing in formâ pauperis has not appeared to an appeal until it is appointed for hearing, he may still, by leave of the house of lords, lodge his printed cases, and, at the same time, be heard at the bar in support of the decree, but although he has a clear case on the merits, and the appeal is dismissed, he will not be allowed his costs. Gordon v. Clyne, 6 Cl. & F. 539.

—— Costs of Witnesses.]—A pauper opposed a will which was pronounced against on the grounds of incapacity and undue influence:—Held, that the pauper was entitled to the costs incurred in producing his witnesses. Powell v. Scantlebury, 1 Jur. (N.S.) 95.

The rule requiring that the costs of witnesses be actually paid before the allowance of them, on taxation, applies to a plaintiff suing in formâ pauperis. Freeman v. Rasher, 6 D. & L. 517; 18 L. J., Q. B. 105; 13 Jur. 427.

Liability for Costs incurred before Order.]—A pauper is liable to costs, precedent to his admission to sue as such. Anon., Mos. 66.

A party admitted to sue in formâ pauperis after the commencement of a suit, may be attached for nonpayment of costs, which have been previously ordered to be paid in that suit, without being first dispaupered. Davenport v. Davenport, 1 Ph. 124; 11 L. J., Ch. 325; 6 Jur. 633.

A plaintiff obtained an order to sue in formâ pauperis, but before it was served the defendant gave a notice to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution. The plaintiff then served the defendant with his order to sue in formâ pauperis, and filed a replication. The defendant having brought on the motion for the purpose of getting the costs of it:—Held, that he was entitled to such costs, as the order to sue in formâ pauperis only took effect from the time of service. Smith v. Pawson, 2 De G. & Sm. 490; 17 L. J., Ch. 454; 12 Jur. 819.

Where a defendant does not at the first, but does at the latter, stage of the suit defend in formâ pauperis, the court, should the merits so require, will direct him to pay the costs up to the time when he became a pauper. Prince Albert v. Strange, 13 Jur. 507.

A plaintiff, who had obtained an order to sue in formâ pauperis:—Held, to be liable to pay dives costs, he not having served the order on the defendant. Ballard v. Catling, 2 Keen, 606; 7 L. J., Ch. 186.

Where the order for leave to sue in formâ pauperis has not been served, and is not rendered inoperative by any subsequent step in the cause, it is in the discretion of the court, either to give costs to the pauper, or to order him to pay them, as the case may be. Church v. Marsh, 2 Hare, 654; 13 L. J., Ch. 12; 8 Jur. 54.

Payment of Money to Pauper for Costs.]—In Hinckley v. Appleby (cited 2 Cox, 409), defendant was ordered to pay a pauper plaintiff 50*l.*, on account of her property without prejudice, and plaintiff, afterwards obtaining a decree, was allowed her costs, which were taxed as dives costs in the usual manner. And in Jones v. Coxeter (2 Atk. 399), it being suggested that plaintiff would not be able, on account of her poverty, to carry on the cause, unless defendant were directed to pay something to her in the meantime, Lord Hardwicke ordered the costs, decreed to be paid to plaintiff, to be taxed, and paid to her by defendant, to enable her to go on with the cause. See also Dickenson v. Mavie, Dick. 582; Tillotson v. Hargreaves, 4 Madd. 172.

Where a pauper claimed as heir-at-law against a will and deed which were disputed, and the bill had been retained, with liberty to bring an action, the tenants were ordered to pay plaintiff 150*l.*, to enable him to go to trial. Perishal v. Squire, Dick. 31; Beam. Costs 379, inserted from the Register Book, from which it appears that this indulgence was extended also to one of the defendants.

Solicitor's Lien.]—When a pauper obtains a decree for debt and costs, his solicitor has a lien on the sum recovered for dives costs, though the fund is deficient for payment of the plaintiff's demand. Quin v. Boukin, 2 Hog. 240.

Committal.]—A pauper is liable to be committed for filing an improper bill. Pearson v. Belchier, 4 Ves. 630.

A pauper in contempt, is like any other suitor in contempt, and cannot be discharged unless he pays dives costs. Murphy v. Oldis, 2 Moll. 475.

This court, either by virtue of its general jurisdiction, or under statute 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 36, r. 17, has power to discharge a pauper defendant out of custody without compelling him to pay costs incurred previously to the order to defend in formâ pauperis. Bennett v. Chudleigh, 2 Y. & Coll. C. C. 164 ; 7 Jur. 166.

A motion to discharge pauper defendants, under 23 & 24 Vict. c. 149, the plaintiffs appeared and consented to an order, but applied for costs to be paid out of the Suitors' Fund. The court refused the application. Ward v. Woodcock, 5 L. T. 816—L. C.

On motion on behalf of a pauper in contempt, that he may be discharged from custody, the court has no authority, under the Courts of Justice (Salaries and Funds) Act, 1869, 32 & 33 Vict. c. 91, to order the costs of the plaintiff, upon his own application, to be provided for by the Treasury. Hall v. Hall, 40 L. J., Ch. 236 ; L. R. 11 Eq. 290 ; 23 L. T. 837 ; 19 W. R. 467.

3. Dispaupering.

Order must be entered.]—An order, allowing a plaintiff to sue in formâ pauperis, must be made a rule of court before the court will entertain a motion to discharge it. Hawes v. Johnson, 1 Y. & J. 10.

On what Grounds.]—If a plaintiff has been guilty of repeated defaults in not proceeding to trial, he may be dispaupered, and ordered to pay the costs of the day by the same rule. Bedwell v. Coulstring, 1 B. C. Rep. 97 ; 3 D. & L. 767.

Where a pauper gave notice of trial, and, on the second day of the assizes, withdrew his record, on the ground of its requiring amendment, the court dispaupered him. Faur or Facer v. French, 5 D. P. C. 554 ; W. W. & D. 195.

A plaintiff in ejectment suing in formâ pauperis will be dispaupered in case of vexatious delay. Doe d. Leppingwell v. Trussell, 6 East, 505 ; 2 Smith, 676 ; 8 R. R. 518.

Pauper plaintiffs who had been guilty of vexatious conduct in the suit, ordered to be dispaupered. Wagner v. Mears, 3 Sim. 127.

Improper and vexatious conduct in a former suit, or a subscription, though liable to be impeached as maintenance, no ground for dispaupering. Corbett v. Corbett, 16 Ves. 407.

Circumstances under which a plaintiff, appearing to be conducting his suit in a vexatious manner, will be dispaupered. Daintree v. Haynes, 12 Jur. 594.

Semble, that a pauper plaintiff or defendant may be dispaupered for vexatious conduct in the suit. Perry v. Walker, 1 Coll. 229 ; 8 Jur. 680.

A libellous handbill published by the bankrupt against the assignees and the solicitor to the commission, is not a sufficient ground for discharging an order which allowed the bankrupt to petition in formâ pauperis. Morland, Ex parte, 3 Deac. & C. 248.

When arbitration is proposed in a pauper cause, if the pauper refuses, he will be dispaupered. Supple v. ——, 2 Moll. 345.

A party admitted to sue in formâ pauperis being executor and residuary legatee, ordered, upon becoming insolvent, to be dispaupered on the ground of his then suing only in his representative capacity. Oldfield v. Cobbett, 2 Beav. 444 ; 10 L. J., Ch. 232 ; 5 Jur. 115.

A surgeon was admitted a pauper, and swore that he had no patients or income. The court refused to dispauper him on the allegation of the adverse party, that he was capable of earning an income. Spratt v. Spratt, 5 W. R. 323.

Where it appeared, from the affidavits in answer to an application to dispauper the defendant, that many facts were not denied, and that he had improperly obtained the order, or was putting on a fraudulent appearance of credit, the court discharged the order with costs. Romilly v. Grint, 2 Beav. 186 ; 9 L. J., Ch. 109.

An order dispaupering the plaintiff, obtained on affidavit of service on his solicitor at his office, discharged, but without costs, on the ground of a misnomer of the solicitor in the notice of motion. Moody v. Hebberd, 17 L. J., Ch. 24 ; 11 Jur. 941.

i. Third Parties.

Intervention by.]—A stranger to an action injuriously affected through any judgment suffered by default may intervene in one of two ways. He may either obtain the defendant's leave to use the defendant's name, if the defendant has not already bound himself to allow such use of his name to be made ; and he may thereupon, in the defendant's name, apply to have the judgment set aside on terms. Or he may take out a summons in his own name at chambers, to be served on both the defendant and plaintiff, asking leave to have the judgment set aside, and to be at liberty to defend the action on terms. Per cur. Jacques v. Harrison, 53 L. J., Q. B. 137 ; 12 Q. B. D. 165 ; 50 L. T. 246 ; 32 W. R. 471—C. A.

Notice claiming Contribution or Indemnity.]—See post, col. 229.

j. Persons having Conduct of Proceedings.

General Rule.]—The general rule that where two actions have been commenced for the administration of the same estate, the conduct of the proceedings will be given to the plaintiff in the first action, although the decree in the second has been obtained first, applies to actions commenced in the palatine court of Lancaster, as well as to those commenced in the High Court of Justice. Swire, In re, Mellor v. Swire, 21 Ch. D. 647 ; 46 L. T. 437 ; 30 W. R. 525.

—— Application of—Special Circumstances.]—In considering whether the rule ought to be applied, the court will have regard to the special circumstances, and will take into account the amount of the interest of the plaintiff in the first action, and his object in bringing his action. The fact of a plaintiff, being a stranger to the family, who had bought up the reversionary interests of some of the residuary legatees, held not a sufficient reason for not giving him the conduct of the proceedings, although his purchase of some of the shares was disputed on the ground of inadequacy of consideration and undue influence. Ib.

Where three actions had been commenced for the administration of the same estate, the court (notwithstanding the general rule that the plaintiff in the first action is entitled to the conduct of the proceedings), ordered the three actions to be consolidated, and gave the conduct of the future proceeding in the consolidated causes to the plaintiff in the second action, on the ground that the parties thereto were the persons chiefly interested, by whom the costs would have to be borne, and, consequently, to whose advantage it would be to keep down the expenses. Prime's Estate, In re, 48 L. T. 208.

A judgment creditor of the defendant brought an action in the court of the county palatine of Lancaster, to obtain a declaration that he had a charge upon certain lands of the defendant, comprised in a certain deed of settlement, and to carry into effect the trusts of the settlement. He obtained judgment for a declaration on his charge, and for administration, inquiries and a receiver. Afterwards one of the beneficiaries under the settlement brought an action in the high court to carry into effect the trusts of the settlement, and charging the trustees with a breach of trust. Judgment was obtained, and inquiries directed, including one as to the breach of trust:—Held, that the plaintiff in the palatine action was not a stranger to the action in the high court, and was entitled to the conduct of that action; and he undertaking to add the inquiry as to the breach of trust to the inquiry in the palatine action, the court stayed all proceedings in the action in the high court. Townsend v. Townsend, 23 Ch. D. 100; 48 L. T. 694; 31 W. R. 735.

A creditor of a partnership firm brought an administration action against the executor of a deceased partner. Afterwards a separate creditor of the same partner brought an administration action against the executor, and obtained judgment:—Held, on an application by the plaintiff in the first action for the conduct of the proceedings in the second action, that a joint creditor of a firm could not maintain a simple action for the administration of the estate of a deceased partner, and therefore that the first action was not properly constituted. The application of the plaintiff was consequently refused. McRae, In re, Forster v. Davis, 53 L. J., Ch. 1132; 25 Ch. D. 16; 49 L. T. 544; 32 W. R. 304.

In a question as to the carriage of a decree for a sale in two suits, where the solicitor in the first had taken an assignment of a charge, prior to the plaintiffs, and it was in that cause reported at 1,800*l.*, but in the second cause at 900*l.* (which was explained by a difference in the accounts decreed):—Held, that the solicitor in the first cause having, by the assignment, an interest different from the plaintiffs, the carriage of the decree should be given to the plaintiffs in the second suit. Keons v. Magawly, 7 Ir. Eq. R. 603.

Conduct of suit given, on motion, to one of two co-plaintiffs, the other not appearing to have any interest. Rowlinson v. Hallifax, 2 Sim. & S. 27.

Decree in one Suit obtained.]—Two suits were instituted to administer the same estate. The plaintiff in the first suit was not a party to the second. A decree having been obtained in the second suit, the proceedings in the first suit were stayed. The conduct of the cause was given to the plaintiff in the first suit. Belcher v. Belcher, 6 N. R. 314; 13 W. R. 913.

Two suits for the administration of the same will were instituted on behalf of an infant; the bill in the second suit being filed after a decree had been made in the first suit, but before it had been drawn up. All the parties to the first suit were represented by the same solicitor, and the next friend was that solicitor's clerk:—Held, in the absence of evidence against the character or conduct of the next friend, that there was no ground for disturbing the decree. Lloyd v. Davies, 3 N. R. 700; 10 L. T. 182.

Two suits were instituted in consecutive months on behalf of the same infant plaintiffs for the administration of the same estate: a decree was obtained by consent in the later suit, and an order subsequently made staying proceedings in the earlier suit: the solicitors for the plaintiffs in the later suit were the London agents of the solicitors of the defendant in both suits:—Held, that the later suit ought not to have been instituted, and the conduct of the later suit was given to the next friend who had instituted the earlier suit. Frost v. Ward, 3 N. R. 348; 9 L. T. 668; 12 W. R. 285—L.JJ.

Co-plaintiffs disagreeing.]—When one of two co-plaintiffs refuses to concur in the appointment of a solicitor, there being no solicitor on the record, the proper course is for the remaining plaintiff to apply in chambers for the sole conduct of the cause on a summons taken out in person against the refusing plaintiff only; and a motion to strike out the name of the refusing party as plaintiff, and make him a defendant, will be refused. Butlin v. Arnold, 1 Hem. & M. 715; 3 N. R. 687; 10 L. T. 95; 12 W. R. 571.

Transfer to other Party.]—The master has jurisdiction, under the 147th General Order, to transfer the carriage of a decree from a plaintiff, who, through want of interest, is unwilling to proceed. Biddulph v. Fitzgerald, Sau. & Sc. 434.

Plaintiff's solicitor neglecting to proceed under the decree, will be ordered in default to lodge the decree and order of reference with his six clerk, and then party applying to be at liberty to proceed instead of plaintiff. Charitable Bequests Commissioners v. Walsh, 2 Moll. 382.

Where the plaintiff omitted to prosecute an order upon a claim:—Held, that the court might give a defendant leave to sue out writs of summons to bring before the master the parties required by the terms of the order. Turnbull v. Warne, 2 De G. M. & G. 281.

Costs of Inquiries.]—Where a party, who eventually proved not to be entitled to property, the subject of the suit, claimed to be entitled, and was entrusted by the court with the conduct of inquiries in respect thereof:—Held, on the principle of the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 127, s. 28, that he ought to be paid his costs of the inquiries out of the estate. Best v. Stonehewer, 1 W. R. 419.

Duty to protect Interests.]—When one of several cestuis que trustent institutes a suit for relief in respect of a breach of trust, he is bound, in the conduct of the suit, to take care of the interests of the others as well as of his own. Williams v. Powell, 2 Ph. 329.

Matter of Discretion.]—An order giving a party the conduct of proceedings is a matter entirely within the discretion of the judge. Dowbiggin v. Trotter, 20 W. R. 1024.

k. Other Points.

Disagreement of Co-plaintiffs.]—Where one of two co-plaintiffs refuses to concur in the appointment of a solicitor, there being no solicitor on the record, the proper course is for the remaining plaintiff to apply for the sole conduct of the cause on a summons taken out in person against the refusing plaintiff only. Butlin v. Arnold, 1

Hem. & M. 715; 3 N. R. 687; 10 L. T. 95; 12 W. R. 571.

Co-plaintiffs must act together, and cannot take inconsistent proceedings. One of several co-plaintiffs moved for liberty to take a state of facts into the master's office, and proceed thereon apart from the rest. The motion was refused with costs. Wedderburn v. Wedderburn, 17 Beav. 158.

Nominal Plaintiff.]—A party carrying on a suit in the name of another, under a power of attorney, is bound by the acts of the nominal plaintiff, so far as not to be able to have them set aside by petition in the suit; but he must file a supplemental bill; and that, though the defendant knew at the time that the plaintiff was but nominally so. Pentland v. Quarrington, 3 Myl. & C. 249.

Proceeding against some Defendants only.]—The names of two defendants having been inserted in the writ of summons, separate proceedings were taken against each:—Held, irregular. Pepper v. Whalley, 1 Bing. (N.C.) 71; 2 D. P. C. 821.

Upon a writ against several, the plaintiff may declare against one only; but if he declares against any other afterwards, he will be irregular. Caldwell v. Blake, 2 C. M. & R. 249; 3 D. P. C. 656; 1 Gale, 157; 4 L. J., Ex. 200. S. P., Carson v. Dowding, 4 D. P. C. 297; 1 H. & W. 507.

Nominal Defendant — Indemnity against Costs.]—Where the defendant in an action had agreed, in consideration of an indemnity against costs, to allow a third party to defend the action in his name, and had in pursuance of that agreement given to such third party's solicitor a retainer to act in the defence of the "action and any appeals therefrom":—Held, that the indemnity appearing to be undoubtedly sufficient, the nominal defendant had no right to withdraw the retainer so as to prevent, or otherwise to interfere with, an appeal in his name to the house of lords. Injunction granted to restrain him from so doing. Whether, if the sufficiency of the indemnity had been doubtful, the result would have been the same, quære. Montforts v. Marsden, 64 L. J., Ch. 52; [1895] 1 Ch. 11; 12 R. 193; 71 L. T. 620—C. A.

Amendment—Change of Character.] — The court being asked to convert an action against the lords of the admiralty for an injunction in respect of alleged trespass into a maintainable action, by giving the plaintiffs leave to amend the writ by suing the lords individually and adding as parties the servants of the admiralty who were the trespassers, refused such leave and dismissed the action, but without prejudice to any action maintainable by the plaintiffs. Raleigh v. Goschen, 67 L. J., Ch. 59; [1898] 1 Ch. 73; 77 L. T. 429; 46 W. R. 90.

III. JOINDER OF CAUSES OF ACTION.

a. In ordinary Cases, 121.
b. In Actions for Recovery of Land, 123.
c. In Actions against Executors, &c., 125.

a. IN ORDINARY CASES.

See R. S. C., Ord. XVIII.

Same Plaintiffs—Slander—Same Defendants.]—The plaintiffs, a mother and daughter, brought an action for slander against the defendants, a husband and wife. The statement of claim alleged several distinct slanders, some of one plaintiff, some of the other:—Held, that these were two separate actions, that the plaintiffs were improperly joined, that they must elect which plaintiff would proceed, and that so much of the statement of claim as related to the other plaintiff must be struck out. Sandes v. Wildsmith, 62 L. J., Q. B. 404; [1893] 1 Q. B. 771; 67 L. T. 387.

One by Plaintiff alone—Other by Plaintiff and others.]—In an action two causes of action were joined, the one by K. alone, and the other by K. as a shareholder in a company, with certain other persons being "all the other shareholders" against the same defendant:—Held, that such causes of action were wrongly joined. Kelso v. Goldsmid, 53 J. P. 200.

Unconnected Claims against several Defendants.]—To bring into one claim distinct causes of action against different persons, neither of them having anything to do with the other (except as far as it is historically connected with it as one matter in the transaction) is not contemplated by Ord. XVIII. r. 1, which authorises the joinder not of several actions against distinct persons, but of several causes of action. Burstall v. Beyfus, 53 L. J., Ch. 565; 26 Ch. D. 35; 50 L. T. 542; 32 W. R. 418—C. A.

Inconsistent or Embarrassing Claims.]—A plaintiff alleged in his statement of claim that he had been induced by the misrepresentations of the defendant to enter into an agreement for partnership with him. He also alleged that he, the plaintiff, had carried out the agreement on his part, but that the defendant refused to continue to carry it out on his. He then claimed that the agreement might be declared void, or, in the alternative, that the partnership might be dissolved, and the accounts taken and the assets realised. The defendant moved for an order confining the plaintiff's action to one or other of the causes of action in respect of which he sought relief:—Held that the motion must be refused, as there was nothing inconsistent either in the relief claimed or in the allegations in the statement. Bagot v. Easton, 47 L. J., Ch. 225; 7 Ch. D. 1; 37 L. T. 369; 26 W. R. 66—C. A.

A claim in which the vendor of goods and the indorsees of a bill given by the purchaser to the vendor for the price jointly sue the purchaser to recover the price, and also upon the dishonoured bill, is embarrassing, and may therefore be struck out. Smith v. Richardson, 48 L. J., C. P. 140; 4 C. P. D. 112; 40 L. T. 256; 27 W. R. 230.

Where two distinct trust funds have been so mixed together by the trustees of them that neither fund can be dealt with separately, a bill is not multifarious which relates to both funds, but prays relief only in respect of one of them. Margetts v. Perks, 10 L. T. 85; 12 W. R. 517.

Antagonistic Cases.] — Semble, antagonistic cases cannot be combined by co-plaintiffs in an action, as, for example, where the claim of one plaintiff is founded upon a case which can only succeed if the case of the other co-plaintiff fails. Att.-Gen. v. Durham (Earl), 46 L. T. 16.

b. In Actions for Recovery of Land.

Application for Leave to Join.]—An application for leave to join another action with an action for the recovery of land must be made before the writ is issued. Pilcher, In re, Pilcher v. Hinds, 48 L. J., Ch. 587; 11 Ch. D. 905; 40 L. T. 832; 27 W. R. 789—C. A.

Where another action had been joined with an action for the recovery of land without leave, the court refused to grant leave to continue the action in that form although the defendants had appeared. Ib.

Issue joined—Action set down—Counter-claim for Recovery of Land.]—In an action for specific performance of an agreement to grant a lease and build a house, issue had been joined, the pleadings shewed no real dispute between the parties, and the action had been set down for trial. The plaintiff had taken possession under the agreement:—Held, that leave ought not to be given to the defendant to amend his counter-claim by adding thereto a claim for recovery of the land agreed to be let. Clark v. Wray, 55 L. J., Ch. 119; 31 Ch. D. 68; 53 L. T. 485; 34 W. R. 69.

What are Actions for Recovery of Land.]—An action to establish title to land is an action for the recovery of land so as to require the leave of the court for its joinder with another cause of action. Whetstone v. Dewis, 45 L. J., Ch. 49; 1 Ch. D. 99; 33 L. T. 501; 24 W. R. 93.

An action "to establish title to land," not claiming possession, is not an action "for the recovery of land," so as to require the leave of the court, under Rules of the Supreme Court, r. 2 of Ord. XVII., for its joinder with another cause of action. Whetstone v. Dewis (1 Ch. D. 99) not followed. Gledhill v. Hunter, 49 L. J., Ch. 333; 14 Ch. D. 492; 42 L. T. 392; 28 W. R. 530.

Where the writ was indorsed for declaration of title, declaration that a lease was granted under a mistake, recovery of rents and profits, and a receiver, and the statement of claim asked also for possession:—Held, that this was an action for recovery of land and nothing else, and that there was no joinder of any cause of action which required the leave of the court. Ib. Cp. Norwich Corporation v. Brown, 48 L. T. 898.

A foreclosure action is not an action for the recovery of land within the meaning of the Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XVII. r. 2. Tawell v. Slate Co., 3 Ch. D. 629.

A claim for a declaration that a mortgage is invalid, and for possession on that footing, may be joined with an alternative claim to redeem the mortgage if valid, without any leave under Ord. XVIII. r. 2. Hunt v. Worsfold, 65 L. J., Ch. 548; [1896] 2 Ch. 224; 74 L. T. 456; 44 W. R. 461.

Applies to Counter-claim.]—The provision of r. 2 of Ord. XVII., that no cause of action, except those specified in that rule, shall, unless by leave of the court, be joined with an action for the recovery of land, applies to a counter-claim as well as to an original action. Compton or Comton v. Preston, 51 L. J., Ch. 680; 21 Ch. D. 138; 47 L. T. 122; 30 W. R. 563.

Injunction not a Separate Cause of Action.]—A purchaser of real property brought an action claiming quiet possession of the property purchased, and an injunction to restrain the defendant from interfering with such possession:—Held, that the claim for an injunction was not a separate cause of action, and could be joined with that for possession without the leave of the court. Kendrick v. Roberts, 46 L. T. 59; 30 W. R. 365.

A writ was issued claiming recovery of possession of premises; and also an injunction to restrain nuisance contrary to the provisions of the lease, and damages. Leave of the court had not been obtained for the joinder of the causes of action:—Held, that the writ was good in form, for though a perpetual injunction might be relief inconsistent with the terms of Ord. XVIII. r. 2, yet an interlocutory injunction was within the terms of the rule, being a substitute for damages which might be assessed for the continuing breach between the issue of the writ and the trial. Read v. Wotton, 62 L. J., Ch. 481; [1893] 2 Ch. 171; 3 R. 374; 68 L. T. 209; 41 W. R. 556.

What Claims will be allowed to be Joined.]—An action for the administration of personal estate may be joined with an action to establish title to real estate where the plaintiff claims both estates under a common gift in the same will. Whetstone v. Dewis, 45 L. J., Ch. 49; 1 Ch. D. 99; 33 L. T. 501; 24 W. R. 93.

Leave will be given to join with an action for the recovery of land an action for the recovery or delivery up of a deed relating to the land; also for the recovery of personal estate comprised in the same instrument. Cook v. Enchmarch, 45 L. J., Ch. 504; 2 Ch. D. 111; 24 W. R. 293.

In an action by the heir-at-law, who was also one of the next of kin of an intestate, against the administratrix, who was in possession of the intestate's real estate, leave was given to join a claim for the recovery of the land, and a claim for the administration of the estate. Kitching v. Kitching, 24 W. R. 901.

Leave was given to join, with an action for the recovery of land, a claim for a receiver. Allen v. Kennet, 24 W. R. 845.

Where an agreement for a tenancy had failed and the plaintiff brought an action for recovery of the land, and the defendant, who had entered into possession of the land, set up the agreement as a defence; on summons brought by the plaintiff for leave to amend the indorsement on the writ by claiming a valuation which he alleged that the defendant had agreed to pay on entering into possession of the land, but had not paid:—Held, that the plaintiff had a right to claim the valuation under the agreement as an alternative, in case he failed in recovering the land, and that the amendment should be allowed. Rushbrooke v. Farley, 54 L. J., Ch. 1079; 52 L. T. 572; 33 W. R. 557. See also Clark v. Wray, supra.

A mortgage was created of certain land by A., who subsequently went into liquidation. The trustee in the liquidation sold the equity of redemption to B. An action was brought by the mortgagee against B. for foreclosure. The security was insufficient, and it was necessary to obtain possession as soon as possible. On demanding possession, however, the mortgagee found that A. was in possession and refused to go out. The mortgagee asked for leave to amend the writ in the action by adding the name of A.

as a defendant, and by including, as part of the relief sought, a claim for recovery of possession of the mortgaged property:—Held, that the leave could not be granted. Sutcliffe v. Wood, 53 L. J., Ch. 970; 50 L. T. 705.

A declaration contained counts for double rent, and for use and occupation. The court refused a rule to strike out one of the two counts. Thornton v. Whitehead, 1 M. & W. 14; 4 D. P. C. 747; 1 Gale, 359; 1 Tyr. & G. 313; 5 L. J., Ex. 113.

Irregularity—Appearance—"Fresh Step" in the Proceedings.]—Ord. LXX. r. 2, does not prevent a defendant who has appeared to a writ ex facie irregular under Ord. XVIII. r. 2, from applying to stay proceedings. Mulckern v. Doerks (53 L. J., Q. B. 526) not followed. Hunt v. Worsfold, 65 L. J., Ch. 548; [1896] 2 Ch. 224; 74 L. T. 456; 44 W. R. 461.

—— Objection by Defence.]—The plaintiff, without obtaining leave of the court, joined a claim for recovery of land with other claims. By his statement of claim he altered his claim for relief by omitting the claim for recovery of land. The defendant by his defence raised the objection that the writ of summons was issued without leave of the court:—Held, that the defence ought not to be struck out as embarrassing. Wilmott v. Freehold House Property Co., 51 L. T. 552—C. A.

Semble, that such an objection is properly pleaded in the defence, that the plaintiff cannot cure the irregularity in his writ by omitting his claim for recovery of land from his statement of claim, that to cure the irregularity the writ of summons must be amended, and that such amendment cannot be made without the consent of the defendant. Ib.

c. IN ACTIONS AGAINST EXECUTORS, &C.

In what Cases.]—Semble, that Ord. XVIII. r. 5, refers to a case where the plaintiff's personal claim is in respect of the assets of the testator as such. Johnson v. Burges, 47 L. J., Ch. 552.

Where a plaintiff sues in her own right, a defendant will not be allowed to set up, by way of counter-claim, a claim against the plaintiff as executrix. Macdonald v. Carington, 48 L. J., C. P. 179; 4 C. P. D. 28; 39 L. T. 426; 27 W. R. 153.

In an action against executors a cause of action in respect of a tort committed by them in the lifetime of the testator cannot be joined with a claim on a contract made with the testator. Whitworth v. Darbishire, 5 R. 198; 68 L. T. 216; 41 W. R. 317.

Time for taking Objection.]—An action was commenced against a trustee and the executors of his deceased co-trustee for the administration of the estate of a testatrix. The plaintiffs subsequently amended their statement of claim without the leave of the court, and asked that one of the executors of the deceased trustee might be ordered to give up possession of a certain inn belonging to the trust estate. It was pleaded by the defence and urged at the trial that this pleading was irregular, as joining two causes of action without leave:—Held, that the defendant should have applied at once to have the pleadings set right, and the objection was now untenable. Derbon, In re, Derbon v. Collis, 58 L. T. 519; 36 W. R. 667.

a. FORM AND CONTENTS OF, &C.

1. Teste, Date and Title.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. II. s. 8.

Teste.]—A writ of summons was issued complying in all respects with the requisites prescribed by the General Orders of the High Court, with the exception of an inaccuracy in the teste, the omission being the name of the Lord Chancellor: the words "witnessed Lord High Chancellor" were attached, but not the name "Hardinge Stanley, Baron Halsbury":—Held, that the writ so issued was good. McNay v. Alt, 66 L. T. 832.

A writ will not be set aside because the christian name of the chief justice is misstated therein. Folkard v. Fitzstubbs, 1 F. & F. 376.

A copy tested on a Sunday, and service thereof (the writ being correctly tested), are merely irregular and waived by laches. Corrall v. Foulkes, 5 D. & L. 590; 2 B. C. Rep. 262.

—— Amendment of.]—See post, col. 141.

Date.]—If a defective writ is resealed, it ought to be dated of the day of resealing. Knight v. Warren, 7 D. P. C. 663.

A writ dated on a Sunday is a nullity, and the objection is not waived by lapse of time. Hanson v. Shackelton, 4 D. P. C. 48; 1 H. & W. 342.

A mistake in the year in the teste, of the copy of a writ, the writ itself being right, is a mere irregularity, which is waived if the defendant does not come to the court before the time for entering an appearance has elapsed. Edwards v. Collins, 5 D. P. C. 227; 2 H. & W. 299.

The court has no power to alter the date of a writ of summons. Clark v. Smith, 2 H. & N. 753; 27 L. J., Ex. 155.

Where such an alteration is made by a judge, in order to prevent the operation of the Statute of Limitations, the defendant does not waive the objection by appearing to the writ after notice. Ib.

—— Amendment of.]—See post, col. 142.

Title.]—The writ of summons in an action for administration ought to be intitled in the matter of the estate. Eyre v. Cox, 24 W. R. 317.

2. Names and Description of Parties.

Names of Plaintiffs.]—If a name on the face of the writ is naught or uncertain, the writ is bad. Walker v. Parkins, 2 D. & L. 982; 14 L. J., Q. B. 214; 9 Jur. 665.

A variation in the spelling of a plaintiff's name in a single letter between the writ and the subsequent proceedings is immaterial. Leatherbarrow v. Ward, 5 Jur. 388.

The plaintiffs sued by the name of "The National Bank of St. Charles"; the name given by the charter of the King of Spain was "The Bank of St. Charles":—Held, no variance, the bank being in fact a national one. Bank of St. Charles v. De Bernales, 1 Car. & P. 569; R. & M. 190. S. P., Alivon v. Furnival, 1 C. M. & R. 277, 296; 4 Tyr. 751; 3 L. J., Ex. 241.

Plaintiff's Address.]—The provisions of Ord. IV. r. 1, of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, that the address of the plaintiff shall be indorsed upon the writ of summons, require that the address of the plaintiff's residence shall appear upon the writ, and are not satisfied by an indorsement of the address of his place of business. Stoy v. Rees, 59 L. J., Q. B. 310; 24 Q. B. D. 748; 63 L. T. 49; 38 W. R. 683—C. A.

In a writ of summons it is necessary to state truly the residence of the plaintiff; the business address of the plaintiff not being enough. Karpeles v. Friedlander, 53 J. P. 264.

Names of Defendants.]—Every writ must have the full title of the action, including the names of all the defendants, but need only be directed to the particular defendant or defendants intended to be served therewith. Traill v. Porter, 1 L. R., Ir. 60.

A writ described a defendant as "The Right Honorable Baron Suffield," his true description being "The Right Honorable Edward Vernon Harbord, Baron Suffield." The court refused to set aside the writ on that ground. Wells v. Suffield (Lord), 5 D. & L. 177; 4 C. B. 750.

The describing in the writ and declaration a party to the suit by the initials only of his christian name must be treated as a misnomer. Rust v. Kennedy, 4 M. & W. 586; 7 D. P. C. 199; 8 L. J., Ex. 85; 3 Jur. 198.

A writ was set aside where the defendant's christian name was omitted and an initial only was given. Murphy v. Cheevers, 15 W. R. 1061.

Where a party has been sued by a wrong name, the title of the cause cannot be changed until an appearance has been entered by him stating his true one. Borthwick v. Ravenscroft, 5 M. & W. 31; 7 D. P. C. 393; 8 L. J., Ex. 160; 3 Jur. 703.

A variance in the name of a defendant in a writ, where it is idem sonans with the real name is not material. Webb v. Lawrence, 2 D. P. C. 81; 1 C. & M. 806; 3 Tyr. 906.

Addition of Defendants.]—No addition having been given to the defendant, either in the recital of the writ or in the subsequent part of the declaration, the defendant pleaded the Statute of Additions (1 Hen. 5) in abatement, and prayed judgment of the declaration:—The court held the plea a nullity, and gave leave to the plaintiff to sign judgment. Gray v. Sidneff, 3 Bos. & P. 395.

The addition of a defendant need not be inserted. It is sufficient to state his residence. Morris v. Smith, 2 C. M. & R. 120; 3 D. P. C. 698; 5 Tyr. 523; 1 Gale, 103; 4 L. J., Ex. 184.

Address of Defendant.]—A writ in Form 1, App. A, Part 1, to the Rules of 1883, with the exception that no address was inserted as that of the defendants, was issued against a foreign company having no place of business in this country, and was served at Dover on one of the managing directors of the company, who was temporarily there on business connected with the company:—Held, that the writ must be set aside. The W. A. Scholten, 57 L. J., P. 4; 13 P. D. 8; 58 L. T. 91; 36 W. R. 559; 6 Asp. M. C. 244.

A writ issued against a foreign company having no office within the United Kingdom must be in the Form No. 5 or No. 6 of Part 1 of the Appendix to the Rules of 1883. A writ in Form No. 2 issued against a foreign company having no offices in the United Kingdom will be set aside. Sedgwick v. Yedras Mining Co., 35 W. R. 780.

—— Sufficiency of.]—A writ of summons is not invalidated by the fact that the defendant is described in it as of a place in England, which he periodically visits in the course of his business, although his sole residence and place of business are out of the jurisdiction. Smith v. Hammond, 65 L. J., Q. B. 477; [1896] 1 Q. B. 571; 74 L. T. 590; 44 W. R. 478.

Description of Defendant's Residence.]—Newcastle-upon-Tyne, in the county of Northumberland, is a sufficient description of a defendant's residence in a writ since 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 64, by schedule O 26 of which Newcastle-upon-Tyne is made to comprise certain townships that are not within the town and county of the town. Rippon v. Dawson, 5 Bing. (N.C.) 206; 7 Scott, 145; 7 D. P. C. 247; 1 Arn. 470; 8 L. J., C. P. 102.

It is sufficient if a defendant is described as of his last supposed residence. Norman v. Winter, 7 Scott, 251; 5 Bing. (N.C.) 279; 7 D. P. C. 304; 1 Arn. 511; 8 L. J., C. P. 179; 3 Jur. 147.

"Yorkshire" is a good description of a defendant's residence, although he resides at the town of Kingston-upon-Hull, if he may be supposed to be resident in the former county. Jelks v. Fry, 3 D. P. C. 37.

If a writ is directed to A. B., of S. in the county of Kent, "but to be heard of at Peele's Coffee-house in the city of London," service of a copy in London is bad, and will be set aside, though the latter part of the description is correct. Simpson v. Ramsay, D. & M. 396; 5 Q. B. 371; 13 L. J., Q. B. 91; 8 Jur. 288.

The copy of a writ served on a defendant, described him as "J. S., late of B., in the county of York, but now in the castle in the city of York":—Held, insufficient, it not being shewn that there was not a place called "the castle" within the city of York, though it was sworn that York Castle is in the county of York. Balman v. Sharp, 16 M. & W. 93; 16 L. J., Ex. 39.

So, where a writ described a defendant as "Edmund Garbett, of Wellington, in the county of Salop, but now of Middlesex." Downes v.

Garbett, 2 D. & L. 945; 14 L. J., Q. B. 216; 9 Jur. 690.

A defendant's place of residence described as of "Clapham, in the county of Surrey," is sufficient. Toulmin v. Bowditch, 2 B. C. Rep. 89; 11 Jur. 455.

The description of the residence of a defendant in a writ is immaterial. Windham v. Fenwick, 11 M. & W. 102; 2 D. (N.S.) 783; 12 L. J., Ex. 183: 7 Jur. 401.

Where a defendant was described as "R. S., of the city of London":—Held, that the description was insufficient, although it was stated in the affidavits that some time before the issuing of the writ he had abandoned his house, and had no regular place of abode. Cotton v. Sawyer, 10 M. & W. 328; 2 D. (N.S.) 310; 11 L. J., Ex. 397.

The 2 Will. 4, c. 39, s. 1, required the actual or supposed residence of a defendant to be stated in every writ of summons; but, in either case, the place must be correctly described. King v. Hopkins, 2 D. & L. 637; 13 M. & W. 685; 14 L. J., Ex. 106; 9 Jur. 286.

The omission of the name of the county in the description in the writ of the defendant's residence was merely an irregularity which was waived, if not made the subject of an application within a reasonable time. Ross v. Gandell, 6 D. & L. 698; 7 C. B. 766; 18 L. J., C. P. 224; 13 Jur. 941.

In a writ against a company completely registered under 7 & 8 Vict. c. 110, it is irregular to describe their supposed address as "now or late carrying on business in King William-street, in the city of London." Pilbrow v. Pilbrow, 4 Railw. Cas. 683; 3 C. B. 730; 4 D. & L. 450; 16 L. J., C. P. 11.

3. Duration of Writ.

By Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. VIII. r. 1, no original writ of summons shall be in force for more than twelve months from the day of the date thereof, including the day of such date; but if any defendant therein named shall not have been served therewith, the plaintiff may apply for leave to renew the writ.

A defendant who has been served with a writ after it has expired should apply to set aside the writ, and not treat it as a nullity. Hamp v. Warren, 3 D. & L. 758; 10 M. & W. 103; 12 L. J., Ex. 215; 7 Jur. 156.

4. Indorsements.

Claim against Separate Estate of Married Woman—Husband sued as Trustee of Separate Estate.]—Where a plaintiff seeks to enforce a claim against the separate estate of a married woman, the writ should be indorsed with a claim for that relief. Where the husband is sued as trustee of separate estate of his wife vested in him, as well as in his personal capacity, the claim against him as such trustee should be made expressly in the indorsement. Dixon v. Dougan, 8 L. R., Ir. 211.

Claim for Injunction.]—A plaintiff should indorse his writ with a claim for an injunction or for a receiver when the obtaining of either is a substantial object of his action. Colebourne v. Colchourne, 45 L. J., Ch. 749; 1 Ch. D. 690; 24 W. R. 235.

Claim for Interest—Demand in Writing.]—A claim for interest made in a writ for the first time is not such a demand in writing of interest as is required by s. 28 of 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42. Rhymney Ry. v. Rhymney Iron Co., 59 L. J., Q. B. 414; 25 Q. B. D. 146; 63 L. T. 407; 38 W. R. 764—C. A.

Amount of Debt and Costs.]—Reg. Gen. of H. T. 2 Will. 4, r. 11, which required the indorsement, upon process for payment of a debt, of the amount of debt and costs, did not apply to actions qui tam for penalties. Hobbs v. Young, 2 D. & L. 474; 14 L. J., Q. B. 4; 8 Jur. 1029.

In an action to recover penalties for bribery under the Municipal Corporations Act, it was not necessary to indorse the amount of debt and costs upon the writ. Daives v. Lloyd, 3 M. & W. 69; 6 D. P. C. 173; 7 L. J., Ex. 38; 1 Jur. 897.

A stack of hay was sold by the defendant to the plaintiff, with liberty to keep it on the defendant's premises for a certain time; the hay was seized as a distress before the expiration of that time:—Held, that it was not necessary to indorse on the writ sued out for the above cause of action the amount of debt and costs. Perry v. Patchett, 1 C. M. & R. 87; 2 D. P. C. 667; 4 Tyr. 925; 3 L. J., Ex. 353.

An indorsement, that "the plaintiff claims 50*l.* for debt, and — l. for costs," is irregular. Trusloce v. Whitechurch, 1 Scott (N.R.) 415; 1 Man. & G. 426; 8 D. P. C. 837; 4 Jur. 722.

An indorsement claiming a sum for principal and interest should either state the amount of the interest or the date from which it is to be calculated. Bardell v. Miller, 6 C. B. 733; 6 D. & L. 721; 18 L. J., C. P. 249. Fitzgerald v. Ecans or Curtis, 6 Scott (N.R.) 55; 5 Man. & G. 207; 2 D. (N.S.) 916; 12 L. J., C. P. 138. Chapman v. Becke, 3 D. & L. 350; 15 L. J., Q. B. 5; 9 Jur. 1012.

The following indorsement is insufficient:—"The plaintiff claims 102*l.* 5*s.*, and interest thereon, at 5 per cent. per annum, from the 31st of March (not saying what March) till payment, for debt, and 2*l.* 2*s.* for costs." Ib.

But it is not necessary to state the rate of interest demanded; it will be intended to be 5*l.* per cent. Allen v. Bussey, 4 D. & L. 430.

A writ indorsed in this form, "The plaintiff claims 50*l.* for debt, with interest from the 25th of May last, and 2*l.* for costs," is regular. Sealey v. Hearne, 3 D. P. C. 196.

The objection is waived by omitting to apply to set aside the writ in time. Fryer v. Smith, 1 D. & L. 75; 6 Scott (N.R.) 658; 12 L. J., C. P. 223; 7 Jur. 973.

The form of indorsement prescribed by the Summary Procedure on the Bills of Exchange Act (18 & 19 Vict. c. 67) may be altered by inserting a claim for costs, and the blank before "days" may be filled up with "four." Robinson v. Cotterell, 11 Ex. 476; 25 L. J., Ex. 3; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 1113; 4 W. R. 127.

Indorsement of Costs.]—It is irregular to indorse a writ of summons with an excessive amount for costs, and such a writ will be set aside. Jacobs v. Monck, 12 L. R., Ir. 373.

5. Special Indorsement.

Equivalent to a Pleading.]—A writ specially indorsed in lieu of a statement of claim is equivalent to an ordinary pleading. Robertson v. Howard, 47 L. J., C. P. 480; 3 C. P. D. 280; 38 L. T. 715; 26 W. R. 683.

Sufficiency of.]—A writ is specially indorsed within the meaning of Ord. III. r. 6 and Ord. XIV. if the indorsement gives sufficiently specific particulars to bring to the mind of the defendant knowledge as to what the plaintiff's claim is. Bickers v. Speight, infra.

—— Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, s. 25.] — Per Bramwell, L.J.: — Any special indorsement that would have been sufficient under the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, s. 25, is sufficient under r. 6 of Ord. III. and Ord. XIV. Aston v. Hurwitz, 41 L. T. 521—C. A.

Any indorsement which would have been a sufficient special indorsement within the meaning of s. 25 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, to entitle the plaintiff to judgment, under s. 27, in default of appearance, is a special indorsement within the meaning of Ord. III. r. 6 and Ord. XIV. Bickers v. Speight, 58 L. J., Q. B. 42; 22 Q. B. D. 7; 37 W. R. 139.

Claim for Injunction and Money received.]—The plaintiff, a barrister, issued his writ on the 30th August, 1879, indorsed for an injunction and other relief, and for payment of a sum of 1,000*l.* alleged to have been received by the defendant as his solicitor. On the 12th December, 1879, the plaintiff was ordered to deliver a statement of claim on or before the 12th January. On the 10th January he delivered a statement of claim in person; on the 12th his solicitor, who had been that day served with a summons to set aside the statement of claim for irregularity, delivered a notice that his claim appeared by the indorsement on the writ in the form prescribed by Ord. XXI. r. 4:—Held, that the writ was not specially indorsed within the meaning of Ord. III. r. 6, and the statement of claim delivered by the solicitor must be set aside. Yeatman v. Snow, 42 L. T. 502; 28 W. R. 574.

Part Liquidated — Part Unliquidated.] — A writ cannot be specially indorsed for a demand partly liquidated and partly unliquidated. Rogers v. Hunt, 10 Ex. 474; 3 C. L. R. 174; 24 L. J., Ex. 23; 18 Jur. 1084; 3 W. R. 72.

A writ which claims payment of a sum which is in dispute, besides payment of a liquidated demand, is not specially indorsed so as to entitle the plaintiff to judgment under Ord. XIV. for the liquidated demand. Clarke v. Berger, 36 W. R. 809.

Condition Precedent—No Averment of Performance.] — The defendant agreed to pay 210*l.* to the plaintiff if he would deliver to the defendant's husband certain bills of exchange. In an action to recover the 210*l.*:—Held, that, although the writ did not aver performance of the condition precedent, it was a good special indorsement. Bradley v. Chamberlyn, [1893] 1 Q. B. 439; 5 R. 185; 68 L. T. 413; 41 W. R. 300.

Assignment of Debt.]—A writ of summons was indorsed with a claim for a sum of money due from the defendant to the plaintiff under an assignment; this assignment, the terms of which were set out, was a request to the defendant to pay to the plaintiff a sum due from the defendant to the assignor under an I.O.U. of a certain date, signed by the defendant. The indorsement did not give any particulars of the circumstances under which the I.O.U. was originally given:—Held, that the indorsement was a sufficient special indorsement under Ord. III. r. 6. Bickers v. Speight, 58 L. J., Q. B. 42; 22 Q. B. D. 7; 37 W. R. 139.

The indorsement upon a writ of summons stated that the plaintiff's claim was for a certain sum for principal and interest due to him as the assignee of a mortgage debt due from the defendant, but did not state that express notice in writing of the assignment was given to the defendant:—Held, that the writ was specially indorsed within Ord. III. r. 6, and that, therefore, leave could be given to enter final judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 1. Satchwell v. Clarke, 66 L. T. 641—C. A.

Bills of Exchange—Expenses of Noting.]—In an action on a bill of exchange the writ was specially indorsed with a claim for the amount of the bill, and also 2*s.* 9*d.* "bank charges":—Held, that by the expression "bank charges" expenses of noting were referred to, and that as expenses of noting are made liquidated damages by s. 57 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, this was a good special indorsement. Dando v. Boden, 62 L. J., Q. B. 339; [1893] 1 Q. B. 318; 5 R. 183; 68 L. T. 90; 41 W. R. 285. S. P., Lawrence v. Willcocks, 61 L. J., Q. B. 519; [1892] 1 Q. B. 696; 66 L. T. 511; 40 W. R. 419—C. A.

Where the special indorsement on a writ of summons included an item for the expenses of noting a dishonoured promissory note, the court refused to give the plaintiff liberty to sign final judgment under Ord. XIII. r. 1. Skelly v. McKenna, 6 L. R., Ir. 24.

A plaintiff cannot sign final judgment for want of appearing to a writ specially indorsed, claiming the expense of noting and commission on a bill of exchange, the same being unliquidated damages. Rogers v. Hunt, 10 Ex. 474; 3 C. L. R. 174; 24 L. J., Ex. 23; 18 Jur. 1084; 3 W. R. 72.

The particulars in the indorsement of a writ for the balance claimed to be due on an account stated included a sum of 2*s.* 6*d.* for noting a dishonoured bill of exchange. On a motion to mark final judgment under Ord. XIII. r. 1, it appeared that the defendant had made an arrangement in bankruptcy for a composition, payable by instalments and secured by his promissory notes, and that the amount ascertained as due to the plaintiffs in the arrangement matter included the charge for noting mentioned in the indorsement on the writ; the composition payable to them being calculated accordingly, and composition notes passed to them for it, and the notes not being paid, the plaintiffs now sued for their original debt:—Held, that the plaintiffs' claim was for a liquidated demand, and that they were entitled to mark judgment. Northern Bank v. Chapman, 6 L. R., Ir. 25.

A special indorsement on a writ of summons claimed 49*l.*, and stated the particulars with dates and amounts to be "to goods"; it also contained an item for "bank draft returned," which was entered both on the debit and credit side of the particulars, and it further contained a sum for "notary charges on same":—Held, a sufficient indorsement under r. 6 of Ord. III. to entitle the plaintiff to sign judgment under r. 1 of Ord. XIV. Smith v. Wilson, 49 L. J.,

C. P. 96; 5 C. P. D. 25; 41 L. T. 433; 28 W. R. 57—C. A.

Cheque—Notice of Dishonour.]—To maintain an application for final judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 1, upon a writ indorsed with a claim for the amount of a dishonoured cheque, the indorsement must contain an allegation that the drawer of the cheque has received notice of dishonour. Frühauf v. Grosvenor, 61 L. J., Q. B. 717; 67 L. T. 350.

—— Copy set out without more.] —In an action by the indorsee for value of a cheque against drawer and indorser, the mere setting out of a copy of the cheque without more does not constitute a special indorsement of the writ under Ord. XIV. r. 1. Northern Bank v. Bailey, [1894] 2 Ir. R. 18.

Promissory Note — Default in Payment of Instalments.]—A writ indorsed with the date, the amount, and the making of a joint and several promissory note, with a statement that it was "payable by certain instalments in respect whereof default has been made," and particulars merely showing the balance still due, is not a specially indorsed writ within Ord. III. r. 6. Manchester Advance and Discount Co. v. Walton, 62 L. J., Q. B. 158; 5 R. 147; 68 L. T. 167.

Bond—Penalty.]—The indorsement on a writ claimed 500*l.* as the principal sum due on a bond conditioned for the payment by the obligor to the plaintiff of an annuity of 26*l.* during the life of a child, and until she should attain the age of sixteen years, by specified quarterly payments, and alleged that two of such payments were due and unpaid:—Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to proceed under Ord. XIV. r. 1, to obtain final judgment, but was limited to the procedure specified in 8 & 9 Will. 3, c. 11, s. 8, and Ord. XIII. r. 14. Tuther v. Caralampi, 21 Q. B. D. 414; 59 L. T. 141; 37 W. R. 94; 52 J. P. 616.

Contribution—Bills of Exchange.]—A writ in an action was indorsed as follows: "The plaintiff's claim is 399*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*, the defendant's share or contribution to the payment of certain bills of exchange and promissory notes on which he and the plaintiff were jointly liable, and which bills and notes have been taken up by the plaintiff":—Held, that this indorsement did not constitute a good "special indorsement" under Ord. III. r. 6, and therefore the judgment which had been signed under Ord. XIV. r. 1, must be set aside. Walker v. Hicks, 47 L. J., Q. B. 27; 3 Q. B. D. 8; 37 L. T. 529; 26 W. R. 113.

Covenant in Mortgage Deed.]—In an action for principal and interest due under a covenant in a mortgage deed, the mere fact that a receiver has been appointed by and in the interests of the plaintiff does not prevent the writ from being specially indorsed under Ord. III. r. 6. But if there is a doubt as to the amount which has come into the hands of the receiver, the case is not one in which summary judgment ought to be given under Ord. XIV. Poulett v. Hill ([1893] 1 Ch. 277) considered. Lynde v. Waitham, 64 L. J., Q. B. 762; [1895] 2 Q. B. 180; 14 R. 489; 72 L. T. 857—C. A.

Where a receiver has been appointed in a foreclosure action to receive the rents and profits of the property mortgaged, a writ cannot be specially indorsed with a liquidated sum under Ord. III. r. 6, to recover any mortgage interest unpaid. Poulett v. Hill, 62 L. J., Ch. 466; [1893] 1 Ch. 277; 2 R. 288; 68 L. T. 476; 41 W. R. 503—C. A.

A writ which claims foreclosure or sale and a receiver, besides payment of the debt and interest, is not specially indorsed so as to entitle the plaintiff to summary judgment on the claim for debt and interest. Imbert-Terry v. Carver, 56 L. J., Ch. 716; 34 Ch. D. 506; 56 L. T. 91; 35 W. R. 328.

Debt or Liquidated Demand.] — A writ indorsed to recover money paid by the plaintiff as the defendant's surety for his use and at his request, is specially indorsed, being a liquidated demand. Borland v. Curry, 4 L. R., Ir. 273—C. A.

A writ indorsed for a balance due on a building contract and a sum for extra work is specially indorsed. Meade v. Mouillott, 4 L. R., Ir. 207.

A claim for work and labour upon a quantum meruit is a debt or liquidated demand in money within Ord. III. Stephenson v. Weir, 4 L. R., Ir. 369.

—— Arrears of Alimony pendente lite.]—A claim for arrears of alimony pendente lite is not a claim for a "debt or liquidated demand in money" within the meaning of Ord. III. r. 6 so as to entitle the plaintiff to apply for judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 1. Bailey v. Bailey, 13 Q. B. D. 855—C. A. Affirming 53 L. J., Q. B. 583; 50 L. T. 722; 32 W. R. 856.

Goods sold.]—To obtain leave to sign final judgment under Ord. XIV., the writ must be specially indorsed with the particulars of the plaintiff's claim; and where the action is for the price of goods sold, the dates and amounts of the consignments or supplies should be given. Parpaite Frères v. Dickinson, 38 L. T. 178; 26 W. R. 479.

A writ was indorsed, "The plaintiff's claim is 2,323*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*, being 75 per cent. of the invoice price of goods supplied by the plaintiffs to the defendant under an agreement entered into between the plaintiffs and the defendant, in or about March, 1877, whereby the plaintiffs agreed to consign the goods to the defendant for further consignment by the defendant to Australia, the 75 per cent. to be paid by the defendant in cash on receipt of the goods":—Held, that this was insufficient to enable the plaintiffs to sign final judgment under Ord. XIV. Ib.

A claim for a named sum as the balance due for the price of goods sold with particulars as to dates and the goods sold is a special indorsement. McCawley v. Campbell, 4 L. R., Ir. 410—C. A.

Shares sold.]—A writ was indorsed with a claim for a certain sum, being balance due for money paid for purchase of shares between certain dates, "an account of which has been rendered":—Held, a sufficient special indorsement under r. 6 of Ord. III. to empower the court to allow judgment to be signed, or give leave to defend under Ord. XIV. Aston v. Hurwitz, 41 L. T. 521—C. A.

"Liquidated Demand in Money with Interest arising on a Trust."]—The plaintiffs, by their writ, claimed to have a legacy of 2,750*l.*, bequeathed by the will of John Brogden, "which has remained unpaid by reason of a breach of trust on the part of the defendants, and which is now due from them upon a trust," paid by the defendants, with interest thereon at 4 per cent. per annum, from the 12th of April, 1885. John Brogden, by his will, directed that interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum should be paid on this legacy from the death of his wife; she died on the 12th of April, 1885. On an application by the plaintiffs for leave to enter final judgment against the defendants for the amount of principal and interest due in respect of the legacy:—Held, that the writ claimed the interest payable under the will, and did not claim interest by way of damages arising out of a breach of trust; and, therefore, that the writ was specially indorsed within the meaning of Ord. III. r. 6. Hamilton v. Brogden, 60 L. J., Ch. 88.

Interest—Contract express or implied.]—Ord. XIV. applies only when the defendant has appeared to a writ specially indorsed under Ord. III. r. 6, which applies only to cases in which the demand which the plaintiff seeks to recover, whether or not it be made up in part of interest, is a liquidated demand—in other words, to cases in which the interest is payable under a contract, and not by way of unliquidated damages. A claim for interest cannot be made on a specially indorsed writ, if it is not due by contract, or if a definite sum is not claimed in respect thereof. A statement of claim which demands interest but shews no liability to pay it is, upon general principles, defective, as it is important that a man who is to be proceeded against summarily for judgment should know exactly how much he has to pay if he wishes to stay the action, and should not be called upon to take the risks of calculation. A claim for interest from the date of the writ till payment or judgment is an essential part of the indorsement of the writ, although it comes after the signature of the plaintiff's solicitors, at the foot of the plaintiff's particulars; and such a claim for interest, to be capable of being made on a specially indorsed writ, must comply with the requirements of a special indorsement—namely, first, it must shew that the interest is claimed as being due by contract; secondly, a definite sum is claimed. Sheba Gold Mining Co. v. Trubshawe, 61 L. J., Q. B. 219; [1892] 1 Q. B. 674; 66 L. T. 228; 40 W. R. 381.

A specially indorsed writ, in which interest is claimed on the sum sought to be recovered, is bad unless the indorsement itself shews on the face of it that such interest is payable either by statute or under any contract between the parties. Gold Ores Reduction Co. v. Parr, 61 L. J., Q. B. 522; [1892] 2 Q. B. 14; 66 L. T. 687; 40 W. R. 526.

A writ of summons in which an unspecified sum for interest up to the date of payment or of signing judgment is claimed is not a specially indorsed writ within the meaning of Ord. III. r. 6, so as to make the provisions of Ord. XIV. r. 1 applicable. Wilks v. Wood, 61 L. J., Q. B. 516; [1892] 1 Q. B. 684; 66 L. T. 520; 40 W. R. 418—C. A.

The indorsees of promissory notes, which had not been met, issued a writ indorsed with the sum due and interest up to date; and added the following claim: "The plaintiff also claims interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum till payment or judgment":—Held, that under s. 57 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, interest down to judgment was properly claimed as liquidated damages; that the writ was, therefore, specially indorsed within Ord. III. r. 6, and the plaintiff was entitled to sign final judgment upon it under Ord. XIV. r. 1. London and Universal Bank v. Clancarty, 61 L. J., Q. B. 225; [1892] 1 Q. B. 689; 66 L. T. 798; 40 W. R. 411.

The holders of a bill of exchange which had been dishonoured issued a writ against the acceptor, indorsed with the sum due, and claiming the expenses of noting and interest thereon to date, and also interest on the principal sum at 5 per cent. from the date of the writ until payment:—Held, that under s. 57 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, these sums respectively were properly claimed as liquidated damages; that the writ was, therefore, specially indorsed within the meaning of Ord. III. r. 6, and the plaintiff was entitled to sign final judgment upon it under Ord. XIV. r. 1. Lawrence v. Willcocks, 61 L. J., Q. B. 519; [1892] 1 Q. B. 696; 66 L. T. 511: 40 W. R. 419—C. A.

The interest which the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 25, allows to be specially indorsed on a writ of summons is interest due on a contract, express or implied, and not interest which a jury may award as unliquidated damages, either at common law or under 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 28. Rodway v. Lucas, 10 Ex. 667; 3 C. L. R. 615; 24 L. J., Ex. 155; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 311; 3 W. R. 212.

Judgment, Action on.]—When an action is brought on a judgment, the particulars of the claim may be indorsed on the writ, for it is a debt or a claim in the nature of a debt. Hodsoll v. Baxter, El. Bl. & El. 884; 28 L. J., Q. B. 61; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 556; 6 W. R. 686—Ex. Ch.

Rent—Sufficiency of Particulars.]—Where a plaintiff by his writ claimed rent in a personal action against several defendants, and gave particulars as to the lands, the gale-days, and amounts due, but omitted to state how the defendants' alleged liability arose:—Held, that the writ was not specially indorsed pursuant to Ord. III. r. 6, of the Rules of 1891. Seaton v. Clarke, 28 L. R., Ir. 514.

In a special indorsement of a writ under Ord. III. r. 6, it is essential that the dates at which the items mentioned in the particulars became payable should be set out. Beaufort v. Ledwith, [1894] 2 Ir. R. 16.

Action for Recovery of Land—Landlord and Tenant.]—In an action for the recovery of land by a landlord against a tenant, the writ of summons can be specially indorsed under Ord. III. r. 6 (F.), only when the plaintiff was party to the lease or agreement under which the hereditaments have been held, or when the defendant has paid rent to the plaintiff, thereby acknowledging his title, or when the defendant is otherwise estopped from denying the plaintiff's title. Casey v. Hellyer, 55 L. J., Q. B. 207; 17 Q. B. D. 97; 54 L. T. 103; 34 W. R. 337—C. A.

The relationship of landlord and tenant may be created by a mortgage-deed, and therefore, in an action for recovery of land by mortgagees from a mortgagor in possession under a mortgage deed creating a tenancy between them, the writ may be specially indorsed under Ord. III. r. 6, (F.), so that Ord. XIV. will apply, and final judgment may be ordered. Daubuz v. Lavington, 53 L. J., Q. B. 283; 13 Q. B. D. 347; 51 L. T. 206; 32 W. R. 772.

A mortgage-deed contained a clause by which, for the purpose of securing the punctual payment of the interest, the mortgagor attorned tenant to the mortgagee, and the mortgagee had a power of re-entry for default in payment. Default having been made, the mortgagee commenced an action for the recovery of the premises, and applied for judgment under Ord. XIV.:—Held, that the mortgagor was a tenant whose term had expired or had been duly determined by notice to quit within the meaning of Ord. III. r. 6 (F.), and the plaintiff was entitled to judgment. Daubuz v. Lavington (13 Q. B. D. 347) approved and followed. Hall v. Comfort, 56 L. J., Q. B. 185; 18 Q. B. D. 11; 55 L. T. 550; 35 W. R. 48

—— Mortgagor and Mortgagee—Attornment Clause—Tenancy at Will.]—Where a mortgagor is in possession of premises under a mortgage-deed containing a clause under which he attorns tenant from year to year to the mortgagees, but also containing a provision entitling the mortgagees at any time without previous notice to determine the tenancy which had been created, such tenancy is a tenancy at will which may be determined at any time without previous notice, and the mortgagees are entitled, in an action to recover the premises, to specially indorse the writ under Ord. III. r. 6 (F.), and apply for judgment under Ord. XIV., inasmuch as the claim to possession is not based on a forfeiture. Arden v. Boyce (63 L. J., Q. B. 338; [1894] 1 Q. B. 796) distinguished. Kemp v. Lester, 65 L. J., Q. B. 532; [1896] 2 Q. B. 162; 74 L. T. 268; 44 W. R. 453—C. A.

—— Forfeiture Clause.]—A writ of summons cannot be specially indorsed under Ord. III. r. 6 (F.), in an action by a landlord against a tenant to enforce a forfeiture clause in a lease, notwithstanding that the form of such clause is that, upon the breach occurring, the lessor may forthwith determine the term by notice to quit, and that the notice to quit has been given in accordance with the terms of the clause. Arden v. Boyce, 63 L. J., Q. B. 338; [1894] 1 Q. B. 796; 9 R. 372; 70 L. T. 480; 42 W. R. 354—C. A.

—— Lease expired — Service of Defective Copy.]—In an action by a lessor for the recovery of premises from lessees whose term had expired, the writ stated the date of making, length of term of the lease, and devolution to the defendant. The copy served upon the defendant, however, omitted to state the length of the term:—Held, that the writ was specially indorsed within Ord. III. r. 6. Hammer v. Clifton, [1894] 1 Q. B. 238; 10 R. 55; 42 W. R. 287.

—— Mesne Profits—Indorsement explained by Affidavit.]—Where a special indorsement of a writ is good in itself, it is not invalidated by a statement in the affidavit filed in support of an application for final judgment under Ord. XIV. Southport Tramways Co. v. Gandy, 66 L. J., Q. B. 532; [1897] 2 Q. B. 66; 76 L. T. 815; 45 W. R. 684—C. A.

Inasmuch as under s. 214 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, the court has power in an ejectment action to give to the landlord mesne profits down to the time of the verdict, and the landlord's right to bring an action for mesne profits from the time of the verdict down to the day of delivery of possession is expressly reserved, there is jurisdiction on a writ specially indorsed with a claim for recovery of land and mesne profits to make an order giving the landlord possession of the land and mesne profits to be calculated up to the date of his obtaining possession. Ib.

Amendment of Indorsement.] — A material omission in a specially indorsed writ may be supplied by amendment without leave under Ord. XXVIII. r. 2, notwithstanding that a summons for judgment under Ord. XIV. is pending at the time; and if the indorsement on the writ is thereby rendered sufficient at the time of adjudication, an order may be made upon that summons. Roberts v. Plant, 64 L. J., Q. B. 347; [1895] 1 Q. B. 597; 14 R. 222; 72 L. T. 181; 43 W. R. 308—C. A.

The defendant appeared to a writ indorsed with a claim for a liquidated amount, and also with a claim for use and occupation of premises. The plaintiff applied by summons for final judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 1. At the hearing of the summons the defendant objected that the writ was not specially indorsed within Ord. III. r. 6, and the master adjourned it, giving the plaintiff leave to amend the indorsement by striking out the claim for use and occupation. A copy of the writ so amended was served, and upon the adjourned summons (there being no affidavit of merits) the master made an order for final judgment for the liquidated amount:—Held, that the defendant had not appeared to a writ specially indorsed under Ord. III. r. 6; the application for final judgment was improper; the amendment nunc pro tunc was improper; and the order for judgment was made without jurisdiction. Gurney v. Small, 60 L. J., Q. B. 774; [1891] 2 Q. B. 584; 65 L. T. 754. See Paxton v. Baird, 62 L. J., Q. B. 176; [1893] 1 Q. B. 139; 5 R. 129; 67 L. T. 623; 41 W. R. 88.

Where a writ of summons was indorsed with admittedly liquidated demands, and also with a small sum which the defendant alleged was in the nature of an unliquidated claim:—Held, that the court had power to amend the writ by striking out the amount of the alleged unliquidated demand, and to give final judgment under Ord. XIII. r. 1, for the balance. Robinson v. Ralston, 8 L. R., Ir. 26—C. A.

Form of Indorsement.] — A writ specially indorsed with a statement of claim need not have the word "delivered" nor the date of delivery at the end of such statement of claim. Veale v. Automatic Boiler Feeder Co., 56 L. J., Q. B. 307; 18 Q. B. D. 631; 35 W. R. 454.

In order to enable the plaintiff to obtain final judgment, as on a specially indorsed writ, the indorsement of the plaintiff's claim on the writ must be headed with the words "Statement of Claim," and must be signed at the foot. Cassidy v. M'Aloon, 32 L. R., Ir. 368—C. A.

Defence, Time for Delivery of.]—The service of a writ specially indorsed under Ord. III. r. 6, is delivery of a statement of claim to the defendant within the meaning of Ord. XXI. r. 6, so that the defendant has ten days from the time limited for appearance within which to deliver his defence. Anlaby v. Prætorius, 57 L. J., Q. B. 287; 20 Q. B. D. 764; 58 L. T. 671; 36 W. R. 487—C. A. See further, infra, PLEADING.

6. Disclosure by Solicitor and Plaintiffs.

R. S. C., 1883, Ord. VII. r. 1.

An order by a judge "that the plaintiff's attorney do forthwith declare in writing to the defendant's attorney or agent the profession, occupation or quality, and place of abode of the plaintiff, and that after five days all further proceedings be stayed until such delivery," is not a good order within s. 7 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76. Malpas v. Mudd, 3 H. & N. 246; 27 L. J., Ex. 367.

The order not being complied with, the court refused to attach the attorney for contempt, such order not being good under the statute, and if made under the common law jurisdiction of the courts it required to be made a rule of court. Ib.

In an action for penalties, where a description and address of the plaintiff had been given, in pretended compliance with a judge's order staying proceedings until the address and occupation were furnished, which, after verdict, was discovered to be false, and to have been given fraudulently, the court refused to stay or set aside the proceedings, there being no real prejudice to the defendant; but held, that the parties who were guilty of the fraud had committed a contempt of court, and might be punished for the offence. Smith v. Bond, 11 M. & W. 326; 1 D. & L. 287; 12 L. J., Ex. 343.

Semble, that a plaintiff who wilfully caused his attorney to deliver a false address, the attorney having been required by a judge's order under 2 Will. 4, c. 39, s. 17, to declare the place of the plaintiff's abode, was guilty of a contempt of court, and liable to be punished by attachment. Smith v. Bond, 13 M. & W. 594; 2 D. & L. 460; 14 L. J., Ex. 114; 9 Jur. 20.

After plea pleaded, the court refused to order particulars of the residence of the plaintiff to be furnished by her attorney where it appeared that the object of the application was to arrest her on a criminal charge. Harris v. Holler, 7 D. & L. 319; 19 L. J., Q. B. 62.

But it is no answer to an application for the address of the plaintiff that the defendant makes it for the purpose of enabling him to enforce against the plaintiff an attachment out of the Court of Chancery for non-payment of costs in a suit there. Cox v. Bockett, 18 C. B. (N.S.) 239; 34 L. J., C. P. 125; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 88; 11 L. T. 629.

In a joint action for a libel by three, the defendant may call on the attorney of one of them for an account of the residence or occupation of the others. Worton v. Smith, 6 Moore, 110.

So, in trespass for an assault, the court compelled the plaintiff to disclose his proper addition and place of residence to the defendants, his identity being material to their defence at the trial. Johnson v. Birley, 5 B. & Ald. 540; 1 D. & R. 174.

A plaintiff being called upon for his place of residence, gave "Peele's Coffee-house, Fleet-street":—Held, not sufficient, and proceedings were stayed till he gave a better place of residence. Hodson v. Gamble, 3 D. P. C. 174.

An attorney who gives a false residence of his client, without using proper means to ascertain whether it is correct or not, subjects himself to the costs which may be occasioned by moving for an attachment against him; but he is not liable to pay the costs of the action if he is bonâ fide unable, after proper inquiry, to give his client's residence. Neale v. Holden, 3 D. P. C. 493.

Where an infant sues by guardian, her attorney is bound, on motion, to give notice of the guardian's place of abode. Tomlin v. Brookes, 1 Wils. 246.

Where a defendant pleaded in abatement, that others were jointly liable with himself, and the plaintiff applied to the defendant's attorney to give the places of abode and additions of those persons, which he refused to do unless the action was discontinued:—Held, that if the defendant refused to deliver such particulars, the plea might be set aside. Taylor v. Harris, 4 B. & Ald. 93.

The court will not, after verdict, compel an attorney to discover his client's place of abode. Hooper v. Harcourt, 1 H. Bl. 534.

Communication when privileged.]—See EVIDENCE.

7. Solicitor's Name and Address.

What sufficient.]—A writ was indorsed, "This writ was issued by T. W. G., of Hereford, whose address for service is T. W. G., care of T. W. & Son, 11, Bedford-row, W. C.":—Held, a sufficient indorsement under Ord. IV. r. 3 a. Smith v. Dobbin, 47 L. J., Ex. 65; 3 Ex. D. 338; 37 L. T. 777—C. A.

Before 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 6, a writ was indorsed, "This writ was issued by A. and B., of, &c., agents for J. T., of the city of Exeter, of the county of Devon, the plaintiff within named." The court set aside the copy and the service for irregularity, as it did not appear to be issued either by the plaintiff in person or by an attorney for him. Toby v. Hancock, 4 D. & L. 385; 1 B. C. Rep. 207; 16 L. J., Q. B. 33.

An attorney suing in person may indorse the writ thus:—"This writ was issued in person by the within-named A. B., who resides at," &c., naming his place of business, though it is not the place where he sleeps. Ablett v. Basham, 5 El. & Bl. 1019; 25 L. J., Q. B. 239; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 285.

A writ indorsed with the name of the firm of the attorney used in carrying on the business is sufficient, though only one of them is alive and an attorney. Hartley v. Rodenhurst, 4 D. P. C. 748.

The county in which the attorney by whom the process is issued resides need not be stated in the indorsement, nor is it necessary that the indorsement should be dated. Borler or Border v. Levi, 1 Scott, 270; 3 D. P. C. 150; 1 Bing. (N.C.) 363; 4 L. J., C. P. 29. S. P., Voulton v. Hall, 4 M. & W. 583; 7 D. P. C. 175; 8 L. J., Ex. 147.

"No. 2, Clifford's Inn-passage, Fleet-street, in the city of London," without mentioning the parish, is a sufficient indorsement of the attorney's residence. Arden v. Garry or Jones, 2 Scott, 186; 4 D. P. C. 120; 1 Hodges, 197.

But "Southampton-buildings" is an insufficient description. Rust v. Chine, 3 D. P. C. 565.

Where the indorsement was, "This writ was issued by, &c., attorney for the said plaintiffs," instead of "attorney for the said A. B.":—Held, good. Hennah v. Wyman, 2 C., M. & R. 239; 3 D. P. C. 673; 1 Gale, 105; 5 Tyr. 792; 4 L. J., Ex. 200.

A writ indorsed "M. & Co., agents for S.," without specifying the christian names, is sufficient. Pickman v. Collis, 3 D. P. C. 429.

The residence of an attorney is sufficiently described by "Gray's Inn, London." Engleheart v. Eyre, 2 D. P. C. 145. S. P., Jelks v. Fry, 3 D. P. C. 37. King v. Monkhouse, 2 D. P. C. 221; 2 C. & M. 314; 4 Tyr. 234; 3 L. J., Ex. 35.

And the name of the attorney suing it out is sufficiently stated by indorsing the name of the firm to which he belongs. Ib.

An attorney suing out process in a cause in which he is plaintiff need not indorse thereon his name and place of abode. Hamilton v. Jones, 4 M. & P. 523; 8 L. J. (o.s.) C. P. 279.

8. Amendment of Writ.

Date of Teste.]—The plaintiffs in an action for goods supplied issued a specially indorsed writ against the defendant. The goods were supplied during and after the month of July, 1882. The copy of the writ served on the defendant was accurate in all respects except that in the teste the year was thus given: "one thousand eight hundred and eighty," instead of "eighty-two." In default of appearance the plaintiffs signed final judgment:—Held, that the mistake in the teste of the writ was a mere imperfection, and not a fatal error prejudicing the defendant, who therefore was not entitled to have the judgment against him set aside. Wesson v. Stalker, 47 L. T. 444.

Error in Teste.]—A writ of summons issued in an action corresponded in all respects with the form prescribed by the Judicature Act and General Orders, except that, although issued in 1882, it purported to be tested by the "Right Honourable Hugh M'Calmont, Earl Cairns, Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain":—Held, on motion to dismiss the action, that the inaccuracy must be considered as a clerical error which the judge had power under Ord. XXVII. r. 11, to set right by giving leave to amend. Pleasants v. East Dereham Local Board, 47 L. T. 439.

The teste of a writ, if irregular in naming a late chief baron, instead of an existing chief baron, might be amended, even after a rule to set it aside upon that ground. Wakeling v. Watson, 1 C. & J. 467; 1 Tyr. 377.

Jurisdiction—Ord. XIV.—Striking out Unliquidated Demand.]—See post, col. 216.

To introduce New Cause of Action.]—In amending a statement of claim without leave, under Ord. XXVI. r. 1, a plaintiff is not justified in adding a new and distinct cause of action uncovered by the indorsement of the writ of summons; and such an amendment is liable to be set aside. Where it becomes necessary to make an amendment of this nature, the plaintiff should first obtain leave (on notice to the defendant) to amend the writ of summons. Large v. Large (W. N. 1877, 198) and Johnson v. Palmer (4 C. P. D. 258) observed on. Moore v. Alwill, 8 L. R., Ir. 245.

Writ for Service out of Jurisdiction.]—Under Ord. XXVIII. the indorsement of a writ may be amended although the writ is for service out of the jurisdiction and has been so served, if the action will still be one in which leave to serve the writ out of the jurisdiction might be given. Holland v. Leslie, 63 L. J., Q. B. 679; [1894] 2 Q. B. 450; 9 R. 743; 71 L. T. 33; 42 W. R. 577—C. A.

Plaintiff's Name.]—Where a foreign bank sued in a corporate name by which it was known, and the defendant pleaded that it was not a corporate body, the court allowed the writ of summons, declaration, and subsequent proceedings to be amended by inserting the name of a director of the bank as nominal plaintiff, it appearing that by the law of the country the bank was entitled to sue in his name. Banca Nazionale Sede di Torino v. Hamburger, 2 H. & C. 330; 8 L. T. 548; 11 W. R. 1074.

When an action has been brought in the name of a person who was dead at the time the writ issued, the court has no power to amend the writ by substituting the name of his legal representative. Clay v. Oxford, 4 H. & C. 690; 36 L. J., Ex. 15; L. R. 2 Ex. 54; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 994; 15 L. T. 286; 15 W. R. 109.

Returnable on dies non.]—A writ returnable on a dies non was void, and could not be amended. Kenworthy v. Peppiat, 4 B. & Ald. 288.

After Judgment.]—After judgment in a salvage action the court allowed an amendment of the indorsement on the writ by increasing the amount claimed therein. The Dictator, 61 L. J., P. 72; [1892] P. 64; 66 L. T. 863; 7 Asp. M. C. 175.

Where judgment in a foreclosure action has been pronounced, but has not been drawn up and entered, and it was discovered that there were puisne mortgagees, leave was given under Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. XVI. r. 11, to amend the writ and statement of claim by making the puisne mortgagees defendants. Keith v. Butcher, 53 L. J., Ch. 640; 25 Ch. D. 750; 50 L. T. 203; 32 W. R. 378.

Statute of Limitations.]—The plaintiff, suing as assignee of a debt, issued a writ for money lent without having given notice of the assignment to the defendant; and he afterwards applied to amend his writ by adding the assignor as a party to entitle him to sue. Between the date of the issue of the writ and the application to amend, the Statute of Limitations had barred the remedy, and a judge at chambers had given the plaintiff unconditional leave to amend the writ as of the date of its issue:—Held, that the plaintiff ought not to be allowed to make such amendment, as it would take away from the defendant a defence which had already accrued to him by virtue of the statute, and would change the substantial rights of the parties. Hudson v. Fernyhough, 61 L. T. 722.

Leave refused to amend the claim by increasing the amount in an action which had been dormant for some years, during which time the defendant had died, and the Statute of Limitations had run. Pearce v. Preston, 11 W. R. 35.

The court will not make an alteration in the date of the teste of a writ of summons which will have the effect of depriving the defendant of his defence under the Statute of Limitations. Campbell v. Smart, 5 C. B. 196; 17 L. J., C. P. 63; 11 Jur. 1018.

Nor alter the date of a writ of summons after it has been once issued, so as to save the Statute of Limitations, even in the case of a mistake. Clark v. Smith, 2 H. & N. 753; 27 L. J., Ex. 155; 6 W. R. 260.

The indorsement on a pluries writ, one of a set issued to prevent a claim being barred by the Statute of Limitations, and on a copy of it served, erroneously represented the date of the issue of the first writ. Afterwards the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76 passed. The court, after the Statute of Limitations had run, amended the indorsement on the writ by virtue of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 222, but declined to amend the indorsement on the copy served. Cornish v. Hoekin, 1 El. & Bl. 602; 22 L. J., Q. B. 142; 17 Jur. 1049; 1 W. R. 164.

Affidavit in Support—Cross-examination.]—A plaintiff had taken out a summons before the chief clerk for leave to amend his writ and statement of claim so as to introduce matters which had arisen subsequently to the issue of the writ:—Held, that no affidavit was necessary, and cross-examination by the defendant on such an affidavit was irregular. Conybeare v. Lewis, 44 L. T. 242; 29 W. R. 391.

Service of Amended Writ.]—An amended writ may be delivered to a defendant who has made default in appearance by filing it at the Central Office, personal service being unnecessary. Hartley, In re, Nuttall v. Whittaker, [1891] 2 Ch. 121; 64 L. T. 786; 39 W. R. 604.

A writ of summons amended under an order of court made in presence of both parties, the order being silent as to service, must be re-served on defendant, and a judgment marked without such re-service, and without any previous intimation to defendant of plaintiff's intention to amend, or to abstain from amending, under the order, was set aside. Bryans v. Hughes, 14 L. R., Ir. 62. See The Cassiopeia, 48 L. J., P. 39; 4 P. D. 188; 40 L. T. 869; 27 W. R. 703—C. A.

Before 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76.]—Since 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 11, a plaintiff who sues out a writ against a person by a wrong christian name is himself at liberty to correct the misnomer, and is not bound to enter the appearance and declare against the defendant by the name in which he originally sued him in the writ. Hobson v. Wadsworth, 8 D. P. C. 601; 4 Jur. 745.

Semble, that the 11th and 12th sections of the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, apply only to the case of a misnomer of a defendant. Lindsey v. Wells, 4 Scott, 471; 3 Bing. (N.C.) 77; 3 Hodges, 97; 5 D. P. C. 618; 6 L. J., C. P. 237.

The court would not permit a writ of summons to be amended unless it appeared that the plaintiff's remedy would otherwise be entirely lost. Partridge v. Wallbank, 5 D. P. C. 93; 1 M. & W. 316; 5 L. J., Ex. 167. S. P., Eccles v. Cole, 8 M. & W. 537; 1 D. (N.S.) 34; 10 L. J., Ex. 475.

A copy of a writ could not be amended after service, as the courts had no power over the copy. Byfield v. Street, 10 Bing. 227; 3 M. & Sc. 407; 2 L. J., C. P. 171.

A plaintiff could not alter his writ after service; and a notice not to appear to the copy of the writ first served did not cure the defect. Glenns v. Wilks, 4 D. P. C. 322.

There were only two cases in which a writ of summons was allowed to be amended: one where the Statute of Limitations would otherwise have operated as a bar; the other where there had been a clerical error in the writ. Green v. Kettleby, 8 D. P. C. 783; 6 M. & W. 731; 9 L. J., Ex. 228; 4 Jur. 725.

A writ of summons might be amended so as to render it conformable to the præcipe on which it was founded. Kirk v. Dolby, 8 D. P. C. 766; 6 M. & W. 636; 4 Jur. 610; 9 L. J., Ex. 223.

A writ and other proceedings against the inhabitants of the "hundred of S." were amended by inserting "borough of S." instead where the time for commencing a fresh action against them for felonious injury to property by rioters under 7 & 8 Geo. 4, c. 3, had expired. Horton v. Stamford, 2 D. P. C. 96; 1 C. & M. 773; 3 Tyr. 869; 2 L. J., Ex. 274.

Action on Bill of Exchange.]—A writ issued under the Bills of Exchange Act, 18 & 19 Vict. c. 67, in a case which was not within the act—the bill or note having become due and payable more than six months before—may, by virtue of s. 222 of the Common Law Procedure Act of 1852, be amended by turning it into a writ under the latter act. Leigh v. Baker, 2 C. B. (N.S.) 367; 26 L. J., C. P. 220; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 668; 5 W. R. 877.

A writ issued under the Bills of Exchange Act of 1855, by indorsee against maker of a note, omitted the maker's name in the copy of the note indorsed upon it. Upon motion by the defendant to set aside the copy of the writ and the service and all subsequent proceedings for this omission, the court ordered the writ and copy to be amended, and the service to stand good, the plaintiff undertaking to pay the costs of the application. Knight v. Pocock, 17 C. B. 177; 25 L. J., C. P. 31; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 1022; 4 W. R. 10.

9. Irregularity.

Time for Application to set aside.]—Where there appears to have been a delay of more than eight days before moving to set aside proceedings for irregularity, the defendant must clearly explain the delay, otherwise the presumption will be against him. Herbert v. Darley, 4 D. P. C. 726.

Where on the eighth day after the service of a copy of a writ, such eighth day being before the first day of term, an application was made in court to set aside the service, on the ground of irregularity:—Held, that the motion was regular, and that the defendant was not bound to have gone into chambers in the intervening period. Day v. Holly, 2 D. (N.S.) 974; 12 L. J., Q. B. 295; 7 Jur. 534.

An application to set aside a writ issued under the Bills of Exchange Act, 1855 (18 & 19 Vict. c. 67), for irregularity, is not too late if made within the time limited for obtaining an order to appear. Robinson v. Cotterell, 11 Ex. 476; 25 L. J., Ex. 3.

A writ was served, on the 17th of September, upon a British subject residing out of the jurisdiction of the court. On the 27th of October the plaintiff obtained an order for leave to proceed, and filed a declaration on the 28th charging the defendant with a breach of promise of marriage; but the affidavit upon which the order was obtained was not so framed as to bring the case within the statute:—Held, that, in order to take advantage of the irregularity, it was incumbent on the defendant to apply within a reasonable time, and that the irregularity was waived by taking the declaration out of the office. Bayne v. Slack, 3 C. B. (N.S.) 363; 27 L. J., C. P. 14; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 192; 6 W. R. 171.

A defendant seeking to set aside the service of a writ for irregularity, must apply within the time limited for appearance. Child v. Marsh, 3 M. & W. 433 ; 6 D. P. C. 576 ; 7 L. J., Ex. 197. S. P., Crow v. Field, 8 D. P. C. 231 ; Patterson v. Busby, 7 D. P. C. 868 ; 5 M. & W. 521 ; 9 L. J., Ex. 16.

A lapse of six days is not too great to preclude a motion for setting aside the copy of a writ for irregularity. Smith v. Pennell, 2 D. P. C. 654.

If, a plaintiff having served an irregular process, the defendant gives him notice of the irregularity, and that, if he proceeds thereon, the defendant will move to set aside the proceedings ; that is an exception to the ordinary rule, that the party applying to set aside irregular proceedings must do so before the other party has taken any further step in the cause. Topping v. Fuge, 5 Taunt. 330 ; 1 Marsh. 341.

It is an irregularity merely if a plaintiff proceeds to judgment and execution without any service of the writ ; and, therefore, an application to set aside the proceedings must be made within a reasonable time after the defendant has notice of them. Holmes v. Russell, 9 D. P. C. 487.

A writ was served on the 25th October. An application on the 3rd November, to set aside the service for irregularity (the 2nd being a Sunday), is out of time ; it should have been made on the 1st. Tyler v. Green, 3 D. P. C. 439.

A defendant irregularly served with process early in the vacation cannot wait until the ensuing term, but is bound to apply in the vacation to a judge, if he wishes to take advantage of the irregular service. Cox v. Tulloch, 1 C. & M. 531 ; 3 Tyr. 578 ; 2 D. P. C. 47 ; 2 L. J., Ex. 233.

Whether an application, made before a judge at chambers, to set aside process for irregularity is made early enough is a question for his discretion, and the court will not review his decision. Tadman v. Wood, 4 A. & E. 1011.

When Proceedings set aside.]—Where there is an objection in point of form, which applies as well to the writ as to the copy, the defendant cannot move to set aside the service of the writ only, but he must move to set aside both writ and copy. Anon, 1 D. P. C. 654.

There must be some irregularity in the service to warrant a motion to set aside the service only. Ib.

Where a writ was irregular, but the service was regular, and the defendant moved to set aside the service for irregularity, the court discharged the rule. Hesker v. Jarmaine, 1 C. & M. 401 ; 3 Tyr. 381 ; 2 L. J., Ex. 166.

The fact that a person holds himself out on a card, published by himself, as carrying on business at 38, Watling Street, is primâ facie evidence that he is resident there, and the operation of s. 2 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, is to give jurisdiction to the courts at Westminster to issue a writ of summons against him. Naef v. Mutter, 12 C. B. (N.S.) 816 ; 31 L. J., C. P. 357 ; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 384 ; 10 W. R. 758.

If such a writ has issued, and an order to proceed without personal service has been made, the defendant cannot set it aside, on the ground of his being resident out of the jurisdiction, without an affidavit, shewing definitively where he was residing when the writ was issued. Ib.

An affidavit in support of a motion to set aside service of an irregular writ, need not shew that the defendant has not been served with any regular process. Patterson v. Busby, 7 D. P. C. 868 ; 5 M. & W. 521 ; 9 L. J., Ex. 16. S. P., Wintle v. Hogg, 7 D. P. C. 623.

Where the copy served on the defendant is irregular, the application should be to set aside the service, or the copy and service ; an application to set aside the copy served is nugatory. Hall v. Redington, 5 M. & W. 605 ; 9 L. J., Ex. 100. S. P., Crow v. Field, 8 D. P. C. 231. Geyde v. Bishop, 2 Scott (N.R.) 203 ; 9 D. P. C. 57. Truslove v. Whitechurch, 1 Scott (N.R.) 415 ; 1 Man. & G. 426 ; 8 D. P. C. 837 ; 4 Jur. 722.

When the copy of a writ was indorsed "This writ was issued by A. B., of, &c., attorney for the said ——," without mentioning whom, the court set aside the copy and service for irregularity. Ward v. Lloyd, 9 D. P. C. 213.

The court refused to set aside the copy of a writ because the word "plaintiff" was used in the indorsement on the back of the writ, instead of his name. Hannah v. Wyman, 3 D. P. C. 673 ; 2 C. M. & R. 239 ; 1 Gale, 105 ; 4 L. J., Ex. 200.

When in the copy of the writ served on the defendant the letter "s" was omitted in the word "she":—Held, to be immaterial, as it could not mislead. Sutton v. Burgess, 1 C. M. & R. 770 ; 3 D. P. C. 489 ; 5 Tyr. 320 ; 1 Gale, 17 ; 4 L. J., Ex. 109.

A copy of a writ served upon a defendant, and not having the indorsement of the memorandum of the time of service, is irregular. Day v. Holly, 2 D. (N.S.) 974 ; 12 L. J., Q. B. 295 ; 7 Jur. 534. S. P., Patterson v. Busby, 5 M. & W. 521 ; 7 D. P. C. 868 ; 9 L. J., Ex. 16.

The court will not quash a writ on the ground of irregularity in its service. Watson v. Stedman, 1 Marsh. 9.

Where a party applied to a judge to set aside the copy of a writ for irregularity, who refused to interfere, a subsequent application to the court made more than eight days from the service, was held too late, the affidavit on which it was made not disclosing the fact of the previous application to the judge. Goren v. Tute, 7 M. & W. 142 ; 8 D. P. C. 868 ; 10 L. J., Ex. 61.

When there is an irregularity in the service of a writ, the defendant may apply for a rule in the alternative to set aside either the writ or the service. Wills v. Dawson, 2 D. (N.S.) 465 ; 12 L. J., Ex. 24 ; 6 Jur. 1068.

Where an incorrect copy of a writ was served, as if tested on a Sunday, but the writ itself was regular :— Held, that the defendant was not bound to treat the proceeding as a mere nullity, although the plaintiff had taken no subsequent steps, but might set aside the copy and service. Corrall v. Foulkes, 5 D. & L. 590; 2 B. C. Rep. 262.

It is not necessary that a party who has been served with a writ should state in his affidavit, to ground an application to set it aside, that he is the defendant in the cause. Stevenson v. Thorne, 13 M. & W. 149 ; 2 D. & L. 230 ; 13 L. J., Ex. 303 ; 8 Jur. 518.

A writ was issued in the form for a defendant resident, or supposed to reside, within the jurisdiction of the court, and an order was obtained enabling the plaintiff to proceed as if personal service had been effected. On an application to set aside the order, upon an affidavit that the defendant was residing out of the jurisdiction at the time the writ issued, and down to the time of swearing the affidavit :—Held, that the application was rightly made to set aside the order, and not the writ itself ; and, as the fact was that the defend nt was not within the jurisdiction, the proceedings subsequently to the writ must be set aside. Hesketh v. Fleming, 24 L. J., Q. B. 255 ; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 475 ; 3 W. R. 448.

Waiver of Defect.]—An appearance cures irregularity in process. Anon., 1 Chit. 129 (a).

Appearance to a writ is a "fresh step" taken within the meaning of Ord. LXX. r. 2, and a writ which is irregular to the knowledge of the defendant cannot be set aside on his application after appearance. Mulekern v. Doerks, 53 L. J., Q. B. 526; 51 L. T. 429. But see Willmott v. Freehold House Property Co., 51 L. T. 552—C. A.

The writ in an action action described the defendant as "J. L. Young, carrying on business as the Edison Mineograph Co. at 60 Ludgate-hill." The defendant, who was not in fact carrying on the business, entered an appearance as "J. L. Young, sued as J. L. Young, carrying on business as the Edison Mineograph Co. at 60, Ludgate-hill, but who denies that he is carrying on business as the Edison Mineograph Co. at 60, Ludgate-hill, or elsewhere":—Held, on motion by the defendant to set aside the writ and subsequent proceedings on the ground of irregularity, that there was no irregularity in the writ, and that the mistake had been set right by the form in which an appearance had been entered by the defendant. The motion was accordingly refused. Zuccato v. Young, 38 W. R. 474.

Where a wrong name of a defendant is inserted in the process, it is cured by his attorney's undertaking to appear. Lowes v. Clarke, 2 Chit. 240.

A defendant waives an objection of misnomer by taking out a judge's order, wherein he uses the name by which he was arrested. Nathan v. Cohen, 3 D. P. C. 370. See Bayne v. Slack, 3 C. B. (N.S.) 363; 27 L. J., C. P. 14; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 192; 6 W. R. 171.

If a plaintiff sues a defendant by a wrong christian name, and the defendant appears by his right name, the plaintiff may declare against him by such right name. Doo v. Butcher, 3 Term Rep. 611.

A defendant not being a British subject, and residing out of the jurisdiction, was served abroad with a writ giving him fourteen days for appearance, and also with a notice of the writ. The memorandum on the notice stated that if the debt and costs were paid in seven days from the service, further proceedings would be stayed. The defendant had by letter admitted the debt and service, but as the notice did not give the defendant the fourteen days limited for his appearance in which to pay the debt and costs, the court refused to give the plaintiff leave to proceed. Galli v. Mongruel, 13 L. T. 330; 14 W. R. 106.

Where a party held to bail obtains time to put in bail to the action, he cannot afterwards object to the writ for irregularity. Moore v. Stockwell, 6 B. & C. 76; 9 D. & R. 124.

b. Time from which Writ takes Effect.

Issuing is not Judicial Act—No relation back to earliest Period of Day.]—To issue a writ of summons is not a judicial act, and the court may inquire at what period of the day it was issued. It appeared from the statement of claim that the writ of summons in the action was issued on the 2nd of July, and that the cause of action arose on the same day, but before the issue of the writ. The statement of claim was demurred to on the ground that the issuing of the writ was a judicial act, and must therefore be presumed to have taken place at the earliest moment of the day, before the cause of action accrued:—Held, that the court could inquire whether or not the writ was in fact issued after the cause of action accrued. Clarke v. Bradlaugh, 51 L. J., Q. B. 1; 8 Q. B. D. 63; 46 L. T. 49; 30 W. R. 53; 46 J. P. 278—C. A.

Title to Sue acquired subsequently.]—When there has been no title to sue at the time of filing an original bill or information, a decree cannot be founded upon a right of suit subsequently acquired and brought forward by a supplemental bill, or by way of amendment, the rule applying not only in cases where the title to sue in respect of the whole matter of the suit is acquired subsequently to filling the original bill, but also in cases where the title to sue in respect of the whole matter of the suit is so acquired; the principle being that there must be a right of suit when the suit is commenced; and a supplemental bill is not the commencement, but the continuance of the suit. Att.-Gen. v. Aron (otherwise Aberaron) Corporation, 3 De G. J. & S. 637; 33 L. J., Ch. 172.

A plaintiff must establish, at the hearing, that he had a title to relief at the time of filing his bill, or if he relies on matter subsequent he must file a supplemental bill. Barfield v. Kelly, 4 Russ. 355.

c. Service of Writ.

1. In General.

Personal Service—What Sufficient.]—When a defendant was followed upstairs by a party who was endeavouring to serve him, and having run into a room and closed the door after him, the copy of the writ was put into the room through a crevice in the wall, and he was told what it was:—Held, that the service was not sufficient. Christmas v. Eicke, 2 B. C. Rep. 292; 6 D. & L. 156.

When a party seeking to serve a writ was standing in the defendant's yard, close to the street-door of his house, and saw him at a window within the dwelling-house, and informed him in a loud voice that he had a writ against him, and held the copy out and threw it on the ground in his presence, and left it there:—Held, that this did not amount to a personal service of the writ. Heath v. White, 2 D. & L. 46; 13 L. J., Q. B. 218; 8 Jur. 575. S. P., Goggs v. Huntingtower (Lord), 12 M. & W. 503; 1 D. & L. 599; 13 L. J., Ex. 352; 8 Jur. 66.

It is no ground for setting aside the service of a writ that it was served on the defendant whilst attending in a nisi prius court, in obedience to a subpœna to give evidence in a cause in which he was the plaintiff. Poole v. Gould, 1 H. & N. 99; 25 L. J., Ex. 250.

Under particular circumstances, one man may be justified in laying hands upon another, for the purpose of serving him with process. Harrison v. Hodgson, 5 M. & Ry. 392; 10 B. & C. 445; 8 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 223.

If a person who has corresponded on the subject of the action, and to whom process is sent inclosed in a letter by the post, wilfully refuses to receive the letter, it will be deemed good service on him though he never read it. Aldred v. Hicks, 5 Taunt. 186; 1 Marsh. 8.

Sending process by the post in a letter which the defendant refuses to receive is not good service, although the refusal may have been wilful, and accompanied with a long avoidance of service. Redpath v. Williams, 3 Bing. 443; 11 Moore, 333.

Delivery of process, sealed up in a letter, in the absence of the person to whom it is addressed, is no service but from the time when the letter is opened. Arrowsmith v. Ingle, 3 Taunt. 234.

The court will dispense with strict personal service, where it appears that the process has come to the possession of the defendant. Williams v. Piggott, 5 D. P. C. 320; 1 M. & W. 574; 2 Gale, 115; 5 L. J., Ex. 245.

On Defendant's Solicitor.]—Service of a writ on the attorney of a defendant who was prosecuting a cross action cannot be made good service, although he may be keeping out of the way to avoid being served. Parmenter v. Reed, 7 D. P. C. 545.

Where an action is brought against a writer to the signet, resident in Edinburgh, as administrator, the court will not allow service of the writ on the person resident in London, who has acted as agent in obtaining the defendant's letters of administration, to be good service. Kerr v. Miller, 8 D. P. C. 322.

On Clerk.]—When a copy of a writ was delivered to the clerk of the defendant, with orders to deliver it to his master, which he promised to do, and the defendant afterwards called on the plaintiff's attorney with the writ in his hand, and wrote a letter, stating that he had received it on such a day:—Held, a sufficient personal service. Aston v. Greathead, 2 D. (N.S.) 547; 6 Jur. 1000.

On Relations.]—The court will not allow service of a writ at the house of a defendant's uncle to be good service, though it cannot be discovered where the defendant resides, and though answers have been returned to the letters left for him at his uncle's. Sainsbury v. Thorpe, 9 D. P. C. 182.

A copy of a writ enclosed in a letter was left with the defendant's son, at the defendant's residence; the son was desired to give the letter to his father, which he promised to do:—Held, equivalent to personal service. Rhodes v. Innes, 1 D. P. C. 215; 5 M. & P. 153; 7 Bing. 329; 9 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 116.

On Lunatics.]—Where a lunatic, confined in an asylum, cannot be served, leave will not be granted to proceed without personal service under s. 17 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852. Williamson v. Maggs, 28 L. J., Ex. 5; 7 W. R. 50. S. P., Holmes v. Service, 15 C. B. 293; 24 L. J., C. P. 24; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 258; 3 C. L. R. 234.

An action may proceed against a lunatic on the writ of summons coming to his knowledge. Kimberley v. Alleyne, 2 H. & C. 223; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 650; 8 L. T. 398; 11 W. R. 757.

The defendant, who carried on business in the name of a firm apparently consisting of more than one person, was sued in her firm name; the writ was served at her place of business upon the manager, according to Ord. IX. r. 6a; and judgment signed in default of appearance. At the time of the service of the writ she was of unsound mind and confined in an asylum, but this was unknown to the plaintiff:—Held, that the judgment must be set aside, as the writ ought to have and had not been served under Ord. XIII. r. 1. Fore-street Warehouse Co. v. Durrant, 52 L. J., Q. B. 287; 10 Q. B. D. 471; 48 L. T. 531; 31 W. R. 765.

—— Substituted Service.]—Where the medical officer of an asylum refused to allow service of a bill in equity on a lunatic who was not so found by inquisition, the court allowed substituted service on the medical officer. Raine v. Wilson, 43 L. J., Ch. 469; L. R. 16 Eq. 576; 29 L. T. 51. S. P., Morgan v. Jones, 4 W. R. 381.

In an action for specific performance of contract, where one of the parties to the contract had become a lunatic so found by inquisition, but no committee had been appointed of her person or estate, the court directed service of the writ upon the keeper of the asylum at which she was residing, or upon the persons with whom she was residing. Than v. Smith, 27 W. R. 617.

Colonial Government.]—A colonial government is not a corporation, and cannot be effectually served with a writ of summons. Sloman v. New Zealand Government, 46 L. J., C. P. 185; 1 C. P. D. 563; 35 L. T. 454; 25 W. R. 86—C. A.

On One Commissioner whether Service on All.]—A writ was sued out against commissioners in their collective name, but it was served only on one of them:—Held, that such a service was not irregular, the commissioners not being a corporation. Williams v. Admiralty Commissioners, 11 C. B. 420; 2 L. M. & P. 456; 20 L. J., C. P. 245; 16 Jur. 42.

Production of Original.]—When a person serving a writ of summons does not, when requested, produce the original, the proceedings taken under the writ are void, and not merely irregular. Hawthorn v. Harris, 23 W. R. 214.

—— Service of Copy.]—If a process-server meets a party on horseback, to whom he shows the original subpœna and tells his business, and offers a copy and it is refused, he may leave the copy on the spot and the party is well served. Fry v. Crosbie, 1 Hog, 289.

Demand to see Original.]—If a defendant, at the time he is served with a copy of a non-bailable writ, demands to see the original, which is refused, the service is irregular and will be set aside with costs. Thomas v. Pearce, 4 D. & R. 317; 2 B. & C. 761; 2 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 153; 26 R. R. 543. S. P., Petit v. Ambrose, 6 M. & S. 274.

Where a defendant was served with a copy of a capias, and a quarter of an hour afterwards demanded to see the original, which was refused by the officer, the court set aside the service and subsequent proceedings. Westley v. Jones, 5 Moore, 162.

Where a person serving a writ did not, though requested so to do, show the original writ to the defendant, and the plaintiff signed judgment thereon:—Held, that all the proceedings taken under the writ should be set aside, whether such proceedings were to be considered as irregular or absolutely void. Phillipson v. Emanuel, 56 L. T. 858.

Of Amended Writ.]—An amended writ must be served in the same way as if it had been an original writ. After the writ in an action in rem in the Admiralty Division against a ship had been filed and served on the ship, the ship was sold in an action brought by another party, and the proceeds of the sale brought into court. The writ was then amended, and filed in the Admiralty Registry, but was not formally served on the registrar, nor was it indorsed with the date of service under Ord. IX. r. 13. The defendants did not appear:—Held, that the service of the amended writ was not sufficient, and the plaintiff was not entitled to obtain judgment by default. The Cassiopeia, 48 L. J., P. 39; 4 P. D. 188; 40 L. T. 869; 37 W. R. 703—C. A. See Hartley, In re, and Bryans v. Hughes, ante, col. 143.

Setting Aside for Irregularity.]—It is not sufficient ground for setting aside proceedings that the service of the writ was not made directly and personally upon the defendant, and especially after a positive affidavit of personal service on the plaintiff's part; the defendant must go on further to show that neither the writ nor the copy came to his knowledge or possession. Phillips v. Ensell, 2 D. P. C. 684; 4 Tyr. 814; 1 C. M. & R. 374; 3 L. J., Ex. 338.

The court will not set aside proceedings on the ground that the defendant has not been personally served with process, unless it is distinctly shewn that it has not come to his knowledge. Emerson v. Brown, 8 Scott (N.R.) 219; 7 Man. & G. 476.

If a defendant seeks to set aside proceedings on the ground of not having been served with process, it must appear by his affidavit that he is the defendant in the cause. Johnson v. Smallwood, 2 D. P. C. 588.

There being cases in which the commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral may, by virtue of 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. 93, s. 9, be sued in their collective name, the court will not, to set aside a writ or service, inquire into the fact whether the action is one in which they may be so sued or not. Williams v. Admiralty Commissioners, 2 L. M. & P. 456; 11 C. B. 420; 20 L. J., C. P. 245; 16 Jur. 42.

Compare cases ante, cols. 145, 146.

Service on Wrong Person—Amendment or Discharge.]—If a copy of a writ of summons is served on a person by a wrong name, he is not bound to apply to set it aside. Hinton v. Stevens, 1 H. & W. 621.

Where a writ of summons issued against Thomas Gray, and was served on William Gray, the court refused to set aside the proceedings. Griffin v. Gray, 5 D. P. C. 331; 2 Gale, 201.

Where a writ has been served on the wrong person, and service is possible on the right person, leave will not be given under Ord. LXX. r. 1, to amend the irregularity, but the faulty service will be discharged with costs upon the application of the person intended to be served. Nelson v. Pastorino, 49 L. T. 564.

Waiver of Objection to Service.]—An application made by the defendants for security for costs constitutes a waiver of any objection as to service. Lhoneux v. Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, 55 L. J., Ch. 758; 33 Ch. D. 446; 54 L. T. 863; 34 W. R. 753.

A writ of summons was issued out of the Court of Common Pleas at Lancaster, which is a superior court, for a cause of action cognisable by that court, but which arose beyond its jurisdiction. The service was upon the defendant's attorney beyond the jurisdiction; and he gave an undertaking to appear and did appear for the defendant:—Held, that the irregularity in the service was cured by the appearance. Oulton v. Radcliffe, 43 L. J., C. P. 87; L. R. 9 C. P. 189; 30 L. T. 22; 22 W. R. 372.

Obstructing or Preventing Service.]—A governor of a prison, in compliance with an order of the visiting justices, refused to allow the process of the court to be served upon a prisoner undergoing a criminal sentence. The court granted a rule nisi for an attachment against the governor, on the condition that the rule was not to be served or acted upon, unless he persisted in refusing to allow service. Danson v. Le Capilain, 7 Ex. 667; 21 L. J., Ex. 219.

So when a keeper of an asylum refused to allow service of a writ on a lunatic under his charge, or to bring it to his notice, the court granted a rule nisi for an attachment against him for obstructing its proceedings. Denison v. Harding, 15 W. R. 346.

Time for Service.]—A specially indorsed writ is not a pleading within the meaning of Ord. LXIV. r. 11, and service thereof may therefore be effected at any hour of the day. Murray v. Stephenson, 56 L. J., Q. B. 647; 19 Q. B. D. 60; 56 L. T. 720; 35 W. R. 666.

It is no objection to the service of a writ that it was not made until after the expiration of four months from the date, provided the defendant agrees to accept it as good service. Coates v. Sandy, 2 Scott (N.R.) 535; 9 D. P. C. 381.

A writ of summons may be served on a party in a court of justice, and while a trial is going on. Poole v. Gould, 1 H. & N. 99; 25 L. J., Ex. 250.

2. On Firms and Persons trading in other than their own Names.

Foreigner residing Abroad.]—Ord. XLVIIIA. r. 11, providing that persons carrying on business within the jurisdiction in a name or style other than their own name may be sued in such name or style as if it were a firm name, does not apply to a foreigner resident out of the jurisdiction. De Bernales v. "New York Herald," 62 L. J., Q. B. 385; [1893] 2 Q. B., 97, n.; 5 R. 339; 68 L. T. 658; 41 W. R. 481. Affirmed, 5 R. 343, n. —C. A.

Service on Manager within Jurisdiction.]—A foreigner resident abroad, who carries on business within the jurisdiction in a name or style other than his own name cannot be sued here under Ord. XLVIIIA. r. 11, and consequently a writ against him cannot be served on his manager within the jurisdiction under r. 8. Russell v. Cambefort (23 Q. B. D. 526) approved. St. Gobain v. Hoyermann's Agency, 62 L. J., Q. B. 485; [1893] 2 Q. B. 96; 4 R. 441; 69 L. T. 329; 41 W. R. 563—C. A.

Ord. IX. r. 6 does not apply to a foreign partnership firm, the members of which are foreign subjects domiciled and resident out of the jurisdiction; service of a writ of summons on the manager at the principal place, within the jurisdiction, of the business of such firm, set aside accordingly. O'Neil v. Clason (46 L. J., Q. B. 191) overruled. Russell v. Cambefort, 58 L. J., Q. B. 498; 23 Q. B. D. 526; 61 L. T. 751; 37 W. R. 701—C. A.

To enable service of a writ of summons to be made under Ord. IX. r. 6a, upon a defendant's manager, it is not necessary that the defendant himself should be within the jurisdiction. It is enough if he, carrying on business in the name of a firm, has a place of business within the jurisdiction, under the control or management of some person. O'Neil v. Clason, 46 L. J., Q. B. 191.

A foreign corporation owning a line of steamers running between Tilbury and Ostend had their place of business in Belgium. In this country the business of the line was transacted by B., M. & Co., at Dominion House, 110, Fenchurch Street. Upon the door of these offices B., M. & Co. were described as general agents, while the name of the foreign corporation appeared below. The offices were taken by B., M. & Co. in their own name, and the rent was paid by them. B., M. & Co. received a commission on freights and a fixed annual allowance as remuneration for transacting the business of the line. Upon business cards and forms issued by B., M. & Co. in connection with the line were the words "Apply at the Company's Offices, Dominion House, 110, Fenchurch Street," and a similar notice appeared in advertisements inserted in the daily papers. In their affidavit B., M. & Co. swore that they were merely agents for the defendant corporation. In an action in personam against the foreign corporation to recover damages for a collision, the writ was served upon the manager of B., M. & Co. The service of the writ was set aside on the ground that the person upon whom it was effected was not the servant of the defendant corporation, but of their agents. The Princess Clementine, 66 L. J., P. 23; [1897] P. 18; 75 L. T. 695; 8 Asp. M. C. 222.

London Agency.]—In an action against a foreign bank, service of the writ of summons on the head manager of the London "Agency" of the bank—the agency being ostensibly and in fact a bank with the usual offices, manager, and staff of clerks:—Held, to be good service on the defendants. Lhoneux v. Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, 55 L. J., Ch. 758; 33 Ch. D. 446; 54 L. T. 863; 34 W. R. 753.

A foreign corporation, with the majority of its shareholders resident in England, had a London agency carried on in the agent's own office, but carried on no principal or material part of its business in this country:—Held, not liable to be sued in an English court under Ord. IX. r. 8, and service of a writ of summons on the agent in London was accordingly set aside. Badcock v. Cumberland Gap Park Co., 62 L. J., Ch. 247; [1893] 1 Ch. 362; 3 R. 188; 68 L. T. 155; 41 W. R. 204.

"Carrying on Business within the Jurisdiction."]—Where partners of a foreign firm personally select goods in this country, which are then purchased by a merchant here in his own name and shipped to the firm, this does not constitute "a carrying on business within the jurisdiction" so as to render the firm liable to be sued here in the firm name under Ord. XLVIIIA. r. 1. Singleton v. Roberts, 10 R. 223; 70 L. T. 687.

For the purposes of the issuing under Ord. XLVIII. r. 1, of a writ in the firm name against a firm carrying on business within the jurisdiction, it is immaterial whether the firm is an English or a foreign firm. Worcester City Banking Co. v. Firbank, 63 L. J., Q. B. 542; [1894] 1 Q. B. 784; 9 R. 367; 70 L. T. 443; 42 W. R. 402—C. A.

—— Partner domiciled in Scotland.]—A partner domiciled in Scotland, who carries on business within the jurisdiction in a name or style other than his own, cannot, under Ord. XLVIIIA. r. 11, be sued here in respect of the partnership by service of the writ upon the manager of his business within the jurisdiction. McIver v. Burns, 64 L. J., Ch. 681; [1895] 2 Ch. 630; 12 R. 467; 73 L. T. 39; 44 W. R. 40—C. A.

Ord. XLVIIIA. rr. 1 and 3, do not apply to a firm carrying on business in partnership in Glasgow, the members of which are domiciled and resident in Scotland, and having no place of business within the jurisdiction; nor do the rules affect the principle laid down in Russell v. Cambefort (23 Q. B. D. 526). Grant v. Anderson, 61 L. J., Q. B. 107; [1892] 1 Q. B. 108; 66 L. T. 79—C. A.

The firm of A. & Co., woollen manufacturers, consisted of two partners, who carried on their manufactory in Glasgow and resided there. MacC. rented an office in London, consisting of two rooms in Milk Street Buildings, Cheapside, and acted as agent for A. & Co. for the receipt of orders and instructions from London customers, which he transmitted to Glasgow for approval, and was paid a commission on business done. One room was used by MacC. as an office, and the other was used by him for storing samples of the firm's goods. The name of A. & Co. appeared in large letters outside MacC.'s office and at the doorway, but on the doorway MacC.'s name was written below the firm's name in smaller letters. Upon A. & Co.'s letter paper, in the same space allotted for their Glasgow address, the words "London Warehouse, 2, Milk Street Buildings," also appeared:—Held, that MacC.'s office was not a place within the jurisdiction of the business of the partnership of A. & Co.; that MacC. was not a person having control of the partnership business; and that service of a writ of summons issued against A. & Co. at the suit of G., upon MacC., was not a good service:—Held, also, that the firm did not carry on business within the jurisdiction, and that the writ of summons having been improperly issued must be set aside. Ib.

A company having its registered office in Scotland, but also carrying on its business within the jurisdiction of the High Court, cannot be served with a writ of summons within the jurisdiction. Watkins v. Scottish Imperial Insurance Co., 58 L. J., Q. B. 495; 23 Q. B. D. 285; 60 L. T. 639; 37 W. R. 670.

A company had their registered office in Scotland, but carried on branch works in England. The writ in the action had been served on the manager of the branch works, and a copy had also been sent by post to the registered office:—Held, that the service was bad and must be set aside. Wood v. Anderston Foundry Co., 36 W. R. 918.

Foreign Corporation—Branch Office in England.]—Ord. IX. r. 8, of the Rules of Court, 1883, applies to a foreign corporation established by foreign law, provided it really carries on business and has a residence in this country. Newby v. Von Oppen (L. R. 7 Q. B. 293), approved. Haggin v. Comptoir d'Escompte, 58 L. J., Q. B. 508; 23 Q. B. D. 519; 61 L. T. 748; 37 W. R. 703—C. A.

A foreign corporation, carrying on business in England, although not incorporated according to English law, may be sued in an English court, in respect of a cause of action which arose within the jurisdiction. Service of a writ of summons on the head officer of an English branch of a foreign corporation carrying on business in England is good service, and it is not necessary to serve the process on the officer at the head office abroad.

Newby v. Von Oppen, 41 L. J., Q. B. 148 ; L. R. 7 Q. B. 293 ; 26 L. T. 164 ; 20 W. R. 383.

Dissolution of Firm.]—Where a firm has been dissolved to the knowledge of the plaintiff, an outgoing partner cannot be proceeded against under Ord. XLVIIIA. r. 8, unless he has been personally served with the writ in the action. Wigram v. Cox, 63 L. J., Q. B. 751 ; [1894] 1 Q. B. 792 ; 70 L. T. 656.

Where a partnership between a foreigner residing abroad and a British subject has, before the commencement of an action against the partnership, been dissolved without the knowledge of the plaintiff, and the business has been carried on in England under the style of the firm by the foreigner alone, service of the writ on the partnership can be effected under Ord. IX. r. 6, and Ord. XVI. r. 14, by service at the principal place within the jurisdiction of the business of the partnership upon any person having at the time of service the management of the business. Pollexfen v. Sibson (16 Q. B. D. 792), discussed and followed. [Shepherd v. Hirsch, 59 L. J., Ch. 819 ; 45 Ch. D. 231 ; 63 L. T. 335 ; 38 W. R. 745.

Member of Foreign Firm temporarily within Jurisdiction.]—The defendants, who were a foreign partnership carrying on business out of the jurisdiction, were sued in the name of their firm. One member of the firm happening to be within the jurisdiction was served with the writ, which was the ordinary eight-day writ :—Held, that such service was good under Ord. IX. r. 6, which provides that, where persons are sued as partners in the name of their firm, the writ shall be served either upon any one or more of the partners, or at the principal place within the jurisdiction of the business of the partnership upon any person having at the time of service the control or management of the partnership business there. Pollexfen v. Sibson, 55 L. J., Q. B. 294 ; 16 Q. B. D. 792 ; 54 L. T. 297 ; 34 W. R. 534.

A writ in Form 1, Appendix A, Part 1 to the Rules of 1883, with the exception that no address was inserted as that of the defendants, was issued against a foreign company having no place of business in this country, and was served at Dover on one of the managing directors of the company who was temporarily there on business connected with the company :—Held, that the writ must be set aside. The W. A. Scholten, 57 L. J., P. 4 ; 13 P. D. 8 ; 58 L. T. 91 ; 36 W. R. 559 ; 6 Asp. M. C. 244.

Ord. IX. r. 6, does not apply to a foreign partnership, not carrying on business in England, the members of which are resident and domiciled abroad. The service, therefore, of a writ issued against such a partnership in the firm name upon one of the partners temporarily in England, "as a partner," is not good service against the firm under Ord. IX. r. 6. In suing a foreign partnership not carrying on business in England, the members of which are resident and domiciled abroad, the proper course is to insert in the writ the names of the partners whom it is desired to sue, and such writ, so framed, may be served on any of the partners found within the jurisdiction; or it may be served out of the jurisdiction under Ord. XI., in cases where that order is applicable. Western National Bank v. Perez, 60 L. J., Q. B. 272 ; [1891] 1 Q. B. 304 ; 64 L. T. 543 ; 39 W. R. 245—C. A.

A writ of summons under the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, issued against a foreign partnership in the name of the firm is irregular, and the writ and service thereof upon a member of the partnership within the jurisdiction will be set aside upon an application for that purpose made by the partner served before appearance. Heinemann v. Hale, 60 L. J., Q. B. 650 ; [1891] 2 Q. B. 83 ; 64 L. T. 548 ; 39 W. R. 485—C. A.

Amendment of Writ—Fresh Cause of Action.]—The plaintiffs, an English firm, entered into contracts in India with G. & Co., an Indian firm, for the manufacture of indigo. O. & Co. were the English correspondents of G. & Co., and there were some partners common to both firms, and some of the partners of each firm were resident in India. G. & Co. consigned indigo to O. & Co., and the plaintiffs brought an action against the firm of O. & Co. claiming the indigo, to which all the members of O. & Co. both in England and India appeared. The plaintiffs then obtained an order ex parte to amend their writ by adding G. & Co. as defendants, and making consequential alterations in the writ, and also obtained leave to serve the amended writ on the defendants out of the jurisdiction. In making the amendments the plaintiffs made the firm of G. & Co. defendants, and added a claim in respect of fresh causes of action arising out of breaches of contract by G. & Co. in India, which were not included in the original writ. The members of the firm of G. & Co. appeared to the amended writ, and moved to discharge the order to amend as irregular :—Held, that the original writ was wrongly issued against the firm of O. & Co., some of the partners being out of the jurisdiction, and that the order to amend it was also bad. The court accordingly set aside the amended writ, and gave liberty to the plaintiffs to amend the original writ by substituting for the name of the firm of O. & Co. the names of the individual members of that firm and of the firm of G. & Co., who were in this country, and by adding a claim in respect of breaches of the contracts; the members of the two firms who were out of the jurisdiction being at liberty to set aside their appearances, without prejudice to any application by the plaintiffs to add such members as parties, and to serve them with the amended writ. Western National Bank v. Perez ([1891] 1 Q. B. 304) followed. Indigo Co. v. Ogilvy, [1891] 2 Ch. 31 ; 64 L. T. 846 ; 39 W. R. 646—C. A.

Firm carrying on Business in England—One Partner domiciled Abroad—Service on Partner resident within Jurisdiction.]—Two persons, subjects of a foreign state, carried on business as co-partners in England. One of them resided in England, the other resided and was domiciled abroad. A writ having been issued against them in the name of their firm, the partner resident in England was served with such writ under Ord. IX. r. 6, and appeared. There being no defence to the action, judgment was entered against the firm under Ord. XIV. :—Held, that the service on the partner was a good service on the firm, and that judgment was rightly entered against the firm. Lysaght v. Clark, [1891] 1 Q. B. 552 ; 64 L. T. 776.

Service of Writ on Firm—Subsequent Service on Partner—Judgment—Appearance by Partner—Judgment against Firm set aside.]—The writ or summons in an action against a firm was duly served upon the firm, and five days afterwards was served upon an alleged partner. Judgment by default was signed against the firm; subsequently to the signing of the judgment, but within eight days from the service of the writ upon him, an appearance was entered by the partner:—Held, that the partner was entitled to have the judgment against the firm set aside. Alden v. Beckley, 60 L. J., Q. B. 87; 25 Q. B. D. 543; 63 L. T. 282; 39 W. R. 8.

Foreign Defendant—Appointment of Agent in London to Accept Service.]—A contract for delivery and acceptance of certain quantities of copper, between a company whose registered office was in the United Kingdom, and a company incorporated under decrees and articles of association according to the law of France, with their principal office in Paris and having no place of business in the United Kingdom, contained a clause that the same should be construed according to English law, and that a firm of metal brokers in London should be agents for the French company, "on whom any writ or other legal process arising out of the contract might be served." Subsequently the French company was declared to be in judicial liquidation under the direction and supervision of the Tribunal of Commerce of the Seine:—Held, that service of a writ in an action by the English company upon a member of the firm named in the contract was a good service, although not a service within the Rules of the Supreme Court. Further, that, upon authority, the judicial liquidation in France did not revoke the contract. Tharsis Sulphur and Copper Co. v. Société des Métaux, 58 L. J., Q. B. 435; 60 L. T. 924; 38 W. R. 78.

No Place of Business in England.]—Ord. IX. r. 6, does not apply to foreign partnerships not subject to English law, though sued in respect of a cause of action within Ord. XI. r. 1. Dobson v. Festi, 60 L. J., Q. B. 481; [1891] 2 Q. B. 92; 64 L. T. 551; 39 W. R. 481—C. A.

The defendants, a firm which consisted entirely of foreigners domiciled and resident abroad, and had no property, place of business, or manager in England, were sued in their firm name in respect of a breach of contract committed within the jurisdiction. Leave was obtained to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction, and notice of the writ was given in accordance with the provisions of Ord. IX. r. 6, to one partner abroad. No appearance was entered for the defendants:—Held, that there was no jurisdiction to enter judgment for the plaintiffs in default of appearance. Russell v. Cambefort (23 Q. B. D. 526) and Western National Bank v. Perez, ([1891] 1 Q. B. 304), discussed and followed. Ib.

"Absence of Statutory Provision."]—Ord. IX. r. 8, which provides for service of process "in the absence of any statutory provision regulating service of process," does not apply to service of a writ on a Scotch railway company owning only six miles of line in England, in respect of a cause of action arising in Scotland, because provision for such service is regulated by s. 137 of the Companies Clauses (Scotland) Act, 1845, which was incorporated by s. 1 of the company's special act. Palmer v. Caledonian Ry., 61 L. J., Q. B. 552; [1892] 1 Q. B. 823; 66 L. T. 771; 40 W. R. 562—C. A.

Place of Business of Firm—Agent.]—Defendants were a Scotch firm having an agent within the jurisdiction, whose authority did not extend to taking orders; the name of the firm was affixed to the agent's offices:—Held, that the offices of the agent were not a place of business of the firm for the purpose of serving the writ. Baillie v. Goodwin, 55 L. J., Ch. 849; 33 Ch. D. 604; 55 L. T. 56; 34 W. R. 787.

"Head Officer."]—The defendant company, having head offices in Paris, Bordeaux, and Marseilles, had agents and correspondents, among other places, in London. Service of a writ of summons on an agent in London was set aside on the ground that it was not service on the "head officer, clerk, treasurer, or secretary of such corporation," within Ord. IX. r. 8. Nutter v. Messageries Maritimes de France, 54 L. J., Q. B. 527.

The defendants were a religious order established in France, having four branch convents in England. The writ of summons was served on the mother superior of one of the branch convents in England:—Held, that assuming the defendants to be a foreign corporation carrying on business in England, the service of the writ must be set aside, there being no evidence to shew that the person on whom the service was effected had control over all the branch convents in England so as to be the defendants' head officer within Ord. IX. r. 8. Golding v. La Sainte Union des Sacrés Cœurs, 4 R. 93; 67 L. T. 605—C. A.

Fresh Place of Business.]—A plaintiff, being ignorant of the dissolution of a partnership, served his writ under Ord. IX. r. 6, at the place of business where a former partner purported to carry on the business of the partnership firm, but which was not the place of business of the firm during the subsistence of the partnership:—Held, that the service was good service on the partnership. Shepherd v. Hirsch, 59 L. J., Ch. 819; 45 Ch. D. 231; 63 L. T. 335; 38 W. R. 745.

3. On Companies.

See COMPANY.

d. SUBSTITUTED SERVICE.

Order before Service.]—Leave to proceed by substituted instead of personal service must be obtained before proceeding to make such substituted service; and the court will not proceed upon any other than personal service, whatever be the nature of the substituted service, or the moral propriety or certitude thereof, unless it has been previously sanctioned by the court. Boger, In re, 3 Jur. (N.S.) 930.

General Principles Regulating.]—Substituted service of the writ will not be ordered unless reasonable ground is shewn for supposing that it will come to the notice of the person to be served. Furber v. King, 29 W. R. 535.

Leave for substituted service of writ on a defendant should not be given unless there is a probability of the defendant being thereby reached. Wolverhampton and Staffordshire Banking Co. v. Bond, 43 L. T. 721; 29 W. R. 599.

The principle on which substituted service is directed is that the person substituted must either be authorised to receive service, or else be such a person as will certainly communicate the fact of service to the party himself. Slade, In re, Slade v. Hulme, 45 L. T. 276; 30 W. R. 28.

The principle on which substituted service is ordered is, that there is reasonable ground to suppose that the service will come to the knowledge of the defendant. Hope v. Hope, 4 De G. M. & G. 328; 2 Eq. R. 1047; 23 L. J., Ch. 682; 2 W. R. 443, 545.

The principle of substituted service is agency of the persons served. The statute 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 4, does not extend the discretion which ought to be exercised in questions of substituting service. Bones v. Angier, 2 Eq. R. 1096; 18 Jur. 1050; 2 W. R. 609.

Upon an application for an order for substituted service, it must be shewn that every means of effecting personal service have been exhausted. Firth v. Bush, 9 Jur. (N.S.) 431; 11 W. R. 611.

Mode of Service.]—At the time of service of a copy of the bill on a person, substituted, by leave of the court, for the actual defendant, the original bill, and the original order allowing such substitution, ought to be produced and shewn to the person served, and that requirement ought to be stated in the order permitting such substituted service. Jones v. Brandon, 2 Jur. (N.S.) 437.

Order—Discretion.]—Orders for substituted service of process are matters of discretion. Anon., 2 Ves. 23.

On Partner.]—The provisions of the Judicature Act, 1875, Ord. IX. rr. 2, 6, relative to the suing of firms and substituted service, are not applicable to the case of actions under the Bills of Exchange Act, 1855. Pollock v. Campbell, 45 L. J., Ex. 199; 1 Ex. D. 50; 34 L. T. 360; 24 W. R. 320.

Not Ordered when Personal Service could not be effected.]—When effectual personal service of a writ of summons could not be made on the persons named as defendants, the court would not order substituted service to be made. Sloman v. New Zealand Government, 46 L. J., C. P. 185; 1 C. P. D. 563; 35 L. T. 454; 25 W. R. 86—C. A.

Therefore where the persons made defendants to an action were a colonial government not incorporated, an order for substituted service upon their usual solicitor in this country was refused. Ib.

Where effectual personal service cannot be made upon a person "domiciled or ordinarily resident in Ireland" owing to Ord. XI. r. 1 (e), the court will not allow substituted service to be made. Hillyard v. Smyth, 36 W. R. 7.

There can be no substituted service of a writ in an action where there cannot in law be personal service of such writ. Rule 6 of Ord. LXVII. is limited in terms to cases where the writ itself can be served as a matter of law, but where it cannot, from circumstances, be promptly served personally in matter of fact. Field v. Bennett, 56 L. J., Q. B. 89.

Defendant out of Jurisdiction — Nullity or Irregularity.]—Substituted service under Ord. IX. r. 2, of a writ of summons in Form 1, issued against a defendant out of the jurisdiction, is an irregularity; but it does not annul a judgment entered upon default of appearance if the defendant has waived it by taking important proceedings in the action inconsistent with its nullity or otherwise. Field v. Bennett (56 L. J., Q. B. 89) approved. Fry v. Moore, 58 L. J., Q. B. 382; 23 Q. B. D. 395; 61 L. T. 545; 37 W. R. 565—C. A.

The plaintiff having issued a writ against the defendant, and being unable to discover her address, obtained an order for substituted service upon her solicitor. It then appeared that she had gone abroad before the writ was issued, without any intention of evading service, and had remained out of the jurisdiction ever since:—Held, that the writ being a writ for service within the jurisdiction, the order for substituted service could not be maintained. Fry v. Moore (23 Q. B. D. 395), followed. Wilding v. Bean, 60 L. J., Q. B. 10; [1891] 1 Q. B. 100; 64 L. T. 41; 39 W. R. 40—C. A.

The court has jurisdiction under Ord. IX. r. 2, to make an order for substituted service of a writ of summons issued for service within the jurisdiction where the defendant, having been within the jurisdiction when the writ was issued, has since gone abroad, although it does not appear that the defendant went abroad to evade service of the writ. (Rigby, L.J., dissenting.) Wilding v. Bean (60 L. J., Q. B. 10; [1891] 1 Q. B. 100), distinguished. Jay v. Budd, 66 L. J., Q. B. 863; [1898] 1 Q. B. 12; 77 L. T. 335; 46 W. R. 34—C. A.

Defendant Resident out of Jurisdiction — Leave to issue Writ for Substituted Service.]—A writ which is intended to be served by substituted service on a person residing within the jurisdiction may be issued without leave of the court, though the defendant be resident out of the jurisdiction. Lewis v. Herbert, 16 L. R., Ir. 340—C. A.

Writ issued for Service out of Jurisdiction.]—Where a writ has been issued for service out of the jurisdiction, and the defendant is abroad, a judge, if the attendant circumstances warrant substitution, may properly order a copy of such writ to be served within the jurisdiction, although it is not in the form used for service within the jurisdiction. Ford v. Shephard, 53 L. T. 564; 34 W. R. 63.

Where a plaintiff has exhausted all means to personally serve a writ of summons out of the jurisdiction, the court will allow substituted service by registered letter. Seaton v. Clarke, 26 L. R., Ir. 297.

On Members of Company—Clause in Articles.]—A clause in the articles of association of a company providing that notices may be served on members by leaving them at their registered place of abode, will not extend to legal proceedings, and an order for substituted service of a debtor summons at such address, that not being his last known place of abode, is bad. Chatteris, Ex parte, Studer, In re, 44 L. J., Bk. 90; L. R. 10 Ch. 227; 32 L. T. 290; 23 W. R. 760.

In what Cases Permitted.]—When a defendant after personal service of the bill had been effected, and an appearance entered for her by the plaintiff, absconded, the court allowed the plaintiff to file replication, and advertise the same in lieu of personal service. Murphy v. Vincent, 23 L. T. 306; 19 W. R. 47.

In a suit against five partners, three of whom had entered appearance and the other two were out of the jurisdiction and had not, substituted service of a notice of motion for an injunction and for the appointment of a receiver on any of the three partners for the two was allowed. Leese v. Martin, L. R. 13 Eq. 77.

In a creditor's administration suit for real and personal estate of an intestate, the heir-at-law had gone out of the jurisdiction of the court after service of the bill, but without having appeared. The real estate having been sold by the mortgagee, and an appearance having been entered for the heir-at-law : — Held, that substituted service of the notice of motion for decree upon the administratrix for the heir was sufficient. Deanes v. Kitchen, L. R. 13 Eq. 461 ; 25 L. T. 930 ; 20 W. R. 353.

Substituted service allowed by the Irish courts in an action for personal injury suffered in England, the contract being to carry the plaintiff between London and Dublin. Aston v. L. & N. W. Ry., 15 W. R. 694.

An Englishman entered into a contract written in English for the purchase from a native of Hamburg of a vessel belonging to him, then on a voyage from California to England ; the purchaser to take possession immediately after the delivery of the cargo and arrival of the vessel at her port of discharge. The purchaser filed a bill for specific performance of the contract, the vessel having discharged at Sunderland, and the vendor being in Germany :—Held, that substituted service on the captain in charge of the vessel was sufficient, and that the purchaser was entitled to succeed in a motion for an injunction to prevent the removal of the vessel pending the suit. Hart v. Herwig, 28 L. T. 329 ; 21 W. R. 538. Affirmed, 42 L. J., Ch. 457 ; L. R. 8 Ch. 860 ; 29 L. T. 47 ; 21 W. R. 663.

Substituted service of copy of bill allowed on the medical officer of the asylum in which a defendant of unsound mind, but not so found by inquisition, had been placed, on an affidavit that the medical officer refused to allow any person to see the defendant, or to serve him with legal papers. Raine v. Wilson, 43 L. J., Ch. 469 ; L. R. 16 Eq. 576 ; 29 L. T. 51.

Service of a subpœna to elect will not be substituted upon the solicitor of a defendant who has gone abroad, but service will be substituted upon another defendant who is also co-trustee, if it appear that he is acting for, or in communication with, his co-defendant abroad. Waller v. Fowler, Sau. & Sc. 702.

Service upon parties in Australia, but whose address is unknown, will not be substituted upon another of the defendants within the jurisdiction, the only person known to be in communication with them. Watts v. Hughes, 8 W. R. 292.

Mode of Service Allowed—Notice and Advertisements.]—When a plaintiff is unable to effect personal service of the writ of summons, notice may be substituted for service by leaving a notice at the defendant's only known place of residence, and inserting advertisements in the "London Gazette" and two local papers. Rafael v. Ongley, 34 L. T. 124.

When husband and wife were both defendants to an action, and the husband could not be found, the court ordered substituted service on the husband by advertisement. Whitley v. Honeywell, 35 L. T. 517 ; 24 W. R. 851.

Substitution of notice for service of a bill in a suit dealing with the interest in a newspaper of an absconding defendant out of the jurisdiction, ordered to be effected by advertising the prayer of the bill, and the writ indorsed thereon, in the "London Gazette" and the "Times," and in the particular newspaper. Hartley v. Dilke, 35 L. T. 706.

Service of writ of summons, together with notice of motion, where the defendant appeared to be avoiding personal service, ordered to be effected by the documents being left at his dwelling-house, copies being at the same time left at his place of business, and addressed to him by post. Capes v. Brewer, 24 W. R. 40.

Service of the writ in an action to recover possession of leasehold houses against an absconding defendant, who had given the tenants notice to pay their rents to him, directed to be effected by leaving a copy of the writ at each of the houses, and by advertising in the "London Gazette" and the "Times." Crane v. Jullion, 2 Ch. D. 220 ; 24 W. R. 691.

In such a case the ordinary eight days' time will run from service of the copy of the writ and issue of the advertisements. Ib.

When a defendant was absconding, notice in lieu of service of a writ, and subsequently notice of motion for judgment, was allowed to be effected by delivery at his office and advertisement in two newspapers. Cook v. Dey, 45 L. J., Ch. 611 ; 2 Ch. D. 218 ; 24 W. R. 362.

Directions as to service where defendant sought to be served could not be found, had no place of business nor residence, and his relations stated by affidavit that they had no knowledge where he was. Wolverhampton and Staffordshire Banking Co. v. Bond, 43 L. T. 721 ; 29 W. R. 599.

Service of writ of summons, together with notice of motion, where the defendant had left his home and could not be found, and the wife of the defendant had left his home and gone to her own relations, directed to be effected by the writ and notice of motion being served on the wife, and copies thereof left at the defendant's house, and advertisements inserted in local newspapers. Mellows v. Bannister, 31 W. R. 238.

The court will permit service of a writ against a defendant who has absconded abroad, but whose address is unknown, to be served on the brother of the defendant, if the fact be duly advertised, and it be agreed that all moneys recovered be paid into court. Coulburn v. Carshaw, 32 W. R. 33.

On Solicitor in previous Action.]—A written notice by plaintiff's solicitors, "we are instructed to proceed no further with the action," is a sufficient notice of discontinuance within Ord. XXIII. r. 1. Foreign shipowners commenced an action in this country in respect of a collision at sea, and then discontinued the action. An order was made afterwards for leave to serve a writ, in an action respecting the same collision, issued against them at the suit of the defendants in the former action, by way of substituted service upon the solicitors who acted in the former action as the solicitors for the foreign shipowners. Upon its appearing that the solicitors had ceased to act for the foreign shipowners, the order was set aside. The Pommerania, 48 L. J., P. 55 ; 4 P. D. 195 ; 39 L. T. 642.

To support an application, that service of subpœna on bill of interpleader upon solicitor who conducts the action, ought to be deemed good service, it is not only necessary that party applying should state that he knows not where plaintiff at law is, and that solicitor has refused to appear, but that solicitor should be stated to have positively refused to inform them where plaintiff at law is to be found, and also that the process should have been previously formally tendered to him. East India Co. v. Collins, 6 Price, 404.

When a defendant, who is abroad, is also plaintiff in a distinct suit, but touching the same lands, service of subpœna to appear will be substituted on his solicitor. Wolfe v. Jackson, 1 Moll. 250.

Service of a subpœna on the solicitor of a defendant ordered to be good service. Lyde v. Hale, 5 L. J., Ch. 342.

In 1834 S. employed B. as his agent and solicitor in the matter in question, and B., in that capacity, corresponded with W. thereon. In 1843 S., who then resided abroad, being informed that the representative of W. was about to file a bill against him on the same matter, directed that he should be referred to B., in whose hands the matter had been. B. stated that he had no authority to appear for S., and was not professionally concerned for him :—Held, that service on B. of the subpœna to appear and answer the bill, could not be substituted for service on S. Webb v. Salmon, 3 Hare, 251.

Service of the subpœna to appear and answer a bill of revivor and supplement, upon defendants residing out of the jurisdiction (in Italy), ordered to be substituted by service upon the solicitors appearing and acting for such defendants in the original suit. Hart v. Tulk, 6 Hare, 618 ; 18 L. J., Ch. 336.

Where a party, subject to costs, could not be found to be personally served, service of the subpœna for costs was ordered to be substituted on the town agent or country solicitor (or both, if both names were on the record), on motion, it appearing by affidavit that due diligence had been used to serve plaintiff personally. Danford v. Cameron, 8 Hare, 329 ; 14 Jur. 998.

The circumstances, that certain solicitors had acted as the solicitors of a defendant to a foreclosure suit, in several other matters, including a suit relating to the estate which was the subject of the foreclosure suit, and that such defendant could not be found, so as to be personally served with a subpœna, to answer the bill of foreclosure :—Held, insufficient grounds for ordering substituted service on the solicitors to be good service on him. Hurst v. Hurst, 1 De G. & Sm. 694 ; 12 Jur. 152.

A defendant to a bill of revivor had appeared to the original bill by his solicitor, but before the filing of the bill of revivor, had gone out of the jurisdiction. The court ordered that service of the subpœna to appear on the solicitor should be good service on the defendant. Norton v. Hepworth, 1 Macn. & G. 54 ; 1 H. & Tw. 158 ; 18 L. J., Ch. 172 ; 13 Jur. 244.

A defendant who had appeared by a solicitor in the original suit, but not in the supplemental suit, being in contempt, went to reside abroad. The court ordered that service on the solicitor of the proceedings in the supplemental suit should be good service. Scott v. Wheeler, 13 Beav. 239 ; 20 L. J., Ch. 331.

Where a defendant was permanently resident out of the jurisdiction, the court ordered substituted service of a subpœna to pay costs on his solicitor. Walrond v. Parker, 1 Giff. 315 ; 29 L. J., Ch. 624 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 948 ; 2 L. T. 79.

Where a defendant was out of the jurisdiction of the court, and had not appeared, but had himself subsequently filed a bill in respect of the same property, the court gave leave to the plaintiff in the present suit to effect substituted service on the solicitor who acted for the defendant as the plaintiff in the other suit. Hawkins v. Bennett, 1 Giff. 215 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 948.

In a divorce suit, G. & C. acted as solicitors for the wife :—Held, that an order directing that service of a bill in chancery by the husband, and notice of motion in that suit, on G. & C., should be deemed good service on the mother, was rightly made. Hope v. Hope, 4 De G. M. & G. 328 ; 23 L. J., Ch. 682 ; 2 Eq. R. 1047 ; 2 W. R. 443, 545.

A solicitor, who had merely written to the plaintiffs' solicitors for a copy of the plaintiffs' bill (the defendant living out of the jurisdiction), is not such an agent as to allow substituted service to be ordered. Asiatic Banking Co. v. Anderson, 13 L. T. 272.

Substituted service on a defendant's solicitor in the cause of a decree for payment of money ordered, on the ground that the defendant was permanently resident out of the country, though he had not gone abroad to avoid service, but in the discharge of his duty as consul. Griffiths v. Cowper, 2 De G. F. & J. 208 ; 29 L. J., Ch. 607 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 718 ; 8 W. R. 712.

When a defendant ordered by a decree for a compromise to do a particular act goes to India, the court will, in the first instance, order substituted service upon his solicitor in this country, and if he fails to do the act, then an application may be made for personal service on himself. Piffard v. Beeby, 19 L. T. 7.

Where defendants were resident out of the jurisdiction, substituted service of the copy of the bill was allowed to be made on their solicitor, who was employed by them in a suit that was pending relative to the same subject-matter. Rees v. Braidley, 22 L. T. 470.

A wife, by her husband's consent, went temporarily to reside in a convent. She subsequently went away from the convent, leaving directions that all letters should be sent to her solicitor. She was found to have gone to Paris, but no further traces of her could be discovered. Neither the lady superior of the convent nor the trustees of the wife's settlement knew where she had gone. The husband having commenced a suit for restitution of conjugal rights, the court directed substituted service upon the wife's solicitor of the petition and the demand of cohabitation. Waters v. Waters, 34 L. T. 33 ; 24 W. R. 190.

S. being abroad, substituted service was properly directed upon his attorneys in England. Slade, In re, Slade v. Hume, 45 L. T. 276 ; 30 W. R. 28.

A bill was filed for redemption of mortgaged property in the possession of mortgagees. It appeared that the mortgagees were resident abroad, and the plaintiff was unable to find their address. The court ordered that the subpœna to appear to and answer the bill should be served on a solicitor who had acted as agent and receiver of the rents for the mortgagees. Bankier v. Poole, 3 De G. & Sm. 375 ; 13 Jur. 800.

Where an application was made for service on a defendant abroad, and the case was not within the 2 Will. 4, c. 33, or 4 Will. 4, c. 82, the court refused to order service, but under the special circumstances of the case permitted substituted service upon an attorney who acted for the defendant in an action which he had instituted against the plaintiff in a suit. Baillie v. Blanchet, 4 N. R. 48 ; 10 L. T. 365.

A bill was filed to enforce a lien upon estates in respect of unpaid purchase-money by means of a sale of those estates, and certain judgment creditors of the insolvent purchasers were, as such creditors, made parties in respect of their interests in the estates. Two of such judgment creditors were out of the jurisdiction, and it was asked that substituted service of a printed copy of the bill upon their respective attorneys in the actions in which the judgment had been recovered should be taken to be good service on them respectively, as such attorneys were still the attorneys named on the records of the judgments, and although they declined, for want of instructions, to accept service of the bill for their respective clients. The court made the order asked. Gray-Coat Hospital v. Westminster Improvement Commissioners, 27 L. J., Ch. 250 ; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 449.

On Servants or Relatives.]—If a process-server is refused admittance at the gate of the avenue leading to the defendant's house, service on the gate-keeper will be substituted for service on the defendant. Fry v. Crosbie, 1 Hog. 289.

A defendant being abroad to avoid process, the court ordered substituted service upon a person through whom his relatives held communication with him. Dicker v. Clarke, 9 Jur. (N.S.) 636 ; 8 L. T. 379 ; 11 W. R. 635.

Semble, that service of a copy of a bill, at the defendant's house, upon a member of his family, is not sufficient, unless the member of the family is an inmate of the house. Edgson v. Edgson, 3 De G. & Sm. 629.

On Agents or Attorneys.]—If the court can be satisfied that a defendant, who is out of the jurisdiction, has given a special authority to a person within the jurisdiction to act for him in the matter to which the suit relates, it will order that service of the subpœna to appear and answer on that person shall be good service on the defendant, but the evidence of agency will be closely scrutinised. Murray v. Vibart, 1 Ph. 521 ; 14 L. J., Ch. 217 ; 9 Jur. 173.

Substituted service refused in a case where it was not shewn that the party on whom such substituted service was proposed to be made, had any authority to act as the agent of the defendant, who was out of the jurisdiction. Cope v. Russell, 16 L. J., Ch. 369 ; 11 Jur. 463.

Where a defendant has been out of the jurisdiction of the court for some years before bill filed, but has a receiver, agent, or other person within the jurisdiction, upon whom substituted service can be made, an order can be obtained under the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 82, s. 1, to substitute such person for the defendant pro tanto, and serve the bill upon him. Coe v. Bannister, 8 W. R. 206.

A principal defendant resided in Scotland, but the whole of the transactions, which related to a contract for the sale and purchase of a chattel, took place in England. The bill was filed to set aside this contract, and restrain the negotiation of a bill of exchange given as the purchase-money. The principal defendant had a general agent in London, with whom the contract had been entered into. Substituted service of the bill on the general agent allowed. Jones v. Cargill, 11 L. T. 566.

The court will order service upon the agent of a defendant residing out of the jurisdiction, but carrying on business in England by means of such agent, where the contract, which is the subject-matter of the suit, has been made in this country through the agent. Jackson v. Shanks, 13 W. R. 287.

Service of a bill, which related to a cargo on board a ship in this country, was made on certain merchants in the city, as agents of the defendant. It appeared that a correspondence relating to the suit had been had, and that a letter from the defendant, who was abroad, had been written, requesting "that steps might be taken by the agents to defend for him any suit which might be instituted with reference to the cargo in question." Gauter v. Meinertshaagen, 14 L. T. 56.

Where a defendant to a suit out of the jurisdiction is a party, having a direct interest in the subject-matter, although he has not been heard of for eight years, when he gave a special power of attorney in relation to the matters in question, the court will order substituted service upon his attorney, allowing time according to the distance of his last known place of address. Barker v. Piele, 11 W. R. 658.

An affidavit by a clerk of the plaintiff's solicitor, stating that one of the defendants had told him that he held a power of attorney from two other defendants, who were out of the jurisdiction, to enable him to sell the property, the subject of the suit :—Held, not sufficient for the purpose of obtaining an order for substituted service on such defendant. Brooker v. Smith, 30 L. J., Ch. 670 ; 4 L. T. 545.

Where defendants were resident out of the jurisdiction, substituted service of the copy of the bill was allowed to be made on their solicitor, who was employed by them in a suit that was pending relative to the same subject-matter. Rees v. Braidley, 22 L. T. 470.

Effect of—Equivalent to Personal Service.]—The plaintiff, being unable to serve one of the defendants with the writ, obtained an order for substituted service against him under Ord. IX. r. 2, and the action proceeded to judgment against all the defendants. The defendant against whom the order for substituted service had been made applied to be let in to defend, on the ground that he had a defence on the merits, and that he had never had any notice of the action while pending :—Held, that as an order for substituted service had been properly made and service effected under it, the judgment was regular, and that the defendant could not, ex debito justitiæ, claim to be let in to defend the action ; but that the court, in the exercise of its discretion, could allow him to do so if shewn that he had no knowledge of the proceedings and had a defence on the merits ; and that, as the giving leave was discretionary, the court could impose terms. Watt v. Barnett, 3 Q. B. D. 363 ; 38 L. T. 903 ; 26 W. R. 745—C. A. Affirming 47 L. J., Q. B. 329.

Substituted service, duly effected according to the order of the court, is equivalent for all purposes to personal service. Ib.

Cases under Common Law Procedure Act.]—An order under s. 17 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, will in general be granted ex parte, and does not require to be served. Barringer v. Handley, 12 C. B. 682; 22 L. J., C. P. 6; 16 Jur. 1023.

The court will not interfere with the discretion of a judge in refusing to make an order to proceed as if personal service had been effected, because he was not satisfied that there had been sufficient reasonable efforts to effect service. Tomlinson v. Goatley, 35 L. J., C. P. 183; L. R. 1 C. P. 230; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 431.

The court will not grant an order to substitute service of a writ where it is not shewn that the defendant wilfully evades such service, although it may be practically impossible to serve him. Kitchen v. Wilson, 4 C. B. (N.S.) 483; 27 L. J., C. P. 253; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 539.

To entitle a plaintiff to an order to dispense with personal service of a writ upon one of two defendants, members of a firm sued as acceptors of a bill of exchange, it is not enough to shew that he has gone abroad, and has no private residence here; the affidavit must shew upon the face of it reasonable grounds for inducing the court to conclude that he is evading service of the writ. Ib.

To entitle a plaintiff to an order for leave to proceed, as if personal service had been effected, where the writ has been served by leaving a copy for him at a club-house of which the defendant is a member, it is not enough to shew that the copy has come to his hands. Davies v. Westmacott, 7 C. B. (N.S.) 829; 29 L. J., C. P. 150; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 636; 1 L. T. 297.

An affidavit should distinctly state that efforts had been made to discover the defendant's place of abode, and that the person seeking to serve the writ had been unable to discover it. Ib.

A defendant living abroad, who had been personally served with a writ, having been shewn to be making away with his property, the court made an order for the plaintiff to be at liberty to proceed without giving notice of declaration, other than by sticking notice up in the master's office requiring the defendant to plead in eight days. Bates v. Bates, 9 C. B. (N.S.) 561; 30 L. J., C. P. 191; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 728; 3 L. T. 670; 9 W. R. 255.

A shipowner of Hamburg made at Hamburg an agreement with a domiciled Englishman for the sale to him of a Hamburg ship whenever she returned from the voyage on which she was then. The ship returned, and was ordered by the owner to Sunderland. The master of the ship, who was authorised by the shipowner to act as his agent in the sale, refused to deliver the ship except on certain terms. The purchaser filed a bill against the owner and master for specific performance. He obtained leave to substitute service on the master for the owner, and moved for an injunction:—Held, that substituted service on the master was effectual and proper. Hart v. Herwig, 42 L. J., Ch. 457; L. R. 8 Ch. 860; 29 L. T. 47; 21 W. R. 663.

When a British subject, having a warehouse in London, resides out of the jurisdiction of the superior courts, efforts to serve him with a writ at his warehouse, when he is in fact abroad, are not such reasonable efforts to effect personal service as to justify an order that the plaintiff be at liberty to proceed as if personal service had been effected. Flower v. Allan, 2 H. & C. 688; 33 L. J., Ex. 83; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 1250; 9 L. T. 515; 12 W. R. 160.

The exception of Scotland and Ireland in the 18th section does not, by implication, authorise proceedings against a person resident in those countries under the 2nd and 17th sections. Ib.

A plaintiff, having endeavoured for two years to serve a defendant personally with a writ, at length succeeded in doing so in the streets of Paris. On an application to be allowed to proceed without service of the declaration:—Held, that the plaintiff must make reasonable efforts to serve the declaration. Thelwall v. Yelverton, 16 C. B. (N.S.) 813; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 295.

A judge's order that "three days after the service of this order at the defendant's residence, the plaintiff be at liberty to proceed as if personal service of the writ of summons had been effected on the defendant," was served at his residence on the 20th of December, and no appearance having been entered by the defendant, the plaintiff signed judgment on the morning of the 23rd of December:—Held, that, under the order, the defendant had to the end of the 23rd to enter an appearance, and that the judgment ought not to have been signed till the 24th of December. Weeks v. Wray, 9 B. & S. 62; 37 L. J., Q. B. 84; L. R. 3 Q. B. 212; 17 L. T. 498; 16 W. R. 399.

e. Service out of Jurisdiction.

1. Since the Judicature Acts.

a. Practice thereon.

Discretion — Evidence as to Merits.]—The court will exercise discretion in allowing or disallowing service out of the jurisdiction, and in so doing will consider evidence as to the merits. Société Générale de Paris v. Dreyfus, 54 L. J., Ch. 893; 29 Ch. D. 239; 53 L. T. 463; 33 W. R. 823. Reversed on the facts, see next case.

On an application for leave to serve a writ out of the jurisdiction it is not sufficient that the form of the action and the nature of the relief sought bring the case within Ord. XI. The plaintiff must shew to the satisfaction of the court that he has a probable cause of action; and the court in exercising its discretion will consider the facts of the case appearing on the affidavits, so far as may be necessary for that purpose. Société Générale de Paris v. Dreyfus, 57 L. J., Ch. 276; 37 Ch. D. 215; 58 L. T. 573; 36 W. R. 609—C. A.

A sum of money was paid into court in an action in this country in which D. was the plaintiff. D. was resident in France. This fund was the subject of litigation between D. and the present plaintiffs in France, and judgment was given in the French courts that D. was entitled to the control of the fund in court subject to the liability to account to the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs brought an action in this country asking for an injunction to restrain D. from receiving or dealing with the fund in court, and applied for leave to serve the writ on D. in France:—Held, that the French court having decided that D. was entitled to the control of the fund, leave to serve the writ ought not to be given. Ib.

Application for Leave to Issue, and for Leave to Serve.]—Applications for leave to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction, and for leave to serve out of the jurisdiction a copy of the writ when issued, should be made in chambers; and such applications may be made either simultaneously or separately. Stigand v. Stigand, 51 L. J., Ch. 446; 19 Ch. D. 460; 30 W. R. 312.

Leave to issue a writ of summons for service out of the jurisdiction, and leave to serve it out of the jurisdiction, will be given by one order. Traill v. Porter, 1 L. R. Ir. 60.

Affidavit, how Intituled.]—An affidavit to ground a motion for liberty to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction should, under Ord. I. r. 4, be intituled "In the matter of a proposed" plaintiff and defendant. Blake v. Lever, 6 L. R. Ir. 476.

Evidence is only requisite upon the application for leave to serve. If the applications are simultaneous, the affidavit in support of the application for leave to serve should be intituled in the matter of the intended action; if separate, in the action. Statement of the practice. Young v. Brassey (1 Ch. D. 277) not followed. Stigand v. Stigand, 51 L. J., Ch. 446; 19 Ch. D. 460; 30 W. R. 312.

The affidavit should be intituled in the contemplated action, and also in the Judicature Act. Young v. Brassey, 45 L. J., Ch. 142; 1 Ch. D. 277; 24 W. R. 110.

Affidavit in Support—Sufficiency.]—Where an ex parte application is made to the court, the person making it must observe uberrima fides; otherwise he is liable to have the order discharged at the instance of the person against whom it has been obtained. Where an ex parte order had been made, under r. 4 of Ord. XI., for service of the writ of summons in an action upon the defendants, who were resident out of the jurisdiction, but the affidavit upon which the order was obtained contained misstatements of fact, which had the effect of shewing that the plaintiffs had primâ facie an overwhelmingly good cause of action, the court held that r. 4 of Ord. XI. must be strictly enforced, and that therefore the order for service out of the jurisdiction must be discharged. Peru Republic v. Dreyfus, 55 L. T. 802.

An application under Ord. XI. r. 4, for leave to serve a writ out of the jurisdiction, cannot be supported by an affidavit in which the deponent does not state that in his belief there is a good cause of action, nor shew the grounds upon which the application is made. Collins v. North British and Mercantile Insurance Co., 63 L. J., Ch. 709; [1894] 3 Ch. 228; 8 R. 470; 71 L. T. 58; 43 W. R. 106.

Ord. XI. r. 4, provides that an application for an order to serve a writ on a defendant out of the jurisdiction shall be supported by an affidavit shewing "in what place or country such defendant is or probably may be found." Evidence that a defendant is on board one of H.M. ships in the Mediterranean is insufficient to support an application for such an order, because it fails to shew within sufficient limits the place or country in which the defendant is or probably may be found. Seagrove v. Parks, 60 L. J., Q. B. 355; [1891] 1 Q. B. 551.

The sufficiency of the plaintiff's affidavit under Ord. XI. r. 3, considered. Fowler v. Barstow, 51 L. J., Ch. 103; 20 Ch. D. 240; 45 L. T. 603; 30 W. R. 113—C. A.

In cases where the defendant is resident in Scotland or Ireland, the omission of the statement that he is a British subject is not material. Ib.

The evidence required by Ord. XI. r. 3, of the grounds on which an application for service of a writ of summons out of the jurisdiction is applied for must be evidence to prove that there is a cause of action, and that such cause of action arose within the jurisdiction. Great Australian Gold Mining Co. v. Martin, 46 L. J., Ch. 289; 5 Ch. D. 1; 35 L. T. 874; 25 W. R. 246—C. A.

A company registered in England for working a mine in Australia brought an action against persons connected with the formation of the company, making a primâ facie case for relief in respect of acts within the jurisdiction. The court refused to make an order under Ord. XI. r. 1, for service of the writ in Australia upon one of the defendants, who was a British subject, until the plaintiffs produced an affidavit by their secretary that he was informed and believed that there was a good cause of action within the jurisdiction. Ib.

An affidavit in support of an application to serve a writ of summons on a defendant residing in Scotland is insufficient if it omits to state whether there exists in Scotland a local court having jurisdiction in the matter in question in accordance with Ord. XI. r. 1a. Woods v. M'Innes, 4 C. P. D. 67; 27 W. R. 49.

When it is necessary to serve a writ of summons on a defendant out of the jurisdiction there must be an affidavit in support of the application, and the order made under Ord. II. r. 4, will provide, if necessary, for service of interrogatories, and also for the issuing of an injunction, if it should be applied for ex parte. Young v. Brassey, 45 L. J., Ch. 142; 1 Ch. D. 277; 24 W. R. 110.

Objection to Contents of Affidavit.]—After the lapse of a year the defendant is too late to raise any objection to the order on the ground that the affidavit on which it was obtained did not fairly state the facts. Reynolds v. Coleman, 56 L. J., Ch. 903; 36 Ch. D. 453; 57 L. T. 588; 35 W. R. 813—C. A. See also Peru Republic v. Dreyfus, ante, col. 169.

Concurrent Writ against one of several Defendants.]—When one of the defendants in a probate action was a foreign subject residing out of the jurisdiction, the court ordered that he should receive notice in lieu of service of a writ of summons marked as a concurrent writ under Ord. VI. r. 2. Beddington v. Beddington, 45 L. J., P. 44; 1 P. D. 426; 34 L. T. 366; 24 W. R. 348.

Defendant not a British Subject.]—The court has jurisdiction to order the service of a writ of summons, or of a notice in lieu of a writ of summons, on a defendant resident out of the jurisdiction, who is not a British subject. James v. Despott, 14 L. R. Ir. 71.

Foreigner bringing Action here.]—Semble, that where a person resident out of the jurisdiction has brought an action in this country, he has made himself amenable to the jurisdiction with respect to matters connected with his action. Yorkshire Tannery v. Eglington Chemical Co., 54 L. J., Ch. 81; 33 W. R. 162.

Form of Writ and Notice.]—The absence of the notice required by the prescribed form to appear on a writ for service out of the jurisdiction, is a mere irregularity, which may be cured by virtue of R. S. C. 1883, Ord. LXX. r. 1. Dickson v. Law, 64 L. J., Ch. 490; [1895] 2 Ch. 62; 13 R. 431; 72 L. T. 680; 43 W. R. 596.

The omission to copy in the notice the order giving leave to issue the writ and serve notice of it, is not such an informality as to make the service invalid. Reynolds v. Coleman, supra.

When leave is given to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction, the words "by leave of the court or a judge" which occur in Forms 2 and 3, given in the Rules of Court, 1875, Appendix A, Part 1, may be omitted from the writ and notice, so as to enable the plaintiff to proceed, in default of appearance, without obtaining further leave of the court or a judge before so doing. Bacon v. Turner, 3 Ch. D. 275; 34 L. T. 647; 24 W. R. 637.

Foreigner must be served with Notice, and not Writ itself.]—Under the Judicature Act, Ord. XI. r. 1, as under the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, s. 19, where the defendant is a foreigner out of the jurisdiction, notice of the writ must be served, and not the writ itself. Westman v. Aktiebolaget Snickarefabrik, 45 L. J., Ex. 327; 1 Ex. D. 237; 24 W. R. 405.

Whether a foreign non-resident corporation can or cannot be served with process, there is nothing to prevent the issue of a writ against it. Ib.

In an action commenced in the chancery division the same rule applies as in the other divisions, that where a defendant is a foreigner out of the jurisdiction he must be served with notice of the writ, and not with the writ itself. Howard, In re, Padley v. Camphausen, 48 L. J., Ch. 364; 10 Ch. D. 550; 27 W. R. 217—C. A.

The plaintiffs sued the defendant, who was a foreigner residing in France, for goods sold and delivered to him in England, and obtained a judge's order for the service upon him of the writ out of the jurisdiction, the order being obtained upon an affidavit which stated erroneously that the defendant was a British subject. The writ was served upon the defendant in France, and judgment signed against him in default of appearance:—Held, that the service of the writ instead of a notice was a nullity, and not a mere irregularity, and that the order for service of the writ and all subsequent proceedings must be set aside. Hewitson v. Fabre, 57 L. J., Q. B. 449; 21 Q. B. D. 6; 58 L. T. 856; 36 W. R. 717.

Foreign Subject—Notice of Motion—Service with Notice of Writ.]—Leave to serve notice of motion for an interlocutory injunction, with notice of the writ in an action, out of the jurisdiction, upon some of the defendants who are foreign subjects, will be given, without prejudice to any question which may arise on the order. Overton v. Burn, 74 L. T. 776—C. A.

Affidavit of Service of Notice.]—Where leave had been obtained to serve notice of the writ in lieu of service out of the jurisdiction, upon a defendant who was a Syrian resident at Beyrout:—Held, that an affidavit of service in the form adopted in the common law divisions was sufficient. Bustros v. Bustros, 49 L. J., Ch. 396; 14 Ch. D. 849; 28 W. R. 595.

Under Ord. XIII. r. 2—which requires that before taking proceedings upon default of appearance to a writ of summons, the plaintiff shall file an affidavit of service or of notice in lieu of service, as the case may be—the court, where notice of a writ is served out of the jurisdiction, has no power to allow a certificate of service to be filed in lieu of an affidavit, even where it appears that by the foreign law the process-server cannot make an affidavit as prescribed by r. 2. Ford v. Miescke, 55 L. J., Q. B. 79; 16 Q. B. D. 57; 53 L. T. 535; 34 W. R. 74.

Substituted Service—Registered Letter.]—Where the plaintiff has exhausted all means to personally serve a writ of summons out of the jurisdiction (leave having been given to do so) the court will allow substituted service by registered letter. Seaton v. Clarke, 26 L. R., Ir. 297.

No Affidavit of Indorsement of Service—Filing Statement of Claim.]—The defendant being out of the jurisdiction, an order had been obtained to serve notice in lieu of writ, and personal service had been effected. An affidavit had been made proving the fact of such service, but it did not mention the indorsement as required by Ord. IX. r. 13, of the Rules of Court, 1875:—Held, that the statement of claim might nevertheless be filed under Ord. XIX. r. 6, the court being of opinion that the provisions of Ord. IX. r. 13, did not apply to notice in lieu of writ under Ord. XI. Dymond v. Croft (34 L. T. 786) considered. Livesey, In re, Fish v. Chatterton, 47 L. T. 328; 31 W. R. 87.

Amendment of Indorsement.]—The court or a judge may allow an amendment under Ord. XXVIII. of the indorsement on a writ of summons, although the writ is for service out of the jurisdiction, and has been so served, if the action will still be one in which leave to serve the writ out of the jurisdiction might be given. Holland v. Leslie, 63 L. J., Q. B. 679; [1894] 2 Q. B. 450; 9 R. 743; 71 L. T. 33; 42 W. R. 577—C. A.

Order limiting Plaintiff's Right to Recover.]—An order having been obtained under Ord. XI. r. 1 (e), for service of notice of a writ out of the jurisdiction in an action for the price of goods supplied, and service having been effected accordingly, the defendant applied to a judge at chambers to rescind the order and to set aside the subsequent proceedings under it. The judge, being doubtful on the affidavits used whether there had been any breach of the contract within the jurisdiction, refused the application, but ordered that the plaintiff's claim should be limited to the recovery of the price of goods in respect of which it might appear at the trial that the writ could have been properly served out of the jurisdiction:—Held, that the order of the judge at chambers was rightly made. Thomas v. Hamilton (Duchess Dowager), 55 L. J., Q. B. 555; 17 Q. B. D. 592; 55 L. T. 385; 35 W. R. 22—C. A.

Where part of a contract only is to be performed within the jurisdiction, and a foreign defendant is sued for breach of the contract, the order giving leave for service out of the jurisdiction should expressly limit the relief to be given against such defendant at the hearing to relief in respect of the breach within the jurisdiction. Manitoba and North-Western Land Corporation v. Allan, 63 L. J., Ch. 156; [1893] 3 Ch. 432; 69 L. T. 558.

An order giving leave to serve notice upon a necessary party out of the jurisdiction ought not as a general rule to impose the condition that judgment should not be signed nor execution issued against the foreign defendant except by leave of the court or a judge. Firth v. De Las Rivas, 9 R. 51; 69 L. T. 666; 42 W. R. 100—C. A.

Defendant moving to Discharge Order—Proceedings on.]—Where, upon an ex parte application made to a judge in chambers, leave is given to serve a writ out of the jurisdiction, the proper course for a party objecting to the order is to apply to the judge to set it aside. This is a matter of procedure under the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1894, and if the judge refuses to set the order aside, or refuses the order in the first instance, appeal must be to the court of appeal with the leave of the judge or of the court of appeal. No motion to set aside the order can now be made to the divisional court. Black v. Dawson, 64 L. J., Q. B. 464; [1895] 1 Q. B. 848; 14 R. 350; 72 L. T. 525; 43 W. R. 435—C. A.

Where a plaintiff has obtained leave under Ord. XI. to serve a writ out of the jurisdiction, and the defendant moves to discharge the order, affidavits are admissible to contest the question whether the cause of action arose within the jurisdiction. Great Australian Gold Mining Co. v. Martin (5 Ch. D. 1) overruled on this point. Fowler v. Barstow, 51 L. J., Ch. 103; 20 Ch. D. 240; 45 L. T. 603; 30 W. R. 113—C. A.

When the plaintiff proves that there is a cause of action, and that such cause arose within the jurisdiction, the court will not allow such evidence to be controverted, or go into the merits of the case. Great Australian Gold Mining Co. v. Martin, 46 L. J., Ch. 289; 5 Ch. D. 1; 35 L. T. 874; 25 W. R. 246—C. A.

—— Appearance no Waiver.]—W., a London fruiterer, issued a writ of summons, and served it personally on M. in Scotland, to recover a debt of 47*l.* money due. W. made an affidavit that there was no local court having jurisdiction in Scotland, whereon the judge gave leave to serve M. in Scotland. M. entered an appearance in the high court, and applied to set aside the writ and service on the ground that there was a local court having jurisdiction:—Held, that the writ and service must be set aside as contrary to Ord. XI., and the entering of an appearance did not estop M. from so applying. White v. Macgregor, 46 J. P. 775.

A foreigner resident out of the jurisdiction who is served with notice of a writ of summons and appears under protest, does not thereby lose his right to object to the jurisdiction. Firth v. Palmer and De Las Rivas, 62 L. J., Q. B. 403; [1893] 1 Q. B. 768; 5 R. 378; 69 L. T. 383; 41 W. R. 493.

—— Waiver of Objection.]—The defendant, after having given notice to the plaintiff's solicitor that the objection to service out of the jurisdiction would be raised when the case came on for trial in the county court, had answered interrogatories:—Held, that there had been no waiver of the right to raise the objection in the High Court. Wood v. Middleton, 66 L. J., Ch. 149; [1897] 1 Ch. 151; 75 L. T. 480; 45 W. R. 184.

Application to Discharge—Time for.]—Where a defendant who had been served out of the jurisdiction with a writ appeared and objected to the power of the court to issue it under the circumstances:—Held, that the application was too late under Ord. LXX. r. 2. Tozier v. Hawkins, 15 Q. B. D. 650. See S. C. in C. A., infra, col. 183.

An order was made by the vacation judge, on the ex parte application of the plaintiffs, for service of the writ and notice of motion on the solicitors and at the place of business in England of a foreigner residing out of the jurisdiction. Without formally entering an appearance the defendant filed affidavits in opposition to the motion, and instructed counsel, who opposed the motion on the merits:—Held, that the defendant had thereby waived the right to raise any objection as to the irregularity of the order, and must be treated as if he had been properly served and had formally appeared; that the fact that the ex parte order had been passed and entered did not prevent the right of the defendant to move to discharge it; but that r. 12 of Ord. LXIII. did not apply to such a case, and that the proper mode of proceeding (if there had been no such order as aforesaid) would have been to apply, not to the Court of Appeal or the vacation judge, but to the judge to whose court the action was assigned, to discharge the order of the vacation judge. Boyle v. Sacher, 58 L. J., Ch. 141; 39 Ch. D. 249; 58 L. T. 822; 37 W. R. 68—C. A.

Mode of raising Objection to Order.]—The question of the service of a writ out of the jurisdiction is finally determined when leave to serve it is given under Ord. XI., subject to any application by the defendant to rescind the leave and to the right of appeal, and cannot be raised in the defence. Preston v. Lamont, 45 L. J., Ex. 797; 1 Ex. D. 361; 35 L. T. 341; 24 W. R. 928.

General Rule.]—No leave to serve a defendant with a writ out of the jurisdiction can now be given except in the cases specified in Ord. XI. r. 1. Eager, In re, Eager v. Johnstone, 52 L. J., Ch. 56; 22 Ch. D. 86; 47 L. T. 685; 31 W. R. 33—C. A.

Before leave for service of a writ out of the jurisdiction is granted, the plaintiff must prove that the cause of action arose within the jurisdiction. Ord. XI. must be held to imply that the fact of mere damages being incurred within the jurisdiction is not sufficient to enable the court or judge to give leave for service of the writ out of the jurisdiction. Shearman v. Findlay, 32 W. R. 122.

Territorial Jurisdiction.]—The phrase, "within the jurisdiction," used in Ord. XI. r. 1, means territorial jurisdiction. Smith, In re, City of Mecca, In re, 45 L. J., P. 92; 1 P. D. 300; 35 L. T. 38; 24 W. R. 903.

The jurisdiction of the queen does not extend from the coast beyond low-water mark unless it has been so extended by an act of parliament, and therefore Ord. XI. r. 1, which provides for the service of a writ of summons out of the jurisdiction where the act for which damages are sought to be recovered was done within the jurisdiction, does not authorise such service where the action was for the death of a person through the negligent management of defendants' vessel at sea, though within three miles of the coast of England. Harris v. The Franconia, 46 L. J., C. P. 363; 2 C. P. D. 173.

Third Party Notice.]—Ord. XI. rr. 2, 4, as to service of writs, &c., out of the jurisdiction, applies to the service of notices on third persons, under Ord. XVI. rr. 17, 18; and service of a notice on a company in Scotland was therefore good. Swansea Shipping Co. v. Duncan, 45 L. J., Q. B. 638; 1 Q. B. D. 644; 35 L. T. 879; 25 W. R. 233—C. A.

Service of Counter-claim on Third Party.]—A defendant may not serve a third party out of the jurisdiction with a counter-claim, although he may, if necessary, commence a fresh action against him. Potters v. Miller, 31 W. R. 858.

On Foreign Corporations.]—Ord. XI. r. 1, of the Rules of Court, 1875, which provides for service of a writ of summons out of the jurisdiction, applies to actions against a foreign corporation resident out of the jurisdiction. Scott v. Royal Wax Candle Co., 45 L. J., Q. B. 586; 1 Q. B. D. 404; 34 L. T. 683; 24 W. R. 668.

When, in such an action, the plaintiff has issued the writ and served notice thereof by leave of the court or a judge, he need not obtain any further leave to proceed and sign judgment for default of appearance under Ord. XIII. Ib.

The Supreme Court Procedure Law, 1872 (Jamaica), by s. 19 provides, "that in any action against a person residing out of Jamaica, it shall be lawful for the court or a judge, upon being satisfied by affidavit that there is a cause of action which arose within the jurisdiction or in respect of a breach of contract made within the jurisdiction, and that such person carries on in Jamaica any trade or business, and that he has no known agent in Jamaica authorised to bring actions . . . to order that the service of the writ and all subsequent proceedings may be made on any servant or agent in Jamaica engaged in carrying on for such person such . . . trade or business." A company conveying mails and passengers to and from Great Britain to the West Indies, was domiciled in London, but had a superintendent in Jamaica:—Held, that the company was a "person" within the meaning of the section, and that they carried on a business in Jamaica. Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. v. Braham, 46 L. J., P. C. 67; 2 App. Cas. 381; 36 L. T. 220; 25 W. R. 651.

Held, secondly, that an order directing service on their superintendent in Jamaica was correct. Ib.

Action for Rent of Land in England.]—Ord. XI., r. 1, does not enable the court or a judge to allow service out of the jurisdiction of a writ in an action for nonpayment of rent due under a lease of land in England against defendants who are domiciled or ordinarily resident in Scotland. Agnew v. Usher, 54 L. J., Q. B. 371; 14 Q. B. D. 78; 51 L. T. 576.

On appeal, the court held that the plaintiffs, having failed to shew that the defendants were assignees of the lease, had not shewn reason for the leave to be granted. Agnew v. Usher, 51 L. T. 576; 33 W. R. 126—C. A.

Contract, Obligation or Liability affecting Land.]—In an action by the outgoing tenant of a farm in Yorkshire to recover from his landlord, who was ordinarily resident in Scotland, compensation for tenant-right according to the custom of the country:—Held, that a "contract, obligation, or liability affecting land" was sought to be enforced in the action, and therefore that the court had power, under Ord. XI. r. 1 (b), to allow service of the writ of summons out of the jurisdiction. Agnew v. Usher (14 Q. B. D. 78) distinguished. Kaye v. Sutherland, 57 L. J., Q. B. 68; 20 Q. B. D. 147; 58 L. T. 56; 36 W. R. 508.

The defendants had their offices in London, and the writ in the action claimed (i.) a declaration that the defendants were trustees of certain lands in Londonderry for the general objects of the plantation of Ulster, and that a scheme should be settled for the application of the rents; (ii.) a declaration that the defendants, in so far as they had sold portion of the estates conveyed to them by the Irish Society, had committed a breach of trust by such sale; and (iii.) an inquiry as to how the defendants had disposed of certain woods:—Held, that the case came within Ord. XI. r. 1, sub-s. (b), and that service of the writ out of the jurisdiction should be allowed, and by FitzGibbon, L.J., that the case also came within sub-s. (d). Att.-Gen. v. Drapers Co., [1894] 1 Ir. R. 185—C. A.

Ord. XI. r. 1 (b) empowers the court or a judge to order service of a writ upon a defendant domiciled or ordinarily resident in Scotland in an action brought for breach of covenant to repair certain premises in England, such action being brought to enforce a contract affecting hereditaments within the meaning of the above sub-section. Kaye v. Sutherland (20 Q. B. D. 147) approved. Agnew v. Usher (14 Q. B. D. 78) distinguished. Tassell v. Hallen, 61 L. J., Q. B. 159; [1892] 1 Q. B. 321; 66 L. T. 196; 40 W. R. 221; 56 J. P. 520.

A statement in the nature of slander of title, made out of the jurisdiction concerning property within the jurisdiction, is not an act or thing affecting such property within Ord. XI. r. 1, and consequently service of the writ of summons in an action for such statement cannot be allowed out of the jurisdiction. Casey v. Arnott, 46 L. J., C. P. 3; 2 C. P. D. 24; 35 L. T. 424; 25 W. R. 46.

Person domiciled within the Jurisdiction—Abandonment of original Domicil—Permanency of Residence.]—S. was born in Ireland in 1868, where his father was temporarily located. In 1873 he returned with his father to England, and in 1883 he went to Cannes, where he resided for several years. In 1887 he went to England for the purposes of study, and in the same year his father acquired an Irish domicil, where he resided till the beginning of 1893, when he sold his property there. S. paid occasional visits to his father's house in Ireland. In 1890 he returned to Cannes. On March 25, 1892, he married the plaintiff, the widow of a French gentleman, at the British consulate at Nice. At the date of the marriage the plaintiff was entitled to considerable personal property and some real estate in Jersey. Shortly after the marriage the plaintiff left S., and threatened legal proceedings against him and his uncle, alleging that they (in breach of an antenuptial agreement) had obtained by fraud and violence some of her property and by similar means had induced her to sign a bill of exchange for a large amount. Subsequently, by deed, S. and his uncle entered into partnership with H., to carry on business at Cannes. Shortly afterwards S. registered himself with the mayor of Cannes as having declared his wish "établir (ou) avoir établi sa résidence à Cannes":—Held, that S. was not "domiciled" within the jurisdiction, and that no writ could be served on him out of the jurisdiction. Spurway v. Spurway, [1894] 1 Ir. R. 385—C. A.

Administration of Trusts of Written Instrument—No Trust Property within the Jurisdiction.] — In order that service of a writ of summons out of the jurisdiction may properly be allowed under Ord. XI. r. 1 (d) in an action "for the execution (as to property situate within the jurisdiction) of the trusts of any written instrument of which the person to be served is a trustee, which ought to be executed according to the law of England," the property subject to the trusts of the written instrument must be actually situate within the jurisdiction, and must not be simply property which ought to be, or if the trusts were duly executed would be, so situate, and the period to be regarded in reference to such property must be either when leave to effect service is asked, or possibly when service is effected, or possibly at the latest when an application to set aside the service is made. Winter v. Winter, 63 L. J., Ch. 165; [1894] 1 Ch. 421; 8 R. 614; 69 L. T. 759.

Semble, if some property exists within the jurisdiction when leave to serve out of the jurisdiction is obtained, property subject to the same trusts which subsequently comes within the jurisdiction may be dealt with in the course of the same action. Ib.

Contract which, "according to the terms thereof," ought to be performed within the Jurisdiction.]—Service of a writ of summons out of the jurisdiction under the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. XI. r. 1 (e), which provides that such leave may be allowed where the action is founded on any breach or alleged breach of contract wherever made, "which, according to the terms thereof, ought to be performed within the jurisdiction," cannot be allowed, unless the contract expressly or (having regard to the ordinary rules of construction) impliedly requires that performance shall be within the jurisdiction. Bell v. Antwerp, London, and Brazil Line, 60 L. J., Q. B. 270; [1891] 1 Q. B. 103; 64 L. T. 276; 39 W. R. 84; 7 Asp. M. C. 154—C. A.

—— Place of Payment—Breach within the Jurisdiction.]—By a charter party, under which a foreign company having no place of business in England chartered a vessel from English shipowners to load a cargo in London to be carried to a foreign port, it was stipulated that all lighterage should be at the charterers' or consignees' risk and expense, the charterers indemnifying the owners from any and all lighterage at port of discharge. The charter party did not state where moneys payable under the contract of indemnity were to be paid:—Held, that the contract of indemnity was not a contract which, according to the terms thereof, ought to be performed within the jurisdiction, within Ord. XI. r. 1 (e). Ib.

The plaintiffs, a London firm, constituted the defendant, who resided in Hamburg, their agent to sell goods for them in Germany, by a letter which stipulated that cash should be paid against bills of lading. The course of business under this contract was for the plaintiffs to send the bills of lading by post, and for the defendant to remit the money to London. The plaintiffs applied under Ord. XI. r. 1, clause (e), for leave to issue a writ against the defendant for service abroad to recover the balance due to them under this contract:—Held, by the divisional court, that, having regard to the course of business, there was a breach within the jurisdiction of a contract which was required to be performed within the jurisdiction within the meaning of the rule:—Held, by the court of appeal, that, looking only at the terms of the contract and the circumstances existing at the time, the inference was that the money was to be remitted to London, and that the application fell within the rule. Rein v. Stein, 61 L. J., Q. B. 401; [1892] 1 Q. B. 753; 66 L. T. 469—C. A.

The plaintiff, owner of a vessel belonging to the port of Belfast, instructed N., a Belfast insurance agent, to effect a policy of insurance on the vessel; the insurance agent through his London agent, R., effected the policy in London with the defendants, and the owner paid N. the premium in Belfast, and there received the policy from him. The defendants alleged that they carried on business at Lloyd's, in the city of London only; that they neither accepted risks, received premiums, paid losses, nor had any agents out of London; that the policy was underwritten at Lloyd's in consequence of a proposal made by R. at Lloyd's; that the premium was paid and the policy delivered by and to R. in London; that they did not, nor did N. or any other person on their behalf, receive the premium or deliver the policy at Belfast; and that, in accordance with a well-known custom of Lloyd's, any money which might become due under the policy was payable at Lloyd's, and not elsewhere. The plaintiff alleged that he had no notice or knowledge of that custom before effecting the policy. The defendants refused to pay the amount of the policy to the plaintiff:—Held, that the defendants were bound to pay the amount (if any) due on the policy to the plaintiff in Belfast, that the non-payment constituted a breach of their contract with the plaintiff within the jurisdiction, and that he was entitled to an order for leave to serve a writ to recover the amount of the policy on the defendants out of the jurisdiction. Ward v. Harris, 8 L. R. Ir. 365—C. A.

A civil engineer residing at Newcastle, and having his office there, agreed with the defendants (one an Englishman and one a foreigner, who carried on business in partnership in Spain) to prepare drawings for, and superintend the construction of, certain docks in Spain; he was to visit the works during construction once in every three months, and was to be paid his travelling expenses, and also a commission of 5*l.* per cent. on the total cost in certain instalments. No place for payment was specified in the contract:—Held, in an action to recover the balance due, that the defendants' contract to pay was a contract which, according to the terms thereof, ought to be performed within the jurisdiction; and therefore a concurrent writ might be served on the foreign defendant out of the jurisdiction. Thompson v. Palmer, 62 L. J., Q. B. 502; [1893] 2 Q. B. 80; 4 R. 422; 69 L. T. 366; 42 W. R. 22—C. A.

In an application for service out of the jurisdiction, it appeared that the action was brought by the plaintiffs, engine-makers in England, for the price of machinery erected by them in the Isle of Man for the defendants, a company carrying on business in the island. There was no agreement as to the place of payment:—Held, that it must be taken to be part of the contract that the plaintiffs should receive payment in England, that the action was therefore founded on a breach within the jurisdiction, according to

Ord. XI. r. 1 (c), and that service out of the jurisdiction might be allowed. Robey v. Snaefell Mining Co., 57 L. J., Q. B. 134; 20 Q. B. D. 152; 36 W. R. 224.

A contract between English coal exporters and Italian merchants provided for delivery of coals in Italy at a price specified in English money, payment to be made "in cash against receipt of the documents." In the course of previous transactions between the parties payment for cargoes of coals had been made by means of cheques upon English bankers sent through the post from the consignees in Italy to the exporters in England:—Held (Mathew, J., dissenting), that payment of the price under the contract was to be made in England, and therefore Ord. XI. r. 1 (e) applied. Fry v. Raggio, 40 W. R. 120.

—— Transfer of Shares.]—R., an American, residing in England for the purposes of his business, brought an action against C., an American resident in America, to enforce a contract by C., made in England, to transfer to R. shares in an English company. Leave was given to issue the writ, and serve notice of it in America. More than a year afterwards the defendant applied to discharge the order for service on the ground that there was no jurisdiction to order service abroad, as the contract was not one which, according to its terms, ought to be performed within the jurisdiction:—Held, that Ord. XI. r. 1, sub-s. (c), does not require that a contract should state in terms that it is to be performed within the jurisdiction, but that it is enough if it appears from a consideration of the terms of the contract, and the facts existing when the contract was made, that it was intended to be performed within the jurisdiction; that a contract made in England to transfer shares in an English company to a person resident in England was a contract which, according to its terms, ought to be performed within the jurisdiction. Reynolds v. Coleman, 56 L. J., Ch. 903; 36 Ch. D. 453; 57 L. T. 588; 35 W. R. 813—C. A. Cp. Harris v. Fleming, 49 L. J., Ch. 32; 13 Ch. D. 108; 28 W. R. 389.

—— Commission Agent—Wrongful Dismissal.]—A. verbally agreed in Glasgow with B., a Scotch coal merchant, to act for B. as commission agent in Ireland. After A.'s return to Dublin, some correspondence passed between the parties as to terms, but which, in the opinion of the court, was merely referential to the antecedent complete verbal contract. B. being dissatisfied with A., wrote and posted in Scotland a letter addressed to A. in Ireland, terminating the employment:—Held, that A. was not entitled to an order for liberty to serve B. out of the jurisdiction with a writ of summons claiming commission and damages for wrongful dismissal. Hamilton v. Barr, 18 L. R. Ir. 297—C. A.

—— Delivery of Goods in London.]—M., a merchant at New York, contracted to supply certain goods to B., a merchant in London, on certain terms. On arrival of the goods in London they were found to be defective, and not according to contract, and the defects in them were not due to the sea-voyage:—Held, that, inasmuch as the breach was continuing, the English courts had jurisdiction, and therefore that the defendant might be served with notice of a writ of summons under Ord. XI. r. 1, sub-r. (c) Barrow v. Myers, 52 J. P. 345.

—— Charging Order.]—This was a motion for leave to issue for service out of the jurisdiction a writ in an action seeking to enforce a charging order obtained by the plaintiff, a judgment creditor, upon certain shares belonging to the defendant, the judgment debtor. The Judgment Act (1 & 2 Vict. c. 110), s. 14, which, by virtue of Ord. XLVI. r. 1, regulates the effect of a charging order, provides that "such order shall entitle the judgment creditor to all such remedies as he would have been entitled to if such charge had been made in his favour by the judgment debtor." Ord. XI. r. 1 provides that service out of the jurisdiction of a writ of summons, or notice of a writ of summons, may be allowed by the court or a judge whenever (c) "the action is founded on any breach, or alleged breach, within the jurisdiction, of any contract, wherever made, which, according to the terms thereof, ought to be performed within the jurisdiction":—Held, that, assuming that the case could be treated as one of contract at all, it would only be a contract that the shares should be charged, and of such a contract there had not been any breach within the jurisdiction. Moritz v. Stephan, 58 L. T. 850; 36 W. R. 779.

—— To supply News—Transmission through Postal Telegraph Office—Balance of Convenience.]—A company, whose office was in London, contracted with G., the proprietor of a Dublin newspaper, for the transmission to him of news. The contract contained a condition that the company was not to be responsible for non-delivery or for delay or errors which might occur in the collection or transmission of its news supplies:—Held, that the contract was not fulfilled by the delivery of the news at the postal telegraph office in London for transmission to Dublin, and that, in an action by G. for breach of the contract in negligently and carelessly supplying him with false news, he was entitled to an order for leave to serve the writ of summons out of the jurisdiction, on the grounds that the breach of the contract occurred in Dublin, and that, having regard to the necessary witnesses, as disclosed by the affidavits on both sides, the preponderance of convenience was not against a trial in Ireland. Gray v. Press Association, 22 L. R. Ir. 1—C. A.

—— Salvage of Foreign Ship—Lien on Ship—Place of Payment.]—The breach of a contract to pay cannot be made the subject of an action in England under Ord. XI. r. 1 (e) where the contract may be performed either within or without the jurisdiction. The Eider, Neptune Salvage Co. v. Norddeutscher Lloyd, 62 L. J., P. 65; [1893] P. 119; 1 R. 593; 69 L. T. 622; 7 Asp. M. C. 354—C. A.

—— Cost, Freight, and Insurance—Foreign Port.]—The defendant contracted to sell to the plaintiff certain wood goods, c.f.i., and ship them at a port in Sweden for an English port. The ships were to be addressed to the plaintiff at the English port, and on their arrival he was to adopt the charter parties and bills of lading and pay the price. The defendant failed to perform the main portion of his contract, and the plaintiff commenced an action for damages in England, and applied for leave to serve notice of the writ of summons upon the defendant out of the jurisdiction under Ord. XI. r. 1 (e). The question then arose as to whether the breach had occurred within or outside the jurisdiction:—Held, that upon the true construction of the contract all the defendant had to do was to ship the goods on board at the Swedish port: accordingly the breach occurred there, and not at the English port; and that, as no cause of action arose within the jurisdiction, no leave to serve notice of writ of summons under Ord. XI. r. 1 (e) could be granted. Vaucke v. Wingren, 58 L. J., Q. B. 519.

—— No Contract—Right of Contribution.]—The first mortgagee of a ship, with a power to collect the freight, brought an action against the second mortgagee of the ship (whose mortgage included an assignment of the freight) and others, claiming an account and payment out of the freight of the amount he had paid for the wages of the crew and the wages and disbursements of the master. The freight was in the hands of R. & Co., foreigners, resident abroad, to whom it had been paid as the agents of the second mortgagee, and who claimed to retain it in satisfaction of a debt due to them from their principal. The plaintiff sought to make R. & Co. defendants to his action:—Held, that, as no contract existed or had existed between the plaintiff and R. & Co., r. 1 of Ord. XI. did not apply; and that the equity (if any) of the plaintiff against R. & Co. was a right to contribution, in respect of which they should be sued in the ordinary way. M'Stephens v. Carnegie, 49 L. J., Ch. 397; 42 L. T. 309—C. A. Reversing 28 W. R. 385.

—— Defendant domiciled or ordinarily resident in Scotland or Ireland.]—An agreement by a person domiciled or ordinarily resident in Scotland that a writ for breach of contract arising within the jurisdiction may be served on him in Scotland does not authorise the court to direct service of such a writ in Scotland, as to do so would be in direct contravention of Ord. XI. r. 1 (e). British Wagon Co. v. Gray, 65 L. J., Q. B. 75; [1896] 1 Q. B. 35; 73 L. T. 498; 44 W. R. 113—C. A.

There is no power to allow service of a writ out of the jurisdiction in actions for breach of contract under Ord. XI. r. 1 (e) where the defendant is domiciled or ordinarily resident in Scotland or Ireland. Lenders v. Anderson, 53 L. J., Q. B. 104; 12 Q. B. D. 50; 49 L. T. 537; 32 W. R. 230; 48 J. P. 136.

An insurance company, whose registered office was in Scotland, and whose secretary resided there, but which also had agencies and a chief office within the jurisdiction of the high court, issued a policy through an agent within the jurisdiction, to whom the premiums were paid. The company having refused to pay a claim on the policy:—Held, that it was not domiciled or ordinarily resident within the jurisdiction, and that leave to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction could not be granted. Jones v. Scottish Accident Insurance Co., 55 L. J., Q. B. 415; 17 Q. B. D. 421; 55 L. T. 218.

Injunction—Act to be done within Jurisdiction.]—Manufacturers in Switzerland, in reply to a letter from retail dealers in England asking them to send 5 lbs. of a dye which they manufactured, forwarded a letter in which they inclosed an invoice of the goods ordered. The invoice described the goods as "bought" by the dealers of the manufacturers, and stated that they were sent to a specified firm in Switzerland "to be held by them at your disposal." The plaintiffs alleged that the dye thus sold was an infringement of their patent, and commenced an action against the English purchasers and the Swiss manufacturers, claiming an injunction. The plaintiffs, having served the purchasers, applied ex parte for leave to issue a concurrent writ, and to serve notice thereof on the manufacturers out of the jurisdiction:—Held, that the plaintiffs had shewn a primâ facie case within Ord. XI. r. 1 (f) of a sale within the jurisdiction, and that the leave asked should be given. Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik v. Johnson, 65 L. J., Ch. 174; [1896] 1 Ch. 25; 73 L. T. 523; 44 W. R. 308—C. A.

—— Breach within Jurisdiction of Contract made outside.]—The defendant, who was resident in Scotland, entered into a contract with an English mining company whereby he was to perform certain services for them in the Transvaal at a salary. The contract was executed by the defendant in Scotland, but was in English form. The defendant proceeded to the Transvaal, but returned therefrom before he had fully performed the services. He claimed a half-year's salary, which he alleged was due to him. This the company declined to pay on the ground that the defendant had broken his contract with them, and he thereupon threatened to present a petition for the winding up of the company. The company brought this action claiming (1) rescission of the contract; (2) return of certain sums paid by them in pursuance of it after setting off such salary, if any, as might be due to the defendant; and (3) an injunction to restrain the defendant from presenting or advertising any petition for the winding up of the company. An order having been made for service of the writ on the defendant in Scotland, he moved to discharge such order. He contended that the case was not within Ord. XI. r. 1 of the Rules of Court, 1883; that the action was not for a breach "within the jurisdiction" of a contract made without the jurisdiction; and that the company could not, merely by inserting in their writ a claim for an injunction, bring the case within the rule:—Held, that r. 1 of Ord. XI. applied to the case; that it was not necessary that an injunction should be the only relief sought in order to bring the case within the rule; and that the motion must therefore be refused. Lisbon-Berlyn Gold Fields v. Heddle, 52 L. T. 796.

—— Infringement of Trade-mark—Defendant's Agents only within Jurisdiction.]—A summons by T. A. M., a manufacturer, resident in Scotland, for leave to register a trade-mark, was pending before the high court, and was opposed by J. M., also resident and carrying on a similar manufacture in Scotland, on the ground that the mark was similar to one belonging to J. M. J. M. applied for leave to issue a writ against T. A. M. for an injunction and damages, on the ground that T. A. M. was selling his goods in England in such a way as to lead the public to believe that they were J. M.'s goods. J. M. deposed that the same witnesses would be required on the summonses and in the action, and that it would be most convenient and would save great expense if the action was brought in England, or that the summons and action could be tried together:—Held, that, as an injunction in England could only be enforced against agents of T. A. M., and not against himself, leave ought not to be given to issue the writ, the matter being one which was better left to the courts of Scotland. Marshall v. Marshall, 38 Ch. D. 330; 59 L. T. 484—C. A.

In an action to restrain the infringement of the plaintiff's registered trade-mark, the defendants being a company having their registered office at Glasgow, with branches in London, Manchester, and Hull, leave to serve the writ out of the jurisdiction was given, as an injunction could be enforced by sequestration against the property of the company in England. Marshall v. Marshall (38 Ch. D. 330) discussed and distinguished. Burland's Trade-mark, In re, Burland v. Broxburn Oil Co., 58 L. J., Ch. 591; 41 Ch. D. 542; 60 L. T. 586; 37 W. R. 470; 1 Meg. 215.

—— Restraining Defamatory Post-cards.]—A writ of summons claiming an injunction to restrain the defendant (resident in Dublin) from sending to the plaintiffs, or either of them, in London, through the post-office or otherwise, libellous, defamatory, or obscene post-cards, &c., and also claiming damages, may by leave of the court be issued and served upon a defendant residing in Dublin, under Ord. XI. r. 1 (f), notwithstanding the obstacles to making the injunction available. Tozier v. Hawkins, 55 L. J., Q. B. 152; 15 Q. B. D. 680; 34 W. R. 223—C. A.

—— Restraining Proceedings.]—A Scotchman having died intestate in Bolivia, his sisters, who were resident and domiciled in Scotland, obtained there a finding that he was domiciled in Scotland, and were decerned executrices dative of his personal estate, and afterwards obtained an order from the probate division of the high court sealing the Scotch confirmation. The plaintiff being domiciled and resident in Bolivia, and alleging herself to be the widow of the intestate, brought this action against the executrices dative, and G. & Sons, who held in their hands the greater part of the intestate's personal estate. The plaintiff claimed by her writ (1) a declaration that the deceased died domiciled in Bolivia, and that the plaintiff was entitled to the whole of his personal estate; (2) administration by the court; (3) an injunction restraining G. & Sons from paying over to the executrices the funds in their hands, and an injunction against the executrices from taking proceedings to recover, and from receiving the intestate's personal estate; and (4) a receiver. The defendants, G. & Sons, were friendly to the plaintiff. An order having been obtained on behalf of the plaintiff for service of the writ on the executrices in Scotland, and the executrices having moved to set aside such service as not being within Ord. XI. of the Rules of 1883:—Held, that the relief asked for by the writ, if limited to an injunction restraining the executrices from suing G. & Sons within the jurisdiction, was such as would in a proper case justify the court in allowing service of the writ out of the jurisdiction under Ord. XI. r. 1 (f); held also, that although the plaintiff was not precluded by the sealing of the confirmation from suing here, yet, having regard to the circumstances generally, and especially to the fact that it had appeared that the plaintiff intended to take proceedings in Scotland for the revocation of the Scotch confirmation, and in any view of the case must have recourse to the court in Scotland to establish her claim to the movables there, the court, in the exercise of its discretion under Ord. XI. r. 2, ought not to allow the service out of the jurisdiction, as it was more convenient that proceedings should be taken in Scotland. De Penny, In re, De Penny v. Christie, 60 L. J., Ch. 518; [1891] 2 Ch. 63; 64 L. T. 521; 39 W. R. 571.

—— Repetition not apprehended.] — Leave ought not to be given under Ord. XI. r. 1 (f) to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction where the claim for an injunction is not made bonâ fide, and there is no reason to apprehend the repetition of the matter complained of. De Bernales v. "New York Herald," 62 L. J., Q. B. 385; [1893] 2 Q. B. 97, n.; 5 R. 339; 68 L. T. 658; 41 W. R. 481. Affirmed 5 R. 343, n.—C. A.

—— Matter of Discretion.]—A charter-party having been entered into in Scotland between the plaintiffs and a shipowner, both parties being resident in Scotland, on an ex parte motion to restrain the shipowner from dealing with the ship, which was then at a port within the jurisdiction, in a manner alleged to be inconsistent with the charter-party:—Held, having regard to the discretion given to the court by Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XI. r. 1a, that it was not a case in which the court would grant an injunction or direct service of the writ out of the jurisdiction. McPhail, Ex parte, 48 L. J., Ch. 415; 12 Ch. D. 632; 41 L. T. 338; 27 W. R. 525.

Necessary or Proper Party to an Action.]—By Ord. XI. r. 1, service out of the jurisdiction of a writ of summons or notice of a writ of summons may be allowed by the court or a judge whenever (g) "any person out of the jurisdiction is a necessary or proper party to an action properly brought against some other person duly served within the jurisdiction." In an action against defendants in London for breach of warranty of authority it appeared that they had assumed as agents for foreign principals to enter into a contract to be performed out of the jurisdiction, and that there had been a breach out of the jurisdiction, the supposed principals having repudiated the contract as being made without their authority:—Held, that the foreign principals were "proper" parties to the action within Ord. XI. r. 1 (g), and that service on them out of the jurisdiction of notice of the writ might be allowed. Massey v. Heynes, 57 L. J., Q. B. 521; 21 Q. B. D. 330; 36 W. R. 834—C. A. Affirming 59 L. T. 470.

The plaintiff brought his action in England on a policy of marine insurance against several underwriters. He served his writ of summons on two of the underwriters who were within the jurisdiction, and applied for leave under Ord. XI. r. 1 (g) to serve his writ on the other defendants, who were residing out of the jurisdiction in Scotland, as being necessary parties to the action:—Held, that the plaintiff ought to be allowed to serve his writ out of the jurisdiction; and that Ord. XI. r. 1 (g) was framed to meet such a case. Thanemore Steamship v. Thompson, 52 L. T. 552; 5 Asp. M. C. 398.

The power given to the court by Ord. XI. r. 1 (g) to allow service out of the jurisdiction of notice of a writ of summons upon a person who is a necessary or proper party applies to the case of a foreigner resident abroad. Firth v. De Las Rivas, 9 R. 51; 69 L. T. 666; 42 W. R. 100—C. A.

The plaintiffs, an English company, entered into a contract in Spain with the defendants, who carried on business in partnership in Spain, to manufacture and deliver certain goods in Spain. The payment was to be made abroad. One of the defendants was an English subject, and the other was a Spanish subject resident in Spain. The plaintiffs brought an action to recover the price of the goods so delivered, and the writ was served on the English partner in England:—Held, that the foreign partner was a "proper party" to the action within Ord. XI. r. 1 (g), and that leave to issue a concurrent writ and serve notice thereof on him out of the jurisdiction might be allowed. Massey v. Heynes (21 Q. B. D. 330) followed. Ib.

Salvors having rendered service to a ship, freight, and cargo, commenced an action in personam, and having served the owners of ship and freight resident in this country, obtained leave, ex parte, to serve the owners of cargo who were resident in Norway with notice of the writ. On a motion to set aside the service of the notice of the writ:—Held, that the owners of cargo were "proper parties" to the action within Ord. XI. r. 1 (g), and therefore a motion to set aside service was dismissed. The Elton, 60 L. J., P. 69; [1891] P. 265; 65 L. T. 232; 39 W. R. 703; 7 Asp. M. C. 66.

In an action of tort properly brought against a person who has been duly served within the jurisdiction, the court has power to give leave for service out of the jurisdiction on any person who is a necessary or proper party to the action under Ord. XI. r. 1 (g). Croft v. King, 62 L. J., Q. B. 242; [1893] 1 Q. B. 419; 5 R. 222; 68 L. T. 296; 41 W. R. 394.

In an action against directors of a company for fraudulent misrepresentations in the prospectus, two of the defendants had been served within the jurisdiction:—Held (Lord Esher, M.R., dissenting), that, upon the construction of Ord. XI. rr. 1 (g) and 2, there was jurisdiction to give leave to serve out of the jurisdiction a third defendant, who was resident in Scotland, and that, upon the facts of the case, the discretion of the judge at chambers was wrongly exercised in setting aside such service, the comparative cost and convenience being in favour of one action in England against all the defendants. Per Lord Esher, M.R.:—If there is jurisdiction to give leave under Ord. XI. r. 1 (g) in an action of tort, which is doubtful, in such an action leave should be given only in very exceptional circumstances. Williams v. Cartwright, 64 L. J., Q. B. 92; [1895] 1 Q. B. 142; 14 R. 98; 71 L. T. 834; 43 W. R. 145—C. A.

—— Similar Relief claimed.]—A person out of the jurisdiction is not, within the meaning of Rules of the Supreme Court, Ord. XI. r. 1 (g), "a necessary or proper party to an action properly brought against some other person duly served within the jurisdiction," unless the relief claimed against him in the action is the same as, or connected with, that claimed against the latter. Collins v. North British and Mercantile Insurance Co., 63 L. J., Ch. 709; [1894] 3 Ch. 228; 8 R. 470; 71 L. T. 58; 43 W. R. 106.

—— Substantial Defendant within the Jurisdiction.]—Where a plaintiff brings an action in the alternative against two defendants, one of whom is within and the other without the jurisdiction, he cannot serve the latter without the jurisdiction under Ord. XI. r. 1 (g) unless he has a bonâ fide claim against the former, and has not joined the latter merely for the purpose of suing him in the English courts. Witted v. Galbraith, 62 L. J., Q. B. 248; [1893] 1 Q. B. 577; 4 R. 362; 68 L. T. 421; 41 W. R. 395—C. A.

On an application to serve a person out of the jurisdiction under Ord. XI. r. 1 (g), it must be shewn that there is within the jurisdiction a defendant against whom substantial relief is claimed, and it must also be shewn that the defendant within the jurisdiction has been previously duly served. Yorkshire Tannery v. Eglinton Chemical Co., 54 L. J., Ch. 81; 33 W. R. 162.

—— Defendant within Jurisdiction must be served.]—Service out of the jurisdiction will not be allowed under Ord. XI. r. 1 (g) unless the defendant within the jurisdiction has previously been served. Collins v. North British and Mercantile Insurance Co., supra.

In an action to enforce against real estate in Trinidad the trusts of a creditor's deed (which had been established by a former suit in the court of chancery), the defendants were persons in whom the legal estate was outstanding, one of them being a British subject resident in Trinidad. The other defendants resided in England. An opinion was given by a barrister practising in Trinidad that the beneficial interest in the real estate there was bound by the deed. The writ had been served on those defendants who were in England:—Held, that leave could be given to serve the writ on the defendant who was in Trinidad. Jenney v. Mackintosh, 33 Ch. D. 595; 55 L. T. 733; 35 W. R. 181.

—— Discretion.]—Where a testatrix resided and was domiciled in Ireland, and died in Ireland, and her will was made and proved in Ireland, and she appointed three executors, two residing in Ireland and one residing and domiciled in England, and the executors sold some consols and invested the proceeds in the purchase of some Irish land, a beneficiary brought an action against the English executor in England, claiming that the investment was improper, and the executors were liable to replace the money. Leave having been given to serve the writ on the two executors in Ireland, on motion to discharge the order giving such leave:—Held, that it was a matter of discretion for the judge, and the action having been properly brought against a man within the jurisdiction, the case fell within Ord. XI. r. 1 (c), and the motion must be refused. Harvey v. Dougherty, 56 L. T. 322.

Defendant in Scotland or Ireland—Comparative Convenience.]—In an action to restrain the infringement of the plaintiffs' trade-mark and the sale of the defendants' goods as those of the plaintiffs, the defendants being resident in Ireland, and having neither property nor place of business nor agents within the jurisdiction, the judge discharged an order which he had made in chambers on an ex parte application for service of the writ out of the jurisdiction, on the ground that the action could have been more easily and cheaply tried in Ireland than in England, notwithstanding that a motion was pending in this court, on behalf of the plaintiffs, for the registration of their trade-mark and the removal from the register of the defendants' trade-mark. Kinahan v. Kinahan, 59 L. J., Ch. 705; 45 Ch. D. 78; 62 L. T. 718; 38 W. R. 655. Cp. Marshall v. Marshall and De Penny, In re, ante, cols. 183, 184.

To obtain leave to serve a defendant in Scotland, it is not enough to shew the amount of the claim, that the contract was made and the breach of it occurred in London, that the plaintiff and also the agent of the defendant (who signed the contract) reside in London, that all the plaintiff's witnesses reside in London, and that it would be more convenient and less expensive to try the action in London than in Scotland. The affidavit should go on to shew in what respect, regard being had to the facilities for trying the cause in the neighbourhood of the defendant's residence, it would be cheaper and more convenient to try in London. Woods v. M'Innes, 4 C. P. D. 67; 27 W. R. 49. Cp. Williams v. Cartwright, ante, col. 185.

On the marriage of an Englishman, domiciled in England, with a Scotch lady, a settlement in Scotch form was made of her property, under which, after the death of the wife, the property went to the children of the marriage, subject only to an annuity to the husband. On the death of the wife, the only child of the marriage, an infant, resident with his father in England, commenced an action against the trustees to have the trusts administered by the court, alleging that the trustees improperly refused to allow maintenance out of the income. The trust property was all in Scotland, and the trustees all resided there. An order having been obtained for leave to serve the writ upon the trustees in Scotland:—Held, by the court of appeal, that, assuming that there was jurisdiction under Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XI. r. 1, to allow service of the writ in Scotland, still, under the discretion given by Ord. XI. r. 1a, such service ought not to be authorised, as it was more convenient and proper that the trusts of Scotch property held by Scotch trustees upon the trusts of a Scotch instrument should be administered by a Scotch than by an English court. Semble, that under Ord. XI. r. 1 there was no jurisdiction to order service of the writ in Scotland. Creswell v. Parker, 11 Ch. D. 601; 40 L. T. 599; 27 W. R. 897—C. A.

The plaintiff (who resided in Ireland) and the defendant entered into a partnership contract executed in London (the defendant being described as a civil engineer, of Victoria-street, Westminster) for the construction of a railway in Ireland. The defendant and his family went to reside in Ireland, he having to superintend the works in progress. The contract provided that the business should be carried on in Victoria-street and Ireland, and that the books should be kept at Victoria-street. After a very short time this clause was abandoned, and the business and the books were carried on and kept in Ireland. Disputes having arisen, the plaintiff, while residing for a short time in England, obtained leave from the chief clerk, upon an ex parte application in chambers, to issue and serve out of the jurisdiction a writ in an action for the taking of the accounts and for the appointment of a receiver and manager:—Held, under Rules of Supreme Court, rr. 1 and 1a of Ord. XI., that the application of the plaintiff was improper, and that the writ must be discharged with costs. Tottenham v. Barry, 48 L. J., Ch. 641; 12 Ch. D. 797; 28 W. R. 180.

On the 14th of May, 1877, an agreement was entered into at Bombay between the plaintiff, the defendant M. M., and the defendants N. & Co. (an Indian firm), to work certain mines in India as a joint adventure, in which N. & Co. were to find the capital and the plaintiff to acquire the mining rights, and each partner was to take one-third of the profits. N. & Co. afterwards went into liquidation in India, and their property became vested in trustees residing in Bombay. The plaintiff subsequently ascertained that on the 17th of April, 1879, an agreement had been entered into in England between the defendant H., as the agent of N. & Co.'s trustees, and G., the agent of a Scotch company, for the sale of the mining rights to the Scotch company, and that such agreement contained no mention of the plaintiff's rights. The plaintiff then brought an action against N. & Co., their Indian trustees, H. (the agent), M. M., and the Scotch company, and by the indorsement on his writ claimed a declaration that under the agreement of the 14th of May, 1877, he was entitled to one-third of the profits of the mining adventure, and that the defendants and their estates in liquidation might be declared liable to account for and pay all moneys obtained by the defendants respectively by dealing with the mining properties, and fraudulently concealing the plaintiff's interest therein, with an injunction to restrain the defendants respectively from carrying the agreement of the 17th of April, 1879, into effect, except on the footing of the plaintiff being entitled to one-third of the profits, and for ancillary relief. The plaintiff, three out of the five members of the firm of N. & Co., and H., were in England, but all the other parties to the action were out of the jurisdiction; and the plaintiff obtained, under Ord. XI. r. 1 of the Rules of Court, 1875, an order authorising service out of the jurisdiction of the writ on the Scotch company in Scotland. Upon motion by the Scotch company to discharge this order:—Held, (1) that the balance of convenience was in favour of the action being tried here; (2) that the case was substantially a partnership case, in which an English court might properly exercise jurisdiction, and that the Scotch company were not entitled to have their case separated from that of the other defendants; (3) that the order for service out of the jurisdiction on the Scotch company was rightly made under Ord. XI. r. 1, because (a) the action "affected," within the meaning of the second branch of the rule, the contract of April, 1879, which was made within the jurisdiction, and (b) because the same contract constituted a breach within the jurisdiction of a contract made abroad. Harris v. Fleming, 49 L. J., Ch. 32; 13 Ch. D. 108; 28 W. R. 389.

Rule 1a of Ord. XI., giving a discretion to the judge when the defendant resides in Scotland or Ireland, only relates to actions on contracts, and will not be applied to other actions. Fowler v. Barstow, 51 L. J., Ch. 103; 20 Ch. D. 240; 45 L. T. 603; 30 W. R. 113—C. A.

A plaintiff, who resided in London, brought an action for breach of contract against the defendant, who lived in Ireland. The contract was made and broken in England:—Held, that an order could properly be made under Ord. XI. r. 1 allowing the service of the writ of summons on the defendant in Ireland. Green v. Browning, 34 L. T. 760.

In an action founded on an alleged breach within the jurisdiction of a contract which, according to the terms thereof, ought to have been performed within the jurisdiction, an order had been made on the plaintiff's ex parte application to serve the writ upon the defendant, who was domiciled and resident in Scotland:—Held, on a motion under Ord. XII. r. 30 to set aside this order and the service, that Ord. XI. r. 2 does not refer to the exception in clause (e) of the previous rule, and that there is no power under Ord. XI. r. 1 to allow service of the writ nor to exercise the discretion given by r. 2 in the circumstances of this case. Lenders v. Anderson, 12 Q. B. D. 50; 49 L. T. 537; 32 W. R. 230.

There is no power to allow service of a writ out of the jurisdiction in actions for breach of contract under Ord. XI. r. 1 (e) when the defendant resides in Scotland, even though the contract contains a clause that the defendant may be served in Scotland. British Wagon Co. v. Gray, 65 L. J., Q. B. 75; [1896] 1 Q. B. 35; 73 L. T. 498; 44 W. R. 113—C. A.

Transfer from County Court to High Court.]—An action commenced in the county court, in which the summons was by order served on the defendant out of jurisdiction, was, for lack of jurisdiction (the estate which it was sought to administer exceeding 500*l.*), transferred to the high court. An objection in respect of the service out of the jurisdiction, which had been raised by the defendant in the county court, but not decided, was again raised in the high court:—Held, that though, if the action had remained in the county court, the objection could not, having regard to Ord. LI. r. 23 of the County Court Rules, 1889, have been successfully urged, yet the defendant, having throughout objected to the jurisdiction, ought to have an opportunity of shewing in the high court that the action was one which could not be prosecuted there. Wood v. Middleton, 66 L. J., Ch. 149; [1897] 1 Ch. 151; 75 L. T. 480; 45 W. R. 184.

Old Practice—Slander uttered abroad, but Special Damage within Jurisdiction—"Act done."]—On an application for leave to issue a writ of summons for service out of the jurisdiction, it appeared that the cause of action was an alleged slander uttered abroad, and followed by special damage in England:—Held, by the divisional court, that the special damage in England was not an act done within the jurisdiction, so as to give the court power to allow service of the writ out of the jurisdiction under Ord. XI. r. 1; held, by the court of appeal, that the writ ought not to issue, for as it was not shewn that the slander was intended to be transmitted to England, the special damage, if it was the cause of action, was not the act of the person who uttered the slander or an act for which he was responsible, so that there was no act done by him within the jurisdiction within Ord. XI. r. 1. Bree v. Marescaux, 50 L. J., Q. B. 676; 7 Q. B. D. 434; 44 L. T. 765; 29 W. R. 858—C. A.

2. Before the Judicature Acts.

In respect of what Causes of Action, or Breaches of Contract within the Jurisdiction.]—A claim for a balance due as the result of cross consignments and remittances between a merchant here and a merchant (a British subject) domiciled and carrying on business exclusively at the Cape of Good Hope is a cause of action which arose within the jurisdiction of the superior courts at Westminster, or in respect of the breach of a contract made within the jurisdiction. Horwood v. Wood, 17 C. B. (N.S.) 749; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 1132; 11 L. T. 383; 13 W. R. 94.

A defendant, being at Florence, signed a joint and several promissory note as one of the two makers, and sent it to London to the other, who signed it, and paid it into the plaintiff's bank:—Held, that the cause of action arose in London, and the defendant could be served with process. Chapman v. Cottrell, 3 H. & C. 865; 34 L. J., Ex. 186; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 530; 12 L. T. 706; 13 W. R. 843.

On a charter party made abroad for a right delivery at a port in this country:—Held, that a cause of action for demurrage there arose within the jurisdiction. Slade v. Noel, 4 F. & F. 424.

An Irish judgment for a debt contracted in England does not constitute a cause of action which arose within the jurisdiction of the superior courts of this country, nor does its remaining unsatisfied, the debtor being in this country, constitute a breach of a contract made within the jurisdiction. Thelwall v. Yelverton, 16 C. B. (N.S.) 813; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 292; 10 L. T. 506; 12 W. R. 876.

In an action for breach of a contract made abroad, but to be performed in this country, leave to proceed by service out of the jurisdiction will not be allowed, as the whole cause of action has not arisen within the jurisdiction of the court. Allhusen v. Malgarejo, 37 L. J., Q. B. 169; L. R. 3 Q. B. 340; 18 L. T. 323; 16 W. R. 854.

The allotment of shares in a limited company and a subsequent call thereon having been made in this country, a British subject resident in India may be served with a writ in an action for the call under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 18, although the call was directed to be paid, and was not paid, to the company's bankers in India. Oriental Hotel Co. v. Pelly, 38 L. J., Ex. 39.

It is sufficient to entitle a plaintiff to proceed under the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, s. 18, that the breach of contract should have arisen within the jurisdiction. Vaughan v. Weldon, 44 L. J., C. P. 64; L. R. 10 C. P. 47; 31 L. T. 683; 23 W. R. 138.

The case of Jackson v. Spittal, infra, lays down the rule which will henceforward be followed by all the courts, notwithstanding the cases of Allhusen v. Malgarejo, supra, and Cherry v. Thompson, infra. Ib.

"Cause of action" in s. 18 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, does not mean the whole cause of action, i.e. contract and breach, but the act on the part of the defendant which gives the plaintiff his cause of complaint. Jackson v. Spittall, 39 L. J., C. P. 321; L. R. 5 C. P. 542; 22 L. T. 755; 18 W. R. 1162.

A defendant while abroad was served with a writ of summons in an action for breach of promise of marriage under the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, s. 18. The promise of marriage was made abroad, and broken in this country:—Held, per Martin, B., Pigott, B., and Cleasby, B., that the case was within the section, and the service of the writ good (dissentiente Kelly, C. B.). Per Pigott, B., and Cleasby, B.:—In actions of contract the "breach" is the "cause of action" within the meaning of s. 18. Per Kelly, C. B.:—The "cause of action" in that section includes both contract and breach. Durham v. Spence, 40 L. J., Ex. 3; L. R. 6 Ex. 46; 23 L. T. 500; 19 W. R. 162.

The words "cause of action" in the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, s. 18, mean the whole cause of action, and therefore, in cases of contract, the contract as well as the breach must have taken place within the jurisdiction. Cherry v. Thompson, 41 L. J., Q. B. 243; L. R. 7 Q. B. 573; 26 L. T. 791; 20 W. R. 1029.

Two British subjects, residing abroad, agreed to marry one another; the one on coming to England received from the other a letter written abroad renouncing the engagement:—Held, that, supposing the breach to have occurred in England, the "cause of action" did not occur in England. Ib.

Held, also, that the breach did not occur in England. Ib.

A contract of hiring was made in London between the defendant, who resided there, and the plaintiff, who was afterwards sent to Ireland to discharge there the duties of his service; subsequently, and before the plaintiff had performed any service there, the defendant wrote and posted in London a letter of dismissal, addressed to and received by the plaintiff in Dublin:—Held, in an action for wrongful dismissal, founded upon the letter as a breach of the contract, that no part of the cause of action arose in Ireland. Mathews v. Alexander, Ir. R. 7 C. L. 575.

The plaintiff, resident in Ireland, sent to the defendant, resident in England, for his signature, a draft letter which proposed to engage the plaintiff as agent in Ireland for the defendant. The defendant signed the letter in England and returned it by post to the plaintiff, who received it in Ireland. The plaintiff was subsequently dismissed by the defendant by a letter written and posted by the defendant in England, and received by the plaintiff in Ireland:—Held, in an action for wrongful dismissal, that both the contract and the breach arose in England. Deane v. Sanford, Ir. R. 9 C. L. 228.

The defendant executed in London, where he resided, a charter party whereby he contracted with the plaintiffs that his ship Havre should proceed to Santander, load there 300 tons of flour, and deliver the cargo of 300 tons to the plaintiffs in Dublin; and he transmitted the charter party to the plaintiffs in Dublin, with a request that they would sign it, which they did, and returned it to him perfected. The ship was capable of loading 201 tons only, which were delivered to the plaintiffs in Dublin, where they paid the freight to the defendant's agent:—Held, first, that the breach in not loading 300 tons in Santander and delivering them in Dublin was a cause of action arising in Ireland. Macken v. Ellis, Ir. R. 8 C. L. 151.

Held, secondly, that a cause of action arose in Ireland for falsely warranting that the ship was capable of carrying 300 tons from Santander to Dublin; for fraudulently and falsely representing that she was capable of doing so; and for negligence in not procuring a vessel sufficiently large for that purpose. Ib.

A promissory note payable in London but delivered to the plaintiff abroad by the defendant, an English subject, comes within s. 18 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852. Fife v. Round, 6 W. R. 282.

—— Foreigners.]—The Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, s. 19, does not apply to foreign corporations domiciled and carrying on business exclusively abroad. Armstrong v. Elbinger Actien-Gesellschaft, 23 W. R. 94.

Sect. 19 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76 does not apply to foreign corporations carrying on business abroad, and the court has no power to give leave to proceed in the action upon affidavit of service of notice of the writ on the secretary of such a body as therein prescribed. Ingate v. Austrian Lloyd's Co., 4 C. B. (N.S.) 704; 27 L. J., C. P. 323; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 975; 6 W. R. 659.

The defendant, a merchant residing in Norway, and not being a British subject, drew, indorsed, and sent in a letter by post to a merchant in London, a bill of exchange payable in London, and which was indorsed to the plaintiff and dishonoured:—Held, that there was no cause of action which arose within the jurisdiction of the superior courts, nor the breach of a contract made within their jurisdiction, and consequently the plaintiff could not proceed against the defendant under the 19th section. Sichel v. Borch, 2 H. & C. 954; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 107; 9 L. T. 657; 12 W. R. 346.

Substituted Service of Petition.]—When a respondent to a petition was out of the jurisdiction, the court made an order for substituted service, and also gave leave to the petitioner to serve the respondent abroad. Bonelli's Electric Telegraph Co., In re, Cook's Claim, 43 L. J., Ch. 720; L. R. 18 Eq. 655; 31 L. T. 38; 22 W. R. 856.

—— When allowable.]—The court has no power to authorise service out of the jurisdiction unless in cases where it is enabled to do so by statute. Maugham, In re, 22 W. R. 748.

Leave to serve the common order to tax on a solicitor out of the jurisdiction was not given. Ib.

Service on Solicitors.] — Where defendants were resident out of the jurisdiction, substituted service of the copy of the bill was allowed to be made on their solicitor, who was employed by them in a suit that was pending relative to the same subject-matter. Rees v. Braidley, 22 L. T. 470.

Effect of Appearance—Jurisdiction.]—A writ was issued with a special indorsement, stating that the defendant was sued as a member of a bank at Calcutta, on promissory notes of that bank. The writ was served on the defendant in person, who entered an appearance to it, on which a declaration was delivered, and he afterwards applied for and obtained an inspection of the notes. He likewise made an affidavit that they were made at Calcutta, and that he was not aware of the nature of the plaintiff's claim until he inspected them:—Held, that, assuming the case not to be within the 18th section of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, the defendant, by appearing to the action, had given the court jurisdiction over it. Forbes v. Smith, 10 Ex. 717; 3 C. L. R. 505; 24 L. J., Ex. 167; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 383; 3 W. R. 214.

If a party, served with a writ abroad, appears, he will not be allowed to set aside the writ upon the ground that the cause of action declared on did not arise within the jurisdiction of the court, and it makes no difference that the writ was not specially indorsed. Staniforth v. Richmond, 13 W. R. 724.

If the court has once acquired jurisdiction over a party in a cause, he may be effectually served with any order in the cause in any part of the world. Anon., 1 Hog. 1.

If a party have appeared in a cause it is unnecessary to apply for liberty to serve him with an order of the court, although he reside out of the jurisdiction. Smith v. Rooney, Jon. & C. 104.

If a party in a suit may be served out of the jurisdiction, under the statute 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 82, in respect of any part of the subject of the suit, the service is good for all the other purposes of the suit. Green v. Pledger, 3 Hare, 165; 13 L. J., Ch. 213; 8 Jur. 801.

Setting aside on Ground of Irregularity.]—In a suit to obtain relief against a domiciled Scotchman living at Glasgow in respect of certain transactions relating to a company which was registered and carried on business in England, and to restrain his dealing with the shares of the company in his possession, the defendant was served at his office in Glasgow under an order obtained ex parte for service of copy bill with interrogatories upon him "in Scotland or elsewhere out of the jurisdiction of the court":—Held, that, having regard to the subject-matter of the suit (shares in a company registered in this country), service out of the jurisdiction had been properly directed, and that, although the order was in terms irregular, the court would not, after it had been acted upon and service effected under it, discharge it on the ground of such irregularity. Phospho-Guano Co. v. Guild, 43 L. J., Ch. 360; L. R. 17 Eq. 432; 30 L. T. 117; 22 W. R. 526.

A British subject residing out of the jurisdiction, having been served with a writ of summons, and not having appeared, a judge's order was made that the plaintiff should be at liberty to proceed. Judgment was signed on the 28th November. The defendant on the 12th March applied to set aside the proceedings, on the ground that the cause of action did not arise wholly within the jurisdiction of the court:—Held, that the order was not void, and the defendant not having come within a reasonable time, the rule was refused. Hutton v. Whitehouse, 1 H. & N. 32; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 379; 4 W. R. 463.

In November, 1852, the plaintiff's attorney issued against the defendant a writ for service on a British subject residing out of the jurisdiction. In the following March, the defendant's attorney entered an appearance. The plaintiff's attorney not being aware that an appearance was entered, from time to time renewed the writ, and on the 31st of March served the defendant, who had always resided in England, with a copy of the renewed writ:—Held, that there was no ground for setting aside the proceedings. Green v. Braddyll, 1 H. & N. 69; 4 W. R. 487.

A writ issued and served on a British subject out of the jurisdiction may be set aside, on the application of the defendant, if it is shewn that there was no cause of action which arose within the jurisdiction. Binet v. Picot, 4 H. & N. 365; 28 L. J., Ex. 244.

When a defendant, by affidavit, states that the cause of action arose abroad, the plaintiff must, to support the writ, distinctly shew such facts as, if true, would shew that the cause of action arose or the contract was made within the jurisdiction. Ib.

Conditions Imposed.]—A writ having been issued for service out of the jurisdiction, the defendant applied on affidavit to set it aside, on the ground that the cause of action did not arise within the jurisdiction; and the court not being satisfied that the plaintiff did not intend to sue for matters not arising within the jurisdiction, made an order to set aside the writ, unless the plaintiff would give an undertaking to prove a cause of action arising within the jurisdiction, and to confine himself to that cause of action. Diamond v. Sutton, 35 L. J., Ex. 129; L. R. 1 Ex. 130; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 319; 13 L. T. 800; 14 W. R. 374.

The plaintiff and the defendant were British subjects, and the latter carried on business at establishments both in Paris and in London. In December, 1866, the plaintiff entered into the defendant's service in Paris, under a contract of that date made in Paris and written in the French language, by which he agreed to serve the defendant in the capacity of manager of the defendant's business, at a salary of 9,000 francs a year, payable monthly, and a commission of 10 per cent. on the balance of profits to be taken at the end of each year. In October, 1870, owing to the exigencies of the war in France, the plaintiff and the defendant came over to London, and from that time the plaintiff was occupied in the defendant's service in London up to June, 1871, when both of them returned to Paris, the plaintiff continuing on there, as before, in the defendant's service until November, 1871, when he was dismissed, there being a balance of nine months' wages due to him at that time. The plaintiff then commenced an action in this country against the defendant for a breach of contract in non-payment of wages, and for a wrongful dismissal. A rule to set aside the writ of summons and all subsequent proceedings on the ground that the cause of action did not arise within the jurisdiction was discharged by the court, upon the plaintiff undertaking to confine himself strictly to a cause of action arising within the jurisdiction, namely, the nonpayment of the salary accruing due to him in respect of his services in this country. Arrowsmith v. Chandler, 27 L. T. 242.

Waiver.]—The subject of the suit was a mine in America, in which the plaintiff and the defendants, P. and B. (all Americans), were interested. Various negotiations and contracts were made and entered into between the parties, under or by virtue of which an English company was formed here to work the mine. P. came over to this country to superintend the English company, but B. remained throughout in America. Disputes arose, and a suit was instituted here to restrain P. from selling certain shares of the English company; for an account; and for other relief. P. did not object to the jurisdiction. An order was made in the suit to serve process upon B. in America, which was done:—Held, upon a motion by B. to discharge such order, that as it did not appear that P. was B.'s agent, his not objecting to the jurisdiction did not operate as a waiver by B. of any objection which he (B.) might have to it, or of his rights as an American citizen to be sued in respect of an American contract, in the courts of his own country alone. Davis v. Park, 42 L. J., Ch. 204; 21 W. R. 136. Affirmed, 42 L. J., Ch. 673; L. R. 8 Ch. 862, n.; 28 L. T. 295; 21 W. R. 301.

A bill was filed against four trustees in India of a fund in India, and one formal defendant in England, to recover money payable in England.

The trustees were served out of the jurisdiction, appeared and answered, and entered into evidence:—Held, that as the defendants had not demurred or pleaded or moved to discharge the order for service, the court might determine the questions between the parties. Edwards v. Warden, 43 L. J., Ch. 644; L. R. 9 Ch. 495; 30 L. T. 540; 22 W. R. 669.

Practice on Discharge of Order.]—Course to be taken by a defendant who considers that an order for service upon him out of the jurisdiction ought not to have been made. Maclean v. Dawson, 4 De G. & J. 150; 28 L. J., Ch. 742; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 663; 7 W. R. 354.

A defendant may move to set aside an order for service out of the jurisdiction, on the ground of irregularity, without filing any affidavit. National Insurance and Investment Association v. Carstairs, 2 N. R. 348; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 955; 8 L. T. 717; 11 W. R. 866.

Where a plaintiff had introduced into his bill statements as to the subject of the suit, bringing it within the 2 Will. 4, c. 33, and 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 82, and the defendant, on an application to discharge an order for service abroad, had filed an affidavit to disprove the statements:—Held, that the affidavit which had been rejected ought to be received. Foley v. Maillardet, 1 De G. J. & S. 389; 3 N. R. 361, 446; 33 L. J., Ch. 335; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 161; 9 L. T. 700; 12 W. R. 355.

f. Indorsement of Time of Service.

Extension of Time for.] — Under r. 6 of Ord. LVII. of Rules of Court, 1875, the court has power to extend the time fixed by r. 13 of Ord. IX. for the making an indorsement on a writ of the date of service out of the jurisdiction. Hastings v. Hurley, 50 L. J., Ch. 577; 16 Ch. D. 734; 44 L. T. 176; 29 W. R. 440.

Where through inadvertence the date of the service of a writ has not been indorsed upon the writ within the time prescribed by Ord. IX. r. 13, the court can extend the time so as to make an indorsement made after the proper time and all subsequent proceedings valid. Sproat v. Peckett, 48 L. T. 755.

Where, upon service of a writ on a defendant, he denies that he is the party named therein, and the person serving the writ consequently omits to make the indorsement on the writ within the time required, the court will permit him to make the indorsement. Burrows v. Gabriel, 1 B. C. Rep. 159; 4 D. & L. 107.

In Case of Substituted Service.]—In the case of substituted service it is not necessary to indorse on the writ the date of service, as provided by Ord. IX. r. 13, in order to proceed by default. Dymond v. Croft, 45 L. J., Ch. 604; 3 Ch. D. 512; 34 L. T. 786; 24 W. R. 842—C. A.

Service out of the Jurisdiction.]—The provisions of Ord. IX. r. 13, do not apply to notice in lieu of writ under Ord. XI. Livesey, In re, Fish v. Chatterton, 47 L. T. 328; 31 W. R. 87.

By whom made.]—The indorsement may be made by a marksman. Baker v. Coghlan, 7 C. B. 731.

Writ in Defendant's Possession.]—Formerly, if a defendant improperly got possession of the writ, the court would allow an appearance to be entered without any indorsement, and order the defendant to pay the costs. Brooke v. Edridge, 2 D. P. C. 647.

But not when the original writ was sent by the plaintiff to the defendant at his request, and he kept it, and did not appear. Atkinson v. Howell, 7 M. & W. 213; 8 D. P. C. 872; 10 L. J., Ex. 64.

Liability for not Indorsing.]—An attorney retained to prosecute an action, and not a process server employed, is liable to an action for a breach of duty in neglecting to indorse on the writ the time of service. Curlewis v. Broad, 1 H. & C. 322; 31 L. J., Ex. 473; 10 W. R. 797.

g. Renewal of Writ.

Writ Issued before Judicature Act, 1875—Renewal under Common Law Procedure Act, 1852.]—Upon a motion to set aside the service of a writ issued in 1861, and renewed every six months under s. 11 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, until March, 1890, when it was served on the defendant, on the ground that the writ had become a nullity owing to its not having been renewed in accordance with the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. VIII. r. 1, which require the order of the court or a judge for that purpose:—Held, that the service must be set aside, the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, having been repealed by the 46 & 47 Vict. c. 49. The Rules of 1883 must be read together with that act, and therefore Ord. VIII. r. 1, applies here. The rules under the judicature acts apply to all writs issued either before or since the acts came into force, and the practice-masters were wrong in allowing writs to be renewed without an order. In this case Ord. LXXII. r. 2, cannot be relied on. Hume v. Somerton, 59 L. J., Q. B. 420; 25 Q. B. D. 239; 62 L. T. 828; 38 W. R. 748; 55 J. P. 38.

When Original Writ Lost.]—When an original writ of summons, issued in January, 1875, and renewed in July, was lost, the court had no power to allow a renewal of it, under the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852 (15 & 16 Vict. c. 76), s. 11, by ordering a verified copy to be sealed. Davies v. Garland, 45 L. J., Q. B. 137; 1 Q. B. D. 250; 33 L. T. 727; 24 W. R. 252.

Extension of Time—Statute of Limitations.]—It is a rule of practice that the court will not extend the time for renewing a writ of summons after the expiration of twelve months from the day of the date of the writ, where the claim would, in the absence of such renewal, be barred by the Statute of Limitations. But, semble (per Kay, L.J.), that the court has power to do so under exceptional circumstances. Hewett v. Barr, 60 L. J., Q. B. 268; [1891] 1 Q. B. 98; 39 W. R. 294—C. A.

When a writ was not served within twelve months from its issue, and the cause of action had in the meantime become barred by the statute of limitations, the court, following Doyle v. Kaufman (3 Q. B. D. 7, 340), refused to extend the time for its renewal, under Ord. LXIV. r. 7. Magee v. Hastings, 28 L. R., Ir. 288.

Before the expiration of six years from the falling due of a simple contract debt the plaintiff took out of the Court of Common Pleas a writ for its recovery. The writ was never served and no further proceedings were taken in the action. Before the expiration of the writ, but after the expiration of six years from the debt falling due, the plaintiff took out a summons for the administration of the estate of his debtor, who died intestate. All these proceedings were before the passing of the judicature act:—Held that, although the debt was, at the date of his taking out the summons, kept alive in the common pleas by 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 11, it was barred in the court of chancery. Fievet v. Manby, Manby, In re, 3 Ch. D. 101; 35 L. T. 307; 24 W. R. 699.

When more than twelve months have elapsed since the date of a writ, and it has not been served on the defendant, the court has no power under Ord. LVII. r. 6, to enlarge the time appointed by Ord. VIII. r. 1, for application to be made to renew the same, if at the date of the application the plaintiff's right to sue is barred by the Statute of Limitations (21 Jac. 1, c. 16). Doyle v. Kaufman, 47 L. J., Q. B. 26; 3 Q. B. D. 7; 26 W. R. 98. Affirmed, 3 Q. B. D. 340—C. A.

Amending and Renewing.]—When a writ of summons has been amended, the twelve months during which it is in force, under Ord. VIII. r. 1, must be reckoned from the date of issue, and not from the date of amendment. Jones, In re, Eyre v. Cox, 46 L. J., Ch. 316; 25 W. R. 303.

Leave given, under Ord. LVII. r. 6, to renew a writ after the expiration of twelve months. Ib.

Cases under Common Law Procedure Act.]—A plaintiff took out a writ against J.; afterwards, and before service, having discovered that the real defendant was W., he altered the writ, had it resealed, and then served it for the first time, retaining the original teste:—Held, that this might be done, although before the resealing, but after the date of the teste, the defendant had made a tender, it appearing that the plaintiff had acted bonâ fide, and had been misled as to the name of the defendant by the defendant's attorney. Gibson or Dixon v. Varley or Vorley, 7 El. & Bl. 49; 26 L. J., Q. B. 79; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 318.

On the day of the expiration of a writ the plaintiff's attorney attended at the office for the purpose of having it renewed, and paid the fee; but, being suddenly called away, omitted to get the seal impressed, and did not discover the mistake until it was too late to keep the writ alive by resealing, so as to save the statute of limitations:—Held, that the court had no power to direct the officer to impress the seal on the writ as of the day when the attorney applied to have it renewed; but that it would have been otherwise if the omission to reseal the writ had been occasioned by a fault of the officer of the court. Nazer v. Wade, 1 B. & S. 728; 31 L. J., Q. B. 5; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 134; 5 L. T. 604.

Where a plaintiff has by inadvertence allowed the time for resealing a writ to elapse without having the writ resealed, the court will not order it to be done nunc pro tunc, unless it can see that there has been some default in the conduct of some one of its officers. Anon., 31 L. J., Q. B. 61.

The six months during which a writ continues in force, after its renewal, are to be computed inclusively of the day of renewal. Anon., 1 H. & C. 664; 32 L. J., Ex. 88; 7 L. T. 718; 11 W. R. 293.

Therefore, where a writ was originally issued on the 23rd of January, 1861, and successively renewed, the last renewal being on the 19th of July, 1862, and on Monday, the 19th of January, 1863, the officer, on being applied to, declined to impress the renewal seal on the writ:—Held, that the writ had expired, and the court refused to direct the officer to impress the seal, nunc pro tunc, as of that date. Ib.

The last day for resealing a writ, so as to save the statute of limitations, expired on Saturday, the 28th December, within the Christmas holidays. A party who attended at the office on that day for the purpose found it shut, and the officer having refused to reseal the writ on the following Monday, the court refused to order him to do it afterwards, nunc pro tunc. Evans v. Jones, 2 B. & S. 45; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 641; 5 L. T. 673.

A judge has no power to order the resealing of a writ which has once run out of date. If, of several resealings, one was made too late, all subsequent resealings are bad, though an attempt has been made to cure the original defect by a judge's order. Fisher v. Cox, 16 L. T. 397.

h. Concurrent Writs.

Copy not marked "concurrent."]—A copy of a concurrent writ issued pursuant to Ord. VI. r. 1, is not a true copy, unless marked "concurrent." Collins v. North British and Mercantile Insurance Co., 63 L. J., Ch. 709; [1894] 3 Ch. 228; 8 R. 470; 71 L. T. 58; 43 W. R. 106.

When Issued.]—A concurrent writ can only be issued within six calendar months from the first commencement of the action by the original writ, although the original writ has been renewed. Coles v. Sherrard, 11 Ex. 482; 25 L. J., Ex. 59.

Several Defendants.]—Whenever different times for appearing have to be allowed to different defendants, the proper course is to issue concurrent writs. Traill v. Porter, 1 L. R., Ir. 60.

When one of the defendants in a probate action was a foreign subject residing out of the jurisdiction, the court ordered that he should receive notice in lieu of service of a writ of summons marked as a concurrent writ under Ord. VI. r. 2. Beddington v. Beddington, 45 L. J., P. 44; 1 P. D. 420; 34 L. T. 366; 24 W. R. 348.

There is no irregularity in issuing several writs of summons for the same cause of action, where there are several defendants, if they are issued on the same præcipe and dated on the same day. Angus v. Coppard, 3 M. & W. 57; 6 D. P. C. 137; 7 L. J., Ex. 10.

Where there are several defendants residing in two different counties, two writs of summons may be issued, and dated on different days. Crow v. Crow, 1 D. & L. 709; 13 L. J., Q. B. 57; 7 Jur. 1060.

Service out of the Jurisdiction—Original Writ renewed—Enlargement of Time.]—Under the Rules of Court, 1883, Ord. VI. rr. 1, 2, the court has power to give leave for the issue of a concurrent writ for service out of the jurisdiction, although the original writ was issued for service within the jurisdiction, and has been renewed, and although there is only one defendant to the action. And where the writ has been renewed such leave may be given, notwithstanding that the enlargement of time for issuing a concurrent writ may affect the operation of the statute of limitations. Smalpage v. Tonge, 55 L. J., Q. B. 518; 17 Q. B. D. 644; 55 L. T. 44; 34 W. R. 768—C. A.

V. APPEARANCE AND PROCEEDINGS IN DEFAULT OF.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ords. XII. and XIII.

When Writ issued in District Registry.]—A writ was issued in a district registry, and an appearance entered to it in London, but no notice of appearance was given to the plaintiff's solicitor at his address within the district, out of the registry of which the writ was issued:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to sign judgment in default of an appearance. Smith v. Dobbin, 47 L. J., Ex. 65; 3 Ex. D. 338; 37 L. T. 777; 26 W. R. 122—C. A.

Appearance in Person—By whom Entered.]—When a defendant appears in person to a writ of summons, the memorandum required by the Common Law Procedure Act, s. 31, may be delivered to the officer by a third person duly authorised in the defendant's behalf, and need not be delivered by him in person or by an attorney for him. Oake v. Moorecroft, 10 B. & S. 848; 39 L. J., Q. B. 15; L. R. 5 Q. B. 76; 18 W. R. 115.

Pursuant to Undertaking.]—Solicitor ordered to pay all the costs occasioned by his refusing to appear for defendant at the hearing, pursuant to his undertaking, and the costs of the application. Cook v. Broomhead, 16 Ves. 133. See also SOLICITOR.

Form of Entry.]—In entering an appearance, the form must be followed. Warren v. Love, 7 D. P. C. 602; 2 W. W. & H. 55; 3 Jur. 363. S. P., Codrington v. Curlewis, 9 D. P. C. 968; 5 Jur. 701.

By Married Women and Infants.]—Although the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, bound married women as to appearance to process, its provisions in that respect did not apply to infants. Jarman v. Lucas, 15 C. B. (N.S.) 474; 33 L. J., C. P. 108; 12 W. R. 202.

Entry after Time Expired.]—It is competent to a defendant, against whom a writ has been issued, to enter an appearance after the writ has expired. Richardson v. Daley, 7 D. P. C. 25; 4 M. & W. 384; 8 L. J., Ex. 13; 2 Jur. 946.

Where an appearance is entered after due time, though before judgment signed, there should be notice of it. Rhodes v. Bryant, 2 F. & F. 265. See Ord. XII. r. 22.

Non-appearance by some Defendants.]—A summons was taken out by two or three defendants (who were the trustees and lessees of a mining company worked on the cost-book system) that proceedings might be stayed, and that the matters in difference between the parties might be referred to arbitration. This summons was still pending. The third defendant had never appeared, but an appearance had been entered for him by the plaintiff. Under these circumstances a motion by the two co-defendants for leave to appear for and use the name of the non-appearing defendant on the summons was refused with costs. Willesford v. Watson, 26 L. T. 15; 20 W. R. 278.

The court ordered a cause to be set down for hearing notwithstanding one of the defendants, who was a trustee, had not entered an appearance. Burrell v. Maxwell, 25 L. T. 655.

When one of several defendants served has not appeared, while the others have appeared and delivered defences, the plaintiff may move for judgment, as against the defendants who have delivered defences, under the Judicature Act, Ord. XL. r. 11, upon admissions, and as against the defaulting defendant under the combined effects of Ords. XIII. r. 9, and XXIX. r. 10; but as against the latter the action must be set down on motion for judgment, and in both cases two clear days' notice of motion must be given. Parsons v. Harris, 6 Ch. D. 694; 25 W. R. 410.

When two defendants are sued by a specially indorsed writ of summons to recover a sum due by them on foot of a joint and several contract, and one of them is served with the writ of summons but does not appear within the limited time, and the other defendant is not served, final judgment for the sum claimed can be marked against the defendant who was served, but made default, without discontinuing the action against the remaining defendant. Parker v. Hamilton, 30 L. R., Ir. 156.

In an action for a liquidated demand against A. and B. on foot of a joint debt, the writ being specially indorsed, the court allowed judgment, in default of appearance, to be entered against A. without prejudice to the plaintiff's right to proceed against B., who had not been served. Rice v. Dillon, 28 L. R., Ir. 376.

By Person not a Party.]—In an action to administer real and personal estate, cross summonses, for leave to defend at the cost of the estate certain actions of ejectment, were taken out—first, by the plaintiff, who was the sole acting trustee (three others named in the bill having disclaimed), and, second, by the equitable tenant for life, who was in possession of the rents under an order of the court:—Held, that the court could not refuse the claim of the tenant for life to defend the actions of ejectment. Leave given accordingly, with liberty to use the name of the trustee for that purpose. Longbourne v. Fisher, 47 L. J., Ch. 379; 38 L. T. 216; 26 W. R. 276.

Appearance of Third Party before Service.]—A defendant set up a counter-claim in which he asked for relief against a third party, as well as the original plaintiffs, but on delivery of the defence and counter-claim to the plaintiffs' solicitors, who were also the solicitors of the third party, the defendant's solicitor told them that they must not take it as a service upon them as representing the third party, as the defendant was not sure whether he would proceed with his counter-claim against the third party, though, owing to the time for delivering the defence and counter-claim to the plaintiffs having nearly expired, he was obliged to deliver it as it was. The third party entered an appearance to the counter-claim, and delivered a defence. The defendant having made up his mind not to proceed with his counter-claim against the third party, moved to discharge his appearance:—Held, that, until service of the counter-claim, no one can consider himself as a defendant to it; that the third party was therefore wrong in appearing without being served; and that on the defendant amending his counter-claim by omitting all mention of the third party, the third party's appearance should be discharged. Fraser v. Cooper, 52 L. J., Ch. 684; 23 Ch. D. 685; 48 L. T. 754; 31 W. R. 714.

Conditional.]—On a motion by a defendant who was in contempt for not having appeared to set aside a sequestration, he cannot be heard without first entering a conditional appearance with the registrar, which would be void if the motion should not succeed. Davidson v. Hastings (Marchioness), 2 Keen. 509; 7 L. J., Ch. 186, 215; 2 Jur. 756.

At Trial.]—See infra, TRIAL.

Setting Aside—Illusory Address for Service.]—A defendant appeared in person to a writ, and gave an address for service in the memorandum of appearance. On inquiry it was found that though the defendant had once carried on business at the address given, he had ceased to do so, and had left no instructions as to the forwarding to him of letters or documents. A letter forwarded by the plaintiff to his private address was returned through the Dead Letter Office. The plaintiff subsequently received a letter from the defendant from abroad. On an ex parte application the court made an order declaring the address for service illusory or fictitious under Ord. XII. r. 12. Edell v. Cave, 54 L. J., Ch. 308; 51 L. T. 621; 33 W. R. 208.

—— Service of Order.]—A judge's order to set aside an appearance is of no avail until served on the opposite party, although the clerk of appearances has struck out the appearance in pursuance of the order. Belcher v. Goodered, 4 D. & L. 814; 4 C. B. 472.

—— Entered by Solicitor without Authority.] See SOLICITOR.

—— In other Cases.]—Appearance once entered by attorney, can only be struck out by leave of court. Menzies v. Rodrigues, 1 Price, 92.

An appearance cannot be regularly entered without the defendant's authority. Watson v. Fairlie, 4 L. J. (o.s.) Ch. 53.

Where a solicitor, by mistake, has entered an appearance for a party for whom he is not authorised, the court will not, on the application of the solicitor alone, cancel the appearance. Sambroke v. Hayes, 4 L. J., Ch. 175.

The appearance entered in a cause by a defendant's solicitor will not be set aside on the ground that such solicitor had not at the time taken out his certificate for the year, if he was then, and still continued, duly entered on the roll. Sparling v. Brereton, 14 W. R. 515.

By the deed of settlement of a banking company, it was provided that the funds or property of the company should be vested in trustees, and that it should be lawful for the directors to direct legal proceedings on behalf of the bank, and to direct the necessary parties to commence, prosecute, or defend the same; that such parties should not release or discontinue such proceedings without the consent of the directors, and that they should be indemnified out of the property of the bank against all expenses and losses in consequence. Property was purchased by the bank, and was conveyed to H. and two others, who were then the trustees. On a bill being filed by persons claiming a beneficial interest against the three trustees, the solicitors of the bank entered an appearance for all three of them, and prepared an answer, without any express authority from, or knowledge on the part of H., who moved that the appearance for him might be cancelled or withdrawn:—Held, that the appearance had not been entered without his authority, having regard to the deed, and the fact that the suit was one in which he had no interest whatever, and the motion was refused with costs. Henrich v. Sutton, L. R. 6 Ch. 220; 24 L. T. 530; 19 W. R. 515.

Power of attorney to a solicitor in India to enter appearance and act generally for an infant in India, that being the practice there. Ruck v. Barworth, 3 W. R. 592.

Waiver of Irregularity by.]—A formal objection to a notice of motion is waived by the party appearing and requesting further time to oppose it. Morland, Ex parte, 3 Deac. & C. 248.

Subpœna was served on defendant at house in London, but he resided in country; attachments issued, and he appeared:—Held, appearance waived irregularity; that it must be considered a town cause: therefore, an order obtained for six weeks' time to answer was discharged with costs, as being irregular. Bound v. Wells, 3 Madd. 434.

A waiver of irregularity in process by appearance, does not relate back so as to bring the defendant into contempt for not appearing in time. Robinson v. Nash, 1 Anstr. 76.

An irregularity in process may be cured by the defendant's appearance. Floyd v. Nangle, 3 Atk. 569.

But not if the appearance is entered just before the long vacation for the purpose merely of avoiding an attachment. Anon., 3 Atk. 567.

Irregularity (if such it was) in not stating, in an order for substituted service, where the defendant was to appear, waived by the common appearance. Johnston v. Tottenham, 11 Ir. Eq. R. 271.

Irregularity of subpœna to hear judgment waived by appearing on a motion to advance the cause, and not then taking the objection. Carvick v. Young, Jac. 524.

Where an order had been obtained, that service of a subpœna on the attorney of the defendant, who resides abroad, and had brought an action at law against the plaintiffs, should be good service; but such order was obtained, and the subpœna issued and served, two days before the filing of the bill; the court refused to discharge the order for irregularity, holding that the irregularity, if any, had been waived by a subsequent appearance of the defendant. Royal Exchange Assurance Co. v. Short, 1 Y. & J. 570.

Informal Appearance—Effect of Opposing Motion.]—An order was made by the vacation judge, on the ex parte application of the plaintiffs, for service of the writ and notice of motion on the solicitors and at the place of business in England of a foreigner residing out of the jurisdiction. Without formally entering an appearance, the defendant filed affidavits in opposition to the motion, and instructed counsel, who opposed the motion on the merits:—Held, that the defendant had thereby waived the right to raise any objection as to the irregularity of the order, and must be treated as if he had been properly served and had formally appeared. Boyle v. Sacker, 58 L. J., Ch. 141; 39 Ch. D. 249; 58 L. T. 822; 37 W. R. 68—C. A.

If a defendant accepts a declaration, and acts as if an appearance had been entered for him, the court will not afterwards permit him to set aside a judgment for want of an appearance having been entered. Williams v. Strahan, 1 Bos. & P. (N.R.) 309.

Effect of, on Defective Writ.]—Appearance to a writ is a "fresh step" taken within the meaning of Ord. LXX. r. 2, and a writ which is irregular to the knowledge of the defendant cannot be set aside on his application after appearance. Mulckern v. Doerks, 53 L. J., Q. B. 526; 51 L. T. 429. But see Willmott v. Freehold House Property Co., 51 L. T. 552—C. A.

The writ in an action described the defendant as "J. L. Young, carrying on business as the Edison Mineograph Co. at 60, Ludgate-hill." The defendant, who was not in fact carrying on the business, entered an appearance as "J. L. Young, sued as J. L. Young, carrying on business as the Edison Mineograph Co. at 60, Ludgate-hill, but who denies that he is carrying on business as the Edison Mineograph Co. at 60, Ludgate-hill, or elsewhere":—Held, on motion by the defendant to set aside the writ and subsequent proceedings on the ground of irregularity, that there was no irregularity in the writ, and that the mistake had been set right by the form in which an appearance had been entered by the defendant. The motion was accordingly refused. Zuccato v. Young, 38 W. R. 474.

Writ afterwards amended.]—An appearance by a defendant to the original writ stands as a good appearance to an amended writ. Paxton v. Baird (5 R. 129) followed. Hanmer v. Clifton, 10 R. 51; 42 W. R. 287.

A writ not specially indorsed within Ord. III. r. 6, was served on the defendant, who appeared thereto, and obtained unconditional leave to defend upon a summons under Ord. XIV. The plaintiff then obtained an order to amend, and did amend, the writ so as to make it a specially-indorsed writ, and again applied under Ord. XIV.:—Held, that the original appearance was an appearance to a specially-indorsed writ, and therefore Ord. XIV. applied. Gurney v. Small ([1891] 2 Q. B. 584) discussed. Paxton v. Baird, 62 L. J., Q. B. 176; [1893] 1 Q. B. 139; 5 R. 129; 67 L. T. 623; 41 W. R. 88.

Judgment in Default of — Application by Person not a Party.]—If a person who is not a party to the record seeks to set aside a judgment by which he is injuriously affected, which the defendant in the action has allowed to go by default, he ought by summons, taken out in the name of the defendant, or if not entitled to use the defendant's name, then taken out in his own name, but in that case served on both the plaintiff and the defendant, apply for leave to have the judgment set aside, and to be allowed either to defend the action on such terms of indemnifying the defendant as the judge may consider right, or to intervene in the action in the manner pointed out by the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 24, sub-s. 5. Ord. XXVII. r. 15, is designed to enable judgments by default to be set aside by those who have or who can acquire a locus standi, and does not give a locus standi to those who have none. Jacques v. Harrison, 53 L. J., Q. B. 137; 12 Q. B. D. 165; 50 L. T. 246; 32 W. R. 471—C. A.

The plaintiff issued a writ against J. to recover possession of a house, and signed judgment in default of appearance. The sheriff ejected H., who was in possession, and put the plaintiff in. H. had no knowledge of the action, and did not claim to hold through J. H. applied to have the writ and subsequent proceedings set aside for irregularity:—Held, that the right order was that the judgment and subsequent proceedings be set aside, the plaintiff to go out of any possession obtained under the judgment; the order to take effect only if H. within twelve days elect to be added as defendant; H. to be at liberty to appear upon filing an affidavit that at the time of the issue of the writ he was in possession by himself or his tenant; the order to be without prejudice to any right the plaintiff might thereafter have to sign judgment against J. upon filing a proper affidavit. Minet v. Johnson, 63 L. T. 507—C. A.

—— Affidavit.]—It must appear from the affidavit of service where the defendant was served. Davis v. Hole, 1 Y. & Coll. C. C. 440; 6 Jur. 335.

An affidavit that the deponent has inquired of, and been informed by, the clerk in court, and the deponent believes it to be true, that no appearance has been entered by the defendant, is sufficient to satisfy the court of that fact. Tatham v. Williams, 1 Hare, 159; 11 L. J., Ch. 117.

—— Notice of Motion—Filing.]—A notice of motion for judgment is a document which may be delivered, in case a defendant does not appear, by filing it with the proper officer pursuant to the Judicature Act, Ord. XIX. r. 6. Dymond v. Croft, 45 L. J., Ch. 604; 3 Ch. D. 512; 34 L. T. 786; 24 W. R. 842.

A notice of motion is a document within the meaning of the Judicature Act, Ord. XIX. r. 6, that may be served on a defendant who has failed to appear by filing the same with the proper officer. Morton v. Miller, 45 L. J., Ch. 613; 3 Ch. D. 516; 24 W. R. 723.

Notice of motion for judgment is not a document required to be delivered between the parties where the defendant has not appeared and the writ has been filed with the proper officer. Williams v. Cardwell, 25 W. R. 646.

A defendant became bankrupt after service of notice of trial, and the common order of revivor was then made against his trustee, and served on him. The trustee did not enter an appearance. Notice was served on him that the action was restored to the paper for trial, but he did not appear at the trial:—Held, that it was not necessary for the plaintiff to file the pleadings or a notice of motion for judgment as against the trustee under r. 6 of Ord. XIX. of the Judicature Act. Chorlton v. Dickie, 49 L. J., Ch. 40; 13 Ch. D. 160; 41 L. T. 467; 28 W. R. 228.

—— Notice of Inquiry as to Damages.]—In default of an appearance in an action for unliquidated damages, after judgment marked by the plaintiff, the notice of the inquiry before the master of the court to assess damages may be served by filing it with the proper officer. O'Connor v. Hogan, 10 L. R., Ir. 262.

—— Liquidated Demand — Claims for Foreclosure and on Covenant.] — The writ in an action to enforce a mortgage security claimed an account of principal, interest and costs on the mortgage and foreclosure or sale, and also the sum of 225*l.* 10*s.* for principal and interest under the covenant contained in the mortgage deed. The defendant did not appear, and no statement of claim was delivered. Upon motion by the plaintiff for the usual foreclosure judgment nisi, and for liberty to sign final judgment for the amount indorsed upon the writ :—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled under Ord. XIII. r. 3, to sign judgment for the liquidated demand, notwithstanding that the claim was joined with a claim for foreclosure, but that he was not entitled to the foreclosure judgment. Bissett v. Jones, 55 L. J., Ch. 648 ; 32 Ch. D. 635 ; 54 L. T. 603 ; 34 W. R. 591.

—— Extent of Relief.]—Notwithstanding the provision of r. 4 of Ord. XX., that whenever a statement of claim is delivered the plaintiff may therein extend his claim without any amendment of the indorsement of the writ, the plaintiff cannot, when the defendant does not appear to the writ and a statement of claim is delivered by filing it with the proper officer, obtain judgment in default of appearance for more than he has claimed by his writ. Gee v. Bell, 56 L. J., Ch. 718 ; 35 Ch. D. 160 ; 56 L. T. 305 ; 35 W. R. 805.

In a foreclosure action, where a mortgagee applies, on motion for judgment not only for foreclosure but also for a personal order for payment of the mortgage debt and interest against a mortgagor who has made default in entering appearance and in delivering a defence, the statement of claim ought, however shortly, to contain an express statement of the covenant upon which the personal order for payment is claimed. Law v. Philby, 56 L. T. 230 ; 35 W. R. 401.

Where no appearance has been entered by the defendant in an action, the plaintiff cannot, by his statement of claim, enlarge the scope of the claim indorsed on his writ. Where, therefore, a defendant did not enter an appearance to the writ issued in a foreclosure action, and the writ was not indorsed for payment, the court held that the plaintiff was only entitled to the usual order for foreclosure, although, on his statement of claim, he was also entitled to an order for payment against the defendant. Law v. Philby, 56 L. T. 522 ; 35 W. R. 450.

Immediate foreclosure, in case the mortgagor did not appear, was claimed by the pleading. The mortgagor made default in appearance, and the court made only an ordinary foreclosure decree. Patey v. Flint, 48 L. J., Ch. 696 ; 40 L. T. 651 ; 27 W. R. 595.

—— Parties joined as Defendants to Counter-claim.]—A plaintiff by counter-claim can proceed against defendants by counter-claim who do not appear in the same way as a plaintiff in an original action. A defendant to an action by which rights of common were claimed, counter-claimed against the plaintiffs, and several others whom he added as defendants, and asked for an injunction on the ground of trespass. The added defendants did not appear or defend. The plaintiff by counter-claim moved for judgment in default of appearance, and upon admissions :—Held, that the motion must stand till the trial, as if the question raised by the counter-claim was not connected with the original subject of the action, the added defendants were improperly brought before the court ; and if it was connected, then no relief should be given until trial. Verney v. Thomas, 58 L. T. 20 ; 36 W. R. 398.

—— Statement of Claim — Delivery and Filing.]—When a defendant makes default in appearance the plaintiff must deliver a statement of claim before setting down the action on motion for judgment. Minton v. Metcalf, 46 L. J., Ch. 584 ; 36 L. T. 683.

Where a plaintiff, in an action for infringement of a patent, upon motion for judgment, heard as a short cause, asked for such judgment as upon his statement of claim the court should consider him entitled to, and his statement of claim stated "Particulars of breaches are delivered herewith" :—Held, that the particulars of breaches might be regarded as forming part of the statement of claim. United Telephone Co. v. Smith, 61 L. T. 617 ; 38 W. R. 70.

Where a statement of claim is served personally on a defendant with copy of writ, and the defendant subsequently does not appear in the action, it is not necessary that the statement of claim should be also filed in order to obtain judgment by default against such defendant. Renshaw v. Renshaw, 49 L. J., Ch. 127 ; 42 L. T. 353 ; 28 W. R. 409.

Where a defendant has made default in appearance, and the writ and statement of claim have been served upon and delivered to him personally, there is no necessity for the statement of claim to be also filed against him. Renshaw v. Renshaw (49 L. J., Ch. 127) followed. Phillips v. Kearney, 58 L. J., Ch. 344.

Default in Appearance—Delivery of Amended Writ.]—An amended writ may be delivered to a defendant who has made default in appearance, by filing it at the central office, personal service being unnecessary. Hartley, In re, Nuttall v. Whittaker, [1891] 2 Ch. 121 ; 64 L. T. 786 ; 39 W. R. 604.

—— Liquidated Demand—Part Payment.]—Where a writ of summons is indorsed for a liquidated demand, and the defendant fails to appear thereto, the plaintiff may enter final judgment for any sum actually due at the time of entering judgment, not exceeding the sum indorsed on the writ, together with interest (if any) and costs. Hughes v. Justin, 63 L. J., Q. B. 417 ; [1894] 1 Q. B. 667 ; 9 R. 212 ; 70 L. T. 365 ; 42 W. R. 339 —C. A.

Where the sum indorsed on the writ has been reduced by payment, before judgment in default of appearance has been entered, and judgment is nevertheless entered for the whole sum indorsed, the defendant is entitled ex debito justitiæ to have the judgment set aside, notwithstanding that execution has only issued for the amount actually due. Ib.

A writ specially indorsed was issued for a debt above 20*l.* The defendant, after action, made payments to the plaintiff, reducing the debt to a sum below 20*l.* Subsequently final judgment was signed by the plaintiff, in default of appearance, for the debt indorsed on the writ of summons, and the defendant was taken in execution on such judgment under a ca. sa., indorsed, however, to levy only the balance of the debt then due:—Held, that s. 27 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, entitled the plaintiff to sign such judgment for only what was then actually due, after allowing for the payments which had been made. Hodges v. Callaghan, 2 C. B. (N.S.) 306; 26 L. J., C. P. 171; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 369; 5 W. R. 531.

Motion to set aside Judgment—On what Materials Application made.]—An application to set aside an order obtained by the plaintiff for the defendant's non-appearance may be made on affidavits contradicting those upon which the order was made, without disclosing a defence upon the merits. Hall v. Scotson, 9 Ex. 238; 23 L. J., Ex. 85; 2 W. R. 103.

On an application to set aside a final judgment signed for want of appearance, an affidavit stating the precise nature of the defence is not required, but an ordinary affidavit of merits is sufficient. Warrington v. Leake, 11 Ex. 304; 25 L. J., Ex. 27; 3 W. R. 552.

When judgment has been signed (for default of appearance) upon a writ specially indorsed, the affidavit in support of an application by the defendant to be let in to defend under the proviso in s. 27 of Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, must not merely state that he has a defence upon the merits, but must disclose or make known the nature of such defence, in order that the judge may see that it really amounts to a defence. Whiley v. Wiley, 4 C. B. (N.S.) 653; 27 L. J., C. P. 305; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 714; 6 W. R. 649.

—— On what Terms.]—An action was commenced by bankers to recover 3,512*l.* paid over by the plaintiffs at the request of M., agent-general of the government of the Cape of Good Hope, to his credit at the Standard Bank of South Africa. M. had paid over the money to the Cape Government. The money was part of a guarantee fund lodged by the defendant M. with the plaintiffs as security for the completion of a contract to construct a railway in South Africa, entered into between the defendant M., on behalf of his government, and F. & Co., contractors. The defendant M. was served with the writ personally, but he did not enter any appearance. On the 10th April, 1889, judgment was given against defendant M. by default, declaring, as between the plaintiffs and the defendants F. & Co., the plaintiffs were entitled to the money, subject to any claim which the colonial government might have thereon under the contract, and ordering the defendant M. to pay over such part of the money as should not be claimed by the government, and also the costs of the action. On motion to set aside the judgment on the ground that the money was not in the hands of the defendant M., having been handed over by him to the colonial government, and that the action had been brought against him really as nominee of the colonial government, and that the government could not be sued:—Held, that the agent-general must be allowed to have an opportunity of presenting his case and of defending the action, but only on the terms that all costs occasioned to the plaintiffs by his default in the action must be paid by him to the plaintiffs, including the costs of the present application. On these terms the judgment was set aside, and twenty-one days allowed to the agent-general for putting in his defence. Wright v. Mills, 60 L. T. 887.

VI. JUDGMENT UNDER ORD. XIV.

a. In what Cases Applicable, 208.
b. Principles on which Court acts, 211.
c. Practice, 213.

Special Indorsement under Ord. III. r. 6.]—See ante, col. 130.

Against Married Woman.]—An order having been obtained under Ord. XIV. r. 1, for leave to sign final judgment against a married woman in an action for the price of goods supplied to her during coverture:—Held, that the order was wrongly made, inasmuch as there can be no judgment against a married woman personally in respect of such a claim. Durrant v. Ricketts, 51 L. J., Q. B. 425; 8 Q. B. D. 177; 30 W. R. 428. See Married Women's Property Act, 1882.

An action for a liquidated demand which had accrued prior to the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, was brought against a married woman as sole defendant. The writ was specially indorsed, but did not seek to charge her separate estate. The court on motion under Ord. XIII. r. 1, allowed final judgment to be entered against the defendant. Brown v. Morgan, 12 L. R., Ir. 122.

The plaintiffs brought an action against the defendant, a widow, in respect of bills of exchange given by her while under coverture, and having specially indorsed the writ under r. 6 of Ord. III., took out a summons under r. 1 of Ord. XIV., to shew cause why they should not sign final judgment:—Held, that the defendant not being personally liable, r. 1 of Ord. XIV. did not apply. Ortner v. Fitzgibbon, 50 L. J., Ch. 17; 43 L. T. 60.

—— Form of Order.]—The proper form of judgment against a married woman under s. 1, sub-s. (2), of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, settled by the court. Scott v. Morley, 57 L. J., Q. B. 43; 20 Q. B. D. 120; 57 L. T. 919; 36 W. R. 67; 4 Morrell, 286; 52 J. P. 230—C. A.

An order giving leave to enter final judgment against a married woman in respect of her separate estate by virtue of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, ss. 1, 19, should state that execution is to be limited to such separate estate as the defendant is not restrained from anticipating unless such restraint exists under any settlement or agreement for a settlement of her own property made or entered into by herself. Bursill v. Tanner, 13 Q. B. D. 691; 50 L. T. 589; 32 W. R. 827.

—— Evidence of Separate Estate.]—In an action against husband and wife to recover a debt of the wife contracted before marriage, where the marriage has taken place after the coming into operation of the Married Women's Property Act, 1870, and the Married Women's Property Act, 1870, Amendment Act, 1874, but before the coming into operation of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, judgment may be entered against the wife under Ord. XIV. r. 1, making the debt and costs payable out of her separate property, with a limitation as regards execution similar to that in the form settled in Scott v. Morley (20 Q. B. D. 120), without proof of the existence of separate estate at the date of the judgment. Downe v. Fletcher, 21 Q. B. D. 11; 59 L. T. 180; 36 W. R. 694; 52 J. P. 375.

—— Payment into Court by—Rights of Plaintiff.]—Where money is paid into court under Ord. XIV. as a condition for leave to defend, it belongs to the plaintiff in the event of his obtaining judgment at the trial: the defendant (a married woman) therefore cannot set up after judgment that she has no separate property available for execution. Bird v. Barstow, 61 L. J., Q. B. 1; [1892] 1 Q. B. 94; 65 L. T. 656; 40 W. R. 71; 56 J. P. 196—C. A.

Foreign Judgment.]—In an action upon a foreign judgment in which the writ of summons has been specially indorsed under Ord. XIV., the plaintiff may obtain an order empowering him to sign final judgment. Hodsoll v. Baxter (El. Bl. & El. 884) followed. Grant v. Easton, 53 L. J., Q. B. 68; 13 Q. B. D. 302; 49 L. T. 645; 32 W. R. 239—C. A.

Against future Assets, quando acciderint.]—In an action against an administratrix, commenced by a specially indorsed writ, the defendant shewed that she was entitled to plead plene administravit, but did not dispute that there were outstanding assets of the deceased. Leave was given to mark judgment of assets quando acciderint. Form of order. Findlater v. Tuohy, 16 L. R., Ir. 474.

Joint Debt—Judgment against one Defendant—Right to proceed against other.]—On an application under Ord. XIV. r. 1, in an action against two joint debtors, one of the defendants consented to judgment being entered against him, and the other obtained leave to defend. The defendant, who had consented to judgment, paid the plaintiff half of the debt:—Held, that under Ord. XIV. r. 5, the plaintiff was entitled to proceed with his action against the other defendant; the principle laid down in King v. Hoare (13 M. & W. 494) and Kendall v. Hamilton (4 App. Cas. 504) not applying to such a case. Weall v. James, 4 R. 356; 68 L. T. 515—C. A.

Action against Firm—Infant Partner.]—A specially-indorsed writ was issued against a firm in which there were two partners, one of whom was an infant. Both partners appeared to the writ, the infant partner appearing by his guardian ad litem:—Held, that, notwithstanding that one partner was an infant, judgment could be signed against the firm under Ord. XIV. r. 1. Harris v. Beauchamp, 63 L. J., Q. B. 99; [1893] 2 Q. B. 534; 4 R. 550; 69 L. T. 373; 42 W. R. 37—C. A.

Solicitor's untaxed Bill of Costs.]—In an action upon a solicitor's untaxed bill of costs, where the defendant admits the retainer and the work done, and only disputes the propriety of the charges, an order giving leave to sign final judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 1, may be made after appearance and before taxation of the bill, provided that the order preserves the right of the defendant under s. 37 of the Solicitors' Act, 1843, to the costs of taxation of the bill, if more than one-sixth is taxed off it. Such an order should direct that the bill of costs be taxed pursuant to that statute, and that judgment be signed for the amount of the master's allocatur. The proper form of order settled by the court of appeal. Smith v. Edwardes, 58 L. J., Q. B. 227; 22 Q. B. D. 10; 60 L. T. 10; 37 W. R. 112—C. A.

In an action by solicitors upon an untaxed bill of costs, the court on an application for judgment under Ord. XIII. r. 2, referred the costs for taxation subject to credits, and ordered judgment to be entered for the amount certified to be due. Larkin v. M'Inerney, 16 L. R., Ir. 246.

Bond—Penalty.]—The indorsement on a writ claimed 500*l.*, as the principal sum due on a bond conditioned for the payment by the obligor to the plaintiff of an annuity of 26*l.* during the life of a child, and until she should attain the age of sixteen years, by specified quarterly payments, and alleged that two of such payments were due and unpaid:—Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to proceed under Ord. XIV. r. 1, to obtain final judgment, but was limited to the procedure specified in 8 & 9 Will. 3, c. 11, s. 8, and Ord. XIII. r. 14. Tuther v. Caralampi, 21 Q. B. D. 414; 59 L. T. 141; 37 W. R. 94; 52 J. P. 616.

The plaintiff advanced 250*l.* to a limited company, upon the security of ten mortgage debentures for 25*l.* each dated the 1st of September, 1890, and repayable the 1st of September, 1891, with interest. By his bond, dated the 1st of November, 1890, the defendant bound himself to the plaintiff in 500*l.* to repay the 250*l.* on the 1st of September, 1891, if the company should then dishonour their mortgage debentures, with a defeasance if the company should honour them. The company failed to pay, and the plaintiff issued a writ against the defendant, and applied for final judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 1. The learned judge at chambers granted the defendant leave to defend upon bringing 500*l.* into court:—Held, that this was a common money bond, and was not within s. 8 of 8 & 9 Will. 3, c. 11; that the procedure under Ord. XIV. was applicable; that the writ was specially indorsed within the rules; but that the amount to be brought into court by the defendant as a condition to defend ought to be reduced from 500*l.* to 250*l.* Gerard v. Clowes, 61 L. J., Q. B. 487; [1892] 2 Q. B. 11; 67 L. T. 204.

Foreclosure Action—Covenants to Pay in Mortgage Deed.]—Where the writ in an action for foreclosure was also specially indorsed under Ord. III. r. 6, with a claim for the amount due on the covenant to pay in the mortgage deed, an application to enter judgment against the mortgagor under Ord. XIV. r. 1, for the amount claimed, before the action was heard, was refused. Hill v. Sidebottom, 47 L. T. 224.

Where Defendants a Corporation.]—Where a writ is specially indorsed under Ord. III. r. 6, the plaintiff may apply for judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 1, though the defendants are a corporation. Shelford v. South and East Coast Ry., 4 Ex. D. 317; 28 W. R. 407—C. A.

The provisions of Ord. XIV. apply to cases where the defendants are a corporation. By r. 1, cause may be shewn against an application under that rule by affidavit "or otherwise"; r. 3 shews that this affidavit must be made by the defendant. Consequently, a defendant corporation, not being able to make an affidavit, can only shew cause under the words "or otherwise." Muirhead v. Direct United States Cable Co., 27 W. R. 708.

b. PRINCIPLES ON WHICH COURT ACTS.

Order to sign Judgment only in clear Cases.]—Leave to sign judgment under Ord. XIV. should be given only where there is clearly no defence to the action, and where there is any doubt the defendant should have liberty to defend. Thompson v. Marshall, 41 L. T. 720; 28 W. R. 220—C. A.

The power given by Ord. XIV. r. 1, to allow the plaintiff to sign final judgment, is intended to be exercised where it is shewn, either from the acknowledgment of the debt by the defendant, or from other circumstances, that the defence would be for mere purposes of delay. Lloyd's Banking Co. v. Ogle, 45 L. J., Ex. 606; 1 Ex. D. 262; 34 L. T. 584; 24 W. R. 678.

The procedure established by Ord. XIV. is only intended to apply where there can be no reasonable doubt that a plaintiff is entitled to judgment, and where, therefore, it is inexpedient to allow a defendant to defend for mere purposes of delay. It is not applicable to cases in which there are serious questions of fact in dispute. Jones v. Stone, 63 L. J., P. C. 68; [1894] A. C. 122; 6 R. 437; 70 L. T. 174—P. C.

Liberty to mark final judgment on a specially-indorsed writ will not be given where a difficult question of fact or a difficult question of law is raised by the defendant's affidavit. Crawford v. Gillmor, 30 L. R., Ir. 238—C. A.

When there is "no fairly arguable point to be argued on behalf of the defendant," effect must be given to Ord. XIV. r. 1. Anglo-Italian Bank v. Wells, 38 L. T. 197—C. A.

The same considerations apply to a case under Ord. XIV. and to proceedings under a debtor summons as to whether the latter will be stayed without security pending the trial of an action for the debt. Jacobson, Ex parte, Pincoffs, In re, 52 L. J., Ch. 561; 22 Ch. D. 315; 48 L. T. 197; 31 W. R. 554.

When Defendant has a Counter-claim.]—The plaintiff specially indorsed the writ for certain sums of money claimed, by virtue of promissory notes and covenants, by way of a liquidated amount. Upon the defendant appearing, the plaintiff took out a summons to sign final judgment in compliance with the terms of Ord. XIV. The defendant resisted this application on the ground that he had both a good defence to the action on the merits, and also a good counter-claim against the plaintiff:—Held, that the right to bring a counter-claim is not a right of course, but depends on the discretion of the judge. Anglo-Italian Bank v. Wells, 38 L. T. 197—C. A.

If the counter-claim, as disclosed by the affidavits, were sufficiently connected with the cause of action, it might be set up as a defence even to a liquidated claim on a bill of exchange. Ib.

Leave to Defend Unconditionally.]—In an action against a surety on a specially-indorsed writ it was not shewn that the debt had been acknowledged by the principal debtor, or that particulars had been furnished to the defendant, or that he had admitted his liability:—Held, that the defendant might reasonably call on the plaintiff to prove his claim, and should be allowed to defend without paying money into court or giving security. Lloyd's Banking Co. v. Ogle, supra.

When a writ of summons is specially indorsed under Ord. III. r. 6, if the defendant makes an affidavit under Ord. XIV., and goes beyond the bare statement that he has a defence on the merits, shewing what the grounds of his defence are, and gives reason for thinking that the defence is substantial, he ought not to be compelled to pay money into court as a condition to his being let in to defend. Runnacles v. Mesquita, 45 L. J., Q. B. 407; 1 Q. B. D. 416; 24 W. R. 553.

—— Admission in Affidavit in support of Motion of Defence to Part of Claim—Statute of Limitations.]—Where the affidavit in support of a motion for leave to sign final judgment, under r. 1 of Ord. XIII. for the amount specially indorsed on the writ of summons, or for so much thereof as the court should deem meet, stated that the statute of limitations might be set up as a defence to part of the claim:—Held, that the motion should be refused. Bellew (Lord) v. Markey, 4 L. R., Ir. 747—C. A.

—— Bill of Exchange—Defence that Bill Drawn in Fraud of Defendant.]—When a plaintiff in an action on a bill of exchange alleges that he is a bonâ fide holder for value of the bill, and the defendant in his affidavit for leave to defend alleges that the bill was drawn in fraud of him, the plaintiff is not entitled to sign final judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 1, but the defendant is entitled to unconditional leave to defend, for the onus of proof that he is such bonâ fide holder for value of the bill is cast upon the plaintiff. Fuller v. Alexander, 52 L. J., Q. B. 103; 47 L. T. 443.

—— Where Defendant has a Set-off.]—The defendant in an action for calls, brought by the liquidator of a company which is being voluntarily wound up under the Companies Act, 1862, is entitled to have leave to defend unconditionally under r. 1 of Ord. XIV., if he has a set-off, exceeding the amount of the claim, due to him from the company. Groom v. Rathbone, 41 L. T. 591.

Leave to Defend Conditionally—Goods "upon Sale or Return."]—The defendant received from the plaintiff jewellery "upon sale or return"; the defendant delivered it to a woman who, without his authority, pledged it, and he was unable to recover it. The plaintiff thereupon issued a debtor summons against the defendant for the price of the jewellery; but proceedings upon it were stayed without calling upon the defendant to give security for the amount claimed. The plaintiff did not appeal from the decision upon the debtor summons. Subsequently the present action was commenced with a specially-indorsed writ, and a master directed, under Ord. XIV., that the plaintiff should be at liberty to sign judgment, unless the defendant paid into court the amount claimed within four days:—Held, that the order of the master could not set aside; for, although, as the plaintiff had not appealed against the decision upon the debtor summons, it might have been better to refuse to entertain an application under Ord. XIV., yet the plaintiff was otherwise entitled to sign judgment unless the condition imposed should be complied with, the defendant not setting up a clear defence upon the merits. Ray v. Barker, 48 L. J., Ex. 569; 4 Ex. D. 279; 41 L. T. 265; 27 W. R. 745—C. A.

—— No absolute Right to Defend upon bringing the Sum claimed into Court.] — Where a summons has been issued under Ord. XIV., the defendant, if he makes no affidavit of merits, is not entitled as a matter of right to defend the action upon offering to bring the sum claimed into court. A discretion is vested in the judge to decide whether, upon considering the other facts of the case, the defendant's offer is a sufficient ground for refusing the plaintiff's application. Crump v. Cavendish, 49 L. J., Ex. 491 ; 5 Ex. D. 211 ; 42 L. T. 136 ; 28 W. R. 562—C. A.

—— Defendant entitled to Interrogate.]—In shewing cause under Ord. XIV. r. 1, why the plaintiff should not be at liberty to sign final judgment notwithstanding appearance, it is sufficient if the defendant shews enough on his affidavit to entitle him to interrogate the plaintiff. Harrison v. Bottenheim, 26 W. R. 362—C. A.

—— Primâ facie no Defence—Cross-Examination of Deponent.]—The defendant filled up an application for shares in the plaintiff company, which stated that 1*s.* per share was paid upon application. This he did at the request of B. (not an agent of the company), who asked the defendant to do it to enable the directors to go to allotment, at the same time telling him that if the application was not made use of he would be held harmless. The amount payable upon application was paid into the company's bank, but not by the defendant. The company now sued for unpaid calls, and a clerk of the company swore by affidavit that a letter of allotment was duly posted to the defendant. The defendant swore that the letter never was received. On an application by the company to sign judgment under Ord. XIV., the divisional court gave the defendant unconditional leave to defend. But held, on appeal, that on the authority of Household Fire Insurance Co. v. Grant (4 Ex. D. 216) this was no defence to the action if the letter of allotment was posted. As the defendant, however, desired to cross-examine the clerk who swore to the posting of the letter, leave was given to defend upon the defendant paying the amount sued for into court. Carta Para Gold Mining Co. v. Fastnedge, 30 W. R. 880—C. A.

Short Cause List—Payment into Court.] — When an action is ordered to be tried in the short cause list under Ord. XIV. r. 8 (b), a defendant should not, unless under exceptional circumstances, be ordered to bring the amount in dispute into court. Held v. Simons, 10 R. 248.

c. PRACTICE.

Time for Application.]—If a plaintiff, after appearance by the defendant, takes a deliberate step to have an action tried by a jury, by serving a statement of claim, or notice in lieu of statement of claim, he cannot then move for final judgment under Ord. XIII. r. 1. Stewartstown Loan Co. v. Daly, 12 L. R., Ir. 418.

—— After Pleadings closed.] — After issue has been joined on a defendant's defence, a plaintiff cannot obtain final judgment on motion under Ord. XIII. r. 1. Hackett v. Lalor, 12 L. R., Ir. 44.

The writ in an action of ejectment was served on 10th November ; appearance entered and defence delivered on 30th November. After the pleadings were closed in default of reply, viz. on 15th January, the plaintiff served notice under Ord. XIV. The delay was alleged to have arisen through negotiations for a settlement and by the Christmas vacation : — Held, that the motion should be refused. Annaly v. Comyn, 30 L. R., Ir. 102.

—— After Defence delivered.]—Although the primary intention of the provisions of Ord. XIV. is that the plaintiff should make his application for summary judgment as soon as he can after appearance has been entered, yet he is not precluded from making such an application after defence delivered. In such a case, however, he must account for his delay. McLardy v. Slateum, 59 L. J., Q. B., 154 ; 24 Q. B. D. 504 ; 62 L. T. 151 ; 38 W. R. 349.

After a statement of claim and a defence have been delivered, the plaintiff cannot move for final judgment under Ord. XIII., r. 1. Sligo Ry. v. Palmer, 24 L. R., Ir. 58.

Plaintiff's Affidavit.] — It is not necessary under Ord. XIV. r. 1, that the affidavit of the plaintiff should be made prior to the granting of the summons calling on the defendant to shew cause why the plaintiff should not be at liberty to sign final judgment. Begg v. Cooper, 40 L. T. 29 ; 27 W. R. 224—C. A.

—— Who may make.] — When a writ is specially indorsed, but the plaintiff is a corporation, an order calling upon the defendant to shew cause why final judgment should not be signed, under Ord. XIV. r. 1, cannot be obtained, because that rule requires an affidavit to be made by the plaintiff himself as to his own belief that there is no defence to the action ; and an affidavit by the officer of the corporation is not sufficient. Bank of Montreal v. Cameron, 46 L. J., Q. B. 425 ; 2 Q. B. D. 536 ; 36 L. T. 415 ; 25 W. R. 593—C. A. See now Ord. XIV. r. 1.

An application under Ord. XIV. r. 1, that the defendant may be called upon to shew cause why final judgment should not be signed, must be made on an affidavit that in the plaintiff's belief there is no defence to the action. The affidavit must be made by the plaintiff himself. Frederici v. Vanderzee, 46 L. J., C. P. 194 ; 2 C. P. D. 70 ; 35 L. T. 889 ; 25 W. R. 389—C. A.

—— Sufficiency and Contents of.] — On a motion for leave to sign final judgment under Ord. XIII. r. 1, the affidavit in support of the motion must not only verify the cause of action, but the deponent must pledge his belief that there is not any answer of any kind to the plaintiff's demand ; and the absence of this averment is not supplied by the fact of the defendant making an affidavit in answer which shews that he has not any defence to the action. Kiely v. Massey, 6 L. R., Ir. 445—C. A.

In an application for final judgment under Ord. XIII. r. 1, the affidavit of the plaintiff, after verifying the cause of action, stated that the plaintiff was "advised and believed that the defendant had no defence on the merits to the action" :—Held, that the affidavit was sufficient. Manning v. Moriarty, 12 L. R., Ir. 372.

Upon an application to sign final judgment on a writ, which was admittedly a specially-indorsed one, for goods sold and delivered, the verification of the cause of action was a paragraph in the plaintiff's affidavit in the following words :—

"The defendant herein is indebted to me in the sum of 24*l.* 16*s.*" (being the amount indorsed), "as per particulars specially indorsed on the writ of summons herein" :—Held, that the paragraph, coupled with the indorsement, was sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to judgment. Murphy v. Nolan, 18 L. R., Ir. 468—C. A.

Where a specially-indorsed writ in an action against the drawer of a dishonoured cheque alleges that notice of dishonour has been given, it is not necessary to verify this allegation specifically in the affidavit in support of an application for judgment under Ord. XIV. May v. Chidley, 63 L. J., Q. B. 355 ; [1894] 1 Q. B. 451 ; 10 R. 423.

Upon an application in an action on a dishonoured bill or cheque, for leave to enter judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 1, the affidavit sufficiently verifies the cause of action if it alleges a promise to pay, although it does not allege notice of dishonour, a promise to pay operating as evidence either of notice of dishonour or of a waiver of such notice. Roberts v. Plant, 64 L. J., Q. B. 347 ; [1895] 1 Q. B. 597 ; 14 R. 222 ; 72 L. T. 181 ; 43 W. R. 308—C. A.

Defendant's Affidavit.]—Hearsay evidence is not to be shut out on such an application. Nor is it necessary that the defendant should shew a good defence on the merits, if he can suggest some reasonable defence. Harrison v. Bottenheim, 26 W. R. 362—C. A.

A defendant corporation, not being able to make an affidavit, can only shew cause under the words "or otherwise." Muirhead v. Direct United States Cable Co., 27 W. R. 708.

Affidavits in Reply.]—Upon an application by the plaintiff for leave to sign judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 3, the court or judge may in its or his discretion allow the plaintiff to file an affidavit in reply to the defendant's affidavit. Davis v. Spence, 1 C. P. D. 719 ; 25 W. R. 229.

Upon application by the plaintiff for leave to sign final judgment under Ord. XIV., the court or judge has a discretion to allow the plaintiff to file an affidavit in reply to the defendant's affidavit. Rotheram v. Priest, 49 L. J., C. P. 104 ; 41 L. T. 558 ; 28 W. R. 277.

Where the defendant has filed an affidavit for leave to defend, the plaintiff cannot file a counter-affidavit by way of reply on the merits. North Central Waggon Co. v. Wales Waggon Co., 39 L. T. 628.

Upon an application by the plaintiff by summons, under Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XIV. r. 1a, for leave to sign final judgment, the court will allow the plaintiff to read an affidavit made by him in reply to the defendant's affidavit. Girvin v. Grepe, 49 L. J., Ch. 63 ; 13 Ch. D. 174 ; 41 L. T. 522 ; 28 W. R. 123.

Strict Conformity Necessary.]—In summary applications under Ord. XIII., a strict conformity with the provisions of the order is indispensable. Kiely v. Massey, 6 L. R., Ir. 445—C. A.

Fresh Application after Refusal on Technical Grounds.]—A second application may be made for summary judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 1, where the first application has been refused upon the ground of a technical defect in the writ. Dombey v. Playfair, 66 L. J., Q. B. 328 ; [1897] 1 Q. B. 368 ; 75 L. T. 676—C. A.

Where a motion is refused with costs, the applicant cannot come in, having supplied the defect which defeated him, and get a new, but substantially similar motion granted. Kiely v. Massey, 6 L. R., Ir. 445—C. A.

Amendment of Indorsement.]—Where a writ of summons was indorsed with admittedly liquidated demands, and also with a small sum which the defendant alleged was in the nature of an unliquidated claim :—Held, that the court had power to amend the writ, by striking out the amount of the alleged unliquidated demand, and to give final judgment under Ord. XIII. r. 1, for the balance. Robinson v. Ralston, 8 L. R., Ir. 26—C. A.

On a motion for judgment, the plaintiff's affidavit verified the whole of the debt claimed in the writ of summons ; but the defendant having filed an affidavit disputing a part of the demand, the plaintiff by an affidavit in reply and by his counsel, admitted that this part of the claim could not be sustained, and had been included in the writ by mistake :—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment for the residue. Rye v. Hawkes, 16 L. R., Ir. 12.

A writ which claims payment of a sum which is in dispute, besides payment of a liquidated demand, is not specially indorsed so as to entitle the plaintiff to judgment under Ord. XIV. for the liquidated demand. Clarke v. Berger, 36 W. R. 809.

—— After Summons taken out.]—In order to entitle a plaintiff to enter final judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 1, the writ of summons must be a good specially-indorsed writ under Ord. III. r. 6, at the time when the summons under Ord. XIV. is taken out. Where, therefore, the indorsement on a writ was amended after the issue of a summons under Ord. XIV. by striking out an unliquidated demand :—Held, that there was no jurisdiction to make an order giving the plaintiff leave to enter final judgment. Gurney v. Small, 60 L. J., Q. B. 774 ; [1891] 2 Q. B. 584 ; 65 L. T. 754.

—— After Application for Judgment dismissed.]—On a summons for judgment unconditional leave to defend was granted on the ground that there was a claim for interest in the nature of unliquidated damages, and therefore the writ was not specially indorsed. The plaintiff amended his writ by striking out the claim for interest and took out a fresh summons, on which he obtained judgment :—Held, that the defendant's appearance to the original writ must stand as an appearance to the amended writ, and that the defendant having appeared to a specially-indorsed writ, there was jurisdiction to give leave to enter final judgment. Gurney v. Small ([1891] 2 Q. B. 584) discussed. Paxton v. Baird, 5 R. 129 ; 67 L. T. 623 ; 41 W. R. 88.

Leave to Defend as to Part of Claim—Form of Order.]—When upon shewing cause against an application for leave to sign final judgment under Ord. XIV., the defendant's affidavit admits part of the claim to be due, and discloses a defence upon the merits as to the residue, there is no power under r. 4 to require the defendant to pay to the plaintiff the amount admitted to be due as a condition of being allowed to defend as to the residue. The proper order is that the plaintiff have judgment for the amount admitted ; the defendant to be at liberty to defend as to the residue. Dennis v. Seymour, 4 Ex. D. 80; 42 L. T. 31; 27 W. R. 475.

"No Order"—Time for Delivery of Defence.]—A defendant having entered an appearance requiring a statement of claim, the plaintiff moved, in vacation, for final judgment under Ord. XIII., and the judge made "no rule" on the motion, no special time being limited for the delivery of the defence:—Held, that, after the lapse of eight days from the termination of the vacation, the plaintiff might sign judgment by default without delivering a statement of claim, or notice in lieu thereof. Rae v. Langford, 10 L. R., Ir. 108.

Right to Return of the Money paid into Court.]—If a defendant, fulfilling the condition of an order under Ord. XIV. r. 6, by which he was allowed to defend an action, has brought money into court, and the final judgment of a divisional court be afterwards entered for him, he is thereupon entitled to the return of the money, although notice of appeal against the judgment may have been given by the plaintiff. Yorkshire Banking Co. v. Beatson, 4 C. P. D. 213; 41 L. T. 92; 27 W. R. 914. See Bird v. Barstow, ante, col. 209.

Appeal to Court of Appeal.]—An order giving a plaintiff leave to sign final judgment under Ord. XIV. r. 1, is an interlocutory order, and an appeal from such order must therefore be brought to the court of appeal within twenty-one days. Standard Discount Co. v. La Grange, 47 L. J., C. P. 3; 3 C. P. D. 67; 37 L. T. 372; 26 W. R. 25—C. A.

Matters of Accounts—Course to be adopted.]—In a question of account a judge at chambers is not justified in making an order under Ord. XIV. r. 1, refusing a defendant leave to defend except upon condition of finding security or paying money into court. The right course to adopt in such a case is to allow judgment to be signed as an additional security for any amount found to be due on taking the account, without power to issue execution otherwise than by leave of the court; and this should be done on the terms of the plaintiff consenting to an account being taken at once. Wallingford v. Mutual Society, 50 L. J., Q. B. 49; 5 App. Cas. 685; 43 L. T. 258; 29 W. R. 81—H. L. (E.)

Payment into Court with Denial of Liability—Secured Creditors.]—Where money is paid into court by a defendant under Ord. XXII. r. 6, of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, with a defence denying liability, and on the defendant's subsequent bankruptcy his trustee admits the plaintiff's claim either in part or in full, the plaintiff is to that extent a secured creditor in respect of the money so paid into court. Gordon, In re, Navalchand, Ex parte, 66 L. J., Q. B. 768; [1897] 2 Q. B. 516; 46 W. R. 31; 4 Manson, 141.

Leave to sign Judgment—Judgment not signed or entered—Judgment Creditor—Priority.]—An order under Ord. XIV. r. 1, giving liberty to sign final judgment for the amount claimed by the writ of summons, is not equivalent to signing or entry of judgment so as to give a judgment creditor's right of priority to a plaintiff who has failed to follow up the order by signing judgment under Ord. XLI. Gurney, In re, Clifford v. Gurney, 66 L. J., Ch. 32; [1896] 2 Ch. 863; 75 L. T. 332; 45 W. R. 92.

VII. DISCONTINUANCE AND WITHDRAWAL OF DEFENCE.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XXVI.

1. Generally, 218.
2. Costs, 223.

b. Withdrawal of Defence, 225.

a. DISCONTINUANCE.

1. Generally.

After Entry of Action for Trial.]—Rules of Supreme Court, 1875, Ord. XXIII. r. 1, do not entitle a plaintiff to dismiss his action after it has been entered for trial. Matthews v. Antrobus, 49 L. J., Ch. 80.

After Notice of Appeal.]—A plaintiff gave notice of appeal from the refusal of an injunction. Shortly afterwards the plaintiff's solicitors wrote to the defendants' solicitors to withdraw the notice of appeal. Two days after this the plaintiff's solicitors gave the defendants' solicitors notice of discontinuance of the action. The defendants' solicitors declined to consent to the withdrawal of the appeal except on terms to which the plaintiff's solicitors did not agree, and the appeal came on in its turn:—Held, that the discontinuance of the action put an end to the appeal, and that no order could be made except to strike it out of the paper. Conybeare v. Lewis, 13 Ch. D. 469; 28 W. R. 330—C. A.

After Verdict.]—After a general verdict for the defendant, the plaintiff could not discontinue. Goodenough v. Buttler or Beettles, 2 C. M. & R. 240; 3 D. P. C. 751; 1 Gale, 163; 5 Tyr. 793; 4 L. J., Ex. 223.

Discontinuance was not allowed after a special verdict, in order to adduce fresh proof in contradiction of the verdict. Roe d. Gray v. Gray, 2 W. Bl. 815.

In ordinary cases the court would not grant leave to a plaintiff to discontinue where a verdict had been found against him, and was not special. Young v. Hichens, 6 Q. B. 606.

After Judgment.]—After judgment for a defendant on demurrer to one of several counts, the plaintiff took out a side bar rule to discontinue the action generally. The defendant's costs, not of the demurrer only, under 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 34, but of the whole action, were taxed on the rule to discontinue, treating that rule as the termination of the action, and were received by the defendant's attorney as the defendant's costs "on discontinuance of the action." Judgment was entered up on the record for the defendant on the first count only:—Held, that the discontinuance, being after judgment without leave of the court, was irregular, and that the judgment was also irregular, and the judgment was set aside without costs. Benton v. Polkinghorne, 16 M. & W. 8.

After Decree.]—After a decree merely directing accounts and inquiries, a bill may be dismissed on further consideration. Barton v. Barton, 3 Kay & J. 512; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 808.

After a decree or decretal order not directing inquiries merely has been made, the bill cannot be dismissed. Bluck v. Colnaghi, 9 Sim. 511; 8 L. J., Ch. 89. See Cases infra.

Where for any reason the execution of a final decree of the court in a suit fails, or is set aside, and the proceedings as regards that execution are taken off the file, the whole suit is not discontinued thereby. Singh v. Singh, 9 L. T. 129.

By Consent.]—After decree for an account, the bill cannot be dismissed even with consent; but the proper order is to stay all the proceedings. Egg v. Devey, 11 Beav. 221.

Dismissal of bills in which executors and trustees are parties may be by consent, but not upon terms of an agreement between the parties, unless the court has heard and sanctioned such terms. Warwick v. Cox, 9 Hare (App.) xiv.

After decree, the bill cannot be dismissed by consent; but an arrangement for disposing of the fund in court may have effect, by consent, on further directions. Lashley v. Hogg, 11 Ves. 602.

Semble, after a decree has been pronounced by the court, an order to dismiss the bill will not be made, even by consent. Mayhew v. Brittingham, 8 L. J., Ch. 89.

A bill cannot be dismissed by agreement of the parties; some step in court must be taken for that purpose. Rowe v. Wood, 1 Jac. & Walk. 345; 21 R. R. 179.

Bill dismissed without costs, upon motion, having been filed under a mistake, under which both plaintiffs and defendants were at the time. Broughton v. Lashmar, 5 Myl. & C. 136.

The court, upon a petition to enforce an agreement entered into by the parties to the cause, after the cause was at issue, to compromise the suit, refused to dismiss the bill, or to stay the proceedings in the cause. Askew v. Millington, 9 Hare, 65; 20 L. J., Ch. 508; 15 Jur. 532.

A bill containing reflections on a party ordered by consent to be taken off the file. Clifton v. Bentall, 9 Beav. 105.

Bill and answer allowed to be taken off the file by consent of plaintiff and defendant. Tremaine v. Tremaine, 1 Vern. 189. S. P., Arnold v. Hardwicke, 7 Sim. 343; 4 L. J., Ch. 152.

Bill taken off the file by consent. Walton v. Broadbent, 3 Hare, 334.

A bill containing offensive statements ordered, by consent, to be taken off the file. Jewin v. Taylor, 6 Beav. 120; 11 L. J., Ch. 397.

Sufficiency of Notice.]—A written notice by plaintiff's solicitors, "We are instructed to proceed no further with the action," is a sufficient notice of discontinuance within Ord. XXIII. r. 1. The Pommerania, 48 L. J., P. 55; 4 P. D. 195; 39 L. T. 642.

In an action for an injunction and damages the defence denied liability, but a sum was paid into court in respect of the claim for damages. The plaintiff accepted the sum in satisfaction of his claim for damages and informed the defendants in writing that he should discontinue the action, take the money out of court, and tax his costs:—Held, that the plaintiff's letter was not a notice of discontinuance so as to entitle the defendants to their costs under Ord. XXXI. r. 1. Moon v. Dickinson, 63 L. T. 371; 38 W. R. 278.

What amounts to—Amendment of Claim—Fresh Cause of Action set up.]—The plaintiff, by his statement of claim, alleged that he was the proprietor of the copyright in a design representing an infant asleep upon a pillow, which was duly registered by him in 1879, and that the defendant had infringed such copyright, and he claimed an injunction to restrain the defendant. The design was registered under the Fine Arts Copyrights Act, 1862. The defendant delivered a defence in which he alleged that, for certain reasons connected with registration, which he stated, the plaintiff was not the proprietor of the copyright in the design, and that the action was not sustainable. The plaintiff thereupon amended his claim by striking out the paragraph which alleged that he was the proprietor of the copyright in a design, and substituting a statement that, in 1870, he caused to be registered at Stationers' Hall a certain book, of which a subsequent edition was published, in which was contained a drawing representing an infant asleep upon a pillow. The book was registered under the Copyright Act, 1842. More than eight days after the delivery of the amended statement of claim the defendant moved that the plaintiff might be ordered to pay the costs of the action up to the time of the delivery of such amended pleading, and also the costs of the motion, and that the action might be stayed until the payment of all such costs. He contended that what had been done by the plaintiff amounted to a discontinuance of his original action and the commencement of a new one:—Held, that the motion was altogether irregular, and must be refused with costs, as the proper course was for the defendant to have moved, under Ord. XXVIII. r. 4, within eight days after the delivery of the amended pleading for a disallowance of the amendment, or allowance thereof subject to terms as to costs or otherwise, provision for the costs of such amendments being made by r. 13 of the same order. Bourne v. Coulter, 53 L. J., Ch. 699; 50 L. T. 321.

—— Payment into Court with Denial of Liability—Costs.]—In an action for breach of contract, in which the plaintiffs alleged several distinct breaches, the defendants, while denying all liability, paid into court in the alternative a sum by way of satisfaction of one alleged breach. The plaintiffs took out the sum so paid in, and gave notice that they accepted the same in full satisfaction of the causes of action in the statement of claim mentioned:—Held, that what the plaintiffs had done was equivalent to a discontinuance, that they were entitled to tax their costs under Ord. XXII. r. 7, and that it was not necessary for them also to give notice of discontinuance under Ord. XXVI. r. 1. McIlwraith v. Green, 54 L. J., Q. B. 41; 14 Q. B. D. 766; 52 L. T. 81—C. A.

—— Two Actions.]—An action and a suit in equity having been commenced for the same cause, after issue joined and notice of trial in the action, an order was made in chancery that the plaintiff should elect. He elected to proceed in equity, and the record was withdrawn at nisi prius. An order was afterwards made in chancery in favour of the plaintiff, and directing the defendant to pay the costs of the action. On appeal it was ordered that this direction be omitted, and the defendant be at liberty to proceed at law. The defendant then obtained a judge's order, "that the plaintiff do pay the defendant his taxed costs of the action, the plaintiff having elected to proceed in equity":—Held, that this order was erroneous, as there had been nothing that amounted to a discontinuance of the action, the defendant's remedy, if any, being in chancery. Simpson v. Sadd, 16 C. B. 26; 3 C. L. R. 817; 24 L. J., C. P. 156; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 736.

In cross actions, an order had been drawn up by consent that one of the actions should abide the event of the other. Before the first came on for trial, it was discontinued on account of the death of a material witness:—Held, upon an application to have judgment entered in the second action, that the court could not hold this discontinuance to be such an event of the first action as to justify plaintiff's obtaining judgment in the second action. Rawlings v. Regent's Canal Co., 15 L. T. 281.

Validity of Notice—"Proceedings taken in Action after Receipt of Defence."]—By Ord. XXVI. r. 1, the plaintiff may at any time after the receipt of the defendant's defence, "before taking any other proceeding in the action (save any interlocutory application), by notice in writing wholly discontinue his action against all or any of the defendants." In an action by the holder against the acceptor and the drawer of a bill of exchange, the acceptor paid money into court in satisfaction of the claim, while the drawer delivered a defence denying liability, and set up a counter-claim. The plaintiff, after receipt of the defence, paid into court the amount of the counter-claim, and took out of court the amount paid in by the acceptor, and then gave the drawer notice of discontinuance:—Held, that the plaintiff had not "taken any proceeding in the action after receipt of the defence" such as to prevent him from giving notice of discontinuance. Spincer v. Watts, 58 L. J., Q. B. 383; 23 Q. B. D. 350; 61 L. T. 711; 37 W. R. 676—C. A.

Against some Defendants only.]—Where a suit becomes useless against a particular defendant, it is a laudable course for the plaintiff to dismiss the bill against him, and he may incur censure if he brings the suit to a hearing without doing this. Wright v. Barlow, 5 De G. & Sm. 43; 15 Jur. 1149.

In an action against several defendants a notice wholly discontinuing the action as against some of the defendants is irregular, and will be set aside. The proper course for the plaintiff to adopt is to obtain leave to withdraw his cause of complaint as against such defendants. A plaintiff is entitled, under Ord. XXII. r. 1, by leave of the court or a judge, to discontinue his action wholly so far as some of the defendants are concerned, and to strike out such defendants from the statement of claim, where the causes of action against such defendants are in the alternative, and distinct from the causes of action alleged against the remaining co-defendants. Carlisle v. Belfast Union, 10 L. R., Ir. 36.

Not a Stay of Proceedings.]—A rule to discontinue is not a stay of proceedings. Beeton or Baker v. Jupp or Gupp, 15 M. & W. 149; 3 D. & L. 474; 15 L. J., Ex. 120; 10 Jur. 646.

Effect of—Upon a Counter-claim.]—By discontinuing an action after a counter-claim has been delivered, a plaintiff cannot put an end to it so as to prevent the defendant from enforcing against him the causes of action contained in the counter-claim. Vavasseur v. Krupp (15 Ch. D. 474) overruled. McGowan v. Middleton, 52 L. J., Q. B. 355; 11 Q. B. D. 464; 31 W. R. 835—C. A.

A counter-claim is not equivalent to a separate action. Where, therefore, a defendant has delivered a defence and counter-claim, and the plaintiff then discontinued his action, the defendant cannot proceed with his counter-claim. Vavasseur v. Krupp, 15 Ch. D. 474; 28 W. R. 366.

An action commenced in the high court cannot be sent down for trial in a county court under s. 65 of the County Courts Act, 1888, where the plaintiff has discontinued, and only a counter-claim by the defendant remains to be tried. Reg. v. City of London Court Judge, 60 L. J., Q. B. 575; [1891] 2 Q. B. 71; 64 L. T. 869.

—— On Undertaking as to Damages.]—A plaintiff who had given an undertaking as to the damages discontinued his action:—Held, that the court would nevertheless direct a reference as to damages. Newcomen v. Coulson, 47 L. J., Ch. 429; 7 Ch. D. 764; 38 L. T. 275; 26 W. R. 350.

—— Supplemental Action.]—An action cannot be treated as supplemental to an action that has been discontinued. United Telephone Co. v. Tasker, 59 L. T. 852.

Leave to discontinue—Facts found by Arbitrator.]—After an action had been referred to an arbitrator to state a special case, and he had in the case found the facts with regard to all but a very small portion of the claim in the defendant's favour, the plaintiff applied under Ord. XXIII. r. 1, for leave to discontinue the action:—Held, that leave ought not to be granted. Stahlschmidt v. Walford, 48 L. J., Q. B. 348; 4 Q. B. D. 217; 40 L. T. 194; 27 W. R. 412.

—— By some Plaintiffs only.]—Motion by some of several plaintiffs to have bill dismissed against them with costs granted on terms. Holkirk v. Holkirk, 4 Madd. 50.

Bill dismissed by one co-plaintiff as to himself with costs without the consent of the other. Langdale v. Langdale, 13 Ves. 167. And see Lloyd v. Wingfield, 1 Hog, 192.

If several plaintiffs join in instituting a suit, one of them will not be allowed to withdraw from the prosecution of it unless he makes out, to the satisfaction of the court, that it is not consistent with prudence to prosecute the suit further. Jeffcoat v. Jeffcoat, 3 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 45.

—— Test Action.]—When an action, which had been made a test action (for the purpose of deciding the rights of the plaintiffs in a number of similar actions against the same defendants), came on for trial, the plaintiff declined to proceed, on the ground that he was not in a fit state of health to attend and be examined as a witness. On a previous occasion he had moved for and obtained a postponement of the trial on the ground of his ill-health. A week before the trial an application by the plaintiff in chambers to stay all proceedings in the action had been refused on the ground that the plaintiff was not dominus litis, but a trustee for the plaintiffs in the other actions. At the trial the plaintiff asked for a postponement, or that an order of discontinuance might be made under Ord. XXIII. r. 1:—Held, that the court could not regard the rights of the plaintiffs in the other actions, but must act as if the plaintiff had not appeared at the trial, and must dismiss the action with costs. Robinson v. Chadwick, 47 L. J., Ch. 607; 7 Ch. D. 878; 38 L. T. 415; 26 W. R. 556.

In that class of cases in which, to avoid multiplicity of suits, one person is allowed to sue on behalf of himself and all others in the same interest, the plaintiff cannot dismiss his bill after a decree, because such a decree not only provides for the rights of himself but of all others who choose to come in and take the benefit of it, but the rule only applies to suits in which a decree has been pronounced. White v. Westmeath (Lord), Beat. 177.

2. Costs.

Jurisdiction.]—In an application by the plaintiff to have all proceedings stayed in the action, the defence having been admitted, the judge made an order, under Ord. XXVI. r. 1, that all proceedings should be stayed, each party to bear his own costs, except such as, in the opinion of the master to whom the matter was referred for taxation, were occasioned by any proceedings unnecessarily taken by the plaintiff:—Held, that the judge had jurisdiction to make such an order; and that it was no delegation of his discretion to the master to do so. Musman v. Boret, 66 L. T. 171; 40 W. R. 352.

Upon an application by a plaintiff for leave under Ord. XXVI. r. 1, to discontinue an action, the court or judge has no jurisdiction to make the defendant pay any costs of a defence which, if undisputed, or if it had been found in the defendant's favour, would have prevented the plaintiff from maintaining his action. Where a court or judge is expressly given a discretion as to costs, the exercise of such discretion cannot be delegated. Lambton v. Parkinson, 35 W. R. 545.

Pauper.]—Pauper shall not dismiss without costs. Pearson v. Belsher, 3 Bro. C. C. 87.

Defendant rendering Action useless.]—Order made on the motion of the plaintiff to dismiss his bill without costs, the defendant having, by his own act, rendered the suit useless. Knox v. Brown, 1 Cox, 359; 2 Bro. C. C. 186.

Effect of Payment into Court by Defendant.]—On a summons under Ord. XIV. for the payment of a sum of money, the master ordered the defendant to pay money into court as to part of the claim, and gave leave to defend as to the remainder. After issue joined, the plaintiff discontinued the action. The taxing master gave the defendant the whole costs of the action from the beginning. On appeal for review of taxation:—Held, that the costs were not governed by Ord. XXVI. r. 1, but were in the discretion of the court under Ord. LXV. r. 1, and that the plaintiff was entitled to his costs up to the time of payment into court. Langridge v. Campbell (2 Ex. D. 211) distinguished. Suckling v. Gabb, 36 W. R. 175.

Originating Motion.]—When the proprietor of a trade-mark is served with an originating notice of motion to remove the mark from the register and afterwards receives a notice of discontinuance, he is entitled to apply in court for the costs of the motion. Dyson's Trade-mark, In re, 65 L. T. 488.

Defendant's Administratrix appearing.]—A defendant having died after issue joined and notice of trial given, a suggestion of his death was made, and his administratrix appeared and pleaded to the suggestion. The plaintiff afterwards applied to a judge for leave to discontinue on payment of the costs of the pleas to the suggestion, but the judge made the usual order, on payment of full costs:—Held, that the order was right, for that s. 138 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, put the administratrix in the same position as if she had been the original defendant in the action. Benge v. Swaine or Page, 15 C. B. 784; 2 C. L. R. 1382; 23 L. J. C. P. 182.

What Costs allowed.]—On the discontinuance of an action, the costs of all work in preparing, briefing, or otherwise, relating to affidavits or pleadings, are allowed, provided, in the opinion of the taxing master, such work has not been prematurely done. Harrison v. Leutner, 50 L. J., Ch. 264; 16 Ch. D. 559; 44 L. T. 331; 29 W. R. 393.

By Ord. LXV. r. 27, special allowances in respect of (sub-r. 9) "such just and reasonable charges and expenses as appear to have been properly incurred in procuring evidence" shall apply to all taxations in the supreme court:—Held, that under this rule a master had a discretion to allow charges and expenses properly incurred by the defendant in procuring evidence where the plaintiff, having given no notice of trial, subsequently discontinued the action. Windham v. Bainton, 57 L. J., Q. B. 519; 21 Q. B. D. 199; 36 W. R. 832.

When a plaintiff in an action, after succeeding in an interlocutory application, the costs of which are made costs in the cause, gives notice of discontinuance of the action, under Ord. XXIII., the defendant is entitled to his costs, including the costs of such application. The St. Olaf, 46 L. J., P. 74; 2 P. D. 113; 36 L. T. 30.

If the plaintiff discontinued before giving notice of trial, the defendant was not under any circumstances entitled to any of the costs of preparing for trial, and therefore not to instructions for brief. Cooper v. Boles, 5 H. & N. 188; 29 L. J., Ex. 141; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 150, 256; 1 L. T. 302; 8 W. R. 182. S. P., Doe d. Postlethwaite v. Neale, 2 M. & W. 732; 6 D. P. C. 166.

The defendant's costs of "preparing for trial" could not be allowed where a plaintiff discontinued before notice of trial, even though liberty had been reserved to the plaintiff under a judge's order to set down the cause for trial before issue joined and a special jury had been struck. Curtis v. Platt, 16 C. B. (N.S.) 465; 33 L. J., C. P. 255; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 823; 10 L. T. 383.

—— Examination of Witnesses.]—In an action on a marine insurance policy, owing to the plaintiff's delay in complying with an order for production of papers, the defendant did not plead until a year after declaration. Meanwhile, to save expense, the defendant examined witnesses before the master, under 1 Will. 4, c. 22, s. 4. The defendant pleaded unseaworthiness, &c., and paid 25*l.* into court on the money counts for the premium. The plaintiff took the money out of court, and joined issue on the other pleas, but afterwards discontinued:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to the costs of the witnesses examined before the master, as incurred before instructions for plea, within Reg. Gen. H. T. 1853, R. 12. Previte v. Adelaide Fire and Marine Insurance Co., 32 L. T. 768.

Improper Joinder of Defendants.]—A cause was referred, and the arbitrator stated the facts specially on his award for the opinion of the court. On the matter coming on for argument, the plaintiffs being advised that one of the defendants was improperly joined in the action, the court permitted them to discontinue on payment of the costs of the cause (no provision being made for the costs of the reference and award), and of the motion, and undertaking not to bring any joint action against the two defendants, nor any separate action against the defendant so improperly joined. Turner v. Izon, 2 Scott, 596.

To induce the court to permit a plaintiff, who has incorrectly joined in the action one who was no party to the contract, to discontinue without paying costs, it must be clearly shewn that he was induced by the defendant's conduct to believe that the contract was entered into with the two, and that the mistake did not arise from his own negligence. Boensgen v. Chanter, 6 Scott, 300.

Enforcing Payment of.]—When a plaintiff has given notice to the defendant to discontinue the action, and the costs have been taxed, no further order of the court is required to enable the chief clerk to issue a writ to enforce payment, and the writ may be varied to suit the circumstances of the case. Ord. XXIII. has the force of an order of the judge or court. Bolton v. Bolton, 3 Ch. D. 276; 35 L. T. 358; 24 W. R. 663.

b. WITHDRAWAL OF DEFENCE.

When Delivered by Fraud of Solicitor.]—Where a solicitor has put in a fraudulent defence for his client without the knowledge of the client, making admissions on which judgment was obtained against the client:—Held, that the court had jurisdiction to set aside the judgment and permit the client to withdraw the defence, and put in a fresh defence. Williams v. Preston, 51 L. J., Ch. 927; 20 Ch. D. 672; 47 L. T. 265; 30 W. R. 555—C. A.

By one Defendant—Costs "so far as occasioned by Defence."]—Where one of two defendants to an action of ejectment withdrew his defence, and was ordered, as one of the terms on which such withdrawal was permitted, to pay to the plaintiffs their costs of the action "so far as they were occasioned by the defendant's defence" down to the date of the application to withdraw:—Held, that the effect of the order (the terms of which followed the language of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, s. 205, and were practically identical with that of Ord. XXIII. r. 1) [Ord. XXVI. r. 1 (1883)] was to relieve the withdrawing defendant from the general costs of the action, and to make him liable only for the additional or increased costs, over and above the general costs, occasioned by such defendant having defended the action. Real and Personal Advance Co. v. McCarthy, 18 Ch. D. 362; 45 L. T. 116; 30 W. R. 481—C. A.

—— Terms.]—One of the defendants to an action for the recovery of land was allowed to withdraw his defence after the action had been in the paper for trial, but had been postponed till another action relating to the same property should be ready for trial, upon the terms of giving the plaintiffs all the relief to which they could be entitled at the trial, and paying the costs occasioned by the defence, and the costs of a summons for leave to withdraw. And, the defendant having offered in chambers what the court considered proper terms, the plaintiffs were ordered to pay the costs of an adjournment of the summons into court. Real and Personal Advance Co. v. McCarthy, 49 L. J., Ch. 615; 14 Ch. D. 188; 42 L. T. 48; 28 W. R. 418.

Infant Defendants.]—The defence of two infant defendants in an ejectment action was withdrawn under an order of court. The other defendants having made admissions, judgment was moved for, supported by an affidavit proving the statement of claim:—Held, that the correct course where infants are parties and their defence is withdrawn and judgment is moved for, is to prove the statement of claim by affidavit. Fitzwater v. Waterhouse (52 L. J., Ch. 83) followed. Gardner v. Tupling, 33 W. R. 473.

VIII. DISMISSAL FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION.

Consent Order—No Bar to Fresh Action.]—An order by consent, in the absence of an agreement to compromise the cause of action, to dismiss an action for want of prosecution is no bar to the institution of a fresh action. In this respect the practice of the old court of chancery remains unchanged. Magnus v. National Bank of Scotland, 57 L. J., Ch. 902; 58 L. T. 617; 36 W. R. 602.

Contempt—Waiver.]—The taking an office copy of the answer filed, after being in contempt, is not a waiver of the contempt so as to enable the defendant to move to dismiss for want of prosecution. Woodward v. Twinaine, 9 Sim. 301; 9 L. J., Ch. 52; 4 Jur. 120.

Effect of Order on other Proceedings.]—Where an action had been commenced against a company and continued by leave after a winding-up order, and before trial an order had been obtained to dismiss the action for want of prosecution:—Held, that the plaintiff in the action was not debarred from bringing forward a claim in the same matter in the winding-up. Orrell Colliery and Fire Brick Co., In re, 48 L. J., Ch. 655; 12 Ch. D. 681.

When an action which was registered as a lis pendens had been dismissed for want of prosecution, the court, on a motion made ex parte on behalf of the defendant, under 30 & 31 Vict. c. 47, s. 2, to vacate the registration, made an order nisi, the plaintiff to shew cause within one week why the order should not be made absolute. Pooley v. Bosanquet, 7 Ch. D. 541; 26 W. R. 587.

Claim and Counter-claim.]—After a defence and counter-claim have been delivered, and there is undue delay on the plaintiff's part in delivering a reply, the proper course for the defendant is to give notice of motion to dismiss the original action for want of prosecution and for judgment on the counter-claim. Aitken v. Dunbar, 46 L. J., Ch. 489; 25 W. R. 366.

After Order to Amend.]—A cause coming on to be heard, stood over, with liberty for the plaintiff to amend. He did amend, but did not proceed further. Defendant may move to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution, and it is not necessary to set down the cause again for this purpose. Mitchel v. Lowndes, 2 Cox, 15.

Negotiation for Compromise.]—A negotiation for a compromise which had been pending:—Held to be a sufficient answer to a motion to dismiss for want of prosecution. Att.-Gen. v. Nethercoat, 7 L. J., Ch. 75.

Administration Action.]—When a decree was made in an administration suit, directing the usual accounts and inquiries, and the plaintiff took no steps to prosecute the decree:—Held, that the defendant was not entitled to move to dismiss for want of prosecution, but ought to apply to obtain the conduct of the cause. Simons v. Baynoll, 19 W. R. 217.

Default in Proceeding to Trial—Verdict set aside.]—An action, in which the place of trial was out of Dublin, was tried at the Spring Assizes, 1883, when a verdict was directed for the defendant. This verdict was set aside on the ground of misdirection, and a second trial took place at the Spring Assizes, 1884, resulting in a verdict directed for the plaintiff, which was also set aside, and a third trial ordered in the Michaelmas Sittings, 1884. The plaintiff not having served notice of trial for the next ensuing assizes, the defendant moved to dismiss the action for want of prosecution, contending that the case fell within Ord. XXXV. rr. 2, 4:—The court refused the motion. Semble, the only remedy open to a defendant under such circumstances is trial by proviso under the old practice. Foott v. Benn, 16 L. R. Ir. 247.

—— Abortive Trial.]—A defendant is entitled to have an action dismissed for want of prosecution after an abortive trial if the plaintiff fails to proceed. National Bank v. Canning, 16 L. R. Ir. 444.

Cause not entered for Trial.]—A plaintiff gave notice of trial, but did not enter the cause for trial within six days after the notice of trial was given, in accordance with Ord. XXXVI. r. 16:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to move to dismiss the action for want of prosecution. Crick v. Hewlett, 53 L. J., Ch. 1110; 27 Ch. D. 354; 51 L. T. 428; 32 W. R. 922.

When the plaintiff has given notice of trial but has not entered the trial, and the defendant applies to dismiss the action for want of prosecution, the court or a judge has a discretion, under Ord. XXXVI. r. 12, either to dismiss the action or to order that it be dismissed unless notice of trial be given, and the trial entered within a certain time, or to make such other order as may seem just. Sievier v. Spearman, 74 L. T. 132—C. A.

Order for Security for Costs.]—An order obtained by the defendants for security for costs, with a stay of proceedings until the security is given, does not prevent the defendant from moving to dismiss the action for want of prosecution. London Road Car Co. v. Kelly, 18 L. R. Ir. 43.

Order for Discovery.]—A defendant may dismiss a bill for want of prosecution, although he has filed interrogatories for the examination of the plaintiff, the time for answering which has not yet expired. Jackson v. Icimey, 35 L. J., Ch. 843; L. R. 1 Eq. 693.

Though Order not complied with.]—A defendant is entitled to the usual order on a motion to dismiss, although he has not complied with an order made in the suit, if he is not in contempt by reason of such non-compliance. Howe v. Grey, 36 L. J., Ch. 488; 16 L. T. 345.

Outlawry.]—A bill may be dismissed for want of prosecution while the plaintiff is an outlaw. Knowles v. Rhydydefed Colliery Co., 1 Johns. 630; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 291; 1 L. T. 321; 8 W. R. 159.

Jurisdiction of Court of Appeal.]—The court of appeal has no jurisdiction to entertain an original application to dismiss an action for want of prosecution, although the delay relied on is in not proceeding to a new trial ordered by the court of appeal. Roberts v. French, 14 R. 210; 72 L. T. 147; 43 W. R. 258—C. A.

Service of Notice—Time for.]—If notice of a motion to dismiss a bill for want of prosecution is given for too early a day, the defect is not cured by the motion being accidentally postponed to a day when it might have been regularly made. De Genere v. Hannam, 1 Russ. & M. 494.

A notice of motion to dismiss for want of prosecution is irregular if served prior to the plaintiff's being in default, although at the time when the motion is heard the plaintiff is in default. Ponsardin v. Stear, 32 Beav. 666; 2 N. R. 476; 11 W. R. 926.

A notice of a motion to dismiss for want of prosecution cannot be given till grounds for dismissal actually exist. Sheffield v. Gray, 20 W. R. 656.

—— On Trustee of Bankrupt Plaintiff.]—When a plaintiff had made default in delivering his statement of claim, and had since become bankrupt, notice of motion to dismiss for want of prosecution was ordered to be served on the trustee in bankruptcy, although under Ord. L. r. 1, the action had not become abated by the bankruptcy. Wright v. Swindon, Marlborough and Andover Ry., 46 L. J., Ch. 199; 4 Ch. D. 164.

How made in Chancery Division.]—A motion to dismiss an action for want of prosecution under Ord. XXXVI. r. 4a should generally, in the chancery division, be made to the judge in chambers. Frearson v. Loe, 26 W. R. 138.

An application to dismiss for want of prosecution may, according to circumstances, be made either in chambers or to the court. If the usual notice of motion is given, and the plaintiff does not at once submit to speed the cause and tender the costs of the notice, the defendant, if the usual order is made, will have his costs of making the motion in court. Evelyn v. Evelyn, 49 L. J., Ch. 18; 13 Ch. D. 138; 41 L. T. 499; 28 W. R. 73.

Further Time — Discretion.]—When on a motion to dismiss for want of prosecution the judge of the court below has, by way of indulgence, given further time to the plaintiff, the court of appeal will not interfere with the order so made in the discretion of the judge of the court below. Sheffield v. Sheffield, 44 L. J., Ch. 304; L. R. 10 Ch. 206; 23 W. R. 378.

Application by one Defendant.]—Where one of several defendants had delivered a defence and the time had expired for delivery of a reply, but the plaintiff had allowed the other defendants time to deliver their defences, the one defendant could not have moved to dismiss the action for want of prosecution. Ambroise v. Evelyn, 48 L. J., Ch. 686 ; 10 Ch. D. 759 ; 27 W. R. 639.

Costs.]—A defendant, knowing the plaintiff has used due diligence, is liable to pay costs of his motion to dismiss for want of prosecution. Ingle v. Partridge, 33 Beav. 287.

A plaintiff, on being served with a notice of motion to dismiss for want of prosecution to which he was open, at once proceeded with the suit, and tendered to the defendants 20*s.* for the costs of the motion. They had, however, already delivered counsel's briefs, and incurred costs to a greater extent than the tender:—Held, that he was liable to pay the defendants their costs actually incurred. Wakefield v. Cruickshank, 41 L. J., Ch. 277 ; 20 W. R. 433.

The statutable right of a defendant to the costs of an action in the chancery division which had been dismissed for want of prosecution was repealed by 42 & 43 Vict. c. 59, which repeals so much of 4 & 5 Anne, c. 3, as gives such costs, and though the practice in accordance with such statutable right, and as regulated by Ord. XXXIII. r. 10, of the Chancery Consolation Orders of 1860, was preserved by s. 4 of 42 & 43 Vict. c. 59, yet Ord. LXV. r. 1, of the rules of 1883 has changed such practice, so that the costs of a defendant where such action has been dismissed for want of prosecution are now in the discretion of the judge, and therefore his order as to such costs is by s. 49 of the Judicature Act, 1873, not subject to appeal. Snelling v. Pulling, 29 Ch. D. 85 ; 52 L. T. 335 ; 33 W. R. 449—C. A.

Discharge of Order.]—Where a bill is inadvertently dismissed as against one of the defendants, and it afterwards appears that he is still a necessary party, the order of dismissal will be varied or discharged, so as to place him again on the record. —— v. Morland, 1 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 212.

A bill which had been dismissed for want of prosecution restored, on an affidavit that the plaintiff's solicitor had been abroad for his health, and that his clerk had made a mistake. Southampton Steamboat Co. v. Rawlins, 34 L. J., Ch. 287 ; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 230 ; 13 W. R. 512.

Order dismissing a bill for want of prosecution discharged on payment by the plaintiffs of the costs of the motions in both courts. Jones v. Jones, 34 L. J., Ch. 11 ; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 1167—L.JJ.

IX. THIRD PARTIES—NOTICE CLAIMING CONTRIBUTION OR INDEMNITY.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XVI. rr. 48—55.

b. Practice, 237.

a. In what Cases.

Express or Implied Contract — Right to Damages Insufficient.]—A land company had an agreement from B. to demise to them certain lands for building purposes, the agreement to be voidable as to all land not actually demised if the buildings were not completed within a certain time. B. agreed to sell part of the land to a railway company subject to the building agreement. The time for building having expired without the buildings being erected, the railway company took possession and treated the building agreement as at an end. The land company thereupon brought their action against the railway company, alleging that an agreement had been made between them and B. for extension of the time, and that the railway company bought with notice of it, and seeking to restrain the railway company from interfering with the land till they compensated the land company, pursuant to the Lands Clauses Act. The railway company applied for leave to serve B. with a third-party notice on the ground that he sold to them free from all incumbrances, except the building agreement, and without notice of the extension of time, and was bound to indemify them against any claim the land company could establish :—Held, that in order to bring a case within Ord. XVI. r. 48, it is not enough that if the plaintiff succeeds the defendant will have a claim for damages against the third party, but the defendant must have against the third party a direct right to indemnity as such, which right must—generally, if not always—arise from contracts express or implied, and that here there was no ground for implying such a contract. Birmingham Land Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry., 56 L. J., Ch. 956 ; 34 Ch. D. 261 ; 55 L. T. 699 ; 35 W. R. 173—C. A.

Indemnity after Service of Writ.]—Leave may be given to a defendant to serve notice of claim for indemnity on a third party, under Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. XVI. r. 48, whether the indemnity has been given after or before action brought. Edison Electric Light Co. v. Holland, 56 L. J., Ch. 124 ; 33 Ch. D. 497 ; 55 L. T. 587 ; 35 W. R. 178.

Company—Payment of Dividends out of Capital—Contribution from Shareholders.]—On a misfeasance summons under s. 10 of the Winding-up Act, 1890, to render directors liable for dividends paid out of capital, the court has no jurisdiction, by analogy to the third-party procedure in an action, to give leave to the directors to serve notice on shareholders, who have received the dividends, claiming contribution. Land Securities Co., In re, 13 R. 341 ; 2 Manson, 127.

—— Forged Transfer of Shares—Transferee.]—The plaintiff, who was the owner of stock in a public company registered in her name, ascertained that it had been transferred to F. by virtue, as she alleged, of a forged transfer. She brought an action against the company to have her name reinstated in the books of the company. The company obtained leave to serve F. with a claim for indemnity:—Held, without deciding that the claim for indemnity was valid, that leave to serve F. was rightly given. Speller v. Bristol Steam Navigation Co. (13 Q. B. D. 96) distinguished. Carshore v. North-Eastern Ry., 54 L. J., Ch. 760 ; 29 Ch. D. 344 ; 52 L. T. 232 ; 33 W. R. 420—C. A.

Covenant—Restrictive—Constructive Notice.]—In 1857 A. granted a lease of a house for a term of ninety-three years, with a restrictive covenant against the user of the house for any art, trade, or business. The term granted by the lease became vested in B., and in October, 1883, B. granted a lease of the house to C. for twenty-one years, with an express permission that he might use the house in his profession of teaching music and singing, and with the usual covenant for quiet enjoyment. There was constructive notice of the original lease in the under-lease, but C. had no personal knowledge or notice of the restrictive covenant. A breach of this covenant having been committed by C., the devisees in trust of A. brought an action against B. and C., claiming an injunction and damages. By his defence C. claimed to be indemnified by B. against all expenses and damages occasioned by the breach of the covenant for quiet enjoyment, and served a third-party notice upon B., to which he appeared:—Held, that C. was not entitled to any relief against his co-defendant B., inasmuch as the claim was not one for "contribution or indemnity" within the meaning of r. 55. Tritton v. Bankart, 56 L. J., Ch. 629; 56 L. T. 306; 35 W. R. 474.

—— To Repair—Under-lessee.]—The plaintiff sued the defendant for breach of a covenant to repair contained in a lease of a dwelling-house for a term of twenty-one years from Michaelmas, 1861. The defendant obtained leave to serve, and served a third-party notice, claiming contribution or indemnity from a sub-lessee to whom he had let the premises from Midsummer, 1869, for the remainder of the original term, less ten days. The under-lease contained a covenant to repair, which was in terms precisely similar to those of the covenant in the original lease, and for breach of which the defendant claimed relief against the sub-lessee:—Held, that, inasmuch as the terms of the covenant to repair must in each case be construed with reference to the age and character of the premises at the time of the demise, the covenant in the under-lease could not be construed as a covenant to indemnify the defendant against or to perform the covenant in the original lease; that the defendant's claim was not one for contribution or indemnity from the third party within Ord. XVI. r. 52, and that, therefore, no directions as to trial could be given under that rule. Pontifex v. Foord, 53 L. J., Q. B. 321; 12 Q. B. D. 152; 49 L. T. 808; 32 W. R. 316.

—— To Repair—Assignee.]—In an action against the personal representatives of a deceased lessee on a covenant to repair in the lease, the defendant having obtained leave to serve a third-party notice on an assignee of the lease, applied for directions under Ord. XVI. r. 53 (English Ord. XVI. r. 52):—Held, that as the third party was not liable for any breach of covenant prior to the assignment, the plaintiff had reasonable grounds for objecting to the question of the liability to indemnify the defendant for subsequent breaches being tried in the action, and that the third party should be dismissed. Greville v. Hayes, [1894] 2 Ir. R. 20.

—— To Make New Street.]—A.'s predecessor in title demised lands to B. in 1872, and covenanted to make a new street beside them. In 1890 A. demised adjacent land to C., and in this lease C. covenanted with A. to complete and finish all new streets on lands abutting on these lands, so far as A. was bound to do, subject to certain terms. B., by action against A., claimed damages for breach of the covenant in the lease of 1872. A. sought to join C. as an indemnifying defendant:—Held, that A., under the circumstances, was not entitled so to do. Morris v. Kennedy, 30 L. R. Ir. 461.

Lessee against Assignee—Previous Action by Lessor—Costs between Solicitor and Client.]—In an action by a lessee against his assignee to recover sums paid by the lessee for rent, damages, and costs in a previous action brought against him by the lessor, and his own costs of such previous action, the defendant admitted his liability for the sums paid for rent and damages, but brought in a further assignee as third party, who admitted his liability to indemnify the defendant. The court decided that the plaintiff was entitled to recover portion of the amount paid by him to the lessor for costs of the previous action, and also the plaintiff's own costs of the same:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover from the defendant his costs of the present action, including orders as to the third party as between solicitor and client; and that the defendant in addition to the amounts paid by him was entitled as against the third party to his costs of the action and the third-party proceedings, those of the action to be taxed as between solicitor and client, the fact that they were payable by the third party being taken into consideration. Form of order. Wiley v. Smith, [1894] 1 Ir. R. 153.

Insurance—Underwriters—Suing and Labouring Clause.]—The defendant insured his ship under a policy containing the usual suing and labouring clause. In an action to recover for work alleged to have been done and expenses incurred by the plaintiffs for the defendant, at his request, in respect of attempting to save the ship during the continuance of the policy:—Held, that the defendant was not entitled to bring in the underwriters as third parties under Ord. XVI. r. 48, because they did not, by the suing and labouring clause, contract to indemnify the defendant in respect of any contract made by him with the plaintiffs. Johnston v. Salvage Association, 19 Q. B. D. 458; 57 L. T. 218; 36 W. R. 56; 6 Asp. M. C. 167—C. A.

—— Mortgage of Policy—Discharge—Mortgagor.]—M., a married woman, on the 6th November, 1879, effected a policy of insurance on her own life for 3,000*l.* M. and her husband, on the 19th of October, 1880, mortgaged the policy to T. to secure the repayment of 2,534*l.* 7*s.*, with interest at 6*l.* per cent. In the mortgage deed there was a power of attorney by M. and her husband to T., but there was not any special receipt clause empowering T. to give a valid discharge to the assurance society. The deed also contained a provision that if the covenants were fulfilled, T. should not call in the money before the 1st of May, 1890. T. gave notice to the assurance society of the mortgage. M. died, and probate of her will was granted to her husband. At the date of her death 2,762*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* was due on the policy, and there was due to T., for principal and interest, 2,618*l.* 18*s.* 7*d.*, besides a sum of 28*l.* for costs due to T. as solicitor for M. and her husband. T. called upon the insurance company to pay him the whole of the moneys due on the policy, but they refused to do so unless M.'s husband, as her personal representative, joined in the receipt, which he declined to do, except upon terms which T. rejected; and the company having persisted in their refusal, T. brought an action against them, and the company moved for leave to bring in M.'s husband as a third party:—Held, that the company was entitled to have M.'s husband brought before the court, and that they should be at liberty to lodge in court the amount due on the policy. Tench v. Eykyn, 18 L. R. Ir. 45.

Shipping—Collision—Ship in Hands of Shipbuilder.]—A shipowner is not entitled to "indemnity" within Ord. XVI. r. 48, over against a shipbuilder in respect of an action brought against such shipowner for a collision which occurred while the ship was under the control of the shipbuilder. The Jacob Christensen, 64 L. J., P. 92; [1895] P. 281; 11 R. 795; 72 L. T. 902; 8 Asp. M. C. 21.

—— Loss and Demurrage.]—An action was brought by shipowners against the defendants for not having unloaded the plaintiff's ship at the port of discharge pursuant to the terms of the charterparty, which stipulated that the ship should be discharged at port of delivery "as customary." After the execution of the charterparty the defendants sold the cargo to D., who contracted that the cargo should be taken "from over the ship's side as fast as the captain can deliver," failing which it was to be resold at the defendant's discretion, D. being liable for "any loss, demurrage, or other expenses arising therefrom." The ship arrived, and D. took delivery of the cargo:—Held, that leave ought not to be given to the defendants to issue a third-party notice under Ord. XVI. r. 48, against D., as the contract by D. as to loss and demurrage was not a contract to indemnify the defendants against their liability to the plaintiffs under the charterparty. Constantine v. Warden, 73 L. T. 450; 44 W. R. 162; 8 Asp. M. C. 100—C. A.

—— Damage to Cargo—Charterer against Owner—Warranty.]—Where a defendant is not entitled to claim contribution against a person not a party to the action, he can only be entitled, under Ord. XVI. r. 48, to issue a third-party notice to such person, where under a contract, expressed or implied, he is entitled to indemnity over against him. Therefore, where the defendants were sued for damages to the plaintiffs' goods while on board a vessel of the defendants on a certain voyage, by reason of the vessel being not seaworthy for the voyage:—Held, that the defendants were not entitled to a third-party notice, under Ord. XVI. r. 48, to the persons of whom the defendants had hired the vessel with a warranty that she was tight, staunch, strong, and fitted for the service. Speller v. Bristol Steam Navigation Co., 53 L. J., Q. B. 322; 13 Q. B. D. 96; 50 L. T. 419; 32 W. R. 670; 5 Asp. M. C. 228—C. A.

Trustee—Breach of Trust.]—A. and B. were trustees of the marriage settlement of X. and Y.; some of the investments were sold and the proceeds placed to the credit of A., who advanced the moneys in breach of trust to the husband X.; in an action commenced by the children of X. and Y. against A. and B., for such breaches of trust, A. and B. gave each other cross-notices of claim for contribution:—Held, that Ord. XVI. r. 55, enabled the court to make an order for contribution in such a case. Sawyer v. Sawyer, 28 Ch. D. 601.

The claim of a trustee, who is being sued to replace a trust fund lost by the default of his co-trustee, to have the loss made good by the partners of the defaulting trustee, is not a claim for indemnity enforceable by the third-party procedure under Ord. XVI. r. 48, on the ground that the trustee's right to recover the trust fund from the partners is not dependent on his own liability to replace the same. Wynne v. Tempest, 66 L. J., Ch. 81; [1897] 1 Ch. 110; 75 L. T. 624; 45 W. R. 183.

Vendor and Purchaser—Misrepresentation—Auctioneer.]—An action by a vendor against the purchaser of a house and premises, and the auctioneer who advertised and sold them, for specific performance of the contract or damages. The purchaser stated that he was induced to purchase the property in consequence of the advertisement in the newspapers inserted by the auctioneer, representing that the purchase-moneys would be allowed to remain on mortgage. The representation was alleged to have been unauthorised, and the purchaser applied by summons under Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. XVI. r. 55, for leave to serve his co-defendant, the auctioneer, with a notice claiming indemnity from him against the claim of the vendor:—Held, that this was not a case for indemnity within r. 55, and that the summons must be dismissed. Pontifex v. Foord (12 Q. B. D. 152) followed. Catton v. Bennett, 53 L. J., Ch. 685; 26 Ch. D. 161; 50 L. T. 383; 32 W. R. 485.

Claim against Plaintiff in another Capacity.]—Where a defendant claims contribution or indemnity over against a plaintiff in a capacity other than that in which such plaintiff sues, the court will not give leave to issue a third-party notice. Gilson, In re, Gilson v. Gilson, 63 L. J., Ch. 555; [1894] 2 Ch. 92; 8 R. 382; 70 L. T. 728; 42 W. R. 425.

Originating Summons.]—A third-party notice is not aplicable to proceedings by originating summons. Wilson, In re, Att.-Gen. v. Woodall, 60 L. J., Ch. 101; 45 Ch. D. 266; 63 L. T. 100; 39 W. R. 58.

Rules of 1875—Whole Question need not have been the same.]—In order to entitle a defendant to serve a notice on a third person under Ord. XVI. rr. 17, 18, it is not necessary that the whole question between the plaintiff, the defendant, and the third person should be identical; it is sufficient if it is primâ facie made out that a material question in the action is also a question between the defendant and the third person; and under such circumstances the court will order service of the notice, if the plaintiff will not be prejudiced or delayed by the introduction of the third person. Swansea Shipping Co. v. Duncan, 45 L. J., Q. B. 638; 1 Q. B. D. 644; 35 L. T. 879; 25 W. R. 233—C. A.

In an action for money lent the defendant set up a counter-claim in which he joined one T. as defendant to the counter-claim under Ord. XXII. r. 5, and alleged a contract between himself and T., and a breach thereof by T.; that the contract had been transferred from T. to the plaintiffs; and that the plaintiffs had broken it. He then claimed damages against the plaintiffs, and, in the alternative, against T.:—Held, that T. was not properly joined as co-defendant to the counter-claim under Ord. XXII. r. 5, but that the defendant should have applied to have the question determined as against T. under Ord. XVI. r. 17. Central African Trading Co. v. Grove, 48 L. J., Ex. 510; 40 L. T. 540; 27 W. R. 933—C. A.

—— In what Cases.]—In an action against the defendant, a shipowner, to recover damages for injury to certain goods shipped on board his ship, to be carried from Newport to Montreal, caused by the unseaworthiness of the vessel, the defendant sought to bring in the shipbuilder, who had built and delivered the ship at Sunderland, as a third party under Ord. XVI. rr. 18 and 21 :—Held, that the defendant was not entitled to bring in the shipbuilder as a third party, on the ground that it would inconvenience and prejudice the plaintiffs at the trial, and that the question of seaworthiness of the ship, as between the plaintiffs and the defendant, and the defendant and the shipbuilder, was not identical in point of time. Blaina Iron Co. v. Garbutt, 46 L. T. 162.

A. sold and delivered goods to B., who before payment became bankrupt. A. then brought an action for the price of the goods against C., alleging that B. had bought them on the joint account of B. and C., or on account of C. as undisclosed principal. The defendant C. thereupon served the trustee in the bankruptcy with a third-party notice under Ord. XVI. r. 18, claiming indemnity out of the bankrupt's estate in respect of the contract, but the trustee obtained an order in bankruptcy restraining all proceedings upon the notice :—Held, that the order must be discharged, as the court of bankruptcy could not dispose of the whole matter, and the case was one expressly provided for by Ord. XVI. r. 18. Smith, Ex parte, Collie, In re, 45 L. J., Bk. 116 ; 2 Ch. D. 51 ; 34 L. T. 603 ; 24 W. R. 310—C. A.

Where only one of several parties, jointly liable on a promissory note, is sued, and claims to be, and is entitled to contribution from such other parties, leave will be given to serve them with notice under Ord. XV. r. 18. Bank of Ireland v. Forbes, 6 L. R., Ir. 19.

Where a defendant by his separate statement of defence raised certain questions affecting the rights of his co-defendants, but did not make any counter-claim against them, and did not deliver his defence to them, and the co-defendants moved to strike out the paragraphs containing these allegations as embarrassing, the court being of opinion that the questions raised by the defence were material questions to be determined at the trial of the action, and the defendant being unwilling to raise them against his co-defendants, leave was given to the latter to serve a notice on the other defendant under Ord. XVI. r. 17, for the purpose of raising the questions as between him and them. Steel v. Dixon, 42 L. T. 765 ; 28 W. R. 796.

The plaintiffs had purchased property from the defendant for 14,000*l.*, and they claimed in this action to have 2,000*l.* part returned to them. The defendant was being sued in the exchequer division by persons who claimed the same 2,000*l.* as commission moneys. The court refused to make an order that the plaintiffs in the exchequer division should be served with a third-party notice, or made defendants to this action under Ord. XVI. r. 17. Associated Home Co. v. Whichcord, 47 L. J., Ch. 652 ; 8 Ch. D. 457 ; 38 L. T. 602 ; 26 W. R. 774.

Actions having been brought by the owner in fee of two adjoining pieces of land against the respective sub-lessees in possession in respect of waste committed by the digging of sand contrary to the terms of the superior leases, the defendants obtained orders ex parte to serve Miss N., the intermediate lessee, with third-party notices under Ord. XVI. r. 18. The orders were obtained on an affidavit that the defendants claimed indemnity against the intermediate lessee under the covenants for quiet enjoyment contained in the sub-leases. These covenants were restricted in the ordinary way to disturbance by the original lessee and those claiming under her. The plaintiff applied to discharge the orders, and the defendants for directions as to the mode of trial. Subsequently to the plaintiff's notice of motion in each action, affidavits were filed by each defendant setting out a claim to be indemnified by Miss N. on the ground (1) that she had represented to him that he would have the right to dig out sand for the purpose of building on the land ; and (2) that the sub-leases contained clauses which amounted in each case to an implied covenant or warranty that such digging was lawful. The defendants in each action admitted that they had dug out and sold certain sand beyond what was necessary for building, and they brought the amounts received in respect thereof into court. The lease containing the restrictive covenant had determined since the acts complained of, so that damages only could be granted in respect of them :—Held, that the case against Miss N. was neither a sufficiently good primâ facie case, nor were the issues in it to a sufficient extent identical with the issues between the plaintiff and the defendants for the order bringing in Miss N. to be sustained. Corrie v. Allen, 48 L. T. 464—C. A.

When the plaintiff and defendant allege that a suit is occasioned by the conduct of a third party, the court will give leave that he may be served with notice of the suit, so as to enable the court to grant relief against him. Trelearen v. Bray, 45 L. J., Ch. 113 ; 1 Ch. D. 176 ; 33 L. T. 827 ; 24 W. R. 198—C. A.

Service of a notice by a defendant on a third party is only for the purpose of binding the third party by the judgment in the action, as between the plaintiff and defendant. In order to obtain relief against the third party, the defendant must bring an independent action against him. Ib.

A purchaser filed a bill for specific performance. The defendant, by his answer, stated that he was desirous of completing the contract, but that he was only equitable owner, the legal estate being outstanding in a trustee for him, who refused to join in conveying to the plaintiff. The defendant moved ex parte for leave to serve the trustee with a notice stating the nature of the suit, and that he claimed indemnity against the trustee, and also to compel him to join in the conveyance :—Held, that with the consent of the plaintiff, leave might be given to serve the notice. But that the defendant could not set up a counter-claim against the trustee. Ib.

—— Joint Tortfeasors.]—In an action for tort for injury sustained by the plaintiff through the defendants' negligence, the defendants obtained an order under Ord. XVI. r. 17, that third parties who, it was alleged, through their negligence, had caused the injury should be added as defendants:—Held, that the defendants were not entitled to have such third persons made parties to the action. Horwell v. London Omnibus Co., 46 L. J., Ex. 700 ; 2 Ex. D. 365 ; 36 L. T. 637 ; 25 W. R. 610—C. A.

In an action of tort, for injury sustained and damages suffered by the plaintiffs through the defendants' negligence, the defendants obtained on an ex parte application liberty to issue a notice under Ord. XV. r. 18, claiming to be entitled to contribution, or indemnity, or relief over against the corporation of Dublin, who, as the defendants alleged, caused an accident:—Held, upon motion by the corporation to rescind the ex parte order, that the defendants were not entitled to bind the corporation by such notice, and that the order should be set aside. Rice v. Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Co., 12 L. R. Ir. 172.

—— Collision—Tug and Tow.]—Where in an action for damage by collision the defendants had by notice brought in the owner of a tug towing the defendant's ship, and sought to make the tug liable for improper navigation and disobedience to orders, and the defendants applied for directions as to the mode of having the questions in the action determined, the court declined to give directions, and dismissed the third party from the action upon the ground that questions between the defendants and the third party, totally different from those between the plaintiffs and the defendants, might arise in the case, and would be embarrassing to the plaintiffs. The Bianca, 52 L. J., P. 56; 8 P. D. 91; 48 L. T. 440; 31 W. R. 954; 5 Asp. M. C. 60.

A collision took place between the ship S. and the C., which was being towed by a tug. The owners of the S. brought an action against the owners of the C., alleging the collision to have been occasioned by the negligence of the C. and her tug, or one of them. The owners of the C. obtained leave to serve notice on the owner of the tug that they claimed to be entitled to indemnity, and the court made an order that the owner of the tug should be at liberty to appear and defend, "being bound as between him and the defendants by any decision the court may come to in this action as to the cause of collision." At the hearing the owner of the tug appeared, but the defendants did not, and the judge of the admiralty court pronounced that the collision was occasioned by the default of the master and crew of the C., and condemned the owners in damages and costs, and declared that they were not entitled to indemnity from the owner of the tug:—Held, on appeal, that the order giving the owner of the tug liberty to appear and defend did not put matters in train for trying any issue between him and the defendants, and that so much of the judgment as negatived the right to indemnity from the owner of the tug must be struck out. The Curtsburn, 5 P. D. 59; 41 L. T. 711; 28 W. R. 378—C. A. Reversing 49 L. J., P. 14.

b. PRACTICE.

Matter of Discretion.]—The exercise of the power of allowing a defendant to issue a notice to a third party under Rules of Supreme Court, 1875, Ord. XVI. r. 18, is a matter of discretion; and where the court sees that the introduction of a third party will tend to prejudice and cause additional expense to the plaintiff, leave to issue the notice will not be given. Associated Home Co. v. Whichcord, 47 L. J., Ch. 652; 8 Ch. D. 457; 38 L. T. 602; 26 W. R. 774.

—— Trial in same Action—Difficult Question.]—Third-party procedure should be applied only when all the disputes between the plaintiff and defendant and between the defendant and the third party can be tried in the same action. When the question of contribution or indemnity is difficult and complicated, involving the construction of a section of an act of parliament, the judge at chambers is justified in refusing upon that ground to give directions, and in thereby dismissing the third party from the action. Baxter v. France, 64 L. J., Q. B. 337; [1895] 1 Q. B. 591; 14 R. 265; 72 L. T. 183; 43 W. R. 341—C. A.

Merits—Validity of Claim.]—On the application for leave, the court will not go into any question as to the merits of the action or the validity of the claim for indemnity. Edison Electric Light Co. v. Holland, 56 L. J., Ch. 124; 33 Ch. D. 497; 55 L. T. 587; 35 W. R. 178.

In giving leave to a defendant to serve notice of a claim for contribution or indemnity on a third party, the court will not consider whether the claim is a valid one, but only whether the claim is bonâ fide, and whether, if established, it will result in contribution or indemnity. Carshore v. N. E. Ry., 54 L. J., Ch. 760; 29 Ch. D. 344; 52 L. T. 232; 33 W. R. 420—C. A.

Plaintiff not to be Embarrassed.]—An action was brought against a railway company to compel them to re-transfer stock which the plaintiffs alleged to have been transferred out of their names by means of forged transfer deeds. The transferees were not made parties, but the company, under Ord. XVI. r. 48, served them with third-party notices, claiming indemnity. The company, in their defence, set up all the grounds of defence that could be relied on against the plaintiff's claim. Some of the third parties desired to defend, and liberty was given to them to appear at the trial and take such part as the judge should direct. Two of them appealed from this order, asking that they might be at liberty to deliver a defence, appear at the trial, and put in evidence, and cross-examine the plaintiff's witnesses:—Held, that the third parties were not, under the old practice, necessary parties to the action, and that as the company had raised all proper grounds of defence, and was bonâ fide defending the action, the order gave the third parties all reasonable protection, and that the appeal must be dismissed, for that while, on the one hand, the court ought to take care that the third parties had full opportunity of seeing that the questions in the cause were fairly tried, it ought, on the other hand, to take care that the plaintiffs were not embarrassed and put to expense by unnecessarily allowing persons, who were not necessary parties to the action, to take all the same steps as if they had been made defendants. Barton v. L. & N. W. Ry., 57 L. J., Ch. 676; 38 Ch. D. 144; 59 L. T. 122; 36 W. R. 452—C. A.

In an action by a company against its directors and others, seeking to make the defendant personally liable in respect of certain dividends alleged to have been improperly paid out of capital, the defendants applied under Ord. XVI. r. 18, for leave to serve third-party notices on all the shareholders of the company, 450 in number, on the ground that if they, the defendants, were held liable, they would have a right over against the shareholders to recover from them the sums received by them by way of dividend:—Held, that the granting of the leave asked for would materially embarrass the plaintiffs in the conduct of their action, and that, therefore, the court, in the exercise of its discretion, ought to refuse the application. Wye Valley Ry. v. Hawes

50 L. J., Ch. 225 ; 16 Ch. D. 489 ; 43 L. T. 715 ; 29 W. R. 177—C. A. See also Associated Home Co. v. Whichcord, supra.

The court has power to order a notice to be served upon a third person, if there is one question common to all the parties, though the whole question to be tried between the plaintiff and the defendant is not the same as that which would arise between the defendant and the third person. But the exercise of the power is discretionary, and if the introduction of the third person will tend to prejudice or delay the plaintiff, leave will not be given to serve the notice. Bower v. Hartley, 46 L. J., Q. B. 126 ; 1 Q. B. D. 652 ; 24 W. R. 941—C. A. See Swansea Shipping Co. v. Duncan, 45 L. J., Q. B. 638 ; 1 Q. B. D. 644 ; 35 L. T. 879 ; 25 W. R. 233—C. Service of Notice out of the Jurisdiction.]—Where, in an action for a breach within the jurisdiction of a contract which, according to the terms thereof, ought to be performed within the jurisdiction, the defendant claims to be entitled to an indemnity from a third party, the court may allow service out of the jurisdiction of a notice of such claim, unless the third party is domiciled or ordinarily resident in Scotland or Ireland. Dubout v. Macpherson, 58 L. J., Q. B. 496 ; 23 Q. B. D. 340 ; 61 L. T. 689 ; 38 W. R. 62.

By Ord. XI. r. 1, service out of the jurisdiction of a . . . notice of a writ of summons may be allowed by the court or a judge whenever . . . (g) any person out of the jurisdiction is a necessary or proper party to an action properly brought against some other person duly served within the jurisdiction :—Held, that Ord. XI. r. 1 (g), does not apply to service out of the jurisdiction of a third-party notice on a third party domiciled or ordinarily resident in Scotland. Speller v. Bristol Steam Navigation Co., 53 L. J., Q. B. 322 ; 13 Q. B. D. 96 ; 50 L. T. 419 ; 32 W. R. 670 ; 5 Asp. M. C. 228—C. A.

Ord. XI. rr. 2, 4, as to service of writs, &c., out of the jurisdiction, applies to service of notices on third persons under Ord. XVI. rr. 17, 18 ; and service of the notice on the company in Scotland was therefore good. Swansea Shipping Co. v. Duncan, 45 L. J., Q. B. 638 ; 1 Q. B. D. 644 ; 35 L. T. 879 ; 25 W. R. 233—C. A.

A defendant may not serve a third party out of the jurisdiction with a counter-claim, although he may, if necessary, commence a fresh action against him. Potters v. Miller, 31 W. R. 858.

The court refused leave to serve the notice on a foreign company not carrying on business in the United Kingdom, against whom the defendant claimed indemnity. Bank of Ireland v. Forbes, 6 L. R., Ir. 19.

Notice to Co-defendant.]—Under r. 55 of Ord. XVI., a defendant need not obtain the leave of the court or a judge before issuing to a co-defendant a notice claiming contribution or indemnity from him. Towse v. Loveridge, 53 L. J., Ch. 499 ; 25 Ch. D. 76 ; 49 L. T. 466 ; 32 W. R. 151.

A third party may be introduced into an action by adding him as a defendant, under Ord. XXII. r. 5, under the same circumstances in which a third-party notice might have been given to him under Ord. XVI. r. 17. And the term "notice" in the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 24, sub-s. 3, includes notice to a defendant by including him in a counter-claim. Dear v. Sworder, 46 L. J., Ch. 100 ; 4 Ch. D. 476 ; 25 W. R. 124.

In an action by A. against his trustees, B. and C., to make them jointly and severally liable for the loss occasioned by an investment on insufficient security, in breach of trust, of the trust fund, B., in his statement of defence and counter-claim, claimed contribution from C., as the trustee primarily liable for the alleged breach of trust, if established. The defence was delivered to C., but there was no order that that should be sufficient notice. A decree for an account and payment having been made against B. and C. :—Held, on further consideration, that C. had sufficient notice within Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XVI. r. 17, of B.'s claim for indemnity ; and that B. was entitled to an inquiry how and in what proportions, as between B. and C., the sums ordered to be paid to A. should be borne and paid. Butler v. Butler, 49 L. J., Ch. 742 ; 14 Ch. D. 329 ; 42 L. T. 728 ; 28 W. R. 825.

One defendant, by his statement of defence, made certain allegations affecting the rights of his co-defendants. The latter purchased a copy of the defence, which was not delivered to them in any other way :—Held, that the purchase of the statement of defence did not affect the co-defendants with notice, under Ord. XVI. r. 17. Steel v. Dixon, 42 L. T. 765 ; 28 W. R. 796.

Questions between co-defendants may be raised by a pleading which states both a defence as against the plaintiff and a claim against a co-defendant ; but such pleading is not a counter-claim under the Judicature Act, Ord. XXI. r. 5, and should not be so intituled. Delivery of such pleading to the co-defendant is sufficient notice under Ord. XVI. r. 17. Furness v. Booth, 46 L. J., Ch. 112 ; 4 Ch. D. 586 ; 25 W. R. 267.

Plaintiff jointly with defendant B. entered into a contract with defendant E. to work a trading adventure on lands belonging to E. Plaintiff by his claim alleged that E. had obtained the contract from him and defendant B. by misrepresentation, and asked for rescission, and in the alternative for dissolution. Defendant B. delivered a pleading, which was at the same time his defence in the action, a reply to a counter-claim by E., and a new claim as in an action against E. :—Held, that he was entitled to prosecute in this action his claim against E. ; and that delivery to the defendant E. of the said pleading should be notice, under the statute, of the claim of defendant B. against him. Bagot v. Easton, 11 Ch. D. 392 ; 27 W. R. 404.

Leave to Third Party to serve Notice on Fourth.]—Leave was given to third party under Ord. XVI. r. 18, to serve notice on a fourth party. Witham v. Vane, 49 L. J., Ch. 242 ; 41 L. T. 729 ; 28 W. R. 276.

In an action by a shipower against the consignee of goods under a bill of lading to recover damages for delay in unloading, the defendant obtained an order to bring in a third party, viz., the London Banking Association, who had bought the cargo afloat. The court gave leave to the Banking Association to give notice to and bring in a fourth party to whom they had resold the cargo afloat. Fowler v. Knoop, 36 L. T. 219.

Order—How Obtained.]—An application by the defendant in an action for leave to serve a third-party notice under Ord. XVI. r. 18, ought to be made on notice to the plaintiff, and not ex parte. Wye Valley Ry. v. Hawes, 50 L. J., Ch. 225; 16 Ch. D. 489; 43 L. T. 715; 29 W. R. 177—C. A. See now Ord. XVI. r. 48.

Time for making Application.]—After his defence had been delivered, the pleadings closed and the action set down for trial, a defendant took out a summons for leave to issue a notice to a third party:—Held, that the application was made too late, and must, therefore, be refused. Associated Home Co. v. Whicheord, 47 L. J., Ch. 652; 8 Ch. D. 457; 38 L. T. 602; 26 W. R. 774.

An application for a defendant for leave to issue a third-party notice under r. 58 of Ord. XVI. of the Rules of Court, 1883, should be made promptly; the time contemplated by the order as that within which the application is to be made being, as a general rule, within the time limited for delivering the defence, and at the latest before the pleadings are closed. Birmingham Land Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry., 56 L. T. 702.

Semble, the application should not as a rule be made before defence delivered. Gilson, In re, Gilson v. Gilson, 63 L. J., Ch. 555; [1894] 2 Ch. 92; 8 R. 382; 70 L. T. 728; 42 W. R. 425.

Summons for Directions.]—No questions can be determined between a defendant and a third party brought into the action by the defendant, unless an order be obtained under Ord. XVI. r. 17, giving directions that such questions shall be determined. Piller v. Roberts, 21 Ch. D. 198; 46 L. T. 527; 30 W. R. 595.

Where a defendant serves a co-defendant with a third-party notice, but omits to take out a summons for directions under Ord. XVI. r. 52, he will not be entitled to any relief as against him. Tritton v. Bankart, 56 L. J., Ch. 629; 56 L. T. 306; 35 W. R. 474.

—— Refusal to give Directions.]—Where a third-party notice has been issued and a summons taken out for directions as to the mode of trial, if the judge refuses to give directions, he thereby dismisses the third party from the action. Baxter v. France, 64 L. J., Q. B. 337; [1895] 1 Q. B. 591; 14 R. 265; 72 L. T. 183; 43 W. R. 341—C. A.

In an action against the defendants for non-delivery of certain iron rods of the quality contracted for, the defendants proceeded to bring in H., a foreigner, as a third party, under Ord. XVI. r. 18, on the ground that they had contracted with him in respect of the iron rods so supplied, and upon the same terms. It was not denied that the clause as to quality was the same as between the plaintiff and the defendants on the one hand, and the defendants and H. on the other. The plaintiff, however, relied upon certain admissions made by the defendants as regards the subject-matter of the contract, which shewed that the action was, as between the plaintiff and the defendants, an undefended one. It further appeared that the case had already been set down for trial, and would be reached in a day or two. Upon application made by the defendants, under Ord. XVI. r. 21, to give directions as to the mode of trial:—Held, that the court had power to consider whether the case was one in which a third party ought to be allowed to come in, and ought to refuse the application where the effect of such third party being introduced would be to embarrass and delay the plaintiff. Schneider v. Batt, 50 L. J., Q. B. 389; 45 L. T. 371—C. A.

In an action against the defendants for breach of contract, they served P., as third party, with a notice under r. 18 of Ord. XVI. The defendants then applied to the court to give directions as to mode of trial; but the court held that the matters could not all be decided at one trial, and declined to give any directions. Pleadings having been, by direction of the queen's bench division, delivered between the defendants and the third party, the defendants then gave the third party notice of trial, the action between the plaintiff and the defendants having been already tried:—Held, that as the court had decided that all the questions could not be determined in one trial, the third party ought to be dismissed from the action, and that the notice of trial should, therefore, be set aside. Schneider v. Batt, 50 L. J., Q. B. 525; 8 Q. B. D. 701; 45 L. T. 371; 30 W. R. 420—C. A.

—— Indemnity claimed against Co-defendant.]—Where a defendant in an action issues a third-party notice against a co-defendant, the proper time for raising the question as to his liability to contribution or indemnity is on the application for directions under Ord. XVI. r. 52. The third-party notice being in such cases issued without leave, there is no order of the court against which an appeal or a motion to set it aside can be brought, and the judge, on the application for directions, must consider whether there is a question to be tried as to the liability to contribution or indemnity. Baxter v. France, 64 L. J., Q. B. 335; [1895] 1 Q. B. 455; 14 R. 212; 72 L. T. 146; 43 W. R. 227—C. A.

—— Judgment on Application.]—Under Ord. XVI. r. 52, judgment against a third party who has appeared pursuant to a third-party notice, but, at the hearing of an application by the defendant for directions, declines to state any defence, may be ordered, if the judge is not satisfied that there is any question proper to be tried as to the liability of the third party. The rule is consistent with the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 24, sub-s. 3, and the Judicature Act, 1875, s. 24, and is not ultra vires. Such judgment under the rule may, since the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, be ordered against a married woman, third party, as a feme sole, declaring her separate estate chargeable even in respect of a liability created before that act. Gloucestershire Banking Co. v. Phillips, 53 L. J., Q. B. 493; 12 Q. B. D. 533; 50 L. T. 360; 32 W. R. 522.

A defendant who is entitled to an indemnity from a co-defendant upon a special agreement is entitled to sign judgment against his co-defendant for the amount of his (the defendant's) liability before he has actually paid anything in discharge of it. English and Scottish Trust Co. v. Flatau, 36 W. R. 238.

Setting aside Notice.] — If the third party objects, it is unnecessary for him to serve notice to be dismissed, as the court has power to dismiss him on the hearing of the application for directions. Greville v. Hayes, [1894] 2 Ir. R. 20.

Orders to bring in third parties, made on ex parte applications, are in the nature of conditional orders obtained at the peril of the party applying, and can be set aside upon motion by the third party. Rice v. Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Co., 12 L. R., Ir. 172.

A co-defendant served with a third-party notice may move to set aside the service. Towse v. Loveridge, 53 L. J., Ch. 499; 25 Ch. D. 76; 49 L. T. 466; 32 W. R. 151.

Liberty to appear at Trial or Defend Action.]—Where, in an action for damages in respect of alleged injury to the plaintiff's premises, the defendant, claiming to be entitled to indemnity over against a person not a party to the action, had served such person with a third-party notice under Ord. XVI. r. 48, and he had appeared thereto, the court, upon a summons for directions taken out by the defendant, gave the third party, who did not admit his liability, liberty to appear at the trial of the action and take such part as the judge should direct, and be bound by the result, and ordered the question of his liability to indemnify the defendant to be tried at the trial of the action, but subsequent thereto. In case a third party served with notice appears and admits his liability to indemnify, the court will give him leave to defend the action. Coles v. Civil Service Supply Association, 53 L. J., Ch. 638; 26 Ch. D. 529; 50 L. T. 114; 32 W. R. 407.

A lessor sued the assignee of the lease for breach of the covenant to repair; the executors of the original lessee were subsequently made parties, and served a third-party notice on a person who had been in possession of the premises, under an agreement for sale from the lessee, claiming indemnity from him, and an order was made giving him leave to appear and oppose the plaintiff's claim so far as he might be affected thereby. The third party then admitted his liability to indemnify the executors and offered to pay a sum of money into court and applied for leave to defend the action on the ground that the defence put in by the lessee's executors did not raise the chief grounds on which the third party could rely:—Held, that leave to defend ought not to be granted. Barton v. L. & N. W. Ry. (38 Ch. D. 147) followed. Byrne v. Brown, 37 W. R. 592.

An action was brought for specific performance of a contract. The defendant pleaded that he was not liable on the ground that he signed the contract as agent for another person. The defendant served a third-party notice on the other person who appeared and took no further proceedings. The defendant obtained an order that the question as to the liability of the third party should be tried as soon as might be after the trial of the action:—Held, that the third party might appear by counsel and have the question tried immediately after the trial of the action, without having obtained directions as to pleading or otherwise; and that if the defendant wished for such directions he should have taken steps to have them given. Blore v. Ashby, 58 L. J., Ch. 779; 42 Ch. D. 682; 61 L. T. 766; 38 W. R. 141.

To a claim by the plaintiff for not accepting 183 chests of shellac according to contract, the defendants raised the defence that the shellac was not of the quality contracted for. The defendants had contracted with Messrs. R. and Messrs. T. respectively, for the sale to them of 50 chests, on the same terms as their contract with the plaintiff, and the defendants cited Messrs. R. and T. under Ord. XVI. r. 18. Messrs. R. consented to be bound by the judgment in the action as to the quality of the shellac:—Held, that Messrs. R. and T. had been properly cited; and the court directed that Messrs. T. should be at liberty to appear and defend the action so far as regarded the question of the quality of the shellac, and that they should be bound by the finding of the jury on that question. Benecke v. Frost, 45 L. J., Q. B. 693; 1 Q. B. D. 419; 34 L. T. 728; 24 W. R. 669.

In an action on a bill of exchange accepted by the defendant in part payment of a ship sold to him by the plaintiff, the defendant pleaded that he bought the ship on behalf of and for a company; that the ship was afterwards transferred to them; and that the defendant was induced to make such purchase and to accept the bill by the fraudulent misrepresentation and concealment of the plaintiff with reference to the sale of the ship; and he set up by way of counter-claim, a claim against the plaintiff for damages for the misrepresentation and concealment. The company having been served by the defendant with notice under Ord. XVI. r. 18, was allowed to defend the action, though not to plead any fresh defence, but only to support the existing counter-claim jointly with the defendant by the same solicitor and counsel, and to be jointly liable with the defendant for the costs of the action, and to be entitled to only one set of costs with the defendant as against the plaintiff. Norris v. Beazley, 46 L. J., C. P. 515; 36 L. T. 409.

What Defences open to Third Party.]—A third party served with notice under Ord. XVI. r. 18, was allowed to put in a defence to the plaintiff's statement of claim, limited to points not raised by the defence of the defendants. Witham v. Vane, 49 L. J., Ch. 242; 41 L. T. 729; 28 W. R. 276.

When a third party has been given leave to defend under Ord. XVI. r. 53, he is at liberty to raise any defences which the defendant might have raised against the plaintiff's claim, although the defendant may, by admission or otherwise, have debarred himself from raising any particular defence. Callender v. Wallingford, 53 L. J., Q. B. 569; 32 W. R. 491.

Judgment against Third Parties.] — Defendants to an infringement action served a third-party notice for indemnity upon the B. company, who were not parties to the action. The B. company appeared as third parties in the action, and admitted their liability to the defendants; and the court ordered that they should have liberty to appear at the trial, and should be bound by the decision of the court on any question as to the indemnity arising between them and the defendants, but not otherwise. The B. company were not made defendants, and filed no pleadings, but they appeared at the trial as third parties, and the court gave judgment partly in favour of the plaintiffs and partly in favour of the defendants; but made no special order as to the third parties. The plaintiffs appealed, and after judgment had been given allowing their appeal, with costs against the defendants, the plaintiffs asked for an injunction and costs against the third parties (who had appeared on the appeal), and, if necessary, for an order to amend so as to make them defendants:—Held, by Cotton, L.J., that the court had no jurisdiction to give a judgment against these third parties as if they were defendants, and that it would be wrong after judgment on appeal to grant liberty to amend so as to enable the court to give relief against the third parties which was not asked for at the trial; by Lindley, L.J., that the court had jurisdiction to grant the liberty to amend applied for, but that it should not be exercised in the present case. Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland, infra.

Counter-claim by Third Party.]—The court has no power to give a third party, who has been served with notice by a defendant under Ord. XVI. r. 48, leave to file a counter-claim against the original plaintiff. Eden v. Weardale Iron and Coal Co., 54 L. J., Ch. 384; 28 Ch. D. 333; 51 L. T. 726; 33 W. R. 241—C. A.

A third party brought in as defendant to a counter-claim cannot counter-claim in the action. Street v. Gover (46 L. J., Q. B. 582; 2 Q. B. D. 498) followed. Alcoy and Gandia Ry. v. Greenhill, 65 L. J., Ch. 99; [1896] 1 Ch. 19; 73 L. T. 452; 44 W. R. 117—C. A.

Discovery—Third Party to Plaintiff.]—Persons who are served by a defendant with a third-party notice are not thereby made defendants within the definition of the word in the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 100, nor do they become defendants by putting in a defence. But where persons had been served with a third-party notice by the defendant for the purpose of claiming an indemnity, and had obtained an order (1) that the question of indemnity should be tried after the trial of the action; and (2) that they should be at liberty to appear at the trial of the action and oppose the plaintiff's claim so far as they were affected thereby, and for that purpose to put in evidence and cross-examine witnesses:—Held, that the third parties had been placed by the order in the position of defendants, and had a right to examine the plaintiff by interrogatories under Ord. XXXI. r. 1. Eden v. Weardale Iron and Coal Co., 56 L. J., Ch. 400; 35 Ch. D. 287; 56 L. T. 464; 35 W. R. 507—C. A.

—— By Plaintiff to Third Party.]—Persons who had been served by a defendant with a third-party notice for the purpose of claiming indemnity, obtained an order (1) that the question of indemnity should be tried after the trial of the action; and (2) that they should be at liberty to appear at the trial of the action, and oppose the plaintiff's claim so far as they were affected thereby, and for that purpose to put in evidence and cross-examine witnesses:—Held, that the third parties had put themselves in the position of "opposite parties" to the plaintiff; and the plaintiff had a right to examine them by interrogatories. MacAllister v. Rochester (Bishop) (5 C. P. D. 194) followed. Eden v. Weardale Iron and Coal Co., 56 L. J., Ch. 178; 34 Ch. D. 223; 55 L. T. 860; 35 W. R. 235—C. A.

When third parties have appeared under Ord. XVI. r. 20, and have been given liberty to defend under r. 21, the plaintiff has the right to obtain discovery from them. MacAllister v. Rochester (Bishop), 5 C. P. D. 194; 42 L. T. 481.

Costs.]—As between the plaintiff and the defendant the court held that the defendant was liable, but that the defendant was to be indemnified by the third party, and the latter was ordered to pay the costs of the third-party proceedings between him and the defendant; but the defendant having set up a defence which failed, must pay the costs of the action. Blore v. Ashby, 58 L. J., Ch. 779; 42 Ch. D. 682; 61 L. T. 766; 38 W. R. 141.

Where liberty is given to a third party to appear and defend the action, the question of costs is usually reserved until after the trial. Benecke v. Frost, 45 L. J., Q. B. 693; 1 Q. B. D. 419; 34 L. T. 728; 24 W. R. 669.

—— Defendant ordered to Pay Costs of Third Party.]—There is power to order a defendant to pay costs to a third party who appears in consequence of being served by the defendant with a notice under Ord. XVI. r. 18. Yorkshire Waggon Co. v. Newport Coal Co. (infra) explained. Dawson v. Shepherd, 49 L. J., Ex. 529; 42 L. T. 611; 28 W. R. 805—C. A.

There is no jurisdiction under the provisions of Ord. XVI. r. 21, to impose any terms with regard to the payment of the costs of a party brought in by notice under r. 18 upon the party bringing him in. Yorkshire Waggon Co. v. Newport Coal Co., 49 L. J., Q. B. 527; 5 Q. B. D. 268; 42 L. T. 367; 28 W. R. 505. But see preceding case.

—— Plaintiff ordered to Pay Costs of Third and Fourth Parties.]—D. covenanted by deed that he and his heirs or assigns would pay S. a royalty on coals, which should be got from land purchased from S., and which should be shipped for sale. D. did not execute the deed. In an action on the covenant, D.'s representative brought in his assigns as third parties, and they brought in fourth parties:—Held, that there was no jurisdiction to throw the costs of the third and fourth parties on the plaintiffs. Witham v. Vane, 32 W. R. 617—H. L. (E.) Affirming 44 L. T. 718—C. A.

A third party, who was under a contract to indemnify the defendant, obtained leave to appear at the trial, and appeared accordingly, and succeeded in his object of reducing the damages to a sum already paid into court by the defendant:—Held, that he was not entitled to costs against the plaintiff. Williams v. S. E. Ry., 26 W. R. 352.

The court has complete jurisdiction over the costs of a third party brought in under Ord. XV. r. 18; and even where the order, giving directions as to the mode in which the questions are to be tried, reserves all questions between the defendant and the third party, including the question of costs, the court may order the plaintiff to pay the costs of the third party. Hanbury v. Upper Inny Drainage Board, 12 L. R. Ir. 217.

—— Third Party ordered to Pay Plaintiff's Costs.]—The high court has jurisdiction to order a third party to pay to an unsuccessful defendant the costs payable by such defendant to the plaintiff. The plaintiff let to the defendant a house for twenty-one years, with option to determine the lease at the end of seven or fourteen, by deed containing covenants by the defendant to repair and paint and leave in repair. The defendant, after having occupied for five years, sub-let the house to H. for the remainder of the first seven years by a writing with a clause, that "the letting should be subject in all respects to the terms of the existing lease and the covenants and stipulations contained therein." At the end of the seven years, the defendant having determined the lease in the exercise of his option, the plaintiff claimed from the defendant, and the defendant claimed from H., the amount at which dilapidations had been assessed by the plaintiff's surveyor. H. declined to pay or to give the defendant an indemnity, or to take any responsibility in the matter. The plaintiff sued the defendant, who brought in H. as a third party. The issues, as between the plaintiff and the defendant, and the defendant and H., were referred separately to an official referee, who reported that the sum claimed by the plaintiff was due from the defendant to the plaintiff, and that a similar sum was due from H. to the defendant. A divisional court (Lord Coleridge, C.J., and Field, J.), on adopting the second report, ordered H. to pay all costs as between the plaintiff and the defendant:—Held, by the court of appeal (Jessel, M.R., Brett and Cotton, L.JJ.), that these were costs within the discretion of the high court, and therefore that this order was not appealable. Hornby v. Cardwell, 51 L. J., Q. B. 89; 8 Q. B. D. 329; 45 L. T. 781; 30 W. R. 263—C. A.

The court has power under Ord. XVI. r. 21, to order the third party brought into the action to pay to the plaintiff the costs occasioned by his defence. Piller v. Roberts, 21 Ch. D. 198; 46 L. T. 527; 30 W. R. 595.

Under Ord. XVI. r. 54, the court has jurisdiction to order third parties to pay the costs both of an appeal and the costs below. Where third parties have in reality fought the plaintiffs and failed, an order for the payment of such costs must be made against them as well as against the defendants. Edison & Swan United Electric Light Co. v. Holland, 58 L. J., Ch. 524; 41 Ch. D. 28; 61 L. T. 32; 37 W. R. 699—C. A.

Service of Notice of Appeal on Third Party.]—An action was brought against a trustee to compel him to make good a loss occasioned by an improper investment. The trustee claimed to be indemnified by a third party whom he served with a third-party notice. At the trial the defendant was held not liable, and the plaintiff appealed, but did not serve the third party with notice of the appeal:—Held, that the third party was not a party directly affected by the appeal within Ord. LVIII. r. 2, and therefore it was not the duty of the plaintiff to serve the third party with notice of the appeal, but that the defendant ought before the hearing of the appeal to have applied to the court of appeal for leave to serve the third party with notice. Salmon, In re, Priest v. Uppleby, 42 Ch. D. 351; 61 L. T. 146; 38 W. R. 150—C. A.

Tender.]—A defence of tender of the sum paid in cannot be pleaded to a claim for unliquidated damages. Davys v. Richardson, 57 L. J., Q. B. 409; 21 Q. B. D. 202; 59 L. T. 765; 36 W. R. 728—C. A.

Tender of payment of damages by way of defence to an action in a county court cannot be made after the question of liability has already been determined by judgment. The Recepta, Gordon v. Francis, 62 L. J., P. 118; [1893] P. 255; 1 R. 644; 69 L. T. 252; 41 W. R. 561; 42 W. R. 73—C. A.

Counter-claim.]—Money may be paid into court by a plaintiff who is defendant to a counter-claim, in respect of the counter-claim, notwithstanding Form No. 10 of the Supreme Court Funds Rules, 1886. Hutchinson v. Barker, 13 R. 371; 71 L. T. 625.

Bonds.]—Principal and interest due on bonds conditioned for payment of moneys by instalments, may be paid into court. Bonafous v. Rybot, 3 Burr. 1370.

A plaintiff having declared on a bond, dated in 1775, for 2,400*l.* proclamation money of North Carolina, averring that it was of a certain value, the court would not permit the defendant to pay the 2,400*l.* proclamation money into court. Cuming v. Monro, 5 Term Rep. 87.

The whole penalty of a bastardy bond may be paid into court. Benjamin v. Perrot, 2 W. Bl. 1190.

Payment into court under 4 & 5 Anne, c. 16, s. 13, of the principal, interest and costs due on a bond, cannot be pleaded in bar to an action on the bond. England v. Watson, 9 M. & W. 333; 1 D. (N.S.) 398; 6 Jur. 763.

In a declaration on a bond conditioned for the nonpayment of a certain sum at the expiration of seven years, and interest half-yearly in the intermediate time, which was the breach assigned (the principal not having become due), the defendant cannot plead payment of money into court under 8 & 9 Will. 3, c. 11, s. 8, and 4 & 5 Anne, c. 16, s. 13, but he may, under the latter statute, plead, as far as regards the interest alone, a plea of solvit post diem. Hodgkinson v. Wyatt, 1 D. & L. 668; 13 L. J., Q. B. 73; 8 Jur. 216.

The 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 71, did not enable a defendant to pay money into court in answer to an action for the penalty of a bond, with breaches assigned in the declaration. London (Bishop) v. M'Neil, 9 Ex. 490; 2 C. L. R. 561; 23 L. J., Ex. 111; 18 Jur. 314; 2 W. R. 232.

In an action on a bond conditioned for the payment of money instalments, a plea of payment into court of money sufficient to satisfy the claim of the plaintiff, in respect of the unpaid instalment for default in payment of which the action was brought, is bad, on the ground that a money bond payable by instalments is not within either the 4 & 5 Anne, c. 16, s. 13, or the Common Law Procedure Act, 1860 (23 & 24 Vict. c. 126), s. 25. Preston v. Dania, 42 L. J., Ex. 33; L. R. 8 Ex. 19; 27 L. T. 612; 21 W. R. 128.

b. Pleadings.

Subsequent Defence denying Liability—Joinder of Issue.]—In an action by the holder of a bill of lading for short delivery the defendants paid money into court, and served on the plaintiff a notice stating that the money paid in was enough to satisfy the plaintiff's claim. A month later they delivered a defence denying liability, on which the plaintiff joined issue:—Held, that the defence and the joinder of issue ought to be struck out, and that the only question for the court was as to the amount of damages. Dumbelton v. Williams, 76 L. T. 81—C. A.

Defence need not specify Items.]—Where a plaintiff claims for distinct pieces of work and labour, alleged in separate paragraphs of the statement of claim, a defendant who has paid money into court generally need not specify in his defence how much is paid in respect of each head of claim. Paraire v. Loibl, 49 L. J., C. P. 481; 43 L. T. 427—C. A.

But where the defendants in an action for libel admitted part of the innuendo and denied the other, and added a plea under Lord Campbell's Act, with a payment into court generally:—Held, that the defence ought to state to what part of the libel the payment was intended to apply. Mackay v. Manchester Press Co., 54 J. P. 22.

Particulars of Items.]—The court has a discretion to order a defendant to give particulars of the items of claim in respect of which he pays money into court, but it can only make such an order when the trial of the action will be facilitated and neither party embarrassed by it. Orient Steam Navigation Co. v. Ocean Marine Insurance Co., 34 W. R. 442.

An action was brought by the plaintiff as lessor, against the defendants, as lessees, of certain premises for—(1) possession; (2) mesne profits; (3) damages for dilapidations and non-repair. The defence was a general denial of all liability, and a payment of 30*l.* into court, as sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim in the action. A judge at chambers having made an order that the defendants should give to the plaintiff particulars in writing, stating in respect of which of the two heads of claim (mesne profits and damages for dilapidations) the payment into court was made, and if in respect of both, how much for each head:—Held, that the order was right, as the defendants ought to give the particulars asked for, apportioning the sum paid into the different heads of claim. Rowe v. Kelly, 59 L. T. 139.

When a declaration contains a number of causes of action (not being different actions), the practice of the court, on a plea of payment into court pleaded generally, is not to grant particulars of such payment, specifying the items of claim to which the money is appropriated. Thames Ironworks and Shipbuilding Co. v. Royal Mail Steam Packet Co., 10 C. B. (N.S.) 375; 30 L. J., C. P. 265; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 972; 4 L. T. 250; 9 W. R. 577.

But in an action against a carrier, the declaration alleging the loss and damage of a variety of goods which he undertook to carry for the plaintiff to numerous places at different times, and the plaintiff having delivered particulars of his claim, and the defendant having pleaded payment into court of a sum in satisfaction, the court ordered the defendant to deliver an account of the particular items of the plaintiff's demand in respect of which the money was paid into court. Baxendale v. G. W. Ry., 6 H. & N. 95; 30 L. J., Ex. 63.

Inconsistent Defence—Traversing and Paying into Court.]—In an action for nuisance, payment into court, together with a denial of the right of action in respect of which the payment is made, cannot be allowed. Spurr v. Hall, 46 L. J., Q. B. 693; 2 Q. B. D. 615; 37 L. T. 313; 26 W. R. 78. But see following cases.

Where a defendant has so pleaded, the defence will be amended as embarrassing under Ord. XXVII. r. 1. Ib.

As a general rule a defendant may, by his defence, deny the plaintiff's causes of action, and at the same time plead payment into court in respect of the whole or any part of them. Spurr v. Hall (supra) doubted. Berdan v. Greenwood, 47 L. J., Ex. 628; 3 Ex. D. 251; 39 L. T. 223; 26 W. R. 902—C. A.

The defendant, in an action for libel published in a newspaper, admitted the publication of the alleged libel, but pleaded that, with the exception of the innuendoes alleged in the statement of claim, the libel was true. In the alternative he pleaded the insertion of a full apology in the newspaper, under 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, and also a payment of 40*s.* into court:—Held, that the offering of an apology and payment into court, and of a justification, could be pleaded together. Hawkesley v. Bradshaw, 49 L. J., Q. B. 333; 5 Q. B. D. 302; 42 L. T. 285; 28 W. R. 557; 44 J. P. 473—C. A. See Ord. XXII. r. 1.

The defendant in an action for libel, after admitting publication, pleaded that, except as afterwards admitted, the words used by him were fair comment on a matter of public interest, and, to the extent of the facts to be stated afterwards, were true in substance and in fact. He then proceeded to justify the various statements in the alleged libel, but admitted that he had used words of the plaintiff, being the words complained of, which were not wholly justified by the facts, and could not be considered in every respect fair comment, and he paid the sum of forty shillings into court, and said the same was sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim:—Held, that, as the defendant had pleaded justification to the whole of the libel, and had paid money into court in respect of a portion, such a plea was both embarrassing and contrary to the provisions of Ord. XXII. r. 1, and ought to be struck out. Fleming v. Dollar, 58 L. J., Q. B. 548; 23 Q. B. D. 388; 61 L. T. 230; 37 W. R. 684.

c. Effect of, as an Admission.

Generally.] — Where a declaration contains two inconsistent counts, and the defendant pays money into court upon the second count, which the plaintiff accepts, the defendant cannot read the second count and the proceedings thereon to the jury as conclusive, or as any evidence to negative an allegation in the first count. Gould v. Oliver, 2 Scott (N.R.) 241; 2 Man. & G. 208.

A declaration alleged that in consideration that the plaintiff would ship goods on board a vessel, the defendant guaranteed that the vessel should sail with, if not before, any other vessel in the berth for Havana, under a penalty of forfeiting one half the freight of the goods. Breach, that the vessel did not sail with or before any other vessel in the berth for Havana, and by reason of the premises the plaintiff became entitled to the half freight. The defendant pleaded payment into court of 10*l.*, and the plaintiff replied damages ultra. At the trial it appeared that the whole freight exceeded 20*l.* but no actual damage was proved:—Held, that the half freight was liquidated damage, and not a penalty, and that, by paying the money into court, the defendant admitted that the plaintiff was entitled to recover it. Sparrow v. Paris, 7 H. & N. 594 ; 31 L. J., Ex. 137 ; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 391 ; 5 L. T. 799.

A declaration for tolls contained six counts ; three for tolls payable to the plaintiff as owner of a manor ; two for tolls payable to the plaintiff as owner of a port ; and the sixth for tolls generally. The particulars of demand claimed a sum of money for tolls and port dues in respect of iron ore. Pleas, payment of 10*l.* into court upon the counts for manorial tolls and upon the sixth count, and non assumpsit as to the residue. Replication to first plea as to the sum in the introductory part of that plea, no damages ultra. At the trial the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff for 8*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, being the amount of port dues which they found to be payable to the plaintiff in respect of iron ore :—Held, that the parties having gone down to trial to try the right of the plaintiff to take port dues in respect of iron ore, the defendant was not entitled to apply the verdict for the plaintiff to the sixth count, upon which he had paid money into court. Brune v. Thomson, 4 Q. B. 543 ; D. & M. 221 ; 12 L. J., Q. B. 251 ; 7 Jur. 395.

In an action for the stipulated price of a specific chattel, the defendant pleaded payment into court of a sum which the plaintiff took out in satisfaction :—Held, that the defendant in that action was not estopped thereby from suing the plaintiff for negligence in the construction of the chattel. Rigge v. Burbridge, 15 M. & W. 598 ; 4 D. & L. 1 ; 15 L. J., Ex. 309.

A defendant who pays money into court in part satisfaction of the demand for which he is sued, and pleads a set-off as to the remainder, does not admit the debt so as to estop him from suing the plaintiff in respect of the set-off so pleaded. Williams v. Stear, 16 L. T. 397.

If a plaintiff by a misrepresentation induces a defendant to believe that the only point to be tried is a question of fraud, and suffers him to prepare his evidence accordingly, he will not be allowed to object to that evidence at the trial, on the ground that the contract had been admitted by the defendant having paid a sum of money into court generally on the whole declaration. Muller v. Hartshorne, 3 Bos. & P. 556.

Common Counts.]—Payment of money into court upon a general count in indebitatus assumpsit, or in debt, admits only a cause of action to the amount paid into court, and operates as an admission for no other purpose. Perren v. Monmouthshire Railway and Canal Co., 11 C. B. 855 ; 22 L. J., C. P. 162 ; 17 Jur. 532 ; 1 W. R. 354.

A declaration contained a special count against defendants as partners, and also the common counts :—Held, that payment of money into court under the latter counts was no admission of the partnership alleged in the former. Charles v. Branker, 1 D. & L. 989 ; 11 M. & W. 743 ; 13 L. J., Ex. 332.

In an action for rent on a demise for years, with a count for fixtures sold, the plaintiff claimed by his particulars 5*l.* 5*s.* for rent, and 12*l.* for fixtures. The defendant paid 11*l.* 5*s.* into court :—Held, no admission of his liability, in respect of fixtures, to a greater amount than had been paid into court. Goff v. Harris, 5 Man. & G. 573 ; 12 L. J., C. P. 273.

The plea to an indebitatus count amounts to an admission, that, by virtue of some contract of the nature declared on, the defendant is indebted or liable to the plaintiff to the amount paid in, but it does not primâ facie amount to a recognition of his liability on any particular contracts on which the plaintiff may choose to rely. Bingham v. Robins, 5 M. & W. 94 ; 7 D. P. C. 352 ; 3 Jur. 364.

Where there were several counts, only one of which was applicable to the plaintiff's demand :—Held, that it only admitted a cause of action on that count. Stafford v. Clark, 2 Bing. 377 ; 9 Moore, 724 ; 1 Car. & P. 24, 403 ; 3 L. J. (o.s.) C. P. 48.

Even in every transaction relating to the subject-matter in dispute, which is capable of being converted into a contract by the assent of the parties. Bennett v. Francis, 1 Bos. & P. 550 ; 4 Esp. 28. See 3 R. R. 644, n.

Therefore, where a defendant, who had possessed himself of goods belonging to the plaintiff, and had sold part and kept the residue in specie, paid money into court generally, upon a declaration containing a count for goods sold and delivered :—Held, that he had thereby admitted the transaction to have been converted into a contract ; and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the value of all the goods under the count for goods sold and delivered. Ib.

Payment of money into court on a declaration containing special and common counts, founded on a variety of dealings between the parties, cannot be applied by the plaintiff to any particular count only, but the defendant may so apply it to the damage therein stated to have been incurred. Drake v. Lewin, 4 Tyr. 730.

Special Contracts.]—Payment of money into court upon a declaration on a special contract, admits the contract and the breach or breaches. Perren v. Monmouthshire Railway and Canal Co., 11 C. B. 855 ; 22 L. J., C. P. 162 ; 17 Jur. 532 ; 1 W. R. 354.

A plea of payment into court to a special count is an admission of the contract declared on and of the breach. Bingham v. Robins, 5 M. & W. 94 ; 7 D. P. C. 352.

In an action of assumpsit against two defendants, the declaration contained an indebitatus count for work and labour, and the ordinary money counts ; the amount claimed was 44*l.* 12*s.* 4*d.* The defendants jointly paid into court the sum of 30*l.* and pleaded that beyond that amount they did not promise :—Held, that by that payment into court the defendants admitted their liability only as far as the 30*l.*, and were entitled to dispute their further liability. When the declaration is upon a special contract, and the defendant pays money into court, that payment admits the whole contract. Archer v. English, 1 Scott (N.R.) 156 ; 1 Man. & G. 873 ; 9 D. P. C. 241 ; 10 L. J., C. P. 15.

The payment admits the contract as stated in each count, and a breach of it, and that something is due on each count thereon ; but it does not admit the amount of the breach therein stated. Stoveld v. Brewin, 2 B. & Ald. 116.

It narrows the inquiry to the quantum of damages sustained by the breach thereof. Yate v. Willan, 2 East, 128. S. P., Piggott v. Dunn, 2 East, 134.

And precludes the defendant from impeaching the existence of the contract. Dyer v. Ashton, 1 B. & C. 3 ; 2 D. & R. 19 ; 1 L. J. (o.s.) K. B. 8.

In a count on a policy, the risk was stated to continue until the ship was unloaded :—Held, that the premium having been paid into court, generally, was an admission of the contract stated. Andrews v. Palsgrave, 9 East, 325.

In an action on a special contract the plaintiff declared that he was engaged as a newspaper editor "at a certain salary, to wit, 400*l*.," and claimed a quarter's salary as damages for dismissal without notice. Plea, payment of 37*l*. 10*s*. into court, and no damages ultra. Replication of damages ultra :—Held, that the precise sum of 400*l*. in the declaration was not in its nature material; and that, as it was laid under a videlicet, the plaintiff, if the contract had been denied, would not have been bound to prove the precise sum. And that the defendant therefore had not by his plea of payment into court admitted a contract for the specific salary of 400*l*. Cooper v. Blick, 2 Q. B. 915; 2 G. & D. 295; 11 L. J., Q. B. 85; 6 Jur. 368.

To an action on a breach of a contract to grant the plaintiff a good and valid lease, the defendant pleaded payment into court, and no damages ultra :—Held, that the plaintiff might recover damages beyond his expenses for the loss which he had sustained by reason of the non-performance of the contract. Robinson v. Harman, 1 Ex. 850; 18 L. J., Ex. 202.

Held, also, that evidence to shew that the plaintiff knew that the defendant had no title, was inadmissible under the plea of payment into court, which admitted the contract. Ib.

Where, upon a count on a promissory note payable by instalments, averring nonpayment of such instalments, the defendant pleads non assumpsit, and brings into court a sum of money less than the amount of the instalments, he thereby admits the special contract, but does not admit the nonpayment of the instalments, except to the extent of the money brought in. Reid v. Dickens, 2 N. & M. 369; 5 B. & Ad. 499.

In an action on a special contract, and for money had and received, the defendant pleaded the general issue, and to the common counts a tender; and he paid money into court, not applying in terms to any particular count :—Held, that such payment could not be referred exclusively to the counts as to which a tender was pleaded, but that it applied to the whole declaration, and admitted the special contract. Bulwer v. Horne, 1 N. & M. 117; 4 B. & Ad. 132; 2 L. J., K. B. 11.

In Actions on Covenants.]—If the payment is made on any one of the breaches in an action on a covenant, it is unnecessary to prove the deed. Randall v. Lynch, 2 Camp. 357; 11 R. R. 727.

Generally, a payment into court, to a declaration setting out several covenants, and assigning a general breach, admits some damage upon every part of the breach. Wright v. Goddard, 3 N. & P. 361; 8 A. & E. 144; 1 W. W. & H. 230; 7 L. J., Q. B. 174; 2 Jur. 840.

Of Validity of Contract.]—Payment of money into court on the whole declaration, in an action on a bill of exchange, is such an admission of the validity of the bill as to prevent the necessity of proving the drawer's handwriting. Gutteridge v. Smith, 2 H. Bl. 374.

And, after such payment, the defendant cannot object to the sufficiency of the stamp on which the bill is drawn. Israel v. Benjamin, 3 Camp. 40.

Of Facts stated in Claim.]—Though payment of money into court admits every legal cause of action stated, yet where a plaintiff alleges in his declaration multifarious and inconsistent facts, as the grounds for one and the same claim, it is not competent for the plaintiff to apply the payment into court of a sum insufficient to meet all the demands alleged, as evidence to prove such one of the claims as he may elect; but he must prove his case by other evidence of the fact. Everth v. Bell, 1 Moore, 158: 7 Taunt. 450.

It admits all the facts stated in the counts on which the money is paid in. Godsall v. Boldero, 9 East, 72.

But on those counts only. Baillie v. Cazalet, 4 Term Rep. 579.

In an action against a railway company for negligence, whereby a passenger was injured, the company pleaded payment into court of money, and no damages ultra :—Held, that the payment into court admitted the contract to carry, and the breach of the duty founded upon that contract, so as to dispense with proof of negligence, the damages being single, and depending upon nothing beyond the mere breach of duty admitted. Perren v. Monmouthshire Railway and Canal Co., 11 C. B. 855; 22 L. J., C. P. 162; 17 Jur. 532; 1 W. R. 354.

In an action for negligence in not properly securing a cow of the defendant in a slaughterhouse, the declaration stated, that in consequence thereof the cow "ran at, butted at, gored, killed, and destroyed" a cow of the plaintiff. Plea, a payment of 30*s*. into court, and that the plaintiff had sustained no greater damages :—Held, that the defendant could not go into evidence to shew that his cow had not killed the plaintiff's cow, as the contrary was admitted by the plea. Lloyd v. Walkey, 9 Car. & P. 771.

Payment of money into court in an action on a policy, admits that the ship was seaworthy. Harrison v. Douglas, 5 N. & M. 180; 3 A. & E. 396; 1 H. & W. 380.

But payment of money into court to the amount of a partial loss upon a valued policy is not an admission of a total loss. Rucker v. Palsgrave, 1 Taunt. 419; 1 Camp. 557. And see Waldron v. Coombe, 3 Taunt. 162; 12 R. R. 629.

And, in an action on a valued policy, the payment of money into court upon a count which states a total loss, is not an admission of such total loss by capture. Ib.

But it admits the interest of the plaintiff as averred. Bell v. Ansley, 16 East, 146; 14 R. R. 322.

A plea of tender without payment into court admits the contract and facts stated in the declaration. Cox v. Brain, 3 Taunt. 95.

So, by paying money into court on a plea of tender, a defendant admits that a promise to pay the debt of a third person was in writing. Middleton v. Brewer, Peake, 15; 3 R. R. 643.

A declaration against assignees of a bankrupt stated that the plaintiff agreed with the bankrupt, before the bankruptcy, to permit him to take stones from the plaintiff's quarry at a certain price, for a church which he, the bankrupt, had undertaken to build, and that he took therefrom stones to the amount of 50*l*.; that the defendants, as his assignees, adopted his contract for building the church, and thereby became bound by its equities, and so liable to pay the plaintiff the 50*l*., and that afterwards they took from the quarry stones, for the same purpose, to the amount of 40*l*. Plea, as to the agreement of the plaintiff with the bankrupt, non assumpsit; as to the residue of the causes of action, payment into court of 6*l.* 12*s.* 11*d.*, which the plaintiff accepted in satisfaction of that sum. The jury having found for the defendant on the first issue :—Held, that the admission in the plea of payment into court did not entitle the plaintiff to have a verdict for him on the other issue. Tcemlow v. Askey, 3 M. & W. 495 ; 6 D. P. C. 597 ; 1 H. & H. 172 ; 7 L. J., Ex. 233.

Of Plaintiff's Character and Right to sue.]—In an action brought in a county court for work and labour done, the claim contained several items : the defendants paid money into court without denying liability :—Held, that the payment into court was an admission of some liability but not that something was due on every item of the account. Stevenson v. Berwick Corporation (1 Q. B. 154) followed. Hennell v. Davies, 62 L. J., Q. B. 220 ; [1893] 1 Q. B. 367 ; 5 R. 209 ; 68 L. T. 220 ; 41 W. R. 284.

After payment of money into court by a defendant, in an action brought against him on 2 & 3 Edw. 6, by a farmer of tithes, he cannot object to the plaintiff's title to the tithes, because he has admitted the plaintiff's right generally, and has reduced the cause to a mere question of the amount of the damages. Broadhurst v. Baldwin, 4 Price, 58.

So, in an action by a surgeon, it admits his title to sue as such. Lipscombe v. Holmes, 2 Camp. 441.

Payment of money into court for work and labour, is an admission that the contract was with the party suing, where it appears that there was in fact only one contract. Walker v. Rawson, 5 Car. & P. 486 ; 1 M. & Rob. 250.

In an action for the use and occupation of premises, containing a count for fixtures bargained and sold, the defendant pleaded first, as to 12*l.* parcel, &c., payment into court ; and to the residue non assumpsit :—Held, that he was not estopped by the former plea from shewing at the trial that no contract to take the fixtures was ever entered into between himself and the plaintiff. Bingham v. Robins, 5 M. & W. 94 ; 7 D. P. C. 352.

In an action for use and occupation, payment of money into court admits the contract, and therefore it is not open to him to contend that the plaintiff is without a title, or that another co-plaintiff should have joined in the action, although these facts may appear doubtful on the plaintiff's own evidence. Dolby v. Iles, 3 P. & D. 287 ; 11 A. & E. 335 ; 9 L. J., Q. B. 51.

When by the terms of a policy in a mutual insurance club the amount of the loss is not to be drawn before a specified day, the defendant in an action on the policy, by paying money into court, precludes himself from objecting that the action is brought too soon. Harrison v. Douglas, 5 N. & M. 180 ; 3 A. & E. 396 ; 1 H. & W. 380.

Payment of money into court on a declaration for goods sold, and also a particular stating that the action is brought for the price of a certain lot of goods sold to the defendant on such a day by A., the plaintiff's broker, does not admit that the goods purchased by the defendant of A. on the days specified were the property of the plaintiff. Blackburn v. Scholes, 2 Camp. 341 ; 11 R. R. 723.

Payment of money into a superior court is an admission of the plaintiff's right to sue in such court, and bars a plea of the Court of Conscience Act. Miller v. Williams, 5 Esp. 19.

If money is paid in generally, it does not exclude the benefit of the Statute of Limitations. Long v. Greville, 4 D. & R. 632 ; 3 B. & C. 10 ; 2 L. J. (o.s.) K. B. 205.

To a declaration for non-performance of a contract to receive and pay for a copper, made to order at a specified price per pound weight, the defendant pleaded the payment into court of a sum :—Held, that he could not, under this plea, give in evidence that he had countermanded the order when only a part of the work had been done. Stevens v. Ufford, 7 Car. & P. 97.

Where a defendant pleads only a plea which admits the plaintiff's right to recover, evidence of facts, which would be a bar to the action, is not admissible in mitigation of damages. Speck v. Phillips, 5 M. & W. 279 ; 7 D. P. C. 470 ; 8 L. J., Ex. 249, 277.

Thus, where, to an action for wrongfully discharging the plaintiff from the defendant's service, the defendant pleads only payment of money into court, he cannot prove, in mitigation of damages, that he discharged the plaintiff for misconduct. Ib.

Of Joint Liability.]—A plea of payment into court by two admits only that the plaintiff has a cause of action on one or more of the contracts declared on, to the amount of the sum paid in, and does not admit their joint liability to any greater amount, although the plaintiff gives evidence aliunde to fix one of them with liability to a greater amount. Stapleton v. Nowell, 6 M. & W. 9 ; 8 D. P. C. 196 ; 9 L. J., Ex. 132 ; 4 Jur. 90.

In an action of assumpsit against two defendants, the declaration contained an indebitatus count for work and labour, and the ordinary money counts ; the amount claimed was 44*l.* 12*s.* 4*d.* The defendants jointly paid into court the sum of 30*l.* and pleaded that beyond that amount they did not promise :—Held, that by that payment into court the defendants admitted their liability only as far as the 30*l.* and were entitled to dispute their further liability. Archer v. English, 1 Scott (N.R.) 156 ; 1 Man. & G. 873 ; 9 D. P. C. 21 ; 10 L. J., C. P. 15.

In an action by the master of a ship, for wages, against A. W., D. S. W. and S. W., the plaintiff proved a contract in the handwriting of W., signed A. W. & Co., by which contract he was engaged as master of a vessel, at a yearly salary. He also proved services under the contract for several years ; and he then put in a rule to pay into court a sum of money which was not equal to the amount of the wages. It appeared on the part of the defendants, that D. S. W. was not a member of the firm of A. W. & Co., and was not an owner of the ship in question. The defendants, in the course of their case, went into accounts, including a variety of items, being disbursements on ship's account on the one hand, and items to the credit of the owners on the other :—Held, that the whole account was referable to one contract, and that the four defendants, having paid money into court, were precluded from setting up, that D. S. W. was not a party to the contract. Ravenscroft v. Wise or Wylie, 1 C. M. & R. 203 ; 2 D. P. C. 676 ; 4 Tyr. 741 ; 3 L. J., Ex. 309.

Extent of Admission.]—But it is only an acknowledgement that the plaintiff is entitled to recover the sum so paid, it does not preclude him from taking any objection to the action beyond that sum. Coe v. Parry, 1 Term Rep. 464.

And it is only an admission of a legal demand. Ribbans v. Cricket, 1 Bos. & P. 264.

Payment of money into court, for goods sold and delivered, only amounts to an admission of the plaintiff's right of action to the amount of the sum paid in, and applies only to a legal demand, and not to all the items contained in a bill of particulars, in which the goods are stated to have been supplied at different times. Seaton v. Benedict, 2 M. & P. 66; 5 Bing. 28; 6 L. J. (o.s.) C. P. 208.

It is competent for a defendant to shew that the goods in question were not made according to order, but that he had, at the request of the plaintiff, retained and used some of them for a trial. Mainworthy v. Page, 3 Jur. 126.

Payment into court to common counts is not an admission of any liability ultra the sum paid in, however special the particulars of demand may be. Stevenson v. Berwick Corporation, 4 P. & D. 546; 1 Q. B. 154; 1 Arn. & H. 265.

A defendant may shew that the items in the plaintiff's demand above the sum paid into court were not due from himself. Booth v. Howard, 2 D. P. C. 438; W. W. & D. 54; 1 Jur. 55.

It is competent to a defendant to urge any objections to the plaintiff's right to recover further damages. Lucy v. Walrond, 5 Scott, 52; 3 Hodges, 215; 6 L. J., C. P. 290.

Payment of money into court generally upon a declaration upon a policy of insurance, and the money counts, is only an admission of the contract, but does not preclude the defendant from disputing his liability, beyond such payment, for goods which were not loaded according to the terms of the policy. Mellish v. Allnutt, 2 M. & S. 106; 14 R. R. 599.

A. and B. were jointly indebted to C.; after more than six years had elapsed since the debt accrued, A. promised in writing, signed by him, to pay his proportion when applied to. Payment of money into court on a special count, framed on such new promise to pay the defendant's proportion, and averring the amount of such proportion under a videlicet, does not admit or preclude the defendant from disputing the amount of such proportion. Lechmere v. Fletcher, 1 C. & M. 623; 3 Tyr. 450; 2 L. J., Ex. 219.

If in trover the declaration enumerates a great number of articles, and the defendant pays money into court, and pleads that the plaintiff has sustained no greater damages, the plaintiff must shew what articles the defendant has converted; and, a declaration in trover being general, the defendant, by this plea, does not admit anything beyond his payment into court. Cook v. Hartle, 8 Car. & P. 568.

In Actions of Tort.]—A plea of payment of money into court in an action of tort is a mere admission that the plaintiff has some cause of action, for which he is entitled to recover damages to the extent of the sum paid in. Story v. Finnis, 6 Ex. 123; 2 L. M. & P. 198; 20 L. J., Ex. 144.

In an action for pound breach and rescue, the defendant pleaded payment into court of a certain sum, alleging that the plaintiff had not sustained damages ultra; the plaintiff replied damages ultra:—Held, that the plea did not admit either that the pound was the plaintiff's or that the defendant had been guilty of the rescue. Ib.

Payment of money into court in an action of tort amounts to no more than an admission that the plaintiff has a cause of action, to the extent of the money paid in, from some wrongful act of the defendant, and does not necessarily admit that the latter is guilty of the wrongful act charged in the declaration. Schreger v. Carden, 11 C. B. 851; 21 L. J., C. P. 135; 16 Jur. 568.

A declaration against A. and B. stated that they wrongfully and injuriously seized the goods of the plaintiff as a distress for rent, claimed and pretended by them to be due to A., and afterwards, under that pretence, wrongfully sold the goods as such distress; whereas a small part only of the amount claimed was due. A. paid money into court:—Held, that the sale was not mere aggravation, but the distraining and selling were distinct substantive trespasses, and that A., by the payment into court, admitted the sale as well as the seizure. Leyland v. Tancred, 16 Q. B. 664; 19 L. J., Q. B. 313; 14 Jur. 695.

But held, in the exchequer chamber, reversing this judgment, that it could not be intended, from the payment into court, that in fact the amount taken or sold was unreasonable in respect of what was actually due. Tancred v. Leyland, 16 Q. B. 669—Ex. Ch.

Payment of money into court in an action of tort may, according to the form of the declaration, be subject either to the rule applicable to special contracts, or to the rule applicable to general common counts; thus, where the declaration is general and unspecific, the payment into court admits a cause of action, but not the cause of action sued for; on the other hand, if the declaration is specific, the payment into court admits the cause of action so specifically stated. Perren v. Monmouthshire Ry., 11 C. B. 855; 22 L. J., C. P. 162; 17 Jur. 532; 1 W. R. 354.

A plea of payment into court has a different effect when pleaded to a count in trover and to a count for money had and received. Goldy v. Goldy, 26 L. J., Ex. 29.

In the former case, it admits any evidence admissible under not guilty to reduce the damages. In the latter case it admits of no evidence which, admitting a debt for a certain cause, goes to reduce its amount by proof of payment or set-off. Ib.

Therefore, in trover and for money had and received, brought by an administratrix against a party who, by mistake, had acted as an executor de son tort:—Held, that, under a plea of payment into court to the whole declaration, the defendant could not prove in reduction of the amount recoverable under the common count payments made by the defendant, and which the administratrix would have been bound to make in the course of rightful administration. Ib.

To part of the trespasses stated in a declaration, the defendant pleaded a justification. He also pleaded to all the trespasses payment of money into court, and non damnificatus ultra. The plaintiff replied damnificatus ultra. The jury found a verdict for the defendant upon the justification, and for the plaintiff 20*s.* damages ultra:—Held, to be no objection to the verdict as to the 20*s.* that it must be taken to apply, in part, to the trespasses justified. Thompson v. Jackson, 3 Man. & G. 621; 4 Scott (N.R.) 234; 11 L. J., C. P. 44.

d. Practice relating to.

Fact not to be communicated to Jury.]—Ord. XXII. r. 22, which provides that no communication shall be made to the jury either of the fact that money has been paid into court or of the amount paid in until after the verdict is given, does not conflict with s. 22 of the Judicature Act, 1875, by which nothing in any rule made under the powers of the Judicature Acts, 1873 and 1875, is to take away the right of any party to an action to have the issues for trial by jury submitted to the jury. The issue as to the amount of the debt or damages is not whether the sum paid into court is sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, but to what sum the plaintiff is entitled, and the rule is a rule of procedure only, providing the manner in which the issue is to be left to the jury, and is therefore within the powers of the rule committee appointed under the judicature Acts to make rules for (inter alia) regulating the procedure in the high court. Williams v. Goose, 66 L. J., Q. B. 345 ; [1897] 1 Q. B. 471 ; 76 L. T. 143 ; 45 W. R. 308—C. A.

Plaintiff may prove that Defendant applied to pay Larger Sum into Court.]—Where a defendant has paid a sum into court, and has pleaded that the plaintiff has sustained no greater damages, the plaintiff may give in evidence a judge's summons taken out by the defendant two days before the trial to allow him to pay a larger sum into court, although that summons was abandoned, and no order made upon it. Domett v. Young, Car. & M. 465.

Interrogatories to ascertain Extent of Loss.]—When in an action for breach of contract the defendant admits himself to be liable to compensate the plaintiff, and intends to pay into court a sum sufficient to cover the damage sustained, the defendant will be allowed to administer interrogatories in order to ascertain the extent of the loss which the plaintiff has incurred. Horne v. Hough, 43 L. J., C. P. 70 ; L. R. 9 C. P. 135 ; 22 W. R. 412. S. P., Frost v. Brooke, 32 L. T. 312 ; 23 W. R. 260 ; Clarke v. Bennett, 32 W. R. 550.

Alternative Payment—Defendant succeeding at Trial—Right to Judgment.]—Where the defendant succeeds at the trial on an issue on money paid into court under Ord. XXX. r. 1 of the Rules of 1875, with a defence stating such payment as an alternative defence to the action, he is entitled to have judgment entered for him in the action. In an action for trespass, in breaking and entering the plaintiff's land, the defendants paid money into court under Ord. XXX. r. 1 of the Rules of 1875, and in their defence denied the plaintiff's possession of the land, and also stated that, without admitting any kind of liability, the sum paid into court was sufficient to satisfy any damage which the plaintiff might have sustained in consequence of any acts of theirs. The plaintiff joined issue upon these defences, but failed at the trial to establish any damages exceeding the sum paid into court, though he succeeded on the other issue. The court of appeal treated such defence of payment into court as an alternative payment, and as it went to the whole cause of action :—Held, that the defendants were entitled to judgment. Wheeler v. United Telephone Co., 53 L. J., Q. B. 466 ; 13 Q. B. D. 597 ; 50 L. T. 749 ; 33 W. R. 295—C. A. S. P., Goutard v. Carr, 53 L. J., Q. B. 467, n. ; 13 Q. B. D. 598, n. ; 33 W. R. 295, n.—C. A.

Bankruptcy of Defendant.]—Where money was paid into court to abide the event of a suit by a defendant, who afterwards became bankrupt :—Held, that the plaintiff, who subsequently to the bankruptcy obtained a verdict, was not "a creditor having security for his debt" within 12 & 13 Vict. c. 106, s. 184, and was therefore entitled to the money as against the assignees. Murray v. Arnold, 3 B. & S. 287 ; 32 L. J., Q. B. 11 ; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 461 ; 7 L. T. 385 ; 11 W. R. 147.

Money paid into court under the Bills of Exchange Act, 18 & 19 Vict. c. 67, pursuant to a judge's order "to abide the event" of an action then pending, forms no part of the debtor's estate, but is a security to the creditor for the payment of the amount recoverable in the action, notwithstanding that the matters in dispute in the action have been referred, and bankruptcy supervened before any proceedings are taken in the matter of the arbitration. Tate, Ex parte, Keyworth, In re, 43 L. J., Bk. 102 ; L. R. 9 Ch. 379 ; 30 L. T. 620.

An interlocutory order directing payment of money into court is not a judgment within the bankruptcy law, but a specific equity upon the fund, protecting it for the parties ultimately entitled, against the assignees under a bankruptcy taking place between the order and the decree. Hitchens, Ex parte, Congreve, In re, Mont. 225.

Mistake of Arbitrator.]—A declaration contained a count on a policy of insurance upon a ship and cargo, and also the money counts. The defendant, as to the first count, pleaded that he had not broken his covenant, and paid into court, under the money counts, the amount of the premiums, and the plaintiff took the money out of court. The cause having been referred to arbitrators to fix the amount of the loss, which they had done irrespective of the amount which had been paid into court :—Held, that the court had power to prevent injustice being done to the defendant, and that the plaintiff was only entitled to judgment for the balance which remained after deducting the amount of premiums paid into court. Carr v. Royal Exchange Assurance Corporation, 5 B. & S. 941 ; 34 L. J., Q. B. 21 ; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 265 ; 11 L. T. 595 ; 13 W. R. 204.

Receipt in full Discharge.]—A defendant paid money into court, and the plaintiff agreed to take the money and his costs. The costs were taxed, and paid by the defendant, and received by the plaintiff. The plaintiff, altering his mind, did not take the money out of court, and offered to return the costs, which the defendant refused to take. The plaintiff discontinued the action, and the costs of the discontinuance were taxed and paid to the defendant. These facts do not support a plea in another action for the same demand, alleging that the plaintiff received the money paid into court and the costs in full discharge of the action. Power v. Butcher, 5 M. & Ry. 327 ; 10 B. & C. 329 ; 8 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 217.

e. Payment out.

Denial of Liability—Not accepted in Satisfaction.]—Where money is paid into court with a defence denying liability, and the plaintiff does not accept it in satisfaction, an order for payment of such money out of court cannot be made until after the trial or other determination of the action. Maple v. Shrewsbury (Earl), 56 L. J., Q. B. 601 ; 19 Q. B. D. 463 ; 57 L. T. 443 ; 35 W. R. 819—C. A.

Where a defendant, by his defence, denies that he is under any liability to the plaintiff, and at the same time pays money into court, and pleads that, although he is under no liability, the sum paid in is enough to satisfy the plaintiff's claim, the plaintiff may obtain payment out under r. 3 of Ord. XXX., and may either under r. 4 accept it in satisfaction of his claim, and tax his costs and sign judgment for the costs so taxed, or may go on with his action for the purpose of recovering more; and whether the plaintiff succeeds or fails in recovering more or even fails altogether in establishing that the defendant is under any liability, he will be entitled to retain the money so taken out of court. Emden v. Carte, 45 L. T. 328; 30 W. R. 17—C. A.

Where a defendant traversed the causes of action and also paid money into court in satisfaction of the whole of the plaintiff's claim:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to draw out of court the money lodged, though not accepting it in full satisfaction, and to proceed with the action. Coughlan v. Morris, 6 L. R., Ir. 405—C. A.

Libel—Newspaper—Apology.]—The plaintiff in an action for libel contained in a newspaper is not entitled to draw out money lodged in court with a defence of an apology, under the 6 & 7 Vict. c. 96, s. 2, and to proceed with the action for the purpose of recovering greater damages. Harris v. Arnott, 24 L. R., Ir. 404.

Payment in by Mistake.]—In an action for 1,349*l.*, the defendants paid 167*l.* into court without regard to the regulations prescribed by the Rules of Court, 1883, and the Supreme Court Funds Rules, 1884. On the day of payment into court the defendants' solicitors wrote to the plaintiff's solicitor stating that they had that day paid 167*l.* into court to the credit of the action, "in discharge of the plaintiff's claim in this action." On the same day the defendants delivered a defence, which contained a denial of liability to the plaintiff, and stated that the sum paid into court was sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim if any should be established. The plaintiff took the money out of court and then continued the proceedings in the action:—Held, that in the circumstances the plaintiff must either keep the money and let all further proceedings except as to costs be stayed, or pay the money into court again and go on with the action. Stamford (Earl), In re, Savage v. Payne, 53 L. T. 512; 33 W. R. 909—C. A.

A court of equity refused an injunction to restrain the plaintiff in an action from taking out of court money which the defendant had paid into court in ignorance that upon such payment the plaintiff was entitled to stay his action and take the sum so paid. G. W. Ry. v. Cripps, 5 Hare, 91.

Discovery of Mistake or Fulfilment of Condition.]—The only case where a party will be bound by the payment of money made by mistake is where it is paid into court under a rule. Malcolm v. Fullarton, 2 Term Rep. 645; 1 R. R. 567.

Therefore the court refused to order money paid into court by a defendant through a mistake to be restored to him. Vaughan v. Barnes, 2 Bos. & P. 392.

Though perhaps in case of fraud they might. Ib.

A new trial having been granted on the ground of the absence of a material witness, and upon condition of the defendant's paying money into court, the defendant was not permitted to take the money out of court upon a suggestion that, though the witness was now accessible, the plaintiff had refused an answer, and was in contempt for not answering a bill in chancery, filed by the defendant for a discovery, which would have been an answer to the action. Jackson v. Hopkinson, 5 M. & Ry. 511; 7 Bing. 557; 1 D. P. C. 227.

On Lunacy of Plaintiff.]—A defendant being sued for a sum which he admitted to be due to the plaintiff, paid the money into court under a judge's order. The plaintiff before and at the time of action and of the application was suffering from temporary derangement, and an inmate of Bethlehem Hospital, but no commission of inquiry into the state of his mind had been issued, and no committee of his estate or person had been appointed. On application by his wife, the court ordered the money to be paid out to her or to the plaintiff's attorney in the action. Gliddan v. Treble, 9 C. B. (N.S.) 367; 30 L. J., C. P. 160. S. P., Rock v. Slade, 7 D. P. C. 22; 1 Arn. 346; 2 Jur. 993.

Upon Death of Parties.]—Where, upon putting off a trial, the bail paid 2,000*l.* into court for the defendant to abide the event of the suit, and the suit afterwards abated by his death, they were permitted to take the money out of court, notwithstanding the plaintiff and the administrator of the defendant insisted that it should be paid over to the plaintiff or to the administrator of the defendant. Ward v. Lowning, 2 Smith, 49.

Money is paid into court by a defendant, who dies before verdict or interlocutory judgment, whereby the suit abates. The money can be paid out of court only to the personal representative of the defendant. An application on the part of his attorney will not be entertained. Palmer v. Reiffenstein, 1 Man. & G. 94.

An action having been brought in this country on a cause which had arisen abroad, to which the defendant paid a sum of money into court to abide its further order; and before the trial of the cause the plaintiff having died:—Held, that the court had no power to order the money to be detained to abide the event of a fresh suit, about to be instituted for the same cause of action by the personal representative of the plaintiff. Anon., 3 Jur. 251.

When an Admission.]—When money has been paid into court short of the plaintiff's demand, and is taken out of court, it is admissible to shew quo animo it was done; but it is not to be taken as an admission that the rest of the demand was unfounded. Hildyard v. Blowers, 5 Esp. 69.

Order for Repayment to Defendant—Liability not denied.]—The words "unless the court or a judge shall otherwise order" at the end of Ord. XXII. r. 5, render the right of the plaintiff to receive or be credited with money paid into court by a defendant who does not deny liability conditional upon no order being made to the contrary. Therefore, where a defendant's only plea was payment into court of 5*l.*, and there was a verdict for a farthing:—Held, that the judge at the trial had jurisdiction to order that 4*l.* 19*s.* 11¾*d.* should be paid out of court to the defendant. Gray v. Bartholomew, 64 L. J., Q. B. 125; [1895] 1 Q. B. 209; 14 R. 50; 71 L. T. 867; 43 W. R. 177—C. A.

In an action for libel the defendants pleaded that the libel was published without malice or gross negligence, published an apology, and paid 50*l.* into court. The jury were not informed of the payment into court, and found a verdict for the plaintiff with one farthing damages :—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to the 50*l.* in court, as Ord. XXII. r. 22, made no alteration in the practice where money is paid into court without a denial of liability. Dunn v. Devon and Exeter Newspaper Co., 63 L. J., Q. B. 342 ; [1895] 1 Q. B. 211, n. ; 10 R. 167 ; 70 L. T. 593.

Payment improperly made to Plaintiff's Solicitor—Liability to refund.]—In an action for wrongful dismissal, claiming a year's salary in lieu of notice, the defendant pleaded that the plaintiff was only entitled to one month's notice, or, in the alternative, three months ; that before action the defendant made tender of three months' salary, which the plaintiff refused ; that the defendant had paid the amount into court, and that it was enough to satisfy the plaintiff's claim. The request for lodgment in court contained a statement that the money was paid in, with a defence setting up tender. The plaintiff's solicitor, without obtaining an order, but on the written authority of the plaintiff, took the money out of court, and the plaintiff proceeded with the action. At the trial, judgment was given for the defendant on the ground that the plaintiff was only entitled to one month's salary. The defendant applied for an order against the solicitor to refund so much of the money taken out of court as represented the difference between one month's and three months' salary. The solicitor had acted bonâ fide in taking the money out of court, and had paid it over to the plaintiff before the application to make him refund it was made :—Held, that although the plaintiff ought not to have had the money out of court, because a defence of tender of the sum paid in could not be pleaded to a claim for unliquidated damages, yet under the circumstances the solicitor ought not to be ordered to refund it. Davys v. Richardson, 57 L. J., Q. B. 409 ; 21 Q. B. D. 202 ; 59 L. T. 765 ; 36 W. R. 728—C. A.

f. Costs.

Plea of Tender—Acceptance in Satisfaction.]—By the indorsement of his writ the plaintiff claimed 87*l.* The defendants paid 38*l.* into court, and pleaded a tender of that amount before action. The plaintiff did not join issue upon this plea, but took the 38*l.* out of court in full satisfaction under Ord. XXII. r. 7. The plaintiff then carried in his costs for taxation, when the taxing master held that he had no authority to tax, there being a plea of tender on the record undisposed of :—Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to the costs of the action. Griffith v. Ystradyfodwg School Board, 59 L. J., Q. B. 116 ; 24 Q. B. D. 307 ; 62 L. T. 151 ; 38 W. R. 425.

Acceptance in Satisfaction of Whole Claim.]—In an action for an injunction and damages, the plaintiff moved for an interlocutory injunction, but by consent no order was made on the motion except that the costs were to be costs in the action. The defendants in their defence denied liability, but paid money into court in respect of the claim for damages ; the plaintiff accepted the money in satisfaction of his claim for damages, and wrote that he should discontinue the action, take the money out of court, and tax his costs. The plaintiff then took out a summons for taxation of his costs of the action :—Held, that, as the money was paid into court only in respect of and accepted only in satisfaction of the claim for damages, and as the entire claim or cause of action was not thereby satisfied, Ord. XXII. r. 7, did not authorise the taxation of costs thereunder, and that the plaintiff's application to tax the whole costs of the action was not right. Moon v. Dickinson, 63 L. T. 371 ; 38 W. R. 278.

In an action for breach of contract assigning two distinct breaches, the defendants pleaded denying the breaches, and alternatively paid money into court with regard to one of the breaches. The plaintiffs gave notice under Ord. XXII. r. 7, that they accepted the money paid into court in full satisfaction of the causes of action in the statement of claim :—Held, that plaintiffs were entitled, without proceeding to judgment, to their costs of the action ; for by accepting the money paid into court in satisfaction of all their alleged causes of action they had in effect discontinued or withdrawn the action as to the breach in respect of which the money was not paid in. M'Ilwraith v. Green, 54 L. J., Q. B. 41 ; 14 Q. B. D. 766 ; 52 L. T. 81—C. A.

Where money is paid into court and taken out in satisfaction of part only of the plaintiff's demand, there being other issues upon which the parties are proceeding to trial, the plaintiff is not entitled to tax his costs. Cauty v. Gyll, 4 Man. & G. 907 ; 5 Scott (N.R.) 819.

Payment in for Debt and Costs under Agreement after Action.]—In an action for a money demand, the defendant pleaded an agreement, after action brought, by the plaintiffs to take a certain sum for debt and costs, and brought that amount into court on foot of debt and costs. The plaintiffs' solicitor served notice on the defendant's accepting the sum so paid into court, "in satisfaction of the plaintiffs' claim in respect of which it was paid in" :—Held, that the plaintiffs were not entitled to any costs beyond the sum lodged in court. Goodbody v. Gallaher, 16 L. R., Ir. 336.

Plaintiff accepting Sum paid in—Discretion of Court.]—When a defendant in an action pays money into court in respect of any claim, the plaintiff acquires a vested right to the costs incurred up to that time in respect of such claim, provided that he takes the money out under Ord. XXX. r. 4, in satisfaction of such claim. Langridge v. Campbell, 46 L. J., Ex. 277 ; 2 Ex. D. 281 ; 36 L. T. 64 ; 25 W. R. 351. But see Buckton v. Higgs, infra.

Ord. XXX. applies only to an action which is strictly brought to recover a debt or damages. If an account is claimed the order does not apply, and even if the plaintiff accepts in satisfaction of his whole cause of action a sum paid into court by the defendant, the court has a discretion as to the costs. Nichols v. Evens, 52 L. J., Ch. 383 ; 22 Ch. D. 611 ; 48 L. T. 66 ; 31 W. R. 412.

Two of the plaintiffs were the legal owners of a leasehold interest in a house, and claimed 37*l.* from the defendant for the use and occupation of it during the last three months of their term. They authorised him to pay this amount to another of the plaintiffs, who was owner of the reversion. She called on the defendant, who expressed his willingness to pay her the money, though he did not make any actual tender of it, but she refused to receive it, and demanded more. The plaintiffs then sued the defendant for the use and occupation, and claimed 238*l.* The defendant paid 37*l.* into court:—Held, that as soon as the defendant expressed to the agent his readiness to pay the 37*l.* there was a concluded agreement between him and the plaintiffs for that amount, and that the plaintiffs could not recover more, and also that the defendant was entitled to the costs of the action from the time of the payment into court. Gretton v. Mees, 7 Ch. D. 839; 38 L. T. 506; 26 W. R. 607.

Where Plaintiff takes Money out and stops.]—Where a plaintiff refuses to accept a sum tendered at the commencement of the action, but afterwards takes the sum out of court, when paid in under a plea, he is primâ facie liable to pay the costs incurred from the time the money was tendered; but this is open to explanation; and where, in an action by a landlord against his tenant to recover unliquidated damages for the non-repair of the premises, it was shewn, that at the time the money was tendered the plaintiff was not aware of the amount of damages sustained, nor was acquainted with it until after plea pleaded, when, finding the difference between the sum tendered and the amount at which the injury was valued so trifling as not to be worth proceeding for, he took the money out of court:—Held, that these circumstances were sufficient to rebut the inference that the sum tendered was refused for the purpose of making costs. Ackroyd v. Read, 5 M. & W. 542; 7 D. P. C. 810; 3 Jur. 797.

Where a summons is taken out to stay proceedings on payment of a certain sum and costs, the refusal to accept that sum will not render the plaintiff liable to the subsequent costs; but if the sum tendered is afterwards paid into court, and accepted by the plaintiff, he will be liable to subsequent costs. Gower v. Elkins, 3 M. & W. 216; 6 D. P. C. 335; 7 L. J., Ex. 72; 2 Jur. 49.

A plaintiff having contracted with the defendant to serve him at a weekly salary, sued the defendant for wrongfully dismissing him from his service, and also for arrears of salary. After the writ issued, a summons was taken out to stay proceedings on payment of arrears of salary; this was refused, and the arrears were paid into court, and accepted by the plaintiff in satisfaction:—Held, that the fact of the plaintiff having obtained a more profitable employment after action was sufficient to rebut the presumption of a vexatious refusal of the sum tendered, and, therefore, the defendant was not entitled to his costs. Cumming v. Columbine, 6 D. P. C. 373.

Amendment caused by Plaintiff's Pleadings.]—A defendant paid into court the sum claimed; the plaintiff took out the money and proceeded to trial on another issue, in which he failed, but proved that more was due to him on the issue in respect of which the money was paid in; the judge gave the defendant leave to amend by paying in the balance due:—Held, that the plaintiff was only entitled to such costs as he would have had if the entire claim had been originally paid into court. Young v. Martin, 4 W. R. 100.

Acceptance in Satisfaction after Four Days.]—The defendant paid money into court in satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, and gave notice of such payment to the plaintiff. The plaintiff did not give notice to the defendant that he accepted the money so paid in satisfaction of the claim within four days, as required by Ord. XXX. r. 4, but he afterwards accepted that sum in satisfaction:—Held, that an order might be made giving the plaintiff his costs under Ord. LV. r. 1. Greaves v. Fleming, 48 L. J., Q. B. 335; 4 Q. B. D. 226; 27 W. R. 458.

When Plaintiff proceeds and afterwards repents.]—In an action brought for two distinct demands, one of which was offered, and on refusal paid into court:—Held, that the plaintiff, who had taken out that sum and proceeded in the action for the other demand, but finding that it could not be supported, wished to stay the proceedings on payment of the costs incurred, was too late to do so. James v. Raggett, 2 B. & Ald. 776; 1 Chit. 471.

When Plaintiff proceeds and recovers Nothing Beyond.]—In an action for damages for breach of covenant, the defendant denied the breach, and also paid money into court, alleging that it was enough to satisfy the claim. The plaintiff replied joining issue, alleging that the money was not enough, and the issues having been referred to an official referee, he reported that the money paid in was enough to satisfy the claim:—Held, that the costs were in the discretion of the court under Ord. LV. r. 1, and that the discretion in such cases ought to be exercised by allowing the plaintiff his costs of the action up to the time of the payment into court, and allowing the defendant his costs of the action after that time. Buckton v. Higgs, 4 Ex. D. 174; 40 L. T. 755; 27 W. R. 803.

Where Plaintiff proceeds for Nominal Damages.]—Where, after action, the debt is paid and accepted in satisfaction, and costs are offered, but refused, the damage is merely nominal independently of the costs, and the plaintiff therefore cannot proceed for the costs. Thame v. Boast, 12 Q. B. 808; 17 L. J., Q. B. 339; 12 Jur. 1024.

A defendant pleaded non assumpsit to all but 12*l.*; to 11*l.*, parcel of the 12*l.*, payment and acceptance in satisfaction after action; to the residue payment of 1*l.* into court. The plaintiff traversed the payment of the 11*l.*, and took the 1*l.* out of court. The amount due to the plaintiff, at the commencement of the suit, did not exceed 12*l.*, and the sum of 11*l.* was paid after action, and accepted by the plaintiff in satisfaction of that amount:—Held, that the plaintiff, after the payment of the 1*l.*, was not entitled to proceed for costs in respect of the 11*l.*, but that the defendant was entitled to have the verdict entered for him, and to the general costs of the action. Horner v. Denham, 12 Q. B. 813; 17 L. J., Q. B. 29; 11 Jur. 1036.

What Costs.]—To a declaration for money had and received, the defendant pleaded as to all except 3*l.* 5*s.* non assumpsit; as to all except 3*l.* 5*s.* a set-off; and as to 3*l.* 5*s.* payment of that sum into court. The plaintiff admitted the set-off, and replied that he would not further prosecute his suit, except as to 3*l.* 5*s.*, and took that sum out of court:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to his costs of the two first issues. Goodee v. Goldsmith, 2 M. & W. 202; 5 D. P. C. 288; 2 Gale, 194; 6 L. J. Ex. 70.

A plaintiff having obtained leave to amend his declaration, on payment of costs, by increasing the amount of damages, and the defendant having, after the amendment, paid money into court, by which one of his pleas becomes unavailable, is not entitled to the costs of that plea. Gould v. Oliver, 5 Bing. (N.C.) 115; 6 Scott, 884.

To a declaration consisting of common counts, the defendant pleaded, except as to 15*s.*, parcel, &c., never indebted; and, as to that sum, payment into court in the form. The plaintiff accepted the 15*s.* in satisfaction, and took issue on the other plea. The case was tried, and the jury having found that, except as to the 15*s.*, the defendant was never indebted to the plaintiff:—Held, that the plaintiff ought to have his costs, so far as related to the 15*s.*, down to the time of his taking that sum out of court, and that the defendant was entitled to the costs of all the rest of the proceedings. Harrison v. Watt, 4 D. & L. 519; 16 M. & W. 316; 17 L. J., Ex. 74; 11 Jur. 91.

Action for work and labour. Pleas: to the declaration, except as to 10*l.*, parcel, &c., never indebted; as to 10*l.*, other parcel, &c., payment before action; as to the 10*l.* excepted, payment into court of 10*l.* 1*s.* Replication, joining issue on the first plea, traversing the second, on which issue was joined, accepting the money paid into court, and praying judgment for the plaintiff's costs in respect of that. A verdict was found for the plaintiff on never indebted to the extent of 10*l.*, and for the defendant on the plea of payment, so that the plaintiff recovered nothing beyond the money paid into court:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to the costs as to the causes of action relating to the 10*l.* paid into court up to and including the payment into court. Rumbelow v. Whalley, 2 L. M. & P. 245; 16 Q. B. 397; 20 L. J., Q. B. 262; 15 Jur. 724.

A declaration, claiming a certain sum, and giving credit for part, with particulars, setting out the items and giving credit in general terms, "cash on account." Plea, never indebted. The case was made a remanet, and afterwards the plaintiff amended, on payment of costs, delivering a declaration and particulars claiming only the balance, without reference to credit. The defendant pleaded de novo, paying the money into court, which the plaintiff took out:—Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to the costs of the issue, or of preparing for the trial. Wilton v. Snook, 1 D. & L. 964; 12 M. & W. 805; 13 L. J., Ex. 236.

A plaintiff, having joined too many defendants, obtained an order at the assizes to strike out some of them upon payment of costs, the remaining defendants having leave to plead de novo. The master taxed the remaining defendants the costs of the day. They then pleaded payment into court, which was accepted. The master allowed the plaintiff the costs of the cause, but not the costs incurred subsequently to the former pleas:—Held, right, because it was to be assumed that, if the plaintiff had originally sued only the right defendants, they would have pleaded payment into court at once, and so the costs of the former plea and subsequent proceedings would not have been incurred. Jackson v. Nunn, 3 G. & D. 543; 4 Q. B. 209; 7 Jur. 846.

The defendants afterwards obtained a rule to shew cause why the master should not allow them the costs of the former pleas, and of the subsequent proceedings, on the ground that they would have succeeded at the trial on account of the misjoinder. The plaintiff contended that they were not entitled to such costs, or, if they were, that the master should have taxed them on the former occasion:—Held, that the defendants were entitled, and that it was no objection that they had not been taxed before, as, before the pleading de novo and acceptance of the money paid into court, it could not be known what costs beyond those of the day had been uselessly incurred. Ib.

In an action to recover 130*l.* for work and extras, under a building contract, the defendant pleaded never indebted. The plaintiff prepared his brief, and delivered notice of trial. The defendant afterwards obtained an order to amend, and paid into court 79*l.*, and pleaded never indebted to the residue. The plaintiff took the 79*l.* out of court, and proceeded for the residue of his demand, but was nonsuited on the trial:—Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled, either under Reg. Gen. H. T. 1853, r. 12, or under the order to amend, to such costs of the brief and other matters as would have been incurred if the 79*l.* had been paid into court at the time of pleading the original pleas. Harold v. Smith, 5 H. & N. 381; 29 L. J., Ex. 141; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 254; 1 L. T. 556; 8 W. R. 447.

In an action of contract in which more than 20*l.* was claimed, the defendant paid 24*l.* into court. The jury gave damages to the plaintiff to the amount of 2*l.* 10*s.* in excess of the sum paid into court:—Held, that the costs should be taxed on the reduced scale. James v. Vane (Lord), 2 El. & El. 883; 29 L. J., Q. B. 169; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 731; 2 L. T. 281; 8 W. R. 446.

2. Order on Accountable Parties.

Power of Court to order.]—Upon an interlocutory application for the payment of money into court made before the trial of an action for the taking of an account, where an account has been rendered, and the court has before it the parties to the account and evidence as to the items in dispute between them, the court will look into the facts of the case, and if, in the fair exercise of its judicial discretion, it can arrive at a conclusion that a sum will be due to the plaintiff on the taking of the account, and what the amount of that sum will be, the court will order the defendant to pay that amount into court. Wanklyn v. Wilson, 56 L. J., Ch. 209; 35 Ch. D. 180; 56 L. T. 52; 35 W. R. 332.

After decree directing accounts to be taken in chambers, if it is ascertained, before the chief clerk's certificate as to the ultimate balance to be paid, that a certain sum will be probably found to be due from either party, the court has power at the instance of the other party to order such sum to be paid into court. London Syndicate v. Lord, 8 Ch. D. 84; 38 L. T. 329; 26 W. R. 427—C. A.

An order to bring a fund into court to remain in medio ought not to be made upon a mere allegation in the bill that there is a question to be tried at the hearing. Gunn v. Bolckow, Vaughan & Co., 44 L. J., Ch. 732; L. R. 10 Ch. 491; 32 L. T. 781; 23 W. R. 739.

On Person not a Party.]—The court has no jurisdiction to order, upon motion, a person not a party to the cause to pay into court the arrears of an annuity granted by him to a defendant against whom a sequestration had issued for want of a sufficient answer, unless the grantor has, by his conduct, waived the objection to the jurisdiction. But he may notwithstanding, and without applying for the leave of the court, obtain from the grantee a release of the annuity. Johnson v. Chippendale, 2 Sim. 55 ; 29 R. R. 58.

A testator charged his real estate with an annuity to his widow, and subject thereto devised it to S. A. in fee, and appointed her his executrix. The testator had insured a house. Policy expired a few months after his death, and was then renewed by S. A. Soon afterwards the house, which was the whole of his real estate, was burnt down. The insurance money was ordered to be paid into court on a motion by the widow in a suit instituted by her against S. A. for the administration of the testator's estate. Parry v. Ashley, 3 Sim. 97 ; 30 R. R. 132.

Order made that A. B., who had received moneys on behalf of plaintiff before institution of suit, but who was not a party thereto, might be at liberty to pay money into court in trust for cause. Francis v. Collier, 5 Madd. 75.

Though the court will stay the payment of a fund out of court, for the purpose of giving a stranger the opportunity of enforcing his right against it, yet it will not, for the same purpose, order into court a sum directed to be paid by one party to another. Newton v. Askew, 11 Beav. 446 ; 18 L. J., Ch. 42 ; 12 Jur. 330, 551, 766.

Stakeholder.]—An order for payment into court of a fund in the hands of a stakeholder in this country may be made in a suit in which one of two parties (each of whom claims the fund under a person residing abroad) is plaintiff and the other defendant, although the person residing abroad may not be made effectually a party to the suit. Ward v. Booth, 41 L. J., Ch. 729 ; L. R. 14 Eq. 195 ; 27 L. T. 364 ; 20 W. R. 880.

Auctioneer, being mere stakeholder, ordered to pay deposit money into court, after retaining his own claims out of it, without prejudice. Yates v. Farebrother, 4 Madd. 239. See Annesley v. Muggeridge, 1 Madd. 593 ; 16 R. R. 273.

Where two parties claim fund in hands of stakeholders, the former may make motion by consent, to avoid the expense of bill of interpleader, that stakeholders pay the money into court ; but stakeholders cannot make such motion, they not being parties to the suit. Belbee v. Belbee, 6 Madd. 28.

Gross Fraud.]—Defendant ordered to pay money into court before answer in a case of gross fraud appearing by affidavit of plaintiffs, and by defendant's affidavit in answer. Jervis v. White, 6 Ves. 738 ; 6 R. R. 26.

Trust Money.]—When a court of equity traces out trust money in the hands of a person who has not primâ facie a right to hold it, that money must be paid into court. Leigh v. Macaulay, 1 Y. & Coll. 260 ; 4 L. J., Ex. Eq. 37.

Agreement for Mining Lease — Lessee in Possession—Payment of Royalties into Court.]—The plaintiffs commenced an action against the defendant for specific performance of an agreement for a lease of a coal mine by the plaintiffs to the defendant at a royalty, as the plaintiffs alleged, of 10*d.* per ton. The defendant counterclaimed to have specific performance with a royalty of less amount. The defendant was in possession, and raising and selling large quantities of coal, but he alleged that he had expended on the mine more than the value of the coal raised. He also brought an action against the plaintiffs in the queen's bench division to obtain damages for misrepresentation, alleged to have been made to him for the purpose of inducing him to enter into the agreement, which action was still pending. The plaintiffs moved for an interlocutory order that the defendant might be ordered to pay into court the amount of royalties at 10*d.* per ton on the coal he had raised, but the court refused the motion : —Held, on appeal, that although it would not be right, while the rate of royalty was in dispute, to order the defendant to pay into court the amount of royalties at the rate claimed by the plaintiffs, he ought to be ordered to pay in the amount of royalties at the rate which he himself alleged to be the one agreed upon, and that as his carrying away coal diminished the value of the property, he would not have the usual option of giving up possession instead of paying money into court. Lewis v. James, 56 L. J., Ch. 163 ; 32 Ch. D. 326 ; 54 L. T. 260 ; 34 W. R. 619 ; 50 J. P. 423—C. A.

Admission of Liability—What Sufficient.]—The defendant, one of the trustees of a settlement, in letters written to the plaintiff, his co-trustee, before the commencement of this action for the administration of the trusts, admitted having received 300*l.*, part of the trust funds, and invested it in an unauthorised way. The plaintiff, after the defendant had appeared in the action, took out a summons to have the 300*l.* brought into court, and made an affidavit deposing that he had paid the money to the defendant, and stating the admissions contained in the defendant's letters as to its application. The defendant did not answer this affidavit or adduce any evidence, and the money was ordered into court on the ground that the letters were a sufficient admission within Ord. XXXII. r. 6. The defendant appealed :—Held, that, as the defendant had not met the affidavit, there was a sufficient admission that the money was in his hands, and that the appeal must be dismissed. Freeman v. Cox (8 Ch. D. 148) approved and followed. Per Fry, L.J., whether the letters were not a sufficient admission within Ord. XXXII. r. 6, quære. Porrett v. White, 55 L. J., Ch. 79 ; 31 Ch. D. 52 ; 53 L. T. 514 ; 34 W. R. 65 —C. A.

An admission of liability sufficient to support a motion for payment into court of such admitted sum may be made by the party ordered to pay the sum into court, or his agent, or gathered from their course of conduct, without necessarily appearing on the pleadings or affidavits in the action. London Syndicate v. Lord, 8 Ch. D. 84 ; 38 L. T. 329 ; 26 W. R. 427—C. A.

The non-appearance of a defendant in an administration action, who had been served with notice of a motion to order him to bring money into court, was held a sufficient admission to enable the court to make such order, though before judgment was given in the action, or accounts taken. Freeman v. Cox, 47 L. J., Ch. 560 ; 8 Ch. D. 148 ; 26 W. R. 689.

Motion by infant cestuis que trustent that their trustee might bring a fund into court allowed where, although he had not by his answer admitted their title, he had not denied it. Symonds v. Jenkins, 34 L. T. 277 ; 24 W. R. 512.

A defendant may be ordered to pay into court money which he has verbally admitted to be in his hands or under his control. Beeny, In re, Effrench v. Sproston, 63 L. J., Ch. 312 ; [1894] 1 Ch. 499 ; 70 L. T. 160 ; 42 W. R. 377.

Upon a motion that a defendant might be ordered to pay into court a sum of money which he had verbally admitted to be in his hands or under his control, an affidavit proving the admission was made by a clerk of the plaintiff's solicitors. A copy of the affidavit was served on the defendant with the notice of motion, which stated that the affidavit would be read on the hearing of the motion. The defendant did not answer the affidavit, and he did not appear on the hearing :—Held, that the defendant must be ordered to pay the money into court. Ib.

On an application for an order for payment of money into court, the court will not extend the doctrine of admissions that the defendant has the money in his hands further than it was carried in Freeman v. Cox (8 Ch. D. 148), where an affidavit of the plaintiff charging that the defendant had the money in his hands, not answered by the defendant, was held sufficient to justify an order. Neville v. Matthewman, 63 L. J., Ch. 734 ; [1894] 3 Ch. 345 ; 7 R. 511 ; 71 L. T. 282 ; 42 W. R. 675—C. A.

Under a settlement H. was absolutely entitled to a trust fund which had been invested on mortgage, but which was called in by J., the surviving trustee of the settlement, in August, 1883. At that date J. was in partnership with B. in the business of solicitors. The trust fund was, as H. alleged, paid by J. to and was received by J. & B.'s firm, and was paid into their banking account. In December, 1890, the partnership between J. & B. was dissolved by mutual consent, it being arranged that all debts due to and owing by that firm would be received and paid by B. Application having been made by H. to B. to produce a security shewing the proper investment of the trust fund, but without any satisfactory result, an action was brought by H. against J. & B., claiming that the trust fund should be paid into court, and consequential relief. There being an admission in B.'s defence and answer to interrogatories to the effect that the trust fund had been paid by J. into the banking account of the firm, thereby making the firm responsible for it, the usual order was made at chambers upon B. to pay the trust fund into court :—Held, that the discharge of the order made in chambers ought not to be granted, except on the terms of B. paying the money into court. Hollis v. Burton, [1892] 3 Ch. 226 ; 67 L. T. 146 ; 40 W. R. 610—C. A.

A defendant, whose affidavit filed on an inquiry discloses that he has money in his hands, may be ordered to pay it into court after decree, and before further consideration. Dunne v. English, L. R. 18 Eq. 524.

Money may be ordered into court, on motion, upon the ground of admission, as by schedules or books, containing an account of receipts and payments, and referred to so as to be part of the answer or examination. Mills v. Hanson, 8 Ves. 68.

The right of the plaintiff to have money in the defendant's hands paid into court must proceed on admissions in the answer made in reference to an equity raised by the bill, and not in reference to an independent equity stated only in the answer. Proudfoot v. Hume, 4 Beav. 476.

A railway company having powers over the line of another company, the special act for making the latter's line contains a provision that, in the event of such line not being completed within a specified time, that portion of the line within specified limits should belong to the company having such running powers, and be completed by them, they being repaid for any money advanced. The line is not completed, and the company enter and complete and work the line under the act, and subsequently agree in writing to give 6,000*l.* for the portion so completed, with interest at 5 per cent. A long correspondence takes place, and the money not being paid, a bill is filed for specific performance of the agreement. The answer admits that the 6,000*l.* and interest are owing, but submits a question of title. A motion is then made for payment of the 6,000*l.* and interest into court, admitted on the answer to be due :—Held, that, this not being the simple case of vendor and purchaser, but of a company being in possession under a parliamentary power, no order for payment into court could be made, and motion refused, but the costs reserved until the hearing. Northern Counties Union Ry. v. N. E. Ry., 6 W. R. 122.

An order will not be made under r. 6 of Ord. XXXII., in an action for money lent, unless there is a clear admission that the debt is due and recoverable in the action in which the admission is made :—Quære, whether the words "or otherwise" in r. 6 refer only to cases in which notice has been given under r. 1 or r. 4 of Ord. XXXII. Landergan v. Feast, 55 L. T. 42 ; 34 W. R. 691—C. A. Reversing 55 L. J., Ch. 505.

Trust funds may be ordered to be brought into court by the trustee, an accounting party, upon admissions contained in letters written before action brought that he has received the money, and a recital to that effect contained in the settlement, his execution of which, as trustee, has been proved, although there is no formal admission in his pleadings or affidavits that he has received and holds the money. Hampden v. Wallis, 54 L. J., Ch. 1175 ; 27 Ch. D. 251 ; 51 L. T. 357 ; 32 W. R. 977. See also Porrett v. White, supra.

Money "in the hands" of Executors or Trustees—Money parted with before Application.]—Although trustees or executors are proved to have received trust money, and have not properly discharged themselves thereof, an order for payment of the money into court cannot be made upon them under Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. LV. r. 3 (d) (or Ord. XLVIII. r. 3 (d) of the Palatine Rules, which is in the same terms), unless when the application is made the money is actually in their hands. Chapman, In re, Fardell v. Chapman (54 L. T. 13), disapproved. Nutter v. Holland, 63 L. J., Ch. 932 ; [1894] 3 Ch. 408 ; 7 R. 491 ; 71 L. T. 508 ; 43 W. R. 18—C. A. See Anon., 1 L. J. (o.s.) Ch. 21.

In an action for an account against trustees, the trustees will not, upon motion, be ordered to pay money into court, unless it is actually in their hands :—Quære, whether the circumstances under which money has been parted with may not render the rule inapplicable. Neville v. Matthewman ([1894] 3 Ch. 345) and Nutter v.

Holland ([1894] 3 Ch. 408), discussed and applied. Crompton and Evans Union Bank v. Burton, 64 L. J., Ch. 811; [1895] 2 Ch. 711; 13 R. 792; 73 L. T. 181; 44 W. R. 60.

—— Discretion as to Order.]—The court has a discretion as to the making of an order requiring a trustee to pay into court trust money, which he admits having received and applied in an unauthorised manner. Wright, In re, Kirke v. North, 65 L. J., Ch. 37; [1895] 2 Ch. 747; 13 R. 849; 73 L. T. 396; 44 W. R. 125.

Application by whom made—Title of Plaintiff.]—An application under Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. XXXII. r. 6, for an order in an action upon admissions of fact by a defendant cannot be made by some only of the plaintiffs, but must be made by them all. Ib.

General rule as to payment of money into court is that the plaintiffs must be solely entitled, or have such an interest jointly with others as to entitle them, on behalf of themselves and of those others, to have the fund secured. Freeman v. Farlie, 3 Mer. 29; 17 R. R. 7.

The court will not order money into court if the title of the party applying is at all doubtful. Neither will it order a fund, standing to the credit of a cause between A. and B., to be transferred to the joint credit of that and another cause, in which it is claimed by C. adversely to both A. and B., unless C. has a perfectly clear title to the fund. St. Victor v. Devereux, 13 Sim. 641.

In moving upon admissions in an answer for the payment of money into court, the plaintiff may shew that, upon the case stated in the answer, he has an interest in the sum in question, though the defendant in his answer expressly denies that the plaintiff has any such interest. Domville v. Solley, 2 Russ. 372.

On a motion to pay money into court, the court does not require the plaintiff to produce any absolute admission of title, but merely such a probability of title as it can safely act on. M'Hardy v. Hitchcock, 11 Beav. 73.

Money will not be ordered to be brought into court upon motion before decree, unless it appears clearly upon the answer to belong to the plaintiff. Hagell v. Currie, L. R. 2 Ch. 449; 16 L. T. 309; 15 W. R. 605.

Persons not before the Court.]—On an application for payment of money into court, it was objected that persons having an interest were not before the court. The order was made on the undertaking of the plaintiff to make them parties. Whitmarsh v. Robertson, 4 Beav. 26.

Unless all persons interested in a fund are before the court, an order for payment of it into court will not be made on an undertaking by the plaintiff to make them parties, except perhaps in cases of administration or creditors' suits. Marriage v. Royal Exchange Assurance Co., 18 L. J., Ch. 216.

The court, on application by petition to allow a sum, which had been awarded under the 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 45, by the commissioners, to be paid into court dispensed with the service of the petition on all the parties to the cause. Lushington v. Sewell, 5 L. J., Ch. 1.

An order may be made for payment of money into court, although some of the persons interested in the money are not before the court. Wilton v. Hill, 2 De G. M. & G. 807.

Upon an application against trustees by a person interested in the assets, to transfer the trust fund into court, and the bill shewing on the face of it that other individuals have interests in the fund, all the parties beneficially interested in the fund must be served with notice of the motion. Lewellin v. Cobbold, 17 Jur. 1111.

Amount to be paid in.]—Payment of money into court, after a decree and report, ordered upon admissions in the answer, the defendant being at liberty to discharge himself of any part of the sums so admitted by an affidavit of subsequent receipts and payments. Anon., 1 L. J. (o.s.) Ch. 72.

The court, in ordering a defendant to pay money into court for which he has improperly taken credit, cannot go beyond the sum specified in the plaintiff's notice of motion; and the defendant claiming a balance due to him:—Held, that he was entitled to have it deducted from the amount of those items. Nokes v. Seppings, 1 Coop. C. C. 194. And see Cases cited there.

The court will not make an order upon a defendant to pay money, upon an admission in his answer that he has received a large sum of money (specifying the amount), coupled with a claim of lien on it for travelling expenses, post-chaise hire or otherwise. Law v. Hunter, 1 L. J. (o.s.) Ch. 222.

Interest.] — After the usual decree for an account, order on motion to pay into court the amount of the principal sums, admitted to be due by examination upon interrogatories, not extended to interest. Wood v. Downes, 1 Ves. & B. 49.

A party ordered to pay costs and make other payments into court, but to be indemnified out of the fund in court:—Held, entitled to interest on all sums paid for costs or otherwise. Wainman v. Bowker, 8 Beav. 363.

Prospective Order.]—The court will not make a prospective order for liberty to pay into court moneys which may be awarded by the commissioners; the order ought not to precede the adjudication under the Slave Compensation Act. Dickinson v. Jones, 5 L. J., Ch. 3.

Prospective order, enabling parties to pay in money from time to time to the credit of the cause, obviating the necessity of a repetition of the order for the same purpose. Hutchinson v. Hutchinson, 9 Hare (App.) lxxxi.

Where there is no fund in court, no order can be made prospectively to deal with purchase-moneys for estate contracted to be sold but not paid for. Bowes, In re, 10 L. T. 90; 12 W. R. 569.

Practice.]—If sum be reported due, and exceptions are taken to report, the money will not, on motion, be ordered to be paid into court. Creak v. Capell, 6 Madd. 114; 22 R. R. 252.

It is competent to the court, on the hearing of exceptions, at the same time it allows an exception taken by the defendant, and directs the master to review his report generally, to order the defendant to pay a sum of money into court, if it is satisfied that ultimately that sum will be found due from the defendant. Brown v. De Tastet, 4 Russ. 126; 28 R. R. 25.

Practice settled to move on examination, admitting money due, for payment into court before the cause is set down for further directions. Hatch v. ——, 19 Ves. 117.

It is not the practice to order the payment of money into court upon motion made after the decree in a cause, and before the hearing for further directions, founded merely on admissions in the answer. Binns v. Parr, 7 Hare, 288; 19 L. J., Ch. 401; 14 Jur. 326.

A plaintiff cannot, after decree, obtain an order for the defendant to pay money into court upon admissions contained in his answer. He must proceed on the examination or report. Wright v. Lukes, 13 Beav. 107; 20 L. J., Ch. 32.

Effect of Payment into Court.]—Payment to the solicitor for all parties in the suit is equivalent to payment into court. Price v. North, 2 Y. & Coll. 620; 7 L. J., Ex. Eq. 9.

Money paid into court upon an injunction and laid out, is security, and not payment. Broughton v. Pitchford, 6 Madd. 295.

Enforcement of Order—Receiver.]—Under the general power to appoint receivers given by the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, sub-s. 8, and having regard to Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. XLII. rr. 4 and 28, the court has jurisdiction to enforce a judgment for payment of money into court by a defaulting trustee, by the appointment of a receiver of his equitable interest in property in this country; and order accordingly where, from the debtor being out of the jurisdiction, service of a writ of attachment could not be effected. Coney, In re, Coney v. Bennett, 54 L. J., Ch. 1130; 28 Ch. D. 993; 52 L. T. 961; 33 W. R. 701.

An order was made against the defendants in an action, who were defaulting trustees for the payment of money into court. The defendants having failed to comply with such order, an application was made by the plaintiffs that a writ of attachment might issue against them. At the defendants' instance, however, the court made an order allowing payment by weekly instalments. L., one of the defendants, had made an affidavit on that occasion, stating that all the property he possessed was the furniture in his house. It subsequently transpired that L. had executed bills of sale affecting the furniture, but that the plaintiffs, in other proceedings, had successfully disputed the validity of such bills of sale. An application was accordingly made on behalf of the plaintiffs for the appointment of a receiver of the furniture by way of equitable execution. For the defendant L. it was contended that the legal and proper remedy of the plaintiffs was by sequestration, and that the court had no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver: —Held, that although, under r. 4 of Ord. XLII. of the Rules of Court, 1883, sequestration was the appropriate remedy, yet under s. 25, sub-s. 8, of the Judicature Act, 1873, the court had jurisdiction to appoint a receiver if it appeared just or convenient so to do; and that, in the present case, it was just and convenient to appoint a receiver, and that an order must be made accordingly. Whiteley, In re, Whiteley v. Learoyd, 56 L. T. 846.

—— Person not Party.]—An order for payment of money against a person not a party to the cause is to be enforced, not by attachment, but by another order directing the payment within a short definite time, or in default that the party do stand committed. Vickery v. Stocker, 3 Bro. C. C. 372.

Mode of enforcing payment of a sum of money under an order of the court against one not a party to the cause. Duffield v. Elwes, 2 Beav. 268.

Writ of execution, only in the case of a party to cause, a stranger must be served first with an order to pay the money by a given day, and, in case of default, with an order to pay on another day, or stand committed. Anon., 14 Ves. 207.

—— Person a Party.]—After an order upon a party in the cause for payment of money, the proper course is an attachment, and, upon the return to that, an order for commitment. Bowes v. Strathmore (Lord), 12 Ves. 325.

An order for payment of a sum of money by one defendant to another was enforced, pending an abatement of the suit by the death of the plaintiff. Jones v. Williams, C. P. Coop. 488.

—— Revived Suit.]—Where the decree or order in the original suit contains a specific direction, as that the defendant shall pay a certain sum of money, that direction cannot be carried into execution in the revived suit by a mere order to revive, but a decree must be made in the revived suit for that purpose. Harries v. Johnson, 3 Y. & Coll. 583.

—— Irish Order.]—An attachment may issue in this country to enforce an order for payment of money made in Ireland, on petition under the Irish Incumbered Estates Act. Keogh, In re, 5 De G. M. & G. 73; 23 L. J., Ch. 547; 18 Jur. 321.

1. Generally.

a. On Payment or Satisfaction.

Where Writ Indorsed for larger Debt than due.]—If a plaintiff indorses on the writ a larger debt than is due, by which the defendant is misled, and prevented from settling the action, the court will stay the proceedings, on payment of the real debt, with the costs of the writ only; but the application must be made promptly after the particulars are delivered. Elliston v. Robinson, 2 D. P. C. 241; 2 C. & M. 343; 4 Tyr. 214.

Within what Time Application made.]—An application to stay proceedings on payment of debt and costs, must be made within four days after service of process. Bowbridge or Bowditch v. Slaney, 2 Scott, 197; 2 Bing. (N.C.) 142; 4 D. P. C. 140; 1 Hodges, 224.

Before Declaration—Payment in Certain Time.]—A judge has no power before declaration to order that proceedings be stayed upon payment of debt and costs within a certain time, otherwise judgment for the plaintiff. Reynolds v. Sherwood, 8 D. P. C. 183; 9 L. J., Ex. 136; 4 Jur. 27.

Judgment on First Writ arrested for Irregularity.] — Where judgment was arrested, on account of a defect in the declaration, and the plaintiff's attorney, on the evening of the same day, served the defendant's attorney with a copy of a writ of summons for the same claim as that in respect of which the judgment was arrested, the court made a rule absolute for setting aside the writ with costs, on payment of the money due within twenty-four hours. Hayter v. Moat, 5 D. P. C. 329; 2 M. & W. 56; 6 L. J., Ex. 32.

Submission to Reasonable Terms.]—A defendant who moves to stay proceedings on payment of debt and costs, is not entitled to a rule for that purpose as a matter of right, but must submit to such reasonable terms as the court in its discretion may think proper to grant. Jones v. Shepherd, 3 D. P. C. 421.

Within what Time Payment to be made.]—A judge, who stays proceedings on payment of debt and costs, cannot, without the plaintiff's consent, allow the defendant longer time for the payment than he would be entitled to by law. Kirby v. Ellier, 2 C. & M. 315; 4 Tyr. 239; 2 D. P. C. 219; 3 L. J., Ex. 63.

A judge has no authority, without the consent of the plaintiff, to make an order to stay proceedings in an action, upon payment of the debt and costs on a subsequent day. Norton v. Fraser, 2 Man. & G. 916; 3 Scott (N.R.) 293.

When an order is obtained to stay proceedings on payment of debt and costs, to be taxed, the defendant is not bound to pay the debt and costs immediately on the allocatur being made, but is entitled to a reasonable time to procure the money for that purpose. Perkins v. National Insurance and Investment Association, 2 H. & N. 71; 26 L. J., Ex. 182; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 371; 5 W. R. 470.

The debt and costs indorsed on a writ were received by a clerk of plaintiff's attorney after the expiration of the four days:—Held, that the attorney, not having offered to return the money, was not entitled to go on with the action for the recovery of further costs. Hodding v. Sturchfield, 7 Man. & G. 957; 8 Scott (N.R.) 662; 2 D. & L. 596; 14 L. J., C. P. 33; 8 Jur. 988.

On motion of defendant before answer, it was ordered that reference be made to master to ascertain debt, &c., claimed by the bill, the same to be paid by a given day, and the suit to be stayed; and, if not paid, plaintiff's costs given him, and plaintiff at liberty to proceed in the cause. Boys v. Ford, 4 Madd. 40.

Offer of all Relief entitled to.]—A legatee who had incumbered his legacy, filed his bill, before the legacy was payable, against the trustees and executors of the will, and against his own incumbrancers, alleging that the trustees had committed a breach of trust in not selling certain property; contesting also the claim of one of his incumbrancers, and praying that the property might be secured, that certain accounts might be taken between the plaintiff and the incumbrancer whose claim he contested, and that, according to the result of those accounts, the legacy might be paid; and asking that the trustees might be ordered to pay the costs of the suit. The trustees admitted the breach of trust, but stated that the time for payment of the legacy having now arrived they were ready to pay the said legacy into court. Upon motion now, by the defendants, the trustees, and all the other defendants interested under the will, that upon payment by the trustees into court of the said legacy, with interest at the rate of 5*l.* per cent. per annum, from the day the legacy became payable, and the costs of the suit up to and including the motion, the suit might be dismissed as against the defendants moving:—Held, granting the motion, that this offer of the defendants was, in substance, giving the plaintiff all that he asked, for it gave all that by possibility could be coming to the plaintiff from the trustees of the will. Sawyer v. Mills, 19 L. J., Ch. 242; 13 Jur. 1061.

Where a defendant out of court has conceded the relief asked by the bill, the court, on motion by the plaintiff, stayed all proceedings in the cause, and ordered the defendant to pay the costs of the suit. North v. G. N. Ry., 2 Giff. 64; 29 L. J., Ch. 301; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 244.

Matter otherwise Settled.] — When the matters in dispute have been disposed of by an independent proceeding, the plaintiff may apply to stay proceedings, and the court will then dispose of the costs. But where the suit has been dismissed against some of the defendants for want of prosecution, the court is no longer able to adjudicate as to the costs, in the absence of the dismissed parties; and in default of prosecution, the bill will be dismissed in the usual way, with costs. Troward v. Attwood, 27 Beav. 85.

Defendant must wholly Satisfy Claim.]—Where a debt is claimed or a demand made in a suit, and the defendant, admitting his liability, offers to pay the debt, or comply with the demand, and to put the plaintiff in the same situation as he would have been in if the liability had been satisfied without suit, the court, on motion, will stay all further proceedings. Holden v. Kynaston, 2 Beav. 204; 9 L. J., Ch. 198. See Miller v. Drury, 12 L. T. 464.

After a suit to carry out the trusts of a deed for sale of estates, and payment of debts, was nearly ready for hearing, proceedings were stayed on paying the plaintiff all his claims in it (the other parties to the deed consenting), though the plaintiff alleged the suit would affect other objects in reference to the estate in which he was interested. Damer v. Portarlington (Earl), 2 Ph. 30; 1 Coop. C. C. 229; 15 L. J., Ch. 405; 10 Jur. 673.

Where the defendant submits to pay the whole demand of the plaintiff, the court stays the proceedings; but if there be a question in dispute as to the plaintiff's right to recover certain expenses, and the defendant does not submit thereto, the court will not interfere summarily and stop the suit. Field v. Robinson, 7 Beav. 66.

Where all questions but one in a suit had been settled, the proceedings in the suit were stayed, subject to the determination of that one point in chambers. Graham v. Uppleby, 1 W. R. 74.

A suit will not be stayed upon an interlocutory application by a defendant paying into court all that a plaintiff claims by his bill, and leaving a portion of the claim to be adjudicated upon in a cross-suit. The defendant in the first suit must wholly satisfy the claims of the plaintiff. Orton v. Bainbrigge, 22 L. J., Ch. 979; 1 W. R. 487.

—— Further Demand.]—A defendant offering the plaintiff all the relief specifically sought by his bill, moved to dismiss the bill without costs, or that the plaintiff might apply respecting them. The plaintiff then insisted on a further demand, which might be had under the prayer for general relief or by amendment. The court refused the motion with costs, but intimated that this proceeding must be considered at the hearing. Hennet v. Luard, 12 Beav. 479.

Application by Plaintiff — Costs.] — On a defendant submitting to a plaintiff's demands, the plaintiff ought not to bring the cause to a hearing without first applying for the defendant's consent to have the costs disposed of on motion. But if the defendant objects to that course, a motion that the defendant may pay the costs of the suit will be refused. Morgan v. G. E. Ry., 1 Hem. & M. 78; 11 W. R. 662.

A plaintiff, having obtained from the defendant satisfaction of his demand before the cause is in such a state that a decree can be made, cannot without the defendant's consent apply to stay proceedings on the defendant's paying costs. Wilde v. Wilde, 4 De G. F. & J. 348; 6 L. T. 275; 10 W. R. 503.

The plaintiff's solicitor wrote to the defendants complaining of delay in completing a contract of purchase, and saying, that, unless an early day was appointed, he was instructed to take steps at once to enforce completion of the contract. A few days afterwards the defendants wrote in reply, making an appointment for the following week, which the plaintiff's solicitor, two days after, agreed to, at the same time stating that he had filed a bill for specific performance. The bill was filed on the same day, but was being printed two days previously. The defendants having refused to pay the costs of the bill, the plaintiff moved to stay all further proceedings, and for the defendants to pay the costs of the suit. The court stayed proceedings in the suit, but directed the plaintiff to pay the costs of the suit and of the motion. Chester v. Metropolitan Ry., 11 Jur. (N.S.) 214; 11 L. T. 669; 13 W. R. 333.

Motion by plaintiffs to stay proceedings, and that defendants might pay costs of suit, the object of which had been gained, refused without the consent of defendants. M'Naughton v. Hasker, 12 Jur. 956.

All the purposes of a suit having been answered the plaintiff moved, before answer, that his costs might be taxed and paid by the defendant, and that thereupon all further proceedings might be stayed. Motion refused. Langham v. G. N. Ry., 16 Sim. 173; 1 De G. & Sm. 486; 17 L. J., Ch. 436; 12 Jur. 574.

A railway company claimed a lien on certain coal waggons in their possession belonging to B., and threatened to sell them; B. thereupon filed a bill to restrain the sale and detention of such waggons. By arrangement, the company agreed not to sell them until after a specified day. Subsequently to that B. brought trover and detinue against the company, and in that action he recovered possession of the coal waggons from the company. No further proceedings had been taken in the suit instituted in equity. Upon motion by B., the court ordered all proceedings in the suit in equity to be stayed, and the costs of such suit to be paid by the company. North v. G. N. Ry., 2 Giff. 64; 29 L. J., Ch. 301; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 244.

Where, since filing a bill the object of a suit has been substantially obtained, the court will, on the application of the plaintiff, stay further proceedings, and, if a proper case is made, order the defendant to pay the costs of the suit. Thompson v. Knight, 7 Jur. (N.S.) 704; 4 L. T. 863; 9 W. R. 780.

Where Plaintiff declines and proceeds.]—Upon a summons to stay proceedings on payment of a certain sum and costs, if the plaintiff refuses to take the amount offered in discharge of his claim, but afterwards accepts it, there is no absolute rule which entitles the defendant to his costs incurred subsequently to the summons. Walton v. Brown, 3 H. & N. 879; 28 L. J., Ex. 38.

Where a plaintiff refuses a sum of money tendered through the medium of a judge's summons, in satisfaction of his claim, he is deprived of his costs subsequently to such refusal, in the absence of evidence of oppression; and his afterwards taking out of court, in satisfaction of his claim, a sum very slightly exceeding the amount so tendered is not such primâ facie evidence of oppression as will deprive him of costs. To be such evidence, the sum so taken out of court must not exceed at all the sum tendered. Shaw v. Hughes, 15 C. B. 660; 24 L. J., C. P. 84; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 186.

Where a defendant takes out a summons to stay proceedings on payment of an admitted debt, which the plaintiff declines to receive, claiming more, in order to disentitle the latter to the costs of the cause, the defendant must bring the money into court. Hore v. Sawl, 17 C. B. 599; 25 L. J., C. P. 181.

Where, after writ issued, the defendant applies to a judge to stay proceedings on payment of a certain sum and costs, and the plaintiff refuses to accept the sum offered, alleging that more is due, but, at the trial, recovers no more, he is entitled to full costs unless the amount offered has been paid into court. Clark v. Dann, 3 D. & L. 513.

Payment of Interest and Costs.]—A joint and several bond was conditioned for the payment of interest half-yearly, and of the principal after six months' notice. Default having been made in one payment of interest, through inadvertence, as was said, the obligee gave notice to repay the principal, and the next day brought actions on the bond against each of the obligors:—Held, that the court had no power to stay those actions on payment of the interest and costs. Wheelhouse v. Ladbrooke, 3 H. & N. 291; 27 L. J., Ex. 307; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 407; 6 W. R. 488.

Unliquidated Damages.]—An order cannot be made for staying proceedings on payment of debt and costs for unliquidated damages. Fisher v. Pyne, 1 Man. & G. 265.

Nor, in any action to recover a sum due from a third person, with the costs of certain proceedings against that third person, the payment of which the defendant has guaranteed. Ib.

A plaintiff in an action against his lessee for breaches of covenant, claimed by his particulars of demand a specific sum for dilapidations:—Held, that the defendant might have that part of the demand struck out of the declaration on payment of the sum claimed and costs. Smith v. King, 3 M. & Scott, 799.

After Verdict.]—In an action for breach of contract in not accepting goods, the defendant pleaded several pleas, but the plaintiff obtained a verdict on all the issues, with damages, whereupon the defendant, before judgment signed, obtained a rule nisi to stay proceedings on the payment of the amount of the verdict and costs, to be taxed:—Held, that there was no precedent for the rule, and, therefore, as it was opposed, that it must be discharged; but that the application was a reasonable one, and therefore the rule was discharged without costs. Peat v. Mangnall, 2 B. C. Rep. 325; 6 D. & L. 261; 18 L. J., Q. B. 5; 13 Jur. 62.

Joint Contractors—Payment by One.]—Where two joint contractors having been sued separately for the same debt, and neither having pleaded in abatement, one of them, after verdict against the other, pays the debt and costs in the action against himself, the other is entitled to have proceedings in the action against him stayed without payment of costs. Bailey v. Haines, 15 Q. B. 533; 19 L. J., Q. B. 402; 14 Jur. 835.

Where separate actions were brought against several, for the same debt, who (if at all) were jointly liable, the defendant in one action having paid the debt and costs in that action, the court stayed the proceedings in the other's without costs. Carne v. Legh, 6 B. & C. 124; 9 D. & R. 126.

Two separate actions having been brought against two joint contractors in respect of the same demand, and the debt and costs in one action having been paid, a judge made an order staying the proceedings in the other action, without costs:—The court refused to rescind or vary the order. Newton v. Blunt, 3 C. B. 675; 4 D. & L. 674; 5 Railw. Cas. 29; 16 L. J., C. P. 121.

In Ejectment.]—See EJECTMENT.

b. On the Ground of Breach of Faith.

Arrangement between Parties.]—A declaration contained a count for libel, and two for malicious prosecution. The cause was tried in 1852, and a verdict found for the plaintiff, with 5*l.* damages for the libel, and 15*l.* for the malicious prosecution. The defendant obtained a rule nisi for a new trial, upon the ground of misdirection in respect of the malicious prosecution, and the court was ready to make the rule absolute, but suggested an arrangement between the parties. It was accordingly arranged that the rule for a new trial should be discharged, the plaintiff undertaking to enter a nolle prosequi to the count for malicious prosecution. The costs were taxed, and, with the 5*l.* damages, paid to the plaintiff. In 1855 the plaintiff commenced another action for malicious prosecution, upon the same facts:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to stay all further proceedings therein. Ponting v. Watson, 1 Jur. (N.S.) 1139. See Piercy v. Cox, 2 L. T. 219.

In an action for a libel the attorney for the defendant agreed with the attorney for the plaintiff that the action should be settled by the defendant writing a letter of retractation, and such letter had been sent just before the spring assizes, with a condition that the letter which formed the libel should be given up, which had not been done, and the plaintiff not having been privy to the agreement afterwards changed his attorney and gave notice of trial for the summer assizes:—Held, that the settlement having been conditional was not binding, and that the lapse of time was not sufficient to preclude the plaintiff from going on. Webster v. Acton, 11 W. R. 114.

An action having been brought to recover a sum of money, it was agreed that the defendants should withdraw their plea, and all further proceedings be stayed upon the terms that they should insure and keep insured a certain ship. The ship was accordingly insured for a certain voyage, and on the expiration of the policies, slips for other policies were signed, but the policies themselves were not effected until three days after the expiration of the former policy. The plaintiff having signed judgment, and issued execution for his debt on the ground of a breach of the agreement:—Held, that the slips of policies were not a binding legal insurance, and that he was entitled to retain his judgment. Parry v. Great Ship Co., 4 B. & S. 556; 33 L. J., Q. B. 41; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 294; 9 L. T. 379; 12 W. R. 78.

On a compromise a plaintiff agreed "not to bring any action":—Held, that this included not only actions for the very wrong in question, but also actions for wrongs incident thereto, and applied not only to actions against the then defendant, but also to actions brought against the defendant's agents in doing the alleged wrong. Proceedings stayed as contrary to good faith. Kelly v. Falls, 16 W. R. 136.

On a trial in the exchequer, a juror was withdrawn by consent. Afterwards the plaintiff sued the defendant in the court of King's Bench for the same cause of action. That court stayed the proceedings, as being contrary to good faith, although the plaintiff, who had conducted the first cause for himself, and was not a lawyer, deposed that he did not know that the arrangement would debar him from bringing a second action. Moscati v. Lawson, 4 A. & E. 331.

Every court has an unlimited power over its own process, and may stay proceedings brought against good faith, though the agreement, in fraud of which the action was brought, was made whilst the parties were not under the authority of the court. Cocker v. Tempest, 7 M. & W. 502; 9 D. P. C. 306; 10 L. J., Ex. 195.

Till Delivery of Copy of Document surreptitiously obtained.]—A plaintiff, who had delivered to A., as B.'s attorney, a bill in which he made B. his debtor, afterwards obtained the bill surreptitiously from A., and delivering a new bill for the same charges, in which he made A. his debtor, sued A. for the amount. The court stayed proceedings till the plaintiff should deliver to A. a copy of the paper surreptitiously obtained from him: the copy to be evidence in the cause. Edgington v. Nixon, 2 Scott, 507; 2 Bing. (N.C.) 316.

Money received under Compromise—Subsequent Repudiation.]—The plaintiff, having commenced an action to recover the sum of 4,500*l.* under a policy of insurance, entered into an agreement with an agent of the defendants to compromise the action upon certain terms, one of which was that 2,350*l.* should be paid to the plaintiff at once, which sum was paid. The defendants subsequently asserted that the agreement to compromise was made without authority, and did not bind them; the plaintiff accepted this repudiation, and proceeded with his action upon the policy, giving credit for the 2,350*l.* so paid to him. The divisional court, upon the application of the defendants, made an order staying the action until the plaintiff paid into court, or secured, the sum of 2,350*l.*:—Held, that it would be a breach of faith for the plaintiff to retain the sum received by him under the abandoned compromise, and at the same time to proceed with his action, and that the action was properly stayed until he paid into court, or secured, that sum. Henderson v. Underwriting Association, 65 L. T. 732—C. A.

Under s. 24 of the Judicature Act, 1873, an agreement between the parties to an action to stay further proceedings upon specified terms can be enforced upon a summary application. Eden v. Naish, 47 L. J., Ch. 325; 7 Ch. D. 781; 26 W. R. 392.

Covenant not to sue for Restitution of Conjugal Rights.]—In a suit for restitution of conjugal rights, the respondent moved for an injunction and stay of proceedings, upon affidavit shewing that the petitioner was bound by deed not to institute such a suit:—Held, that such a defence must be alleged by plea, and afforded no ground for summary dismissal of the suit. Marshall v. Marshall, 48 L. J., P. 49; 5 P. D. 19; 39 L. T. 640; 27 W. R. 399.

Upon such defence being subsequently alleged by plea:—Held, that it was such an equitable plea as the divorce court since the judicature acts is bound to consider. Ib.

Defendant receiving Letter not to pay except to Order of Plaintiff.]—Where a defendant was sued for the price of goods after he had received a letter from the plaintiff, who was abroad, not to pay except to his written order, the court ordered proceedings to be stayed on the money being brought into court, although the defendant had pleaded the facts by way of defence. Newton v. Matthews, 4 D. P. C. 237.

Application must be made Promptly.]—Where proceedings are taken against good faith, the party must come promptly to set them aside as in the case of an irregularity. Saunders v. Jones, 3 D. & L. 770; 15 L. J., Q. B. 272.

c. When Action Frivolous or Vexatious.

Vexatious Actions Act, 1896.]—In making an order under the act, the court will look at the number, general character, and result of the actions brought; and, if these have been of a vexatious character habitually and persistently instituted without reasonable ground, an order will be made. Chaffers, In re, Att.-Gen., Ex parte, 76 L. T. 351; 45 W. R. 365.

Inherent Jurisdiction.]—There is an inherent jurisdiction in the high court to strike out a defence which is frivolous and vexatious, and an abuse of the procedure. Reichel v. Magrath, 59 L. J., Q. B. 159; 14 App. Cas. 665; 54 J. P. 196—H. L. (E.)

The appellant brought an action against his bishop and the patrons of a benefice, claiming a declaration that he was vicar of the benefice, and that an instrument of resignation which he had executed was void, and an injunction to restrain the bishop from instituting, and the patrons from presenting, any other person to the benefice. The action was tried, and judgment was given against the appellant on the ground that the vicarage was void by reason of his resignation thereof with the consent of the bishop. Afterwards the respondent, having been duly appointed to the benefice as the appellant's successor, brought an action against the appellant, claiming a declaration that the respondent was vicar, and a perpetual injunction to restrain the appellant from depriving the respondent of the use and occupation of the house and lands. In his defence the appellant set up the same case as that on which he had been defeated in the action in which he was plaintiff:—Held, that there was an inherent jurisdiction in the court to strike out the defence as frivolous and vexatious, and an abuse of the procedure, and to enter judgment for the plaintiff with a declaration and injunction as claimed. Ib.

The exercise by a court of its inherent jurisdiction to dismiss an action as an abuse of its process is not justified merely by great improbability in the case made by the pleadings. But all the circumstances may be considered. Laurance v. Norreys (Lord) 59 L. J., Ch. 681; 15 App. Cas. 210; 62 L. T. 706; 38 W. R. 753; 54 J. P. 708—H. L. (E.)

Where, in a statement of claim, a charge of concealed fraud, within s. 26 of the Statute of Limitations (3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 27), was stated vaguely and generally, and previous litigation with reference to the same subject-matter led to the conclusion, which was confirmed by an affidavit filed on the plaintiff's behalf, that the allegations were an afterthought and wholly incapable of proof:—Held, that the action was properly dismissed as an abuse of the process of the court. Ib.

The Queen's Bench Division has an innate and inherent authority to dismiss or stay a frivolous or a vexatious action. This authority is distinct from the authority conferred on it by Ord. XXV. r. 4, which is limited to pleadings which are frivolous or vexatious or otherwise objectionable. Blair v. Cordner, 36 W. R. 64.

The Probate Division has, apart from Ord. XXV. r. 4, an inherent jurisdiction, in common with other courts, to stay proceedings which are frivolous and vexatious, and an abuse of the process of the court. Willis v. Beauchamp (Earl), 55 L. J., P. 17; 11 P. D. 59; 54 L. T. 185; 34 W. R. 357—C. A.

An action was brought to obtain revocation of letters of administration granted in 1798, the plaintiff claiming to represent the next of kin of the intestate, and the defendants being the representatives of the deceased administrator:—Held, that, having regard to the lapse of time, the fact that the defendants did not and could not succeed to the administration sought to be revoked, and the other circumstances of the case, the action was frivolous and vexatious, and must be dismissed. Ib.

Although it is the right of a plaintiff to have his action decided by a jury, the court will stay all proceedings if it is satisfied that the bringing of such action is an abuse of the process of the court. Jacobs v. Raven, 30 L. T. 366.

Actions were brought, charging the defendants with conspiring to make, and making, false statements respecting the plaintiff, an officer in the army, to the commander-in-chief, whereby he was placed on half-pay. Upon an application to stay the actions as frivolous and vexatious, and an abuse of the process of the court, it was stated in the defendants' affidavits that the actions were for acts done by them in the due course of their duty as members of a military court of inquiry, and this was not denied by the plaintiff:—Held, that the actions ought to be stayed, on the ground that Dawkins v. Rokeby (Lord) (L. R. 7 H. L. 744) was a case directly in point that an action under such circumstances would not lie. Dawkins v. Saxe Weimar (Prince), 45 L. J., Q. B. 567; 1 Q. B. D. 499; 35 L. T. 323; 24 W. R. 670.

When an action is shewn to be vexatious, and an abuse of the process of the court, it will be stayed on summons. Edmunds v. Att.-Gen., 47 L. J., Ch. 345; 38 L. T. 213; 26 W. R. 550.

A public servant who had formerly held the office of clerk of the patents, but to whom no pension had ever been granted, brought an action against the attorney-general, claiming a pension in respect of such office, and to have an account taken of all moneys due to him in respect thereof. All matters of account between him and the crown had been finally settled by the award of arbitrators in 1869:—Held, that the action must be stayed as being frivolous and vexatious, and an abuse of the process of the court. Ib.

Alternative—Terms.]—A judge ought not to make an order dismissing an action as frivolous and vexatious, with the alternative that the plaintiff may proceed on payment of a sum of money into court by way of security for the defendant's costs, if the latter should get a verdict. Per Wills, J. Mittens v. Foreman, 58 L. J., Q. B. 40.

Malicious Prosecution—Action against Trustee in Bankruptcy.]—An action for malicious prosecution ought not be stayed as frivolous and vexatious on the ground that the defendant is the trustee under the plaintiff's bankruptcy and has prosecuted him by order of the court under s. 16 of the Debtors Act, 1869. Mittens v. Foreman, 58 L. J., Q. B. 40.

Foreclosure—Second Action for Interest.]—Since the judicature acts, it is the practice in foreclosure actions to make a personal order for payment of the sum found due for principal and interest. A second action, brought to recover arrears of interest on the mortgage while the foreclosure action is still pending, will be stayed as vexatious. Poulett v. Hill, 62 L. J., Ch. 466; [1893] 1 Ch. 277; 2 R. 288; 68 L. T. 476; 41 W. R. 503—C. A.

Res Judicata.]—In an action brought by the plaintiff against the defendant for libel in respect of the publication of a pamphlet purporting to be the judgment delivered in court in a certain action between the parties, the jury found that the pamphlet was a fair, honest, and accurate report of the judgment, and was published without malice, and judgment was accordingly entered for the defendant. The plaintiff afterwards commenced a second action for libel in respect of the same pamphlet, but relying upon defamatory passages in the pamphlet other than those relied upon in the first action. The different defamatory statements, however, relied upon in both actions were all spoken of the plaintiff in the same character:—Held, that the subject-matter was res judicata, and that an order striking out the statement of claim and dismissing the action was rightly made. Held, also (assuming the matter was not res judicata, the defamatory passages relied upon in the two actions not being the same), that the second action was an abuse of the process of the court, and ought to be dismissed. Macdougall v. Knight, 59 L. J., Q. B. 517; 25 Q. B. D. 1; 63 L. T. 43; 38 W. R. 553; 54 J. P. 788—C. A.

Where no Relief can be obtained.] — Any action may be stayed as being vexatious when it is clear that no relief can be obtained at the trial. Barrett v. Day, 59 L. J., Ch. 464; 43 Ch. D. 435; 62 L. T. 597; 38 W. R. 362.

The court has an inherent jurisdiction not to allow an action to proceed which must fail. Chatterton v. Secretary of State for India, 64 L. J., Q. B. 676; [1895] 2 Q. B. 189; 14 R. 504; 72 L. T. 858; 59 J. P. 596—C. A.

Nonpayment of Costs.]—The mere fact of nonpayment by a plaintiff of costs, which he has been ordered to pay upon an interlocutory application, by reason of his inability to pay, is not a ground for staying proceedings in the action; but if the action itself is vexatious, or if the plaintiff in his mode of conducting it acts vexatiously and oppressively towards the defendant, then the court will, for the protection of the defendant against similar treatment in the future stay the proceedings until the plaintiff has paid the costs which he has been ordered to pay. The principle of Wickham, In re, Marony v. Taylor (56 L. J., Ch. 748; 35 Ch. D. 272), applied. Graham v. Sutton, Carden & Co., 66 L. J., Ch. 666; [1897] 2 Ch. 367; 77 L. T. 35—C. A.

Striking out Pleadings — Pleading raising important Question of Law.] — Applications under Ord. XXV. r. 4, to strike out pleadings or stay proceedings on the ground that the pleadings disclose no reasonable cause of action or defence, are not intended to supply the place of demurrers, except in frivolous cases, and the court will not entertain such an application if the pleading raises an important point of law. Att.-Gen. (Duchy of Lancaster) v. L. & N. W. Ry., [1892] 3 Ch. 274—C. A.

—— Application by Defendant before Defence.]—An application to strike out a statement of claim or stay proceedings may be made by the defendant in a proper case before filing his defence. Ib.

—— Extrinsic Evidence not admitted.]—An application to strike out a pleading can only be made where it can be shewn that the pleading discloses no cause of action or defence on the face of it without extrinsic evidence. Per A. L. Smith, L.J. Ib.

—— Action by Client against Solicitor — Alleged Improper Advice and Fraudulent Conduct.]—The plaintiff alleged that, being temporarily in want of money, and desirous of getting his creditors to postpone payment of their claims, he instructed the defendants, his solicitors, to call a meeting of his creditors and to ask for time; that the defendants advised him that he ought first to file his petition in bankruptcy; that they procured him to sign such petition and forwarded a circular to his creditors which was never, he said, approved of or authorised by him, stating untruly that he was compelled to suspend payment; that they attended the meeting by their clerk, who, purporting to act upon the plaintiff's instructions, told his creditors that his estate would not pay more than 2*s.* in the pound; and that that information was wholly untrue to the knowledge of the defendants, or was made recklessly and negligently, and without any sufficient grounds. The plaintiff also alleged that afterwards he instructed the defendants to submit a scheme to avoid his being made a bankrupt, but that they advised him not to do so, and eventually he was adjudicated a bankrupt; that the defendants also prepared a statement of the plaintiff's affairs, and persuaded and advised him to swear to a statement that he was hopelessly insolvent, and in that statement the defendants intentionally or recklessly and negligently overstated the liabilities and under-estimated the assets, and the defendants were well aware during the whole time that the plaintiff's estate was sufficient to pay 20*s.* in the pound, and did those acts knowing that they were acting contrary to the interests of the plaintiff, and with a view of benefiting themselves, they, or one of them, having a large interest as the plaintiff's mortgagees. There was also a count for slander on the plaintiff as a trader:—Held, that the plaintiff's statement of claim and affidavits disclosed no reasonable cause of action, and that the proceedings ought to be stayed as frivolous and vexatious; that, even if the plaintiff had any cause of action, it was one that passed to his trustee in bankruptcy, and was not sustainable by the plaintiff personally. The principles on which the court ought to act in staying proceedings as frivolous and vexatious discussed and explained. Kellaway v. Bury, 66 L. T. 599—C. A.

Striking out Summons.]—See infra, SUMMONSES.

d. In Actions under 40*s.*

Infra Dignitatem Curiæ.]—The court will stay proceedings in an action brought for a sum less than 40*s.*, when recoverable in an inferior court. Sutton v. Bament, 6 D. & L. 632; 3 Ex. 831; 18 L. J., Ex. 318; 13 Jur. 399.

The court refused to set aside, as an abuse of the process of the court, a writ of summons for 3*l.* 11*s.* due for goods sold:—Semble, an action for any sum not less than 40*s.* is not beneath the dignity of the court. Hannay v. Graham, 12 L. R., Ir. 413. See Kernan v. Kenney, Ir. R. 5 Eq. 220.

If it appears to the court that the debt sued for is under 40*s.*, it will stay the proceedings before trial. Kennard v. Jones, 4 Term Rep. 495; 2 R. R. 447. S. P., Stean v. Holmes, 2 W. Bl. 754.

The court will stay proceedings, in an action of contract, where it clearly appears to be brought to recover a sum under 40*s.*, although the sum claimed on the writ exceeds that amount; especially if there has been, in addition, an abuse of the process of the court in issuing the writ prematurely. Stuart v. Cawse, 5 C. B. (N.S.) 737; 28 L. J., C. P. 193; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 650; 7 W. R. 187.

Amount, how Determined.]—In order to determine whether an action is brought for a sum less than 40*s.*, the court will only look to the amount claimed in the first instance. Nurdin v. Fairbanks, 1 L. M. & P. 617; 5 Ex. 738; 20 L. J., Ex. 20; 14 Jur. 988.

Therefore where an action was brought to recover a debt of 9*l.* 10*s.*, to which the defendant pleaded as to 8*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.* a tender, and subsequent payment into court, and to the residue never indebted; and the jury found for the tender, but that the plaintiff was entitled to 16*s.* more; the court refused to stay the proceedings upon payment of the debt without costs, on the ground that the action was frivolous, as brought to recover a sum less than 40*s.* Ib.

Proceedings will not be stayed because the cause of action is infra dignitatem curiæ, upon the mere affidavit of the defendant. Oulton v. Perry, 3 Burr. 1592.

But proceedings were stayed, where it was sworn by the defendant, and not denied by the plaintiff, that the debt was under 40*s.* Wellington v. Arters, 5 Term Rep. 64; 2 R. R. 544.

On motion to set aside proceedings as infra dignitatem, on an affidavit that the demand sued for does not amount to 40*s.*, the court will not inquire into the amount, if an affidavit is put in on shewing cause, that the demand exceeded that sum, but will at once discharge the rule with costs. Branker v. Massey, 2 Price, 8.

The court refused to stay proceedings in an action of trover, on an affidavit that the plaintiff's cause of action did not amount to 40*s.*, where it appeared to be a mere matter of calculation. Lowe v. Lowe, 8 Moore, 220; 1 Bing. 270; 1 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 99.

e. Cross Actions.

One to be Stayed, Counter-claim delivered in other—Who should be Plaintiff.]—When an order is made under the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873, s. 24, sub-s. 7, to stay one of two cross actions between the same parties arising out of the same matter, the action brought against the party on whom the burden of proof lies ought to be stayed, and the action brought by him ought to be allowed to proceed, the other party to the litigation being at liberty to raise by defence, set-off and counter-claim all questions intended to be raised by him in the action which is stayed. In an action commenced on the 28th of November, 1881, the plaintiffs, Messrs. T., claimed 7,000*l.*, the balance of the price of a steamship built by them for the defendants, a railway company, and certain other sums as extras. In a cross action, commenced on the 30th of November, 1881, the railway company, as plaintiffs, claimed a return of all the moneys paid by them to Messrs. T. on account of the steamship and 15,000*l.* damages, and in the alternative 50,000*l.* damages. Upon the facts the burden of proof lay upon the railway company. The Queen's Bench Division ordered that the action brought by the railway company should be stayed, with liberty to raise their claim by way of counter-claim in the action brought by Messrs. T., on the ground that Messrs. T. had been the first to commence legal proceedings:—Held, that as the burden of proof lay upon the railway company, the action brought by the railway company should be allowed to proceed, Messrs. T. being at liberty to raise all questions by counter-claim, and that the action brought by Messrs. T. should be stayed. Thomson v. S. E. Ry., 51 L. J., Q. B. 322 ; 9 Q. B. D. 320 ; 46 L. T. 513 ; 30 W. R. 537—C. A.

In the former of two cross actions the plaintiffs, who were shipowners, claimed against the shippers and consignees for detention at the port of loading and for freight of cattle shipped. In the latter the plaintiffs claimed a far larger sum for loss of the said cattle by the shipowners' negligence. The writs were issued the same day, but the statement of claim in the former action was delivered before the other. A master had stayed proceedings in the second action, the plaintiffs in that action to be at liberty to set up their claim by way of counter-claim in the other ; but a judge had rescinded the master's order :—Held, upon appeal, that although there was jurisdiction to make such an order as the master's in cross actions, yet it should be done only when the points at issue are the same, and it would be unjust in the circumstances of these cases. Adamson v. Tuff, 44 L. T. 420.

Until Determination of Cross Suit.]—In a suit to enforce a mortgage, in which all the proceedings were regular, a decree pronounced and served, and a receiver appointed :—Held, that the court had no jurisdiction to stay the proceedings until the determination of a cross suit to be instituted by the defendant for the purpose of impeaching the mortgage on the ground of fraud. Bradshaw v. Meagher, Ir. R. 9 Eq. 101.

f. Pendency of Actions Abroad.

Lis alibi pendens.]—It is no ground for staying proceedings in an action here, that proceedings are pending between the parties for the same cause of action in the United States. Cox v. Mitchell, 7 C. B. (N.S.) 55 ; 29 L. J., C. P. 33 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 225 ; 1 L. T. 8 ; 8 W. R. 45.

Whether a court having ample authority to decide the matter in question should await the adjudication of a foreign tribunal having only similar authority, is merely a question for the exercise of judicial discretion. If there be any want of power in the court, proceedings may well be stayed in order that a foreign tribunal, which has the requisite power, may adjudicate. Phosphate Sewage Co. v. Molleson, 1 App. Cas. 780—H. L. (Sc.)

W., an Englishman domiciled in France, entered into an agreement in France with F., a Frenchman, that if F. assisted him in obtaining certain contracts from the French government, the profits of these contracts should be divided between them in certain proportions. F. negotiated with D. & Co., merchants in this country, for carrying out the contracts, and D. & Co. held, as W. alleged, large sums of money which were due to him under his agreement with F. He filed a bill against F. and D. & Co., for an account and to restrain D. & Co. from handing over the money in their hands to F. Proceedings were also instituted in France for the same accounts as were prayed for in the English suit. Upon a motion by the defendants to stay all proceedings in the English suit until the determination of the French suit :—Held, that inasmuch as there were interrogatories which they were bound to answer, the motion, which was in the nature of a demurrer, could not be sustained, and it was therefore refused with costs. Wilson v. Forrand, L. R. 13 Eq. 362 ; 26 L. T. 387.

If one of the actions is in a foreign country, where there are different forms of procedure and different remedies, there is no presumption that the multiplicity of actions is vexatious, and a special case must be made out to induce the court to interfere. The court has, however, power to interfere in such a case under its general jurisdiction to restrain vexatious and oppressive legislation, and will interfere in a proper case even before decree. And semble, after a decree has been made in one of the actions, the court will be more willing to exercise its jurisdiction. Cox v. Mitchell (7 C. B. (N.S.) 55) considered. McHenry v. Lewis, 52 L. J., Ch. 325 ; 22 Ch. D. 397 ; 47 L. T. 549 ; 31 W. R. 305—C. A.

Cross Action by Defendant in Foreign Country.]—In an action of damage in personam by the owners of the ship G. against the owners of the ship P., it appeared that a cause of damage in rem relating to the same collision had, prior to the proceedings in this court, been instituted by the owners of the P. against the G. in a vice-admiralty court abroad, and was then pending. The court, on the application of the owners of the ship P., stayed the proceedings in this court until after the hearing of the cause in the vice-admiralty court abroad. The Peshawur, 52 L. J., P. 30 ; 8 P. D. 32 ; 48 L. T. 796 ; 31 W. R. 660 ; 5 Asp. M. C. 89.

B., resident in San Francisco, brought an action against C. in England alleging that C. had been B.'s agent to purchase for him goods in England ; that B. had recently discovered that C. had in the accounts rendered charged more for the goods than he had paid for them, and asking for an account against C. as agent. C. delivered a defence in which he denied agency, alleged that he had as principal sold the goods to B., insisted on the accounts rendered as settled accounts, and alleged that a large balance was due. C. then commenced an action in San Francisco against B. to recover the amount which he so alleged to be due. B. moved to restrain this action :—Held, that the action ought not to be restrained, for that there was no primâ facie inference that the bringing the action abroad, during the pendency of an action in England in which the matters in dispute could be determined, was vexatious, since the course of procedure in San Francisco might be such as to give advantages to C. of which he was entitled to avail himself, and that the burden lay on B. to prove that C.'s action was vexatious, which he had failed to do. Hyman v. Helm, 24 Ch. D. 531 ; 49 L. T. 376 ; 32 W. R. 258—C. A.

Action in rem—Bail—Election.]—The owners of the British ship R. and the owners of her cargo sued the German steamship R. in the German consular court at Constantinople for damages for injury to the cargo caused by collision between the two vessels. An order was made therein for the arrest of the R., or for bail, subject to the plaintiffs giving security for a certain sum. The action was proceeded with, but the plaintiffs never gave the required security, and consequently the R. was never arrested. The R. left Constantinople during the pendency of the action and came to England, where she was arrested in the present action in rem instituted by the owners of cargo in respect of the same cause of action. Previously to the institution of the present action the defendants had given bail in the action at Constantinople, to which port the

R. was a constant trader, although the plaintiffs in that action had never given the required security. The limit of the defendant's liability in the German consular court was the value of the R., a sum considerably less than the limit of their liability in this country. Upon motion by the defendants to release the R. without giving bail, or to stay the action:—Held, that bail having been given without the plaintiffs having deposited the required security, was given voluntarily and not under compulsion, and that the plaintiffs were not proceeding vexatiously in instituting a second action in this country, and that the ship ought not to be released. The Reinbeck, 60 L. T. 209; 6 Asp. M. C. 366—C. A.

Breach of Faith.]—A collision occurred on the high seas between the C. and the J., two foreign vessels. The C. was arrested in Holland in an action brought by the owners of the J. and her cargo, but was released with the consent of the agent of the J. on the guarantee of a firm of underwriters interested in the C. to answer judgment in the action. Cross proceedings were instituted in the Dutch court by the owners of the C. and the J. An action was subsequently commenced in this country against the owners of the C. by the owners of the J. and her cargo, and the C. arrested in respect of the same collision. The plaintiffs expressed their willingness to abandon the action in Holland:—Held (dissentiente Brett, M.R.), that the proceedings in this country must be stayed and the ship released. The Christiansborg, 54 L. J., P. 84; 10 P. D. 141; 53 L. T. 612; 5 Asp. M. C. 491—C. A.

Action in Colony and in England.]—B., of London, and M. and C., of Honduras, carried on business in partnership at Honduras as G. & Co. B. & N. carried on business in partnership in London under the same name. The Honduras firm employed the London firm as their agents under an agreement by which B.'s share in the profits of the Honduras firm was to be brought into account as between the two firms to the credit of the English firm. The Honduras partnership was dissolved, and B. obtained a decree in Honduras for taking the partnership accounts. Before those accounts had been fully taken, M. and C. brought this action in England against the London firm for an account of the dealings between the two firms, alleging the defendants to have made improper profits in their agency. The defendants denied having made improper profits, and by counter-claim claimed to have the accounts of the Honduras firm taken. The counter-claim was ordered to be struck out:—Held, that though if M. and C. had not brought this action, B. would not, after obtaining a decree in Honduras, have been allowed to carry on another action here for the same purpose, still as the two actions were so closely connected that neither of them could be finally wound up independently of the other, B. ought not to be prevented from proceeding with his counter-claim so as to be in a position to ask at the trial of this action for such a decree as might be right, having regard to the then position of the Honduras action; and that on N.'s undertaking to be bound by the proceedings in the Honduras action, the order must be discharged. Mutrie v. Binney, 35 Ch. D. 614; 56 L. T. 455; 36 W. R. 131—C. A.

The next of kin of an intestate filed their bill in equity, in the supreme court of Newfoundland, against A., the brother and deceased partner of the intestate, for an account of the estate of the father of A. and of the intestate, possessed by A., and an account of the partnership transactions, and the dealings of A. with the estate, since the death of the intestate. The bill was taken pro confesso against A., in the colonial court; and, on a reference, the master reported that certain sums were due to the several next of kin on the account of the estate of the intestate's father possessed by A.; but that no account between A. and the intestate had been laid before him. The supreme court decreed that the sums found by the master to be due to the next of kin, and the costs, should be paid to them by A. The next of kin brought their actions in this country against A. upon the decree. A. then filed his bill in this court against the next of kin and personal representative of the intestate, stating that the intestate's estate was indebted to him on the partnership accounts and on private transactions, alleging various errors and irregularities in the proceedings in the supreme court, and that A. intended to appeal therefrom to the privy council; and praying that the estate of the intestate might be administered, the partnership accounts taken, the amount of the debt due to A. ascertained and paid, and the next of kin restrained by injunction from proceeeding in their actions. Demurrer, for want of equity, allowed on the ground that the whole of the matters were in question between the parties, and might properly have been the subject of adjudication in the suit before the supreme court of Newfoundland. That inasmuch as the privy council is the court of appeal from the colonial court, and has jurisdiction to stay the execution of the decree pending the appeal, the court will not interfere by injunction on the ground of error or irregularity in the decree of the colonial court. Henderson v. Henderson, 3 Hare, 100.

Proceedings in India and in England.]—A husband who had been residing with his wife in India presented a petition in India for a divorce from her on the ground of her adultery with the co-respondent, who also resided in India. Before the presentation of the petition the husband sent his wife home to her relations in England, and whilst the petition was pending he came over for a short time for the purpose of making arrangements for his children. The wife then served him with a petition for the restitution of conjugal rights. The court refused an application made by the husband for a stay of proceedings on his wife's petition until the suit in India had been determined. Thornton v. Thornton, 55 L. J., P. 40; 11 P. D. 176; 54 L. T. 774; 34 W. R. 509—C. A.

Two suits were instituted—the one in India, the other in England—for the purpose of taking certain accounts of a partnership business, one of the partners being dead. The plaintiff in the Indian suit sued under the authority of power of attorney from the English plaintiff. A final decree having been made in the Indian suit approving of a compromise of the subject-matter in dispute, the defendant in the English suit thereupon moved to stay all further proceedings in that, the English suit, and the court ordered accordingly. Ostell v. Lepage, 16 Jur. 1134; 1 W. R. 18.

Election.]—An action was brought in this country by an English company against a firm of French merchants for the delivery of the cargoes of certain ships, or in the alternative for damages, and for an injunction and receiver. At the commencement of the action the ships were in British waters, but they had since been removed by the direction of the defendants to ports in France, and the cargoes had been taken possession of by the defendants. Proceedings had been instituted by the plaintiffs in a French court for recovery of the cargoes. The English action comprised a claim for the cargo of one ship which was not claimed in the French action. A motion on behalf of the defendants, that the plaintiffs might be ordered to elect whether they would proceed with the English action or with the French proceedings was refused. Peruvian Guano Co. v. Bockwoldt, 52 L. Restraining Action Abroad when Action pending here.]—See INTERNATIONAL LAW.

Action between same Parties in Ireland.]—But the court will stay proceedings in an action on the ground that another action is pending for the same cause between the same parties in Ireland. Alexander v. Adams, 16 L. T. 384 ; 15 W. R. 791.

Trustees for creditors, after decree for execution of trusts, restrained from proceeding in a suit in court of chancery in Ireland, having same objects. Harrison v. Gurney, 2 Jac. & Walk. 563 ; 22 R. R. 211.

An injunction was granted to restrain the plaintiff from prosecuting a suit not brought to a hearing in Ireland, the subject-matter of the suit being the same as that of a suit instituted in this court, and in which this court had pronounced a decree, refusing the relief sought by the plaintiff. Booth v. Leycester, 1 Keen, 579 ; 3 Myl. & C. 459. And see 2 Jur. 935.

Proceedings between same Parties in Scotland.]—The existence of a suit of multiple poinding and exoneration, brought by tutors in Scotland in respect of their receipts of the real estate of the infant in that kingdom, constitutes no objection to a decree for an account of the same estates against the same parties in this court in a suit by the infant in which the tutors have appeared. Beattie v. Johnstone, 8 Hare, 169.

Plaintiffs who had obtained in this court a decree for an account against three defendants, two of whom resided in Scotland, and all of whom had real property there, brought actions in Scotland against the same defendants for the same demand ; and they obtained leave from this court to prosecute the Scotch actions so far as should be necessary for the purpose of obtaining such security as it is in the power of the Scotch court to give for the amount which, upon taking the accounts directed by the decree, should ultimately be found due to the plaintiffs. Wedderburn v. Wedderburn, 4 Myl. & C. 585 ; 9 L. J., Ch. 205 ; 4 Jur. 66.

After decree here, the plaintiff cannot, except by leave of the court, proceed in another court in respect of the same matter, even though such proceedings are merely auxiliary. S. C., 2 Beav. 208.

Power of Court to look at Proceedings in Action Abroad.]—H., a lessee of estates in Ireland, claimed the exclusive right of shooting. S., the lessor, claimed that on the true construction of the lease such right was reserved to him. On the 19th September, 1883, H. commenced an action in the chancery division in England to restrain S. from interfering with his alleged rights, and, in the alternative, for rectification of the lease. On the 22nd September, 1883, S. commenced a common law action in Ireland against H. for trespass. The Irish action was heard first, resulting in a verdict (sustained by a divisional court) for S., with 6*d.* damages. H. had also raised by his defence a plea for rectification of the lease, but it did not appear clearly that this question was ever submitted to the jury. Upon a summons in the English action raising the question of res judicata :—Held, that the pleadings and judgments in the Irish action might be put in evidence, having been only very briefly referred to by S. in his defence, as amended with leave, upon the analogy of the old practice, which permitted a judge in similar cases to refer to a master for a report as to the nature of the questions raised and decided in another action. Upon looking into such proceedings the court was not satisfied that the question of rectification was ever really decided against H., and accordingly refused to stay the present action on that ground. Houston v. Sligo (Marquis), 29 Ch. D. 448 ; 52 L. T. 96.

Test Action—Trial of.]—See CONSOLIDATION, infra, col. 397, et seq.

Several Actions by same Persons, or by Persons in same Interest.]—When a plaintiff commenced seven actions against a defendant for separate and distinct publications of the same libel, the court made a rule absolute for staying the proceedings in the other six until after the trial of one. Jones v. Pritchard, 6 D. & L. 529 ; 18 L. J., Q. B. 104 ; 13 Jur. 427.

The court will not stay the proceedings on the ground of the pendency of another action for the same cause against the defendant jointly with another person, except in a case of oppression or vexation. Sowter v. Dunston, 1 M. & Ry. 508 ; 6 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 114.

Thirty-eight actions having been brought by different persons against the defendants as directors of an incorporated company, charging misappropriation of moneys advanced by the plaintiffs in different amounts and at different times, but all under similar circumstances :—Held, upon the authority of Amos v. Chadwick (4 Ch. D. 869 and 9 Ch. D. 459), that it was competent to a judge at chambers, upon the application of the plaintiff, to stay the proceedings in thirty-seven of the actions until after the trial of the thirty-eighth as a test action, proper provision being made in case that action did not satisfactorily dispose of the questions in all. Bennett v. Bury (Lord), 49 L. J., C. P. 411 ; 5 C. P. D. 339 ; 42 L. T. 480.

Where a plaintiff has brought eleven separate actions for the same cause of action, against eleven members of a provisional railway committee, the court refused to stay the proceedings in each of the actions, except such one as the plaintiffs should elect. Giles v. Tooth or Forth, 4 D. & L. 486 ; 3 C. B. 665 ; 4 Railw. Cas. 678 ;

The lessor of the plaintiff having brought three actions of ejectment in K. B. for the same property, that court stayed the proceedings in two, and compelled the plaintiff to confine himself to one, upon certain terms, which rendered it probable that in the event he would have to pay the costs; whereupon he brought an ejectment for the same property in C. P. Proceedings therein were stayed. Doe d. Carthew v. Brenton, 6 Bing. 469; 4 M. & P. 186; 8 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 143. S. P., Doe d. Walker v. Stevenson, 3 Bos. & P. 22.

It is no ground for staying proceedings for a forfeiture, that the plaintiff has previously brought an ejectment for the same premises in a different court, in respect of a former forfeiture, in which action a rule for entering a nonsuit was pending. Doe d. Henry v. Gustard, 4 Man. & G. 987; 5 Scott (N.R.) 818.

A rule for staying proceedings in ejectment, on the ground of an action of trespass relating to the same subject-matter pending in another court, was refused, the two actions being different in form and in their consequences. Doe d. Geldart v. Tabram, 5 Scott, 141; 6 L. J., C. P. 303; 1 Jur. 432.

Where a sole executrix and universal devisee propounded a will, and cited the heir-at-law and next of kin in order to have the will proved in solemn form, and the heir-at-law commenced two actions of ejectment to try the title, and applied to have the proceedings in the court of probate stayed till the result of the actions was known, the court refused to stay the proceedings, inasmuch as the result of the actions of ejectment would not affect the right to the personalty, as to which the validity of the will would have to be determined in any event. Davies v. Devereux, 35 L. J., P. 77; L. R. 1 P. 77; 14 W. R. 901.

The court refused to stay an action in the chancery division for account, though there was pending in a more advanced stage a common law action in which the same issues were raised by the plaintiff in the chancery division by counterclaim. Ladd v. Puleston, 52 L. J., Ch. 816; 31 W. R. 539.

The court, upon the hearing of a claim, made an order for taking accounts and executing a trust, and held, that the pendency of a suit by bill, in which the same accounts and directions would be necessary, and which sought additional relief in respect of alleged breaches of trust, was not a ground for staying the order upon the claim. Scott v. Hastings (Lord), 9 Hare, 35; 20 L. J., Ch. 530; 15 Jur. 572.

A judgment creditor of the defendant brought an action in the court of the county palatine of Lancaster to obtain a declaration that he had a charge upon certain lands of the defendant comprised in a certain deed of settlement, and to carry into effect the trusts of the settlement. He obtained judgment for a declaration of his charge, and for administration, inquiries, and a receiver. Afterwards one of the beneficiaries under the settlement brought an action in the high court to carry into effect the trusts of the settlement, and charging the trustees with a breach of trust. Judgment was obtained and inquiries directed, including one as to the breach of trust:—Held, that the plaintiff in the palatine action was not a stranger to the action in the high court, and was entitled to the conduct of that action; and he undertaking to add the inquiry as to the breach of trust to the inquiry in the palatine action, the court stayed all proceedings in the action in the high court. Townsend v. Townsend, 23 Ch. D. 100; 48 L. T. 694; 31 W. R. 735—C. A.

The court refused to hear a claim on a matter which was the subject of two bills in another branch of the court. Marsh v. Marsh, 2 W. R. 615.

A defendant put in an answer to a bill to perpetuate testimony. He afterwards moved to stay all further proceedings, upon the ground that in another suit, since instituted, the matters in question had been made the subject of judicial investigation. The motion was refused, with costs. Ellice v. Roupell, 32 L. J., Ch. 778; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 533; 8 L. T. 486; 11 W. R. 679; 2 N. R. 150.

The court will not suffer two suits to go on where under the decree in the first suit all that is asked for by the second suit can be obtained, and it matters not that the decree made in the second suit is of a more complicated kind than would be pronounced in the suit which it is desired shall proceed, and that there may, on that account, be some delay. Smith v. Guy, 2 Coop. C. C. 289.

Where the suit in which there has been no decree so far differs from the suit in which the decree has been pronounced, that something may be asked for in that suit which cannot be had under the decree already pronounced in the other suit, there can be no stay of proceedings. Ib.

The real question is, whether the party desirous of bringing the second cause to a hearing can get all that he wants in the suit in which there has been a decree. Ib.

If the party, desirous of bringing the second cause to a hearing, can get all that he wants in the suit in which there has been a decree, any person interested has a right to come to the court, and stay the proceedings of such party. Ib.

An order was made for winding up an abortive company. Afterwards a bill was filed by a shareholder, on behalf, &c., against the directors, complaining of their acts, and seeking to have the accounts taken, to make them responsible, and to have the deposits returned. The court, on motion, stayed the proceedings in the suit. Parbury v. Chadwick, 12 Beav. 614; 19 L. J., Ch. 562; 14 Jur. 636.

Although different suits may involve the same subject-matter and the same parties, the court will not decline to make a separate decree in each suit, unless the frame of the two suits, and the relative position of the parties to each, be the same. Godfrey v. Maw, 1 Y. & Coll. C. C. 485.

W. P. deposited with a bank as security for a loan, two leases, alleged to be the property of H. P., his wife. W. P. having died, an action for the administration of his personal estate was brought against his personal representative by the bank. H. P. was not a party to this action. H. P. having brought an action against the bank to recover the leases:—Held, that this latter action should not be stayed pending the administration action, as the full relief claimed by the plaintiff could not be given in the administration action. Parke v. Ulster Bank, [1894] 2 Ir. R. 652.

Res judicata.]—After judgment in an action the plaintiff commenced another action substantially for the same cause:—Held, that the court would consider and decide whether any real difference distinguished the two actions, and that proceedings should be stayed where the distinction was merely colourable. Breen v. Cooper, 18 W. R. 630. See also Reichel v. Magrath and following cases, ante, col. 284.

Election.]—When a plaintiff sues a defendant for the same matter in two courts in this country, such a proceeding is primâ facie vexatious, and the court will generally, as of course, put the plaintiff to his election, and stay one of the suits. And the same principle applies where one of the actions is in the queen's courts in Scotland or Ireland, or any other part of the queen's dominions. Under the present practice Dillon (Lord) v. Alvares (4 Ves. 357) cannot be relied on as an authority. McHenry v. Lewis, 52 L. J., Ch. 325; 22 Ch. D. 397; 47 L. T. 549; 31 W. R. 305—C. A.

Two actions were brought, one by A., a merchant at Naples, against B., the other by B. against A., for alleged breaches of two several contracts for cargoes of timber to be shipped at Moulmein, and to be delivered at Genoa. In the first action A. recovered judgment for 3,801*l.* 13s. 4d., and on the 14th November, 1866, the amount was paid to his attorney, who carried on business in the city of London, and on the same day an attachment from the mayor's court was served upon A.'s attorney in an action brought in that court at the suit of B. for the same cause as that for which the action of B. against A. had been brought. The court ordered that the proceedings in the action be stayed, unless B. elected within a week to abandon the proceedings in the mayor's court, deeming the proceedings in the mayor's court to be unfounded and vexatious. Frith v. Guppy, 36 L. J., C. P. 45; L. R. 2 C. P. 32; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 1011; 15 L. T. 616; 15 W. R. 280.

When Relief claimed already claimed in another Action.]—An action in which relief is claimed, which has been already claimed in another action, will be stayed except so far as it claims relief not included in the former action. Morton v. Quick, Aird, In re, 26 W. R. 441—C. A.

An action having been brought by an assignee under a bill of sale, his title being founded on a notice given under it, which, being objected to as invalid, a rule to enter a nonsuit was pending—afterwards he brought another action for the same goods, but founded on a title which had subsequently arisen (by reason of the bill of sale having become absolute), and, the defendant not agreeing to a stet processus in the former action without costs, the court allowed both actions to proceed. Marshall v. Goadby, 11 W. R. 365.

The court will not stay proceedings in an action of libel, on the ground that the libel complained of has been previously made the subject of an unsuccessful application to the queen's bench for a criminal information. Wakley v. Cook, 4 D. & L. 702; 16 L. J., Ex. 225; 11 Jur. 377.

On the trial of an action for libel in the common pleas, to which a justification was pleaded, the plaintiff's counsel, after his reply, elected to be nonsuited. The plaintiff then brought an action in the queen's bench for the same libel, and on the 13th of January delivered a declaration, which was the same as in the first action. On the 14th of January the defendant's costs in the first action were taxed; on the 21st he obtained time to plead; on the 22nd he took out a summons to stay proceedings in the action until the plaintiff had paid the costs of the first action and given security for the costs of the second; on the 24th the judge indorsed the summons "No order, without prejudice to any application to the court"; on the 30th a rule in similar terms was served upon the plaintiff's attorney. In the meantime the defendant had pleaded, his plea being the same justification, and issue being joined, the plaintiff, on the 28th, gave notice of trial, and delivered briefs to counsel before the service of the rule. When the plaintiff commenced the first action he was bankrupt, and his discharge had been suspended for one year from the 13th of May, 1862, with protection for one month. The court, in the exercise of its discretion, made the rule absolute for staying proceedings, but discharged so much of it as related to security for costs. Prowse v. Lowdale, 3 B. & S. 896; 32 L. J., Q. B. 227; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 1236; 8 L. T. 314; 11 W. R. 643.

The tenant for life under a settlement having been served with the decree made in a suit instituted to administer the trusts of the settlement, and to which he had not been made a party, then filed a bill for the same purpose, which contained general allegations of breaches of trust. Afterwards he came in under the decree and attended all the proceedings in the first suit, and, at the same time, continued to prosecute his own suit. On the application of the trustees of the settlement, who were the defendants in both suits, the court stayed all proceedings in the second suit on the ground that the tenant for life by his conduct had adopted the decree made in the first suit, and had not sufficiently charged the trustees with wilful default. Askew v. Woodhead, 28 L. T. 465; 21 W. R. 573.

Where, in an action for work and labour, the plaintiff obtained a verdict, but the court granted a new trial, on the ground that he ought to have declared specially, and he thereupon, without discontinuing that action, brought another for the same cause, declaring specially; the court stayed the proceedings in the latter action until the former was disposed of. Haigh v. Paris, 16 M. & W. 144; 4 D. & L. 325; 16 L. J., Ex. 37.

A plaintiff agreed with the defendant to withdraw the record in an action on two cheques, which stood ready for trial in the exchequer, upon the terms that defendant should pay the debt, interest and costs, on or before a certain day, or in default of payment, that plaintiff should be at liberty to sign judgment, and that a judge's order should be given to secure payment. The exchequer having afterwards set aside the order, which had been made in pursuance of the above agreement, plaintiff brought an action on the agreement in the common pleas:—Held, that these facts formed no ground for staying the proceedings in the action in the common pleas. Wade v. Simeon, 3 D. & L. 27; 1 C. B. 610; 14 L. J., C. P. 188; 9 Jur. 472.

A rule nisi had been obtained for setting aside a fi. fa., because after the trial, and before judgment, the action was settled. It was sworn, in opposition to this rule, that the party had acted under a mistake, and had been imposed upon. The rule, however, was made absolute; and, an action having been brought upon the judgment, the court made a rule absolute for staying the proceedings in the action commenced on similar affidavits; but, as the setting aside of the judgment was not included in the first rule, the rule was made absolute without costs. Philpot v. Thompson, 2 D. & L. 18; 13 L. J., Q. B. 231; 8 Jur. 647.

The court will not stay proceedings in an action by the assignee of an insolvent debtor, on the ground that an action brought by the insolvent for the identical cause, has been referred by order of nisi prius to an arbitrator, and the reference is still pending. Sturgis v. Curzon (Lord), 7 Ex. 17; 21 L. J., Ex. 38.

A defendant, after a decree to account, though called an actor in the suit, yet is not prevented becoming plaintiff in another suit for the same matter. Bayley v. Edwards, 3 Swanst. 703; 19 R. R. 289.

Motion in a suit, in which no decree had been obtained, to stay further proceedings in a suit in which a decree had been obtained, refused, there being no misconduct or other special circumstances to induce the court to interfere. M'Hardy v. Hitchcock, 12 Jur. 781.

Stay of Action pending Administration Action.]—C., being executor of L., mortgaged certain hereditaments, which had formed part of the estate of the deceased. The plaintiff, who became mortgagee, afterwards sued to recover possession of them from her lessees on the ground of a forfeiture for nonpayment of rent. C. obtained leave to defend the action as landlord. A suit had been instituted by C. in the chancery division to administer the estate of L., and an inquiry had been directed as to the mortgage. An order was obtained by C. staying the proceedings in the action for the recovery of the hereditaments until the proceedings in the chancery division should have concluded:—Held, that the order was bad, and must be set aside. Crowle v. Russell, 48 L. J., C. P. 76; 4 C. P. D. 186; 39 L. T. 320; 27 W. R. 84—C. A.

A creditor issued a writ for the administration of the personal estate of S., and subsequently obtained leave to amend his writ so as to include the real estate. Before any further steps were taken the executors of S. filed a writ and obtained a full administration decree, and then applied for the stay of proceedings in the creditor's action:—Held, that the creditor's action must be stayed, and that the plaintiff in the executors' action was entitled to the conduct of the administration. Smith, In re, McMurray v. Mathew, 33 L. T. 804.

An action having been brought in the common pleas division against the defendant as executor de son tort of B., deceased, the defendant obtained letters of administration to B., and then issued a writ in the chancery division for administration of the real and personal estate of the deceased, and before obtaining a decree the defendant moved the common pleas division for an order to restrain the plaintiff's action, and obtained an order staying the proceedings pending the administration suit:—Held, that the court had no jurisdiction to restrain the plaintiff's action, as no decree for administration had been obtained. Higgins v. Browne, 16 L. R. Ir. 173—C. A.

Action in Formâ Pauperis.]—A plaintiff brought an action for work, but failed to prove that any work was actually done; he nevertheless obtained a verdict, which the court afterwards set aside, directing a nonsuit to be entered. He then commenced a fresh action for the same cause, suing in formâ pauperis, and declaring upon a special contract. The court stayed the proceedings in the latter action until the former should be disposed of. Haigh v. Paris, 16 M. & W. 144; 4 D. & L. 325; 16 L. J., Ex. 37.

Proceedings stayed until payment of costs of former suit by same party suing in formâ pauperis in cases only of great vexation. Wild v. Hobson, 2 Ves. & B. 112.

Application by Party Working Mine under Licence—Ejectment.]—An individual working a mine under a licence giving no interest in land, moved to stay proceedings in an ejectment which had been commenced against him, but the court refused the rule. Doe d. Johns v. Roe, W. W. & D. 66; 1 Jur. 151.

Mode of Application for.]—A plaintiff had sued the defendant for negligence, per quod the plaintiff became liable for certain sums, and lost the custom of A. The cause was referred under an order of nisi prius, by which the plaintiff was precluded from bringing any new action. The arbitrator made an award in favour of the plaintiff, who nevertheless sued the defendant again, the new declaration differing from the old one in stating that the plaintiff had paid the money he before alleged himself liable to pay, and had lost the custom of D., E., and F.:—Held, that the court could not stay proceedings on a summary application. Dicas v. Jay, 6 Bing. 519; 4 M. & P. 285; 8 L. J. (o.s.) C. P. 210.

Motion by a defendant, before decree, to restrain a co-defendant from prosecuting an action, or to stay all proceedings in the suit on an affidavit that the relief sought by the bill and by the action was identical. Refused, with costs. Russell v. L. C. & D. Ry., 4 Giff. 403; 2 N. R. 507.

A creditor who has obtained an administration decree in the Lancaster palatine court, has no locus standi to move to stay proceedings under another decree subsequently obtained in a suit in the high court of chancery, to which he is not a party, and in which he has not proved his debt. Bradley v. Stelfox, Yates, In re, 1 N. R. 221—L.C.

Infants.]—Court will not, on motion, stay proceedings on one of the two bills for the same purpose, unless both are brought by the same person, or on behalf of an infant. Gage v. Bulkeley, Ambl. 103; 1 Ves. 544.

Two suits had been instituted on behalf of infants for the same purpose, and a decree had been obtained in the second. Upon motion to stay the first suit, the court ordered it to be stayed, giving liberty to the next friend in the second to apply for the conduct of the first. Kenyon v. Kenyon, 35 Beav. 300.

Two suits were instituted in behalf of infants, against trustees for administration, the first by a stranger to the infants, and the second by their father, as next friend. The second bill stated that the object of the first was to stave off inquiries from a defaulting trustee, and prayed relief against him in respect of the breaches of trust, and it was charged in affidavits, and not denied, that the next friend in the first suit was falsely described, and was a friend of the defaulting trustee. The court ordered the first suit to be stayed. Virtue v. Miller, 19 W. R. 406.

h. Actions Commenced or Prosecuted without Authority.

Action brought by Solicitor without Authority.]—Where a solicitor has commenced an action in the name of a plaintiff without authority, the proper course is for the plaintiff to serve notice of motion on the defendant, as well as on the solicitor, that the action may be dismissed, and that the solicitor may pay the costs of the plaintiff as between solicitor and client, and the costs of the defendant as between party and party. In cases where no rule of practice is laid down by the new orders, and there is a variance in the old practice of the chancery and common law courts, that practice is to prevail which is considered by the court most convenient. Newbiggin-by-the-Sea Gas Co. v. Armstrong, 49 L. J., Ch. 231; 13 Ch. D. 310; 41 L. T. 637; 28 W. R. 217—C. A.

The name of a plaintiff having been inserted on the record without his knowledge, consent or authority, on motion by the defendants to dismiss for want of prosecution, and on motion by the plaintiff to have his name struck out from the record:—Held, that the solicitors to the record who had purported to act for the said plaintiff were liable to pay his costs of the motion as between solicitor and client, and also to pay the costs of the defendants of the action and all the motions therein. Nurse v. Durnford, 49 L. J., Ch. 229; 13 Ch. D. 764; 41 L. T. 611; 28 W. R. 145.

The form of order in Dundas v. Dutens (1 Ves. 196) not followed. The practice of common law as laid down in Reynolds v. Howell (L. R. 8 Q. B. 398) followed. Ib.

When an attorney brings an action without the authority of the plaintiff, the plaintiff is entitled to have the proceedings stayed without payment of costs. Reynolds v. Howell, 42 L. J., Q. B. 181; L. R. 8 Q. B. 398; 29 L. T. 208; 22 W. R. 18.

Where a person is made a plaintiff in an action without proper authority, and orders have been, without his knowledge, made against him, under which he is liable to pay costs to the defendant, the proper order to make is to stay all proceedings in the name of the person in question, and all proceedings against him in the action since he was added as a plaintiff, and to direct his name to be struck out for the purpose of future proceedings; the solicitor who wrongly made him a party must pay all his costs, and all the costs which he has been ordered to pay, and also all the defendant's costs, the costs of the person wrongly made plaintiff as between solicitor and client, and the costs of the defendant as between party and party, and in such costs must be included the costs of the application to be relieved from the consequences of the misjoinder. The rule laid down in Reynolds v. Howell (42 L. J., Q. B. 181; L. R. 8 Q. B. 398), and adopted in Nurse v. Durnford (49 L. J., Ch. 229; 13 Ch. D. 764), and Newbiggin-by-the-Sea Gas Co. v. Armstrong (49 L. J., Ch. 231; 13 Ch. D. 310), applied. Fricker v. Van Grutten, 65 L. J., Ch. 823; [1896] 2 Ch. 649; 75 L. T. 117; 45 W. R. 53—C. A.

The rule that proceedings taken by a solicitor without proper authority will be annulled with costs, to be paid by him, does not apply unless he was aware of the circumstances which invalidated his authority; and notice from the other side is not sufficient to fix him with knowledge, if he had good reason to suppose that the facts stated in the notice were not true. Thomas v. Finlayson, 19 W. R. 255. See also SOLICITOR.

Jurisdiction.]—The ground on which the court in a proceeding before itself will stay proceedings in an action instituted without authority in the name of a third party is that it has jurisdiction to prevent an abuse of its own process. London and Blackwall Ry. v. Cross, 55 L. J., Ch. 313; 31 Ch. D. 354; 54 L. T. 309; 34 W. R. 201—C. A.

Who made Party to Application.]—On an application by a defendant to stay proceedings, on the ground that the plaintiff's attorney is going on with the suit contrary to the express direction of his client, the plaintiff should be made a party to the rule. Thatcher v. Aguilar, 11 Ex. 436; 4 W. R. 149. See also Newbiggin-by-the-Sea Gas Co. v. Armstrong, supra.

At what Period made.]—In an action for calls, after the cause had been set down for trial and made a remanet, the defendant applied to set aside the proceedings, upon the ground that the company was virtually extinct, and that the parties who had instituted the action had no authority to do so:—Held, that the application was too late, it appearing that the defendant had known all the facts for a long time. Thames Haven Dock and Ry. v. Hall, 5 Man. & G. 274; 6 Scott (N.R.) 342; 3 Railw. Cas. 441; 7 Jur. 238.

Action commenced under Void Power of Attorney.]—An application by a defendant to stay the proceedings in an action, was supported by an affidavit of some of the plaintiffs, disavowing the action and stating that it had been brought in their names under a power of attorney contained in a deed which was void for usury:—The court refused to stay the proceedings. Tubb v. Dodd, 2 L. M. & P. 97.

By Wife on Settlement without Trustee.]—An action was brought by a wife against her husband, on a settlement deed, in the name of the trustee. The court refused on the application of the husband to set aside the proceedings on the ground that the action was brought without the authority of the trustee, it appearing that an application had been made to the trustee, to consent to her name being used, and an indemnity against costs offered to her, which she had refused without assigning any reason. Auster v. Holland, 3 D. & L. 740; 1 B. C. Rep. 104; 15 L. J., Q. B. 229; 10 Jur. 786.

Action by Assignor of Debt.]—A. assigned to B., by way of security for a loan of 10,000*l.*, two sums of 5,000*l.* each, due from C. to A. under several deeds, and afterwards brought an action against C. upon those deeds:—The court refused to stay proceedings in the action at the instance of B. and C., and suggested that the proper course was to apply after judgment to stay execution. Seppings v. Nokes, 2 C. B. 292.

Plaintiff a Trustee for Another.] — Though after the recovery of a verdict the effect will be only to make the plaintiff a trustee for another person for half the amount recovered, the court will not stay the proceedings in an action against him on the payment of the half of the sum sought to be recovered, but will leave the defendant to his remedy in equity. Barlow v. Leeds, 5 N. & M. 426 ; 1 H. & W. 479.

i. For Irregularity.

i. When Application should be made.

Within Reasonable Time.]—An application to set aside proceedings for irregularity must be made within a reasonable time after the irregularity occurs ; and therefore, where a defendant suffered two terms to elapse before applying for a rule on the master to review his taxation of costs, the court refused to grant him the rule. Claridge v. M'Kenzie, 2 D. (N.S.) 898 ; 6 Scott (N.R.) 171 ; 5 Man. & G. 251 ; 12 L. J., C. P. 131 ; 7 Jur. 329. S. P., Chaffers v. Hunter, 1 W. R. 165.

This rule applies as well to prisoners as to other persons. Ib. S. P., Primrose v. Baddely, 2 D. P. C. 350 ; 2 C. & M. 468 ; 4 Tyr. 370.

If a defendant conducts his cause in person it is no reason for delay in moving to set aside proceedings for irregularity. Currey v Bowcher, 9 D. P. C. 523.

Assignees of a bankrupt seeking to set aside a judgment against him for irregularity, must come within the same time after their appointment as the bankrupt must have done after he has had notice of the irregularity. Alcock v. Sutcliffe, 2 B. C. Rep. 313 ; 16 L. J., Q. B. 129 ; 11 Jur. 126.

If an application is made to a judge to set aside proceedings on the ground of irregularity, the question, whether or not the application is made in time, is entirely in his discretion, and the court will not review his decision in this respect. Lane v. Newman, 1 B. C. Rep. 93 ; 10 Jur. 925.

The law is the same, whether the judge refused or granted the application. Ib.

Where a judgment was irregularly signed, and execution levied on the 9th March :—Held, too late to apply to set aside the judgment on the 28th April following, either at the instance of the defendant himself or of his assignees, he having subsequently become bankrupt, although the latter were not aware until the 7th April of the irregularity existing in the judgment. Weedon v. Garcia, 2 D. (N.S.) 64 ; 7 Jur. 130.

Application may be made to set aside a judgment for irregularity the day after serving notice of executing a writ of inquiry. Amos v. Smith, 7 D. P. C. 866.

Where there is an irregularity in any proceeding had in vacation, and there is time in the course of that vacation to apply to a judge, it is imperative upon the party complaining to do so ; and he cannot move to set aside the proceedings till the first four days of the next term, though there has been no intermediate step taken. Cox v. Tulloch, 2 D. P. C. 47 ; 3 Tyr. 578 ; 1 C. & M. 531 ; 2 L. J., Ex. 233.

But an application to set aside an interlocutory judgment for irregularity, after notice to execute a writ of inquiry on the 4th of November, will be too late on the 12th. Scott v. Cogger, 3 D. P. C. 212.

Judgment for want of a plea was signed on the 17th April, and a summons was taken out for setting it aside, which was discharged on the 23rd, execution issued on the 27th, and on the 28th defendant moved the court to set aside the judgment for irregularity : —Held, that the application was too late. Shield v. Quick, 8 M. & W. 289 ; 9 D. P. C. 751 ; 10 L. J., Ex. 270.

When a defendant was wrongfully arrested under a ca. sa. on the 14th of August, and the application for his discharge was not made until the 11th of December :—Held, not too late. Hodges v. Callaghan, 2 C. B. (N.S.) 306 ; 26 L. J., C. P. 171 ; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 369.

Before further Step taken.]—A party may apply to set aside proceedings for irregularity at any time before the irregular party has taken a further step, if the latter has not by the delay of the former been induced to place himself in a worse situation than he would have been in if the other had come earlier. Dand v. Barnes, 6 Taunt. 5 ; 1 Marsh. 403.

ii. Grounds of Application should be Stated.

It is not necessary, in a rule nisi to set aside proceedings for irregularity, to specify the grounds of irregularity on which the party relies. Rennie v. Bruce, 3 D. & L. 946 ; 9 Jur. 597.

Where a party moves to set aside proceedings on the ground of irregularity, he should point out the first irregularity. Hardwicke v. Wardle, 2 B. C. Rep. 17 ; 4 D. & L. 739.

But it is not necessary to use the term "irregularity." Harvey v. Bennett, 2 Chit. 238.

A party must state at once all the grounds of his application. Anon., 1 Chit. 126.

When a rule is drawn up for setting aside a judgment for irregularity, an objection that it was signed against good faith cannot be entertained (though the rule was moved on that ground), that not being an irregularity. Smith v. Clark, 2 D. P. C. 218.

iii. Imposition of Terms.

Of bringing no Action.]—The application for setting aside a judgment as against good faith is ex debito justitiæ, and the court will not impose on the defendant, as a condition for setting it aside, that he should bring no action. Cash v. Wells, 1 B. & Ad. 375.

On an application to set aside judgment and execution for irregularity, on the alleged ground that the judgment had been signed pending a summons for time to plead, which summons the plaintiff's attorney denied having received, the judge made an order setting aside the judgment and execution, without costs, but not embodying any decision as to the irregularity ; and he added a direction, that the defendant should bring no action. The defendant protested against this addition, but served the order upon the sheriff, who thereupon gave up the goods ;—Held, that defendant, having thus far availed himself of the order, could not apply to rescind that part which forbade bringing an action. Pearce v. Chaplin, 9 Q. B. 802 ; 16 L. J., Q. B. 49.

When, execution having been issued prematurely, the defendant has applied to a judge to set the same aside, with costs, the judge may, on granting such application, impose the terms that no action be brought, and the court will not afterwards review the exercise of such discretionary power by rescinding that portion of the judge's order, which imposes those terms, although the order has not been drawn up or acted on by the defendant. Bartlett v. Stinton, 35 L. J., C. P.

Where a judgment and execution are set aside for irregularity, the court has no power to impose the term on the defendant, that he should bring no action. Adlam v. Noble, 9 D. P. C. 322.

If the term of bringing no action is not imposed by the court at the time of disposing of the rule for setting aside the irregular proceedings, the successful party cannot be restrained from bringing an action in respect of the irregularity. Attwood v. Greenwood, 7 D. P. C. 534.

If a judge discharges a person, who has been arrested, out of custody, under an order, on his undertaking to bring no action, and he afterwards commences one in disobedience of such order, the court will not interfere to set aside the proceedings until the order is made a rule of court. Jameson v. Raper, 3 Moore, 65, n.

Performance of Terms a Condition Precedent.]—If the court directs any proceedings to be set aside on terms, the terms are a condition precedent, and till performance of the terms the proceedings stand, and the plaintiff may pursue them without application to the court. Dodsley v. Hamilton, 5 Taunt. 1 ; 14 R. R. 695.

iv. Waiver.

If a party lies by after an irregularity in the proceedings, and knowingly permits the other party to take a further step in the cause before he moves to take advantage of the irregularity, it is as much a waiver of the irregularity as taking a step himself. Gaire v. Goodman, 2 Smith, 391.

There can be no waiver unless with a knowledge of the irregularity. Cox v. Tullock, 2 D. P. C. 47 ; 3 Tyr. 578 ; 1 C. & M. 531 ; 2 L. J., Ex. 233.

An irregularity is not waived by agreeing to terms where the party is under a misapprehension occasioned by the mistake of a judge in point of law. Whalley v. Barnet, 1 D. P. C. 607.

v. Other Matters.

Excuse for Irregularity.]—Irregularities in practice are not excused from liability to costs on the ground that the party has been misled by Impay's Practice or other unauthorised publications. Crew v. Attwood, 7 Taunt. 70 ; 2 Marsh. 337. And see Lear v. Heath, 1 Marsh. 19 ; 5 Taunt. 201 ; 14 R. R. 739.

Order that Plaintiff sign Judgment.] — The court will not grant a rule authorising a plaintiff to sign judgment for irregularity, but will leave him to take that step at his own peril. Tynne v. Woodman, 2 Tyr. 492.

Similar Application at Chambers.]—Where a defendant applied to a judge in vacation to set aside the plaintiff's execution for irregularity on a ground which the judge overruled, the defendant having brought a writ of error before final judgment signed, but not having communicated that fact to the judge, afterwards applied to the court to set aside the execution, on the ground that he had before brought a writ of error :—Held, that, this fact not having been communicated to the judge on the former application to him the defendant was now too late to take advantage of the irregularity. Thorpe v. Beer, 1 Chit. 124 ; 2 B. & Ald. 373.

When an application to set aside proceedings for irregularity primâ facie is too late, but the defendant means to rely upon the fact of a similar application having been made at chambers within the proper time, the rule should be drawn up on reading the order of the judge, or upon an affidavit of the fact. Shugars v. Concannon, 7 D. P. C. 391 ; 5 M. & W. 30 ; 8 L. J., Ex. 159.

Affidavit — Judgment signed.]—In order to set aside judgment for irregularity, it must distinctly appear by affidavit that judgment has been signed. Classer v. Drayton, 8 D. P. C. 184.

—— Misdescription.]—The plaintiff in the bill was described as S. P., of ——, spinster. After the defendant had filed his answer he discovered that the plaintiff was married. On a motion by the defendant to have the bill taken off the file for irregularity, the court ordered the proceedings in the cause to be stayed until further order, the defendant producing an affidavit that the fact of the plaintiff's marriage was not known to him at the time he filed his answer. Pyke v. Halcombe, 9 Jur. 368.

j. Until Payment of Costs.

Of Former Action.]—It is only in ejectment that the court ordinarily interferes to stop a second action till the costs due from the plaintiff in a former action for the same matter have been paid ; but the court might interfere in a second action of trespass, if it appeared to have been brought vexatiously and oppressively. Danvers v. Morgan, 17 C. B. 530 ; 25 L. J., C. P. 144.

When a plaintiff has failed in one action and brings another action against the same party or some one identified in interest with him for the same or what is substantially the same cause of action, the court will stay proceedings in the second till the costs of the first are paid, unless it is shewn that the plaintiff has a real probable cause of action. Cobbett v. Warner, 8 B. & S. 21 ; 36 L. J., Q. B. 94 ; L. R. 2 Q. B. 108 ; 16 L. T. 150 ; 15 W. R. 403. S. P., Denis v. Gorman, 4 L. R. Ir. 356.

If A. brings an action for money had and received against B. and others, and is nonsuited, and brings another action, being in form an action on the case, but proceeding on the same alleged causes of action against B., and previously to commencing the second action A.'s attorney has told B.'s attorney that unless B. will forego his costs arising on the nonsuit in the former action A. will commence the second action, this is such evidence of oppression and vexatious conduct as will induce the court to grant a stay of proceedings in the second action until the payment of B.'s costs of the first. Clark v. Dixon, 4 Jur. (N.S.) 715.

The court refused to stay proceedings in a qui tam action till the costs of a non pros. in a former action by a different plaintiff were paid. English v. Cox, Cowp. 322.

A bill for an account of the personal estate of W. J., an intestate, was filed by the legal personal representative of E. B. against the personal representatives of the deceased administrators of W. J., alleging that the administrators of W. J. had got in the greater part of the estate, and that E. B. was the sole next of kin The suit was revived in 1877 by M., a subsequent personal representative of E. B., against X. and Y., as representatives of one of the administrators, and Z., as representative of the others, and was ultimately dismissed in 1880 with costs as against all three defendants on the ground that the title of E. B. as next of kin was not proved. After this M. took out administration de bonis non to W. J., and brought his action as such administrator against Z. for an account of the personal estate of W. J., received by the administrators whom Z. represented:—Held, that, although M. formerly sued as personal representative of E. B., and now sued as personal representative of W. J., the action was in substance a second proceeding for the same matter under the same alleged title, and that proceedings must be stayed until the costs of the old suit had been paid. Martin v. Beauchamp (Earl) 53 L. J., Ch. 1150; 25 Ch. D. 12; 49 L. T. 334; 32 W. R. 17—C. A.

Where a plaintiff, having failed in one action, brings a second action for the same cause of action, the second action must be stayed until the costs in the first have been paid. And this is the rule in Ireland, as in England. Martin v. Beauchamp (Earl) (25 Ch. D. 12) approved. M'Cabe v. Bank of Ireland, 59 L. J., P. C. 18; 14 App. Cas. 413; 61 L. T. 416; 38 W. R. 257—H. L. (Ir.).

A., in 1891, took possession of the house of C. A. gave up the house, and C. brought an action against him in the queen's bench division for trespass, and claimed damages. C. in his claim alleged possession. A. put in a defence that he (A.) in 1891 was in possession, and if the plaintiff C. was in possession, that he (C.) was wrongfully in possession. A. then withdrew his defence, and was ordered to pay the costs of the action. A. then brought an action against C. in the chancery division asking for a declaration that he was entitled to the property, and for possession:—Held, that the cause of action was substantially the same as that in the action in the queen's bench division, and that the court had jurisdiction to stay proceedings in the second action until payment of the costs of the first action. Hall v. Paulet, 66 L. T. 645.

Second action not stayed, as it did not appear that the effect of the second could be produced by a fair amendment of the first. Budge v. Budge, 12 Beav. 385.

It is an established rule that a plaintiff will not be allowed to institute a second suit for a like matter against parties to a former suit by him, in which a decree with costs was made against him, until those costs have been paid. Ernest v. Partridge, 8 L. T. 762.

The next of kin of a testator instituted a suit for administration with a will annexed bearing date 1868, of which the sole executor and universal legatee was the testator's wife, who predeceased him. In opposition, parties claiming to be legatees set up the contents of a later will alleged to have been executed in 1877 or 1878, but which could not be found. The court of appeal decided that there was not sufficient evidence of the contents of the second will, and their decision was affirmed in the house of lords. A fresh suit for probate of the second will was then commenced by the executor of the testator and residuary legatee of the will of 1877-8, who had been the confidential solicitor of the deceased, and who had acted as solicitor for the legatees all through the litigation. This suit was founded upon fresh evidence of the contents and execution of the second will:—Held, that although the plaintiff had been privy to the prior action, an application to stay the proceedings generally could not be granted, but that the proceedings ought to be stayed until the costs of the plaintiffs in the prior action had been paid. Peters v. Tilly, 55 L. J., P. 75; 11 P. D. 145; 35 W. R. 183.

The plaintiff filed his bill in chancery, and dismissed it after answer; he then filed another bill in exchequer for same matter. Proceedings stopped till costs in chancery paid. Baldwyn v. Malo, 3 Anstr. 835.

Practice of staying proceedings till costs of former proceedings paid is not applied to the case of a suit, as ejectment at law, and a suit in the spiritual court by some of the next of kin disputing, as paupers, a will, on the ground of incapacity, the plaintiff in equity being another next of kin. Wild v. Hobson, 2 Ves. & B. 105.

An action was brought by a married woman by her next friend, and an order was made that the next friend should give security for costs on the ground of poverty. That order not having been complied with, the action was dismissed with costs. Afterwards the plaintiff by a different next friend brought another action for the same purpose:—Held, that the second action ought to be stayed till the costs of the first action were paid. Hind v. Whitmore (2 K. & J. 458) not followed. Payne, In re, Randle v. Payne, 52 L. J., Ch. 544; 23 Ch. D. 288; 48 L. T. 194; 31 W. R. 509—C. A.

A plaintiff having been nonsuited in an action of slander in which the defendant had pleaded a justification, commenced, without having paid the defendant's costs, a second action in formâ pauperis for substantially the same slander as that declared upon in the first action and also for other slanderous words spoken on the same occasion as that slander. The court stayed the proceedings in the second action until payment of the costs of the first. Hoare v. Dickson, 6 D. & L. 577; 7 C. B. 164; 18 L. J., C. P. 158.

The plaintiff's counsel at the trial of an action for libel, after the evidence on both sides was before the jury, elected in the course of his reply to be nonsuited. The plaintiff then commenced a second action, and delivered the declaration on the 13th January, shewing that the cause of action was the same in both cases. After obtaining time to plead, the defendant took out a summons on the 24th January to stay the second action till the costs of the first were paid. No order was made on the summons, but the defendant got further time to plead, and then applied to the court and obtained a rule nisi on the 30th January to stay the second action till the costs of the first were paid. The plaintiff was an uncertified bankrupt and keeping out of the way:—Held, that this was a proper case for staying the second action till the costs of the first were paid, and that the application was in time. Prowse v. Loxdale, 3 B. & S. 896; 32 L. J., Q. B. 227; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 1236; 8 L. T. 314; 11 W. R. 643.

Previous Ejectment.]—The court will stay the proceedings in a second ejectment until the costs are paid of a prior one, even though brought by a third person, or for different premises, if the title is the same. Keene d. Angel v. Angel, 6 Term Rep. 740. S. P., Doe d. Carrell v. Roe, 1 Chit. 195; Doe d. Mudd v. Roe, 8 D. P. C. 444; 4 Jur. 607.

To entitle a defendant to apply for a stay of proceedings until the costs of a former unsuccessful action of ejectment are paid, it is not necessary that the parties should be precisely the same, or the premises sought to be recovered identical; it is enough that the plaintiff is the same in both actions, and that the same title in substance is in issue. Tichborne v. Mostyn, 41 L. J., C. P. 113; L. R. 8 C. P. 29; 26 L. T. 554; 20 W. R. 661.

To induce the court to abstain from acting upon this rule, it must be clearly made out that the plaintiff's want of success on the former occasion was the result of perjury or fraud, or some miscarriage for which he was not responsible. Ib.

Before moving for a stay of the proceedings, the defendant had given the plaintiff the twenty days' notice to proceed under the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, s. 202:—Held, that this was no waiver of his right to move for a stay of the proceedings until the former costs should be paid. But, the probable amount of the costs being large, the court made it a condition that the time for proceeding to trial should be extended by six months. Ib.

Proceedings stayed till the costs of a former ejectment, brought by the father of the lessor of the plaintiff against the defendant's father on the same title, were paid. Doe d. Feldon v. Roe, 8 Term Rep. 645.

But refused where the ejectment was by the heir-at-law for part of the devised premises after he had failed in a previous action for other parts. Doe d. Taylor v. Harris, 4 M. & Ry. 569.

Where the lessor of the plaintiff was son and heir of the lessor in a former ejectment, and claimed under the same title, and against the same defendant, but brought his action for different premises, the court stayed proceedings until the costs of the first action were paid. Doe d. Heighley v. Harland, 10 A. & E. 761; 3 Jur. 1189.

Proceedings stayed in a second ejectment on the several demises of an insolvent debtor, and of his assignee, until payment of the costs of a former ejectment brought by the debtor. Doe d. Standish v. Roe, 2 N. & M. 468; 5 B. & Ad. 378.

Where a defendant improperly obtained a tenant right to the property sought to be recovered, and on the objection taken he was held to be estopped from impugning the lessor's title, and he afterwards brought another ejectment in respect of other property, part of the same estate, held under the same title, he was compelled to pay the costs of the former action in which he was defendant before he proceeded with his own. Doe d. Thomas v. Shadwell, 7 D. P. C. 527; 1 W. W. & H. 574.

If the defendant, in a former ejectment, who was then evicted, brings another ejectment for the same premises, the court will stay the proceedings until he pays the costs of the former cause. Thrustout d. Williams v. Holdfast, 6 Term Rep. 223.

Where several ejectments have been unsuccessfully brought, contesting a title to premises, if possession is obtained of those premises in a subsequent ejectment, founded on the same title as upon a vacant possession, the court will compel the plaintiff to stay his proceedings until the costs of the former ejectments are paid. Harvey d. Beal v. Baker, 2 D. (N.S.) 75; 6 Jur. 605.

In an ejectment by A. and his wife, claiming as devisees under a subsequent will of S. against B., who claimed as devisee under a prior will of S., the court stayed proceedings until the costs were paid in a former ejectment, brought by C. (brother of B., and claiming under the same prior will) against A. and a third party, who claimed under the same subsequent will, and in which judgment had been entered for the plaintiffs, the validity of the same wills being the question in both actions. Doe d. Brayne v. Bather, 12 Q. B. 941; 18 L. J., Q. B. 2; 12 Jur. 1087.

An ejectment having been brought by a son claiming as heir through his father, who was alleged to be dead, and a verdict having passed for the defendant, the father, who was shewn to have kept out of the way, to prevent his son from being nonsuited, brought a second action to recover the same premises. The court stayed the proceedings till the costs of the former action were paid. Morgan v. Nicholl, 3 H. & N. 215; 27 L. J., Ex. 335; 6 W. R. 542.

A. and B. jointly brought two ejectments on the same title, one against C., and the other against D., and recovered in both. In a third, brought by A. and B., on the same title, against C. and D., they had a verdict, and taxed their costs, but never made any express demand of them. The costs were never paid. Four years after the trial of the third cause, B. released to C. and D. his claim to the premises in dispute, in consideration of money, and of a covenant by C. and D. to suspend their claim against B. for costs. Afterwards A. died, and his son brought ejectment against C. and D. on the title relied upon in the former actions. Upon motion to stay proceedings till payment to C. and D. of the costs recovered by them:—Held, that the facts of this case did not take it out of the ordinary rule, and that the defendants were entitled to the stay of proceedings. Doe d. Rees v. Thomas, 4 A. & E. 348.

So, although growing crops were seized under a writ of possession in the first action, of sufficient value to cover the costs. Doe d. Chapman v. Black, 1 Arn. 537; 3 Jur. 246.

—— In Action for Mesne Profits.]—Proceedings were stayed until the costs of a former ejectment, and also of an action for mesne profits, were paid. Doe d. Pinchard v. Roe, 4 East, 585.

Yet the court will not extend the rule to include the damages in an action for mesne profits, however vexatious the proceedings of the present plaintiff may have been. Doe d. Church v. Barclay, 14 East, 233.

—— Action against Sheriff.]—A. and others recovered in ejectment against B. B. afterwards brought trespass against the sheriff for taking the goods of the tenant of the land in execution at the suit of A. The court will not stay proceedings in the action against the sheriff until the costs of the ejectment are paid. Carnaby v. Welby, 1 W. W. & H. 411; 7 D. P. C. 315; 2 Jur. 966.

Costs of Prior Action in other Division unpaid.]—The fact that a previous action, of which the costs are unpaid, has been commenced and discontinued in one of the common law courts, may be a good ground for staying proceedings until such costs are paid. Cannot v.

Morgan, 45 L. J., Ch. 50 ; 1 Ch. D. 1 ; 33 L. T. 402 ; 24 W. R. 91—C. A.

Proceedings in an ejectment would not have been stayed until the costs of a bill in equity, filed by the same party for the recovery of the same premises, were paid. Doe d. Williams v. Winch, 3 B. & Ald. 602.

First Action not tried.] — Where several successive ejectments had been brought to recover property, but not any one of them had been tried, the court refused to stay proceedings in a subsequent ejectment until the costs of the former had been paid. Doe d. Blackburn v. Standish, 2 D. (N.S.) 26 ; 6 Jur. 716.

Costs of Interlocutory Proceeding Unpaid.]—The plaintiff obtained a verdict in an action, and the queen's bench division having refused to grant a rule nisi for a new trial, the defendant obtained a rule absolute in the court of appeal. By the rule the plaintiff was ordered to pay the costs of the applications, which he failed to do : —Held, that the defendant was not entitled to an order to stay the proceedings until the costs were paid. Morton v. Palmer, 51 L. J., Q. B. 307 ; 9 Q. B. D. 89 ; 46 L. T. 285 ; 30 W. R. 951 ; 46 J. P. 358.

The plaintiff being resident out of the jurisdiction, and his bill having been reported prolix, the court restrained him from proceeding in the cause until he paid the costs of the reference and report of prolixity, though the defendant had neglected to compel him to give security for costs. La Touche v. Lawlor, 2 Jones, 629.

Proceedings on a bill which was amended after the allowance of a demurrer will not be stayed till the costs of the demurrer are paid. Dick v. Dick, 1 Hog. 390.

The plaintiff being in contempt for non-payment of costs due under an interlocutory order in the cause, all proceedings in the suit were stayed, on motion by the defendants, till the plaintiff should have cleared his contempt. Bradbury v. Shawe, 14 Jur. 1042.

Although mere non-payment of the costs of an interlocutory motion, which a plaintiff has been ordered to pay, is not per se sufficient ground for ordering further proceedings in his action to be stayed in cases where the party is acting vexatiously in withholding payment of costs, there is jurisdiction, upon application by summons, to stay proceedings until he has complied with the order for payment. Neal, In re (31 Ch. D. 437), and Youngs, In re (31 Ch. D. 239), questioned. Wickham, In re, Marony v. Taylor, 56 L. J., Ch. 748 ; 35 Ch. D. 272 ; 57 L. T. 468 ; 35 W. R. 525 —C. A.

Where a plaintiff is in contempt through breach of an order for payment of the costs of an application in the action, the court will, at the instance of the defendant, upon the action being called on for trial, stay all further proceedings until the plaintiff has cleared his contempt. Neal, In re, Weston v. Neal, 55 L. J., Ch. 376 ; 31 Ch. D. 437 ; 54 L. T. 68 ; 34 W. R. 319.

Where a party prosecuting proceedings is in contempt for not paying costs, the proceedings will be stayed. Youngs, In re, Doggett v. Rerett, 55 L. J., Ch. 371 ; 31 Ch. D. 239 ; 54 L. T. 50 ; 34 W. R. 290.

Some Causes of Action the same as in Former Action, and some different.] — Plaintiff had brought an action for slander and libel. The libel was contained in a letter written by the defendant, the words of which, as set forth in the statement of claim, the plaintiff failed to prove, and he was nonsuited. The costs of this action were not paid by the plaintiff. He then brought a second action for slander and libel against the same defendant. The statement of claim in the second action relied upon the same causes of action in slander, and three of the same causes of action in libel, as were contained in the statement of claim in the first action, but the plaintiff further relied upon other statements contained in the letter which had not been sued upon in the former action. The plaintiff having entered a nolle prosequi on the causes of action, as far as they were identical with those in the former action, the court refused to stay proceedings upon the additional causes of action relied on in the second action. Bywater v. Dunne, 10 L. R. Ir. 380.

Pauper.]—Proceedings in a suit by a pauper stayed till the costs of a previous suit in the court of chancery were paid. Calvert v. Rooth, 4 Y. & Coll. 514.

Bankruptcy.]—When a plaintiff, who has been ordered to pay the costs of a proceeding in a suit, becomes bankrupt, and the suit is revived by his assignee, the court will stay proceedings until payment of the costs which the plaintiff has been ordered to pay. Cook v. Hathway, L. R. 8 Eq. 612 ; 17 W. R. 1057.

Death of Parties.]—Where the costs of a former suit for the same purpose, which had been ordered to be dismissed for want of prosecution, were unpaid, the next friend in that suit having died insolvent :—Held, that the court could not stay proceedings in the new suit until those costs were paid. Hind v. Whitmore, 2 Kay & J. 458 ; 25 L. J., Ch. 394 ; 4 W. R. 379.

After answer, and after liberty to amend had been refused, a suit abated by the death of the plaintiff. The executors filed an original bill of a similar nature. The court stayed the proceedings in the second suit until the costs in the first had been paid. Altree v. Hordern, 5 Beav. 623 ; 12 L. J., Ch. 76 ; 7 Jur. 247.

A suit having become abated by the death of the sole plaintiff, his representatives filed a fresh bill against the former defendants and others, nearly to the same effect as the former bill. Proceedings in the second suit stayed till the plaintiffs had paid the costs of the former suit. Long v. Storie, 19 L. J., Ch. 148 ; 13 Jur. 1091.

A bill had been dismissed for want of prosecution. Before the costs were paid the defendant died, and the plaintiff filed another bill for the same object against the defendant's executor. The proceedings in the latter suit were stayed until the costs of the former were paid. Spires v. Sewell, 5 Sim. 193.

The Application.]—Bill dismissed with costs without prejudice to a new bill ; order will be made to stop plaintiff proceeding by a new bill, until he pays the costs, if the application is made early ; but if defendant had taken any step before applying for it, such order to stop will be refused. Ouge v. Truelock, 2 Moll. 41 ; Beat. 339.

The merits of the case cannot be discussed on the motion. Montgomery v. Johnson, 9 Ir. Eq. R. 221.

Dismissal on Non-payment.]—A bill was filed against A. and B. A. obtained an order to stay proceedings until the plaintiff had paid the costs of a former suit for the same object, and which had been dismissed with costs. The plaintiff, not paying the costs, was prevented from proceeding against A.; and, after considerable delay, B. procured the bill to be dismissed for want of prosecution. Lautour v. Holcombe, 10 Beav. 256.

Proceedings in a second suit were stayed until the costs of a former suit for the same purpose had been paid. After great delay, the court ordered that, unless the costs were paid within a limited time, the bill should stand dismissed. Lautour v. Holcombe, 11 Beav. 624.

A defendant submitted to the claim of the plaintiff except the costs of a distringas. The court would not stay the proceedings till the question was agreed upon or determined. Field v. Robinson, 7 Beav. 66.

When a plaintiff is in contempt for nonpayment of costs of an interlocutory application, and the defendant has obtained an order staying further proceedings on the plaintiff's part until such costs are paid, a motion by the defendant asking the court to fix a time for payment of the costs, and, in default, to dismiss the bill, is irregular. Gould v. Twine, 43 L. J., Ch. 381; 30 L. T. 243; 22 W. R. 398.

Acquiescence.]—The plaintiff, in a cross-suit, in which, as well as in the original suit, a decree had been made against him, with costs, moved for a further production of documents (which had been, as he alleged, withheld from him by reason of untrue statements in the answer), and for leave to file a supplemental bill in the nature of a bill of review. The motion, as regarded the documents, was refused, with costs; but, by consent, leave was given to file a supplemental bill on the plaintiff depositing 50*l.* The supplemental bill was filed; and pending the hearing of the appeal in the original suit, the defendants moved that all proceedings against them for want of answer in it might be stayed till after the plaintiff had paid the costs of the motion (for non-payment of which he was in contempt), or otherwise that the time for answering might be enlarged. The time was enlarged for four weeks, without prejudice to an application to stay proceedings. After the original decree had been affirmed, with costs, the defendant moved that all proceedings in the supplemental suit might be stayed until after the plaintiff should have paid the costs of the first-mentioned motion, and also of the original and cross-suits (for payment of which last-mentioned costs he was also in contempt):—Held, that the motion was properly refused as to the latter costs on the ground of acquiescence, but that, as regarded the former, the order ought to have been made. Reynell v. Sprye, 1 De G. M. & G. 712; 21 L. J., Ch. 664.

Costs should be taxed.]—A summons to stay proceedings in one suit, on the ground of nonpayment of costs in another, was taken out before the amount of costs had been ascertained by the master's certificate:—Held, that this proceeding was irregular. Ernest v. Partridge, 8 L. T. 762.

k. Until after Discovery.

Given by Foreign Government.]—Proceedings in a suit by a foreign government were stayed until the means of discovery were secured in a cross-suit. Peru Republic v. Weguelin, 44 L. J., Ch. 583; L. R. 20 Eq. 140; 32 L. T. 426; 23 W. R. 776.

Until Officer named to give Discovery.]—An original bill was filed by a foreign republic, and a cross-bill was filed by one of the defendants against the republic, and one of its officers was made a defendant for the purpose of discovery:—Held, that the court would not order proceedings in the original suit to be stayed until the officer of the republic had appeared. Costa Rica Republic v. Erlanger, 45 L. J., Ch. 145; 1 Ch. D. 171; 24 W. R. 151—C. A. Reversing 33 L. T. 632.

The United States of America having filed a bill, a cross-suit was instituted against them and the president, by the defendants, for discovery, and a motion being made to stay proceedings in the original suit until an answer had been put in in the second suit:—Held, that the United States of America, though a quasi-corporation, were to be treated, for the purpose of the suit, as any other foreign sovereign, and that they were bound to answer on oath by an agent, but that the president was not properly selected for that purpose, as not being necessarily under their control with reference to giving discovery. United States of America v. Prioleau, 36 L. J., Ch. 36; L. R. 2 Eq. 659; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 724; 14 L. T. 700; 14 W. R. 1012.

Jurisdiction.]—The court of chancery has not only full power to stay all proceedings in a suit till the plaintiff has made a discovery which it has called upon him to make, but, if not satisfied that its order has been properly obeyed, may dismiss the suit itself: and where money has been paid into court, may direct the payment of that money out of court to the party entitled to it. Liberia Republic v. Roye, 1 App. Cas. 139; 34 L. T. 145.

Nominal Plaintiff—Discovery by Real Plaintiff.]—Where an action is brought by an agent on behalf of a principal who is resident abroad, and such agent is only a nominal plaintiff, the real plaintiff will be compelled to make discovery to the same extent as if he had been the plaintiff upon the record, and the action will be stayed until such discovery is made through the nominal plaintiff. Willis v. Baddeley, 61 L. J., Q. B. 769; [1892] 2 Q. B. 324; 67 L. T. 206; 40 W. R. 577—C. A.

l. Other Grounds.

No Debt due proved by Affidavit.]—The court will not stay proceedings in an action for a debt, though it clearly appears by affidavit that there is no debt due. Smith v. Curtis 2 D. P. C. 223.

The court will not stay proceedings in an action, although it is distinctly sworn that it is brought for a sum of money already recovered in a former action between the same parties; that the plaintiff is in insolvent circumstances; and that, in the event of the action failing, the defendant will have to pay his own costs. Jacques v. Ross, 8 M. & W. 135; 9 D. P. C. 737; 5 Jur. 345.

Security for Costs.]—A plaintiff having gone abroad subsequently to his cause being set down in the special paper for argument, upon a motion for security for costs, the court directed that the demurrer should be argued, when, if judgment should be given for the plaintiff, proceedings should be stayed until security for costs was given. Kemble v. Mills, 1 Man. & G. 565; 8 D. P. C. 836; 1 Scott (N.R.) 402. And see COSTS.

Want of Interest.]—A testatrix, having indorsed and delivered a bill of exchange to her bankers for collection at maturity, died before the bill became due, and her executors, before probate of the will was granted, sued the bankers for a return of the bill or its value. The defendants were always willing to pay over the proceeds of the bill to the plaintiffs upon production of probate:—Held, that all proceedings in the action ought to be stayed until the plaintiffs obtained probate. Webb v. Adkins (14 C. B. 401) followed. Tarn v. Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, 12 Q. B. D. 294; 50 L. T. 365; 32 W. R. 492.

A sole plaintiff, whose interest failed pending a reference to take the accounts, was restrained from proceeding further in the suit. Hay v. Bowen, 5 Beav. 610; 12 L. J., Ch. 78; 6 Jur. 1119.

When the plaintiff is, after decree, found to have no title, the suit may be stayed on the application of a person who has been served with notice of the decree. Houseman v. Houseman, 1 Ch. D. 535; 34 L. T. 633; 24 W. R. 592—C. A.

When Defendant absconds.]—After a decree for specific performance of a contract to take a lease of a house, and an order on further consideration for payment of the sums certified to be due from him (for costs and damages), the defendant having absconded without paying the amount, the court, on motion by the plaintiff, ordered the contract to be rescinded and all further proceedings in the suit stayed, except as to the recovery of the sums already ordered to be paid. Watson v. Cox, 42 L. J., Ch. 279; L. R. 15 Eq. 219; 27 L. T. 814; 21 W. R. 310.

Equitable Defence.]—A defendant in an action having an equitable defence should obtain from the judge of the common law division leave to plead that defence, and cannot obtain from a judge of the chancery division a direction to stay proceedings in the common law division; and this prevails whether the action was commenced before or after the Judicature Acts came into operation. Garbutt v. Fawcus, 45 L. J., Ch. 133; 1 Ch. D. 155; 33 L. T. 617; 24 W. R. 91—C. A.

Unprosecuted Felony disclosed.]—Where a civil action claiming damages for acts which, on the face of the pleadings, amount to a felony, was instituted and came before the court upon an interlocutory matter:—Held, that the court should not of its own motion, where no application is made by the defendant, and where no prosecution was pending, stay the action on the ground of the felony not having been prosecuted. A. v. B. or S. v. S., 16 Cox, C. C. 566; 24 L. R. Ir. 235.

Compliance with Plaintiff's Demand—Without Costs.]—When a defendant offers to comply with the plaintiff's demand, and would have done so, if asked, before bill filed, the court will stay all further proceedings without costs. Rudd v. Rowe, 39 L. J., Ch. 846; L. R. 10 Eq. 610; 22 L. T. 785; 18 W. R. 977.

Agreement or Compromise.]—The court, on motion, has sometimes stayed proceedings in a suit where the parties have entered into an agreement for that purpose. Rowe v. Wood, 1 Jac. & Walk. 337.

Under s. 24 of the Judicature Act, 1873, an agreement between the parties to an action to stay further proceedings upon specified terms can be enforced upon a summary application. Eden v. Naish, 47 L. J., Ch. 325; 7 Ch. D. 781; 26 W. R. 392.

Where a suit has been compromised, and proceedings in it stayed by an order of the court, the court, on setting aside the compromise as against a co-plaintiff, will allow him to proceed with the suit, though the proceedings remain stayed as against the other co-plaintiffs. Brooke v. Mostyn (Lord), 13 W. R. 248.

Plaintiff becoming Insane.]—After decree, a commission of lunacy issued against the plaintiff, who, being a married woman, was suing by her next friend. The court, on the application of her husband, a defendant, stayed the proceedings in the suit until the result of the proceedings under the commission was known. Hartley v. Gilbert, 13 Sim. 596.

A suit being properly instituted, the proceedings not to be stayed on the ground of the plaintiff's subsequently becoming imbecile. Wartnaby v. Wartnaby, Jac. 377.

Infant Plaintiff.]—Motion to stay a suit commenced in the name of infants for account of their property, upon affidavits representing that the suit was for their benefit, refused. Lyons v. Blenkin, Jac. 259; 23 R. R. 38.

Petition before Parliament.]—A suggestion that there is a petition before parliament is no cause for staying proceedings, but rather otherwise. Gray's Inn case, Lofft. 436.

Act of Parliament likely to be passed.]—In a qui tam action for penalties, the court refused to stay the proceedings upon a suggestion by affidavit that an act of parliament was likely to be passed the effect of which would be to relieve the defendant from the penalties. Grant v. Ridley, 5 Man. & G. 201; 6 Scott (N.R.) 176; 12 L. J., C. P. 151.

Where an action had been commenced to recover penalties for omissions mentioned in a statute, and an act had afterwards passed which, as respected some only of those omissions, enacted that no action already commenced to recover penalties in respect of them should be prosecuted without the consent of a judge:—Held, that the proceedings in the action subsequent to the passing of the latter statute must be set aside, the consent of a judge not having been obtained.

Grant v. Browne, 1 D. & L. 799; 7 Scott (N.R.) 508; 13 L. J., C. P. 23; 8 Jur. 177.

Discontinuance.]—A rule to discontinue is not a stay of proceedings. Beeton or Baker v. Jupp or Gupp, 15 M. & W. 149; 3 D. & L. 474; 15 L. J., Ex. 120; 10 Jur. 646.

Of Issue of Fact pending Appeal on Question of Law.]—Where a question of law has been decided on demurrer, or on a preliminary objection, and an appeal has been brought, the court will not in general stay the trial of the issues of fact pending the appeal. Palmer's Application, In re, 52 L. J., Ch. 224; 22 Ch. D. 88; 48 L. T. 52; 31 W. R. 33—C. A.

2. Practice.

To what Court Application must be made.]—An application to stay proceedings in an action must be made in the court in which the action is pending. No other judge or court has jurisdiction to stay proceedings. Garbutt v. Fawcus, 45 L. J., Ch. 133; 1 Ch. D. 155; 33 L. T. 617; 24 W. R. 91—C. A. South of France Pottery Works Syndicate, In re, 37 L. T. 260; 25 W. R. 870—C. A. People's Garden Co., In re, 45 L. J., Ch. 129; 1 Ch. D. 44; 24 W. R. 40. Walker v. Banagher Distillery Co., 45 L. J., Q. B. 134; 1 Q. B. D. 129; 33 L. T. 502. Rose v. Gardden Lodge, &c., Co., 47 L. J., Q. B. 338; 3 Q. B. D. 235; 38 L. T. 101; 26 W. R. 353. The decisions contra, viz., Kingchurch v. People's Garden Co., 45 L. J., C. P. 131; 1 C. P. D. 45; 33 L. T. 381; 24 W. R. 41; Needham v. Rivers Protection Co., 45 L. J., Ch. 132; 1 Ch. D. 253; 33 L. T. 403; 24 W. R. 317, cannot be supported.

Power of County Court Judge to restrain Action in High Court.]—The County Courts Act, 1865, s. 2, confers upon the judge of a county court all the powers and authorities, for the purposes of that act, possessed by a judge of the court of chancery, which at that time included the power of restraining by injunction an action in a superior court of common law. Such a power has been taken away from the court of chancery by s. 24, sub-s. 5, of the Judicature Act, 1873, and is therefore impliedly taken away also from a county court judge, who has moreover expressly conferred upon him by the same act (s. 89) the same powers as are possessed by the high court of justice. Cobbold v. Pryke, 49 L. J., Ex. 8; 4 Ex. D. 315; 28 W. R. 259.

Application without Delay.]—When an application is to be made for relief or indulgence it ought to be made without delay. Fisher v. Begrez, 1 D. P. C. 588. And see preceding subheads.

Clear Case for Relief.]—On an interlocutory application to stay an action, the plaintiff's equity must be clearly established, or he must pay the money into court; therefore where the equity rested on an alleged parol agreement, which was denied by the defendant, and the plaintiff declined to pay the money into court, a motion to stay the action was refused. Grech v. Oram, 39 L. J., Ch. 126.

Affidavits in support of a rule to set aside proceedings must shew a clear case for relief. Preedy v. Lovell, 4 D. P. C. 671.

Costs on Stay.]—When a defendant obtains the ordinary order to stay proceedings upon payment of costs, it is the duty of the master when taxing such costs to consider and determine questions raised by the defendant as to the necessity or propriety of proceedings for which charges are made in the bills of costs. Wormsley, In re, Baines v. Wormsley, 47 L. J., Ch. 844; 39 L. T. 85; 27 W. R. 36.

Although the general rule is, on setting aside proceedings for irregularity, that the successful party is entitled to his costs, still the court will not give them if they consider the matter one on which doubts might have fairly existed. Jones v. Smith, 3 M. & W. 526; 6 D. P. C. 557; 7 L. J., Ex. 143.

If, on moving to set aside proceedings for irregularity, the rule does not pray for costs, the court cannot give them. Rex v. Middlesex Corporation, 2 D. P. C. 5.

Where an inquisition of damages before the sheriff was excessive, and the court granted a rule for setting it aside, leaving it to an arbitrator to say for what sum the verdict should stand (nothing being said at the time as to costs), and the arbitrator reduced the damages considerably:—Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to the costs of setting aside the inquisition. Lewis v. Harris, 4 D. & R. 129; 2 B. & C. 620.

Where a creditor brings an action against a company which to his knowledge is in voluntary liquidation, and the claim is admitted by the liquidator, the court will order the creditor to pay the costs of an application to stay the action. Freeman v. General Publishing Co., 63 L. J., Q. B. 678; [1894] 2 Q. B. 380; 10 R. 366; 70 L. T. 845; 42 W. R. 539; 1 Manson, 366.

Proceedings stayed in a tithe suit as to one of several defendants on payment of costs. Ould v. Griffin, 8 Ir. Eq. R. 512.

Where a decree had been obtained in chancery for the general administration of a testator's assets, a bill previously filed in this court by an annuitant under the will against the executor was dismissed; and as the annuitant's bill had been filed with undue haste, she was not allowed the costs of the application to stay proceedings, although she was allowed her costs up to the time of notice of the decree. Hayward v. Constable, 2 Y. & Coll. 43.

A party prosecuting a suit after notice of decree in another suit under which he may obtain all the relief which he seeks in his own, may be refused his costs of an application to stay proceedings; but it is contrary to the practice to order him to pay such costs. Such application may be made by the plaintiff in the suit in which the decree has been made, if he have an interest in staying proceedings, as well as by the defendant, although such plaintiff be not a party to the other suit. Portarlington (Earl) v. Damer, 2 Ph. 262; 16 L. J., Ch. 370; 11 Jur. 443.

Where after answer a plaintiff moved to stay all proceedings on certain terms, and a defendant by a cross-motion moved to dismiss the bill with costs, the court, by one order on both motions, made the costs of the motion costs in the cause. Ventilation and Sanitary Improvement Co. v. Edelsten, 11 W. R. 613; 2 N. R. 53.

When dealing with the costs of an informal motion to stay proceedings, the court will not wholly disregard the merits of the suit. Ib.

When a suit is properly instituted, but after its institution circumstances occur which render its further prosecution impossible, it is in the discretion of the court to stay proceedings with or without costs; and the court will look at the circumstances under which the suit was instituted to determine this question. Elsey v. Adams, 10 L. T. 212 ; 12 W. R. 586 ; 3 N. R. 696.

When the matters in dispute have been disposed of by an independent proceeding, the plaintiff may apply to stay proceedings, and the court will then dispose of the costs. But where the suit has been dismissed against some of the defendants for want of prosecution, the court is no longer able to adjudicate as to the costs, in the absence of the dismissed parties : and in default of prosecution the bill will be dismissed in the usual way, with costs. Troward v. Attwood, 27 Beav. 85.

1. When Ordered.

Account—Sum claimed.]—Where a plaintiff claims to recover a definite sum made up of a number of items he will be ordered to give particulars of demand, though he will not be ordered to do so if he only claims an account. Blackie v. Osmaston, 54 L. J., Ch. 473 ; 28 Ch. D. 119 ; 52 L. T. 6 ; 33 W. R. 158—C. A.

The administratrix of A., by statement of claim in an action against the administratrix of G., alleged that an arrangement had been made between A. and G. that sums contributed by them for the purpose of being lent to or applied for the benefit of C., to enable him to carry on a litigation, should be treated as a joint transaction, and that as soon as C. had established his title to the property for which he was suing and could repay the advances made him the advances made by A. and G. should be repaid out of the moneys recovered from him ; that during the litigation A. advanced, in pursuance of this arrangement, sums amounting to about 27,000*l.* ; that the advances made to C. were made through G. and in his name ; that the defendant had recovered a judgment against C. for the advances to him, and that a sum had been set apart in a suit in chancery in satisfaction of this judgment. The plaintiff claimed that it might be declared that the loans by G., in respect of which the judgment was recovered, were transactions for the joint benefit of A. and G. as partners, and to have the sums contributed by them respectively ascertained, and asked that the plaintiff might be declared entitled to a share in the benefit of the judgment and in the fund set aside to satisfy it. The defendant, before putting in a defence, applied for an account, with dates and items of the particulars of the 27,000*l.* mentioned in the statement of claim :—Held, that, the action not being a mere legal demand for an ascertained sum, but an equitable claim for an amount to be ascertained by an account, the particulars asked for were not required to enable the defendant to frame her defence, and that the plaintiff ought not to be ordered to furnish them. Augustinus v. Nerincks, 16 Ch. D. 13 ; 43 L. T. 458 ; 29 W. R. 225—C. A.

It was alleged by counter-claim to a redemption action that the mortgage comprised : (1) certain commission ; (2) a sum also secured by bills of exchange ; (3) a sum due on an open account, and that the mortgagee had received divers sums in respect of the bills of exchange and on the open account. The mortgagee counter-claimed for an account and foreclosure or sale. Particulars of the sums received by him on the bills of exchange and the open account were ordered to be given. Kemp v. Goldberg, 36 Ch. D. 505 ; 56 L. T. 736 ; 36 W. R. 278.

Particulars by Plaintiff of Credits.]—A plaintiff may be ordered to give particulars of items which are, in his claim, placed to the credit of the defendant. Godden v. Corsten, 49 L. J., C. P. 112 ; 5 C. P. D. 17 ; 41 L. T. 527 ; 28 W. R. 305.

The rule which formerly existed not to compel a plaintiff to state the items of sums for which he has voluntarily given credit to the defendant in his particulars of demand is, since the Judicature Act, no longer applicable, and the defendant can require the plaintiff to state such items, unless they are such as would be more within the knowledge of the defendant than of the plaintiff. Therefore where, in an action on a builder's contract, the plaintiff in his particulars, on a specially-indorsed writ, gave credit to the defendant for a lump sum "for work not performed," and for another lump sum for "bricks, goods, and works," the court held, that the defendant was entitled to have an account, with dates and items, as to these two lump sums. Ib.

In ordering further and better particulars, the court will not compel the plaintiff to give particulars of payments made by the defendant. Fussell v. Gordon, 13 C. B. 847.

The court will not compel a plaintiff suing for the balance of an account to furnish a statement of moneys received by him from the defendant. Penprase v. Crease, 1 M. & W. 36 ; 4 D. P. C. 711 ; 1 Tyr. & G. 468 ; 5 L. J., Ex. 105.

Where there is a debtor-and-creditor account, the particulars should specify the matters for which credit is meant to be given. Mitchell v. Wright, 1 Esp. 280.

And stating the debtor side only is not sufficient. Adlington v. Appleton, 2 Camp. 410.

The rule which requires the sum or balance claimed to be stated does not require the plaintiff to state the items in reduction of his demand ; it is sufficient if he states the credit which he gives generally, so as to shew the balance he claims. Smith v. Eldridge, 5 N. & M. 408 ; 1 H. & W. 527 ; 4 A. & E. 64.

A plaintiff is not bound to give the defendant a statement of the items of the sums for which he has given the defendant credit in his particulars. Myatt v. Green, 13 M. & W. 377 ; 14 L. J., Ex. 34.

Under Pleas of Payment, &c.]—A defendant who pleads payment of a sum of money may be compelled to furnish the particulars of the payment. Ireland v. Thompson, 4 Bing. (N.C.) 716 ; 6 Scott, 601 ; 1 Arn. 271 ; 7 L. J., C. P. 296 ; 2 Jur. 518.

But the court of exchequer refused to compel a defendant to deliver particulars of a plea of payment. Phipps v. Sothern, 8 D. P. C. 208 ; 9 L. J., Ex. 88 ; 4 Jur. 204.

The court ordered particulars of a plea of exoneration and discharge. Coombe v. Stephenson, 31 L. T. 585 ; 23 W. R. 137.

On Payment into Court.]—In an action against a carrier for the loss of, and injury to, goods sent to different places at different times, comprising a variety of claims specified in the particulars delivered under a judge's order, he paid a sum of money into court, in satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to an account of the particular items of the demand in respect of which the sum was paid into court. Baxendale v. G. W. Ry., 6 H. & N. 95; 30 L. J., Ex. 63.

But particulars of the parts of a plaintiff's claim in respect of which money is paid into court, will not be ordered, except under very special circumstances. Thames Ironworks and Shipbuilding Co. v. Royal Mail Steam Packet Co., 10 C. B. (N.S.) 375; 30 L. J., C. P. 265; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 972; 4 L. T. 250; 9 W. R. 577.

The court refused to order such particulars in an action for extras and alterations upon a shipbuilding contract. Ib.

The court has a discretion to order a defendant to give particulars of the items of claim in respect of which he pays money into court, but it can only make such an order when the trial of the action will be facilitated and neither party embarrassed by it. Orient Steam Navigation Co. v. Ocean Marine Insurance Co., 34 W. R. 442.

An action was brought by the plaintiff as lessor, against the defendants, as lessees, of certain premises for—(1) possession; (2) mesne profits; (3) damages for dilapidations and non-repair. The defence was a general denial of all liability, and a payment of 30*l.* into court, as sufficient to satisfy the plaintiff's claim in the action. A judge at chambers having made an order that the defendants should give to the plaintiff particulars in writing, stating in respect of which of the two heads of claim (mesne profits and damages for dilapidations) the payment into court was made, and if in respect of both, how much for each head:—Held, that the order was right, as the defendants ought to give the particulars asked for, apportioning the sum paid into the different heads of claim. Rowe v. Kelly, 59 L. T. 139.

Reasonable and probable Cause.]—In an action for malicious prosecution, where a defendant pleads reasonable and probable cause, the court will refuse to order particulars of the facts upon which he relies unless special circumstances are shewn why particulars should be ordered. Roberts v. Owen, 54 J. P. 295.

The plaintiff sued the defendant for having wrongfully made and signed an order, stating that the plaintiff was a person of unsound mind, in consequence of which the plaintiff had been assaulted and removed to a lunatic asylum and kept there against his will; and he also claimed damages for the libel contained in such order. The defendant, in his defence, pleaded (inter alia) reasonable and probable cause for believing the plaintiff to have been a person of unsound mind, and fit to be detained under care and treatment:—Held, that the allegation of reasonable and probable cause was an immaterial allegation, and that the defendant could not be ordered to give particulars thereof. Cave v. Torre, 54 L. T. 515—C. A.

Libel—Publication.]—In an action for libel brought by the plaintiff as director of a company against the defendants, a committee of the shareholders in the company, for statements contained in a report drawn up, and alleged to be maliciously published by them, the defendants had obtained, after the pleadings had been closed, an order for particulars of the occasion of any publication by them to persons other than shareholders:—Held, that the defendants were not entitled to such particulars, since the publication complained of clearly included publication to others than shareholders, though not expressly so stated, and sufficiently complied with the requirements of pleading as laid down under Ord. XIX. r. 4. Roselle v. Buchanan (16 Q. B. D. 656) distinguished, as applicable only to actions for slander. Gouraud v. Fitzgerald, 37 W. R. 265—C. A.

—— Plea of Justification.]—Defendant published articles alleging that the plaintiff, who was governor of Mauritius, had been charged by members of the council with sending to the colonial office garbled reports of their speeches. The articles were also alleged by the plaintiff to impute that he had in fact transmitted such garbled accounts. An action for libel having been brought, the defendant pleaded that the alleged libels were true in substance and in fact:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to further and better particulars, it not being clear whether the defence meant that what was charged against the plaintiff had been truly reported, or that what was reported to have been charged was in fact true. Hennessy v. Wright, 57 L. J., Q. B. 594; 59 L. T. 795; 36 W. R. 878—C. A.

A plea of justification in an action on a libel may be allowed, in a general form, when the charge is not matter indictable, the defendant rendering particulars of the charges intended to be justified. Behrens v. Allen, 8 Jur. (N.S.) 118.

A general plea of justification in an action of libel, where the libel complained of consists of a general charge against the plaintiff, is bad, unless the defendant, in his particulars, states specifically the facts upon which he relies in support of the charge. Zierenberg v. Labouchere, 63 L. J., Q. B. 89; [1893] 2 Q. B. 183; 4 R. 464; 69 L. T. 172; 41 W. R. 675; 57 J. P. 711—C. A.

The plaintiff applied for an order for particulars of a defence of justification pleaded to an action for libel contained in a review of a book written by him. The review stated that the plaintiff was, by his own confession, a most barefaced liar:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to particulars of the passages in his book on which the defendants relied in support of the defence of justification, and that such particulars must specify the pages in the book at which the several passages relied on occurred, and the first and last words of such passages. Devereux v. Clarke, 60 L. J., Q. B. 773; [1891] 2 Q. B. 582.

Slander of Title.]—A statement of claim alleged that the defendant had slandered the plaintiff's title to certain lands by publishing certain words "just before the exposure to sale by auction of said lands, whereby the persons desirous of purchasing were prevented from bidding," to the plaintiff's loss, &c.:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to an order for particulars of the occasions when and where such words were spoken, and also of the persons present on such occasions, and the best particulars the plaintiff could furnish of the persons who were desirous of purchasing, and were prevented by reason of the words complained of. Roche v. Meyler, [1896] 2 Ir. R. 35.

Slander—Names of Persons to whom Slander uttered.]—In an action for slander the court ordered the plaintiff, upon a summons taken out by the defendant before delivery of the defence, to give particulars of the names of the persons to whom the alleged slander was uttered. Roselle v. Buchanan, 55 L. J., Q. B. 376; 16 Q. B. D. 656; 34 W. R. 488.

A statement of claim alleged that T., "at the request and by the direction of the defendant, falsely and maliciously spoke and published of and concerning the plaintiff" certain slanderous words, which were set out:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to particulars of the persons to whom the words were uttered. Bradbury v. Cooper, 53 L. J., Q. B. 558; 12 Q. B. D. 94; 32 W. R. 32.

When particulars are required to be given of the names of persons who may have heard the defendant utter certain slanders in a public room, an order that the plaintiff is to deliver "the best particulars he can give of the persons present" when the slanders were uttered is correct, and will not be varied by the court. Williams v. Ramsdale, 36 W. R. 125.

Ejectment.]—See EJECTMENT.

—— Claim as Heir-at-law—Pedigree.]—In an action for recovery of land, where the plaintiff sets up a claim to possession as heir-at-law without further detail, a defendant in possession is entitled to particulars of the pedigree on which such heirship is based. Palmer v. Palmer, 61 L. J., Q. B. 236; [1892] 1 Q. B. 319.

Trespass to Land.]—In an action of trespass, where the locus in quo was of considerable extent, and related to a right to moor ships, the plaintiff was required to give particulars of the trespass. Kirwin v. Jones, 3 Hodges, 230.

Acts of Negligence.]—When a declaration in an action against the defendant for negligent navigation of his ship, causing injury, contains only general allegations of negligence on the part of the defendant in respect of navigation, and of keeping the machinery and the ship in good repair, the court will not require the plaintiff to give particulars of matters which he may suppose to constitute the negligence of the defendant, such being within the knowledge of the defendant and his servants, and not necessarily within the personal knowledge of the plaintiff. George v. Watts, 30 L. T. 60.

Negligent Driving.]—In an action for an injury by the careless driving of a servant of the defendant, the court refused to make an order for particulars of the injury sustained by the plaintiff. Wicks v. Macnamara, 3 H. & N. 568; 27 L. J., Ex. 419.

Action for Escape.]—In an action against the marshal of the King's Bench prison for an escape, the plaintiff was bound to give a particular of the escape relied upon, and the judge's order for a particular should require the precise day of the escape to be stated, which the plaintiff must state in his particular, if within his knowledge. Davis v. Chapman, 1 N. & P. 699; 6 A. & E. 767; W. W. & D. 273; 6 L. J., K. B. 142.

Fraud and Repudiation.]—To an action commenced by a company, and continued by the official manager under the winding-up acts, for calls on shares held by the defendant in the company, he pleaded that he was induced to become the holder of the shares by fraud, and within a reasonable time after he had notice of the fraud, and before he had received any benefit from the contract, he repudiated it:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to particulars of the acts of fraud and repudiation. M'Creight v. Stevens, 1 H. & C. 454; 31 L. J., Ex. 455; 6 L. T. 503; 10 W. R. 798.

Particulars granted on a general plea (by way of equitable defence) of fraud on the part of a cestui que trust. Pitts v. Chambers, 1 F. & F. 684.

Where, in an action of contract, the defendant in one paragraph of the defence pleaded fraud generally, an order was made, on the application of the plaintiff, for particulars of the acts of fraud relied upon in that paragraph, although the defence in subsequent paragraphs specifically set out certain alleged fraudulent representations. Bastow v. Bradshaw, 8 L. R., Ir. 30.

It is not enough in a statement of claim to refer to particulars of fraud, misrepresentation, breach of trust, wilful default, or undue influence previously furnished to the defendant. Such particulars must, under Ord. XIX. r. 6, be stated on the face of the pleadings. Kingston v. Corker, 29 L. R., Ir. 364.

In an action by a colliery company against coal merchants for fraudulent misrepresentation on the part of the defendants in selling coal falsely purporting to be the plaintiffs' coal, the plaintiffs by their statement of claim pleaded two particular instances of fraud, and also alleged generally divers other instances. The defendants admitted the two particular instances as occurring through the fraud of a clerk, but offered to make an affidavit that they knew of no other instances:—Held, that as the plaintiffs had made a substantial case, and the defendants had the means of ascertaining from their books whether further frauds had been committed, the plaintiffs were entitled to discovery before delivering particulars. Waynes Merthyr Co. v. Radford, 65 L. J., Ch. 140; [1896] 1 Ch. 29; 73 L. T. 624; 44 W. R. 103.

Fraudulent Sales—Names and Addresses of Purchasers.]—In an action to restrain the defendants from fraudulently selling inferior qualities of goods manufactured by the plaintiffs as their best quality, and from falsely and maliciously representing that the goods of the plaintiffs' manufacture were inferior to those of the defendants' manufacture, the plaintiffs were ordered to give particulars of the names and addresses of the persons to whom the goods had been sold, as well as the times and places of such sales:—Held, that the plaintiffs, by giving particulars of the times and places of the alleged sales, were giving to the defendants all the information that they required to enable them to meet the case made by the plaintiffs; and that it was not necessary to give particulars of the names and addresses of the purchasers. Duke v. Wisden, 77 L. T. 67—C. A.

Instigation to improper Act and improper Motives alleged.]—An action was brought by the plaintiff association against the defendant association, and the liquidator in the winding-up thereof, claiming that, notwithstanding a certain order made in the winding-up, the defendant association was liable to pay a certain sum of money to the plaintiff association. The order had been made on the application of the liquidator postponing payment of that debt. The statement of claim alleged that the directors of the plaintiff association were shareholders of the defendant association, and had instigated and concurred in the liquidator's application for the purpose of escaping from their liability to calls which, as members of the defendant association, they would be under if the claim of the plaintiff association were enforced; and that the liquidator and the directors of the defendant association and their solicitors knew that the directors of the plaintiff association were also shareholders of the defendant association, and also the improper motives which actuated the said directors:—Held, that a line must be drawn between requiring the plaintiff association to make a sufficient statement to prevent the defendant association being taken by surprise at the trial, and requiring it to disclose the evidence on which it intended to rely; and therefore, that the plaintiff association must state whether the alleged instigation was verbal or in writing, and, if verbal, by whom it was made, and, if in writing, the date of such writing, and also give particulars of the improper motives which were alleged to have actuated the directors. Briton Medical and General Life Association v. Britannia Fire Association, 59 L. T. 888.

Defective Condition of Ship.]—In an action by the owners of cargo against the shipowners, for damage to the cargo caused by the alleged defective condition of the ship:—Held, that the defendants were entitled to particulars of the alleged defective condition of their ship. The Rory, 51 L. J., P. 73; 7 P. D. 117; 46 L. T. 757; 4 Asp. M. C. 535—C. A.

Breach of Covenants in Lease.]—In an action on a bond for breach of covenants in a lease, where breaches are not assigned in the declaration, copies of the covenant alleged to be broken are sufficient particulars of demand, if there is no plea of performance. Souter v. Hitchcock, 5 D. P. C. 724; W. W. & D. 361; 1 Jur. 658.

Plaintiffs not claiming to Recover.]—A plaintiff will not be compelled to give particulars of matters in respect of which he does not claim to recover. Luck v. Handley, 4 Ex. 486; 19 L. J., Ex. 29; 13 Jur. 962.

Special Damage.]—The court will not compel a plaintiff, suing for the breach of an agreement, and assigning by way of special damage, that he has incurred certain expenses, to furnish particulars of such special damage. Retallick v. Hawkes, 1 M. & W. 573; 1 Tyr. & G. 1134.

Breach of Warranty.]—Or, in an action for the breach of warranty of a horse, the court will not order the plaintiff to give particulars of the unsoundness complained of. Pylie v. Stephen, 6 M. & W. 813; 8 D. P. C. 871; 4 Jur. 852.

No Ambiguity.]—In an action on the case, the court will not require the plaintiff to deliver a particular of his claim, where, from the mode of alleging it in the declaration, there is no ambiguity as to the transaction in respect of which the action is brought. Stannard v. Ullithorne, 5 D. P. C. 370; 3 Scott, 771; 3 Bing. (N.C.) 326; 2 Hodges, 247.

Bill of Exchange.]—Where a plaintiff declares only on a bill of exchange, the defendant is not, except under very special circumstances, entitled to particulars of demand. Brooks v. Farlar, 3 Scott, 654; 3 Bing. (N.C.) 291; 5 D. P. C. 36; 2 Hodges, 264; 6 L. J., C. P. 26.

Life Policy—Particulars of Symptoms.]—In an action on a policy of insurance, one of the questions put as the basis of the proposal was, whether the deceased had ever been afflicted with or had any symptoms of any complaint. The defendant having pleaded that the answer to this was untrue, as the deceased had had disease of the stomach, the court compelled him to deliver to the plaintiff particulars of those symptoms. Marshall v. Emperor Life Assurance Society, 6 B & S. 886; 35 L. J., Q. B. 89; L. R. 1 Q. B. 35; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 293; 13 L. T. 281.

Seduction and Loss of Service.]—The plaintiff, in an action for the seduction of his daughter by the defendant and consequent loss of her services, alleged that the defendant, when engaging his daughter as servant, had entered into a contract to treat his daughter in a proper and becoming manner; but that the defendant had committed a breach of that contract by behaving to his daughter in an improper manner, namely, by seducing her whilst in his service, whereby she had become pregnant, and that in consequence of her pregnancy the plaintiff had lost her services. The defendant did not deny the seduction on oath, but sought to obtain particulars of the times and places at which the alleged connection between himself and the plaintiff's daughter had taken place:—Held, that under the circumstances the defendant, without denying the seduction on oath, was not entitled to an order for such particulars. Thompson v. Birkley, 47 L. T. 700; 31 W. R. 230. See Knight v. Engle, 61 L. T. 780.

In an action for seduction, to entitle the defendant to an order for particulars, he must shew special circumstances other than those which would tend to a mere restriction of the proof necessarily incident to such an action. Lagan v. Gibson, Ir. R. 9 C. L. 507.

A defendant in an action for seduction is not entitled to call for particulars without making an affidavit of merits. Hanna v. Keers, [1896] 2 Ir. R. 226.

Objections to Title on Sale of Property.]—In an action by a vendee against a vendor, to recover back the deposit, the conditions not being complied with, the defendant may obtain particulars of the grounds on which the plaintiff seeks to recover, to which the latter will be confined at the trial. Squire v. Tod, 1 Camp. 293.

So, in an action for the non-performance of a contract for the sale of a house, with counts to recover back the deposit, the plaintiff having alleged that the defendant, who was to make a good title, had delivered an abstract which was "insufficient, defective, and objectionable," the court obliged the plaintiff to give particulars of all objections to the abstract arising upon matters of fact. Collett v. Thompson, 3 Bos. & P. 246.

In an action to recover back the deposit paid to the auctioneer upon the sale of an estate, on the ground of objections to the title, the defendant is entitled to particulars of the objections arising upon matters of fact, but not of objections in point of law. Roberts v. Rowlands, 3 M. & W. 543; 7 L. J., Ex. 182.

Particulars stated the action to be brought to recover the deposit paid upon the sale of an estate, to which the defendant was unable to make a good title. A summons was taken out for better particulars, which was dismissed upon the plaintiff's attorney stating that the objections were matters of law only. Subsequently, a notice was delivered to the defendant's attorney, that the objections were set forth in the plaintiff's answer to the defendant's bill in chancery. At the trial it appeared that the only objection was matter of fact. The court refused a new trial, the defendant's attorney declining to make an affidavit that he had been misled. Correll v. Cattle, 5 D. P. C. 598; M. & H. 89.

Returning Officer—Action for Charges.]—In an action against a county council by a returning officer for his charges at an election the county council disputed the claim beyond a certain amount as not being "reasonable charges" under s. 2 of the Parliamentary Elections (Returning Officers) Act, 1875, particulars of the items objected to were refused. James v. Radnor County Council, 54 J. P. 614.

Highway—Acts of Dedication.]—In an action to restrain trespass on a road, the defendants pleaded that it was a highway, and were ordered to amend their defence so as to shew the mode or title in or under which they claimed that the road had become a highway. The defendants amended by alleging that the road had for many years been used by the public as of right and was a highway, having been dedicated to the public by the plaintiff and her predecessors in title or some of them. An order was then made that the defendants should deliver to the plaintiff full particulars of the nature of all acts of dedication relied on by the defendants, and if the defendants claimed by acts of dedication other than permissive user, particulars of such acts of dedication, with dates, and by whom made. The defendants appealed:—Held, that under the present system the court will oblige a party to give such information as to the nature of his case as is requisite to prevent his opponent from being taken by surprise at the trial, but that the order made went too far, and that the proper order was that if the defendants relied on any specific acts of dedication, or specific declarations of intention to dedicate, whether alone or jointly with evidence of user, they should set forth the nature and dates of those acts or declarations, and the names of the persons by whom they were done or made. Spedding v. Fitzpatrick, 58 L. J., Ch. 139; 38 Ch. D. 410; 59 L. T. 492; 37 W. R. 20—C. A.

Infringement of Trade Mark—Names of Persons deceived.]—In an action to restrain infringement of trade mark, the plaintiff alleged, by his statement of claim, that "divers persons" had been thereby induced to purchase the defendant's goods as the plaintiff's. After defence, the defendant took out a summons that plaintiff might give the names of the persons so induced to purchase:—Held, that defendant was entitled to the order. Humphries v. Taylor Drug Co., 39 Ch. D. 693; 59 L. T. 177; 37 W. R. 192.

Infringement of Patent.]—See PATENT.

Breaches of Trust—General Allegations.]—Where in an administration action, the plaintiff alleged that the defendant, one of the executors, in various ways had misapplied parts of the rents and profits of the leaseholds, and thereby injured the plaintiff and committed breaches of trust, and the plaintiff specified one misapplication of a sum of 25*l.*:—On summons by the defendant, the court made an order striking out the general allegations unless the plaintiff furnished particulars within seven days. Anstice, In re, Anstice v. Hibell, 54 L. J., Ch. 1104; 52 L. T. 572; 33 W. R. 557.

Alleged False Entries in Books.]—A company which had bought the business of the defendants, and employed them to manage it, brought an action against them for an account of what was due from them under a guarantee that the profits should amount to a certain yearly sum. The statement of claim alleged that the defendants had made false entries in the books for the purpose of making their working expenses appear less than they had been, and so relieving themselves of liability under the guarantee. The defendants obtained an order for the plaintiffs to furnish particulars of the false entries alleged. The plaintiffs set out a list of the items complained of transcribed from the books with references to the parts of the books where they were found. The defendants applied for further and better particulars:—Held, that as an entry might be wrong in different ways, the mere specification of the entries complained of did not give the defendants sufficient information of the nature of the case they had to meet, and that the plaintiffs must state shortly as to each item the general nature of the objection they made to it. Newport Slipway Dry Dock Co. v. Paynter, 56 L. J., Ch. 1021; 34 Ch. D. 88; 55 L. T. 711—C. A.

Particulars in Probate Actions.]—See WILL.

2. Practice.

In Admiralty Division.]—The rule as to ordering particulars is the same in the Admiralty Division as in the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court. The Rory, 51 L. J., P. 73; 7 P. 117; 46 L. T. 757; 4 Asp. M. C. 535—C. A.

In Chancery Division.]—The Chancery Division has power to order a party to give particulars of pleading. If the action is a so-called common law action, as for money lent, particulars will be ordered almost as a matter of course, as in motions at common law before the judicature acts; but in so-called equity actions, as for money due under a partnership or charge, particulars will be ordered only where a strong case for their being allowed is shewn by affidavit, the ordinary practice being, in the absence of such case being made out, to direct a defence to be put in, if that can be done, after which the defendant may administer interrogatories. Augustinus v. Nerinckx, 16 Ch. D. 13; 43 L. T. 458; 29 W. R. 225—C. A.

Object of.]—The object of particulars is to inform the defendant of the nature of the plaintiff's claim, and to limit the proof of the latter to the amount therein mentioned: but it forms no part of the record itself. It cannot, therefore, be used in aid of the declaration. Dempster

v. Purnell, 3 Man. & G. 375 ; 4 Scott (N.R.) 30 ; 1 D. (N.S.) 168 ; 11 L. J., C. P. 33.

The object of particulars is to control the generality of the declaration, and a defendant is entitled to such particulars of the plaintiff's demand as will give him that information which a reasonable man would require respecting the matters against which he is called upon to defend himself. Rennie v. Beresford, 4 Railw. Cas. 129 ; 3 D. & L. 464 ; 15 M. & W. 78 ; 15 L. J., Ex. 78 ; 10 Jur. 76.

At what Time Application made.]—A British subject residing in France was there served with a writ of summons in the form prescribed by 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 18. The defendant appeared, and after declaration found that the cause of action did not arise within the jurisdiction of the court, whereupon he applied to set aside the writ, and proceedings under it :—Held, that the defendant, by appearing, had given the court jurisdiction ; in such case, the defendant should apply for particulars before appearance. Forbes v. Smith, 10 Ex. 717 ; 3 C. L. R. 505 ; 24 L. J., Ex. 167 ; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 383 ; 3 W. R. 214.

In an action for seduction particulars of the time and place of the alleged seduction will not be ordered on the application of the defendant before delivering his defence, unless the application is accompanied by an affidavit stating his intention to deny the seduction. Knight v. Engle, 61 L. T. 780. See Roselle v. Buchanan, ante, col. 323.

There is no rule as to the class of cases in which the delivery of particulars should be ordered before discovery, or discovery be ordered before the delivery of particulars. The order of the judge or court will depend upon the circumstances of each case. Waynes Merthyr Co. v. Radford, 65 L. J., Ch. 140 ; [1896] 1 Ch. 29 ; 73 L. T. 624 ; 44 W. R. 103.

—— After Discovery.]—Where the defendant has the means of knowing the facts in dispute, and the plaintiff has not, the defendant is not entitled to particulars until after he has given discovery. Millar v. Harper, 57 L. J., Ch. 1091 ; 38 Ch. D. 110 ; 58 L. T. 698 ; 36 W. R. 454—C. A.

The plaintiffs, who were the executors of a married woman, sued her husband to establish that a quantity of the furniture and other chattels comprised in an inventory which had been taken of the goods in the defendant's house, belonged to the separate estate of the wife. The husband applied for particulars of demand shewing which chattels they claimed :—Held, that the application ought to stand over till the husband had made an affidavit as to which of the articles belonged to the wife. Ib.

The statement of claim, in an action by a principal against his stockbrokers to open settled accounts, alleged fraud, and that the plaintiff was unable to give particulars before discovery. An application by the defendants for particulars was ordered to stand over till after a defence had been delivered. A defendant by delivering a defence does not waive his right to particulars. Sachs v. Spielman, 57 L. J., Ch. 658 ; 37 Ch. D. 295 ; 58 L. T. 102 ; 36 W. R. 498.

An inquiry as to damages was directed in an action to restrain the defendant from carrying on a certain trade in breach of his covenant. The defendant was ordered to make an affidavit of documents. This discovery was postponed until after the delivery by the plaintiffs of "a statement in writing shewing the various heads of claims for damages" :—Held, that such a "statement" would not prevent an abuse of discovery ; that it would be useless, for unless the plaintiffs obtained discovery first it could only be drawn in the most general way so as to include every conceivable head of claim, and that, therefore, the order postponing discovery must be discharged. Maxim-Nordenfelt Guns and Ammunition Co. v. Nordenfelt, 62 L. J., Ch. 749 ; [1893] 3 Ch. 122 ; 2 R. 538 ; 69 L. T. 471 ; 42 W. R. 38—C. A.

Opening Settled Accounts—Allegations of Fraud—Particulars.]—The plaintiffs employed the defendants to purchase goods, as their agents, at the lowest possible prices. The plaintiffs sued for an account, and in their statement of claim alleged that the defendants had purchased goods at prices higher than the current prices, and had secretly received from the vendors allowances or commissions. The charges against the defendants were stated in general terms, no particulars being mentioned. The defendants denied the charges, and pleaded a settled account :—Held, on an application for production of documents, that the plaintiffs were entitled thereto without giving particulars of fraud. Whyte v. Ahrens, 54 L. J., Ch. 145 ; 26 Ch. D. 723 ; 50 L. T. 344 ; 32 W. R. 649—C. A.

Effect of Particulars on Discovery.]—Ord. XIX. r. 6, which requires that where the party pleading relies upon any misrepresentation or fraud, he shall give particulars of it in his pleading, is a rule of pleading only ; and the generality of an allegation of fraud does not prevent discovery so as to enable the plaintiff to plead the fraud in detail — Per Bowen, L.J. Leitch v. Abbott, 55 L. J., Ch. 460 ; 31 Ch. D. 374 ; 54 L. T. 258 ; 34 W. R. 506 ; 50 J. P. 441.

Jurisdiction to Order after Matter Referred.]—By a judge's order, the defendant was required, within a limited time, to deliver particulars of set-off, and, in default thereof, the defendant was to be precluded from giving evidence in support of his set-off at the trial. The defendant neglected to comply with the terms of the order, and the cause was afterwards referred by an order of nisi prius ; and after the arbitrators had proceeded with the reference, a judge, during the assizes, made an order for the delivery of particulars of the set-off :—Held, that he had no authority so to do under 1 Geo. 4, c. 55, s. 5, as, after the order of reference the cause was out of court. Ashworth v. Heathcote, 4 M. & P. 396 ; 6 Bing. 596 ; 8 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 206.

Condition Precedent to Delivery.]—A carrier, suing a railway company for the amount of overcharges on hundreds of items for the carriage of parcels, is not obliged to furnish particulars of the overcharges until they have furnished him with a copy of their tariff and charges. Sutton v. G. W. Ry., 10 W. R. 563.

On what Materials Application made.]—In an action to recover damages for injuries sustained by the plaintiff through the negligence of the defendant, the defendant is not entitled to particulars of the injuries on an affidavit merely stating that his defence is embarrassed by the want of such particulars. Brown v. G. W. Ry., 26 L. T. 398 ; 20 W. R. 585.

Semble, that the defendant would have been entitled to such particulars on an affidavit shewing that he had no knowledge of the case the plaintiff intended to set up at the trial, and that the defendant had no means of acquiring such knowledge without the aid of the court. Ib.

The court will not grant particulars in an action of trespass on the mere affidavit of the defendant that he had read the declaration, and that, from its general and vague form he was unable to ascertain the grievance on which the plaintiff intended to rely; but some special ground must be shewn as a reason for granting the rule. Horlock v. Lediard, 10 M. & W. 677; 2 D. (N.S.) 277; 12 L. J., Ex. 33.

Terms of Order.]—An order made on a plaintiff to deliver particulars of his claim under Ord. XIX. r. 7, may include the term that the action shall be dismissed, unless the particulars are delivered within a certain time. Davey v. Bentinck, 62 L. J., Q. B. 114; [1893] 1 Q. B. 185; 4 R. 144; 67 L. T. 742; 41 W. R. 181—C. A.

Payment into Court—Verdict.]—Particulars applying a payment to and satisfying the claim on one count:—Held, that the defendant must have a verdict on that count. Swindel v. Jeffery, 2 F. & F. 451.

Waiver of Irregularity.]—Where a plaintiff delivered with his declaration other particulars without leave, and the defendant, instead of objecting, pleaded and went to trial:—Held, to have waived the irregularity, and he was allowed to avail himself of the second particulars. Fromant v. Ashley, 1 El. & Bl. 723; 22 L. J., Q. B. 237; 17 Jur. 1050.

An order was obtained for delivery of particulars of set-off within a fortnight; they were not delivered for five weeks, but after the delivery an order was made by consent for the amendment of the declaration. This is a waiver of the irregularity in the delivery of the particulars. Wallis v. Anderson, M. & M. 291.

But a demand of particulars of set-off delivered after a plea, which is a nullity, is no waiver of the plaintiff's right to sign judgment. Ford v. Bernard, 4 M. & P. 303; 6 Bing. 534; 8 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 219.

A plaintiff, in his particulars, made charges subsequent to action brought but gave credit also to the defendant for payments made after the commencement of the action. The defendant not having objected to the mode in which the plaintiff stated his claim in his particulars, until the under-sheriff was summing up:—Held, no misdirection on the part of the under-sheriff, that the jury should find for the balance claimed by the plaintiff. Alexander v. Porter, 1 D. (N.S.) 832; 6 Jur. 1124.

A declaration, indorsed to plead in four days, being delivered with particulars annexed, the plaintiff two days afterwards, finding that the particulars were wrongfully entitled, delivered fresh particulars entitled; and for want of a plea within the four days signed judgment:—Held, that the judgment was regular, the accepting the amended particulars being a waiver of the objection to the first. Jones v. Fowler, 4 D. P. C. 232; 1 Gale, 256.

Delivery of Account before Action.]—If a plaintiff obtain an order for particulars of the defendant's set-off, and upon an application to the defendant's attorney to deliver particulars under the order, the latter refers to an account before action brought, delivered by his client to the plaintiff, he is not obliged to deliver a fresh particular. Hatchet v. Marshal, Peake, 172.

A plaintiff may recover a demand in his particular, though he may have omitted to include such demand in a bill previously sent to the defendant. Short v. Edwards, 1 Esp. 374. And see Blake v. Lawrence, 4 Esp. 147.

Where the particulars exceed three folios, the court will order the plaintiff to deliver to the defendant full particulars of his demand, the defendant paying the costs of the particulars, and, if necessary, taking short notice of trial, even though the defendant has had full particulars of the account before action. James v. Child, 2 C. & J. 252; 2 Tyr. 302; 1 D. P. C. 310.

Annexing to Record.]—If particulars are not annexed to the record, the cause may be struck out as irregularly entered. Coulson v. Hanson, 2 F. & F. 312.

Where the particulars are appended to the record, it is not necessary to prove their delivery. Macarthy v. Smith, 8 Bing. 145; 1 M. & Scott, 227; 1 D. P. C. 253: 1 L. J., C. P. 73.

But they are not to be considered as incorporated with the declaration. Booth v. Howard, 5 D. P. C. 438.

A plaintiff, in his further and better particulars delivered under a judge's order, omitted all mention of a sum, for which he had given the defendant credit in the particulars delivered with the declaration. At the trial, it appeared that the further particulars were alone annexed to the record, but the defendant offered in evidence the particulars in which the credit was given him. The under-sheriff having refused to receive these particulars, the jury, notwithstanding, found a verdict for the defendant. On motion for a new trial, on the ground of the verdict being against the evidence:—Held, that the court would not grant a new trial, as the particulars tendered ought to have been received, and if that had been done the verdict would have been warranted. Boulton v. Pritchard, 4 D. & L. 117; 15 L. J., Q. B. 356; 11 Jur. 64.

Where a plaintiff annexed to the record particulars varying from those delivered to the defendant, and, there being no evidence of the particulars delivered, got a verdict upon an item not included in the particulars delivered, the court granted a new trial, without costs; but refused to nonsuit the plaintiff, because the defendant was not in a condition to raise the question at the trial, and the point was not reserved. Morgan v. Harris, 2 C. & J. 461; 2 Tyr. 385; 1 D. P. C. 570; 1 L. J., Ex. 143.

Costs of Application.]—A judge may engraft upon an order requiring a plaintiff to deliver particulars, a direction to the defendant to pay the costs of the application. Clement v. Weaver, 3 Man. & G. 551; 4 Scott (N.R.) 229; 1 D. (N.S.) 193; 6 Jur. 62.

Whether Court can compel Plaintiff to Proceed.]—A defendant being served with a writ of summons, obtained an order for particulars before declaration; after waiting three months, the plaintiff refused to go on with the action, or to enter a stet processus; the court refused an application to compel him to do so. Kirby v. Snowden, 4 D. P. C. 191.

Order, whether operating as a Stay of Proceedings.]—An order for the delivery of particulars does not operate as a stay of proceedings, unless it is so expressed. Doe d. Roberts v. Roe, 13 M. & W. 691; 2 D. & L. 673; 14 L. J., Ex. 101.

Or unless drawn up and served on the plaintiff's attorney. Wilson v. Hunt, 1 Chit. 647.

An order for particulars does not suspend the time for pleading, and therefore the plaintiff may sign judgment immediately after delivering the particulars, if the time for pleading is then out. Hifferman v. Langelle, 2 Bos. & P. 363.

By Ord. XIX. r. 8, of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, "the party at whose instance particulars have been delivered under a judge's order shall, unless the order otherwise provides, have the same length of time for pleading after the delivery of the particulars that he had at the return of the summons":—Held, that where upon an application for extension of the time for delivering a pleading, an order "peremptory" is made for delivery of the pleading within a time limited by the order, the time continues to run, notwithstanding that the applicant subsequently obtains an order for particulars. Falck v. Arthelm, 59 L. J., Q. B. 161; 24 Q. B. D. 174; 38 W. R. 196—C. A.

Where a defendant obtains an order for particulars with a stay of proceedings he may give notice of abandoning the order and demur or plead to the declaration without getting the order rescinded. Maunder v. Collett, 4 D. & L. 456; 3 C. B. 554; 16 L. J., C. P. 17.

Pleading after Application dismissed.]—Where a defendant, having obtained an order for time to plead, takes out a summons for particulars, which is dismissed after the expiration of the time given for pleading, he is entitled only to the remainder of the same day for pleading. Mengens v. Perry, 15 M. & W. 537; 15 L. J., Ex. 307; 10 Jur. 742.

A defendant having obtained an order for further time to plead upon terms, did not draw up the order; but, on the same day, took out a summons for better particulars, with a stay of proceedings, and also a summons for further time to plead after the delivery of such particulars. On the following day, the plaintiff's attorney delivered the particulars, and signed judgment as for want of a plea, the original time for pleading having then expired:—Held, that the judgment was irregular. Daley v. Arnold, 1 D. (N.S.) 938.

A defendant obtained an order for particulars before declaration, with a stay of proceedings until delivery. After two terms had elapsed without such delivery, he obtained an order to rescind his former order, and served it with a demand of declaration within four days. No declaration having been delivered within the four days, he signed judgment of non pros.:—Held, that the judgment was regular. Johns v. Saunders, 5 D. & L. 49; 2 B. C. Rep. 79.

Where a defendant is under terms of pleading issuably, and one of the pleas is a set-off, obtaining an order for particulars of the set-off is a waiver of the objection that the pleas are not issuable. Scott v. Watson, 3 D. & L. 208; 1 C. B. 826.

Giving Credit, whether an Admission.]—Giving credit to the opposite party in a particular is not an admission that the money is due. Miller v. Johnson, 2 Esp. 602.

An item of the plaintiff's demand appearing on the face of the particulars of the defendant's set-off given under a judge's order, is not such an admission as to supersede the necessity of proving it. Ib.

Particulars stated a claim for wages at 15*s.* per week, amounting altogether to 148*l.*, and gave credit for payments on account to the amount of 70*l.* At the trial, the defendant put the particulars in evidence, as shewing a payment of 70*l.*; and the jury having found that the plaintiff was only entitled to wages at the rate of 7*s.* per week (which destroyed the balance of 78*l.*, claimed by the plaintiff), gave a verdict for the defendant:—Held, that the particulars were properly received, as an admission of the payment; and it not having been objected, that they could only be used in reduction of damages, and not in bar of the action, that the verdict ought not to be disturbed. Kenyon v. Wakes, 2 M. & W. 764; 6 D. P. C. 105; 6 L. J., Ex. 180. See Nicholl v. Williams, 2 M. & W. 758; 6 L. J., Ex. 226.

Particulars of set-off are merely explanatory of the plea of set-off, and the plaintiff, by putting them in evidence to prove his case, ex gratiâ, to rebut the defence of the statute of limitations, does not thereby admit the correctness of their contents. Burkitt v. Blanshard, 3 Ex. 89; 18 L. J., Ex. 34.

In an action which contained several demands, the defendant pleaded, except as to one, a set-off, and the statute of limitations. The plaintiff, in order to take the case out of the statute, put in evidence the particulars of set-off, containing an item, "Paid to the plaintiff, 15*l.*":—Held, that the particulars were no evidence in support of the plea of set-off. Ib.

Where a plaintiff admits a payment generally,—as thus, "Cr. by bills, 1,500*l.*"—this is to be taken as a payment admitted to have been made to the plaintiff by the defendant. Smethurst v. Taylor, 12 M. & W. 545; 14 L. J., Ex. 86.

A plaintiff is not precluded from explaining admissions in his particulars of payments made to him by the defendant, and of shewing on what account such payments were made. Mercy v. Gabat or Galot, 6 D. & L. 656; 3 Ex. 851; 18 L. J., Ex. 347; 13 Jur. 412.

A declaration claimed 44*l.* 8*s.* The particulars, after giving credit, stated the balance due from the defendant to be 12*l.* 4*s.* The defendant pleaded payment of 15*l.* in satisfaction, and obtained a verdict:—Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to judgment non obstante veredicto, inasmuch as credits given in the particulars need not be pleaded, a less sum than the debt in the declaration might, with credits so given, be equal to such debt. Turner v. Collins, 2 L. M. & P. 99; 20 L. J., Q. B. 259; 15 Jur. 177.

In an action by the payee against the maker of a note, dated the 28th day of June, 1837, the plaintiff, in his particulars, gave credit for payment of three years' interest on account. The note was actually made in 1839:—Held, that the interest for which credit was given was to be computed from 1837, and not from 1839. Cheetham v. Sturtevant, 12 M. & W. 515; 1 D. & L. 631; 13 L. J., Ex. 108.

Where a plaintiff gives credit in his particulars for a sum paid by the defendant, such payment is put on the same footing as if there had been a plea of payment; but it cannot be taken as an admission as against the defendant with respect to any of the items in the entire account. Goatley v. Herring, 12 L. J. C. P. 32.

Explaining Pleadings.]—To the common counts, the defendant pleaded a set-off, and delivered particulars of his set-off with the plea. He afterwards withdrew his plea, and pleaded puis darrein continuance, that there had been a controversy between the plaintiff and himself about other matters in addition to those in the cause, that a balance of accounts had been struck between the parties, that the plaintiff admitted the set-off pleaded to be due, and that it was agreed that the balance struck should be paid by instalments; and that the defendant should release the plaintiff from all liability on a certain contract, and that this agreement was accepted by the plaintiff in satisfaction of his action. The plaintiff replied that he had been induced to enter into this agreement by fraud:—Held, that the particulars of set-off delivered with the original plea of set-off, and in which particulars the statement of account differed from the statement upon which the agreement was founded, were admissible for the purpose of explaining the plea. Buckmaster v. Meiklejohn, 8 Ex. 634; 22 L. J., Ex. 242.

Particulars cannot be resorted to for the purpose of explaining the pleadings. Kilner v. Bailey, 5 M. & W. 382; 7 D. P. C. 803; 9 L. J., Ex. 37.

Particulars form no part of the record, and cannot therefore be used in aid of the declaration. Dempster v. Purnell, 3 Man. & G. 375; 4 Scott (N.R.) 30; 1 D. (N.S.) 168; 11 L. J., C. P. 33.

Delivery of Second Particulars without Order.]—If a plaintiff delivers one particular under an order, and afterwards a second without an order, he cannot give evidence of any demand in the second which was not included in the first. Brown v. Watts, 1 Taunt. 353; 9 R. R. 793.

Where a writ of summons is specially indorsed under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 25, semble, that it is irregular to deliver any other particulars than those indorsed on the writ without leave. Fromant v. Ashley, 1 El. & Bl. 723; 22 L. J., Q. B. 237; 17 Jur. 1050.

3. Sufficiency of.

Work and Labour done.]—In an action for work and labour as a surveyor, the particulars stated, that the action was brought to recover a specified sum for surveying a number of miles between two places, which were named, at a certain rate per mile, in 1845. The defendant having pleaded only the general issue, and notice of trial having been given, a rule for further and better particulars was refused. Irving v. Baker, 15 L. J., Q. B. 322.

In an action by an engineer against a railway company, for surveying their line, and for money paid, a general particular for surveying the country between certain places, including travelling charges and assistance, is sufficient, without specifying the number of fields surveyed, or how much of the charge is for the engineer's skill, time and labour, and how much for travelling expenses and assistance. Rennie v. Beresford, 4 Railw. Cas. 129; 3 D. & L. 464; 15 M. & W. 78; 15 L. J., Ex. 78; 10 Jur. 76.

In actions by engineers and other persons employed in constructing railways, the particulars must be as specific as it is possible for the plaintiffs to make them, and a mere statement of aggregate sums claimed in respect of tavern bills, assistant-surveyors, &c., finding surveyors, meeting and arranging with solicitors, &c., will not be sufficient. Prichard v. Nelson, 6 M. & W. 773; 5 Railw. Cas. 20; 4 D. & L. 693; 16 L. J., Ex. 207; 11 Jur. 375.

In an action by a sworn broker for the price of scrip bought for the account for the defendant, the particulars should state the names of the persons from whom, and the price at which the scrip was bought, and the date of the purchase within a few days. Berkley v. De Vere, 4 D. & L. 97; 15 L. J., Q. B. 323.

As to Dates.]—Particulars of set-off delivered, in which the only dates were "from January, 1828, to January, 1834," are not a compliance with an order. Swain v. Roberts, 1 M. & Rob. 452.

An order for particulars of set-off with dates is not sufficiently complied with by a delivery of particulars without dates, although not objected to by the plaintiff; and the defendant will, in such case, be precluded at the trial from giving evidence of his claim. Ibbett v. Leaver, 16 M. & W. 771; 4 D. & L. 716; 16 L. J., Ex. 208; 11 Jur. 415.

Goods sold—Money had and received.]—In an action for not accounting for goods, and also for goods sold and money had, a bill of particulars stating the demand to be for the goods (which it specifies) and for money had and received, is sufficient. Hunter v. Welch, 1 Stark. 224.

Particulars as follows: "This action is brought to recover 3,900*l.*, being a sum claimed by the plaintiff for the amount of sums in cash paid, and the value of bills given by the plaintiff to the defendant at various times between the 1st November, 1842, and the 12th May, 1843, as and for the purchase-money of the paintings hereunder-mentioned, the making of which payments and giving of which bills the defendant procured from the plaintiff by false and fraudulent representations; and in respect of the plaintiff having discounted and paid the bills" (being followed by a list of paintings with the price marked against each), give sufficient information of the nature of the action, and for what it is brought. Archbutt v. Pennell, 1 D. & L. 318; 7 Jur. 519.

Of Account with Dates and Items.]—The indorsement on a writ of summons was as follows: "The following are the particulars of the plaintiff's claim: 500*l.* for principal money due upon a warrant of attorney, executed by the defendant's wife (before her marriage with him), bearing date the 20th February, 1855. Interest thereon at the rate of 5*l.* per cent. per annum, from the 20th of February to the day of obtaining judgment in this cause. The plaintiff will also seek to recover the 500*l.* upon an account stated between the plaintiff and the defendant's wife before her marriage." Upon an order for a further or better account, with dates and items of the particulars of the demand, the following was delivered: "1855, February 25th. Amount due to the plaintiff upon an account stated on this date, between the plaintiff and the defendant's wife, before her marriage, 500*l.*":—Held, no compliance with the order. Bayntun v. Satchell, 17 C. B. 383.

Bills of Exchange.]—The acceptor of two bills for 250*l.* each was arrested upon a capias, indorsed thus, "Bail for 240*l.* and upwards. The plaintiff claims 266*l.* with interest thereon, from the 30th December to the day of payment, for debt, and 3*l.* 10*s.* for costs," &c. The declaration was upon the two bills, and the particulars stated that the action was brought to recover 500*l.*:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to better particulars. Dawes v. Anstruther, 5 D. P. C. 736; 2 M. & W. 817; M. & H. 268; 6 L. J., Ex. 194; 1 Jur. 949.

Action by Customer against Banker.]—In an action against his banker by a customer for a balance, the question being as to certain overcharges by way of discount, interest and commission, the plaintiff having before action applied for, but failed to obtain, any other information than was afforded by his pass-book, and having delivered particulars, claiming the whole amount of the gross balance, the defendant was not entitled to any further or better particulars, but the plaintiff was afterwards held entitled to particulars of gross charges for interest and commission. Adams v. Aston, 1 F. & F. 603.

4. Amendment of.

Two Actions against same Defendants.]—In 1835, the plaintiff sued defendants, as executors, for work done in a house of their testator, and delivered his particulars in July, 1837, after he had commenced a second action against them in their own capacity for work done to the same house after the testator's death; both actions were referred, and an award made was set aside in Hilary Term, 1839; the plaintiff having abandoned his second action, was allowed, in Trinity Vacation, 1839, to amend his particulars in the first, by adding to them certain items which had been contained in the particulars of the second. Jones v. Corry, 6 Bing. (N.C.) 247; 8 Scott, 515; 7 D. P. C. 299; 9 L. J., C. P. 177: 4 Jur. 248.

After Payment into Court.]—Particulars were allowed to be amended after the defendant had paid money into court, and the plaintiff had taken the same out in satisfaction, and the costs had been taxed, where it appeared that the plaintiff had done so under a mistake as to his right to bring a fresh action. Emery v. Webster, 10 Ex. 901; 3 C. L. R. 713; 24 L. J., Ex. 186; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 381; 3 W. R. 250—Ex. Ch.

Mistake.]—Where a plaintiff's attorney accidentally gives credit in his particulars for a sum of money, which the defendant sets up as a cross demand, the court will allow the particulars to be amended on terms. Preston v. Whiteheart, 5 D. P. C. 720; W. W. & D. 363.

Defendant not Misled.]—An amendment of particulars is rightly allowed at the trial in cases where the defendant is not misled. Evans v. Talbot, 10 W. R. 625.

Pending a Reference.]—The court allowed a plaintiff to amend his particulars pending a reference of the cause, by adding thereto items alleged to have accrued due during the space of time covered by the particulars already delivered, there being no suggestion on the part of the defendant that he would not have consented to the reference had the items been originally inserted. Blunt v. Cooke, 5 Scott (N.R.) 232; 2 D. (N.S.) 89; 4 Man. & G. 458; 11 L. J., C. P. 324.

After a cause has been referred compulsorily, the court has power to amend the particulars, even though objected to. Gibbs v. Knightly, 2 H. & N. 34; 26 L. J., Ex. 294; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 472; 5 W. R. 562.

Where a cause is referred without power of amendment, a judge has no power, except by consent of the parties, to order the particulars specially indorsed on the writ of summons to be altered by increasing the amount of any one of the items. Morgan v. Tarte, 11 Ex. 82; 3 C. L. R. 970.

Time for Application.]—An amendment in the particulars was allowed, an order having been made on a summons taken out in town, returnable on the commission-day, attended by the plaintiff in the assize town, the defendant having notice on the same day of the order having been made, and having received and retained the particulars. Hodson v. Steers, 1 F. & F. 484.

In an action for money received, the plaintiff, having framed his particulars from an account rendered by the defendant, was allowed after a suspension of proceedings for ten years, occasioned by the absence of the plaintiff beyond seas, to amend his particulars, by insertions of fresh items, discovered after the defendant's account had been rendered. Staples v. Holdsworth, 4 Bing. (N.C.) 717; 6 D. P. C. 715; 6 Scott, 605; 1 Arn. 275.

Terms.]—In an action on a policy of marine assurance, the defence was that the loss was not caused by perils of the sea, and that the subject-matter of the policy, viz. two lighters in tow of a tug, was unseaworthy. Particulars of the unseaworthiness were delivered, stating that the lighters were of improper construction for the purpose of being towed. Evidence as to the lighters was taken abroad on commission, and questions were asked as to the tug. Subsequently, at a time when the evidence of the captain of the tug could no longer be obtained, the defendant applied for leave to amend the particulars, so as to state that the tug was of insufficient power, whereby the subject-matter of the policy was rendered unseaworthy:—Held, that the amendment should be allowed on terms, as no injury would be caused to the plaintiffs for which they could not be compensated by costs. Clarapede v. Commercial Union Association, 32 W. R. 261—C. A.

5 Binding Character of Particulars.

Extent of.]—Particulars of set-off are merely explanatory of the plea, and the plaintiff, by putting them in evidence to prove his case, does not thereby admit the correctness of their contents. Burkett v. Blanshard, 3 Ex. 89; 18 L. J., Ex. 34. S. P., Buckmaster v. Meiklejohn, 1 C. L. R. 839; 8 Ex. 634.

Increase of Demand.]—Although a plaintiff cannot give evidence beyond his particulars, he may take advantage of any evidence produced by the defendant to increase his demand. Hurst v. Watkis, 1 Camp. 68; 10 R. R. 634.

When a plaintiff recovers a greater sum than he claims by his particulars, and upon discussion the court sanctions the principle on which he recovers, and judgment is entered up accordingly, no objection having been made to the excess above the particulars, either at the trial or on the argument, the court will not reduce the judgment to the sum claimed by the particulars. Bell v. Puller, 2 Taunt. 285 ; 12 East, 496, n. ; 11 R. R. 574.

In an undefended action upon a note for payment of principal and interest by instalments, a verdict was not allowed to be taken for a larger amount than claimed in the particulars. Walker v. Wadsworth, 1 F. & F. 397.

Error in Date, &c.]—A particular is not to be construed so rigidly as to nonsuit a plaintiff for inaccuracies which could not mislead. Harrison v. Wood, 8 Bing. 371 ; 1 M. & Scott, 536 ; 1 L. J., C. P. 116.

An error in a date, or other inaccuracy, will not warrant a non suit, unless the particular is so framed as to be reasonably calculated to mislead. Ib.

A plaintiff's particulars were for goods sold on the 6th January ; the evidence given at the trial was of goods sold on the 28th May. A verdict having been found for the plaintiff, the court refused to set it aside, all other accounts between the parties having been settled. Flemming v. Crisp, 5 D. P. C. 454 ; M. & H. 28.

In his particulars of set-off a defendant claimed, "Cash, being the amount of the plaintiff's dishonoured acceptance and charges, 21*l.* 16*s.*," dated August, 1840. He gave evidence of a bill of exchange for 19*l.*, on which an action had been commenced, dated June 23rd, 1840, and payable two months after date, indorsed to him by the plaintiff : — Held, that there was no variance by which the plaintiff could have been misled. Parsons v. Wilson, 4 Scott (N.R.) 1 ; 1 D. (N.S.) 181 ; 3 Man. & G. 445 ; 11 L. J., C. P. 10 ; 5 Jur. 991.

A defendant cannot make at the trial of the cause any such objection to the particulars as, if made earlier, the plaintiff or the court might have rectified. Lovelock v. Cheveley, Holt, 552.

Variance.]—In an action by assignees of a bankrupt, the declaration stated the cause of action to be money had and received to the use of the bankrupt ; the particulars described it as had and received to the use of the plaintiffs :—Held, that it was not such a variance as would prevent the plaintiffs from recovering, it not appearing that the defendant could be misled by it. Tucker v. Barrow, M. & M. 137 ; 3 Car. & P. 85 ; 7 B. & C. 622 ; 1 M. & Ry. 518 ; 6 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 121.

In ejectment to recover premises for nonpayment of rent, a variance between the amount of rent stated in the particulars and the amount proved at the trial to be due, is immaterial. Tenny d. Gunning v. Moody, 10 Moore, 252 ; 3 Bing. 3 ; 3 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 122 ; 28 R. R. 552.

Particulars stated that the action was brought to recover "cash received by the defendant, being 10*s.* in the pound on a debt of 52*l.* 5*s.*, at one time due from the plaintiff to the defendant, and which had been previously paid by the plaintiff to the defendant" :—Held, that he was not bound by his particulars to prove an actual cash payment of 52*l.* 5*s.* to the defendant, and that he was entitled to succeed on proof of payment of 39*l.* 10*s.*, being the amount of the bill, less a large percentage by way of discount, which the defendant had agreed to deduct. Gaskill v. Skene, 14 Q. B. 664 ; 19 L. J., Q. B. 275 ; 14 Jur. 597.

Where particulars stated that the action was brought to recover a bet lost by R. :—Held, that the plaintiff was bound by his particulars, and could not shew that he had rescinded the bet before the event. Davenport v. Davies, 2 Gale, 119 ; 1 M. & W. 570 ; 1 Tyr. & G. 931 ; 5 L. J., Ex. 214.

The plaintiff and others having each deposited 2*l.* with the defendant in a lottery upon the Derby, the plaintiff brought an action for the whole amount, claiming to be the drawer of the winning horse. The particulars stated that the action was brought to recover 13*l.* 16*s.*, being money received by the defendant to the use of the plaintiff :—Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover his stake of 2*l.* Mearing v. Hellings, 14 M. & W. 711 ; 15 L. J., Ex. 168.

If a bill of particulars states the demand to be for goods sold and delivered to the defendant, no evidence can be received of goods sold by the defendant as agent for the plaintiff. Holland v. Hopkins, 2 Bos. & P. 243 ; 2 Esp. 168.

The plaintiffs, spirit merchants, inadvertently delivered a bill of particulars for goods sold to the defendants in their trade of brewers. A verdict having been given for the plaintiffs on proof of delivery of spirits, the defendant obtained a rule nisi for a nonsuit, on the ground that he had been surprised by the variance between that particular and the proof ; it appearing, however, that he had been neither surprised nor misled, the court discharged the rule. Lambirth v. Roff, 8 Bing. 411 ; 1 M. & Scott, 597 ; 1 L. J., C. P. 120.

Action for work and labour as an architect, and for commission. The particulars claimed 5*l.* per cent. for commission :—Held, that the plaintiff might recover for work and labour, although the jury negatived the right to commission. Mayor v. Ward, 10 Jur. 796.

Where a particular stated that the plaintiff claimed for work and labour under an agreement :—Held, that he might recover for extras. Lines v. Rees, 1 Jur. 593.

A plaintiff, in his declaration and particulars, claimed damages for certain articles deposited with the defendant, which had not been returned, and of which due care had not been taken. Under the former description, in his particulars, he set out certain articles of glass, which however, turned out to have been destroyed :—Held, that, under such particulars, he was not entitled to recover damages in respect of those articles. Moss v. Smith, 8 D. P. C. 537.

Admissibility of Evidence.] — A defendant, who has not complied with a judge's order to deliver particulars of set-offs, with dates will not be allowed to give any evidence of his set-off. Swain v. Roberts, 1 M. & Rob. 452.

An order for the delivery of particulars of set-off, and in default precluding the defendant from giving evidence of his set-off, makes such evidence inadmissible at the trial. Young v. Geiger, 6 C. B. 552 ; 6 D. & L. 337 ; 18 L. J., C. P. 43.

An order was made for delivery of particulars of set-off, with dates, and, in default, that the defendant should be precluded from giving evidence of set-off. Particulars were delivered, but without dates, subsequently to which the plaintiff replied, and the cause came on for trial, when the judge refused to receive the evidence of set-off : —Held, that the evidence was properly rejected, the order not having been complied with, and that the plaintiff had not waived the objection by replying to the plea. Ibbett v. Leaver, 4

D. & L. 716; 16 M. & W. 771; 16 L. J., Ex. 208; 11 Jur. 415.

Action by assignees of a bankrupt. The first four counts were for goods sold, money paid, and had and received, and on an account stated, laying the promises to the bankrupt; the fifth, sixth and seventh counts were for goods sold, money had and received, and on an account stated, laying the promises to the assignees. Pleas, first, except as to 320*l.*, parcel, &c., and except as to 140*l.*, parcel of the sums in the first, second, third and fourth counts, non assumpsit; secondly, as to 140*l.*, parcel of the moneys in the first, second, third and fourth counts, a plea of mutual credit, which had been demurred to, and on argument judgment given for the defendant; thirdly, as to the 320*l.*, payment of that sum into court, which the plaintiffs took out, and joined issue on the plea of non assumpsit. The following were the particulars delivered prior to the pleas:—"This action is brought to recover 140*l.*, the value of certain yarn; also 316*l.*, the proceeds of a bill of exchange drawn by J. M., and indorsed by the bankrupt to the defendant; also 4*l.*, the proceeds of a cheque; and 80*l.* in cash; the yarn, bill of exchange, cheque and cash having been received by the defendant, from or by the authority of the bankrupt, about the months of September or October, 1839. The particular date is known to the defendant." At the trial the cause proceeded for the recovery of 140*l.* only, and no evidence was adduced as to the 80*l.* cash. It was objected that the plaintiffs were not entitled to go into evidence as to the 140*l.*, as that sum was already satisfied by the judgment upon the demurrer, and that that sum must be struck out of the particulars:—Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to give evidence of goods sold to the amount of 140*l.*, upon the other counts, to which the plea was not pleaded, and might apply the particulars to those counts. Russell v. Bell, 10 M. & W. 340.

Particulars stated the action to be brought to recover from the defendants 450*l.*, claimed by the plaintiff for his services as clerk or manager to the defendants from October, 1837, to October, 1839. An order was made for further and better particulars, when the plaintiff delivered the same, with the addition of the words, "after the rate of 200*l.* per annum":—Held, that the plaintiff could not give evidence of a claim for commission on the amount of business done by the defendants through his introduction. Law v. Thompson, 4 D. & L. 54; 15 M. & W. 541; 15 L. J., Ex. 334.

Special Counts.]—It will not prevent a plaintiff from giving evidence on a special count in his declaration, that he has not included that part of his claim in his particular of demand, as a particular is only necessary to explain the common counts. Day v. Davies, 5 Car. & P. 340.

A count alleged that the plaintiff was employed by the defendant as a carman, at wages after the rate of 160*l.* a year, and claimed damages for his discharge without just cause during the year; there was also a count for work and labour. The particulars stated that the plaintiff, besides seeking to recover damages under the special count, also sought to recover, under the common count, 37*l.*, the balance of account for a quarter's work done by him for the defendant, commencing on the 30th June, and ending on the 30th September, 1842, after giving credit for 3*l.* paid on account. It appeared that the plaintiff was discharged on the 30th July, 1842, for misconduct, which the jury found to be a sufficient cause for his dismissal; that he worked out that day, and that on the next morning the defendant sent for him, and he remained working there that day also, and then left. The jury found that the value of those two days' work was 40*s.*, but that he was entitled to a month's wages; and he accordingly had a verdict for 10*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, allowing for the 3*l.* which had been paid in advance:—Held, that the plaintiff was not precluded by his particulars from recovering this sum. Hurcum v. Stericker, 10 M. & W. 553; 2 D. (N.S.) 524; 12 L. J., Ex. 17.

A plaintiff declared, on a contract with the defendants, to retain him in their service for one year, at a salary of 200*l.* per annum, alleging for breach that they improperly dismissed him before the end of the year; and in a second count, for work and labour. The particulars were as follows:—"This action is brought to recover one year's salary, from, &c., to, &c., at the rate of 200*l.* per annum, or damages for the dismissal of the plaintiff before the end of such year":—Held, that evidence of services actually rendered was admissible under this particular, upon failure to prove the special contract. Harris v. Montgomery, 11 C. B. 393; 2 L., M. & P. 425; 20 L. J., C. P. 221; 15 Jur. 757.

A plaintiff sued on a breach of warranty on the sale of wheat. The declaration stated a warranty that the wheat would grow, and a breach that it would not, and that the plaintiff was deprived of great gains. The declaration also contained counts for money had and received and on an account stated. The particulars were for the price of the wheat, but were expressly limited to the common counts:—Held, that this did not prevent the plaintiff from giving evidence of what the value of the crops might have been, with a view to his damages on the first count. Page v. Parey, 8 Car. & P. 769.

Counts on Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes.]—Where a particular states a note only, which cannot be received in evidence for want of a stamp, the party admits that his only claim is on the note, and he cannot give evidence of the consideration. Wade v. Beasley, 4 Esp. 7.

Under a particular, stating that the action is brought to recover the amount of a note, interest on it is recoverable. Blake v. Lawrence, 4 Esp. 147.

A declaration on a note, with a count on an account stated; the particulars specifying that "the action is brought to recover 555*l.* due on the note set forth in the first count, with interest; and that the plaintiff, for recovery thereof, will avail himself of the whole or any part of the declaration":—Held, that the note, being invalid, was not, by this particular, made admissible evidence of the account stated. Hedley v. Bainbridge, 3 Q. B. 316; 2 G. & D. 483; 11 L. J., Q. B. 293.

A declaration contained two counts, each on a bill of exchange. The particulars stated the action to be brought to recover the amount of the bill mentioned in the first count, with interest, and that the plaintiff would rely on the whole or any part of the declaration for the recovery thereof:—Held, sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to proceed on the second count. Hay v. Fisher, 2 M. & W. 722; M. & H. 286; 6 L. J., Ex. 217.

Under a Count on an Account Stated.]—A first count was on an undertaking to pay such costs, charges, and expenses as the plaintiff (an attorney) should incur in an action to be brought by him against G. on a bill of exchange, drawn by the defendant only, which was lying due, and which the plaintiff had agreed to take up for the honour of the defendant. In a second count the plaintiff declared as indorsee on the bill; the third was for money paid, and the fourth on an account stated. On the first count the defendant paid into court a sum covering the plaintiff's costs out of pocket. On the second count, the ultimate issue was, whether a bill subsequently given by the defendant to the plaintiff, was given in satisfaction of the first, or as a collateral security. The plaintiff first gave a particular applicable only to the count on the bill of exchange. The defendant obtained an order for particulars "of the bill of costs, charges, and expenses mentioned in the first count of the declaration," and the plaintiff thereupon delivered a particular containing a copy of his whole bill of costs in the action against G., and also the amount of the bill and interest. At the trial, the judge ruled that the costs out of pocket only could be recovered on the first count:—Held, that the particulars were sufficient to enable the plaintiff to recover the rest of the bill of costs under the account stated. Fisher v. Wainwright, 1 M. & W. 480; 5 D. P. C. 102; 1 Tyr. & G. 606; 5 L. J., Ex. 217.

The defendant gave in evidence, for the purpose of proving that the second bill was given by way of satisfaction, an unsigned account of the plaintiff's claims, which had been delivered by him to the defendant, for the purpose of their being proved under G.'s bankruptcy, and one item of which was the amount of the bill of costs:—Held, that this was not such evidence of an account stated as would have enabled the plaintiff to recover the costs on the account stated, if his particulars had been insufficient for that purpose. Ib.

Particulars stated that the plaintiff sought to recover 50*l.*, the amount of the note in the first count, and 50*l.*, the amount of the note in the second count, for the recovery whereof he would avail himself of the whole, or any part, of the declaration. No evidence was given in respect of the notes:—Held, that, under these particulars, an admission by the defendant that he owed the plaintiff 100*l.*, could not be given in evidence in support of the account stated. Roberts v. Elsworth, 2 D. (N.S.) 456; 10 M. & W. 653; 12 L. J., Ex. 15; 6 Jur. 456.

A declaration contained a count on a deed whereon the sum of 1,500*l.* was claimed as due for principal and interest, and also a count on an account stated. The particulars claimed 1,179*l.* for principal and interest due on the deed set forth in the first count. The defendant pleaded non est factum to the first count, and never indebted to the second. Before the trial the first count was struck out, but the pleadings and particulars were not altered:—Held, that the plaintiff might prove a written admission of 1,179*l.* being due for principal and interest, and recover that sum on the account stated. Simons v. Wood, 5 Q. B. 170; D. & M. 355; 13 L. J., Q. B. 49; 8 Jur. 355.

a. Residence Abroad.

Permanent Character.]—If a plaintiff resides permanently abroad, the court will stay proceedings till he gives security for the costs. Pray v. Edie, 1 Term Rep. 267; 1 R. R. 200. Elan v. Rees, 3 Doug. 382. Ganesford v. Levy, 2 H. Bl. 118; Demanroffe v. Jackson, 13 Price, 603.

Plaintiff is not compellable to give security for costs, unless he state himself, or it be sworn, that he is resident abroad, or going to reside abroad. Green v. Charnock, 3 Bro. C. C. 371; 1 Ves. J. 396; 2 Cox, 284.

If an action is brought without the knowledge of a plaintiff, who is out of the realm, the court will require security for the costs to be given on his part. Ball v. Adrian, 1 Taunt. 64.

If a plaintiff, after leaving this country, commences an action, he will be compelled to find security for costs. Wells v. Barton, 2 D. P. C. 160.

Plaintiff Resident in England—Action in Ireland.]—Security for costs may be required from a plaintiff resident in England or Scotland, The practice of the court of chancery in this respect is not affected by the 71st section of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act (Ireland), 1877. Nicholson v. Wood, 15 L. R., Ir. 76.

A plaintiff residing in England, obliged, on filing a bill in Ireland, to give security for costs, notwithstanding 41 Geo. 3, c. 90, s. 5, gives an attachment in England to enforce an order or decree made in Ireland for payment of money; the practice of the court not being altered by that act. Mullett v. Christmas, 2 Ball & B. 422.

The bill prayed that a policy of assurance should be delivered up to be cancelled, and a discovery in aid of a defence to an action at law on it. The plaintiffs resident in England were ordered to give security for costs. Anderson v. Dowling, 12 Ir. Eq. R. 307.

Foreign Judgment impeached on Ground of Fraud.]—A defendant sued upon a foreign judgment by a plaintiff who is a foreigner resident out of the jurisdiction is entitled to security for the costs of the action. Crozat v. Brogden, 63 L. J.,

Q. B. 325; [1894] 2 Q. B. 30; 9 R. 296; 70 L. T. 525; 42 W. R. 353—C. A.

Nominal Plaintiff.]—In an action upon a bond, in the name of an obligee resident abroad, for the benefit of an assignee in this country, the defendant may claim security for costs from the nominal plaintiff; the assignee's written undertaking is not sufficient. Youde v. Youde, 3 A. & E. 311.

Husband and Wife.]—In an action by husband and wife for a personal injury to the wife, if the husband is resident abroad, he must give security for costs, although the wife is resident in England. Hanmer v. Mangles, 12 M. & W. 313; 1 D. & L. 395; 13 L. J., Ex. 84; 7 Jur. 1116.

About to leave England.]—The defendant is not entitled to call on a plaintiff to give security for costs, though it is sworn, and not contradicted, that the plaintiff usually resides abroad, and is about to quit the country. Anon., 5 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 71. But see Green v. Charnock, supra.

In equity the court will not make an order to stay proceedings, until security be given for the costs, upon the ground of the plaintiff being about to leave the country. Willis v. Garbutt, 1 Y. & J. 511.

Leaving after Action commenced.]—A person, being in this country by licence from the secretary of state, files a bill; if his licence expires pending the suit, and he leaves this country, defendant may compel him to give security for costs. O'Connor v. Bernard, 1 Jones, 175.

Affidavit to ground an order for a plaintiff to give security for costs, when it doth not appear by the bill that he lives abroad out of the jurisdiction of the court, if he hath left the kingdom since filing the bill, must go on and say, to settle abroad. Anon., Dick. 775.

A plaintiff being ordered to pay costs, went abroad (as was sworn upon belief, and not denied) permanently, and to avoid payment; he was ordered to give security for costs, and the proceedings in the suit were in the meantime stayed. Busk v. Beetham, 2 Beav. 537.

Order to stay proceedings until security given for costs, upon affidavit that the plaintiff, since the answer, had abandoned this country and now resides in the Isle of Man. Weeks v. Cole, 14 Ves. 518.

A plaintiff having gone abroad subsequently to his cause being set down in the demurrer paper for argument, upon a motion for security for costs the court directed that the demurrer should be argued, when, if judgment should be given for the plaintiff, proceedings should be stayed until security for costs was given. Kemble v. Mills, 1 Man. & G. 565; 8 D. P. C. 836; 1 Scott (N.R.) 402.

A plaintiff who has gone to reside abroad, after bill filed, will be ordered to give security for costs. Vale v. Offert, 30 L. T. 457; 22 W. R. 629.

Intention to change Domicil.]—A person who had been resident in England went over to Ireland to assert his title to lands in that country. Having failed in an ejectment, he filed a bill, in which he was described as A. B., late of R., in England, but now of the city of Cork. He had been occasionally in Ireland during the last three years, and had stopped at a public-house in Cork, but had not as yet taken any fixed abode in Ireland. In his affidavit to oppose a motion to stay his proceedings until he should give security for costs, he stated that he had made Ireland his fixed domicile and residence, and intended to bring his wife from England to live with him. The motion was refused, without costs. Rushton v. Heazle, Sau. & Sc. 654, n.

A London stockbroker, whose name was still used in the firm there, was appointed executor of a person who had contracted to grant a lease of certain mines in Ireland, for a large sum. He filed his bill for a specific performance; and in his affidavit to oppose a motion to stay his proceedings until he should give security for costs stated that he had given up his residence in England, and had at some expense removed his family to Ireland, where he had taken a permanent residence. In one passage of his affidavit he stated that it was his intention to reside in Ireland altogether; but the other passages were qualified by a statement to the effect that he intended to reside in Ireland until this suit, and all other affairs of his testator in Ireland, should be finally settled and arranged. The motion was refused without costs. Pyke v. Vigors, Sau. & Sc. 635.

Return Indefinite.]—A plaintiff, who gave up his house in England, and resided abroad, as he stated, "for a temporary abode," but who left it ambiguous whether and when he intended to return, ordered to find security for costs. Kennaway v. Tripp, 11 Beav. 588; 18 L. J., Ch. 298.

Where a plaintiff, not being in public service, goes abroad pending a suit and remains there under such circumstances as to render it probable he will not be forthcoming when the defendant may be entitled to call upon him to pay costs, the court will direct him to give security for costs. Blakeney v. Dufaur, 2 De G. M. & G. 771; 22 L. J., Ch. 389; 17 Jur. 98; 1 W. R. 9.

Where a plaintiff suing in formâ pauperis will be absent from England eighteen months, the court will compel him to give security for costs or stay his proceedings until his return. Foss v. Wagner, 2 D. P. C. 499.

Plaintiff made to give security for costs, the evidence not being clear that he intended to return from abroad. Snook v. Duncan, 5 Jur. 1078.

Plaintiff a Seafaring Man.]—Where a plaintiff, who is a mariner, is abroad on a voyage, his family being left in this country, in lodgings, he will not be required to give security for costs. Ford v. Boucher, 1 Hodges, 58.

A plaintiff, whose family resides permanently within the jurisdiction, but who is himself obliged to be frequently absent in the course of his employment as a seafaring man, cannot be compelled to give security for costs. Duff v. Hore, Ir. R. 6 C. L. 508.

Security for costs is not required from a foreigner during his absence from this country on board his own ship, if he resides here part of the year. Durrell v. Mattheson, 3 Moore, 33; 8 Taunt. 711; 21 R. R. 515.

A plaintiff described himself as resident within the jurisdiction. By amendment, he described himself as "of the ship Wacousta, now on a voyage to Sydney and back to London, master mariner." It not appearing when he would return within the jurisdiction, security for costs was ordered to be given. Stewart v. Stewart, 20 Beav. 322.

A plaintiff, who is a seafaring man, will not be required to give security for costs, although he is abroad, and has no residence or property within the jurisdiction. Gowran v. Barnett, Sau. & Sc. 651, n.

A seafaring man, whose family had a permanent residence within the jurisdiction, and who resides with them on his return from abroad, but who has himself no fixed residence, will be ordered to give security for the costs of an action brought by him. Martin v. Russell, 21 L. R., Ir. 196.

Merely Temporary Absence.]—Where a plaintiff sailed for Africa after notice of motion for decree had been given, the court refused to stay proceedings in the cause until he gave security for costs, as it did not appear from the facts that there was any intention of permanent absence on his part. Edwardes v. Burke, 9 L. T. 406.

If a plaintiff is a native of England, and departs for France for a mere temporary absence, the court will not compel him to give security for costs. Anon., 2 Chit. 152.

Where a native of this country quits it for a mere temporary residence abroad, the court will not require him to give security for costs. Cole v. Beale, 7 Moore, 613; 1 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 49.

But a plaintiff will be required to give security for costs, if it appears that he is gone abroad for more than a temporary residence. Taylor v. Fraser, 2 D. P. C. 622.

The court will not compel a plaintiff to give security for costs because he has gone to serve in a foreign army in a civil war. Frodsham v. Myers, 4 D. P. C. 280; 1 H. & W. 526.

Security for costs by a plaintiff, gone abroad, refused after answer, on affidavit of his intention to return; and his family remaining in this country. White v. Greathead, 15 Ves. 2.

The simple fact that the plaintiff is gone abroad is not a sufficient ground to compel him to give security for costs. Hoby v. Hitchcock, 5 Ves. 699.

Where a plaintiff goes abroad during the progress of a suit in order to attend to his affairs, and not with a view to abscond from his creditors, but with the intention to return to this country, he will not be required to give security for costs. Home v. Thompson, Sau. & Sc. 622.

Application for security of costs on account of plaintiff leaving kingdom refused. Adams v. Colethurst, 2 Anstr. 552. See 1 R. R. 201, n.

b. Irish and Scotch Plaintiffs.

Before the Judgments Extension Act, 1868.]—A Scotchman, not actually domiciled in this country, but only occasionally residing here, is bound to give security for costs. Naylor v. Joseph, 10 Moore, 522; 3 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 207.

For such a plaintiff is within the meaning of the general rule applicable to persons who are not amenable to the courts here suing in this country. Ib.

A plaintiff resident in Ireland is bound to give security for costs, although he may sometimes come over to and sojourn in this country. Mahon v. Martinez, 4 Moore, 356.

An Irishman, ordinarily resident in Ireland, and having no place of abode in England, is compellable to give security for costs in an action brought by him in England, notwithstanding that he is at the time an officer in the army, serving with his regiment in Ireland. Chappell v. Watts, 2 El. & El. 879; 29 L. J., Q. B. 167; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 533; 2 L. T. 283; 8 W. R. 450.

A public company carrying on all its business in Ireland was compelled to give security for costs, although it had 3,000*l.* in a bank in London, and most of the members resided in England. Limerick and Waterford Ry. v. Fraser, 4 Bing. 394; 1 M. & P. 23; 6 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 9. S. P., Edinburgh and Leith Ry. v. Dawson, 7 D. P. C. 573; 1 W. W. & H. 561; 3 Jur. 55. Kilkenny and Great Southern and Western Ry. v. Fielden, 6 Ex. 81; 6 Railw. Cas. 785; 2 L. M. & P. 124; 20 L. J., Ex. 141; 15 Jur. 191.

So if the plaintiff resides permanently in Ireland. Fitzgerald v. Whitmore, 1 Term Rep. 362.

Plaintiff residing in Ireland ordered to give security for costs. Hill v. Reardon, 6 Madd. 46.

Or in Scotland. M'Lean v. Austin, 1 Tidd's Prac. 575.

The court will compel a Scotchman to give security for costs as a foreigner. Ker v. Munster (Earl), Bunb. 35.

All proceedings stayed until security for costs given, the petitioner being in Scotland, and no step taken by the respondent. Scott, Ex parte, Western, In re, 3 Mont. & Ayr. 393; 2 Deac. 556.

Since Judgments Extension Act, 1868.]—Petitioners in chancery who reside in Scotland are still liable to give security for costs, the Judgments Extension Act, 1868, s. 5, applying only to actions. East Llangynog Lead Mining Co., In re, 23 W. R. 587.

Since the passing of the Judgments Extension Act, 1868, a plaintiff residing in Scotland is not required to find security for costs. Raeburn v. Andrews, 43 L. J., Q. B. 73; L. R. 9 Q. B. 118; 30 L. T. 15; 22 W. R. 489. See Howe Sewing Machine Co., In re Fontaine's Case, 41 Ch. D. 118; 61 L. T. 170; 37 W. R. 680—C. A.

So, according to the decision of the Irish Court of Queen's Bench, a plaintiff residing in England or Scotland will not, except under special circumstances, be ordered by that court to give security for costs. White v. Carroll, Ir. R. 8 C. L. 296. S. P., Yorke v. M'Laughlin, Ir. R. 8 C. L. 547.

But, according to the decisions of the Irish Courts of Common Pleas and Exchequer, a plaintiff resident in Great Britain will be ordered to give security for costs. Clarke v. Croker, Ir. R. 8 C. L. 318; and Corner v. Irwin, Ir. R. 8 C. L. 504.

c. Foreigners in this Country.

Temporary Residence in United Kingdom.]—The words of r. 6 (a) of Ord. LXV. of the Rules of Court, 1883, "temporarily resident within the jurisdiction," have an elastic meaning, the object of the rule being to cover a case in which a foreigner ordinarily resident out of the jurisdiction would not be here when he was wanted. Michiels v. Empire Palace, 66 L. T. 132—C. A.

The plaintiff in an action brought to establish his right to considerable landed property in Ireland was at the time of the commencement of the action resident in France, and an order for security for costs was made on the application of the defendant. Before the order was acted on the plaintiff came within the jurisdiction, and moved to discharge the order. It appeared that the plaintiff, though born in London, had been, since the year 1880, continuously residing in Paris, where he earned his livelihood as an accountant, and occupied apartments held quarterly and furnished by himself. His wife was a Frenchwoman, carrying on the trade of a milliner, in premises at Paris, held in the plaintiff's name. He had resigned his situation as accountant, surrendered his apartments, removed the furniture with the intention of sending it to Ireland, and had instructed his wife to wind up her business, in which request she acquiesced, though no step for the purpose had been as yet taken. He had become tenant of a cottage in Ireland for a term of five years, with power to surrender at the end of fifteen months; he had obtained as yet no employment in Ireland, but was qualified to act as accountant, journalist, or teacher of the French language. He swore that he intended to reside in Ireland for the future, whatever might be the result of the action:—Held, that the facts did not establish to the satisfaction of the court that the plaintiff's residence in Ireland was more than temporary within the meaning of Ord. XXIX. r. 4, and that therefore the order requiring security for costs ought to stand. Howard v. Howard, 30 L. R., Ir. 340.

Cases before Ord. LXV. r. 6a.]—The court will not require security for costs to be given by a plaintiff, who is a foreigner, and usually resident abroad, if at the time he is actually in this country. Tambisco v. Pacifico, 7 Ex. 816; 21 L. J., Ex. 276.

It is not a sufficient ground for requiring security for costs, that the plaintiff is a foreigner, lately come to England, having no family connections or permanent abode in it, and likely soon to leave it, if it is not sworn that he has a permanent residence abroad. Drummond v. Tillinghist or Tillinghurst, 16 Q. B. 740; 15 Jur. 384. S. P., Crispin v. Doglioni, 1 Sw. & Tr. 522; 29 L. J., P. 130; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 303; 1 L. T. 446.

Therefore a sailor born abroad, having a lodging in this country, will not be required to give security for costs upon an affidavit stating, that after his wages were exhausted he would be obliged to go to sea again, but not shewing a domicil abroad. Ib.

But a plaintiff, captain of a foreign ship, usually trading to this country, is liable to give security for costs. Nylander v. Barnes, 6 H. & N. 509; 30 L. J., Ex. 151; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 194; 3 L. T. 819; 9 W. R. 339.

Security for costs is not required from a prisoner of war who sues for wages earned on board an English ship. Maria v. Hall, 2 Bos. & P. 236; 9 R. R. 696.

A foreign seaman having brought an action for his wages against a foreigner, the court refused to compel him to give security for costs on account of his being on a voyage on board an English ship. Henshen v. Garves, 2 H. Bl. 383.

So the court refused to stay proceedings till security was given for costs in an action by a foreign seaman serving on board an English ship. Jacobs v. Stevenson, 1 Bos. & P. 96.

It is in the discretion of the court to allow the mate of a foreign vessel, though not domiciled in England, to prosecute an action for wages without giving security for costs. The Don Ricardo, 49 L. J., P. 28; 5 P. D. 121; 42 L. T. 32; 28 W. R. 431.

A foreigner usually residing abroad, who is temporarily residing in England for the purpose of enforcing a claim by action, cannot be called upon to give security for costs. Redondo v. Chaytor, 48 L. J., Q. B. 697; 4 Q. B. D. 453; 40 L. T. 797; 27 W. R. 701—C. A.

Security is not required from a person whilst in this country, although usually residing abroad. Anon., 8 Taunt. 737.

Although it is sworn that he is about to leave the country. Ciragno v. Hassan, 6 Taunt. 20; 1 Marsh. 421; 16 R. R. 559.

If a plaintiff is permanently resident abroad, and is only occasionally resident in this country, he will be liable to give security for costs. Gurney v. Key, 3 D. P. C. 559; 1 H. & W. 203.

The plaintiff ordered to give security for costs where, in the bill, his description was as "of Fort William, Inverness-shire, in the kingdom of Scotland, but now residing in Aldersgate Street, in the city of London," and it appeared that the plaintiff had lodgings in London temporarily only, and had not engaged them for any fixed period. Ainslie v. Sims, 17 Beav. 57; 1 Eq. Rep. 17; 22 L. J., Ch. 834; 17 Jur. 657. Overruled next case.

A foreigner temporarily resident in this country will not be compelled to give security for costs while he remains in this country. Cambottie v. Inngate, 1 Eq. Rep. 533; 1 W. R. 533.

d. Plaintiffs Abroad possessing Property in this Country.

When Security required.]—An Irish or a foreign railway company is bound to give security for costs, notwithstanding it has personal property in England, and some of its shareholders reside in England, who are responsible to the extent of their unpaid capital. Kilkenny and Great Southern and Western Ry. v. Fielden, 6 Railw. Cas. 785; 6 Ex. 81; 2 L. M. & P. 124; 20 L. J., Ex. 141; 15 Jur. 191.

So where a Scotch railway company, carrying on their works out of the jurisdiction of the court, has money and exchequer bills in the hands of their bankers in London; such property, notwithstanding the 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 12, not being of a sufficiently permanent nature. Edinburgh and Leith Ry. v. Dawson, 7 D. P. C. 573; 1 W. W. & H. 561; 3 Jur. 55.

A plaintiff who resides abroad will not be called upon to give security for costs if he has substantial property in England, whether that property be real or personal. Hamburger v. Poetting, 47 L. T. 249; 30 W. R. 769.

A plaintiff resident abroad is not subject to the ordinary rule as to giving security for costs, if he is seised or possessed of land in this country. Swinborne v. Carter, 2 C. L. R. 104; 1 L. & M. 209; 23 L. J., Q. B. 16; 17 Jur. 1165; 2 W. R. 80.

The possession of ample estates in this country is no bar to an application that the plaintiff shall stay his proceedings, until he give security for costs, if he resides out of the jurisdiction. Lucan (Lord) v. Latouche, 1 Hog, 448.

Land not mortgaged.]—But, in answer to a rule calling upon a plaintiff resident abroad to give security for costs, he must distinctly shew that the land is not mortgaged or otherwise unavailable for the purposes of an execution. Swinborne v. Carter, supra.

An affidavit in answer to the application that "the plaintiff was possessed of landed estates in the county of Durham of considerable value over and above all charges affecting the same," does not sufficiently shew that the estates are available to process. Ib.

e. Several Plaintiffs.

Joint Plaintiffs, one residing Abroad.]—An action was brought against the defendant as a common carrier by two plaintiffs, one residing abroad. The statement of claim alleged a contract by the defendant with the plaintiffs jointly, and in the alternative with each of the plaintiffs separately:—Held, that the plaintiff residing abroad could not be ordered to give security for costs. D'Hormusgee v. Grey, 52 L. J., Q. B. 192; 10 Q. B. D. 13.

If one of two plaintiffs is resident abroad, and the other in this country, the court will not compel the absent plaintiff to give security for costs. Anon., 1 D. P. C. 300; 2 C. & J. 88. S. P., Wilson v. Minchin, 1 D. P. C. 299; 2 C. & J. 87; 2 Tyr. 166; 1 L. J., Ex. 39; M'Connell v. Johnston, 1 East, 431; 6 R. R. 310.

Where one plaintiff resident in England, no security required for costs. Winthorp v. Royal Exchange Assurance Co., Dick. 282.

Plaintiff residing abroad not ordered to give security for costs where there were co-plaintiffs residing in England. Walker v. Easterby, 6 Ves. 612.

One Plaintiff coming within Jurisdiction.]—An action was brought by a mercantile firm, all the members of which were in America, against a firm at Manchester. The defendants put in a defence and counter-claim, and then applied to the judge for an order for the plaintiffs to give security for costs. The plaintiffs filed an affidavit stating that they with other persons carried on business at Manchester, and that the firm there had assets amounting to 2,000*l.* The judge refused the application. On the appeal the plaintiffs produced an affidavit stating that since the order one of the plaintiffs had come to Manchester for the purpose of carrying on the action:—Held, that the affidavit as to the property of the plaintiffs in England was ambiguous and was not sufficient to support the order in the court below. But held, that, as one of the plaintiffs had come to England since the order was made, although for a temporary purpose, the defendants were not entitled to security for costs, and therefore the order must be affirmed. Redondo v. Chaytor (4 Q. B. D. 453) followed. Ebrard v. Gassier, 54 L. J., Ch. 441; 28 Ch. D. 232; 52 L. T. 63; 33 W. R. 287—C. A. See now Ord. LXV. r. 6a.

f. In Counter-claims and Cross Actions.

Arising out of same Matters as Claim.]—Where a foreigner resident out of the jurisdiction sets up a counter-claim arising out of the same matter as the claim, so that it is in substance in the nature of a defence to the claim, the court has a discretion as to whether it will order the defendant to give security for the costs of the counter-claim. Neck v. Taylor, 62 L. J., Q. B. 514; [1893] 1 Q. B. 560; 4 R. 344; 68 L. T. 399; 41 W. R. 486—C. A.

In an action for breach of contract against the defendant, a foreigner residing abroad, he, by his defence, denied the breaches, and also made a counter-claim for breaches of the same contract by the plaintiff, claiming damages to an amount less than the plaintiff's claim:—Held, that the defendant could not be ordered to give security for the plaintiff's costs occasioned by the counter-claim. Mapleson v. Masini, 49 L. J., Q. B. 423; 5 Q. B. D. 144; 28 W. R. 488.

An incorporated society filed a bill against an incorporated company to foreclose a mortgage comprising nearly the whole of the effects of the company. At this time the company was in process of being wound up under the supervision of the court. By leave of the court in the winding up, a bill was filed in the name of the company against the society, praying that it might be declared that the mortgage deed was not binding on the company, or its bondholders or shareholders; but that, if the court held it to be a good security, certain renewed bills might be excluded from its operation, and that it might be declared a security only for bills of exchange accepted by the society; and that, in estimating the debt covered by it, no bills accepted by persons or firms other than the society might be included; and that an account might be taken on this footing of what was due; and that the company might be allowed to redeem on payment of what should be so found due:—Held, that, whether this was a pure cross bill or not, the plaintiffs in it must give security for costs. City of Moscow Gas Co. v. International Financial Society, 41 L. J., Ch. 350; L. R. 7 Ch. 225; 26 L. T. 377; 20 W. R. 394.

Held, on appeal, that the bill was not a mere cross bill; and that security for costs must be given. Ib.

Semble, that even had it been a pure cross bill, security for costs must have been given, as it was filed in the name of a company which was being wound up. Ib.

Claim admitted—Costs of Counter-claim.]—A defendant who admits the cause of action sued upon, and sets up a counter-claim founded upon a distinct claim, is not entitled to security for costs from the plaintiff, a foreigner residing without the jurisdiction. Winterfield v. Bradnum, 47 L. J., Q. B. 270; 3 Q. B. D. 324; 38 L. T. 250; 26 W. R. 742—C. A.

Where a defendant admits the plaintiff's claim, but sets up a counter-claim in respect of a wholly distinct transaction, the plaintiff ought never to be required to give security for costs. Ib.

Counter-claim independent of Claim.]—Where a defendant residing out of the jurisdiction sets up a counter-claim which amounts to an independent action, he may be ordered to give security to the plaintiffs for the costs of the counter-claim. Lake v. Haseltine, 55 L. J., Q. B. 205.

Where a claim and counter-claim arise out of different matters, so that the counter-claim is really in the nature of a cross action, the defendant, if he is residing out of the jurisdiction, may be required to give security for the plaintiff's costs of the counter-claim, and, if the only dispute remaining arises on the counter-claim, it is beyond doubt right that he should be so required. Sykes v. Sacerdoti, 54 L. J., Q. B. 560; 15 Q. B. D. 423; 53 L. T. 418—C. A.

Admiralty Court—Foreign State Plaintiff.]—The Court of Admiralty has power under s. 34 of the Admiralty Court Act, 1861, to stay proceedings in an action in rem until the plaintiffs have given security to answer the defendants' counter-claim, even though the plaintiff's ship, because it is owned by a foreign government, is by the comity of nations privileged from arrest. The Newbattle, 54 L. J., P. 16; 10 P. D. 33; 52 L. T. 15; 33 W. R. 318; 5 Asp. M. C. 356—C. A.

Whether Cross Bill or Defence to Bill.]—Plaintiff in a cross bill will not be compelled to give security for costs, though residing out of jurisdiction. Thornton v. Wilson, 1 Hog. 20.

The plaintiff in a cross suit (impeaching an instrument which the original suit seeks to enforce), although residing out of the jurisdiction, is not bound, as against the plaintiff in the original suit, to give security for costs. Vincent v. Hunter, 5 Hare, 320.

A bill was filed by a mortgagee of a reversionary interest, for sale or foreclosure. The defendant by his answer admitted the debt. Then the defendant filed a bill against the plaintiff, alleging that nothing was due from him to the plaintiff, but that the plaintiff was indebted to him, and that the security had been obtained from him by fraud, as had also been his answer in the original suit, and praying an account and payment of what was due to him from the plaintiff, and re-assignment of the property comprised in the security:—Held, that the second suit was a cross suit, and that the plaintiff in it, although out of the jurisdiction, need not give security for costs. Macgregor v. Shaw, 2 De G. & Sm. 360.

The proceedings of a plaintiff in a bill for dower, who resided out of the jurisdiction, were stayed until she should give security for costs. Secus, if the bill were a cross bill, or for an injunction to restrain proceedings at law. Maguire v. Maguire, Sau. & Sc. 653.

A. filed an original bill against B., and B. filed a cross bill against A. and others; they all moved that B. might give security for the costs of the cross suit. Motion refused, but leave was given to the co-defendants with A., who were not parties to the original suit, to move that B. might give security for the costs of the cross suit. Sloggett v. Viant, 13 Sim. 187.

The practice, in the case of a defendant at law filing a bill to restrain an action, was similar to that in the case of bill and cross bill, and security for costs cannot be required. Watteeu v. Billam, 3 De G. & Sm. 516; 18 L. J., Ch. 455; 14 Jur. 165.

A. filed a bill against B., the registered holder of one thousand shares in a company, and against the company and their secretary, for specific performance of an alleged contract by B. to transfer the shares to A., and for an injunction to restrain the company from transferring the shares to any one else than to A. The company thereupon filed a bill against A. and B., praying for declarations that the alleged contract was fraudulent and void, and that A. and B. were trustees of the shares for the company:—Held, that the second suit was not so strictly in the nature of a cross suit to the first, that A. was deprived of the right of calling upon the company to give security for costs. Washoe Mining Co. v. Ferguson, L. R. 2 Eq. 371; 14 L. T. 590; 14 W. R. 820.

A plaintiff resident abroad, filing a bill to restrain an action brought against him by the defendant in equity, will not be ordered to give security for costs, although the bill seeks other objects of relief than mere restraint of the action. Wilkinson v. Lewis, 3 Giff. 394; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 908; 5 L. T. 488.

The test of a cross bill is, that it is a simple bill of defence to an existing attack; and therefore, where a bill did not come within the definition, security for costs was ordered, the plaintiff being abroad. Tynte v. Hodge, 2 John. & H. 692; 1 N. R. 48; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 1226; 7 L. T. 349; 11 W. R. 52.

A suit instituted for the purposes of defence against the defendant moving, who was plaintiff in a previously existing suit, will, upon a motion for security for costs, be considered as a cross suit as regards the defendant moving, whatever might be the case as regards other defendants to the second suit. Quære, as to the result of such a motion by other defendants to the second suit, not being parties to the first. Wild v. Murray, 2 Eq. Rep. 1095; 18 Jur. 892; 2 W. R. 613.

Sect. 69 of the Companies Act of 1862 makes no alteration in the principle upon which the court refuses to allow a defendant in a cross suit to call upon the plaintiff in the cross suit to give security for costs; the principle being—not that the defendant by suing the plaintiff originally has admitted the jurisdiction, and cannot afterwards question it, but that a person who, though nominally a plaintiff, is actually a defendant, will be allowed freely to defend himself. Where a company, registered under the act of 1862, was plaintiff in a suit to set aside a policy on which the defendant in the suit had already sued the company in an action, which was still pending, the court refused to order the company to give security, although at the time of the application there was a petition to wind up the company, under which it was afterwards wound up. Accidental and Marine Insurance Co. v. Mercati, L. R. 3 Eq. 200; 15 L. T. 347; 15 W. R. 88.

In a case where the plaintiff had obtained an order for leave to file a supplemental bill, and for payment of certain costs, one of the defendants presented a petition, praying that so much of the order as related to the payment of costs might be discharged. On an application by the plaintiff, that the petitioner might give security for the costs of this petition, as he was out of the jurisdiction, the court held that, where a person had been brought before the court in a suit, he must have a right to present a petition in that suit; and refused to order the petitioner to give security for costs. Cochrane v. Fearon, 2 Eq. Rep. 813; 18 Jur. 568.

g. Misdescription of Party or Residence.

Residence.]—If plaintiff is insolvent, and gives a wrong residence, ordered to give a note of residence or security for costs. James v. Gilladam, 2 Anstr. 552.

A plaintiff, who gives a false description in the bill of his place of residence, will be made to give security for costs, although from the nature of his trade he has no residence. Calvert v. Day, 2 Y. & Coll. 217.

Where a plaintiff, upon his bill, misstates his place of residence, the court will order him to give security for costs. Sandys v. Long, 2 Myl. & K. 487; 7 Sim. 140.

Plaintiff describing himself as of place where he is rector, but not resident, not obliged to find security for costs. Sandys v. Whately, 2 Jur. 1038.

The proceedings of a plaintiff, who had misdescribed his residence in the bill, were stayed until he should give security for costs. Home v. Thompson, Sau. & Sc. 622.

The plaintiff, being the lessee of the opera house, described himself as "of Her Majesty's Theatre, in the county of Middlesex":—Held, that the plaintiff having so described himself in several deeds and transactions which had taken place between the plaintiff and defendant, the defendant was not entitled to security for costs. Lumley v. Hughes, 2 W. R. 112.

Security for costs will not be ordered to be given merely on the ground that, at the time of filing the bill, the plaintiff was not actually resident at the place of which he is described. Hurst v. Padwick, 17 L. J., Ch. 169; 12 Jur. 21.

A petitioner having, on his petition, given a false address, and having neither explained it nor given a true address, was ordered to give security for costs, though he was not contemplating going out of the jurisdiction. Foley, Ex parte, Smith, In re, 11 Beav. 456.

Although a plaintiff, who wilfully misrepresents his place of residence upon the record, will be ordered to give security for costs, this does not extend to a case where it is done innocently and from mere error. Lamb v. Fottrell, Ir. R. 8 Eq. 69.

A plaintiff, described in the bill as of Africa, now residing at a given address in England, ordered, under the circumstances, to give security for costs, notwithstanding the defendant had applied for further time to answer, and might, before making that application, have ascertained the facts on which the order was made. Swanzy v. Swanzy, 4 Kay & J. 237; 27 L. J., Ch. 419; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 1013; 6 W. R. 414.

The proceedings of a plaintiff, who had misdescribed his residence in the bill, were stayed until he gave security for costs. Shaw v. Dempsey, Sau. & Sc. 628.

A plaintiff, resident abroad, but having an estate and residence at C., in the county of T., being described as of "C., in the county of T.," without further addition, is not a misdescription. Watson v. Pim, 2 Ir. Eq. R. 26; Sau. & Sc. 642.

No Fixed Abode.]—The circumstance that a plaintiff has no fixed place of abode, and that it is difficult to find him, is not a sufficient ground for compelling him to give security for costs, unless he goes out of the jurisdiction of the court. Fraser v. Palmer, 3 Y. & Coll. Ex. 279; 8 L. J., Ex. Eq. 39; 3 Jur. 145.

A plaintiff described himself in his bill as of an address where he did not live, but where letters were addressed to him, and duly reached him. He had no fixed residence, and was at the time, and still was, living at the house of a friend:—Held, that he must give security for costs, but leave was given to amend within a week, by inserting his proper address, instead of giving security. Dick v. Munden, 34 L. J., Ch. 669; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 819; 13 W. R. 1013.

When Plaintiff cannot be Found.]—Upon a subpœna issued for the costs of a defendant against whom the bill had been dismissed, the plaintiff could not be found at the place where she was described as residing in the bill, and no information as to her place of residence could be obtained from her solicitor. On a motion made on the part of the defendants, who continued on the record, and who were threatened by the plaintiff's solicitor with an attachment for want of an answer to the amended bill, the plaintiff was ordered to find security for costs. Bailey v. Gundry, 1 Keen, 53; 5 L. J., Ch. 199.

A plaintiff, not out of the jurisdiction nor attempting to conceal himself, but not actually residing at the places mentioned on the record as his residence, was, under the circumstances of the case, exonerated from giving security for costs, where it appeared that the plaintiff received letters addressed to him at the place mentioned on the record, and the error was made innocently. Simpson v. Burton, 1 Beav. 556; 8 L. J., Ch. 328; 3 Jur. 995.

Security for costs will not be enforced against a plaintiff who has described himself as of a house no longer in his occupation, and over which a receiver has been appointed, if his suit can be shown to be a defensive proceeding by cross bill to a suit already pending against him. The plaintiff, by having described himself as of a place in the possession of another, was disentitled to the costs of the unsuccessful motion to make him give security. Wild v. Murray, 2 Eq. R. 1095; 18 Jur. 892; 2 W. R. 613.

A plaintiff, in mean circumstances, was described as of a house which he had shut up previous to filing the bill, but for which he still paid rent, and where he still kept his furniture. The defendant, who was anxious to have personal communication on different subjects with the plaintiff, had, however, made repeated attempts in vain to do so, and no information could be obtained at the house in question. The costs, however, of a recent proceeding in the suit, which had been ordered to be paid by the plaintiff to the defendant, had been duly paid:—Held, that, as in Bailey v. Gundry (1 Keen, 53), the plaintiff must give security for costs. Manby v. Bewicke, 8 De G. M. & G. 468; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 671; 4 W. R. 622. Reversing, 24 L. J., Ch. 664.

The plaintiff described himself of a particular place, and stated that his wife and family resided at this address; that he was a commission agent, and travelled about the country, but had been at his residence within the last few months. Upon an affidavit that he could not be found at his address, and that his place of abode could not be discovered, he was ordered to give security for costs. Oldale v. Whitcher or Whitehead, 28 L. J., Ch. 333; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 84; 7 W. R. 157.

Where a plaintiff could not be found at the residence described in his amended bill, an application by a defendant (made a party to the suit by the amended bill) that the plaintiff might be ordered to give security for costs was refused, with costs, the misdescription having arisen by mistake, and no inquiry as to the residence having been made of his solicitor. Knight v. Cory, 1 N. R. 229; 32 L. J., Ch. 127; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 491; 7 L. T. 618; 11 W. R. 254.

Change of Residence.]—If the residence of the plaintiff be truly described when the bill is filed, the circumstance that he resides elsewhere at a subsequent period, when the subpœna is served on the defendant, is not a ground for requiring the plaintiff to give security for costs. Trevanion v. Sargon, 8 L. J., Ch. 207; 3 Jur. 121.

Where, at the time of filing the bill, the description of the plaintiff and next friend was accurate, but became inaccurate by a subsequent change of residence, and one going abroad, there being no wilful intention to mislead, and the next friend about to return to this country, the court refused a motion for requiring security, but without costs. Kerr v. Gillespie, 7 Beav. 270; 13 L. J., Ch. 135; 8 Jur. 50.

A plaintiff, whose residence was correctly stated in the bill, ordered to give security for costs, because he had frequently changed his place of abode since the bill was filed. Player v. Anderson, 15 Sim. 104; 15 L. J., Ch. 189; 10 Jur. 169.

A plaintiff, who had inadvertently described herself as of a place she had left at the date of the filing of the bill, was not ordered to give security for costs, and a motion for that purpose was refused; but the court gave the defendant his costs on his not putting plaintiff to amend her bill. Smith v. Cornfoot, 1 De G. & Sm. 684; 12 Jur. 260.

Amendment.]—A notice of motion was served, that the plaintiff might be ordered to give security for costs, in consequence of misdescription of his residence in the bill. Pending the motion, the bill was amended, and the residence correctly inserted. The motion was refused on the plaintiff paying the costs of it. Ackerley v. Frodsham, 8 L. J., Ch. 240.

Supplemental Bill.]—Plaintiffs filed a supplemental bill for the purpose of bringing before the court the assignees of a defendant, who had become bankrupt. The plaintiffs were fully described in the original bill, but in the supplemental bill their places of residence were omitted:—Held, on motion, that they must give security for costs. Campbell v. Andrews, 12 Sim. 578.

Misdescription.]—A married woman had filed a bill describing herself as a spinster, and subsequently obtained an order to revive upon an affidavit by herself and husband that they had been recently married. Upon discovery made that she had been married before filing the original bill, the order to revive was discharged upon the application of the defendant. Liberty given to plaintiffs to amend upon giving the usual security for costs on or before the last day of next term. Davey v. Bennett, 3 Eq. R. 490; 3 W. R. 353.

The plaintiff brought her bill for redemption, describing herself as A. B., the widow of the mortgagor, and claiming as his devisee and executrix, but she obtained probate of the bill as A. C., otherwise B., spinster:—Held, that as the description of the plaintiff in the suit involved the question of her title under the will, the above variance did not entitle the plaintiff to have the bill taken off the file, or security given for costs. Griffith v. Ricketts, 5 Hare, 195; 15 L. J., Ch. 230; 10 Jur. 405.

Where the plaintiff only described himself as "working on the line of railway between Sheffield and Manchester":—Held, an insufficient description, and a motion to give security for costs was ordered to stand over to allow him time to amend. Sibbering v. Balcarres (Earl), 1 De G. & Sm. 683; 17 L. J., Ch. 132; 12 Jur. 108.

When a sole plaintiff filed a bill under a wrong name, and, by amendment, added his real name, and the defendant moved to take the amended bill off the file:—Held, that plaintiff must give security for the costs of the suit up to the date of the motion. Andrewes v. Nelson, 15 W. R. 378.

h. English Officials and Officers Abroad.

Officials.]—A plaintiff holding in Jamaica the office of stipendiary magistrate, under the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 73, is not bound to give security for costs. Cocking v. Alexander, Fl. & K. 391.

A lieutenant in the navy, holding the office of port captain and harbour-master in the island of Barbadoes, cannot be compelled to find security for costs. Evering v. Chiffenden, 1 W. W. & H. 560; 7 D. P. C. 536; 3 Jur. 288.

Motion, that the plaintiff, a naval officer on half-pay, who had resided sixteen years in Barbadoes, where he held the office of captain of the port, under the appointment of the crown, might give security for costs refused. Evelyn v. Chippendale, 9 Sim. 497; 8 L. J., Ch. 232.

A commissioner of the Ionian Islands filling his office out of this country could not be compelled to find security for costs, when a plaintiff. Nugent (Lord) v. Harcourt, 2 D. P. C. 578.

A plaintiff employed as a civil and sessions judge in the service of the East India Company, is not exempt from giving security for costs. Plowden v. Campbell, 23 L. J., Q. B. 384; 18 Jur. 910; 2 W. R. 553.

Plaintiff who resides as judge in one of the colonies will not be compelled to give security for costs. Stanley v. Hume, 1 Hog. 12.

Consul abroad, plaintiff in suit, need not give security for costs. Colebrook v. Jones, Dick. 154.

Officers.]—A plaintiff, who is a non-commissioned officer, residing with his regiment in India, will not be compelled to give security for costs. Fisher v. Bunbury, Sau. & Sc. 625.

A motion that a plaintiff, who was a surgeon in the army, residing abroad with his regiment, should give security for costs, was refused with costs. Wright v. Everard, Sau. & Sc. 651, n.

Application that the plaintiff, out of the jurisdiction, being an officer in her majesty's service on duty with his regiment in India, should give security for costs, refused. Everard v. ——, 1 Ir. Eq. R. 421.

An officer on half-pay, resident abroad, is not privileged from giving security for costs. Long v. Tottenham, 1 Ir. Ch. R. 127.

Where it appears upon the bill that the plaintiff is an officer in his majesty's service, and out of the jurisdiction, the defendant will be entitled to the usual security for costs, unless it be distinctly stated that the plaintiff is on actual service. It is not sufficient to state that the plaintiff is an officer of a particular regiment and residing at a particular place out of the jurisdiction, although the regiment may, in fact, be stationed at that place. Lillie v. Lillie, 2 Myl. & K. 404.

Security for costs will be required from an officer in the service of the East India Company. Powell v. Bernard, 1 Hog. 144.

Where a bill described the plaintiff as a lieutenant in her majesty's ship "Gladiator," now on service, the court refused to compel him to give security for costs. Clark v. Fergusson, 1 Giff. 184; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 1155.

Security for costs will not be required from an English officer serving in South America. O'Lawghla v. Macdonald, 8 Taunt. 736 ; 3 Moore, 77.

An officer serving in India, who had been originally in the service of the East India Company, and was by 21 & 22 Vict. c. 106, transferred to the service of the Queen, cannot be compelled to give security for costs. Whittall v. Campbell, 5 H. & N. 601 ; 29 L. J., Ex. 326 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 485 ; 2 L. T. 251 ; 8 W. R. 450.

An officer serving with his regiment in Ireland, who was born in Ireland, and is not shewn to have any residence in England, is not exempt from giving security for costs. Chappell v. Watts, 2 El. & El. 879 ; 29 L. J., Q. B. 167 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 533 ; 2 L. T. 283 ; 8 W. R. 450.

i. Ambassadors and Foreign Sovereigns.

The court will not compel a foreign ambassador to give security for costs. De Montellano (Duke) v. Christin, 5 M. & S. 503.

If an ambassador's servant brings a bill, he must give security to answer costs, as being a person privileged. Goodwin v. Archer, 2 P. W. 452. Anon., Mos. 175.

Where plaintiff is under the protection of a foreign ambassador, he must give security for costs. Adderly v. Smith, Dick. 355.

The court will compel a foreign potentate, resident abroad, who is a plaintiff, to find security for costs in a cause arising out of commercial transactions. Brazil (Emperor) v. Robinson, 6 A. & E. 801 ; 5 D. P. C. 522 ; 1 N. & P. 817 ; W. W. & D. 278 ; 6 L. J., K. B. 168. S. P., Greece (King) v. Wright, W. W. & D. 594 ; 6 D. P. C. 12 ; 1 Jur. 944.

j. Peers.

A plaintiff who is a peer, and out of the jurisdiction, must give the usual security for costs. Aldborough (Lord) v. Burton, 2 Myl. & K. 401.

Security for costs cannot be required from a peer, though residing abroad. Ferrars (Earl) v. Robins, 2 D. P. C. 636.

k. Executors and Administrators.

The court will compel an executrix, who is out of the jurisdiction, to give security for costs ; but such security will be confined to those costs only for which she would be liable. Chamberlain v. Chamberlain, 1 D. P. C. 366.

If a plaintiff is resident abroad, the court will require him to give security for costs, although he sues in the capacity of executor. Chevalier v. Finnis, 3 Moore, 602 ; 1 Br. & B. 277.

In an action by an administrator for the benefit of the deceased's widow and children, the court refused to order security for costs to be given simply on the ground that he was suing merely for the benefit of others. Larssen v. Monmouthshire Ry. and Canal Co., 16 L. T. 289.

Where two executors bring an action, and one is abroad and the other insolvent, the court cannot make an order to stay proceedings if they do not give security for costs. Sykes v. Sykes, 38 L. J., C. P. 281 ; L. R. 4 C. P. 645 ; 20 L. T. 663 ; 17 W. R. 799.

A plaintiff suing as executor, and residing out of the jurisdiction, may be compelled to give security for costs. Cathcart v. Hewson, Hayes, 173.

Executors and administrators must give security for costs on the same grounds as other persons. Shaw v. Dempsey, Sau. & Sc. 628.

l. Bankruptcy and Insolvency.

Cause of Action arising pending Bankruptcy.]—An undischarged bankrupt suing in respect of a cause of action arising after he has been adjudicated bankrupt cannot be called on to give security for the costs of the action. Cook v. Whellock, 59 L. J., Q. B. 329 ; 24 Q. B. D. 658 ; 62 L. T. 675 ; 38 W. R. 534—C. A. Affirming, 54 J. P. 423.

Suing for his own Benefit.]—The fact that a plaintiff is insolvent, and that there is a receiver of his assets, is not necessarily a ground for requiring him to give security for costs. Malcolm v. Hodgkinson (L. R. 8 Q. B. 209) commented on. A receiving order, made under the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, does not divest the debtor of his property ; and what he recovers as plaintiff in an action is his property both legally and equitably, although he must, when he recovers it, hand it over to the official receiver for the benefit of his creditors, if he does not pay or compound with them. Therefore the debtor, against whom a receiving order has been made, ought not merely on that ground to be ordered to give security for the costs of any action in which he may be the plaintiff. Rhodes v. Dawson, 55 L. J., Q. B. 134 ; 16 Q. B. D. 548 ; 34 W. R. 240—C. A.

Plaintiff in equity becoming bankrupt will not be compelled to give security for costs. Anon., 2 Anstr. 407 ; 3 R. R. 598.

If plaintiff is insolvent and gives a wrong residence, ordered to give a note of residence, or security for costs. James v. Gilladam, 2 Anstr. 552.

Plaintiff in equity being found a bankrupt, but disputing the validity of the commission, may proceed in the suit, bringing his assignee before the court by supplemental bill, and cannot be required to give security for costs. Kelly v. Dowling, 1 Moll. 73.

The court refused to grant a rule compelling a plaintiff to give security for costs by reason of his insolvency, no ground being shown for believing that the action was prosecuted for the benefit of his assignees. Stead v. Williams, 5 D. & L. 497 ; 5 C. B. 528 ; 17 L. J., C. P. 109 ; 12 Jur. 100.

After verdict in favour of the plaintiff, and a rule for a new trial made absolute, he became bankrupt ; the court compelled him to give security for costs, although there was no affidavit that the action was carried on for the benefit of the assignees. Denton v. Williams, 8 D. P. C. 123 ; 1 W. W. & H. 327 ; 2 Jur. 872.

After joinder in demurrer, the plaintiff became bankrupt and obtained his certificate. The defendant then applied for security for costs, but plaintiff's assignees not interfering, the court rejected the application. Beckham v. Knight, 4 Bing. (N.C.) 74 ; 5 Scott, 336 ; 6 D. P. C. 227 ; 3 Hodges, 301 ; 7 L. J., C. P. 19 ; 2 Jur. 16.

Defendant—Trial by Proviso.]—The giving notice of trial by proviso by a defendant in an action on a bill of exchange is not sufficient to make him such an actor in the cause as to induce the court to compel him to give security for costs, although he is insolvent ; and if the plaintiff, after notice of the defendant's insolvency, takes a step in the cause he will not be allowed to discontinue without payment of costs. Ford v. Stott, 1 D. (N.S.) 763; 11 L. J., Q. B. 235; 6 Jur. 486.

For Benefit of Creditors.]—A plaintiff since action executed a deed of inspectorship for the benefit of his creditors, and by it he covenanted to give up the whole of his property when required by the inspectors to do so. The action was being proceeded with for the benefit of the creditors:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to security for costs. Smith v. Saunders, 16 L. T. 386; 15 W. R. 811.

A plaintiff, in an action of trover, filed a petition for liquidation by arrangement under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, s. 125, and a receiver was appointed:—Held, that the plaintiff was rightly ordered to give security for costs. Malcolm v. Hodgkinson, L. R. 8 Q. B. 209; 21 W. R. 360.

A plaintiff assigned all his effects to a trustee for the benefit of his creditors, with power to sue in his name; afterwards he became insolvent, and also bankrupt, and had not obtained his certificate, and had no means of paying the costs of an action. The trustee having commenced an action in the plaintiff's name and without his authority (except under the assignment), the court stayed the proceedings till he should give the defendant security for costs. Elliott v. Kendrick, 12 A. & E. 597; 4 P. & D. 306; 9 D. P. C. 195; 1 W. P. C. 45; 10 L. J., Q. B. 42.

The court refused to compel a plaintiff to give security for costs upon an affidavit stating that he was in insolvent circumstances, and had mortgaged or assigned to a third party all his interest in the subject-matter of the action. Parker v. G. W. Ry., 9 C. B. 766; 19 L. J., C. P. 335.

Where a plaintiff is bankrupt or insolvent, and has assigned the debt for which the action is brought, and is suing for the benefit of the assignee, the court will compel him to give security for costs. Goatley v. Emmott, 15 C. B. 291; 24 L. J., C. P. 38; 3 W. R. 64. S. P., Perkins v. Adcock, 14 M. & W. 808; 3 D. & L. 270; 15 L. J., Ex. 7.

Proof of Solvency.]—Where a plaintiff has recently executed a deed of assignment of all his property to an assignee, he will be required to give security for the costs of suit, unless he satisfies the court that he is solvent. The fact that he is carrying on business is not sufficient proof of his solvency. The Lake Megantic, 36 L. T. 183.

Where Plaintiff a Trustee in Bankruptcy.]—See infra.

Insolvent Corporation.]—A corporation, plaintiff in an action, cannot be required to give security for costs on the ground that a receiver of its property has been appointed by the court. Dartmouth Harbour Commissioners v. Dartmouth Corporation, 55 L. J., Q. B. 483; 34 W. R. 774.

Company in Liquidation.]—Under s. 69 of the Companies Act, 1862, a judge may require security for costs to be given by a plaintiff company if there is reason to believe that if the defendant be successful in his defence the assets of the company will be insufficient to pay his costs:—Held, where a company is in liquidation, this fact, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, gives sufficient reason to believe that if the defendant be successful in his defence the assets of the company will be insufficient to pay his costs. Pure Spirit Co. v. Fowler, 59 L. J., Q. B. 537; 25 Q. B. D. 235; 63 L. T. 559; 38 W. R. 686.

—— Undertaking by Liquidator—Construction.]—A limited company, after having commenced an action, was wound-up voluntarily. The defendants thereupon took out a summons for security for costs in the sum of 200*l.* The liquidator opposed the application, and stated in an affidavit that he would set apart a sum out of the assets of the company sufficient to meet the costs. An order was made for security unless the liquidator gave an undertaking in the terms of the affidavit. The liquidator accordingly gave an undertaking in writing to set apart out of the assets of the company a sum sufficient to meet the costs which the company might be liable to pay to the defendants in the action. At the trial verdict and judgment passed for the company, but this was reversed on appeal, and judgment was entered for the defendants. The defendants' costs of the action, including the appeal, were taxed at 790*l.*:—Held, that the liquidator's undertaking must be construed with reference to the summons upon which the order was founded, and must, therefore, be limited to 200*l.* Hawkins Hill Consolidated Gold Mining Co. v. Want, 62 L. J., Q. B. 505; 4 R. 577; 69 L. T. 297—C. A.

m. Plaintiff a Trustee in Bankruptcy.

When Required.]—The court will not require security for costs to be given by a plaintiff who sues as trustee in bankruptcy even where he is in insolvent circumstances. Denston v. Ashton (L. R. 4 Q. B. 590) approved. The observations in Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham (28 Ch. D. 38) dissented from. Cowell v. Taylor, 55 L. J., Ch. 92; 31 Ch. D. 34; 53 L. T. 483; 34 W. R. 24—C. A.

Where the trustee of a bankrupt brought an action in his official name as the trustee of the bankrupt, and there was no evidence that the trustee was in insolvent circumstances, the court refused to require him to give security merely because he was suing in his official name. The insolvency of the plaintiff not being established, the court expressed no opinion whether the decision in Denston v. Ashton (L. R. 4 Q. B. 590) was right or wrong. Pooley's Trustee v. Whetham, 54 L. J., Ch. 182; 28 Ch. D. 38; 51 L. T. 608; 33 W. R. 423—C. A.

The assignee of a bankrupt suing for the benefit of the estate is not within the rule which requires a mere nominal plaintiff suing for the benefit of a third person to give security for costs. Denston v. Ashton, 10 B. & S. 768; 38 L. J., Q. B. 254; L. R. 4 Q. B. 590; 21 L. T. 20; 17 W. R. 968.

Where a plaintiff becomes bankrupt in the middle of a cause, the assignees, if they proceed with the action, must give security for all the costs. The defendant may apply for this security at any time before a fresh step in the cause is taken. Mason v. Polhill, 2 D. P. C. 61; 1 C. & M. 620; 3 Tyr. 595; 2 L. J., Ex. 233.

n. Action not for Plaintiff's Benefit.

Assignment—Solicitor.]—On a motion to dismiss an action for want of prosecution (the plaintiff having omitted to give notice of trial within the proper time), or that the plaintiff might be ordered to give security for costs, the defendant in support of the application adduced evidence that the plaintiff was in insolvent circumstances, that he had no settled residence, that he had mortgaged his interest in the property which was the subject-matter of the action to his solicitor, and that there were charges on the property to its full amount. The costs for which the plaintiff was already liable in the action to the defendant were estimated at about 70*l.*, and the future costs at 50*l.* The judge, being of opinion that the plaintiff was carrying on the action not for his own benefit, but for that of his solicitor, ordered the plaintiff to give security for costs to the amount of 200*l.*, and directed the proceedings to be stayed in the meantime:—Held, on appeal, that the court would not interfere with the discretion of the judge as to ordering security, but that the amount must be reduced to 100*l.* Semble, that such an order ought to be made only under very special circumstances. Wilmott v. Freehold House Property Co., 52 L. T. 743; 33 W. R. 554—C. A. Cp. cases, supra, col. 360.

Merely Nominal Plaintiff.]—Where, in an action against parish officers for distraining for poor-rates, it appeared that the plaintiff refused to pay the rates by the desire of his landlord, who was also the attorney in the cause, the court stayed the proceedings until he gave security for costs. Tenant v. Brown, 5 B. & C. 208.

In an action by a pauper against magistrates for turning him out of a cottage, at the instance of parish officers who claimed the premises as part of the poor-house, the court refused to call on him to give security for costs on the ground that the action had been instituted and encouraged by a third person, who had petitioned the house of lords on the subject, and had thrown out expressions of a determination to see the plaintiff reinstated. Hearsay v. Pechell, 7 D. P. C. 437; 5 Bing. (N.C.) 466; 7 Scott, 477; 2 Arn. 25; 8 L. J., C. P. 247.

Where an action of trespass appeared to have been brought by a man in very humble circumstances, at the instigation and at the costs of his landlord, the court stayed proceedings until the latter gave security for the defendant's costs. Ball v. Ross, 1 Scott (N.R.) 217; 1 Man. & G. 445.

A corporation or other similar body, nominally prosecutors, may compel the virtual prosecutors to give security for costs. Reg. v. Southampton Harbour Commissioners, 20 L. T. 585.

Where the whole interest of a party in an award is assigned to another, the court will not compel the latter to give security for costs in an action brought by the former upon the award. Day v. Smith, 1 D. P. C. 460. See also cases ante, col. 361.

In an action on a bond, in the name of an obligee resident abroad, for the benefit of an assignee in this country, the nominal plaintiff must give security for costs. The assignee's written undertaking is not sufficient. Youde v. Youde, 3 A. & E. 311.

The court refused to order a plaintiff to give security for costs, on the ground that he had been three times an insolvent and once a bankrupt, and was only suing as trustee for a third person. Wray v. Brown, 6 Bing. (N.C.) 271; 8 D. P. C. 279; 8 Scott, 557; 9 L. J., C. P. 174; 4 Jur. 271.

A nominal plaintiff who is a pauper will be compelled to give security for costs, and the fact that the action is brought under the direction of the Court of Chancery to try an alleged right will not exempt him from doing so. Macneal v. Biggart, 18 W. R. 470.

See next sub-division.

o. Poverty of Plaintiff.

Security when Ordered.]—A plaintiff will not be compelled to give security for costs merely on the ground of his poverty. Ross v. Jaques, 8 M. & W. 135; 9 D. P. C. 737; 10 L. J., Ex. 306.

It is no sufficient ground to compel a plaintiff to give security for costs, that he is in extremely destitute circumstances, and wandering about from place to place without a home, and that he had stated, when last seen, that he knew nothing about the action, and that it was carried on by the attorney entirely on his own authority, and without any direction or sanction from him. Armitage v. Grafton, 1 B. C. Rep. 30; 10 Jur. 377.

The beneficial owner of an old judgment, in order to avoid liability to costs in a suit to be instituted to raise its amount, procured it to be assigned to a pauper, and filed a bill in his name. The proceedings to be stayed until the plaintiff should give security for costs. Burke v. Lidwell, 1 Jo. & Lat. 703.

Poor relator must give security for costs. Att.-Gen. v. Skinners' Co., C. P. Coop. 1.

Security for costs required from a plaintiff, on the ground of poverty, when he had no beneficial interest in the property to be recovered, and it had been assigned to him collusively to evade liability to costs. Burke v. Hutchinson, 7 Ir. Eq. R. 508.

Security for costs refused, notwithstanding affidavits, stating the poverty of the plaintiff, that he was a trustee as to one moiety of the subject of the suit, and disclosing facts which would be a good defence, and raised a suspicion of champerty and collusion between the plaintiff and his solicitor. Burke v. Hutchinson (7 Ir. Eq. R. 508) explained. Worrall v. White, 9 Ir. Eq. R. 572. S. C., 3 Jo. & Lat. 513.

The court will not in an action brought to recover a penalty compel a plaintiff to give security for costs because he is a pauper. Hamill v. Henry, 5 L. T. 243. See Browne v. Redmond, 11 Ir. C. L. R. App. xxvi.

See preceding sub-division.

p. Other Circumstances.

Transportation.]—A plaintiff who is in prison under sentence of transportation is bound to give security for costs. Barrett v. Power, 9 Ex. 338; 2 C. L. R. 488; 23 L. J., Ex. 162; 18 Jur. 156; 2 W. R. 220.

A plaintiff will be compelled to stay proceedings until he gives security for costs, on an affidavit that he had been sentenced to transportation, and was then on board the hulks. Dunn v. M'Evoy, 1 Hog. 355. And see Baddeley v. Harding, 6 Madd. 214.

Imprisonment.]—Mere imprisonment of plaintiff does not entitle defendant to security for costs. Baddeley v. Harding, 6 Madd. 214.

Alien.]—Plaintiff, by an order of the secretary of state confined and to be removed out of the kingdom under the Alien Act, ordered on motion, after appearance and before answer, to give security for costs, according to practice where plaintiff is resident abroad. Seilaz v. Hanson, 5 Ves. 261.

Plaintiff Absconding.]—After an arrest of a defendant, the plaintiff removed his furniture, and absconded, to avoid a charge of bigamy:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to security for costs. Rogers v. Banger, 4 D. P. C. 411.

Composition with Creditors.]—The fact of the plaintiffs having compounded with their creditors, and one of them being resident abroad, is no ground for calling upon them to give security for costs. Thomel v. Roelants, 2 C. B. 290.

Previous Action.]—A plaintiff having brought an ejectment against the defendant, a chancery suit was substituted by arrangement between the parties, and subsequently the bill in equity was dismissed. After this the plaintiff brought a second ejectment against the defendant:—Held, that he might be called upon to give security for costs under s. 93 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, the first action of ejectment not having been successfully prosecuted. Skene v. Davis, 7 B. & S. 463; 14 L. T. 622; 14 W. R. 776. See also STAYING PROCEEDINGS, ante, col. 297.

Change of Parties.]—If, pending a rule for a new trial in ejectment, the plaintiff dies, the defendant is entitled to have security for costs before the rule is argued. Doe d. Cozens v. Cozens, 1 G. & D. 503; 1 Q. B. 426; 9 D. P. C. 1040; 10 L. J., Q. B. 337.

Where, on the trial of an ejectment, a verdict was taken subject to a special case, and, before the terms of it were settled, the plaintiff died:—Held, that this formed no ground for an application for setting aside the verdict or staying proceedings in the action, but that the court would compel the plaintiff to find security for costs. Doe d. Egremont (Earl) v. Stevens, 2 D. & L. 993; 14 L. J., Q. B. 258.

Leave was given to the plaintiff in equity to bring an action at law. After the action had been commenced, the plaintiff died. His heir revived the suit, and obtained leave, on a motion which was unopposed, to continue the action. The defendant applied to this court that the new plaintiff might give security for the costs of the action. The court considered that it had no jurisdiction so to order, but it suspended the prosecution of the action until security had been given. Hilton v. Granville (Lord), 5 Beav. 263; 11 L. J., Ch. 388; 6 Jur. 475. And see Cr. & Ph. 283.

A plaintiff described himself as resident in Ireland, and the defendant, by obtaining orders for him, waived his right to security for costs. The plaintiff afterwards died, and his personal representative (who was also resident in Ireland) obtained an order to revive under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 5:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to an order for security for costs, as against the new plaintiff. Jackson v. Davenport, 29 Beav. 212; 30 L. J., Ch. 272; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 1224; 9 W. R. 356.

Where the original defendant who had obtained security for costs became bankrupt, his assignees, who had become parties by supplemental bill, were held entitled to call for a fresh security, as they could not have the benefit of the recognizance already entered into. Ogborne v. Bartlett, Beam. 359.

A defendant who is brought before the court by a bill of revivor, may obtain an order that the plaintiff shall stay proceedings until he gives security for costs. Wright v. Cremorne (Lord), 2 Hog. 18.

Liberty being given to amend, the bill was amended by striking out the names of several co-plaintiffs, and suing by one on behalf of the others:—Held, irregular, but the court allowed the amendment to stand, security being given for costs. Fellowes v. Deere, 3 Beav. 353.

A nominal party, plaintiff, on moving to be struck out, is only liable to give security for costs up to the time of being struck out. Trimleston (Lady) v. Trimleston (Lord), 2 Moll. 325.

On giving security for costs, a formal plaintiff may be struck out of bill as such, and made defendant. Lloyd v. Wingfield, 1 Hog. 192.

The court will not allow a co-plaintiff to be withdrawn from the record without requiring security to all the defendants for the past costs. Sweeney v. Hall, Sau. & Sc. 662; 1 Ir. Eq. R. 22.

Qui tam Action.]—The court will not compel a plaintiff in a qui tam action to give security for costs, though it is sworn that he is a pauper, and has brought a very great number of actions by the same attorney. Gregory v. Elvidge, 2 D. P. C. 259; 2 C. & M. 336; 4 Tyr. 235.

Or although it appears by affidavit that he is insolvent. Field v. Carron, 2 H. Bl. 27.

In Ejectment.]—A party residing abroad may, upon being admitted to defend an ejectment as landlord, be required to give security for costs. Doe d. Hudson v. Jameson, 4 M. & Ry. 570.

But a landlord who can satisfy the court or a judge that he is in possession of the land for which an ejectment is brought, either by himself or his tenant, is entitled to appear and defend the ejectment as matter of right, since the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76; and it is not competent to the court or a judge to impose on him any condition, such as giving security for costs, and even although a foreigner residing out of the jurisdiction of the court. Butler v. Meredith, 11 Ex. 85; 24 L. J., Ex. 239; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 450; 3 W. R. 443.

Quo Warranto.]—In quo warranto informations, the court will not force an indigent relator to give security for costs, when it does not appear that the fact of indigence had not come to the defendant's knowledge before issue joined. Rex v. Day, 1 D. P. C. 32.

Information.]—Where in an information and bill the relator is the plaintiff, suing in his own right, the court will not dismiss the information and bill upon the ground that the relator having been required by the attorney-general to give security for costs, has failed to do so. Att.-Gen. v. Knight, 3 Myl. & C. 154.

Nominal prosecutors may compel the virtual prosecutors to give security for costs. Reg. v. Southampton Harbour Commissioners, 20 L. T. 585.

Mandamus.]—The court will not oblige a prosecutor of a mandamus to give security for costs, even where it is probable that he is put forward by other persons to try a right in which he has no bonâ fide interest. Reg. v. Malmesbury Corporation, 9 D. P. C. 359; 5 Jur. 366.

Replevin.]—A defendant in replevin residing abroad must give security for costs. Selby v. Crutchley, 4 Moore, 280; 1 Br. & B. 505; 21 R. R. 699.

Auditâ querelâ.]—An auditâ querelâ is an action within the 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 34, and as costs may therefore become payable by the plaintiff, he is compellable, when resident abroad, to give security for costs. Holmes v. Pemberton, 1 El. & El. 369; 28 L. J., Q. B. 172; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 727; 7 W. R. 160.

Interpleader.]—A party made a defendant under an interpleader rule is in the same position as any other defendant; and, therefore, when the plaintiff is resident abroad, is entitled to stay proceedings until security for costs is given. Benazech v. Bessett or Bassett, 1 C. B. 313; 2 D. & L. 801; 14 L. J., C. P. 148; 9 Jur. 376. S. P., Williams v. Crossling, 3 C. B. 957; 4 D. & L. 660; 16 L. J., C. P. 112.

Where one of the defendants in an interpleader issue is really interested in the result thereof as if he were a plaintiff in an action, he is not entitled to call upon the plaintiff in the issue to give security for costs upon the ground that the latter is a foreigner residing abroad. Belmonte v. Aynard, 4 C. P. D. 352; 27 W. R. 789—C. A. Affirming 40 L. T. 627. See Workmeister v. Healy, Ir. R. 10 C. L. 451. Cp. INTERPLEADER.

Action by assignee of an insolvent against a defendant, who was a commission agent, for not accounting for goods delivered by the insolvent to the defendant for sale. The insolvent claimed the goods as belonging to him in the character of executor. An interpleader order for the insolvent to be plaintiff, and the assignee defendant, was made, without requiring the insolvent or the original defendant to give security for costs. Ridgway v. Jones, 29 L. J., Q. B. 97; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 223; 1 L. T. 368; 8 W. R. 185.

Petition to Tax Solicitor's Bill.]—A person resident out of the jurisdiction presented a petition for taxation of a solicitor's bill of costs; the court ordered the petitioner to give security for the costs of the matter and for the balance alleged to be due to the solicitor. Cornwall, In re, 15 L. R., Ir. 144.

On a petition for the taxation of a bill of costs, the petitioner, when resident out of the jurisdiction, must give security for costs, if required. Dolman, In re, 11 Jur. 1095.

If a person out of the jurisdiction petition for the taxation of his solicitor's bill, he must give security for the costs of the taxation, and also for the balance that may be found due from him. Anon., 12 Sim. 262.

Where a client, resident abroad, applies for the taxation of his solicitor's bill of costs, on his undertaking to pay, he must give security for the costs of the proceeding. Passmore, In re, 1 Beav. 94; 8 L. J., Ch. 229.

Petition to Wind-up Company.]—A petitioner in a petition for winding up a company filed a petition for liquidation by arrangement under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869. No trustee had been appointed:—Held, that the petitioner must give security for costs in the winding-up petition. Malcolm v. Hodgkinson (L. R. 8 Q. B. 209), and Brocklebank v. King's Lynn Steamship Co. (3 C. P. D. 365), followed. Carta Para Gold Mining Co., In re, 51 L. J., Ch. 191; 19 Ch. D. 457; 46 L. T. 406; 30 W. R. 117.

So petitioner described as resident out of the jurisdiction ordered to give security. Royal Bank of Australia, In re, Latta, Ex parte, 3 De G. & Sm. 186; 19 L. J., Ch. 387; 14 Jur. 908.

The rule by which a plaintiff resident out of the jurisdiction is compellable to give security for costs does not in any case extend to other parties:—Held, therefore, that shareholders appearing upon a winding-up petition could not be ordered to give security. Percy and Kelly Nickel Co., In re, 45 L. J., Ch. 526; 2 Ch. D. 531; 24 W. R. 1057.

Claim in Winding-up.]—F., who was a foreigner domiciled in Scotland, brought an action in the Queen's Bench Division against the H. company. Upon the company being ordered to be wound-up the proceedings in the action were stayed, and a claim was made in the winding-up. The liquidator asked that F. might be ordered to give security for costs. The court below held that an order in the winding-up would not be enforceable in Scotland under the Judgments Extension Act, 1868, and that F. must give security for costs; but the attention of the court was not called to s. 122 of the Companies Act, 1862, which provides for the enforcing of orders made in the winding-up of a company in England by the courts of Scotland and Ireland. On appeal fresh evidence was adduced which shewed that F. had property in England sufficient to pay the costs of his claim in case he should fail, and on this ground the court discharged the order for security, without expressing any opinion on the point decided. Howe Sewing Machine Co., In re, Fontaine's Case, 41 Ch. D. 118; 61 L. T. 170; 37 W. R. 680—C. A.

Petition for Revocation of Patent.]—The principle upon which the court acted in requiring security for costs was, that a person resident out of the jurisdiction is not allowed under ordinary circumstances to institute proceedings in the supreme court here without reasonably satisfying the opposite party that if the application fails there will be an opportunity of recovering the costs of it; where therefore a patentee resident out of the jurisdiction had notice of a petition for revocation of the patent, the patentee is brought before the court as a defendant to defend his right and cannot be ordered to give security for costs. Miller's Patent, In re, 63 L. J., Ch. 324; 70 L. T. 270.

Persons not Parties.]—Where a person presenting a petition in a cause not being a party to it, is out of the jurisdiction of the court, the respondent may make a substantive motion for security for costs. Atkins v. Cooke, 3 Drew. 694; 26 L. J., Ch. 353; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 283; 5 W. R. 381.

The plaintiff obtained an injunction to restrain the defendants from parting with goods alleged to bear improperly the plaintiff's trade-mark. The defendants, who were shipowners, had no interest in the goods, which had only been put in their hands for transmission. S., a resident in America, who claimed to be owner of the goods, served notice of motion that he might be at liberty to reship the goods to a foreign port, and that if necessary he might be added as a defendant to the action:—Held, that S. must give security for the costs of the motion, for that whatever his position as to costs might be if and when he was made a defendant, he must on this motion be treated as a person resident abroad, coming forward to enforce a right, and stood in the position of a plaintiff. Apollinaris Co. v. Wilson, 55 L. J., Ch. 665; 31 Ch. D. 632; 54 L. T. 478; 34 W. R. 537—C. A.

Petition to refer.]—A foreigner, who claimed to be a creditor of the testator in the cause, petitioned to have his claim referred to the master, after he had made his report: the court made the order, upon condition of his giving security for the costs. Drever v. Maudesley, 5 Russ. 11.

Defendant having Conduct of Cause.]—After decree, one of several defendants obtained leave to have the conduct of the cause, and, living out of the jurisdiction, was ordered to give only the ordinary security for costs. Mynn v. Hart, 9 Jur. 860.

3. The Application.

Order LXV. r. 6 (1883).

Time for—Present Practice.]—The old rule in chancery that an application that a next friend should give security for costs must be made before the next material step in the cause is taken, and the old rule at common law, that the like application must be made before issue joined, is abrogated by the new judicature rules; and under r. 8 of Ord. XVI. the court has a judicial discretion to direct security for costs to be given at any time. Martano v. Mann, 49 L. J., Ch. 510; 14 Ch. D. 419.

The old rule of the Court of Chancery that an application for security for the costs of an action must be made promptly, is inconsistent with the provisions of r. 2 of Ord. LV. that security for costs may be given "at such time or times" as the court may direct, and must be taken to have been abrogated:—Held, therefore, that an application by a defendant for security for the costs of an action brought against him by a limited company might be made after reply and notice of trial. Lydney and Wigpool Iron Ore Co. v. Bird, 52 L. J., Ch. 640; 23 Ch. D. 358; 48 L. T. 893.

The old rule in chancery, that an application for security for the costs of an action must be made within a reasonable time, is inconsistent with the provision of r. 6 of Ord. LXV., that such security may be "given at such times as the court or a judge shall direct," and it must therefore be taken to have been abrogated. Under r. 6 there is a judicia discretion to direct security for costs to be given at any stage of the proceedings. Smith, In re, Bain v. Bain, 75 L. T. 46—C. A.

An order for security will not be made where there has been delay in making the application, and expense has been incurred in the meantime by the plaintiff. Duffy v. Joyce, 25 L. R., Ir. 42.

—— Practice at Law.]—The writ of summons in an action under the Summary Procedure on Bills of Exchange (Ireland) Act, 1861, was served on the defendant on the 10th of June, 1882, and on the 20th of June the defendant by notice, required security for costs to be given, on the ground that the plaintiff resided out of the jurisdiction, and, in compliance with the plaintiff's requisition, duly made an affidavit of merits, a copy of which was delivered on the 23rd of June, and upon the same day the defendant, by leave of the court, entered an appearance requiring a statement of claim, the appearance being entered without prejudice to an application for security for costs. No statement of claim was delivered until the 18th of November, 1882. Upon its delivery, the defendant, on the 24th of November, took out a summons for security for costs, and on the 25th delivered his defence, without prejudice to the then pending summons:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to an order for security for costs. Heil v. Lazenby, 12 L. R., Ir. 75.

An application to compel the plaintiff to give security for costs on the ground of his residing out of the jurisdiction of the court, may be made after an order has been obtained for time to plead on the usual terms. Dowling v. Harman, 6 M. & W. 131; 8 D. P. C. 165; 9 L. J., Ex. 53; 4 Jur. 43.

An application for security for costs, on the ground of the plaintiff's residing abroad, must be made promptly after the defendant knows that fact. Duncan v. Stent, 1 D. & R. 348; 5 B. & Ald. 702.

It is no objection to a motion for security for costs on the ground that the plaintiff (a foreigner having a very shadowy residence in this country) has assigned his interest in the result of the action, that the fact was known to the defendant more than a year before, and that the cause is ripe for trial. Zychlinski v. Maltby, 14 C. B. (N.S.) 322.

Before the trial of a cause, the plaintiff went to reside abroad; the defendant proceeded to trial, with a full knowledge of that circumstance; at the trial a juror was withdrawn by consent, upon a new notice of trial being given:—Held, that the defendant was too late to apply for security for costs. Wainwright v. Bland, 2 C. M. & R. 740; 4 D. P. C. 547; 1 Tyr. & G. 137; 1 Gale, 333.

Where a plaintiff resides abroad, the court has a discretionary power to require security for costs, notwithstanding the defendant has proceeded in the cause after he knew that the plaintiff resided abroad. Fletcher v. Law, 5 N. & M. 351; 3 A. & E. 551; 1 H. & W. 430.

It is too late to apply for security for costs after judgment signed. Borhs v. Sessions, 2 D. P. C. 710.

A motion for security for costs may be made, notwithstanding the defendant is under terms to take short notice of trial, or such notice as the plaintiff can give, provided issue is not joined. West v. Cooke, 1 C. B. 312; 2 D. & L. 834; 14 L. J., C. P. 151.

In an action for penalties for bribery, an application for security for the costs to be thereafter incurred was refused, the application not having been made until after there had been an abortive trial, and notice of trial had been again given. Magee v. Mark, 10 Ir. C. L. R. 275.

Security for costs may be applied for at any time before plea pleaded: even after the defendant has had an order for time to plead. Gurney v. Key, 3 D. P. C. 559; 1 H. & W. 203. S. P., Wilson v. Minchin, 1 D. P. C. 299; 2 C. & J. 87; 2 Tyr. 166; 1 L. J., Ex. 39.

So at any time after plea pleaded. Fletcher v. Law, 5 N. & M. 351; 3 A. & E. 551; 1 H. & W. 430.

—— Practice in Equity.]—A motion that defendant, residing at Oporto, should give security for costs before he returned there, refused, the answer having been filed. Whitehead v. Murat, Bunb. 183.

Security for costs not granted, after any step, as answering, or taking time to answer by defendant. Craig v. Bolton, 2 Bro. C. C. 609.

A defendant may apply for security for costs after answer, if he had no notice, at the time of answering, that the plaintiff was out of the jurisdiction; but if he takes any step in the cause after such notice, he waives the security for costs. Ib.

Process for want of an appearance or answer against a defendant is a bar to his application for security for costs. Groves v. Blake, 1 Hog. 359.

Taking time to answer precludes motion for security for costs against plaintiff abroad. Prior v. White, 2 Moll. 361.

Where plaintiff is abroad, and the defendant becomes apprised of it, he cannot obtain security for costs, if he afterwards takes any other step in the cause, such as applying for time to answer. Meliorucchy v. Meliorucchy, 2 Ves. 24. S. C., nom. Migliorucci v. Migliorucci, Dick. 147.

Security for costs by plaintiff, refused; an answer being by mistake filed after defendant knew plaintiff was abroad, but sworn long before. Dyott v. Dyott, 1 Madd. 187.

Plaintiff resident in England ordered to give security for costs after appearance by defendant, but before answer. Stackpoole v. O' Callaghan, 1 Ball & B. 566.

If a plaintiff be out of the jurisdiction, and the defendant require from him security for costs, the right to have the security is waived, if it appear that after the defendant had knowledge that the plaintiff was out of the jurisdiction he permitted any proceeding to be taken in the cause. Onge v. Truelock, Beat. 341.

Defendant, after an order for time, cannot have security for costs from plaintiff living out of jurisdiction. Anon., 10 Ves. 287.

If a petition is presented under an act of parliament by a person who is out of the jurisdiction, the respondent may require security to be given for costs, notwithstanding he has answered the affidavits in support of the petition. Scidler, Ex parte, 12 Sim. 106.

An application for security for costs must be made before any step is taken by the party applying. Tull, Ex parte, Davis, In re, 3 Deac. & C. 503; 1 Mont. & Ayr. 80; 3 L. J., Bk. 30.

A motion to stay the proceedings of a plaintiff who appeared by the bill to be resident abroad until he should give security for costs, was refused where the month's notice to answer had been served, and the time for answering had expired. Eyre v. Dwyer, Sau. & Sc. 653, n.

Plaintiff compelled to give security for costs, on affidavit of his residing in Ireland, the cause not having been at issue, and the venue laid in Middlesex, and proceedings stayed in the meantime. Moloney v. Smith, M'Clel. & Y. 213.

A motion to stay the proceedings of a plaintiff until he shall give security for costs should be made as early as possible, but circumstances may exist under which such motion would never be too late. Home v. Thompson, Sau. & Sc. 622.

A feme covert and infant, as co-plaintiffs, by the same next friend, filed a bill in vacation. The defendant filed a demurrer within the month allowed by the rules of court, and, at the time of filing it, served a notice on the plaintiff, that he would apply, on the sitting of the court, to have the proceedings stayed, unless security for costs were given, or the next friend charged:—Held, that the defendant had not, by demurring, taken such a step as, under the circumstances, was a waiver of his right to require security for costs. Drinan v. Mannix, 2 Con. & L. 87; 3 Dr. & War. 154; 5 Ir. Eq. R. 162, 190.

Where defendant, after having appeared to an injunction bill, suffers the plaintiff to make his order for the injunction absolute, he is too late to require the plaintiff to give security for costs. Foster v. Eyres, 7 Ir. Eq. R. 638.

Security for costs refused after the time for answering had expired, and a notice had been served to have bill taken as confessed. Nolan v. French, 10 Ir. Eq. R. 211.

Security for costs refused after the time for answering had expired. Freel v. Trant, 11 Ir. Eq. R. 278.

When a plaintiff becomes liable to give security for costs after answer, the filing of the replication will not preclude the defendant from obtaining the order. Long v. Tottenham, 1 Ir. Ch. R. 127.

Where an answer is not required by the notice of a cause petition, the respondent may move for security for costs at any time before he takes a step in the cause, and before the petition is set down in the Lord Chancellor's list for hearing. Long v. Long, 1 Ir. Ch. R. 618.

But if interrogatories be annexed to the petition, and the respondent is required to answer them by the notice, he must move for security for costs before he takes a step in the cause, and before the time for answering has expired. Ib.

A plaintiff described himself as living abroad. Having given notice of motion for the day on which the bill was filed, the defendant appeared and asked for time to answer the affidavits, and he afterwards filed affidavits in opposition:—Held, that he had not thereby waived his right to security for costs. Murrow v. Wilson, 12 Beav. 497.

A defendant does not, by simply defending an application against him, lose his right to security for costs. Ib.

A defendant to an amended bill by a plaintiff out of the jurisdiction at the time of filing both the original and amended bill, not having put in an answer, has not waived his right to obtain security for costs; but defendants to the original bill who have answered and appeared upon interlocutory proceedings, have forfeited that right. Cooper v. Purton, 8 W. R. 702.

Where it is not clear upon the face of a bill that the defendant is entitled to security for costs, he by applying for further time to answer does not waive any right that he may have to such security upon grounds dehors the bill, and not discovered by him when he applied for further time, although they might have been so discovered had he made inquiry. Swanzy v. Swanzy, 4 Kay & J. 237; 27 L. J., Ch. 419; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 1013; 6 W. R. 414.

After Amendment.]—Although a suit may have proceeded to a late stage without security for costs being applied for, yet where the statement of claim has been amended so as to introduce an entirely new case which requires additional and more expensive evidence, an application for security for costs will be entertained. Northampton Coal Co. v. Midland Waggon Co., 7 Ch. D. 500; 38 L. T. 82; 26 W. R. 485—C. A.

A plaintiff by his bill described himself as resident within the jurisdiction. The defendant had some notice of his being resident abroad. The defendant answered: and, in a subsequent amendment, a demurrer was allowed, with liberty to amend. The plaintiff having amended and described himself as resident abroad, the defendant obtained an order of course:—Held, under these circumstances, first, that such an order might be obtained as of course, though after answer; secondly, that it was not necessary, in the petition for the order, to state that an answer had been filed; and, thirdly, that though the defendant might have precluded himself from asking for security for costs in the suit as it stood before the last amendment, still he was not so precluded after the plaintiff, by amendment, stated himself to be resident abroad. Wyllie v. Ellice, 11 Beav. 99; 17 L. J., Ch. 378; 12 Jur. 711.

Matter of Discretion.]—The application that a plaintiff residing abroad do give security is a matter of discretion. Fisher v. Bunbury, Sau. & Sc. 625.

No Stay of Proceedings.]—The service of a notice of a motion for security for costs is no bar to the entry of process. The entry of a sequestration prevents the defendant from pleading or demurring, even if it was irregular. Lloyd v. Trimleston (Lord), 1 Hog. 482.

Service of notice of motion to give security for costs will not stop the plaintiff's proceeding to hear the cause. Ivie v. Gahan, 8 Ir. Eq. R. 371.

—— By whom given.]—A judge's order, directing that the plaintiff do forthwith give security for costs, is no stay of proceedings in the meantime. Hill v. Fletcher, infra.

Defendant in Contempt.]—A defendant in contempt, against whom an attachment is sealed, cannot apply for an order that the plaintiff give security. Trevanion v. Sargon, 8 L. J., Ch. 207; 3 Jur. 121.

Onus of Proof.]—It is not necessary for a defendant to shew the stage of the proceedings, in order to obtain a rule nisi for security for costs. Cole v. Beardy, 5 D. P. C. 161.

It is for the plaintiff to shew that the motion is not in time. Jones v. Jones, 2 Tyr. 216; 2 C. & J. 207; 1 D. P. C. 313; 1 L. J., Ex. 77.

Where Defendant also resides Abroad.]—Where a defendant moves that the plaintiff, residing abroad, should give security for costs, the court will not make the rule mutual, on the ground that the defendant is also resident abroad. Baxter v. Morgan, 2 Marsh. 80; 6 Taunt. 379; 16 R. R. 628.

No Defence on Merits.]—It is no ground for refusing a rule, for the plaintiff to find security for costs, that the defendant has no defence on the merits. Edinburgh and Leith Ry. v. Dawson, 1 W. W. & H. 561; 7 D. P. C. 573; 3 Jur. 55. S. P., Ciragno v. Hassan, 1 Marsh. 421; 6 Taunt. 20; 16 R. R. 559.

Semble, the merits of the case cannot be entered into on the application. Hurst v. Padwick, 17 L. J., Ch. 169; 12 Jur. 21.

Form of Order—Fixed Time.]—The court will not appoint any fixed time before which a plaintiff is to give security for costs. Broughton v. Jeremy, 1 H. & W. 525.

The plaintiff's attorney undertaking by the order to find security, does not bind the plaintiff or his attorney to give security unless he proceeds with the action. Hill v. Fletcher, 1 L. M. & P. 518; 5 Ex. 470.

A judge's directing the real plaintiff in an action brought by a nominal plaintiff, who is insolvent, to make himself responsible for the defendant's costs therein, is wrong, and ought to be amended; as the defendant is in such case entitled to security for his costs, to the satisfaction of the master. Maisi v. McNamara, 5 Ex. 267; 1 L. M. & P. 296. See Day v. Smith and Youde v. Youde, ante, col. 363.

Waiver of Right.]—A petitioner—an unsatisfied judgment creditor—residing out of the jurisdiction, asking for an order for the compulsory winding-up of an association, was, on the application of the respondents, ordered to give security for costs to the amount of 100*l.*:—Held, that filing affidavits after taking out a summons for security was not a waiver. Home Assurance Association, In re, L. R. 12 Eq. 112; 25 L. T. 199; 19 W. R. 947.

The entry of an appearance requiring a statement of claim is not a waiver of the defendant's right to security for costs from a plaintiff residing out of the jurisdiction. Tellett v. Lalor, 8 L. R., Ir. 8.

In an action to recover the balance alleged to be due on a bill of exchange between the original parties to the bill, and in which the indorsement of the writ credited the defendants with certain alleged payments, the defendants entered an appearance requiring a statement of claim, and afterwards applied for security for costs, on the ground that the plaintiff resided out of the jurisdiction. The affidavit of merits stated that the bill was an accommodation bill, for which no value was received, and that the defendants had a good defence on the merits:—Held, first, that the defendants had not waived their right to security for costs by appearing; secondly, that the affidavit of merits was sufficient. Charlesworth v. Clayton, 10 L. R., Ir. 357.

After a defendant has undertaken to accept short notice of trial, he cannot require security for costs from the plaintiff, a foreigner residing abroad. De Montellano (Duke) v. Garcias, 7 Moore, 361; 1 Bing. 67; 1 L. J. (o.s.) C. P. 9. S. P., Michael v. Pariski, 2 H. Bl. 593; 3 R. R. 512: Muller v. Gernon, Steel v. Lacy, 3 Taunt. 272, 273.

A defendant may require security after he has agreed to take short notice of trial, even though he has no defence on the merits. Edinburgh and Leith Ry. v. Dawson, 7 D. P. C. 573.

Secus, if he has agreed to take short notice of trial for a specific day. Ib.

Motion to stay proceedings until plaintiffs resident abroad should give security for costs, refused with costs, the defendant being aware of the non-residence, but delaying his application until a negotiation for an amicable settlement, opened by him, had terminated unsuccessfully; and several months had elapsed after the notice to press for his answer, and the further time given to him by plaintiff to file his answer had nearly expired:—Held, that the defendant had waived his objection, as, if he meant to rely on it, he should have come immediately, or at least when he was served with the notice to press. Watson v. Pim, 2 Ir. Eq. R. 26; Sau. & Sc. 642.

Liberty to renew Application.]—On an application by defendants in a suit by a company in liquidation, Malins, V.-C., ordered security sufficient to cover the costs of the defendants' answers, with liberty to renew their application for further security when their answers had been put in. On appeal:—Held, that the matter was one of discretion, and that apart from this the course adopted was convenient and proper. Western of Canada Oil, Land and Works Co. v. Walker, 45 L. J., Ch. 165; L. R. 10 Ch. 628; 23 W. R. 738.

Past as well as Future Costs.]—Security for costs where the plaintiff has become bankrupt or has filed a petition for liquidation, is not necessarily confined to future costs, but may when applied for promptly, be extended to costs already incurred in the suit. Brocklebank v. King's Lynn Steamship Co., 47 L. J., C. P. 321; 3 C. P. D. 365; 38 L. T. 489; 27 W. R. 94.

Under the Judicature Act, when plaintiff goes out of the jurisdiction, security for costs as well past as future may be ordered to such amount as the court may think fit, in accordance with the old common-law practice. Massey v. Allen, 48 L. J., Ch. 692; 12 Ch. D. 807; 41 L. T. 788; 28 W. R. 243.

The court will not compel a plaintiff to give security for costs already incurred. Oxenden v. Cropper, 4 D. P. C. 574.

During the pendency of a rule for a new trial obtained by the plaintiff, the court will not compel him to give security for the future costs in the cause. Ib.

Where a person not a party to the suit, and out of the jurisdiction, appears in chambers upon an adjourned summons, and is ordered to pay costs, if he subsequently appears by petition in a representative character, the court will not make him pay costs previously incurred before prosecuting his claim in such representative capacity; but, as not being a defendant and being out of the jurisdiction, will make him give security for costs. Partington v. Reynolds, 6 W. R. 307.

By Summons in Chambers.]—The application for an order to give security for costs should be made by summons in chambers. Vale v. Offert, 30 L. T. 457; 22 W. R. 629.

Semble, in ordinary cases an application for security for costs should be by summons in chambers, not by motion. Hamburger v. Poetting, 47 L. T. 249.

A motion that the plaintiff, resident out of the jurisdiction, may give security for costs, must be made upon notice, and is not of course. Ivie v. Keogh, 7 Ir. Eq. R. 90. S. P., Nugent v. Hill, 7 Ir. Eq. R. 90.

Applications as to security for costs may properly be made in chambers. Tynte v. Hodge, 2 John. & H. 692; 1 N. R. 48; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 1226; 7 L. T. 349; 11 W. R. 52.

Previous Demand, when Necessary.] — An application must in all cases be made to the plaintiff or his attorney before a motion for security for costs will be entertained. Adams v. Brown, 2 M. & Scott, 154; 9 Bing. 81; 1 D. P. C. 273; 1 L. J., C. P. 167. S. P., Bass v. Clive, 3 M. & S. 283.

Three days' notice to the plaintiff's attorney of an intention to move the court, that the plaintiff give security for costs, is not equivalent to a demand and refusal, and the court will not grant a rule upon such notice. Huntley v. Bulwer, 6 D. P. C. 633; 6 Scott, 247.

It is not necessary to make a demand previously to moving for security for costs, unless it is intended to be part of the rule that proceedings be stayed in the meantime. Fountain v. Steele, 5 D. P. C. 331. S. P., Greece (King) v. Wright, W. W. & D. 594; 1 Jur. 944.

The court will compel a plaintiff, resident out of the jurisdiction, to give security for costs, although no previous application has been made to the plaintiff's attorney, or notice of the motion given. But without such application or notice, the rule nisi will not stay proceedings. Jones v. Jones, 1 D. P. C. 313; 2 C. & J. 207; 2 Tyr. 216; 1 L. J., Ex. 77. S. P., Baille v. De Bernales, 1 B. & Ald. 331.

It is not necessary to make any application to the plaintiff's solicitor previous to the notice of a motion to stay the proceedings of a plaintiff until he shall give security for costs. Shaw v. Dempsey, Sau. & Sc. 628.

Sufficiency of Affidavit in Support.]—An affidavit for security for costs, stating that the plaintiff resides out of the jurisdiction of the court, "as this deponent is informed and believes" is insufficient; and such application, being discharged on account of a defective affidavit, cannot afterwards be renewed on an amended affidavit. Joynes v. Collinson, 2 D. & L. 449; 13 M. & W. 558; 14 L. J., Ex. 2; 8 Jur. 1010. S. P., Sandys v. Hohler, 6 D. P. C. 274.

An allegation in an affidavit to obtain security for costs, that the plaintiff is residing abroad, is primâ facie a sufficient statement that he is not abroad for a mere temporary purpose. Hanmer v. Mangles, 12 M. & W. 313; 1 D. & L. 395; 13 L. J., Ex. 84; 7 Jur. 1116.

An affidavit to compel a plaintiff to give security for costs is sufficient, if it can be collected from the context that the deponent is the defendant in the cause, although he is not so described in terms. Lontreuil v. Phillippe, 1 B. C. Rep. 87; 10 Jur. 757.

The court will compel a plaintiff to give security for costs, on an affidavit of the defendant's attorney, stating that he believes that the plaintiff resides out of the jurisdiction of the court, and that in a letter relating to the subject-matter of the action, and purporting to come from the plaintiff, he described himself as of a place without the jurisdiction. Cardwell v. Baynes, 2 C. L. R. 777; 2 W. R. 525.

An application for security for costs was grounded on an affidavit made by the defendant's solicitor, stating that he "believed" that plaintiff resided in London, but had a registered office in Dublin, and occasionally visited Dublin. The court held the affidavit insufficient to sustain the motion, which was accordingly refused. Gardiner v. Harris, 8 L. R., Ir. 352.

It is sufficient if an affidavit of the defendant in support of such a motion states positively, though generally, that he has a good defence on the merits. Duff v. Hore, Ir. R. 6 C. L. 509.

A motion to compel a plaintiff to give security for costs will not be granted where the defendant, in the affidavit on which it is grounded, admits his liability, but disputes the amount, and alleges his intention to pay money into court without specifying the sum. Kirk v. Craig, 15 W. R. 715.

An affidavit by the defendant to support a motion for security for costs need not specifically negative every circumstance whereby the action could be supported; but it is sufficient that it makes a primâ facie case, if the affidavits on the other side do not allege such circumstance to have occurred. Brennan v. France, 15 W. R. 997.

A motion to stay the proceedings of the plaintiffs until they should give security for costs was refused with costs, because the defendant's affidavit in support of the motion had misrepresented and suppressed some of the material facts. Murphy v. Archdall, Sau. & Sc. 630.

4. Amount of Security.

In determining the amount of security for costs to be given under Ord. LV. r. 2, the court, as a general rule, will have regard to the applicant's costs previously incurred as well as to future costs. Massey v. Allen, 48 L. J., Ch. 692; 12 Ch. D. 807; 41 L. T. 788; 28 W. R. 243.

The old rule of the Court of Chancery, limiting the amount of security, is altogether superseded by Ord. LV. r. 2. Ib.

The court will follow the old rule as to the amount to be paid on deposit as a security for costs, unless some special reason is shewn why the amount should be greater. Paxton v. Bell, 24 W. R. 1013.

In a suit between party and party, the court will not require a plaintiff out of the jurisdiction to find security for costs to a greater amount than 100*l.* (that being the sum prescribed by the consolidated orders), without going into the merits of the case, which it will refuse to do upon an interlocutory application. Barry v. Jenkins, 19 L. T. 276.

The security for costs directed by the Companies Act of 1862, s. 69, to be given by a limited company is not limited by the amount fixed by the court in the case of a plaintiff being out of the jurisdiction, but the amount is to be determined by an inquiry in chambers, according to the particular circumstances of the case. Imperial Bank of China, India, and Japan v. Bank of Hindustan, China, and Japan, 35 L. J., Ch. 678; L. R. 1 Ch. 437; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 493; 14 L. T. 611; 14 W. R. 811.

The ancient sum of 40*l.*, as the amount in which security must be given to answer costs on the plaintiff's residing abroad, is not increased under adverse motion on any special circumstances. If, however, such a plaintiff asks a favour of the court, further terms may be imposed on him. Gage v. Stafford, 2 Ves. 557.

The court will not compel a plaintiff to give security for costs to an amount equal to what the defendant's costs may amount to, where the expenses may be very great owing to the witnesses residing at a distance, and out of the jurisdiction of the court. Kent v. Poole, 1 W. W. & H. 560; 7 D. P. C. 572.

In a quo warranto information the court will compel the relators to give security for costs beyond 20*l.*, if they do not appear to be the bonâ fide relators. Reg. v. Dudley, 7 D. P. C. 700.

It is the duty of the master to settle the security to be given for costs by plaintiff, a foreign merchant. Odwyer v. Salvador, Dick. 372.

The court will not interfere with the master's discretion as to the amount of security for costs to be given by a foreign plaintiff, unless a case of manifest and gross error is made out. French v. Maule, 4 Scott (N.R.) 719; 4 Man. & G. 107.

Several Defendants.]—Where the plaintiff is resident out of the jurisdiction, each defendant in the cause is entitled to a separate security for costs, to be immediately available whenever costs in the cause, or of interlocutory proceedings, are awarded to him against the plaintiff. Even where the order is that the plaintiff give one security for the costs of all the defendants, and such security is given accordingly, it is to be considered as representing a fund, to be applicable, from time to time, in payment of the costs of each of the defendants, according to the priority of the orders by which they were awarded. Eyre v. Mahony, 6 Ir. Eq. R. 115.

One of several defendants having obtained an order for security, based upon an estimate of the amount of his own costs, the court refused to extend the bond (on the request of the plaintiff) to the costs of all the defendants. Massey v. Allen, supra.

Where plaintiff is bound to give security, each defendant suing separately is entitled to a separate bond of 40*l.*, though only one is payable. Lowndes v. Robertson, 4 Madd. 465.

5. Who may be Sureties.

When a plaintiff is required to give security for costs, it is irregular for his solicitor to be his surety. Panton v. Labertouche, 1 Ph. 265; 12 L. J., Ch. 436; 7 Jur. 589. S. P., Norman, In re, 11 Beav. 401.

Where the plaintiff is out of the jurisdiction, a defendant is at liberty to require the security of solvent persons to be given for costs. Cliffe v. Wilkinson, 4 Sim. 122.

Where a plaintiff resides abroad, and an order is made to stay his proceedings until he gives security for costs, the security of a person also residing abroad, who has large real estates within the jurisdiction, will not be accepted by the court. Knight v. De Blaquiere, Sau. & Sc. 648; 1 Ir. Eq. R. 375. And see Sau. & Sc. 655, n.

But such a surety, along with a co-surety to answer for interlocutory costs might be accepted. Ib.

Circumstances exist under which the usual number of sureties might be dispensed with. Ib.

An officer in her majesty's army named as obligor in a bond of security for costs is not an insufficient surety from his regiment being at the time quartered in Scotland. Miller v. Hales, 43 L. J., Ch. 446; L. R. 17 Eq. 430; 30 L. T. 10; 22 W. R. 625.

A. B. was ordered to be substituted for C. D. (a defendant), as the next friend of the plaintiff, and C. D. was ordered to give security for costs up to that time:—Held, that the proper security was the bond of C. D. and of a responsible surety. Payne v. Little, 16 Beav. 563; 22 L. J., Ch. 1037; 1 W. R. 238.

The bond of the British Guarantee Association, incorporated by act of parliament, held a sufficient security under an order to give security for costs. Plestow v. Johnson, 1 Sm. & G. (App.) xx.; 2 Eq. R. 38; 2 W. R. 3.

6. Bankruptcy of Surety.

Fresh Security.]—The surety for costs of a plaintiff, resident abroad, became bankrupt a few days after the decree dismissing the bill with costs, and before the costs had been taxed under it. The plaintiff having afterwards presented a petition of re-hearing, the court ordered the proceedings upon it to be stayed until the plaintiff should have found a new surety. Lautour v. Holcombe, 1 Ph. 262; 12 L. J., Ch. 167; 7 Jur. 97.

New security ordered to be given for costs, the surety having become bankrupt. Veitch v. Irving, 11 Sim. 122; 9 L. J., Ch. 327.

Where security has been given, the defendant will not be entitled to fresh security if the sureties become insolvent. Jones v. Jacobs, 2 D. P. C. 442.

7. Nature of Security.

Deposit of Money.]—Plaintiffs ordered to give security for the costs allowed to deposit money, instead of giving such security, and a reference made to the master to approve of a proper sum. Fellowes v. Deere, 3 Beav. 353. S. P., Cliffe v. Wilkinson, 4 Sim. 122.

The plaintiff, in proceedings in a bill of dower, who resided out of the jurisdiction, was allowed the option of giving security or lodging the amount in court. Maguire v. Maguire, Sau. & Sc. 653, n.

The Court of Exchequer refused to allow a deposit of 40*l.*, the amount of the security, to stand in the stead of the security. Ker v. Munster (Lord), Bunb. 35.

Where a petitioner is out of the jurisdiction, he may deposit a sum in lieu of giving security for costs, but the undertaking of his solicitor is insufficient. Norman, In re, 11 Beav. 401.

Sum admitted by Defendant.]—Where a defendant admitted a large sum to be due, and the plaintiff keeping two shops, one in London and the other in Paris, went from London to Paris as necessity required, the court would not compel the plaintiff to give security for costs in the action against the defendant for goods sold, but ordered that the defendant should pay the money into court which he acknowledged to be due; and that a sufficient portion of it should be appropriated to that security. Le Normand v. Capua (Prince), 6 Jur. 64.

A defendant having pleaded payment of money into court in satisfaction of part of the demand, the court, instead of granting a rule for security for costs, ordered that a reasonable portion of the sum paid in should remain in the hands of the master to meet the defendant's costs, if necessary. Nylander v. Barnes, 6 H. & N. 509; 30 L. J., Ex. 151; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 194; 3 L. T. 819; 9 W. R. 339.

Money of Plaintiff in Defendant's Hands.]—An order for a security for costs will not be made if the defendant has money of the plaintiff's in his hands. Duffy v. Joyce, 25 L. R., Ir. 42.

Plaintiff's Claim not Sufficient.]—The demand which the plaintiff seeks to establish in the action is not such a security as is required by the court. O'Connor v. Bernard, 1 Jones, 175.

Set-off against Judgment.]—A plaintiff being resident out of the jurisdiction of the court, and having already an unsatisfied judgment in this country against the defendant for a larger sum, the court discharged a rule for security for costs, upon the plaintiff's undertaking that the costs in the event of the defendant obtaining a verdict should be set off against the former judgment. Bristowe v. Needham, 5 Scott (N.R.) 799; 2 D. (N.S.) 651; 4 Man. & G. 906.

8. Increase of Amount.

Time for.]—Where in an action by a foreigner security has been given for costs in an amount afterwards much exceeded by the defendant's costs actually incurred on the trial, it is too late for him to move for further security for costs after a nonsuit and pending a rule for a new trial. Alivon v. Furnival, 2 C. & M. 555; 4 Tyr. 370; 3 L. J., Ex. 140.

In what Cases.]—A rule of court having been made, directing that legal proceedings might be taken in the name of a corporation against certain commissioners by certain ratepayers interested in the matter, on their giving security to indemnify the corporation against costs, two of the ratepayers entered into a bond in the usual amount of 200*l.*; a mandamus having accordingly issued against the commissioners, and the case having been taken by writ of error to the house of lords, and the bond of indemnity being therefore of insufficient amount to cover the expenses incurred, the court made absolute a rule to increase the amount to such sum as the coroner and attorney of the court should think reasonable. Reg. v. Southampton Harbour Commissioners, 6 B. & S. 407; 34 L. J., Q. B. 164; 20 L. T. 585.

The usual security for costs by a plaintiff residing out of the jurisdiction, not increased upon special circumstances, as distress; unless the plaintiff asking some favour, terms may be imposed upon him. Ogilvie v. Herne, 11 Ves. 598.

In an action for libel on a Turkish minister, the defendant having obtained an order for security for costs to the extent of 400*l.* the court refused to increase the sum upon a suggestion that the expenses of witnesses necessary to support the defendant's justification would greatly exceed that sum. Pisani v. Lawson, 5 Scott, 118; 2 Jur. 48.

Where, upon an interpleader, a party has been let in to defend on the condition of his paying the money into court, and giving security for costs to an amount to be fixed by the master, on whose decision security has been given to a certain amount, quære, if the court can order that security to be increased. At all events, the court will not do so merely because it turns out that, by reason of commissions, or from other causes which were not unforeseen when the master settled the amount of security, the costs are likely to exceed the amount for which the security was given. Foster v. Colby, 27 L. J., Ex. 55.

The amount of security for costs will not be increased merely because it is apprehended that the expenses attending a commission to examine witnesses will be greater than were anticipated. Haseltine v. Wathins, 28 L. J., Ex. 40.

9. Discharge of Order.

Plaintiff returning to England.]—The court rescinded a judge's order, staying proceedings in an action, on the ground of the plaintiff being abroad, until security for costs was given (no such security having been given), it being sworn that he had returned to England, and had no intention of going abroad again. Place v. Campbell, 6 D. & L. 113.

When an order has been properly made for a plaintiff to give security for costs, on the ground that he is a foreigner living abroad, he is not entitled to have the order rescinded, when he afterwards comes to reside within the jurisdiction of the court. Westenberg v. Mortimore, 44 L. J., C. P. 289; L. R. 10 C. P. 438; 32 L. T. 402.

A plaintiff who, being abroad, has, after service of a writ of summons on the defendant, been ordered to give security for costs, with a stay of proceedings in the meantime, and does not give security, but, on his return to England, has the order discharged, is at liberty to declare, although more than a year has elapsed since the service of the writ of summons. Ross v. Green, 10 Ex. 891; 3 C. L. R. 510; 24 L. J., Ex. 193; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 285; 3 W. R. 239.

When security for costs has been given by a plaintiff residing out of the jurisdiction, the court will not order the bond to be delivered up to be cancelled before the end of the suit, on the alleged ground that he has since returned to England with the intention of permanently remaining. Badnall v. Hayley, 4 M. & W. 535; 7 D. P. C. 19; 1 H. & H. 359; 8 L. J., Ex. 46; 2 Jur. 992.

Where a plaintiff has been compelled to give security for costs on the ground that he was out of the jurisdiction; on an application to discharge the rule for that security, on the ground of the plaintiff's return to this country, with an intention permanently to reside here, it is insufficient for the plaintiff's attorney's clerk to make an affidavit to that effect. Thrasher v. Bush, 2 D. (N.S.) 51; 7 Jur. 217.

Plaintiffs resident abroad, being ordered to give security for costs, afterwards came to reside within the jurisdiction. The order was thereupon discharged, the plaintiffs paying the costs of the application. Mathews v. Chichester, 30 Beav. 135.

A plaintiff having gone abroad on matters connected with the writ, was ordered to give security for costs, but having returned to this country the order was discharged. O'Connor v. Sierra Nevada Co., 24 Beav. 435.

When the plaintiff comes to reside permanently within the jurisdiction, and the order is rescinded, the recognizance entered into as security for the costs of the suit will be vacated. Sterne v. Goodisson, 7 Ir. Eq. R. 89.

10. Non-compliance with Order.

Judgment unless Security found in Fixed Time.]—Money had been paid into court to await the result of an interpleader issue; the execution creditor who was defendant in the issue lived abroad, and was ordered to provide security for costs, and for that purpose proceedings were stayed. About five months afterwards, as no security had been given, the court granted the claimant leave to sign judgment for the money in court, unless the execution creditor found security in a fortnight. Melin v. Dumont, 20 L. T. 366; 17 W. R. 673.

Action Dismissed.]—The plaintiff was ordered to give security for costs, the action being stayed in the meantime; but he failed to do so. The defendant applied to dismiss the action for want of prosecution, under Ord. XXIX. r. 1:—Held, following the equity in preference to the common-law practice, that the judge had a discretion to make an order dismissing the action, though the defendant had not abandoned the order for security for costs. La Grange v. McAndrew, 48 L. J., Q. B. 315; 4 Q. B. D. 210; 39 L. T. 500; 27 W. R. 413.

A plaintiff who had gone to California was ordered to give security for costs. Two months afterwards the defendant moved, that the plaintiff might give security within a limited time, so that the bill might be dismissed:—Held, that the motion was premature. O'Connor v. Sierra Nevada Co., 23 Beav. 608.

A plaintiff failed to pay certain costs at a time fixed, and, being in contempt, the defendant, in June, 1860, obtained an order that all further proceedings should be stayed until he had cleared the contempt or given security for costs. He taking no further steps to prosecute his suit, the defendant, in January, 1861, moved to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution; but the motion being wholly irregular, was refused. Futvoye v. Kennard, 2 Giff. 533; 30 L. J., Ch. 262; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 958; 3 L. T. 687; 9 W. R. 297.

A motion to dismiss allowed, notwithstanding the default of the plaintiff under an order staying proceedings until security for costs was given by him. Kennedy v. Edwards, 11 Jur. (N.S.) 153; 13 L. T. 498.

—— If Security not found in Fixed Time.]—Plaintiff, who, under circumstances, had been ordered to give security for costs by reason of his insolvency, but who had not complied with the order, was ordered to give security within ten days, or his bill to be dismissed. Tredwell v. Byrch, 1 Y. & Coll. 480.

A plaintiff resident abroad, who had been ordered to give security for costs, but had not complied; ordered to give security, and, on default, his bill to be dismissed. Camac v. Grant, 1 Sim. 348.

A plaintiff resident abroad, having made default in giving security for costs, the court ordered that he should give security within four days, or that an injunction which he had obtained ex parte should be dissolved; but it refused to order the bill to be dismissed. Fort v. Bank of England, 10 Sim. 616.

Where an order had been made upon a plaintiff resident abroad to stay his proceedings until he should give security for costs, and he had suffered a long time to elapse without giving security, a further order was made that he should give security before a certain day, or that his bill should stand dismissed with costs. Powell v. Smith, Sau. & Sc. 654, n.

Plaintiff resident abroad ordered to give security pursuant to former order, on or before the first day of next term, or in default that his bill should be dismissed with costs. Knight v. Wilson, 2 Ir. Eq. R. 158.

Where an order has been made upon a plaintiff resident abroad, to stay his proceedings until he should give security for costs, and he had suffered a long time to elapse without giving security, a further order was made that he should give security before a certain day, or that his bill should stand dismissed. Hardwicke v. Warren, Sau. & Sc. 645 ; 2 Ir. Eq. R. 156. S. P., Knight v. De Blaquiere, Sau. & Sc. 649 ; 1 Ir. Eq. R. 375.

A plaintiff, having been ordered to give security for costs, gave an insufficient security ; he was ordered to give other security within a month, and having made default, he was ordered to give security within a limited period ; and, in default, that the bill should stand dismissed with costs. Giddings v. Giddings, 10 Beav. 29 ; 16 L. J., Ch. 183 ; 11 Jur. 549.

A side-bar rule to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution cannot be entered after an order has been obtained by the defendant that the proceedings should be stayed until the plaintiff gave security for costs ; but the defendant might have made a special application to the court, founded on that order, and the plaintiff's non-compliance with it. Martin v. Farrell, 2 Hog. 151.

A plaintiff having been ordered te give security for costs, and omitting to do so, ordered to perfect his security within a fortnight, or in default that his bill should be dismissed with costs. Cooper v. Purton, 1 N. R. 468.

A bill was filed on January 15th, 1869, and on the 21st an order was made that the plaintiffs, being out of the jurisdiction, should give security for costs. None having been given, the plaintiffs were ordered to give security within fourteen days, or the bill stand dismissed without any further order. Charras v. Pickering, 39 L. J., Ch. 190.

When a plaintiff resided in Australia, and a defendant obtained the usual order that he should give security for costs, the court allowed four months for the plaintiff to find such security, and ordered the dismissal of the bill with costs, unless the security should be perfected within that time. Grant v. Ingram, 20 L. T. 70.

11. Fund in Court.

Payment out to Successful Party—Judgment Reversed — Order on Solicitor to Repay.]—An action being dismissed at the hearing with costs, a sum of money which had been paid into court as security for the defendants' costs was ordered to be paid out to the solicitors for the defendants in part payment of the defendants' costs. The judgment was reversed by the Court of Appeal, and the costs ordered to be paid by the defendants. The plaintiffs asked for an order against the defendants' solicitors for repayment by them : —Held, that the court had no jurisdiction on the appeal to order the defendants' solicitors to refund the money, the solicitors not being present ; nor, semble, could such an order have been made if they had been served with notice of the application. Lydney and Wigpool Iron Ore Co. v. Bird, 33 Ch. D. 85 ; 55 L. T. 558 ; 34 W. R. 749—C. A.

Staying Payment Out.]—A defendant appealed from a decree ordering him to pay the plaintiff's costs. The appeal was dismissed without costs, and the deposit ordered to be returned. The plaintiff who had issued a fi. fa. for the costs of suit, applied for an order staying the repayment of the deposit to the defendant, but the application was refused. Martyr v. Lawrence, 2 De G. J. & S. 317.

Right to.]—A sum of money was paid into court to abide the result of an action at law. The court declined to regard the money so paid in as a security for the costs incurred in the action. Flockton v. Peake, 4 N. R. 135 ; 10 L. T. 369 ; 12 W. R. 789.

Right of Intervener to—Order at Instance of Defendant.] — A plaintiff resident out of the jurisdiction lodged a sum of money in court, as security for costs, at the instance of the defendant. After the action had been set down for trial a third party obtained leave to intervene. A verdict was had for the plaintiff, to which the defendant submitted ; but the intervenient obtained a new trial, in which he succeeded on fresh evidence, and was awarded his costs, as against the plaintiff, incurred subsequently to the order for a new trial :—Held, that the intervenient was not entitled to be paid the money lodged in court. Ryan v. Ring, 25 L. R., Ir. 186.

12. Costs of Application.

No previous Application to Plaintiff.]—The court, in granting a rule for security for costs, will not oblige a defendant to pay the costs of the motion, though no application was made to the plaintiff for security before moving, where the merits have been gone into. Holmes v. Pemberton, 5 Jur. (N.S.) 727 ; 7 W. R. 160.

If the plaintiff shews cause, the court in granting such rule will not oblige the defendant to pay costs of the motion, though no application for security has been made to the plaintiff before moving, such previous application being only necessary where a stay of proceedings is part of the rule. Greece (King) v. Wright, W. W. & D. 594 ; 1 Jur. 944.

Where no application has been made to the plaintiff for security before moving, the court in granting the rule will oblige the defendant to pay the costs of the motion. Fletcher v. Law, 5 N. & M. 351 ; 3 A. & E. 551 ; 1 H. & W. 430.

Neglecting to Inquire.]—When the plaintiff cannot be found at the place of residence named in the bill, it is the duty of the defendant to seek information from the plaintiff's solicitor ; and neglect of such inquiry will be visited with costs of the motion for security. Knight v. Cory, 1 N. R. 229 ; 32 L. J., Ch. 127 ; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 481 ; 7 L. T. 618 ; 11 W. R. 254.

Costs of Inquiries.]—An order having been made that the plaintiff do give security for costs, the defendant sent a person into the country to inquire into the ability of the person proposed as security, and to search for judgments against him. Although this course was not strictly conformable to practice, the costs were not disallowed. Bainbrigge v. Moss, 3 Kay & J. 62 ; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 107.

e. TRANSFER OF ACTIONS.

1. Application, when granted.

Queen's Bench to Admiralty Division.]—A collision having occurred between two ships, by which, besides damage to cargo, personal injuries were occasioned to a fireman on board one ship, an action in the Admiralty Division by the owners of that ship resulted in the other ship being adjudged solely to blame. The owners of the latter having thereupon instituted a limitation action also in the Admiralty Division, the fireman, the present plaintiff, issued a writ in the Queen's Bench Division, claiming 1,000*l.* damages for personal injuries from the owners of the delinquent ship. By the statement of claim in the limitation action, it was alleged that the fireman's was the only claim arising out of the collision in respect of personal injuries, and that it was for 500*l.* The defendants, of whom the fireman was nominally one, replied that his claim was for 1,000*l.* Judgment was given in the limitation action on this basis. Under these circumstances the fireman's action was transferred from the Queen's Bench Division to the Admiralty Division upon application made by the defendants under Ord. LI. r. 2. Hawkins v. Morgan, 49 L. J., Q. B. 618.

Although an action in which the sole question is a question of salvage may under Ord. XLIX. r. 3, be properly transferred to the Admiralty Division, such a transfer should not be ordered where there are other questions in the action capable of being tried by a jury. Ocean Steamship Co. v. Anderson, 33 W. R. 536—C. A.

Admiralty to Queen's Bench Division.]—When an action is commenced in the Admiralty Division in a matter over which that division has not jurisdiction, the defendant can insist as of right on its transfer to another division. The Seaham, 48 L. J., P. 29; 40 L. T. 38.

Queen's Bench to Chancery Division.]—The common law divisions have jurisdiction to entertain an action to establish a donatio mortis causâ, even where the legal right has not passed to the donee: but in such cases the action is more properly instituted in the Chancery Division. Cassidy v. Belfast Banking Co., 22 L. R., Ir. 68.

To an action in the Exchequer Division to recover possession of land, the defendant set up a counter-claim for specific performance of a contract for a lease. Upon a summons taken out in that division by the defendant, and against the plaintiff's will, a judge of the Common Pleas Division at chambers made an order to transfer the action to the Chancery Division, the Lord Chancellor's consent having been obtained:—Held, that, since it appeared on the facts that there was a primâ facie case for specific performance, which, under the practice before the Judicature Acts, would have entitled the defendant on a bill for specific performance to an injunction to restrain the action, and since the question of specific performance could be more conveniently disposed of in the Chancery Division, the action ought to be transferred. Hillman v. Mayhew, 45 L. J., Ex. 334; 1 Ex. D. 132; 34 L. T. 256; 24 W. R. 435.

W. contracted to purchase a property, and paid a deposit. He afterwards gave notice to rescind the contract on the ground of the vendor's delay in making out a title, after which he went into liquidation. His trustee commenced an action in the Exchequer Division against the vendor for a return of the deposit, and for damages. The vendor delivered a counter-claim for specific performance, insisting that there had not been any such delay as to entitle the purchaser to rescind:—Held, that, as there was a question to be tried which was not a question for a jury, and if the vendor succeeded upon it he would be entitled to relief for giving which the Chancery Division alone had the requisite machinery, the action ought to be transferred to that division. Holloway v. York, 2 Ex. D. 333; 25 W. R. 403—C. A.

An action will not be transferred from a common law division to the Chancery Division merely because there is an equitable counter-claim, as, for instance, one for specific performance of an agreement, unless there is some practical difficulty in determining the questions raised in the common law division. Bridges v. Dyas, 12 L. R., Ir. 377.

In an action by a purchaser of land against the vendor for return of the deposit, the defendant counter-claimed for specific performance:—Held, that the action ought to be transferred to the Chancery Division. London Land Co. v. Harris, 53 L. J., Q. B. 536; 13 Q. B. D. 540; 51 L. T. 296; 33 W. R. 14.

The personal representative of a deceased mortgagee commenced an action in the Queen's Bench Division against the mortgagor for payment of the balance of moneys lent by the mortgagee and interest. Twelve days afterwards the defendant commenced an action in the Chancery Division against the mortgagee's personal representative and heir-at-law claiming an account and payment of the balance owing by the deceased and redemption:—Held, that the first action ought not to be transferred to the Chancery Division, as the accounts could be more conveniently taken before an official referee than before the chief clerk. Newbould v. Steade, 49 L. T. 649—C. A.

Where the plaintiff brought an action in the Queen's Bench Division, and his claim was to have an account taken of partnership dealings extending over a period of four years, and to have the affairs of the partnership wound up, and also to have an account taken of moneys had and received by the defendant otherwise than under the partnership deed:—Held, that, notwithstanding Ord. XV. r. 1a, this action should be transferred to the Chancery Division for the purpose of having the partnership and other accounts taken, as the Queen's Bench Division had not suitable machinery for the taking of such accounts. Leslie v. Clifford, 50 L. T. 690.

If in an action in a common law division, where a cross action has also been brought in the Chancery Division, it appears that the whole dispute between the parties can be more conveniently disposed of in the Chancery Division, an order transferring the cause to that division will be made, even though there is a question in the cause which might be properly tried by a jury in the common law division. Holmes v. Harvey, 35 L. T. 600; 25 W. R. 80.

Where a company was being wound up in the Chancery Division, and the business was being carried on by the liquidator, against whom an action was brought in the Exchequer Division for injuries sustained through the negligence of the company, a motion to transfer the action to the Chancery Division was refused, the plaintiff undertaking to amend his writ by claiming against the liquidator personally, the plaintiff's rights against the company in the winding-up not being prejudiced. Thames Steam Ferry Co., In re, 40 L. T. 422; 27 W. R. 493.

The vendor of a piece of land brought an action in the Queen's Bench Division against the purchaser for trespassing on an adjoining piece of land. The defendant alleged in his defence that the plaintiff had agreed to grant him a right of way over the last-mentioned piece of land, and delivered a counter-claim claiming rectification of the deed of conveyance by inserting a grant of such right of way. He also claimed specific performance of an alleged agreement to sell him another adjoining piece of land. The defendant then moved to transfer the action to the Chancery Division:—Held, that the relief asked by the counter-claim was not a sufficient ground for transferring the action to the Chancery Division. Storey v. Waddle, 4 Q. B. D. 289; 27 W. R. 833—C. A.

When an action has been already commenced in one of the common law divisions, a defendant cannot, by instituting a cross action in the Chancery Division respecting the same subject-matter, and including other subject-matter specially assigned to the Chancery Division by s. 34 of the Judicature Act, 1873, entitle himself to ask for a transfer to the Chancery Division of the first action in cases where the two matters are not so connected as to render it necessary that they should be tried together, and the common law division is able to do complete justice on the matter originally brought before it. Standard Discount Co. v. Barton, 37 L. T. 581.

Chancery to Queen's Bench Division.]—Principles on which a cause should be transferred from the Chancery Division to the Queen's Bench Division, for the purpose of being heard before the Commercial Court, considered. Baerlein v. Chartered Mercantile Bank, 65 L. J., Ch. 54; [1895] 2 Ch. 488; 12 R. 581; 72 L. T. 850; 43 W. R. 692—C. A.

Where an action in the Chancery Division is to be tried by a jury, it is the more convenient practice to transfer the action altogether to the Queen's Bench Division. Martin, In re, Hunt v. Chambers, 51 L. J., Ch. 683; 20 Ch. D. 365; 46 L. T. 399; 30 W. R. 527—C. A.

The court refused to stay or transfer from the Chancery Division an action for account, though there was pending in a more advanced stage a common law action in which the same issues were raised by the plaintiff in the Chancery Division by counter-claim. Ladd v. Puleston, 52 L. J., Ch. 816; 31 W. R. 539.

On appeal by consent it was ordered that further proceedings in the action in the Chancery Division should be stayed until the trial of the action in the Queen's Bench Division. S. C., 52 L. J., Ch. 976; 48 L. T. 949; 31 W. R. 802—C. A.

An action in the Chancery Division will not be transferred on any ground of convenience merely because it is an action for damages. Cannot v. Morgan, 45 L. J., Ch. 50; 1 Ch. D. 1; 33 L. T. 402; 24 W. R. 91—C. A.

The fact that a previous action, of which the costs are unpaid, has been commenced and discontinued in one of the common law courts is no ground for a transfer to the corresponding division. Ib.

The court will order a transfer of a petition for revocation of a patent to the Queen's Bench Division to be heard by the judge at the same time as an action for damages before a judge and jury in respect of the same subject-matter. Edge's Patent, In re, 63 L. T. 370; 38 W. R. 698.

An action for a money demand will not be transferred from the Chancery Division, unless under special circumstances. Black v. Diver, 1 L. R., Ir. 107.

An action to restrain the use of a trade-name involved, besides the usual trade-mark issues, the special question whether the name had not become the name of a specific machine. Upon motion by defendant for transfer of the action to a common law division and entry for trial, and for the settlement of issues to be tried by judge and jury:—Held, under Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XXXVI. rr. 3, 26, that the action was unfit for a jury, and motion refused. Singer Manufacturing Co. v. Loog, 48 L. J., Ch. 647; 11 Ch. D. 656; 40 L. T. 647; 27 W. R. 903.

—— Administration Bond.]—Where, in an administration action in the Chancery Division, default was made by a personal representative in matters connected with the estate of the deceased, and another action was subsequently brought in the same court against the personal representative and his sureties upon the bond given by them for the due administration of the estate, and the sureties denied that the acts of default were covered by the bond, the court refused to transfer the second action to a common law division. Bleakley v. Odlum, 23 L. R., Ir. 165.

Actions relating to same Transactions in different Divisions.]—Three actions arising out of the same series of transactions were pending in different branches of the court, and the second had been ordered to be transferred to the division in which the third was pending. The first action raised an issue distinct from the issues in the other two. On an application that the three actions might be consolidated, they were ordered to come on for trial together, the evidence in each to be used in all, and all further proceedings in the second action were stayed except such as were necessary to bring it on with the other two. Smith v. Whichcord, 24 W. R. 900.

Administration Proceedings pending.]—When an administration action is pending in the Chancery Division, the judge, in whose court it is pending, can order the transfer to himself of actions brought in other divisions against the executor, if they be brought against him qua executor, but not otherwise. Chapman v. Mason, 40 L. T. 678.

On a summons by an executor under Ord. LI. r. 2a, for the transfer from the Exchequer to the Chancery Division of an action by a creditor of the estate against the executor personally, which alleged that he had committed a devastavit, but which had been commenced after an order had been made for the administration of the testatrix's estate, and for a stay of proceedings in such action after it had been transferred:—Held, that the executor was entitled to a transfer of the action, but the court refused to stay the proceedings on the ground that an executor cannot escape liability by reason of an administration order having been made. Timms, In re, 47 L. J., Ch. 831 ; 38 L. T. 679 ; 26 W. R. 692.

Where a creditor had obtained in an action in the Exchequer Division an order nisi to sign judgment against the executrix of his debtor, and before judgment had been signed another creditor obtained in the Chancery Division a decree for the administration of the deceased debtor's estate, he was held to have no priority ; and the action in the Exchequer Division was transferred to the Chancery Division and proceedings therein stayed upon motion made for that purpose. Stubbs, In re, Hanson v. Stubbs, 47 L. J., Ch. 671 ; 8 Ch. D. 154 ; 26 W. R. 736.

An order for the transfer to the judge before whom an administration action is pending of actions against the executors should not be made by the order for administration. Poole, In re, Poole v. Poole, 55 L. T. 56.

An action may be transferred from the common law division under Ord. L. r. 4, after an order for administration accounts has been made. Henderson v. Maxwell, 17 L. R., Ir. 225.

Transfer from one Judge of Chancery Division to another.]—Ord. LI. r. 2, has reference only to the transfer of an action from one division to another, and does not authorise a transfer from a judge of one division to another judge of the same division. Chapman v. Real Property Trust, 7 Ch. D. 732 ; 26 W. R. 587.

An action was brought and a decree made in the Chancery Division for administration of the personal estate of A., and for an inquiry whether his moiety of certain real estate had become assets of his partnership business carried on with B. B., the surviving partner, brought an action for winding up the partnership in another branch of the Chancery Division :—Held, that B.'s action ought to be transferred to the judge before whom the action for administration was pending. Davis v. Davis, 48 L. J., Ch. 40.

When a bill has been filed in one branch of the court, and a second bill relating to the same estate has been filed in another branch, the second suit, even when a decree in it has been obtained, will be transferred to the branch of the court in which the first bill was filed, and the plaintiff in the second suit will pay the costs of the application for transfer. Lucas v. Siggers, 41 L. J., Ch. 364 ; L. R. 7 Ch. 517 ; 26 L. T. 651 ; 20 W. R. 458, 478.

As a general rule, a suit instituted in one branch of the court when a suit as to the same matter is pending in another branch will be transferred to the latter, and the plaintiff in the second suit will have to pay the costs of the transfer. But the plaintiff in the first suit ought, before giving notice of motion for transfer, to ask the plaintiff in the second suit for his consent to the application, and if the plaintiff in the first suit neglects to do so, he may have to pay the costs of the application. Lyall v. Weldhen, L. R. 9 Ch. 287 ; 30 L. T. 146 ; 22 W. R. 633.

The trustees of a marriage settlement filed a bill to have the trusts carried into execution, and marked the cause for Malins, V.-C. A few weeks afterwards the husband and wife filed a bill to have the settlement set aside, or rectified in a way which would give the wife entire control over the fund. This cause was marked for the Master of the Rolls. The trustees applied to have the second cause transferred to the court of Malins, V.-C.:—Held, that the second bill ought to have been filed in the same court as the first, and that the plaintiffs in the second cause must pay the costs of the application to have it transferred to the vice-chancellor, and that regard could not be had to the circumstance that the arrear of causes before the vice-chancellor was very heavy. Sayers v. Corrie, 43 L. J., Ch. 337; L. R. 9 Ch. 52 ; 29 L. T. 602 ; 22 W. R. 101.

When a case involving voluminous accounts was attached to the court of a judge who had formerly been counsel in the case, and his chief clerk had after much consideration decided the principle upon which the accounts were to be taken, the court refused to order a transfer of the cause to another branch of the court till it became necessary to make some application to the judge in person. Jackson v. Ward, 29 L. T. 861—L. JJ.

When a person, knowing that a suit has been instituted in one branch of the court, files a bill in another branch of the court in respect of the same subject-matter, the second cause will be ordered to be transferred to the court to which the first cause is attached, and the plaintiff in the second cause will, as a general rule, be ordered to pay the costs of the application for such transfer. Orrell v. Busch, L. R. 5 Ch. 467 ; 22 L. T. 461 ; 18 W. R. 588.

After a decree has been made in one branch of the court in which no further directions were reserved, but there was liberty to apply, the cause may in a proper case be transferred to another branch of the court which has before it another cause relating to the same matter. Bryson v. Warwick and Napton Canal Co., 18 Jur. 893.

The court will order a transfer of a suit from one branch of the court to another, if there is a probability of convenience from so doing. Curlewis v. Whidborne, 10 W. R. 261.

When two suits relating to the administration of the same estate are instituted in different branches of the court, and in one of these suits a decree has been obtained, the circumstances may be such as to render it proper that that suit should be transferred to the branch of the court where a decree has not been made. Corser v. Jones, 14 W. R. 704.

Where a petition is presented in two matters which have been dealt with by different branches of the court, it is proper, in the absence of special circumstances, that the petition should be presented in that branch of the court where the prior order in date has been made ; and leave should be obtained, in the usual way, for the transfer into that court of the matter in which the subsequent order has been made. Browse, In re, 12 Jur. (N.S.) 153 ; 14 W. R. 298.

Transfer to High Court from Mayor's Court.]—In an action in the Mayor's Court against two defendants, one of whom was a corporation aggregate, an application was made by the defendant corporation to have the action transferred to the Chancery Division of the high court, on the grounds (1) that accounts were required from persons who were not within the jurisdiction of the Mayor's Court ; (2) that it would be necessary to bring several persons into the action as third parties, which could not be effectually done if the action remained in the Mayor's Court ; (3) that, according to recent decisions, a corporation aggregate could not be made defendants in an action in the Mayor's Court :—Held, that, under these circumstances, it was "fit" that the whole proceeding should be transferred from the inferior court to the high court. Vickers v. Stevens, 44 L. T. 679 ; 29 W. R. 562. See MAYOR'S COURT.

2. Practice.

Application on Notice.]—Motions for the transfer of causes from one division to another of the high court should be made on notice. Humphreys v. Edwards, 45 L. J., Ch. 112.

Consent of President.]—An order for the transfer of a cause is not effectual until the sanction of the president of the division to which it is proposed to transfer the cause has been obtained. Humphreys v. Edwards, supra.

Quære, whether the Court of Appeal has power to order the transfer of an action without the consent of the president of the division from which it is to be transferred. Storey v. Waddle, 4 Q. B. D. 289 ; 27 W. R. 833—C. A.

Semble, such consent may be obtained after the order for transfer has been made. Black v. Dixer, 1 L. R., Ir. 107.

Court of Appeal—Power of.]—The Court of Appeal has no jurisdiction to make an order to transfer a suit which was pending in chancery before the Judicature Act, 1873, came into operation, from one judge to another. Hutley, In re, 45 L. J., Ch. 79 ; 1 Ch. D. 11 ; 33 L. T. 337—C. A.

Judge at Chambers—Transfer from Queen's Bench to Chancery Division.]—The effect of ss. 31, 39, of the Judicature Act, 1873, and s. 11, sub.-s. 2, of the Judicature Act, 1875, taken together with Ord. LI. r. 2, and Ord. LIV. r. 2, is, that any judge of the Queen's Bench Division, sitting at chambers, has jurisdiction to order that an action assigned to that division be transferred to the Chancery Division, though he is not a judge of the division to which the action is assigned. Hillman v. Mayhew, 45 L. J., Ex. 334 ; 1 Ex. D. 132 ; 34 L. T. 256 ; 24 W. R. 435.

Winding-up of Company—Order, by whom made.]—When an order has been made by a judge of the Chancery Division for the winding-up of a company under the Companies Acts, 1862 and 1867, the judge in whose court such winding-up shall be pending has no jurisdiction, under Ord. LI. r. 2a, to order the transfer to him of an action pending against the company in another court of the same division ; such a transfer can only be made by the Lord Chancellor under Ord. LI. r. 1. Landore Siemens Steel Co., In re (10 Ch. D. 489), not followed. Madras Irrigation and Canal Co., In re, 16 Ch. D. 702 ; 29 W. R. 520.

—— Application, Ex parte.]—On the winding-up of a company, the transfer to a judge of the Chancery Division, under Ord. LI. r. 2a, of an action pending in another division can be ordered ex parte. United Kingdom Electric Telegraph Co., In re, 29 W. R. 332.

When an order for the compulsory winding-up of a company has been made, an action against the company pending in another division of the court will be transferred on an application ex parte. Landore Siemens Steel Co., In re, 10 Ch. D. 489 ; 40 L. T. 35 ; 27 W. R. 304.

On what Principles determined.]—Under s. 24, sub-s. 6, of the Judicature Act, 1873, and in the absence of consent to the contrary, a common law action tried in or transferred to another division is to be determined on the same common law principles as would have been applied to it in the Queen's Bench Division.—Per Fry, L.J. The Gertrude, The Baron Aberdare, 13 P. D. 105 ; 59 L. T. 251 ; 36 W. R. 616 ; 6 Asp. M. C. 315.

For Hearing—Further Proceedings, where heard.]—In actions which were transferred to Fry, J., for hearing only, where his lordship has ordered any further proceedings to be heard before himself, any applications which are such as are usually made in chambers should be made to his lordship by summons in chambers, and not by motion, as heretofore. Snow v. Bolton, 50 L. J., Ch. 743 ; 17 Ch. D. 433 ; 44 L. T. 571 ; 29 W. R. 583. S. P., Shaw v. Brown, 50 L. J., Ch. 232.

An application to stay further proceedings in an action which has been transferred for the purpose of trial from one judge of the Chancery Division to another may be dealt with by the judge to whom the action was originally attached. Robinson v. Chadwick, 47 L. J., Ch. 607 ; 7 Ch. D. 878 ; 38 L. T. 415 ; 26 W. R. 421.

Under Ord. LI. r. 1a, a judge, to whom an action has been transferred for trial, has authority to hear a petition by a solicitor under the Solicitors Act, 1860, for costs incurred in recovering property in the action. Porter v. West, 50 L. J., Ch. 231 ; 43 L. T. 569 ; 29 W. R. 236.

An application for the court to exercise its jurisdiction over a solicitor on account of conduct disclosed in an action may be made in the action, and therefore is a further proceeding within Ord. LI. r. 1a, of the Judicature Act. Cave v. Cave, Cave, In re, 49 L. J., Ch. 656 ; 43 L. T. 158 ; 28 W. R. 764.

A plaintiff in a partition suit, on the 20th September, gave notice of trial before Malins, V.-C., without a jury. On the 19th November he took out a summons in the chambers of Malins, V.-C., asking that an issue of fact might be tried at Chester before any other question of fact was tried. On the 30th November the plaintiff gave notice of motion before Fry, J., to whom the cause had been transferred, that the action might stand out of the paper for hearing until the Hilary sittings, 1878, which was ordered to come on for hearing on the 11th December. On the 7th December Malins, V.-C., at the request of the plaintiff, adjourned the summons to be heard by Fry, J., at the same time as the motion :—Held, that, in consequence of the delay on the part of the plaintiff, it would be unjust to the defendant to put off the trial for a further time, and both applications must be dismissed. Lloyd v. Jones, 7 Ch. D. 390 ; 37 L. T. 524.

Re-transfer—In what Cases.]—Where a cause has in pursuance of a general order been transferred from one branch to another branch of the court, the fact that orders on interlocutory applications and relating to special injunctions have been made by the court to which the cause was in the first instance attached will not be sufficient cause for ordering a re-transfer. Tweddell v. Rogerson, 3 Eq. R. 701—L.JJ.

A cause in which the briefs had been delivered, and in which one of the leading counsel who usually practised in the court where it was originally set down had advised in the case, having been transferred to the court of another vice-chancellor, an application, made with the consent of all parties, for its re-transfer was refused. Tiffin v. Parker, 12 W. R. 698.

Where a cause has by general order been transferred from one court to another, a re-transfer will not, without consent, be ordered where it will delay the hearing. Where it will not be delayed, the court will give weight to the fact that the judge from whose court it has been transferred has, by means of interlocutory applications, gained an acquaintance with the facts. Platt v. Walter, 35 L. J., Ch. 728; L. R. 1 Ch. 471; 15 L. T. 111; 14 W. R. 784.

Where, on the occasion of an interlocutory application prior to the transfer of a cause, the question involved in the suit has been argued and dealt with on the merits, that is sufficient ground for ordering a re-transfer to the judge before whom such interlocutory application was heard; but it is no ground for ordering such re-transfer that a precisely similar point has been decided by such judge in a different suit. Wilson v. Gray, 14 W. R. 783.

Semble, that every order for a transfer is made subject to any application of any party, and that every order for re-transfer is in the nature of an order nisi, and may be obtained ex parte, leaving it to the other side to move to discharge it. Ib.

An order will not be made for the re-transfer of a cause on an ex parte application. Dennis v. Morris, 21 W. R. 43.

f. Consolidation of Actions.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XLIX. r. 8.

By Judicature Act, Common Law Practice adopted.]—Ord. LI. r. 4 of Rules of Supreme Court, 1875, adopts the old practice at common law, and the court can only consolidate actions at the instance of defendants, and not on the application of a number of different plaintiffs against the same defendants. But in such cases the court may, under the general jurisdiction, enlarge the time for taking the next step in several of a series of actions till one of them has been tried as a test action. Amos v. Chadwick, 4 Ch. D. 869.

In what Cases allowed—Same Parties.]—Six penal actions having been brought in the same court by an informer against a newspaper proprietor for the alleged insertion of six different advertisements in violation of s. 92 of the Larceny Act, 1861, on the defendant's motion the actions were consolidated, and the plaintiff was ordered to pay the costs of the motion. Bramble v. Knox, 18 W. R. 72.

If a party sues on a bill, and after the action is commenced another bill accepted by the same defendant, of which he is the holder, is dishonoured, and he brings a second action on that, a judge will direct the two actions to be consolidated. Oldershaw v. Tregwell, 3 Car. & P. 58.

In two actions brought on two several bills of exchange between the same plaintiff and defendant, all the pleas to which concluded to the country, the court, after issue joined, allowed both actions to be consolidated on the plaintiff's undertaking not to delay going to trial, and paying all the costs of the second action up to the time of the rule. Booth v. Payne, 1 D. (N.S.) 348; 11 L. J., Ex. 256; 5 Jur. 1087.

Where an attorney did different kinds of professional work for a client, and after all the business was transacted sent in a bill for one part of the business, and subsequently sent in a bill for the other part, and commenced an action for the first part of the business before the expiration of the month in respect of the delivery of the second bill, and after the expiration of that month commenced an action for the other part, the court made an order for the consolidation of the two actions. Beardsall v. Cheetham, 27 L. J., Q. B. 367; 6 W. R. 504.

—— Same Plaintiff—Several Defendants.]—An order under s. 5 of the Law of Libel Amendment Act, 1888, for the consolidation of several actions against different defendants in respect of the same or substantially the same libel may be made before the defences in the actions have been delivered. Stone v. Press Association, 66 L. J., Q. B. 662; [1897] 2 Q. B. 159; 77 L. T. 41; 45 W. R. 641—C. A.

The plaintiff having brought an action against the defendant Pike, a newspaper proprietor and publisher, for publishing a libel in his newspaper, and having also at the same time brought a separate action against each of sixteen other defendants for publishing the same libel in their several newspapers, the court (1) refused to make an order to consolidate the said actions on the ground that, although the libel was the same in each case, yet, the several publications and the circumstances attending them being different, the causes of action in the several cases were different; but (2) made an order that all further proceedings in all the said actions, save one to be selected by the plaintiff, be stayed pending the trial of such selected action; and further that, if the plaintiff be dissatisfied with the verdict obtained on the trial of such action, he should be at liberty to select one other action for trial; and further, the defendants by their counsel undertaking to be bound by the verdicts in the said selected first and second actions, that the plaintiff be at liberty to sign judgment against the defendants in all the remaining actions for the maximum amount of damages found by the jury. Colledge v. Pike, 56 L. T. 124.

Two actions having been brought by the same plaintiff against different defendants on the same policy, the court consolidated them, after a declaration had been delivered in one, at the instance of the defendant in the latter action, though the plaintiff objected. Hollingsworth v. Broderick, 4 A. & E. 646; 6 N. & M. 240; 1 H. & W. 691.

Where a plaintiff brings several actions upon the same policy against several underwriters, the court will not, without his consent, make a consolidation rule upon the terms of both plaintiff and defendants being bound in all the actions by the event of one. Doyle v. Anderson, 1 A. & E. 635; 4 N. & M. 873.

Where two actions were brought by the same plaintiffs against different defendants on different policies on the same ship, the court refused, at the instance of the defendants, to compel the plaintiffs to consolidate, and to be bound by one of the actions, without their consent. McGregor v. Horsfall, 3 M. & W. 320; 6 D. P. C. 338; 7 L. J., Ex. 71; 2 Jur. 257.

Where upwards of forty actions were brought against underwriters of the policies of insurance, one of which had been assigned by memorandum of transfer signed by some of them, before the bankruptcy of the assured, the court made an order for consolidation, the general principle laid down being, that all actions should be stayed except such as might be really necessary to determine the liability of distinct defendants in each class of cases, but not the plaintiffs. The court ultimately settled that there were two classes of cases, and that two actions should be allowed to proceed. Syers v. Pickersgill, 27 L. J., Ex. 5; 6 W. R. 16.

On an application to consolidate a number of actions in which the cause of action and the ground of defence appear primâ facie to be the same, it is not a sufficient answer that possibly the position of some of the parties may be different, and raise different questions (especially if such questions will be only as to the amount of their respective liabilities), although the extent of the consolidation must depend on the circumstances. Ib.

When an action had been commenced against one for port-dues for three sums of 1*s.*, and actions had also been commenced by the same plaintiff against nine other individuals, and the declarations in the nine actions were identical in form with the declaration in the first, but the particulars claimed sums due at different times, the court refused to consolidate the actions, at the instance of the defendants, without the consent of the plaintiff, as it did not appear that the right was the same, while the damage was clearly several. Saltash Corporation v. Jackman, 1 D. & L. 851; 13 L. J., Q. B. 105; 8 Jur. 176.

—— Different Plaintiffs.]—An action by a husband for an injury done to himself may be consolidated with a separate action by the husband and wife for an injury done to the wife at the same time and place. Morley v. Midland Ry., 3 F. & F. 961.

—— Actions in several Divisions.]—Three actions arising out of the same series of transactions were pending in different branches of the court, and the second had been ordered to be transferred to the division in which the third was pending. The first action raised an issue distinct from the issues in the other two. On an application that the three actions might be consolidated, they were ordered to come on for trial together, the evidence in each to be used in all, and all further proceedings in the second action were stayed except such as were necessary to bring it on with the other two. Smith v. Whichcord, 24 W. R. 900.

Conduct of, where Plaintiffs differ.]—Where two actions had been commenced on the same day by different plaintiffs, and had been consolidated, upon a difference of opinion arising between the joint plaintiffs as to the conduct of the action, the plaintiffs who first took a step towards severance by making an application for a change of solicitors were made defendants, and the conduct of the action given to the other plaintiffs, although the claim of the latter was smaller in amount than that of the former. Holden v. Silkstone and Dodworth Coal and Iron Co., 45 L. T. 531; 30 W. R. 98.

Where three actions had been commenced for the administration of the same estate, the court (notwithstanding the general rule that the plaintiff in the first action is entitled to the conduct of the proceedings) ordered the three actions to be consolidated, and gave the conduct of the future proceedings in the consolidated causes to the plaintiff in the second action, on the ground that the parties thereto were the persons chiefly interested, by whom the costs would have to be borne, and consequently to whose advantage it would be to keep down the expenses. Prime's Estate, In re, 48 L. T. 208.

Application by Plaintiff—Causes pending in same Division.]—Under Ord. XLIX. r. 8, of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, an order for the consolidation of causes or matters pending in the same division between the same parties may be made upon the application of the plaintiff. Martin v. Martin & Co., 66 L. J., Q. B. 241; [1897] 1 Q. B. 429; 76 L. T. 44; 45 W. R. 260—C. A.

Form of Order.]—Actions having been brought against eight persons upon mutual insurance policies, the court, at their instance, granted a rule for consolidating them, upon the terms that they should admit the amounts for which they were respectively liable in case their liability should be established, and should consent, if necessary, to an order referring it to the master to settle the same. Lewis v. Burkes or Banks, 4 C. B. (N.S.) 330; 27 L. J., C. P. 247; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 663; 6 W. R. 652.

Where five separate actions were brought upon five distinct guarantees of 50*l.* each given by five several parties for the payment of 250*l.*, the proceedings in four of the actions were ordered by a judge to be stayed, the defendants consenting to be bound by the verdict in one, provided that such verdict was to the satisfaction of the judge who tried the cause, the plaintiff to be at liberty to apply to open the order after plea, on the ground that the issue would not decide the merits in the other actions:—Held, that this was a proper order. Sharpe v. Lethbridge, 4 Man. & G. 37; 4 Scott (N.R.) 722; 11 L. J., C. P. 189; 6 Jur. 399.

The assignee of a replevin bond having brought actions severally against the principal and his two sureties, the court made a rule, that the proceedings in all the actions should be stayed upon payment of the rent due and costs; and that, upon such payment not being made, the first action should be proceeded with, the defendants in the other two actions to be bound by the event of the first. Bartlett v. Bartlett, 4 Man. & G. 269; 4 Scott (N.R.) 779; 11 L. J., C. P. 223.

Three actions were brought against three obligors of a joint and several bond, conditioned for the good behaviour of the manager of a banking company. After the declarations were delivered, the court, on motion by the defendants, ordered that the plaintiff proceeding in whichever of the actions he should select, proceedings in the other two should be stayed till the first was tried; the defendants undertaking to be bound by the event of the first tried, but the plaintiff, after such trial, to be at liberty, if disposed so to do, to proceed in the other two. Anderson v. Twogood, 1 Q. B. 245.

Liability to Solicitor for Costs.]—Separate writs of scire facias had issued against seven, at the suit of E., and in those suits the plaintiff was retained as attorney for each defendant. At the suggestion of the plaintiff, and with the consent of the defendant, a consolidation rule was obtained, by which all the actions were to abide the event of one action:—Held, that the separate retainers were determined when the consolidation was agreed on, and a joint retainer was then given, and therefore the defendant was liable to the plaintiff for the costs subsequently incurred. Anderson v. Boynton, 13 Q. B. 308; 7 D. & L. 25; 19 L. J., Q. B. 42; 14 Jur. 14.

Test Action—When binding.]—When a number of actions are consolidated, and one of them is ordered to be tried as a test action, the judgment in such action will not bind the parties in all the other actions, unless it has been tried out on its merits upon evidence. Amos v. Chadwick, 47 L. J., Ch. 871; 9 Ch. D. 459; 39 L. T. 50; 26 W. R. 840—C. A.

Where, therefore, one of seventy-eight actions by different plaintiffs against the same defendants was ordered to be tried as a test action to decide the rights of the plaintiffs in all the other actions, and the plaintiffs in the test action, when it came on for trial, declined to proceed, and judgment was then given for the defendants:—Held, that, notwithstanding Ord. XLI. r. 6, there had been no trial of the test action on the merits, and that the judge had jurisdiction to substitute another of the actions as a test action. Ib.

In the absence of agreement, the plaintiff in an action thus constituted a test action has no right to be indemnified against costs by the other plaintiffs. Ib.

—— Discontinuance of.]—When an action, which had been made a test action (for the purpose of deciding the rights of the plaintiffs in a number of similar actions against the same defendants), came on for trial, the plaintiff declined to proceed, on the ground that he was not in a fit state of health to attend and be examined as a witness. On a previous occasion he had moved for and obtained a postponement of the trial on the ground of his ill-health. A week before the trial an application by the plaintiff in chambers to stay all proceedings in the action had been refused by Malins, V.-C., on the ground that the plaintiff was not dominus litis, but a trustee for the plaintiffs in the other actions. At the trial the plaintiff asked for a postponement, or that an order of discontinuance might be made under Ord. XXIII. r. 1:—Held, that the court could not regard the rights of the plaintiffs in the other actions, but must act as if the plaintiff had not appeared at the trial, and must dismiss the action with costs. Robinson v. Chadwick, 47 L. J., Ch. 607; 7 Ch. D. 878; 38 L. T. 415; 26 W. R. 556.

—— When Question may be reopened.]—Consent to be bound by verdict in one cause out of several upon the same question means such a verdict as ought to stand. Hodson v. Richardson, 3 Burr. 1477.

Where causes are consolidated, the verdict which is to bind all the others must be perfectly to the satisfaction of the court. Anon., Lofft, 147.

Where a consolidation rule has been entered into, though fresh evidence is discovered, the court will not permit the plaintiff to try the other actions. Pullen v. Parry, 1 Chit. 709.

If the court thinks it reasonable to open a consolidation rule, and try a second cause, it will extend to the second trial all such terms made compulsory on the party successful in the first cause, as are requisite for attaining the merits. Cohen v. Bulkeley, 5 Taunt. 165; 14 R. R. 731.

Where a cause has been tried twice by special juries, and a verdict for the plaintiff returned on both occasions, the court will not open a consolidation rule for the trial of another similar action; it not being shown that the cause had not been fully brought before the jury. Foster v. Allenby, 5 D. P. C. 619; 3 Bing. (N.C.) 896; 4 Scott, 535; 3 Hodges, 23.

Where two actions against underwriters have been consolidated by rule, and the defendant has obtained a verdict in one, the court will not restrain the plaintiff from trying a second cause, included in the rule, till the costs of the first are paid. Doyle v. Douglass, 4 B. & Ad. 544.

—— Neglect to appeal—Substitution of other Defendant.]—Where by an order of the court all the defendants in several actions are bound by the result of a selected action, and the defendant in the selected action refuses to appeal against the judgment, the court has power to substitute another of the defendants for the purpose of prosecuting an appeal. Briton Medical and General Life Assurance v. Jones, 60 L. T. 637.

See also APPEAL.

By a consolidation rule a defendant in several actions brought by the same plaintiff agreed to be bound by the result of the action which the plaintiff should select to try. The plaintiff proceeded against A. and obtained a verdict, and a rule to set it aside was refused. A. gave notice of appeal to the Exchequer Chamber, but failed to prosecute it, and paid damages and costs to the plaintiff. The defendants in the other actions were refused leave to appeal against the judgment. Thomas v. Winter, 17 L. T. 148; 16 W. R. 82.

—— Stay of Proceedings in Remaining Actions.]—Thirty-eight actions having been brought by different persons against the defendants as directors of an incorporated company, charging misappropriation of moneys advanced by the plaintiffs in different amounts and at different times, but all under similar circumstances:—Held, upon the authority of Amos v. Chadwick (4 Ch. D. 869 and 9 Ch. D. 459), that it was competent to a judge at chambers, upon the application of the plaintiff, to stay the proceedings in thirty-seven of the actions until after the trial of the thirty-eighth as a test action, proper provision being made in case that action did not satisfactorily dispose of the question in all. Bennett v. Bury (Lord), 49 L. J., C. P. 411; 5 C. P. D. 339; 42 L. T. 480.

Eight separate actions having been brought against a company by eight passengers for breach of contract in supplying them with a less commodious passage for Australia than had been contracted for, the court refused to stay the proceedings in seven of them till the trial of the eighth, though the defendants offered to be bound in each by the verdict in one. Westbrook v. Australian Royal Mail Steam Navigation Co., 14 C. B. 113; 2 C. L. R. 694; 23 L. J., C. P. 42.

Where several causes are consolidated, if a writ of error is issued in the cause tried, and execution taken out for want of bail in error being duly put in, and the writs of error are issued in the other causes, and bail duly put in, execution in those causes is thereby stayed, for the consolidation rule only relates to the verdict. Aylwin v. Favine, 2 Bos. & P. (N.R.) 430.

Action in Inferior Court—Cross Action in High Court—Plaintiffs.]—When an action is transferred from an inferior court and consolidated with a cross action begun in the high court, the plaintiffs in the action in the inferior court will be placed in the position of plaintiffs in the consolidated actions, if they began the action in the inferior court before the cross action in the high court. The Never Despair, 53 L. g. CUSTODY, PRESERVATION, SALE AND INSPECTION OF PROPERTY.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. L.

Preservation—Pumping out Colliery.]—Where serious injury will be inflicted upon property which is the subject of an action unless the defendant continues to act in a particular manner, which he can do with comparatively little trouble and risk, but which the plaintiff cannot do at all, as where a colliery will be drowned unless the person in possession under an agreement for a lease continues to pump, the interim preservation of the property will be secured by the issue of a mandatory injunction restraining the defendant from ceasing to act in that particular matter—e.g. to pump out the colliery. Strelley v. Pearson, 49 L. J., Ch. 406; 15 Ch. D. 113; 43 L. T. 155; 28 W. R. 752.

—— Of Property pending Appeal or Litigation.]—It is a matter of discretion for the Court of Chancery whether it will or will not interfere by interim order respecting the property of a litigant. If the property is in medio (in the actual enjoyment of no one), the court will interfere for the benefit of all concerned. Owen v. Homan, 4 H. L. Cas. 997; 17 Jur. 861.

Order as to Delivery.]—In an action for the return of jewellery which A., as the agent of the plaintiffs, had left with the defendants, but which the defendants claimed to hold against a debt due to them by A., who had, as they alleged, deposited the jewellery with them as his own, and not as plaintiffs', the court made an order under Ord. LII. r. 3, for the delivery up of such jewellery to an officer of the court to abide the event of the action. Velati v. Braham, 46 L. J., C. P. 415.

The defendants having been restrained from disposing of certain sugars, the property of the plaintiffs, they were ordered, upon motion, to deliver the same to the plaintiffs, the latter accounting for them under the orders of the court. Beckford v. Anderson, 1 Jur. 772.

Application to stay disposal of personal property must shew specific right in property, and danger of being lost. Ximenes v. Franco, Dick. 149.

The court will interfere by injunction to secure the property of an association from being appropriated by the trustee, who is also sole director, for the purpose of recouping himself the sums he has advanced, although questions are raised as to the legality of the association, and although relief might be refused at the hearing. Sheppard v. Oxenford, 1 Kay & J. 509; 3 W. R. 384; and on appeal, 3 W. R. 397.

—— Claim of Lien on Property.]—In the absence of fraud, an order under the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. L. r. 8, that property claimed be given up to the party claiming it, can only be made upon condition that the amount for which a lien upon the property is claimed be paid into court, notwithstanding that the value of the property is less than the amount for which the lien is claimed. Gebrüder Näf v. Ploton, 59 L. J., Q. B. 371; 25 Q. B. D. 13; 63 L. T. 328; 38 W. R. 566—C. A.

Sale of Perishable Goods.]—In a suit in which the bill was filed before the Judicature Acts came into operation, the plaintiff claimed a charge upon certain bonds of a foreign state which were deposited in the bank to the credit of the cause. The suit had not yet come to trial. The defendants in their answer had admitted the plaintiff's title. On an application for an order for the sale of the bonds as perishable goods within the meaning of Ord. LII. r. 2, or upon admission of facts in the pleadings under Ord. XL. r. 11:—Held, that there must be a sale of the bonds, on the ground that, the defendants having by their answer admitted the plaintiff's title, Ord. XL. r. 11, applied, and there was no reason why the relief to which he was entitled should be delayed until the hearing. Coddington v. Jacksonville, Pensacola, and Mobile Ry., 39 L. T. 12—C. A.

The expression "goods" in the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. L. r. 2, includes shares in a limited company, and if for "any just and sufficient reason" it is desirable to have them sold at once, they may be sold under the rule in a pending action. Evans v. Davies, 62 L. J., Ch. 661; [1893] 2 Ch. 216; 3 R. 360; 68 L. T. 244; 41 W. R. 687.

An order in an action may be made under Ord. LII. r. 2, for the sale of a horse which for a "just and sufficient reason it may be desirable to have sold at once." Bartholomew v. Freeman, 3 C. P. D. 316; 38 L. T. 814; 26 W. R. 743.

Inspection and Sample—Order ex parte.]—An order to enter for the purpose of inspecting and taking samples under Ord. LII. r. 3, may be made on an ex parte application. Hennessey v. Rohmann, 36 L. T. 51.

Inspection—In Patent Actions.]—See PATENT.

—— As between co-Plaintiffs or co-Defendants.]—Ord. L. r. 3, provides that it shall be lawful for the court or a judge, upon the application of any party to a cause or matter, and upon such terms as may be just, to make any order for (among other things) the inspection of any property or thing, being the subject of such cause or matter, or as to which any question may arise therein. Claims being made against two defendants severally in the same action :—Held, that under the above-mentioned rule inspection could not be granted to one defendant of property belonging to another defendant when there was no right in question as between them in the action. Brown v. Watkins (16 Q. B. D. 125) explained. Shaw v. Smith, 56 L. J., Q. B. 174 ; 18 Q. B. D. 193 ; 56 L. T. 40 ; 35 W. R. 188—C. A.

—— Timber on Ship in Harbour.]—The court, under Ord. LI. r. 3, gave the plaintiff leave to inspect a ship lying in harbour, on which it was alleged that certain timber, part of the subject-matter of the action, had been placed by the defendant for removal. Morris v. Howell, 22 L. R., Ir. 77.

—— of Ship by Trinity Masters.]—Before the hearing of an action an application was made under 24 Vict. c. 10, s. 18, by the plaintiffs, that two Trinity masters should inspect the lights of the defendants' ship :—Held, that the application was premature, and ought to be refused. The Victor Covacevich, 54 L. J., P. 48 ; 10 P. D. 40 ; 52 L. T. 632 ; 5 Asp. M. C. 417.

—— Property in hands of Agent.]—Under what circumstances court will, on bill of discovery, direct search to be made in boxes of absent party in hands of defendant as depositary. Att-Gen. v. Elliott, 1 Price, 377. See further this Case, 2 Price, 48.

Inspection ordered, on motion, of articles, claimed by the plaintiffs as heirlooms, in a chest at the bankers of the defendant, insisting by answer on a lien. Macclesfield (Earl) v. Davis, 3 Ves. & B. 16

—— Goods Pawned.]—A. sends to his London factor to sell ; factor pawns goods. Pawnee, by answer, admits factor pawned some goods, but knows not whether they were the plaintiff's. Ordered, that A., in the presence of two or more, may have a view of them. Marsden v. Panshall, 1 Vern. 407.

—— Entry on Premises to inspect Goods.]—Where an agreement has been entered into for the sale of a house at a fixed price, and of the fixtures and furniture therein at a valuation by a person named by both parties, and he undertakes the valuation, but is refused permission by the vendor to enter the premises for that purpose, the court will make a mandatory order to compel the vendor to allow the entry to enable the valuation to proceed. Smith v. Peters, 44 L. J., Ch. 613 ; L. R. 20 Eq. 511 ; 23 W. R. 783.

Before 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 114, in an action for work and labour, a judge had no power to make an order for the plaintiff and his witnesses to enter on the freehold of the defendant for the purpose of inspecting the work done. Turquand v. Strand Union, 8 D. P. C. 201 ; 4 Jur. 74. S. P., Newham v. Taite, 6 Scott, 575 ; 1 Arn. 244.

Inspection of Premises.]—Where an action has been referred for trial under s. 14 of the Arbitration Act, 1889, the court or a judge still retains the power, and the referee or arbitrator has also jurisdiction to order inspection of property. As a general rule, the most convenient course is to apply to the referee or arbitrator in the first instance. Hayward v. Mutual Reserve Association ([1891] 2 Q. B. 236) approved. MacAlpine v. Calder, 62 L. J., Q. B. 607 ; [1893] 1 Q. B. 545 ; 4 R. 314 ; 68 L. T. 426 ; 41 W. R. 436—C. A.

—— In what Cases.]—The respondent, an impropriate rector, having, by decree of Court of Chancery, been found entitled to tithes according to value of warehouses in London, occupied by appellants, and which had never been rented, court has jurisdiction to make order for inspection upon appellants to ascertain value. Such order cannot be executed by force, but operates on person as ground for contempt, or bill pro confesso, if necessary. East India Co. v. Kynaston, 3 Bligh, 153.

A householder filed a bill against a railway company for an injunction to restrain it from proceeding with its works to the detriment of his premises, until it should have properly entitled itself to do so. The company had put up such a hoarding as prevented him from inspecting the progress of the works, and an order was made that the company should give access to him, his surveyors and builders, to go and view the works in the construction of the railway, carried on close to his house and premises, at all reasonable times of the day, upon his giving half an hour's notice of his desire to do so. Saul v. Metropolitan Ry., 16 L. T. 169.

Owners and occupiers of houses in London subject to tithe ; defendants, at suit of tithe owner, ordered to permit witnesses to inspect them preparatory to examination on interrogatories for proving their value. Kynaston v. East India Co., 3 Swanst. 248 ; 19 R. R. 202.

Instances of order to permit inspection and entry. Id. 264.

—— Authority to dig up Soil.]—Under r. 3 of Ord. L. the court has power to make an interlocutory order before trial, giving liberty to a plaintiff to enter upon land belonging to the defendant, and to excavate the soil thereof for the purposes of inspection. Lamb v. Beaumont, 53 L. J., Ch. 1111 ; 27 Ch. D. 356 ; 51 L. T. 197 ; 32 W. R. 985.

An order having been made on motion in a cause in equity before the hearing, giving the plaintiff liberty to enter the defendant's ground for the purpose of inspection, and for the same purpose to break up the soil in the manner therein specified :—Held, that the latter part of the order ought to be discharged, it not being according to the course of the court that such liberty should be given on an interlocutory application before the hearing. Ennor v. Barwell, 1 De G. F. & J. 529 ; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 788 ; 8 W. R. 300.

—— Inspection of Mines.]—An owner of a mine will, on making out a primâ facie case, be allowed to inspect the workings of an adjoining mine, to ascertain whether they are being carried on in such a way as to encroach upon or injure his own mine. Bennett v. Whitehouse, 28 Beav. 119 ; 29 L. J., Ch. 326 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 528 ; 2 L. T. 45 ; 8 W. R. 251.

Where, upon a motion by occupiers of coal mines, for an injunction to restrain the defendants, who worked adjoining mines, from cutting into the plaintiffs' barriers, the defendants offered an undertaking, and asked for time to answer affidavits, the court refused adversely to order an inspection of the defendants' mines. Whaley v. Braucker, 10 Jur. (N.S.) 535; 10 L. T. 155; 12 W. R. 570, 595.

The plaintiffs renewed their application a week later, and made out a primâ facie case of trespass; and the defendants having in the meantime filed no affidavits, the court, having no certain plan of the workings, granted an interim order and an order to inspect. Ib.

Order upon motion before the hearing, that the plaintiffs and their witnesses should be allowed, until publication, to view and inspect the workings by the defendants in the plaintiffs' mine, of which the defendants were lessees, and which mine was entered and worked by means of a shaft in an adjoining mine belonging to the defendants. Lewis v. Marsh, 8 Hare, 97.

When the plaintiff and the defendants had mines adjoining one another, and the plaintiff had reason to suspect that the defendants had encroached upon his mines, he obtained leave from them to go underground and examine their mines, and found that at the boundary-line between the two properties, a wall had been recently erected, which prevented him from seeing whether anything had been done on the other side, which belonged to him. The inspector of mines for the district reported that an inspection could safely be made by removing a portion of the wall, and that no practical difficulty existed calculated to endanger the lives of the workmen. An order was then made by a judge that the plaintiff should be at liberty to inspect the mines of the defendants, and, so far as was necessary for the inspection, to make a way through the wall. The plaintiff was directed to give security to the satisfaction of the master, or to deposit 500*l.* to abide any order the court might make as to indemnifying the defendants for any loss they might sustain in consequence of the inspection:—Held, that the order was good, as the courts of common law and the judges thereof have, as ancillary to the power of granting an inspection, a power to remove obstruction, with a view to the inspection. Bennett v. Griffiths, 30 L. J., Q. B. 98; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 284; 3 L. T. 735; 9 W. R. 332.

—— No Prayer for—Proof attainable from External Sources.]—There is no necessity specifically to pray for liberty to inspect premises, it being a species of discovery which the court has jurisdiction to grant if the nature of the case requires it; but, where the plaintiff applied for liberty to inspect the defendant's works to ascertain the particular products used in the manufacture of chemicals which occasioned a nuisance, the motion was refused, on the ground that proof of the nuisance could be obtained from external sources. Barlow v. Bailey, 22 L. T. 464; 18 W. R. 783.

Costs.]—A judge at chambers on making an order for the inspection of the defendants' property, has discretion to order the plaintiff to pay the costs. Mitchell v. Darley Main Colliery, 52 L. J., Q. B. 394; 10 Q. B. D. 457; 31 W. R. 549.

Sale of Real Estate—"Cause or Matter relating to Real Estate."]—An action was brought by the infant heir-at-law (by a next friend) of an intestate against the widow, who was the administratrix, claiming accounts of the personal estate, and of the rents and profits of the real estate received by the defendant. The action came on for hearing on motion for judgment, and the court was asked under Ord. LI. r. 1, to make an order for the sale of the real estate. The defendant did not object:—Held, that this was not "a cause or matter relating to real estate" within the meaning of the rule, and that the court could not order a sale under that rule. But, upon a summons under the Settled Land Act, a sale was ordered. Staines, In re, Staines v. Staines, 55 L. J., Ch. 913; 33 Ch. D. 172; 35 W. R. 75.

Under r. 1 of Ord. LI. the court has power to order a sale of real estate only when it is necessary or expedient for the purposes of the action before it that the property should be sold. No new power to order a sale is conferred. Robinson, In re, Pickard v. Wheater, 55 L. J., Ch. 307; 31 Ch. D. 247; 53 L. T. 865.

Where property consisted of agricultural land in Norfolk which was much depreciated in value, the court refused to order the estate to be sold under rules of court, 1883, Ord. LI. r. 1, for the purpose of paying the costs of a petition action, in which a declaration of the rights of the parties entitled had been obtained, and a receiver appointed against their father, who had previously been in possession and refused to account, but directed the receiver to apply any funds in his hands after keeping down incumbrances in payment of costs. Miles v. Jarvis, 50 L. T. 48.

And see EXECUTOR AND ADMINISTRATOR (SALES BY THE COURT).

—— Injunction to Restrain.]—Injunction granted restraining sale of estate till answer to bill, alleging parol agreement to exchange, partly performed by plaintiff having purchased estate for that purpose. Curtis v. Buckingham (Marquis), 3 Ves. & B. 168; 13 R. R. 174.

Deeds—Deposit in Court and Custody.]—Deeds sometimes ordered into court for their security. Dixies v. Hillary, Cary, 19.

Deed in favour of volunteer ordered into court at his suggestion. Brookbank v. Brookbank, 1 Eq. Abr. 168.

In a suit against an attorney to set aside a conveyance made as a security for untaxed costs, the court refused to order the lodgment of the deed in court. Carr v. Moulds, Hay. & J. 714.

At the instance of the mortgagee of the reversion, the court declined making a stop-order on deeds brought into the master's office under a decree. Cotton v. Cotton, 6 Beav. 96.

Documents were ordered to be retained in court for a reasonable time, in order to see whether the plaintiff would not take criminal proceedings against the defendant, in respect of one of them. Walker v. Corke, 2 Y. & Coll. 277; 8 L. J., Ex. Eq. 56.

Where a son, remainderman in tail, under a settlement made by his grandfather, in which the father was tenant for life, without impeachment of waste, preferred a bill to have the title-deeds brought into court, Lord H. refused to direct it, observing that some third person, and a secure place, agreed upon by the parties, would be a much more proper repository than a master; and he added, that the relief prayed was the first application of the kind. Pyncent v. Pyncent, 3 Atk. 571.

In an abstract of a vendor's title, a will which formed part of it was represented as having been proved in the spiritual court, which afterwards appeared not to have been done. The purchaser filed his bill, praying that the defendants might either be decreed to prove the will, or that it might be deposited in the hands of the master for safe custody. It appeared that two other persons were intended under the will, and they were added as parties and, they not objecting, the will was directed to be deposited with the master for safe custody; the vendors having by their misrepresentations occasioned the suit, were ordered to pay all the costs. Harrison v. Coppard, 2 Cox, 319.

The object of a bill being to set aside deeds, the court will not, on motion, go beyond the usual liberty to inspect, &c., and for production at the hearing, by an order to deposit them with the master for safe custody, without a special case establishing danger that they may not be produced; therefore where most of the circumstances relied upon, viz. variations in two deeds, appeared upon the answer, the order was limited to production at the hearing. Beckford v. Wildman, 16 Ves. 438.

The master's examiner will lodge with the registrar of the court, for the hearing of a cause, deeds deposited in the office for the purposes of the cause, upon receiving a requisition from any of the parties concerned. A motion that he shall be at liberty to do so is unnecessary. Plumtre v. O'Dell, 5 Ir. Eq. R. 404.

An order having been improperly obtained on this court, for the production of the records of the proceedings in a suit in the Court of Great Sessions, Wales, they were forwarded by the registrar of that court, through his agent in London, to the clerk in court of the plaintiff, the proper officer:—Held, till such order was rescinded, that they were to be deemed to be in the proper custody. Grenfell v. Girdlestone, 2 Y. & Coll. 662; 7 L. J., Ex. Eq. 42; 1 Jur. 940.

General rule as to the deposit of papers and writings is, that an executor must deposit them for the benefit of the parties interested, unless there are purposes which require that he should retain them. Freeman v. Fairlie, 3 Mer. 30; 17 R. R. 7.

A. conveys land to trustees on trust to sell if the unsatisfied debts of a partnership, in which he had been concerned, should at a given time exceed 40,000*l.*; the trustees sell and convey to the purchaser by a deed, which recites that the debts of the partnership exceeded the specified amount, and that A. had died intestate as to his real estates; and the heir-at-law of A. joins in that deed, and enters into a covenant for the title of the trustees, a covenant against all acts done by him or his father, and a covenant for further assurance; it afterwards appears to be uncertain whether A. had not devised his real estates, and the purchaser files a bill to have protection against or remedy for the alleged defect in his title, which this discovery created:—Held, that he is not entitled to have the books and documents connected with the accounts of the partnership delivered to him or deposited for safe custody. Hallett v. Middleton, 1 Russ. 243.

Deeds having been deposited with the clerk in court before the hearing, the decree contained the usual direction for the deposit in the master's office of such deeds, &c. as the master might direct. Ordered, on motion, that the deeds, &c. which the master had called for, should be transferred from the custody of the clerk in court into the master's office accordingly. Whether the master has authority, under the decree to make such order, quære. Glover v. Williams, 2 Jur. 678.

Directions as to political papers affecting living persons left by a testator. Bean v. Griffiths, 1 Jur. (N.S.) 1045; 3 W. R. 640.

Under a decree in an administration suit, certain creditors supported their claim in chambers by the production of certain documents. The residuary legatees, believing these documents to be forged, applied to have them deposited with the chief clerk and for liberty to have them examined by experts, to test their genuineness:—Ordered, that the documents be deposited with the chief clerk for one month, and that the applicants should have free access to them during that time. Blakesley v. Pegg, 20 L. T. 57.

Some parties in the cause had the option, under a will, of purchasing certain jewels, which the decree directed to be deposited in the master's office, and the master was to be at liberty to receive proposals from the parties for their purchase. The master declined receiving the jewels, and an order was made that the master should appoint a proper person to have the care of the jewels, who should find security, and have an allowance, and who should allow access thereto, for the purposes in the decree mentioned. Jervis v. Brasier, 6 L. J., Ch. 63.

—— Delivery out.]—Motion that securities be delivered to the executors to receive the money granted. Jones v. Jones, 3 Bro. C. C. 80.

Deeds not delivered out of court to a devisee, unless the heir is before the court. Anon., 1 Ves. J. 29.

Person, not party in cause, may petition to have deeds belonging to him, and which had been brought into master's office under decree, delivered out to him. Marriott v. White, 1 Sim. & S. 17.

Petition for delivery of documents (after order on same subject from Queen's Bench) dismissed. Neale v. Postlethwaite, 2 Jur. 987.

In an abated suit the master has no jurisdiction, under the 16th Order of 1828, to direct the re-delivery of papers deposited in his office. Alderman v. Bannister, 9 Beav. 516.

An executor, who was under an obligation to deliver a book to a purchaser under the court, made an affidavit that it was lost:—Held, that the purchaser was not bound by that affidavit, but was entitled to an inquiry before the master. Stubbs v. Sargon, 4 Beav. 90.

Court never orders clerk in court, with whom exhibits have been deposited under usual order, to deliver them up to any other person, for the purpose of their being produced in court, or at the assizes, without consent of all parties, and payment of clerk in court's fees. Harris v. Bodenham, 1 Sim. & S. 283.

If the original writ is required, the motion cannot be made without producing it. Ellerton v. Thirsk, 1 Jac. & Walk. 376.

The court will not order original documents to be taken out of the jurisdiction of the court, for the purpose of being produced before a special examiner in the examination of witnesses in the cause, unless a special case be made for that purpose. Lafone v. Falkland Islands Co., 4 Kay & J. 39.

But the court has jurisdiction upon a special case being made to make such an order. Ib.

A document being deposited in the Record and Writ Clerks' Office, delivery up refused without an order:—Held, that according to the practice, an order must be made, although such practice was most inconvenient; also, that a reference to the Master could only be made under peculiar circumstances. Rummell v. Yarrell, 1 W. R. 442.

Deeds delivered out upon report as to heir-at-law under order made after the lunatic's death. Pearson, In re, C. P. Coop. 314.

1. Effect of Judicature Act, s. 25, sub-s. 8.

Mandamus—When obtainable.]—A writ of mandamus under s. 25, sub-s. 8, of the Judicature Act, 1873, can only be obtained in a pending cause or matter; the prerogative writ being preserved to the Queen's Bench Division by s. 34. Paris Skating Rink Co., In re, 46 L. J., Ch. 831; 6 Ch. D. 731; 25 W. R. 767.

While a petition for winding up a company was pending, notice of motion in the winding-up was given to the company and the directors for a mandamus to direct them to convene an ordinary meeting. An order was made for winding up the company, which was reversed on appeal. The motion for a mandamus was then brought on:—Held, that the court had jurisdiction to direct the issue of a writ of mandamus in every cause or matter pending before it, but inasmuch as the petition had been dismissed there was no longer any matter pending before it in which it could make the order. Ib.

—— Interlocutory Application for.]—When an action has been commenced in which a mandamus is claimed, an interlocutory application for a mandamus will not be granted unless it can be shewn that the plaintiff will suffer some injury by waiting for the result of the action. Widnes Alkali Co. v. Sheffield and Midland Ry., 37 L. T. 131.

Injunction—Jurisdiction of High Court of Justice.]—The extensive jurisdiction of granting injunctions originally given to the common-law courts by the Common Law Procedure Act, 1854, ss. 79, 81 and 82, is now vested, by virtue of the Judicature Act, 1873, in the High Court of Justice. All acts, therefore, which a common-law court, or a court of equity only, could formerly restrain by injunction, can now be restrained by the high court. Beddow v. Beddow, 47 L. J., Ch. 588; 9 Ch. D. 89; 26 W. R. 570.

The jurisdiction of granting injunctions thus vested in the high court is practically unlimited, and can be exercised by any judge of the high court in any case in which it is right or just to do so, having regard to settled legal reasons or principles. Ib.

The court will restrain an arbitrator by injunction from acting, in any case in which he is, in the opinion of the court, unfit or incompetent to act. Ib.

—— Whether Jurisdiction of Court is extended.]—The words "just or convenient" in s. 25, sub-s. 8, of the Judicature Act, 1873, do not mean that the court is to grant an injunction simply because the court think it convenient; they mean that the court should grant an injunction for the protection of rights or for the prevention of injury according to legal principles; but the moment you find there is a legal principle, that a man is about to suffer a serious injury, and that there is no pretence for inflicting that injury upon him, it appears to me that the court ought to interfere. Now, it has been said that, as a general rule, the court only interferes where there is some question as to property. I do not think that the interference of the court is absolutely confined to that now; there may be cases in which the court would interfere even where personal status is the only thing in question.—Per Jessel, M.R. Aslatt v. Southampton Corporation, 50 L. J., Ch. 33; 16 Ch. D. 143; 43 L. T. 464; 29 W. R. 117; 45 J. P. 111.

The powers of the court in granting an injunction, either at the hearing or upon an interlocutory application, have been extended by s. 28, sub-s. 8, of the Judicature (Ireland) Act; and the only limit to the jurisdiction is that the court must be satisfied that it is just and convenient that the order should be made. The court has now jurisdiction to grant an injunction to give effect to a legal right. Cork Corporation v. Rooney, 7 L. R., Ir. 191.

I have a very strong opinion that the Judicature Act has not dealt with jurisdiction at all, but only with procedure; that it has given to the one division the procedure of the other division, or to the two divisions reciprocally the procedure of the other division, and that in some cases it has amended the procedure of both divisions, but that it has not given to any court a jurisdiction which no court had before. Individually, I should be inclined to hold that if no court had the power of issuing an injunction before the Judicature Act, no part of the high court has power to issue such an injunction now.—Per Brett, L.J. North London Ry. v. G. N. Ry., 52 L. J., Q. B. 380; 11 Q. B. D. 36; 48 L. T. 695; 31 W. R. 490.

If it was intended to give the enormously increased power which it is contended is given by s. 25, sub-s. 8, of the Judicature Act, 1873, it is remarkable that it empowers it to be done by interlocutory order. It is said if it can be done by interlocutory order, of course it can be done by a final order at the hearing; no doubt that is true; but when the section only refers to interlocutory orders, is not the primâ facie presumption that it did not intend to give the right to an injunction to parties who before had no legal right whatever, but simply to give to the court, when dealing with legal rights which were under its jurisdiction independently of this section, power, if it should think it just or convenient, to superadd to what would have been previously the remedy, a remedy by way of injunction.—Per Cotton, L.J. Ib.

The jurisdiction to grant prohibition is now conferred by the Judicature Acts upon every judge of the high court; but inasmuch as one of the main objects of the acts (Judicature Act, 1873, s. 24, sub.-s. 7) is to enable the court to decide, if possible in one proceeding, all the questions in dispute in the same matter and between the same parties, and (Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, sub-s. 8) to grant an injunction in all cases in which it shall appear to the court "just and convenient" so to do, the court may, in any case in which it has power to grant prohibition, grant an injunction to restrain the proceedings in the inferior court. Hedley v. Bates, 49 L. J., Ch. 170; 13 Ch. D. 498; 42 L. T. 41; 28 W. R. 365.

Sect. 25, sub-s. 8, of the Judicature Act, 1873, does not alter the former practice as to injunctions, but is only intended to do away with certain technical objections. Fletcher v. Rodgers, 27 W. R. 97—C. A.

The Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, sub-s. 8, has not altered the principles on which the court acts in granting injunctions. Gaskin v. Balls, 13 Ch. D. 324; 28 W. R. 552—C. A.

The principles on which the court acts in granting injunctions are not extended by the provisions of the Judicature Act, which enable the court to grant injunctions where it is "just or convenient," which must be read "just as well as convenient." Day v. Brownrigg, 48 L. J., Ch. 173; 10 Ch. D. 294; 39 L. T. 553; 27 W. R. 217—C. A.

The power of the court to grant injunctions has been enlarged by the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, sub-s. 8. Thomas v. Williams, 49 L. J., Ch. 605; 14 Ch. D. 864, at p. 873; 43 L. T. 91; 28 W. R. 983. But see contra, Dick v. Brooks, 15 Ch. D., at p. 25.

—— On what Terms.]—An injunction, to restrain a landlord from exercising the legal right of distress, will be granted only "upon such terms and conditions as the court shall think just," under s. 25, sub-s. 8, of the Judicature Act, 1873. The terms and conditions which the court thought just, and imposed on tenants who sought to restrain their landlord from distraining for certain rent until the determination of an action brought by them against him to try his right to the rent, were that an injunction should be granted for a fortnight, and continued only if the rent was in the meantime paid into court. Shaw v. Jersey (Earl), 4 C. P. D. 359; 28 W. R. 142—C. A. Affirming 48 L. J., C. P. 308.

Receiver—Discretion.]—Under sub-s. 8 of s. 25 of the Judicature Act, 1873, the court has a discretion as to the appointment of a receiver. Prytherch, In re, Prytherch v. Williams, 59 L. J., Ch. 79; 42 Ch. D. 590; 61 L. T. 799; 38 W. R. 61.

—— Action to recover Possession of Leaseholds.]—The court has power under the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, to appoint a receiver where the title to the property is disputed. Berry v. Keen, 51 L. J., Ch. 912—C. A.

Dunn v. Ferrior (L. R. 3 Ch. 719) and Talbot v. Hope-Scott (4 K. & J. 139) are no longer law. Ib.

—— Of Property pending Action as to Title.]—The plaintiff in an ejectment action which was set down for trial, but had been stayed until another action affecting the same property, and brought by the defendant in ejectment against the plaintiff and others, should be ready for trial, moved for a receiver and for attornment to him. The defendant in ejectment set up a defence that in equity the plaintiff was only a sub-mortgagee. The evidence in support of the motion shewed that the property was wasting, and that, even if the plaintiff was only sub-mortgagee, it was insufficient for the original mortgage upon it; and this evidence was not met to the satisfaction of the court:—Held, that under the circumstances it was just and convenient within the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, sub-s. 8, now to appoint a receiver; and an order was made accordingly, unless the defendant elected within four days to pay an occupation rent into court, the amount to be settled in chambers. Real and Personal Advance Co. v. McCarthy, 40 L. T. 878; 27 W. R. 706.

—— Co-ownership Suit.]—The court will appoint a receiver in a co-ownership suit where the circumstances exist which in the opinion of the court render such a course just and convenient. The Ampthill, 5 P. D. 224; 29 W. R. 523.

—— Action for Recovery of Land.]—In an action for recovery of land brought by a landlord against his tenant under a proviso for re-entry for breach of covenant in his lease, a receiver of the rents and profits of the land pending the trial of the action may be appointed on the plaintiff's application. Gwatkin v. Bird, 52 L. J., Q. B. 263.

Under s. 25, sub-s. 8, of the Judicature Act, 1873, the court has jurisdiction to appoint a receiver wherever it shall appear just or convenient so to do, and consequently in an ejectment action where the title to real property is in dispute. Foxwell v. Van Grutten, 66 L. J., Ch. 53; [1897] 1 Ch. 64; 75 L. T. 368—C. A.

It is not a proper case for the exercise of this judicial discretion where the defendant in an action for ejectment is the admitted heir-at-law of the last owner, and has as such taken possession of the property in dispute, and there appears to be a question to be decided between the parties, and the property is safe, and there is no evidence of waste; and the mere fact that such defendant is impecunious is not a ground for the appointment of a receiver. Ib.

Per Kekewich, J.: An order appointing a receiver in a case of disputed title to real estate should be made subject to the rights of any incumbrancer. Ib.

—— Equitable Execution—"Just and Convenient."]—A judgment debtor had lands in Surrey subject to an equitable mortgage; and his judgment creditor obtained an order for a receiver of these lands. This order was not registered. After the appointment of the receiver the debtor sold the lands to a purchaser for value without notice:—Held, that under the circumstances of the case it was just and convenient for the court to appoint a receiver within the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, sub-s. 8. Pope, In re, 55 L. J., Q. B. 522; 17 Q. B. D. 743; 55 L. T. 369; 34 W. R. 693—C. A.

Under the general power to appoint receivers given by the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, sub-s. 8, and having regard to Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. XLII. rr. 4 and 28, the court has jurisdiction to enforce a judgment for payment of money into court by a defaulting trustee, by the appointment of a receiver of his equitabl interest in property in this country; and orde accordingly where, from the debtor being out of the jurisdiction, service of a writ of attachment could not be effected. Coney, In re, Coney v. Bennett, 54 L. J., Ch. 1130; 28 Ch. D. 993; 52 L. T. 961; 33 W. R. 701.

An order was made against the defendants in an action, who were defaulting trustees, for the payment of money into court. The defendants having failed to comply with such order, an application was made by the plaintiffs that a writ of attachment might issue against them. At the defendants' instance, however, the court made an order allowing payment by weekly instalments. L., one of the defendants, had made an affidavit on that occasion stating that all the property he possessed was the furniture in his house. It subsequently transpired that L. had executed bills of sale affecting the furniture; but that the plaintiffs in other proceedings had successfully disputed the validity of such bills of sale. An application was accordingly made on behalf of the plaintiffs for the appointment of a receiver of the furniture by way of equitable execution. For the defendant L. it was contended that the legal and proper remedy of the plaintiffs was by sequestration, and that the court had no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver:—Held, that, although under r. 4 of Ord. XLII. of the Rules of Court, 1883, sequestration was the appropriate remedy, yet under s. 25, sub-s. 8, of the Judicature Act, 1873, the court had jurisdiction to appoint a receiver if it appeared just or convenient so to do; and that, in the present case, it was just and convenient to appoint a receiver, and that an order must be made accordingly. Whiteley, In re, Whiteley v. Learoyd, 56 L. T. 846.

—— Deceased's Estate.]—The Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, sub-s. 8, enables any judge of the high court to appoint a receiver of a deceased's estate (before grant of probate or administration), notwithstanding the absence of lis pendens; but applications for any such order, being on the way to probate proceedings, are properly made in the Probate Division, and if made elsewhere will not be encouraged. Parker, In re, Dearing v. Brooks, 54 L. J., Ch. 694.

—— Mortgagee.]—A legal mortgagee, being in possession of the mortgaged property, applied to the court for the appointment of a receiver:—Held, that although the mortgagee might, under the Conveyancing Act, 1881, appoint a receiver without coming to the court, it was more desirable, where an action was pending, that the appointment should be made by the court under the Judicature Act, 1873. Tillett v. Nixon, 53 L. J., Ch. 199; 25 Ch. D. 238; 48 L. T. 598; 32 W. R. 226.

Under s. 25, sub-s. 8, of the Judicature Act, 1873, a mortgagee in possession is entitled to the appointment of a receiver, notwithstanding that he has been paid all his interest and costs out of rents received by him while in possession, and that he has surplus rents in his hands. Mason v. Westoby, 55 L. J., Ch. 507; 32 Ch. D. 206; 54 L. T. 526; 34 W. R. 498.

Under the power given by the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, sub-s. 8, to appoint a receiver in all cases in which it shall appear just and convenient, the order made on interlocutory application for the appointment of a receiver was extended to the whole property comprised in the plaintiff's security, as to part of which he was legal and as to part equitable mortgagee. Pease v. Fletcher, 45 L. J., Ch. 265; 1 Ch. D. 273; 33 L. T. 644; 24 W. R. 158.

—— In Partition Action.]—In an action for partition, where one of the co-owners is in occupation, though not in exclusive occupation, of the property, the court has jurisdiction under the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 25, sub-s. 8, to appoint a receiver until the hearing. Porter v. Lopes, 7 Ch. D. 358; 37 L. T. 824.

—— Judicature (Ireland) Act, s. 28, sub-s. 8.]—Section 3 of 19 & 20 Vict. c. 77, has been repealed by the 28th section of the Judicature (Ireland) Act, sub-s. 8, and, therefore, the court may appoint a receiver on foot of any judgment mortgage, notwithstanding that the rental of the estate is less than 100*l.* per annum. The court will, under special circumstances, appoint a receiver where less than one year's interest is due. Martin's Estate, In re, 13 L. R., Ir. 43.

In an action to recover damages for obstructing a watercourse, and for an injunction, the plaintiffs obtained a verdict for nominal damages. The defendant having continued the acts of obstruction complained of, the court granted an injunction. Agnew v. McDowell, 14 L. R., Ir. 445.

Practice—Writ.]—A plaintiff should indorse his writ with a claim for an injunction, or for a receiver when the obtaining of either is a substantial object of his action. Colebourne v. Colebourne, 45 L. J., Ch. 749; 6 Ch. D. 690; 24 W. R. 235.

—— Time for Application.]—Under Ord. LII. r. 4, a defendant in an action may, before judgment, apply for an injunction and a receiver. Sargant v. Read, 45 L. J., Ch. 206; 1 Ch. D. 600.

The words "interlocutory order" in s. 25, sub-s. 8, of the Judicature Act, 1873, are not confined in their meaning to an order made between writ and final judgment, but mean an order other than final judgment in an action, whether such order be made before judgment or after. Smith v. Cowell, 50 L. J., Q. B. 38; 6 Q. B. D. 75; 43 L. T. 528; 29 W. R. 227—C. A. S. P., Salt v. Cooper, 50 L. J., Ch. 529; 16 Ch. D. 544; 43 L. T. 682; 29 W. R. 553—C. A.

The power given by sub-s. 8 of s. 25 can be exercised at the trial of an action, as well as upon an interlocutory application. Prytherch, In re, Prytherch v. Williams, 59 L. J., Ch. 79; 42 Ch. D. 590; 61 L. T. 799; 38 W. R. 61.

2. Effect of Common Law Procedure Acts.

Mandamus.]—The 17 & 18 Vict. c. 125, s. 68, applies only to the fulfilment of such duties as might be enforced by the prerogative writ of mandamus, and not to the specific performance of contracts. Benson v. Paul, 6 El. & Bl. 273; 25 L. J., Q. B. 274; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 425; 4 W. R. 493.

But a mandamus may be claimed under the above provisions to enforce the fulfilment of a duty in which the plaintiff is personally interested, where such duty does not arise out of a mere personal contract. Norris v. Irish Land Co., 8 El. & Bl. 512; 27 L. J., Q. B. 115; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 235.

An action for a mandamus may lie even when no actual damage has been sustained. Fotherby v. Metropolitan Ry., 36 L. J., C. P. 88; L. R. 2 C. P. 188; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 1005; 15 L. T. 243; 15 W. R. 112.

The neglect by a railway company to issue a warrant to the sheriff to summon a jury to assess the value of land which the company has given notice of requiring for the purposes of its act, within a reasonable time after such notice, is an actionable wrong, and the issue of the warrant may be enforced by an action for a mandamus. Ib.

A railway company gave a notice to the plaintiff of their intention to take a tenement for which he was rated to the poor; the notice did not contain the particulars mentioned in the Lands Clauses Act, s. 18. In consequence of this notice the plaintiff took other premises, and his former ones remained on his hands unoccupied. The company having failed to proceed with the purchase of the lands after six months had elapsed, the plaintiff commenced an action against them for damages, and claimed a mandamus:—Held, that the notice bound the company to proceed with the purchase of the tenement at the end of the six months, and that he was entitled to a mandamus to compel them to do so. Morgan v. Metropolitan Ry., 38 L. J., C. P. 87; L. R. 4 C. P. 97; 19 L. T. 655; 17 W. R. 261—Ex. Ch.

Held, also, that he was entitled to more than nominal damages. Ib.

An incorporated body having raised money under statutory powers by debentures, issued some of these debentures to one of their own body in payment for goods supplied by him, such a transaction being illegal under the statute by which they were constituted a corporate body:—Held, in an action by the executors of an innocent holder for value of such securities, the same having been transferred to him from the original mortgagee in the manner provided by the statute, that they were estopped from setting up as a defence the original illegality of the transaction, and that under the Common Law Procedure Act of 1854, s. 68, the writ was in the proper form in praying for a mandamus to compel them to apply the money in their hands in payment of the plaintiffs' claim, it being shewn that the defendants did hold money in their hands raised under the powers of the statute, and applicable to that purpose, and that it was not necessary that the mandamus should direct the defendants to levy a rate for the purpose of satisfying the plaintiffs' demand. Webb v. Herne Bay Commissioners, 39 L. J., Q. B. 221; L. R. 5 Q. B. 642; 22 L. T. 745; 19 W. R. 241.

When a debt is of such a nature that a mandamus will be granted to enforce its payment, it is not necessary that the amount of the debt should have been previously ascertained, but such amount may be ascertained by the verdict of the jury in the action in which the writ of mandamus is claimed. Ward v. Lowndes, 28 L. J., Q. B. 265; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 1124; 7 W. R. 489. Affirmed, 1 El. & El. 940; 29 L. J., Q. B. 40; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 247; 1 L. T. 268; 8 W. R. 81—Ex. Ch.

A plea that the causes of action did not accrue within six years is a bad plea to a declaration for a mandamus, as the statute of limitations does not bar an application for such a writ. Ib.

A claim to a writ of mandamus cannot be sustained if there is any other equally effectual remedy. Bush v. Beavan, 1 H. & C. 500; 32 L. J., Ex. 54; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 1015; 7 L. T. 106; 10 W. R. 845.

In an action by executors against the clerk of commissioners for putting into execution a town improvement act, and in which action they claimed a writ of mandamus, the declaration stated that the commissioners were indebted to the testator for the agreed salary payable by them to him for services rendered by him as clerk to the commissioners; and also for other work by him, as the attorney of and otherwise for the commissioners in and about their business; that the debts became and were a charge on any moneys which might be in the hands of the commissioners, and which should have been collected by them under and by virtue of the act; and that if the commissioners should not have in their hands any moneys sufficient to pay the debts, then such debts became a charge and were chargeable on a rate leviable and to be levied by the commissioners under the act. They pleaded to so much of the debts as became due on simple contract, the statute of limitations, and to the debts, except the agreed salary, that no signed bill was delivered; also that the commissioners had no funds whereout they could pay the debts:—Held, first, that the declaration was bad, inasmuch as, assuming that the services in respect of which the "agreed salary" was claimed were payable out of the rates, the others might be services for which the commissioners were personally liable, and consequently the remedy was by action, not by a claim of mandamus. Ib.

Held, secondly, that on the same principle the two first pleas were good. Ib.

—— Act of 1852.]—Where a court of equity has issued an order for an injunction restraining a party from bringing an action, a court of common law will enforce such order by staying proceedings, although no writ of injunction has been actually issued. Cobbett v. Ludlam, 11 Ex. 446; 25 L. J., Ex. 25.

A court of law will not stay an action on the ground that there is a suit in equity pending in which the same demand comes in question (even although the demand is for a debt as to which and other demands the plaintiff at law has, in equity, consented to a decree for an account), where the court of equity has not stayed the action by injunction; the court of common law having no jurisdiction to stay proceedings on such a ground, and the provision in the above statute only applying where the court of equity has stayed the action by injunction. Pearse v. Robins, 26 L. J., Ex. 183.

When a plaintiff who has brought proceedings both at law and in equity for the same cause of action elects to proceed in equity under an order of chancery directing that he elect, and that if he elect to proceed in equity the proceedings at law be stayed by injunction, the defendant may, under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 101, serve the plaintiff with notice to proceed in the action, and, in default of his proceeding, enter a suggestion and sign judgment for his costs. Mortimore v. Soares, 1 El. & El. 399; 28 L. J., Q. B. 133; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 574.

The court will not grant a rule nisi to stay such action and subsequent proceedings under s. 226. Ib.

—— Act of 1854—General Principles.]—An injunction must be founded either upon a contract, or an injury to property of a permanent nature. Sutton v. S. E. Ry., 4 H. & C. 325 ; 35 L. J., Ex. 38 ; L. R. 1 Ex. 33 ; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 935 ; 13 L. T. 438 ; 14 W. R. 133.

The court will not grant a writ of injunction, when by so doing the defendant would be called upon to do an illegal act. L. & N. W. Ry. v. Webb, 9 L. T. 291 ; 12 W. R. 51.

—— At what Period granted.]—N. entered into the service of C., a surgeon, as his assistant, under an agreement by which he bound himself not to practise within five miles of a certain village "without the consent in writing of C. first had, under the penalty or penal sum of 100*l.* to be recoverable by C. as liquidated damages, the 100*l.* having been specified by the parties hereto as the amount to be paid and recoverable by C. against N. for the breach or non-observance of the clause." N. having commenced practice within the prescribed distance, C. caused a writ to be served upon him, the indorsement claiming 100*l.* the amount of the penalty, and also that the plaintiff intended to claim a writ of injunction. The court refused to entertain an application for an injunction before declaration. Carnes v. Nisbett, 7 H. & N. 158 ; 31 L. J., Ex. 273 ; 4 L. T. 558 ; 9 W. R. 811.

—— In what Cases granted.]—A plaintiff lent certain photograph portraits to a person who became insolvent, and his assignees having offered the photographs for sale by auction, the defendant purchased them ; and by photographically printing from negatives, he obtained reduced copies, which he published and sold. The plaintiff brought an action against him, and recovered nominal damages for the infringement of the plaintiff's right :—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to a writ of injunction to restrain the defendant from taking or selling any more copies of the photographs, and also to recover them or their value in detinue. Mayall v. Higbey, 1 H. & C. 148 ; 31 L. J., Ex. 329 ; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 622 ; 6 L. T. 362 ; 10 W. R. 631.

A railway company having conveyed to A. a piece of land abutting on their viaduct, with a covenant not to build within six feet of the wall of the viaduct, the court, in an action against A.'s widow (who took by assignment) for building against the wall in breach of the covenant, in which action she had suffered judgment by default, refused to grant an injunction against her commanding her to remove the building ; it appearing that it had been erected by her undertenant, and consequently that she could not obey the writ, if granted. L. & S. W. Ry. v. Webb, 15 C. B. (N.S.) 450 ; 9 L. T. 291 ; 12 W. R. 51.

A plaintiff obtained a verdict and judgment against a shareholder in a cost-book copper mining company, in an action for a nuisance caused by working the mine. The plaintiff having afterwards obtained a rule nisi for an injunction, the court discharged the rule, it appearing by affidavit that the shareholder had bonâ fide sold his shares before notice of the application for an injunction. Matthews v. King, 3 H. & C. 910 ; 13 L. T. 120.

The 17 & 18 Vict. c. 125, s. 82, does not extend to ejectments. Baylis v. Legros, 2 C. B. (N.S.) 316 ; 26 L. J., C. P. 176 ; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 795 ; 5 W. R. 689.

A plaintiff, who sues for liquidated damages on the breach of an agreement, cannot join therewith a claim for an injunction. Carnes v. Nisbett, 30 L. J., Ex. 348 ; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 1250 ; 4 L. T. 558 ; 9 W. R. 811.

By a written agreement the plaintiff engaged the defendant as manager in his trade of a butcher at H., and the defendant promised not to carry on that trade on account of himself or any other person within two miles of that place, under a penalty or a forfeiture of 20*l.* The defendant set up in business as a butcher on his own account within the two miles ; and the plaintiff, who by a writ claimed an injunction, sued him for unliquidated damages, and recovered 20*l.* Under these circumstances the court refused a motion for an injunction. Young v. Chalkley, 16 L. T. 286 ; 15 W. R. 743.

The court will not grant an injunction to restrain a railway company from charging a carrier otherwise than equally with all other persons. Sutton v. S. E. Ry., 4 H. & C. 325 ; 35 L. J., Ex. 38 ; L. R. 1 Ex. 33 ; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 935 ; 13 L. T. 438 ; 14 W. R. 133.

A lessor of a mine or vein of coal covenanted that the lessee should and might peaceably and quietly have, hold, occupy, possess and enjoy the mine without any let, suit, trouble, molestation, interruption or disturbance whatsoever. The lessor, in working ironstone, lying between the surface of the soil and the demised coal, caused part of the roof of the coal mine to crush and fall in, and to be flooded. The working of the ironstone was done in a workmanlike manner :—Held, that these acts constituted a breach of the covenant for which the lessee might maintain an action thereon, and (being continued at the time of action brought) also entitled him to an injunction restraining the lessor from working the ironstone within such a distance of the surface as interfered with the lessee getting the coal with full advantage and profit. Shaw v. Stenton, 2 H. & N. 858 ; 27 L. J., Ex. 253 ; 6 W. R. 327.

In an action for obstructing ancient lights, with a claim for an injunction, after verdict for the plaintiff, the court granted an injunction to restrain the defendant from continuing the wrongful acts complained of, and from committing any injury of the like kind relating to the property and rights of the plaintiff, and from erecting, keeping erected, and continuing the erection of so much of the wall and buildings as was opposite his messuage and premises, so or in such manner as to darken or obstruct any of the ancient lights or windows of the messuage and premises, and from erecting any other building and doing any other act whereby the light and air coming to and entering his messuage and premises by means of the windows might be obstructed, or such messuage and premises might be in any way darkened, and from the repetition or continuance of any act whereby an injury of a like kind might happen to the plaintiff ; the writ of injunction to lie in the office till next term, the defendant undertaking to pull down as much of the wall and building as should be sufficient to restore to the plaintiff the full enjoyment of the light and air he had previously, and to do the same to the satisfaction of a surveyor to be agreed on or nominated by a judge, the defendant to pay the costs of the rule and of the surveyor. Jessel v. Chaplin, 2 Jur. (N.S.) 931 ; 4 W. R. 610.

—— Practice.]—The rule for a writ of injunction to restrain a defendant from infringing a patent, is a rule to shew cause only in the first instance. Gittins v. Symes, 15 C. B. 962; 3 C. L. R. 251; 24 L J., C. P. 48; 3 W. R. 115.

An injunction had been obtained, restraining the defendant from carrying on works so as to be a nuisance to the plaintiff. Upon a motion for the costs of a rule for an attachment for a breach of it:—Held, that the injunction was a continuing injunction, and that it was not necessary to reserve to the plaintiff leave to renew the motion for an attachment in case of any future breach. De La Rue v. Fortescue, 2 H. & N. 324; 26 L. J., Ex. 339.

It is competent for the plaintiff to apply at any time for an attachment in case of disobedience to the injunction. Ib.

A defendant cannot plead to a claim in a declaration for a writ of injunction. Booth v. Taylor, 4 H. & C. 70; 35 L. J., Ex. 56; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 981; 13 L. T. 408; 14 W. R. 131.

A demurrer to so much of a declaration as claims a writ of injunction will not be allowed, unless the facts disclosed shew beyond all doubt that no injunction could be granted. Bilke v. L. C. & D. Ry., 3 H. & C. 95; 33 L. J., Ex. 206; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 777; 10 L. T. 651; 12 W. R. 921.

—— Costs.]—Where in an action for an alleged nuisance, a writ of injunction has issued, commanding the defendant to pay the costs of the writ, the court will stay the proceedings in respect of the costs until after the trial of the cause. Grindley v. Booth, 3 H. & C. 669; 34 L. J., Ex. 135; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 745; 12 L. T. 469.

a. PLACE OF TRIAL.

1. Generally.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XXXVI. r. 1.

In Amended Statement of Claim.]—A plaintiff who wishes to name some place other than Middlesex as the place of trial must name it in the original statement of claim. If he omits to do so, he cannot name it in an amended statement of claim; and if he has named a place of trial in the original statement of claim, he cannot alter it in an amended statement of claim. Locke v. White, 55 L. J., Ch. 731; 33 Ch. D. 308; 54 L. T. 891; 34 W. R. 747—C. A.

Action in Chancery Division.]—Ord. XXXVI. r. 1, enabling a plaintiff in any action to fix the place of trial by his statement of claim, applies to chancery actions. Redmayne v. Vaughan, 24 W. R. 983.

Under Ord. XXXVI. r. 1, a plaintiff is entitled to lay the venue of an action in any place that he pleases, although it is specially assigned to the Chancery Division, and has been commenced in that division. Phillip v. Beale, 54 L. J., Ch. 80; 26 Ch. D. 621; 50 L. T. 433; 32 W. R. 665—C. A.

—— Trial at Assizes of.]—The court has power to order an action, as well as a question or issue of fact, to be tried at the assizes. Wood v. Hamblet, 47 L. J., Ch. 113; 6 Ch. D. 113.

On an application by the plaintiff, with the concurrence of the defendant, in an action in the chancery division, for an order that the action might be tried at the Staffordshire Assizes :—Held, having regard to Ord. XXXVI. rr. 3, 10, and Ord. XXXVI. r. 29a, that an action as well as a question or issue therein might be ordered to be tried before the commissioners of assize ; that inasmuch as the parties desired it, as the action was for damages only, as it related to property in Staffordshire, and as there were a great many local witnesses, the order asked for should be made, and the above reasons stated on the face of the order as the reasons for which it was expedient that the action should be so tried. Ib.

—— Form of Order.]—By Ord. XXXVI. r. 29a, the order directing such trial must state on its face the reason for which it is expedient that the action should be so tried. Where both parties wished it, and the action was for damages only, and related to land in the county where the great majority of the witnesses resided, the court made the order, stating these facts on the face of it as the reason. Ib.

—— Delay in Applying.]—A plaintiff who had set down an action for trial before a judge of the Chancery Division, applied to have a preliminary issue of fact tried at Chester, and the trial of the action postponed. His application was refused on the ground of delay. Lloyd v. Jones, 47 L. J., Ch. 470 ; 7 Ch. D. 390 ; 37 L. T. 524 ; 26 W. R. 262.

A plaintiff, in a partition suit, on the 20th September gave notice of trial before Malins, V.-C., without a jury. On the 19th November he took out a summons in the chambers of Malins, V.-C., asking that an issue of fact might be tried at Chester before any other question of fact was tried. On the 30th November the plaintiff gave notice of motion before Fry, J., to whom the cause had been transferred, that the action might stand out of the paper for hearing until the Hilary sittings, 1878, which was ordered to come on for hearing on the 11th December. On the 7th December Malins, V.-C., at the request of the plaintiff, adjourned the summons to be heard by Fry, J., at the same time as the motion :—Held, that in consequence of the delay on the part of the plaintiff, it would be unjust to the defendant to put off the trial for a further time, and both applications must be dismissed. Ib.

—— Entry at Assizes—Power to Remit.]—In a patent action commenced in the Chancery Division, the plaintiff named Manchester as the place of trial, and the action was set down for trial at Manchester Assizes. When the case came on for trial the judge of assize declined to try it, on the ground of pressure of business, and remitted it for trial in the Chancery Division :—Held, that this was not a sufficient ground for an order under Ord. XXXVI. r. 34, that the case might have been made a remanet, and that the order must be discharged. Fairburn v. Household, 53 L. T. 513—C. A.

A plaintiff had entered his action, being an action for specific performance of a contract, for trial in the associates' book for Middlesex. Motion by the defendant to have it struck out and entered in the chancery registrar's book allowed. Sykes v. Firth, 46 L. J., Ch. 627.

In Crown Cases.]—In an information of intrusion, the crown may, as of its prerogative, lay the venue in any county, without regard to the local situation of the premises. Att.-Gen. v. Parsons, 2 M. & W. 23 ; 2 Gale, 227 ; 5 D. P. C. 165 ; 1 Tyr. & G. 980 ; 5 L. J., Ex. 243.

But the crown is not entitled by its prerogative, as matter of right, to change the venue in such an information. Att.-Gen. v. Churchill (Lord), 8 M. & W. 171 ; 9 D. P. C. 772 ; 10 L. J., Ex. 314 ; 5 Jur. 803.

Semble, that the attorney-general for the Prince of Wales has in transitory actions the same powers with regard to laying and retaining the venue in causes arising within the duchy of Cornwall, as the attorney-general for the crown. Att.-Gen. (Prince of Wales) v. Crossman, 4 H. & C. 568 ; L. R. 1 Ex. 381 ; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 712 ; 14 L. T. 856 ; 14 W. R. 996.

Local Venue—Jurisdiction.]—In an action of debt founded on privity of estate, the venue is local. Whitaker v. Forbes, 45 L. J., C. P. 140 ; 1 C. P. D. 51 ; 33 L. T. 582 ; 24 W. R. 241—C. A.

An executor of the grantee of a rent-charge on land situate in Australia, sued in England the devisee of the lands, in debt for nonpayment thereof :—Held (there being no privity of contract between the parties), that the action was founded on privity of estate, and, in accordance with principle and settled authority, was a local action, and could only be brought in Australia. Ib.

An action for damages for trespass to land situated in a foreign country, founded on a disputed claim of title to such land, cannot be tried in the courts of this country. British South Africa Co. v. Companhia de Moçambique, 63 L. J., Q. B. 70 ; [1893] A. C. 602 ; 6 R. 1 ; 69 L. T. 604—H. L. (E.)

—— Effect of Abolition of.]—Ord. XXXVI. r. 1 (R. S. C., 1883), which abolishes local venues, is a rule of procedure only, and does not affect the jurisdiction of the courts of this country. Ib.

By Ord. XXXVI. r. 1, of the Rules of 1883, it is enacted that "there shall be no local venue for the trial of any action, except where otherwise provided by statute" :—Held, that this exception applied only to local venues created by statutes passed since the Judicature Act, 1875, and that all local venues created by statute before that date are abolished. Buckley v. Hull Docks Co., 62 L. J., Q. B. 449 ; [1893] 2 Q. B. 93 ; 5 R. 547 ; 69 L. T. 347.

The provisions of the Highways Act, 1835, s. 109, as to local venue are abolished by the Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XXXVI. r. 1. Phelips v. Hadham Highway District Board, 1 Cab. & E. 67.

—— Action against Constable.]—Sect. 19 of 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 41, by which, in all actions for anything done in pursuance of that act, the venue is to be local, applies only to such acts as a constable might at the date of the statute have been called upon to perform ; the section therefore does not apply in the case of a constable acting under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, 1878. Bryson v. Russell, 54 L. J., Q. B. 144 ; 14 Q. B. D. 720 ; 52 L. T. 208 ; 33 W. R. 34 ; 49 J. P. 293—C. A.

Venue—Marginal Statement—Declaration.]—The marginal statement of venue is incorporated with the declaration, and therefore in a local action it amounted to an averment that the cause of action arose in the county named. Richardson v. Locklin, 34 L. J., Q. B. 225 ; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 951 ; 12 L. T. 728 ; 13 W. R. 940.

2. Change of Place of Trial.

a. On what Grounds.

General Rule.]—A plaintiff may lay the venue where he pleases, and it is for the defendant who seeks to change it to shew a manifest preponderance of convenience in favour of such change. Cossham v. Leach, 32 L. T. 665.

In an action where the claim is for a substantial amount, the venue which the plaintiff desires to have is not to be changed from London to the country unless there is some very strong reason for so doing. Ross v. Napier, 30 L. J., Ex. 2 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 1161 ; 3 L. T. 442.

The court will not change the venue from the place where the plaintiff has thought fit to lay it, unless there is some great and obvious preponderance of convenience in trying the cause elsewhere. Drury v. Hopwood, 7 C. B. (N.S.) 835 ; 29 L. J., C. P. 151 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 705. S. P., Helliwell v. Hobson, 3 C. B. (N.S.) 761.

The court will not change a venue laid by a plaintiff unless a defendant can shew some serious injury and injustice to his case by trying it at that venue. Shroder v. Myers, 34 W. R. 261—C. A.

Residence of Witnesses and Convenience.]—The mere circumstance of a plaintiff being an officer in the navy, and hoping to be shortly appointed to a ship, which would disable him from attending to give evidence at the trial if the venue was changed, is sufficient to induce the court to retain the venue where laid, although it is sworn that all the defendant's witnesses resided at the place to which it was sought to change it. Channon v. Parkhouse, 13 C. B. (N.S.) 341.

In an action for the specific performance of an agreement, wherein fraud and concealment connected with the conveyance of certain mines and property in the county of Cornwall were alleged, it appeared that the plaintiff resided at Wakefield, in Yorkshire, and most of the witnesses and the defendant in or within an easy distance of London, but that one of the most important witnesses, who was eighty years old, lived in Cornwall, and that the place of business of the solicitor who transacted the business connected with the conveyance was at Plymouth. The plaintiff in his statement of claim had fixed the venue at Exeter. On a motion by the defendant that the venue might be changed to Middlesex, on the ground of convenience and to save expense, and because the action was one which ought properly to be assigned to the Chancery Division, and contained points of law which would probably be referred from the assizes to London :—Held, that the venue must be changed to Middlesex, not because the action was a chancery action, but on the ground of convenience for the witnesses and of saving expense ; also that the necessary delay which must ensue was not in itself a sufficient reason for permitting the case to go to the assizes. Green v. Bennett, 54 L. J., Ch. 85 ; 50 L. T. 706 ; 32 W. R. 848.

In an action for the breach of a contract made at Liverpool, where the defendant resided, and where the contract was to be performed, the venue was laid in London. A judge on the defendant's application ordered the venue to be changed to Liverpool, upon an affidavit that all his witnesses, thirteen in number, resided there, and that a cross action arising out of the contract was pending there, notwithstanding that the plaintiff's affidavit stated that all but one of his witnesses, twenty-eight in number, resided in London. The court refused to interfere. Levy v. Rice, L. R. 5 C. P. 119 ; 21 L. T. 717 ; 18 W. R. 458.

In an action on a note, the court will not change the venue from London to the county where it was made, on the defendant stating that all his witnesses live there ; but if his affidavit shews the number of his witnesses, and that a serious inconvenience will arise from bringing them up, it will. Evans v. Weaver, 1 Bos. & P. 20.

In an action on a bond, the court, upon the application of the defendant, will change the venue to the place where his defence arises, and the witnesses reside. Foster v. Taylor, 1 Term Rep. 781.

The court will not change the venue, in an action on a deed, to the county where it was executed, on the ground of the defendant's witnesses residing there, if from the pleadings it does not appear necessary to produce many witnesses from that county, unless a question is raised which cannot be expected to be fairly tried there. Watt v. Daniel, 1 Bos. & P. 425.

Twenty-five witnesses and a horse on one side against ten witnesses on the other :—Held, not such a preponderance of inconvenience as to induce the court to bring back the venue from the place where the cause of action (if any) arose. Blackman v. Bainton, 15 C. B. (N.S.) 432.

It is no ground for changing the venue in an action for a libel contained in a letter written and sent to a person in the county to which the venue is sought to be changed, that the defendant (who has pleaded not guilty only) has many witnesses resident in that county whom he intends to call in mitigation, and that the plaintiff has no witnesses in the county where the venue was originally laid. Wheatcroft v. Mousley, 11 C. B. 677.

The venue had been removed from Berkshire to Middlesex at the instance of the plaintiff, upon a suggestion that a material witness was ill and not likely to live till the next assizes. The witness dying, and it appearing that another cause between the same parties and arising out of the same transaction stood for trial at the next assizes for Berkshire, and that most of the witnesses in both actions resided at or near Reading, the venue was restored to Berkshire, on terms. Knight v. Bigsby, 6 Scott (N.R.) 168.

In an action against bankers at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, a rule to change the venue from London to Cumberland or Northumberland was made absolute, with certain conditions as to the defraying by the defendant of the additional expenses of the plaintiff's witnesses, on the ground of the great inconvenience which would be occasioned by the defendant's having to carry their banking books and clerks to London. Attwood v. Ridley, 2 Man. & G. 893 ; 3 Scott (N.R.) 319.

The plaintiff had become bankrupt and had assigned all his interest, and was anxious to go abroad permanently ; he was a material witness ; the court changed the venue to London on security for costs being given. James v. Isaac, 1 W. R. 355.

Impartial Trial.]—In support of an application to enter a suggestion to try a cause in Nottinghamshire instead of Lincolnshire, upon the ground that the lessor of the plaintiff could not have a fair and impartial trial in the former county, an affidavit was produced alleging that two attorneys, whom the lessor of the plaintiff had successively employed to conduct the cause, had abandoned his interest, the one on account of a bribe paid to him by the defendant, the other on account of an intimacy which existed between him and the defendant, and also that the defendant was a person of large property and possessing great influence in the county, and that he had said he would "do as he liked at Lincoln," more especially as the lessor of the plaintiff was a poor man:—Held, insufficient. Doe d. Hickman v. Hickman, 9 D. P. C. 364.

Manifestations of applause at the close of counsel's speech by some of the jury at the first trial, is not a sufficient ground for changing the venue of the second trial. O'Connor v. Malone, Macl. & R. 468; 6 Cl. & F. 572.

It is no ground for changing the venue, in an action for a libel contained in a local newspaper, that the defendant, the proprietor, possesses much influence in the county in which the venue is laid, and has, since the commencement of the action, evinced a disposition to exercise it to the prejudice of the plaintiff. Walker v. Brogden, 17 C. B. (N.S.) 571.

But the court intimated that it would interfere if the defendant should, before the trial, publish anything in relation to the matter of the action reflecting upon the plaintiff. Ib. See Watt v. Daniel, 1 Bos. & P. 425.

An action was brought for a series of libels in a Bristol newspaper, and the plaintiff, the defendant, and a large number of witnesses resided near Bristol. The plaintiff laid the venue in Middlesex and the master changed it to Bristol. The plaintiff's solicitor deposed that the alleged libels had given rise to strong local prejudice, rendering it impossible that the action could be fairly tried at Bristol:—Held, that the venue must be restored to Middlesex. Cossham v. Leach, 32 L. T. 665.

The court will make a rule absolute for entering a suggestion on the record, to remove the trial of a cause from the county where the cause of action arose, and where the venue is laid, to an adjoining county, the action being for trespass on a close, and it being sworn that the defendant and others riotously and tumultuously assembled and broke down the fences, without imposing any terms upon the plaintiff. Jones v. Price, 7 D. P. C. 103.

It is a ground for an application to change the venue, that the attorney for the defendant is under-sheriff of the county where the venue is laid, and has made it a special jury case. Hilton v. Green, 10 W. R. 627.

It is not a sufficient reason to change the venue of an issue to try the validity of a will that one of the parties interested, and whose conduct is impeached, is lord lieutenant of the county where the action is to be tried. Hopwood v. Derby (Earl), 1 Kay & J. 255.

The influence upon the minds of the jurors, which might possibly be produced by the reputation of a material witness on a trial, in affecting the relative credit to be given to the testimony of that and the other witnesses, is no ground for changing the venue from the county or neighbourhood in which such material witness resides and is best known. M'Gregor v. Topham, 3 Hare, 488.

Cause of Action arising—Breach.]—A judge having made an order to change the venue from Middlesex to London, upon an affidavit stating that the action was brought for a breach of duty by the defendant, as the plaintiff's agent in the sale of indigo; that the sale took place in London; that the cause of action, if any, arose there; and that, in the deponent's judgment and belief, the cause ought to be tried by a jury of merchants in London; the court refused to disturb it. Begg v. Forbes, 13 C. B. 614.

View Necessary.]—In an action upon a covenant upon a lease, a view being proper to be had, the venue was changed to the county where the premises lay, though most of the plaintiff's witnesses resided in the county where the venue was laid. Hodinott v. Cox, 8 East, 268.

Most Eminent Counsel Retained.]—It is not a sufficient reason for changing the venue that either party has retained the most eminent counsel on the circuit in which the venue lies, unless it is done oppressively. Curtis v. Lewis, 12 W. R. 951.

Where Jury unable to Agree.]—Where the jury on the trial of an action against a candidate for election expenses could not agree, the court permitted the venue to be changed to London or Middlesex. Brown v. Vernon, 2 L. T. 251.

b. Who may Apply.

One of several Defendants.]—A motion to change the venue cannot be made by one of three defendants without the consent of the other two, notwithstanding they have suffered judgment by default, and colluded with the plaintiff, as it was suggested, to withhold their consent. Anon., 2 Chit. 417.

One of several defendants may in general change the venue on the common affidavit without the consent of the others; and if the latter were prejudiced by that step they should have applied on special grounds to bring it back. Job v. Butterfield, 1 L. M. & P. 734; 5 Ex. 827; 20 L. J., Ex. 8.

Under Terms to take Short Notice of Trial.]—Where a defendant is under terms to take short notice of trial he cannot move to change the venue upon the common affidavit. Clulee or Cluny v. Bradley, 13 C. B. 604; 2 C. L. R. 1; 23 L. J., C. P. 38; 18 Jur. 177; 2 W. R. 79.

The fact of a defendant being under terms to take short notice of trial does not absolutely preclude him from applying to change the venue where the case is in other respects a fit one for the exercise of a judge's discretion. Jackson v. Kidd, 8 C. B. (N.S.) 354; 29 L. J., C. P. 221; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 1094, 1117.

c. When Application to be made.

Not before Issue Joined or Plea Pleaded.]—It is more convenient, as a general rule, that the application to change the venue be made before issue joined; but this should not prejudice either party from applying after issue is joined to lay the venue in another county, if it shall appear that it may be more conveniently tried in such county. De Rothschild v. Shilston, 8 Ex. 503; 22 L. J., Ex. 279; 17 Jur. 561; 1 W. R. 439.

In the Common Pleas an order to change the venue of an action could not be granted till after issue joined. Ramsden v. Skip, 13 C. B. 601; 22 L. J., C. P. 186; 17 Jur. 537; 1 W. R. 353.

The venue may be changed in an action on a specialty before issue joined upon an affidavit disclosing special circumstances. Pashley v. Birmingham Corporation, 14 C. B. 421.

If the pleadings and facts of the case are such that the court cannot fail to see what the issues joined must be, the application may be granted before issue joined. Dowler v. Collis, 4 M. & W. 531; 7 D. P. C. 55; 8 L. J., Ex. 47.

In an action on a note the application to change the venue cannot be made before plea. Parmeter v. Otway, 3 D. P. C. 66.

If a motion to change the venue rests on special grounds it ought not to be made till after plea. Cotterill v. Dixon, 1 C. & M. 661; 3 Tyr. 705; 2 D. P. C. 112.

In a local action a suggestion to try the cause in an adjoining county could not be granted before issue joined. Tolson v. Carlisle (Bishop), 7 C. B. 79.

In an action on a specialty, an application to change the venue cannot be made until after issue joined. Youde v. Youde, 4 D. P. C. 32; 1 H. & W. 338.

Or in a local action, under 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 22, cannot be made till issue is joined. Bell v. Harrison, 2 C. M. & R. 733; 4 D. P. C. 181; 1 Gale, 269.

The court will not, before issue joined, entertain a motion to change the venue in an action on a specialty. Weatherby v. Goring, 5 D. & R. 441; 3 B. & C. 552.

In an action of covenant on a farming lease, the court will not change the venue before issue joined. Maude v. Sessions, 1 C. M. & R. 86. S. C., nom. Bohrs v. Sessions, 2 D. P. C. 699; 4 Tyr. 272; 3 L. J., Ex. 354.

The venue cannot be changed in an indictment for conspiracy until issue is joined. Rex v. Forbes, 2 D. P. C. 440.

The venue in an action of slander could not be changed on special grounds until after issue joined. Hodge v. Churchward, 5 C. B. 495; 5 D. & L. 514; 17 L. J., C. P. 175; 12 Jur. 247.

d. Affidavits on Application.

By whom made.]—It is not of itself a sufficient objection to an affidavit for changing the venue, that it is made by the attorney in the cause, and not by the defendant. Biddell v. Smith, 2 D. P. C. 219.

Good Defence.]—An affidavit of a good defence on the merits is not necessary where the facts sworn to amount to a good defence; e.g. where it is sworn that the debt has been satisfied. Johnson v. Beresford, 2 C. & M. 222; 4 Tyr. 75; 2 D. P. C. 260; 3 L. J., Ex. 37.

Cause of Action.]—An affidavit to change the venue must state the cause of action. Fenwick v. Farrow, 1 Chit. 334.

So an affidavit to change the venue from A. to B. must state that the cause of action arose in B. and not in A., or elsewhere out of B. Allen v. Griffiths, 3 Term Rep. 495.

An application to change the venue from A. to B. in an action for goods sold and delivered, upon an affidavit that the cause of action arose at B. and not elsewhere, may be successfully answered by an affidavit that the goods were sold at C. Collins v. Jacobs, 3 Bos. & P. 579.

An affidavit must not only state that the cause of action arose in the county to which the removal is prayed, but also that it did not arise elsewhere. Jones v. Pearce, 2 D. P. C. 54.

A defendant in his affidavit to obtain a rule nisi to change the venue, or in support of a summons for that purpose before issue joined, should state all the circumstances on which he means to rely as the ground for the change of the venue; but he may, if he pleases, rely only on the fact that the cause of action arose in the county to which he seeks to have the venue changed, which ground shall be deemed sufficient, unless the plaintiff shews that the cause may be more conveniently tried in the county in which it was originally laid, or other good reason why the venue should not be changed. De Rothschild v. Shilston, 8 Ex. 503; 22 L. J., Ex. 279; 17 Jur. 561; 1 W. R. 439.

The common affidavit that the cause of action arose in the county to which the venue is sought to be changed is insufficient; the special circumstances of the cases must be shewn as ground for the application. Ramsden v. Skip, 13 C. B. 601; 22 L. J., C. P. 186; 17 Jur. 537; 1 W. R. 353.

The rule that the venue cannot be changed on the common affidavit after plea is still in force. Begg v. Forbes, 13 C. B. 614; 2 C. L. R. 856; 23 L. J., C. P. 222.

The new rule as to change of venue only changes the practice in so far that the order cannot be made of course on the common affidavit, but it must be made by the court or a judge on a rule of summons, so that it may be answered in the first instance. Ib.

—— Manifestly Incorrect.]—A declaration on a policy of insurance from Baltimore to Liverpool alleged a loss by perils of the sea. The court refused to allow the venue to be changed from the southern division of Lancashire to London, upon the usual affidavit that the cause of action arose in London and not elsewhere, the declaration shewing that such statement could not be correct, although the policy was effected in London and the loss was payable there. Butler v. Fox, 7 C. B. 970; 7 D. & L. 112; 18 L. J., C. P. 304.

Must shew Balance of Convenience.]—The court refused to change the venue after issue joined, and notice of trial given, where it was not shewn in the affidavit in support of the application that the change would not be inconvenient to the plaintiff, or in what respect it would be productive of convenience for the defendant. Hams v. Pawlett, 5 D. & L. 780; 5 C. B. 807; 17 L. J., C. P. 210.

In Opposition.]—On a motion to change the venue from London to Worcester, on the usual affidavit, an affidavit, stating that the action was brought for the seduction of the plaintiff's daughter, and that she was so ill that it was not expected that she would live till the assizes, is a sufficient answer to the application. Wing v. Jenkins, 7 Moore, 62.

The court discharged a rule for changing the venue on an affidavit that the defendant's attorney had said that he should change the venue to postpone the trial, and (which was the fact) that in the interim an act would come into operation which would defeat the plaintiff's claim. Amner v. Cattell, 5 Bing. 208 ; 2 M. & P. 367 ; 7 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 78.

An affidavit to bring back the venue, made by the plaintiff's wife, is insufficient, unless it appears that the husband was too ill to attend before a commissioner to make one, and that the wife is fully acquainted with the nature and particulars of the action. The proper person to make the affidavit under such circumstances is the plaintiff's attorney. Williams v. Higgs, 6 M. & W. 133 ; 8 D. P. C. 165 ; 9 L. J., Ex. 59 ; 4 Jur. 73.

A plaintiff falsifying the defendant's affidavit to change the venue, the venue was retained, though the plaintiff could not undertake to give material evidence in London, where he had laid it ; either venue being inconvenient to one or other of the parties. Dick v. Norrish, 3 Taunt. 464.

e. Practice.

Terms on which Granted.]—A summons to change the venue from London to Newcastle being opposed by the plaintiff, the judge indorsed the summons, "No order, the plaintiff undertaking to tax, if successful, as if tried in Northumberland" : — Held, that this was binding upon the plaintiff as an undertaking, though no order was ever drawn up. Clarke v. Tyne Improvement Commissioners, 37 L. J., C. P. 110 ; L. R. 3 C. P. 230 ; 17 L. T. 509 ; 16 W. R. 480.

In taxing the costs on the footing of this undertaking, the master has a discretion as to what expenses would probably not have been incurred if the cause had been tried at Newcastle ; and the court will not interfere with such taxation unless clearly shewn that the discretion has been wrongly exercised. Ib.

A cause having been set down for trial in Middlesex, and a rule obtained for a special jury, the parties agreed that the venue should be changed to London, and that the costs occasioned by the arrangement should be costs in the cause. At the trial the cause was referred to an arbitrator : —Held, that the successful party was entitled to the additional costs of the special jury occasioned by the change of venue from Middlesex to London. Greve or Geeres v. Gorton, 15 M. & W. 186 ; 3 D. & L. 481 ; 15 L. J., Ex. 169 ; 10 Jur. 272.

Where a plaintiff is entitled to change the venue as a matter of right, the court will not, at the instance of the defendant, impose terms. Turnley v. L. & N. W. Ry., 16 C. B. 575.

Where the order is intended to be without prejudice to a change of venue, it should be so expressed in the summons. Waring v. Holt, 3 Price, 3.

Order not drawn up — Original Venue.]—Where an order has been made by indorsement on a summons, either by a judge or by the opposite party, to change the venue to a different county, the trial in such county, after notice of trial for such county, is a mere irregularity, although the order has not been properly drawn up nor the venue in the declaration altered according to it ; and the proceedings will not be set aside after judgment has been signed, or the first four days of the next ensuing term have elapsed. Selwyn v. Smith, 26 L. J., Ex. 226.

Appeal from Discretion.]—Where a defendant, on an application to change the venue on the ground of preponderance of convenience in a trial at the place to which he seeks to change it, comes by way of appeal from a judge at chambers, he must make out such a strong case of preponderance of convenience as will satisfy the court that the determination of the judge was wrong. Church v. Barnett, 40 L. J., C. P. 138 ; L. R. 6 C. P. 116 ; 23 L. T. 705 ; 19 W. R. 411.

In an action by an owner of a ship against the Mersey Dock and Harbour Board for negligence, whereby the ship was lost, the venue was laid in London. A similar action by the owner of the cargo had been tried at Liverpool, and a verdict found for the defendants. The judge who tried that cause having, on the defendant's application, refused an order changing the venue to Liverpool, being of opinion that a fair trial could not be had there, the court refused to interfere, although the parties and all the witnesses resided there, and a view would be necessary, and great inconvenience and expense would result from the trial in London. Penhallow v. Mersey Dock and Harbour Board, 29 L. J., Ex. 21.

The court will not interfere to set aside a judge's order to change the venue made after issue joined, the defendant being under terms of taking short notice of trial, on the ground that the affidavit on which the order was made was insufficient. Cartwright v. Frost, 3 H. & N. 278 ; 27 L. J., Ex. 352 ; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 464 ; 6 W. R. 542.

Where the venue was changed from L. to S., on an affidavit that the cause of action arose at S., and the witnesses lived there :—Held, that this was not the common affidavit, and that the decision of the judge ought not to be interfered with. Ib.

When a judge has, in the exercise of his discretion, made an order to change the venue, the court will not interfere, unless it is manifest that he has acted upon a misconception of the facts. Schuster v. Wheelwright, 8 C. B. (N.S.) 383 ; 29 L. J., C. P. 222 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 944.

Or unless some overwhelming inconvenience or injustice would otherwise result. Ross v. Napier, 30 L. J., Ex. 2 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 1161 ; 3 L. T. 442.

In an action for a wrongful distress in Buckinghamshire, the venue having been changed thereto, the court refused to bring it back to Middlesex merely on the ground that some of the witnesses resided there. Benham v. Wetherel, 11 W. R. 66.

Where a cause of action arose in the country, and the venue had been changed from London thither, it is no ground for bringing it back to London that as sittings there would be more frequent than the assizes, it would be more convenient for the plaintiff to try there than in the country, and the expense would not be much greater. Cole v. Hull Dock Co., 11 W. R. 284.

In a probate suit, where the nominal plaintiff, who was claiming an intestacy, had inserted the place of trial in his statement of claim, the defendants, who were propounding a will of the deceased, and upon whom the onus of proof at the trial would lie to establish that will, applied upon summons to change the venue from the assizes to Middlesex, and the judge made the order. Upon the plaintiff's appealing, upon motion, to set aside the order :—Held, that the order was right, that the venue should stand changed, and that the case should come on for trial in the Probate Court, the more especially as there appeared to be a doubt as to whether the case could be conveniently disposed of at the approaching assizes. From this order the plaintiffs, upon special leave given, appealed to the Court of Appeal; whereupon the Lords Justices, after consulting the judge appointed to preside at the assizes in question, and having ascertained from him that the cause-list was a light one, and that the case could, without difficulty, be disposed of at the approaching assizes, and that there was a misapprehension in supposing that it could not, directed the case to be so tried, and ordered accordingly. Jackson v. Braithwaite, 63 L. T. 231—C. A.

Amendment of Statement of Claim.]—A plaintiff who wishes to name some place other than Middlesex as the place of trial must name it in the original statement of claim. If he omits to do so, he cannot name it in an amended statement of claim; and if he has named a place of trial in the original statement of claim, he cannot alter it in an amended statement of claim. Locke v. White, 55 L. J., Ch. 731; 33 Ch. D. 308; 54 L. T. 891; 34 W. R. 747—C. A.

A declaration for a penalty was amended by altering the venue from the county at large to an inferior jurisdiction, after the time limited for commencing a new action; the particularity of the declaration making it appear probable to the court that the plaintiff was proceeding on the same fact for which the action was originally brought when laid by mistake in the wrong county, though there was no affidavit that it was the same. Petre v. Craft, 4 East, 433.

So also in another case, though it appeared that there were distinct causes of action in the two different counties, upon an affidavit that the plaintiff proceeded on a mistake in supposing that both causes of action could be proved in the county where the election was holden. Dover v. Mestaer, 5 East, 435; 1 Smith, 123.

The court will not amend a declaration, by changing the venue, unless the plaintiff shews substantial ground for it. Fife v. Bowstead or Bousfield, 2 D. (N.S.) 705; 12 L. J., Q. B. 186; 7 Jur. 491.

Where a plaintiff is entitled to amend his declaration, by changing the venue, as a matter of right, the court will not, at the instance of the defendant, impose terms. Turnley v. L. & N. W. Ry., 16 C. B. 575.

b. Mode of Trial.

1. Trial by Judge alone, or by Judge and Jury.

See Ord. XXXVI. rr. 2—10.

Commercial List — Application by Plaintiff before Appearance.]—After the issue of the writ in a commercial cause the judge charged with commercial causes may, upon the application of the plaintiff, and before the defendant has appeared or the time limited for appearance has expired, order that the cause be entered in the commercial list, and that the costs of the application be costs in the cause. Barry v. Peruvian Corporation, 65 L. J., Q. B. 191; [1896] 1 Q. B. 208; 73 L. T. 678; 44 W. R. 487—C. A.

The defendant may appear and apply to the judge to set aside the order but only upon the ground that the cause is not in fact a commercial cause. Ib.

—— Evidence.]—The judge charged with commercial business has no greater power than other judges to dispense with the technical rules of evidence. Baerlein v. Chartered Bank of India, London and China, 65 L. J., Ch. 54; [1895] 2 Ch. 488; 12 R. 581; 72 L. T. 850; 43 W. R. 692—C. A.

Order for Trial by Judge with Jury—Discretion.]—A party who desires that an action shall be tried with a jury must obtain an order to that effect; and if the case falls within Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, the master has no discretion but must make the order. Trower v. Law Life Assurance Society, 54 L. J., Q. B. 407; 52 L. T. 888; 33 W. R. 674—C. A.

Before Rules of 1883—In ordinary Cases Party might insist on Trial by Jury.]—Where a plaintiff gives notice of trial before a judge sitting with assessors, the defendant has a right under Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, by giving notice within the time specified, to insist on a trial before a judge and jury; and the Judicature Acts and Rules of Court do not give power to the court or a judge to deprive him of this right. Sugg v. Silber, 45 L. J., Q. B. 460; 1 Q. B. D. 362; 34 L. T. 682; 24 W. R. 640.

The plaintiff's claim in a suit for administration instituted prior to the 1st of November, 1875, having been disputed, he, after issue joined subsequently to the 1st of November, 1875, gave notice of trial with a jury in Middlesex, but subsequently intimated to the defendant that the trial would be before the judge only, and the case was set down for hearing. The defendant having claimed to have a jury:—Held, that, under Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, the defendant had the right which he claimed; and that where the case was of a nature fit to be tried by a jury, the right should not ordinarily be interfered with by the exercise of the discretion given to the court by r. 26. Clarke v. Cookson, 45 L. J., Ch. 752; 2 Ch. D. 746; 34 L. T. 646; 24 W. R. 535.

An order was made in a patent cause by a judge at chambers, at the instance of the plaintiff, in opposition to the wish of the defendant, that the cause should be tried before a judge sitting with assessors, and that the notice of trial, given before the Judicature Acts, should be varied accordingly; the defendant thereupon gave notice that he required to have the issues of fact tried before a judge and jury; the plaintiff having applied to have assessors nominated in pursuance of the order, the judge at chambers referred the whole matter to the court:—Held, that the defendant was entitled, under Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, to have the case tried by a judge and jury, instead of by a judge and assessors. Ib.

Any party to an action now has a right, subject to the control of the court, and to the observance of certain formalities, to submit issues of fact to a jury. Clements v. Norris, 6 Ch. D. 129; 38 L. T. 591; 26 W. R. 94.

The court will distinguish between what ought and what ought not to go to a jury. Ib.

In an action for a mandatory injunction to restrain the defendant from permitting a building to remain so as to obstruct the plaintiff's ancient lights, the defendant having given notice under Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, for the trial of issues of fact by jury, on a motion by the plaintiffs that the action might be tried by a judge without a jury:—Held, that the case did not come within that rule, and that the defendant was entitled to have the action tried according to his notice. Bordier v. Burrell, 46 L. J., Ch. 615; 5 Ch. D. 512; 25 W. R. 801.

The defendant in a civil action for libel has the same right to a trial by jury as a defendant in any other civil action; he has no higher right. Fox's Act (32 Geo. 3, c. 60) does not apply to a civil action for libel. Thomas v. Williams, 49 L. J., Ch. 605; 14 Ch. D. 864; 43 L. T. 91; 28 W. R. 983.

Where all Defendants do not Concur.]—When there are two or more defendants to an action or suit, one of them alone, in opposition to or without the concurrence of the others, is not entitled, under Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, to require the action to be tried before a jury. Back v. Hay, 5 Ch. D. 235; 36 L. T. 295; 25 W. R. 392.

Where there is more than one defendant, and all do not desire, that is, do not request a trial before a jury, the court will not comply with the request of one defendant to have the action tried before a jury unless it is of opinion that the case comes within Ord. XXXVI. r. 27. The refusal of one defendant does not prevent an action being tried before a jury; but it imposes on the defendant who desires such a trial the duty of shewing that it is more convenient. Mirehouse v. Barnett, 47 L. J., Ch. 689; 26 W. R. 690.

Time for Application for Trial by Jury.]—By Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, upon the application within ten days after notice of trial has been given, of any party for a trial with a jury of the cause, an order shall be made for a trial with a jury. Notice of a trial was given by the plaintiff, but the cause was not entered for trial by either party within the time prescribed by the rules, and the notice was therefore no longer in force. The plaintiff gave a second notice of trial, entered the cause for trial on the same day, and then applied for a trial by jury:—Held, that under Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, the application for a jury was too late. Tonsley v. Heffer, 56 L. J., Q. B. 656; 19 Q. B. D. 153; 57 L. T. 481; 36 W. R. 48.

An action for an injunction and account having been commenced, the plaintiff moved on the 11th December, 1885, for an interim injunction. An order was then made that the motion should stand over until the trial of the action, the plaintiff undertaking to set down the cause for trial forthwith, and deliver a statement of claim within ten days. The defendant gave an undertaking in the terms of the notice of motion. The notice of trial was given on the 12th December, 1885, the statement of claim was delivered on the 19th December, 1885, and the defence and counterclaim were delivered on the 4th January, 1886. On the same date plaintiff received notice of the defendant's intention to apply for a trial before a jury:—Held, upon the construction of the Rules of Court, Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, as amended by the Rules of Court of December, 1885, that the application was made too late, and that no case had been made out for the exercise of the discretion to enlarge the time under the Rules of Court, 1883, Ord. LXIV. r. 7. Moore v. Deakin, 53 L. T. 858; 34 W. R. 227.

Interpleader.]—An interpleader issue having been directed, the issue was drawn up for trial with a jury, and the trial took place before a judge and a jury. A new trial having been ordered, the plaintiff gave notice of trial before a judge alone. The defendant did not give a counter-notice, but objected at the trial to the jurisdiction of the judge to try the case without a jury:—Held, that it was not competent for the plaintiff to give such notice, and that the issue could not be tried by a judge without a jury. Hamlyn v. Betteley, 50 L. J., Q. B. 1; 6 Q. B. D. 63; 43 L. T. 790; 29 W. R. 275—C. A. See now Rules of Supreme Court, 1883, Ord. LVII. r. 13.

Right to Trial by Judge and Jury—Discretion.]—An action commenced in the Queen's Bench Division which before the Judicature Act, 1873, might have been brought in either the chancery or common law courts, is a cause or matter within Ord. XXXVI. r. 4, which "could without any consent of parties have been tried without a jury," and the defendants cannot as a matter of right have the action tried with a jury. Baring v. North-Western of Uruguay Ry., [1893] 2 Q. B. 406; 9 R. 614; 69 L. T. 740—C. A.

Rule 6 of Ord. XXXVI. of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, does not give a right to an order for a trial with a jury in an action in the Chancery Division, that being an action which, before the Judicature Act, 1873, could, without any consent of parties, have been tried without a jury. In such an action the court has a discretion, under rule 7 (a), to order a trial with a jury, but the onus is on the party asking for that mode of trial to shew some good reason for it. Jenkins v. Bushby, 60 L. J., Ch. 254; [1891] 1 Ch. 484; 64 L. T. 213; 39 W. R. 321—C. A.

Causes or matters, which previously to the passing of the Judicature Act could, without any consent of parties, have been tried without a jury, are excluded from the operation of Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, and the parties are, therefore, not entitled as of right to a trial with a jury. In such causes or matters an application for a trial with a jury must be made under Ord. XXXVI. r. 7, in which case it is in the discretion of the court or judge to grant the application. The Temple Bar, 55 L. J., P. 1; 11 P. D. 6; 53 L. T. 904; 34 W. R. 68; 5 Asp. M. C. 509—C. A.

In an action in rem for necessaries for a ship the trial was directed to be before a judge at the assizes. The plaintiff applied for an order that the action should be tried with a jury, alleging that he was entitled under Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, to such an order as of right. The judge refused the application:—Held, that the action was not within Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, and that the application could only be made under r. 7 of that order, and therefore the judge would have a discretion to grant the application. Ib.

Where, in an action brought in the Chancery Division to restrain a nuisance, either party applies for a trial by jury, he cannot claim a jury as a matter of right, but the application is one to the discretion of the court under Ord. XXXVI. r. 7 (a), and he has not even such primâ facie right to a jury as to throw on the other side the burden of shewing that the case can be tried as well without a jury. Tinson v. Wilson, 38 Ch. D. 72; 59 L. T. 76; 36 W. R. 418—C. A.

The right of a defendant, under r. 6 of Ord. XXXVI., to have an issue of fact sent for trial by a judge and jury, is subject to the discretion of the court under rr. 4 and 5 of the same order; and the court, in the exercise of such discretion, will refuse to send the issue for trial by a judge and jury, if it does not appear desirable. Moss v. Bradburn, 32 W. R. 368.

An action which falls within one of the classes of actions which by s. 34 of the Judicature Act, 1873, are especially assigned to the Chancery Division, will not be sent for trial by a jury unless it involves a simple issue of fact, the determination of which will decide the action. If such an action depends on the determination of mixed questions of law and fact, it ought to be tried by a judge without a jury, and an order will be made for its trial by the judge of the Chancery Division to whom it has been assigned, without a jury, even though the plaintiff has by his statement of claim proposed a different venue. The mere fact that the action will be tried more quickly, is not a sufficient reason for sending it to be tried at the assizes. Cardinall v. Cardinall, 53 L. J., Ch. 636; 25 Ch. D. 772; 32 W. R. 411.

In an action for injunction to restrain infringement of copyright and for damages:—Held, that the defendant had no right to a trial by jury, but that, under Ord. XXXVI. rr. 4 and 7a, the court had a discretion, which it exercised by directing a trial without a jury. Semble, that the burden of proof was on the party applying for a jury. Coote v. Ingram, 56 L. J., Ch. 634; 35 Ch. D. 117; 56 L. T. 300; 35 W. R. 390.

In an action brought by the plaintiff in the Chancery Division against the defendants, in respect of an infringement by them of his registered trade-mark, and claiming an account of profits or damages, the defendants submitted to a perpetual injunction; and the only question remaining to be tried was, what damages should be paid, the plaintiff waiving any accounts of profits. The plaintiff applied to the court that the action might be transferred to the Queen's Bench Division, so that it might be tried with a jury. This application was opposed by the defendants, on the ground that, under r. 4 of Ord. XXXVI. of the Rules of Court, 1883, the judge had a discretion; and that the damages could be as well ascertained by the judge in court or chambers as by a jury:—Held, that the judge had no discretion, and that under r. 6 of Ord. XXXVI. an order must be made for a trial with a jury. But held, that, even if the court had a discretion, this was not a case in which such discretion ought to be exercised, the only question remaining at issue in the action being in regard to the amount of damages for the infringement of the trade-mark, which question would be more properly tried with than without a jury. Fennessy v. Rabbits, 56 L. T. 138.

The plaintiff, in an action to set aside deeds on the ground of fraud, named Cardigan as the place of trial in his statement of claim. On motion by a defendant before issue joined, the court ordered the action to be tried in the Chancery Division, without a jury, and this decision was affirmed by the Court of Appeal. Powell v. Cobb, 54 L. J., Ch. 962; 29 Ch. D. 486; 53 L. T. 188—C. A.

An action to restrain the defendants from obstructing the plaintiff's water rights was set down in the Chancery Division on the 27th May, and briefs were delivered on the 7th July. On motion by the defendants that the trial might take place at Manchester before a judge and jury:—Held, that the defendants had an absolute right to trial by jury; that Manchester was the proper place for the trial; the costs to be reserved on account of the defendants' delay in bringing their motion. Old Mill Co. v. Duckinfield Local Board, 54 L. J., Ch. 160; 51 L. T. 414.

The plaintiffs sued in respect of certain alterations made by the defendant in his house at Bath, which adjoined the plaintiffs' house. The plaintiffs claimed, first, specific performance of an agreement entered into upon a sale of the land on which the house stood, whereby a certain building scheme was provided; and, secondly, an injunction to restrain the defendant from so building as to interfere with the light and air coming to the plaintiffs' house. A motion was made on behalf of the defendant for an order that the action might be tried before a judge and jury, and that the trial might take place at the forthcoming assizes at Bristol. The defendant's contention was that, the issue as to obstructing ancient lights not being one of those matters which, by the Judicature Act, 1873, were assigned to the Chancery Division, the court had, so far as that part of the action was concerned, no discretion in the matter; but that the defendant had a right to have that issue, at all events, tried before a judge and jury. Further, that supposing such a right did not exist, yet as this issue was quite independent of the question of specific performance, and as, moreover, the locus in quo was Bath, and therefore great expense would be saved by having the trial at Bristol, the court, in the exercise of its discretion, ought to direct a trial before a jury:—Held, that the action being one which by the Judicature Act was assigned to the Chancery Division, the court had a discretion whether or not it would allow a trial by jury; and that the defendant had no right to say that he would split the action in two and insist upon one portion of it being tried before a jury. Held, also, that as to the exercise of that discretion this was not a case in which the issue sought to be tried before a jury was preliminary to the rest of the action, and might put an end to it; that, in whichever way the issue as to the obstruction of light was decided, the question of specific performance would remain, and would have to be tried in the Chancery Division; and that, therefore, the application must be refused. Sheppard v. Gilmore, 53 L. T. 625; 34 W. R. 179.

In an action for dissolution of partnership, the plaintiffs, by their statement of claim, made numerous charges of a serious nature affecting the character of the defendant, including charges of fraud, maintenance, and perjury. The defendant selected five of the most serious of these charges, and applied to the court, asking that issues should be directed to be tried before a judge and a special jury:—Held, that the real issue in the action was whether the defendant had been guilty of such conduct as to render a dissolution of the partnership necessary, and therefore that, even if the defendant should succeed on all such issues, it would not necessarily follow that the partnership ought not to be dissolved; and that the application must accordingly be refused. Ehrmann v. Ehrmann, 72 L. T. 548—C. A.

—— Counterclaim for Damages — Plaintiff applying for Whole Action to be Tried with a Jury.]—The plaintiff brought an action for redemption of shares mortgaged by him. The defendant, by counterclaim, sought relief incident to his position as mortgagee, and also damages for alleged fraudulent misrepresentations made by the plaintiff to the defendant, which affected the amount of the balance, to secure which the mortgage was given. The plaintiff applied to have the action tried with a jury, which was refused:—Held, on appeal, that the case did not come within Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, so as to give the plaintiff a right to have the action tried with a jury; that his proper course would have been to apply to have the counterclaim for damages tried separately, as a claim which could not be conveniently tried in the pending action, and that the appeal must be dismissed. Lynch v. Macdonald, 57 L. J., Ch. 651; 37 Ch. D. 227; 58 L. T. 293; 36 W. R. 419—C. A.

—— Prolonged Examination of Documents—Local Prejudice against Defendants.]—Where, in an action (the place of trial being Durham) to restrain the Ecclesiastical Commissioners from working mines under the plaintiff's land the plaintiff applied for a trial by jury, the court refused to order such trial upon evidence (1) that the issue was one requiring a prolonged examination of documents under Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, and (2) that the Ecclesiastical Commissioners could not get a fair trial, on account of the local prejudice existing against them as landlords. Shafto v. Bolckow, Vaughan & Co., 57 L. T. 17; 35 W. R. 686.

—— Action assigned to Chancery Division—Joinder of Cause of Action not so assigned.]—The plaintiff commenced an action in the Chancery Division, alleging that the defendant was trustee of a sum of 700*l.* for her, and claiming payment of that sum with interest, and, if necessary, an account of profits made by the defendant by using it in his business, and also claiming the return of certain chattels, or their value, and damages for their detention. The defendant denied the trust, stated that the money had been lent to him by the plaintiff and long ago repaid, and denied that he ever had any chattels of the plaintiff in his possession. The plaintiff, after the defence had been put in, applied to have the issues of fact tried by a jury:—Held, that the action came within Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, and not within r. 6, of the same order. That the action, therefore, was to be tried by a judge without a jury, unless it could be made out that it was better to have it tried by jury, and that in the present case this was not shewn. Gardner v. Jay, 54 L. J., Ch. 762; 29 Ch. D. 50; 52 L. T. 395; 33 W. R. 470—C. A.

—— Chancery Division—Onus of Proof.]—If a plaintiff, who has commenced an action in the Chancery Division, desires afterwards to have it tried by a jury, the onus is on him to show some reason why it should not be tried in the manner in which it would in the ordinary course be tried in that division. If he does not discharge that onus, an application by him to have the action tried by a jury will be refused. Att.-Gen. v. Vyner, 38 W. R. 194—C. A. S. P., Jenkins v. Bushby, 60 L. J., Ch. 254; [1891] 1 Ch. 484; 64 L. T. 213; 39 W. R. 321—C. A.

—— Under Rules of 1875.]—In an action by an executor to establish a will, the heir-at-law was cited. The plaintiff gave notice of trial by jury. The action was twice tried by a special jury, before Sir James Hannen, and in each case the jury disagreed and were discharged. The plaintiff having set the action down for trial again before a special jury, the defendants applied for special directions as to the further trial. Sir J. Hannen, the heir-at-law appearing and not opposing, made an order that the action should be tried by a judge without a jury. The plaintiff appealed:—Held, that the case was one where, under 20 & 21 Vict. c. 77, s. 35, as the heir-at-law did not ask for a jury, the judge could before the Judicature Act, without any consent, have ordered the action to be tried without a jury: that a choice of the mode of trial under Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, did not exclude the application of r. 26, and that the judge therefore had jurisdiction to make the order appealed from. Burgoine v. Moordaff, Moordaff, In re, 52 L. J., P. 77; 8 P. D. 205; 48 L. T. 504; 31 W. R. 735—C. A.

The court will not, in the absence of special cause, by the exercise of the discretion given by Ord. XXXVI. r. 26, deprive a defendant in a nuisance case of his statutory right under Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, to have the question, or issues of fact, in the action tried by jury at the assizes for the county in which the works from which the alleged nuisance proceeds are situated. West v. White, 46 L. J., Ch. 333; 4 Ch. D. 631; 36 L. T. 95; 25 W. R. 342.

In actions which before the coming into operation of the Judicature Acts could only have been brought as suits in the Court of Chancery, the High Court has now the same discretion as the Court of Chancery formerly had, whether there shall be a trial by jury. The parties have in such cases no absolute right to a trial by jury. Birmingham Syndicate v. Swindell, 45 L. J., Ch. 756; 3 Ch. D. 127; 35 L. T. 111; 24 W. R. 911—C. A.

Although the principal issue in a chancery action may be of a nature which would ordinarily be properly tried by a jury, the judge has an absolute discretion, under Ord. XXXVI. r. 26, to order it to be tried by himself alone if, having regard to all the questions which may be raised, and the whole nature of the case, he considers that it ought not to be tried by a jury. Garling v. Royds, 25 W. R. 123.

When the intention of the parties has to be collected from a series of documents, or a voluminous correspondence, the action ought not to be tried by a jury. Ib.

Upon motion by the defendant under Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, that certain specified issues of fact might be tried before a judge or jury in the country:—Held, that it was obligatory on the court to order the trial subject to the discretion given by r. 26; and it not appearing to the court desirable to direct a trial without a jury, the motion was acceded to, the issues to be settled in chambers. Powell v. Williams, 12 Ch. D. 234; 40 L. T. 679; 27 W. R. 796.

A plaintiff filed a bill in the Court of Chancery before the Judicature Act for specific performance of a contract. He then amended his bill, claiming damages against one of the defendants for alleged misrepresentation of authority, and set his cause down at the associates' office for trial by judge and jury:—Held, that the plaintiff had no absolute right in such a case to a trial by jury; and directions were given under Ord. XXXVI. r. 26, that the issues of law and fact should be tried in court without a jury. Pilley v. Baylis, 46 L. J., Ch. 847 ; 5 Ch. D. 241 ; 36 L. T. 296.

In an action for the specific performance of an agreement by the incumbent and patron of a church to give up a portion of his district to form a part of a district for another church, an application by the plaintiff, under r. 26, Ord. XXXVI., that the action might be tried by a judge without a jury, was granted, although the defendant had given notice under r. 3 of the same order, for the trial of the issues of fact by a jury. Usil v. Whelpton, 50 L. J., Ch. 511 ; 45 L. T. 39 ; 29 W. R. 799.

When parties agree that the evidence shall be taken by affidavit, and numerous affidavits are filed and the evidence is closed, it is the duty of a judge in the exercise of his judicial discretion under Ord. XXXVI. r. 26, to direct that the action shall be tried before a judge without a jury. Brooke v. Wigg, 47 L. J., Ch. 749 ; 8 Ch. D. 510 ; 38 L. T. 732 ; 26 W. R. 729—C. A.

In such a case an application that the action may be tried before a judge and jury can only be entertained if the applicant comes to the court soon after the agreement, and then only upon the terms that he pays, as between solicitor and client, all costs, charges, and expenses that have been incurred in taking the evidence by affidavit up to that date. Ib.

In an action commenced in the Chancery Division the issue raised by the pleadings was whether certain lands acquired by the defendants for the purpose of constructing a railway had become "superfluous lands" within s. 127 of the Lands Clauses Act, 1845. The plaintiffs gave notice of trial before a judge and a special jury at the assizes. On a motion by the defendants that the action might be tried without a jury :—Held, that the question in the action being one of mixed law and fact, it could be more conveniently tried without a jury under Ord. XXXVI. r. 26. Smith v. North Staffordshire Ry., 44 L. T. 85.

The issues of fact in an action to restrain the publication of a trade libel may be tried before a judge alone. Thomas v. Williams, 49 L. J., Ch. 605 ; 14 Ch. D. 864 ; 43 L. T. 91 ; 28 W. R. 983.

An action to restrain the use of a trade-name involved, besides the usual trade-mark issues, the special question, whether the name had not become the name of a specific machine. Upon motion by defendant for transfer of the action to a common law division and entry for trial, and for the settlement of issues to be tried by judge and jury :—Held, under Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XXXVI. rr. 3, 26, that the action was unfit for a jury, and motion refused. Singer Manufacturing Co. v. Loog, 48 L. J., Ch. 647 ; 11 Ch. D. 656 ; 40 L. T. 747 ; 27 W. R. 903.

A defendant in an action in the Chancery Division for infringement of a trade-mark is not entitled as of right, under Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XXXVI., to have the action tried before a judge and jury, but only, subject to the discretion given to the court by r. 26, to a trial by jury of issues of fact in the action ; and such discretion of refusing a trial by jury will be exercised where the issue of fact fit to be tried by a jury is of minor importance as compared with the main questions involved in the action. Spratt's Patent v. Ward, 48 L. J., Ch. 645 ; 11 Ch. D. 240 ; 40 L. T. 250 ; 27 W. R. 470.

Ord. XXXVI. r. 26, gives the court a discretion in all cases of fraud, or such as raise questions which, before the Judicature Act came into force, were properly within the jurisdiction of the Court of Chancery, to order them to be tried without a jury, and the court is not bound in such a case to allow a jury at the instance of a defendant. Back v. Hay, 5 Ch. D. 235 ; 36 L. T. 295 ; 25 W. R. 392.

In an action relating to the ownership of land and to the obstruction of a right of way in the country, the defendants having given notice under Rules of Court, 1875, Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, for the trial of issues of fact by a jury, on motion by the plaintiff that the action might be tried by a judge without a jury :—Held, that, as it appeared that the question in the action was mainly one of title depending on certain conveyances, plans, and photographs, it could be more conveniently tried without a jury under Ord. XXXVI. r. 26. Wedderburn v. Pickering, 13 Ch. D. 769 ; 41 L. T. 523 ; 28 W. R. 239.

Interfering with the Discretion of the Judge.] —A plaintiff who had commenced an action in the Chancery Division for nuisance, applied for and obtained an order transferring it to the Queen's Bench Division, that it might be tried by a judge with a jury :—Held, the Court of Appeal ought not to interfere with the exercise of discretion, there being no reason for expecting a failure of justice from the action being tried in the way directed. Jenkins v. Bushby ([1891] 1 Ch. 484) explained. Mangan v. Metropolitan Electric Supply Co., [1891] 2 Ch. 551; 65 L. T. 202—C. A.

The plaintiffs brought an action in the Chancery Division to set aside an agreement on the ground that they had been induced to enter into it by the fraudulent representations of the defendant. The pleadings having been closed the plaintiffs gave notice of trial by jury. Malins, V.-C., ordered on the defendant's motion that the action be tried by the judge without a jury : —Held, on appeal, that the discretion of a judge as to the mode in which an action attached to his branch of the court can be most conveniently tried will not be interfered with except in a very strong case, and that the order of the vice-chancellor must be affirmed. Ruston v. Tobin, 10 Ch. D. 558 ; 40 L. T. 111 ; 27 W. R. 588—C. A.

Either party to an action has an absolute right under Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, to have the action or the issues tried before a jury, without assigning any reasons, unless it shall appear to the judge that there are special grounds rendering it desirable to try the action before a judge without a jury ; the onus in such cases being on the party who desires it not to be tried before a jury. Bacon, V.-C., having made an order under Ord. XXXVI. r. 26, that the issues in an action should be tried before himself without a jury, on the ground that no sufficient reason had been shewn for its being tried by a jury :—Held, on appeal, that the judge having placed the onus of proof on the wrong party, had not exercised his discretion in accordance with the rule, and the court overruled his decision. Martin, In re, Hunt v. Chambers, 51 L. J., Ch. 683 ; 20 Ch. D. 365 ; 46 L. T. 399 ; 30 W. R. 527—C. A.

Semble, even if the judge exercises his discretion in accordance with the rule his decision is subject to appeal, though the court will not interfere with his discretion except in a very strong case. Ib.

A vice-chancellor, on the hearing of a cause and cross cause, directed a trial by jury before himself. Neither party requested the adoption of this course, and it was alleged by one of them to be inconvenient:—Held, to be a matter resting wholly in the discretion of the court, and one which could not be the subject of an appeal. Schneider v. Shrubsole, 4 De G. F. & J. 52.

Exercise of Option.]—A plaintiff who has set down his action before a judge of the Chancery Division has thereby exercised his option as to the mode of trial, and is not entitled to apply under Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, for the trial of an issue before a jury. Dent v. Sovereign Life Assurance Co., 27 W. R. 379.

And, having regard to such statutory right, it is a sufficient reason to be stated (as required by Ord. XXXVI. r. 29a), on the order directing a trial at the assizes, and not in the Chancery Division, that the defendant desires a trial by jury, and that the court sees no reason to the contrary. Ib.

When the parties to an action agree that the evidence shall be taken by affidavit, it is implied that the hearing shall be before a judge without a jury, and the court will not grant a jury in such a case on the application of the plaintiff or defendant, after the evidence has been taken by affidavit, although the action is one peculiarly fitted for a trial before a jury. Brooke v. Wigg, 47 L. J., Ch. 749; 8 Ch. D. 510; 38 L. T. 732; 26 W. R. 729—C. A.

The hearing of a motion for an injunction was (with the consent of the defendants) ordered to stand over to the hearing, with liberty to either party to apply to expedite the trial:—Held, that the defendants by consenting to such order were not deprived of their option to have the issues of fact tried by a jury, although the effect might be to prevent the plaintiffs from having the trial expedited. Clarke v. Skipper, 51 L. J., Ch. 519; 21 Ch. D. 134; 46 L. T. 811; 30 W. R. 465.

By 17 & 18 Vict. c. 125, s. 1, the parties to any cause may, by consent in writing, signed, &c., leave the decision of any issue in fact to the court, provided that the court, upon a rule to shew cause, or a judge on summons, shall in their or his discretion think fit to allow such trial. A cause having, by consent of plaintiff and defendant, given viva voce in court, been tried at nisi prius by the judge without a jury:—Held, that the trial was binding on the parties, so that neither could object to a want of jurisdiction in the judge to try according to the statute; for though there had been no summons, nor any consent in writing, the trial was under and by virtue of the statute, and the parties were bound by all the restrictions of the statute. Andrews v. Elliott, 5 El. & Bl. 502; 25 L. J., Q. B. 1; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 1046. Affirmed, 6 El. & Bl. 338; 25 L. J., Q. B. 336; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 663; 4 W. R. 527—Ex. Ch.

Trial by Jury of Actions commenced in Chancery Division.]—Actions in the Chancery Division for trial with a jury are to be set down in Middlesex, unless in the statement of claim, or under Ord. XXXVI. r. 1, the place or county is named. Clarke v. Cookson, 45 L. J., Ch. 752; 2 Ch. D. 746; 34 L. T. 646; 24 W. R. 535.

Under Ord. XXXVI. rr. 27 and 29, a judge of the Chancery Division can in any case direct issues to be tried by a judge with a jury at the assizes, or at the sittings in London or Middlesex. Ib.

A judge of the Chancery Division cannot, having regard to the Judicature Act, ss. 29, 30, 37 and 42, try a case with a jury. Ib.

A trial by jury cannot be heard before a judge of the Chancery Division. Actions commenced in the Chancery Division, if they are to be tried by a jury must be set down in the general list, to be tried by one of the judges of the common law divisions. Warner v. Murdoch, 46 L. J., Ch. 121; 4 Ch. D. 750; 35 L. T. 748; 25 W. R. 207—C. A.

The provisions of r. 4 of the orders of December, 1876 (amending Ord. XXXVI. r. 29), which require an order directing the trial of an action in the Chancery Division, or of any issue therein, at the assizes, or at the London or Middlesex sittings of any other division, to state the reasons for the order, apply only to cases where a special order for such a trial is made, under Ord. XXXVI. rr. 1 or 29, and not in the ordinary case where the action goes into the list without any order. Ib.

Ord. XXXVI. r. 29a, does not apply to cases where a defendant gives notice under Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, that he desires a trial before a judge and jury. Hunt v. City of London Real Property Co., 47 L. J., Q. B. 42; 3 Q. B. D. 19; 37 L. T. 344; 26 W. R. 37—C. A.

In an action attached to the Chancery Division, tried by a jury before a judge of one of the common law divisions, application for a new trial must be made to a divisional court. Ib.

There is no necessity for an order from the judge stating the reason for its being tried before a jury. Ib.

Where the whole case is a proper one to be tried by a jury, it is the more convenient practice to transfer the action altogether to the Queen's Bench Division. Martin, In re, Hunt v. Chambers, 51 L. J., Ch. 683; 20 Ch. D. 365; 46 L. T. 399; 30 W. R. 527—C. A.

—— Application to remit to County Court.]—A plaintiff had entered his action, being an action for specific performance of a contract, for trial in the associates' book for Middlesex. Motion by the defendant to have it struck out and entered in the chancery registrar's book allowed. Motion by the plaintiff to have the action transferred to the county court at Bradford, so as to avoid the expense of bringing up witnesses to London, refused, although the purchase-money being under 500*l.*, the action was within the county court jurisdiction. Sykes v. Firth, 46 L. J., Ch. 627.

—— In Equity—Before Judicature Act.]—When a suit in equity involved charges of perjury and forgery, the court, on the application of the defendant, which was opposed by the plaintiff, directed an issue for a jury, on the terms that the defendant should advance 100*l.* towards the plaintiff's costs, to be dealt with subsequently as the court should direct. Wilson v. Thornbury, 30 L. T. 667; 22 W. R. 669—L.JJ.

The Court of Chancery has jurisdiction, upon motion for that purpose by a defendant at any stage of a cause, to direct issues to be tried by a jury. Roskell v. Whitworth, 39 L. J., Ch. 765; L. R. 5 Ch. 459; 23 L. T. 179; 18 W. R. 682.

But, as a general rule, such an application ought to be made either upon a motion for an injunction, or upon a motion to dissolve an injunction, or at the hearing. Ib.

If made at any other stage of the cause the defendant is bound to shew almost to demonstration, that the cause is one which the court itself cannot try. Ib.

The power of the court to make a decree in favour of a party against whom a verdict is found by a jury on the matter in question, only applies to verdicts found in issues directed by it, or in trials before it, and not to verdicts found at law when leave is granted to bring an action, and relief in equity is made dependent on its success. M'Rea v. Holdsworth, 18 W. R. 489.

At the same time the court is not bound by the amount of damages awarded by the jury, but will give the full relief, to which the plaintiff is entitled in equity. Ib.

When an issue, so stated as to exhaust the questions of fact raised by the pleadings, is directed to be tried by a jury, and a new trial is refused on the finding of the jury thereon, such finding must be taken at the hearing on further directions, as furnishing the whole facts upon which it is competent to the court to base its decision. Browne v. M'Clintock, L. R. 6 H. L. 434; 22 W. R. 521.

An issue involving the question of fraud may in the discretion of the court be so stated as to throw upon the party charged with fraud the onus of establishing bona fides. Ib.

If the party on whom rests the affirmative of issues directed to be tried by a jury before the court does not proceed to trial in the time directed by the order, the proper course is to move to have the issues taken pro confesso. Underwood v. Darracott, Ir. R. 8 Eq. 345.

Trial by Jury in Bankruptcy Cases.]—See BANKRUPTCY.

2. Trial at Bar.

When Granted.]—It is entirely in the discretion of the court whether they will grant a trial at bar or not, and must depend upon the particular circumstances of the case. Rex v. Amery, 1 Term Rep. 363; 1 R. R. 306.

The grounds for granting the trial are, great value, probable length, and probable difficulties, on the trial. Holmes d. Brown v. Brown, 2 Dougl. 437.

It will be granted on the ex-officio application of the attorney-general, where the interests of the King as Duke of Lancaster may come into question. Brown v. Grenville (Lord), 1 H. & W. 270.

Where the crown is interested, the attorney-general may, as a matter of right, demand a trial. Rowe v. Brenton, 8 B. & C. 737; 3 M. & Ry. 133; 5 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 137.

The crown may forbid the issuing of a writ of nisi prius in any action in which it is interested. Paddock v. Forester, 1 Man. & G. 583; 1 Scott (N.R.) 391; 8 D. P. C. 834; 9 L. J., C. P. 342.

A suggestion ore tenus by the attorney-general, that the crown is interested in a suit depending between subject and subject, is a sufficient ground for ordering a trial at bar. Ib.

In an action for breaking and entering the plaintiff's chase, and killing his deer, the Court of Common Pleas would not grant a trial at bar, although the question to be tried was, to ascertain the boundaries of such chase, and although ancient and documentary evidence, as well as considerable living testimony, was necessary to fix such boundaries, on the ground that a case involving similar rights had been lately brought by the same plaintiff against another defendant, in which the latter had obtained a verdict, and which the Court of King's Bench, after argument, had refused to set aside, or grant a new trial. Rivers (Lord) v. Pratt, 3 Moore, 582; 1 Br. & B. 265; 21 R. R. 595.

The court refused to grant a trial at bar on the motion of the plaintiff on either of the three following grounds: first, that the defendant was Lord Chancellor; secondly, that the plaintiff was an attorney of the court in which the action was brought; and thirdly, that a question would arise in the cause whether the Lord Chancellor could hear and determine a suit in favour of a corporation of which he was a member, and in which suit he had a pecuniary interest. Dimes v. Cottenham (Lord), 1 L. M. & P. 318; 5 Ex. 311; 19 L. J., Ex. 290.

The Queen's Bench in Dublin, in Hilary Term, made an order for a trial at bar in that term; and another order, declaring, that, in case the trial should not terminate before the end of the term, the next and every succeeding day until the first day of the following term, or so many days as should be necessary, should be appointed for the continuation of such trial, and that every day so appointed should be deemed a part of Hilary Term:—Held, that this order was properly made, under the authority of 1 & 2 Will. 4, c. 31, s. 3, and had the effect of duly continuing the trial during the days appointed. O'Connell v. Reg., 11 Cl. & F. 155; 9 Jur. 25.

Practice Thereon.]—On the trial, each of the presiding judges makes such observations to the jury upon the whole case, by way of direction, as he considers to be requisite. Rowe v. Brenton, 3 M. & Ry. 364; 8 B. & C. 737.

By 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 70, s. 7, if a trial at bar shall be directed by any of the superior courts, it shall be competent for the judges of such courts to appoint such day or days for the trial thereof as they shall think fit; and the time so appointed, if in vacation, shall, for the purposes of such trial, be deemed and taken to be a part of the preceding term. A trial at bar having been ordered in an indictment for perjury, the Court of Queen's Bench, in Hilary Term, appointed for the trial the 23rd of April, 1873, and every day up to and inclusive of the 1st day of November, 1873, and further ordered that, in case the trial should not terminate on or before the 1st day of November, 1873, the further trial should be adjourned till Michaelmas Term next, and be thereafter continued at such times as the court should then direct. The court did not sit continuously, but adjourned not only over Sundays and holidays, but also over days included in this period on which it might have sat. The court afterwards, in Michaelmas Term, 1873, made a second order, appointing every day in Michaelmas Term, 1873, and every day up to Michaelmas Term, 1874, for the trial. On the 28th of February, 1874, a day in vacation after Hilary Term, the defendant was found guilty, and the court immediately passed sentence on him:—Held, that the court had, under the above enactment, power to appoint such days as they should think fit for the trial, and that it was not necessary that this power should be exercised once for all, or that it should be limited to the appointment of days in the vacation next succeeding the term in which the order was made. Reg. v. Castro, 43 L. J., Q. B. 105; L. R. 9 Q. B. 350; 30 L. T. 320; 22 W. R. 187; 12 Cox, C. C. 454.

Held, also, that, as an incident to the trial at bar, the court had power to adjourn from time to time. Ib.

Held, also, that a sentence, passed out of term, but on one of the days which, by virtue of the above enactment, are, "for the purposes of the trial, to be taken as part of the preceding term," was good, passing sentence being part of the trial. Ib.

3. Preliminary Issues.

Question of Law.]—Where the form of admission of facts leaves it open to the defendant to raise other defences on the facts which might make the decision of the point of law raised unnecessary, or prevent its disposing of the action, the court will not exercise the discretion given to it by Ord. XXXIV. r. 2, by allowing the question of law to be tried before the issues of fact. Grosvenor v. White, 61 L. T. 663; 38 W. R. 201.

Ord. XXXIV. r. 2, under which, in any action involving questions both of law and of fact, the court may direct the question of law to be raised for its opinion before trying the question of fact, has reference only to a case where the action has not yet come on for trial; but, by analogy to that rule, the court will, at the trial of an action involving questions both of law and of fact, decide the question of law first, if it shall appear that the decision of such question may render it unnecessary to try the question of fact. Pooley v. Driver, 46 L. J., Ch. 466; 5 Ch. D. 458; 36 L. T. 791.

—— Trial of Issues of Fact.]—When a preliminary point of law is ordered by the judge to be tried before the trial of issues of fact, the trial of those issues will not take place until the final determination of the preliminary point of law. "Maori King" v. Hughes, [1895] 2 Q. B. 550; 14 R. 646; 73 L. T. 141; 44 W. R. 2—C. A.

Trial of Preliminary Issues.]—In an action against several defendants involving various issues, the plaintiffs having applied under Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, for an order for two simple issues to be tried as between themselves and two of the defendants before the rest of the action, the court made the order on the plaintiff's undertaking not to seek relief against the said two defendants in respect of any cause of action other than that covered by the issues so to be tried, and also discontinuing such portion of the action as the court should direct. Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Grant, 11 Ch. D. 918; 40 L. T. 804.

Ord. XL. r. 8, of the Judicature Act, is intended to enable the trial of such issues of fact only as must sooner or later have to be decided. Bolivia Republic v. National Bolivian Navigation Co., 24 W. R. 361.

An application to have one issue in an action tried before another can only be granted on very special grounds. Piercy v. Young, 15 Ch. D. 475; 42 L. T. 292.

Where a defendant in a partnership action set up by counter-claim an agreement by the plaintiff for sale to the defendant of his (the plaintiff's) interest in the partnership at a stated price:—Held, that the defendant was not entitled under Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, to have the issue raised by his counter-claim tried before the plaintiff's issues in the action. Ib.

Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Grant, supra, explained in reference to the exceptional cases in which the court will accede to applications under Ord. XXXVI. r. 6. Ib.

In an action against a principal and sureties, the latter claimed to be discharged by reason of an alteration in the contract:—Held, that no order should be made under Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, for the trial of the question as to the sureties' liability before the other questions in the action, as if the principal's liability was not established the sureties would be discharged. Tasmanian Main Line Ry. v. Clark, 27 W. R. 677.

Ord. XXXVI. r. 6, is not confined to questions of fact, but applies also to mixed questions of law and fact. Ib.

An action had been brought to determine questions of disputed accounts in respect of the joint local and continental traffic of two railways. The validity of an agreement was disputed by the pleadings. The plaintiffs now moved under Ord. XXV. r. 2, that the points of law raised by the pleadings might be set down for hearing forthwith, and be disposed of before the trial of the action:—Held, that the application would be granted, as the case was a proper one for exercising the jurisdiction conferred upon the court by Ord. XXV. r. 2. L., C. & D. Ry. v. S. E. Ry., 53 L. T. 109.

Where a plaintiff brought three actions against three several defendants for different parts which they took in the same transaction; one against the speaker of the house of commons, who justified under a warrant issued by him under the order of the house for arresting and committing to the Tower a member of the house, for a breach of privilege, in publishing a libel upon the house; to which plea the plaintiff demurred: another against the serjeant-at-arms, who pleaded not guilty, and also justified under the authority of the speaker's warrant; to which the plaintiff replied, an excess in the manner of executing it by a military force, and with improper and unnecessary violence; on which issue was joined: and the third against the constable of the Tower, who received and detained the plaintiff as a prisoner; and who also justified under a warrant from the speaker for that purpose; on which issue was also taken on several facts stated in such justification: and notice of trial was given in the last two causes (which stood for trial at bar on a day fixed); but the plaintiff, though still within time by the practice of the court, had not set down his demurrer in the first cause for argument: the court, on motion of the attorney-general on behalf of the sergeant-at-arms, and of the constable of the Tower, postponed the trial of the issues in those cases until after the argument on the demurrer in the cause against the speaker: because the right, just and distinct consideration of the question which arose, on the issues of fact, and on the true measure of damages on the causes against the sergeant-at-arms and the constable of the Tower, depended mainly upon the decisions of the issues in law joined in the other action against the speaker: and though the same question of law might ultimately be raised on motion in the two former actions, yet it could not be considered so conveniently to the court, to whom the decision of such question belonged, or so advantageously to the party who should prove to be in the right, as upon the demurrer which presented the question of law distinct from the question of fact. Burdett v. Colman, 12 East, 27; 12 R. R. 478.

Where there are issues both in fact and in law in an action, although a plaintiff has an option to try either first, that is subject to the discretion of the court; and the court will, in general, direct the issues in law to be determined first, since the cause may be decided thereby, and the trial become unnecessary. Crucknell v. Trueman, 9 M. & W. 684; 2 D. (N.S.) 276; 12 L. J., Ex. 31.

The court refused to interfere, by directing issues in law to be argued before the trial of issues in fact, it not appearing that the decision of the former would have any bearing on the latter. Roberts v. Taylor, 7 Man. & G. 659; 8 Scott (N.R.) 399; 13 L. J., C. P. 188; 8 Jur. 985.

A defendant obtained leave to plead and demur to a declaration. On an application to postpone the trial of the issues in fact till the issue in law had been finally disposed of in a court of error: —Held, that the court had no power to make such an order, inasmuch as the judgment on the demurrer had disposed of the issue in law finally, as far as regarded the Court of Queen's Bench. Lumley v. Gye, 2 El. & Bl. 216; 22 L. J., Q. B. 463.

An order directing the trial of issues in fact refused, as it did not appear that the trial would determine all the questions between the parties. Turner v. Barnes, 2 F. & F. 256.

"Point of Law"—Dismissal of Action with Costs.]—An action having been by the consent of the parties set down for hearing under Rules of Supreme Court, Ord. XXV. r. 2, upon a "point of law" raised by the defence, and the point having been decided in favour of the defendant, the judge, as the decision substantially disposed of the whole action, dismissed the action under r. 3, and with costs, by analogy to the former practice on demurrer. O'Brien v. Tyssen, 54 L. J., Ch. 284; 28 Ch. D. 372; 51 L. T. 814; 33 W. R. 428. S. P., Percival v. Dunn, 54 L. J., Ch. 570; 29 Ch. D. 128; 52 L. T. 320.

Precedence over other Actions.]—Where, by consent of parties, an action has been set down for hearing under Ord. XXV. r. 2, before the trial, on a point of law, the decision of which will substantially dispose of the whole action, it is not entitled to precedence over other non-witness actions, but must take its place in the general list. Thorniley, In re, Woolley v. Thorniley, 53 L. J., Ch. 499; 32 W. R. 539.

Time for Application.]—A plaintiff who had set down an action for trial before a judge of the Chancery Division, applied to have a preliminary issue of fact tried at Chester, and the trial of the action postponed. His application was refused on the ground of delay. Lloyd v. Jones, 47 L. J., Ch. 470; 7 Ch. D. 390; 26 W. R. 262.

Trial of one Question before the other—Liability—Damages.]—Where liability and also the amount of damages are disputed in an action, and the question as to the amount of damages is one of such detail or nature that it probably will be referred to some other tribunal than a jury, it is a proper exercise of discretion under Ord. XXXVI. r. 8, to order the question of liability to be tried, and the question of damages to be postponed until afterwards. Smith v. Hargrove, 16 Q. B. D. 183; 34 W. R. 294.

4. Hearing in Camerâ.

In what Cases.]—The court has no power to hear any case in private, even with the consent of the parties, except cases which relate to lunatics or to wards of court, and cases in which the whole object would be defeated by a trial in public, and cases in which the practice of the ecclesiastical courts is preserved under s. 22 of the Divorce Act (20 & 21 Vict. c. 85). Nagle-Gilman v. Christopher, 46 L. J., Ch. 60; 4 Ch. D. 173.

An appeal from an injunction to restrain the defendant from disclosing confidential information was ordered to be heard in private without the consent of the defendant, the plaintiff stating that a public hearing would defeat the object of the action, and make success on the appeal useless to him. Mellor v. Thompson, 55 L. J., Ch. 942; 31 Ch. D. 55; 54 L. T. 219—C. A.

It is contrary to the practice of the court to hear causes in private without the consent of both parties, except in cases which affect lunatics or wards of court. Andrew v. Raeburn, L. R. 9 Ch. 522; 31 L. T. 73; 22 W. R. 564.

The court will direct a case to be heard in private upon an assurance by counsel that in his opinion it is a proper case to be so heard, notwithstanding the objection of other parties, Andrew v. Raeburn, 30 L. T. 153; 22 W. R. 512.

A judge has power to try a case in camerâ, where the parties consent to such mode of trial. Malan v. Young, 53 J. P. 822.

The consent of both parties is not necessary to a private hearing. Ogle v. Brandling, 2 Russ. & M. 688.

Private hearing always on the consent of both parties. Portsmouth (Lord), In re, Coop. 106.

5. In other Cases.

Claim and Counter-claim.]—Whether the issues raised by a claim and counter-claim shall be tried together or separately is a matter of convenience. Woodfine, In re, Thompson v. Woodfine, 47 L. J., Ch. 832; 38 L. T. 753; 26 W. R. 678. See Piercy v. Young, supra.

Exercise of Option—Trial by Official Referee—Time.]—In a suit to ascertain boundaries the plaintiff gave notice of trial before a judge and obtained an order that the evidence should be taken vivâ voce at the trial. Five weeks afterwards he applied that the suit might be referred to an official referee, on the ground of saving expense, and that a local investigation was necessary:—Held, that the application was out of time. Lacelles v. Butt, 2 Ch. D. 588; 35 L. T. 122.

Held, also, that the plaintiff, having already selected the mode in which his action should be tried, could not afterwards resort to another mode of trial. Ib.

Assessors — Scientific Investigation.] — By Ord. XXXVI. r. 5, a judge may direct the trial without a jury of any cause, matter, or issue requiring any scientific investigation which in his opinion cannot conveniently be made with a jury. The plaintiff's ship was sunk in the defendants' docks while being moved by their tugs from one berth to another. As she was without cargo or ballast, compensation booms were attached to her to keep her upright while being moved. The operation of moving her was carried out in such a way that the tugs pulled the ship over, and she sank. The judge at chambers held that there was an issue in the action requiring scientific investigation, and he ordered the action to be tried before a judge with two assessors:—Held, that there was in the action an issue requiring scientific investigation, and that therefore the judge at chambers had jurisdiction to make the order. Swyny v. North Eastern Ry., 74 L. T. 88; 8 Asp. M. C. 132—C. A.

c. Notice of Trial.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XXXVI. rr. 11—21.

1. Necessity, of, &c.

Day Fixed.]—Notice is necessary, though the trial is fixed for a certain day. Ellis v. Trusler, 2 W. Bl. 798.

Fresh Notice.]—Where a cause is made a remanet to the next sittings or assizes by an order of nisi prius, no fresh notice of trial is requisite; but it is otherwise if postponed by a rule of court. Shepherd v. Butler, 1 D. & R. 15. S. P., Jachs v. Mayer, 8 Term Rep. 245.

If a cause is made a remanet at the assizes, a new notice is necessary if the plaintiff intends to try the cause at the following assizes. Gains v. Bilson, 1 M. & P. 87; 4 Bing. 414; 6 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 33.

On a new trial a fresh notice is necessary. Bingley v. Mallison, 3 Dougl. 402.

When a cause set down for trial in London or Middlesex is stayed by injunction, the plaintiff is at liberty to try upon the injunction being dissolved without any fresh notice of trial, although several terms have elapsed since the day on which the cause would otherwise have been tried. Stockton and Darlington Ry. v. Fox, 6 Ex. 127; 2 L. M. & P. 141; 20 L. J., Ex. 96.

A cause stood for trial at the sittings after Trinity Term. The defendant obtained an order for a commission to examine witnesses abroad, the commission to be returnable on the 30th of November, and the trial being postponed until the sittings after Michaelmas Term. No fresh notice was given, and the cause was taken as an undefended cause:—The court set aside the trial. Cawley v. Knowles, 16 C. B. (N.S.) 107.

When the trial of a town cause is postponed by order of a judge from one sittings to another on the application of the defendant, a fresh notice is not necessary. Claudet v. Prince, 8 B. & S. 360; 36 L. J., Q. B. 196; L. R. 2 Q. B. 406; 16 L. T. 397; 15 W. R. 794.

The plaintiff had given notice of trial, and the cause, after standing over for more than a year, had been struck out under Ord. XVII. r. 10, of the Rules of 1883. It was subsequently re-entered by the plaintiff in the cause-book on the payment of 2*l.*, as required by the scale of fees; but, as he had given no fresh notice of trial, the defendant now submitted that the re-entry was erroneous, and ought to be struck out:—Held, that, where a cause has been struck out under Ord. XVII. r. 10, the notice of trial is no longer in force, and that consequently another must be given before the plaintiff can re-enter the cause for trial. Le Blond v. Curtis, 52 L. T. 574; 33 W. R. 561.

As to Part of Claim—Validity of.]—To a declaration containing two counts, the defendant pleaded three pleas to the first count, and a fourth plea to the second. Issue was joined on the pleas to the first count; and there was a special replication to the fourth plea. Notice of trial was given, and the defendant obtained a rule for a special jury, and the jury was duly nominated, reduced, and summoned; but, when the cause came on for trial, it was discovered that no issue had been joined on the replication to the fourth plea. Before the jury was sworn the judge, upon the application of the plaintiff (without summons), amended the record by striking out the second count; and, the defendant declining to appear, the plaintiff obtained a verdict. Upon a motion to set aside the verdict for irregularity, on the ground that there had been no sufficient notice of trial, and that there had been a discontinuance:—Held, that the notice of trial was effectual as to the first count, and the trial valid; that the defendant had waived any irregularity in the notice; and that there was no discontinuance. Beresford v. Geddes, 36 L. J., C. P. 115; L. R. 2 C. P. 285; 15 L. T. 617; 15 W. R. 567.

Previous Notice Invalid.]—A notice of trial in due time according to the practice of the court is regular, although a previous notice has been given, which is void, and has not been countermanded. Fell v. Tyne, 4 D. P. C. 246; 2 H. & W. 299.

Rule to Set aside Proceedings in Default of.]—After notice of trial, given to the defendant's attorney, for the first sittings in Michaelmas Term, the defendant's attorney, on the 9th of October, died. The cause was tried pursuant to the notice on the 3rd of November, and a verdict found for the plaintiff; and notice of taxation of costs was left by the plaintiff at the office of the defendant's deceased attorney on the 8th of November, the plaintiff's attorney not being aware of the death. On the 9th of November the plaintiff signed judgment for the debt and costs. In March, 1850, the defendant being in prison, the plaintiff lodged a detainer against him. The defendant having obtained a rule nisi to set aside all the proceedings since the 9th of October, deposing that he did not know of any notice of trial having been given, and believed that none had been given, and that he had had no notice of any proceedings subsequently to the plea, until he found that the detainer had been lodged, but not stating when he first knew that his attorney was dead, the court discharged the rule. Ashley v. Brown, 1 L. M. & P. 451; 19 L. J., Q. B. 477.

2. By whom Given.

Notice of trial given by one who has ceased to be an attorney is irregular. Patterson v. Powell, 9 Bing. 620; 2 M. & Scott, 773; 2 L. J., C. P. 68.

3. Form.

See R. S. C. 1883, Ord. XXXVI. r. 13.

In a notice of trial in an action which has been set down in the Chancery Division, it is not necessary to state the name of the judge by whom the action will be tried, but the notice will be sufficient if it states that the trial will take place before a judge in Middlesex. Harris v. Gamble, 47 L. J., Ch. 344; 7 Ch. D. 877; 38 L. T. 253; 26 W. R. 350.

There is no particular form requisite for a notice of trial, so that it unequivocally conveys to the party to whom given the intention of the plaintiff to try at a particular time and place. Ginger v. Pycroft, 2 B. C. Rep. 254; 5 D. & L. 554; 17 L. J., Q. B. 182; 12 Jur. 898.

Where a notice stated incorrectly that the cause was made a remanet from the last sittings in the previous term, but was correct in other respects:—Held, a good notice. Ib.

A notice at "Guildhall, Westminster," the court not sitting there, is defective, if the defendant swears that he was misled by it. Cross v. Lang, 1 D. P. C. 342.

A notice, dated the 18th April, 1856, "for the second sittings in next Easter term" in London, is a sufficient notice for the second sittings in Easter Term, 1856, inasmuch as it gives information to that effect which any reasonable man would act upon. Fenn v. Green, 6 El. & Bl. 656; 25 L. J., Q. B. 353; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 591.

A notice for the sittings after term, in London, should, in strictness, specify whether the cause is intended to be tried at the first day of such sittings or at the adjournment day. But the omission so to do is an irregularity waived by a defendant who, knowing that the cause has been entered for the adjournment day, takes steps shewing that he considers the notice to refer to such entry. Yonge v. Fisher, 5 Scott (N.R.) 893; 2 D. (N.S.) 637; 4 Man. & G. 814; 12 L. J., C. P. 95.

4. When may be Given.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XXXVI. r. 11.

No Reply delivered.]—A plaintiff who has not delivered a reply cannot give notice of trial until the expiration of twenty-one days after delivery of the defence. Robinson v. Caldwell, 62 L. J., Q. B. 252; [1893] 1 Q. B. 519; 5 R. 320; 68 L. T. 218; 41 W. R. 364.

Right of Defendant to give—Abridgment of Time.]—Ord. XXXVI. r. 12, provides that, if the plaintiff does not, within six weeks after the close of the pleadings, or within such extended time as the court or a judge may allow, give notice of trial, the defendant may, before notice of trial given by the plaintiff, give notice of trial, or may apply to the court or a judge to dismiss the action for want of prosecution. Ord. LXIV. r. 7, provides that the court or a judge shall have power to enlarge or abridge the time appointed by the rules, or fixed by any order enlarging time, for doing any act or taking any proceeding upon such terms (if any) as the justice of the case may require:—Held, that the period of six weeks mentioned in Ord. XXXVI. r. 12, is not a time appointed for doing any act or taking any proceeding within Ord. LXIV. r. 7, and consequently that the court could not make an order giving the defendant leave to give notice of trial, if the plaintiff did not give such notice within a shorter period than six weeks from the close of the pleadings. Saunders v. Pawley, 54 L. J., Q. B. 199; 14 Q. B. D. 234; 51 L. T. 903; 33 W. R. 277.

Under Rules of 1875.]—By Ord. XXXVI. r. 3, a plaintiff is entitled as of right to give notice of trial with his reply, even though the reply may not formally close the pleadings. Asquith v. Molineaux, 49 L. J., Q. B. 800.

The defendants delivered a defence and counter-claim; the plaintiffs replied, their reply not closing the pleadings, and at the same time gave notice of trial. Next day they entered the action for trial:—Held, that the action must be struck out of the cause list, on the ground (per Kelly, C.B.) that the entry for trial was irregular, and (per Stephen, J.) that the notice of trial, and consequently the entry, were irregular. Metropolitan Inner Circle Ry. v. Metropolitan Ry., 49 L. J., Ex. 505; 5 Ex. D. 196; 28 W. R. 510.

A plaintiff is not entitled to serve notice of trial before the close of the pleadings; and it is irregular to do so with the reply, except in cases where the reply is a mere joinder of issue, and of itself closes the pleadings. Warnock v. Harvey, 6 L. R., Ir. 339.

Plaintiffs joined issue on the defence, and replied to the defendants' counter-claim. After the delivery of the reply, but before joinder of issue thereon, they served notice of trial, and the court, on the application of the defendants, set aside the notice of trial as irregular. Newry Gas Consumers' Co. v. Newry Town Commissioners 6 L. R., Ir. 337.

5. Length of Notice—Short Notice.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XXXVI. r. 14.

Length of Notice—Change of Venue by order.]—By Ord. XXXVI. r. 1, where no place of trial is named in a statement of claim, the place of trial shall be Middlesex, unless otherwise ordered by the court or a judge. The plaintiff commenced an action in the Liverpool District Registry, and delivered a statement of claim in which no place of trial was named. No order as to the place of trial was applied for. On the 16th March, 1892, the plaintiff gave the defendant notice of trial at Liverpool Assizes, the commission day for which was fixed for the 26th March. Upon a summons for directions taken out by the plaintiff, the district registrar, on the 19th March, made an order for the trial of the action by a jury, and that the plaintiff's notice of trial at Liverpool should stand:—Held, that the notice of trial for Liverpool was a nullity, and although the registrar had jurisdiction to change the venue from Middlesex to Liverpool, he had no power thereby to deprive the defendant of his right to ten days' notice of trial, or to put him under terms to take short notice. Laskier v. Tekeian, 67 L. T. 121.

Short Notice.]—When a defendant obtains an order for extension of the time to plead upon the terms of taking short notice of trial "if necessary," the condition applies only to the first sittings at which the plaintiff may in due course, and by using proper diligence, have a trial. O'Keefe v. Cullen, Ir. R. 6 C. L. 452.

When a defendant is under terms to take short notice of trial "if necessary," the plaintiff is entitled to give such notice if he cannot, using reasonable diligence, give full notice, although the regular course of pleading was not such as to render short notice necessary. Pretty v. Nanscawen, 43 L. J., Ex. 3; L. R. 9 Ex. 42; 29 L. T. 579; 22 W. R. 222.

A defendant is not bound to take short notice, if he delivers a plea sufficiently early to enable the plaintiff to give full notice. Nicholl v. Forshall, 15 L. J., Q. B. 203.

But it lies upon the plaintiff to shew the necessity of a shorter notice than the ordinary one. Drake v. Pickford, 15 M. & W. 607; 15 L. J., Ex. 346.

A defendant, who is under terms to take short notice, is not bound to take short notice of inquiry. Stevens v. Pell, 2 D. P. C. 355; 2 C. & M. 421; 4 Tyr. 6; 3 L. J., Ex. 83.

Where a defendant is under terms to accept short notice for the sittings in term, and the plaintiff, without any default on the part of the defendant, is unable to reply, so as to give such notice, a short notice of trial for the second sittings is irregular. White v. Clark, 8 D. P. C. 730.

Where a defendant has obtained time to plead, on condition of taking short notice for the sittings in or after a particular term, he is not thereby obliged to take short notice of trial for the sittings in or after any subsequent term. Slatter v. Painter, 8 M. & W. 672; 1 D. (N.S.) 35; 10 L. J., Ex. 476; 5 Jur. 636.

When a defendant agrees to take short notice, if necessary, that means, if such notice shall be rendered necessary in consequence of the grace given. If, in short, the indulgence granted to a defendant disables the plaintiff from giving full notice, then the defendant must take short notice. Woolley v. Aldritt, 17 L. T. 120.

6. Waiver of Irregular Notice.

Retaining an irregular notice is no waiver of the irregularity. Dignam v. Ibbotson, 3 M. & W. 431. S. P., Dignam v. Mostyn, 6 D. P. C. 547.

A defendant is not bound to return an irregular notice of trial, though made aware, by a notice to produce, that the plaintiff is proceeding thereon. Wood v. Harding, 3 C. B. 968.

A defect in a notice is waived by the defendant's taking out a summons to set aside the notice, and insisting on the hearing, on a different objection only, which is overruled by the judge. Farmer v. Mountfort, 9 M. & W. 100; 1 D. (N.S.) 366; 11 L. J., Ex. 13.

If a defendant served with a notice of trial by continuance where no issue has been delivered, and no original notice of trial has been served, omits to return the notice of trial by continuance, and gives no intimation to the plaintiff of the irregularity for an unreasonable time, and until it is too late to correct it in time to go to trial at the same sittings, the irregularity is waived. Brown v. Wildbore, 1 Scott (N.R.) 159; 1 Man. & G. 276; 8 D. P. C. 592. See also Berresford v. Geddes, ante, col. 448.

7. Setting Aside.

A defendant who has become a bankrupt, and obtained his certificate after trial and verdict against him, has a right to set it aside for the want of a sufficient notice of trial, although his estate is insolvent, and his assignees are no parties to the application. Shepherd or Shepheard v. Thompson, 9 M. & W. 110; 1 D. (N.S.) 345; 11 L. J., Ex. 64.

d. Entry for Trial of Causes.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XXXVI. r. 15.

Time for.]—A cause cannot be entered for trial under Ord. XXXVI. before the pleadings are closed. Metropolitan Inner Circle Ry. v. Metropolitan Ry., 49 L. J., Ex. 505; 5 Ex. D. 196; 28 W. R. 510. See Ord. XXXVI. r. 15.

Cause not Entered—Motion to Dismiss for Want of Prosecution.]—A plaintiff gave notice of trial (in Middlesex) within the six weeks limited by r. 12 of Ord. XXXVI., but did not, as required by r. 16, enter the trial within six days after the notice of trial was given. The trial not having been entered:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to move to dismiss for want of prosecution, and an order dismissing the action was accordingly made. Crick v. Hewlett, 53 L. J., Ch. 1110; 27 Ch. D. 354; 51 L. T. 428; 32 W. R. 922.

e. Neglecting to Proceed to Trial.

Notice of Trial—Postponement of Trial on Application of Plaintiff.]—An abortive notice of trial does not preclude the dismissal of the action under Ord. XXXV. rr. 2, 4. Where the time mentioned in Ord. XXXV. r. 2, had elapsed, the court dismissed the action for want of prosecution, though notice of trial had been served, the trial having been postponed on the application of the plaintiffs, and no further proceedings having been taken by them to bring the case to trial. Hibernian Bank v. Hughes, 10 L. R., Ir. 15.

Default in Proceeding to trial after Verdict set Aside—Trial by Proviso.]—An action, in which the place of trial was out of Dublin, was tried at the Spring Assizes, 1883, when a verdict was directed for the defendant. This verdict was set aside on the ground of misdirection, and a second trial took place at the Spring Assizes, 1884, resulting in a verdict directed for the plaintiff, which was also set aside, and a third trial ordered in the Michaelmas Sittings, 1884. The plaintiff not having served notice of trial for the next ensuing assizes, the defendant moved to dismiss the action for want of prosecution, contending that the case fell within Ord. XXXV. rr. 2, 4:—The court refused the motion. Semble, the only remedy open to a defendant under such circumstances is trial by proviso under the old practice. Foott v. Benn, 16 L. R., Ir. 247.

Where, after a disagreement of the jury, the plaintiff does not proceed to a second trial, the defendant's proper course is to have a trial by proviso, under s. 107 of the Common Law Procedure Act, 1853, and not to move to dismiss for want of prosecution under Ord. XXXV. r. 4. Joyce v. Boyle, 24 L. R., Ir. 455—C. A.

Extension of Time.]—The power of a judge to extend the time for proceeding to trial may be exercised after the expiration of the time limited by s. 101 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, for proceeding to trial. Nosotti v. Hudson, 37 L. J., C. P. 135; L. R. 3 C. P. 293; 17 L. T. 479; 16 W. R. 315.

Where a defendant has given twenty days' notice to proceed to trial, the plaintiff may come to the court, and, on satisfactorily explaining the delay in not going to trial, obtain an extension of time. Farthing v. Castles, 1 B. C. C. 142; 22 L. J., Q. B. 167; 17 Jur. 139.

It is not necessary that the rule should specify the particular period for which an extension of the time is required. Ib.

The plaintiff need not wait until the expiration of the twenty days, nor until the defendant has entered a suggestion, before applying to the court or a judge. Ib.

On the defendant's insolvency, an application to enlarge the time for the plaintiff's proceeding to trial must be made within the twenty days. Horner v. Spencer, 1 F. & F. 412.

Signing Judgment.]—A defendant is entitled to enter a suggestion and sign judgment for his costs under s. 101 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, where a plaintiff neglects to try a cause at the time mentioned in that section, and to proceed to trial at the assizes or sittings occurring immediately after the expiration of the twenty days' notice to try, given by the defendant. Judkins v. Atherton, 3 El. & Bl. 387; 23 L. J., Q. B. 335; 18 Jur. 813; 2 W. R. 563.

Notice of trial was given for the summer assizes, and the plaintiff at the assizes withdrew the record. On the 21st February following the defendant gave notice requiring the plaintiff to bring on to trial the issue joined, at the next assizes, the commission day of which was the 21st March. The plaintiff did not proceed to trial as required by the notice, and the defendant on the 5th of May entered a suggestion on the record and signed judgment for his costs:—Held, that he had properly entered the suggestion and signed judgment. Ib.

A suggestion having been entered, the court refused to let in the plaintiff to try upon a peremptory undertaking without an affidavit of merits. Ib.

Where a plaintiff has proceeded at law and in equity, and elected to proceed in equity after issue joined in the action, the defendant may give notice to the plaintiff to bring the issue on to be tried; and if the plaintiff neglects to do so, the defendant may enter a suggestion on the record, and sign judgment for his costs. Mortimore v. Soares, 1 El. & El. 399; 28 L. J., Q. B. 133; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 574.

Where no proceedings have been taken in a cause for a year the defendant must, before signing judgment, give a month's notice of his intention to proceed, although he has given twenty days' notice to the plaintiff to proceed to trial. Metcalf v. Hetherington, 3 H. & N. 755; 28 L. J., Ex. 155.

By one of Several Defendants.] — Judgment as in case of a nonsuit, under the former practice, might be moved for by one of several defendants, though other defendants had moved for costs of the day for not proceeding to trial. Bridgeford v. Wiseman, 16 M. & W. 439.

So, in an action of tort against two, one of whom had suffered judgment by default, the other, who had pleaded to issue, might have judgment against the plaintiff for not proceeding to trial against him. Hadrick v. Haslop, 12 Q. B. 267; 16 L. J., Q. B. 442; 11 Jur. 1012. S. P., Chapman v. Heslop, 12 Q. B. 928.

In an action against four, issue was joined against two; the third died after having pleaded, but before issue joined as against him; the fourth died not having pleaded at all:—Held, that the surviving defendants were not in the situation to move to enter up judgment as in case of a nonsuit. Pinkus v. Sturch, 5 C. B. 474; 5 D. & L. 515; 17 L. J., C. P. 120; 12 Jur. 121.

Where several defendants appeared, by separate attorneys, each might move. Rhodes v. Thomas, 2 D. & L. 531.

Where one of several defendants moved, the rule was to shew cause why the judgment should not be entered generally for the defendants. Sawyer v. Hodges, 1 D. (N.S.) 16.

f. MOTIONS RESPECTING THE TRIAL.

1. To whom Made.

Motions to regulate the trial must be made, not to the court, but to the judge who presides at nisi prius; as, a motion to try a cause at a sittings in term, notwithstanding a special jury obtained by the opposite party for delay. Johnson v. Gas Light and Coke Co., 7 Taunt. 386.

A judge sitting at nisi prius in Westminster cannot upon motion make an order in a cause entered for trial in London. Atkinson v. Dickinson, 3 Camp. 41.

2. To Advance Hearing.

Matter of Discretion.]—After a cause is set down for hearing, it may be advanced at the discretion of the court. Hoyle v. Livesey, 1 Mer. 381.

The court has a right to advance, at its discretion, any cause which is ripe for hearing. Semble, the Lord Chancellor has no jurisdiction to discharge or vary an order made for that purpose by the Master of the Rolls. Hutchinson v. Stephens, 2 Myl. & C. 452; 1 Keen, 658; 6 L. J., Ch. 296; 1 Jur. 524.

In what Cases.]—Principle upon which causes are advanced. Rawson v. Samuel, Cr. & Ph. 161; 10 L. J., Ch. 214; 3 Jur. 947.

A cause may be advanced for the purpose of taking the bill pro confesso. Barwick v. Ward, 5 Sim. 676; 4 L. J., Ch. 58. S. P., Hart v. Ashton, 1 Madd. 175.

Cause not in the paper not called on to prove a will under the circumstances. Anon., 4 Madd. 271.

In a suit for specific performance of an agreement to let a house for a short term, the plaintiff should apply to have the cause advanced so that it may be heard before the term has expired. De Brassac v. Martyn, 9 L. T. 287; 11 W. R. 1020.

Special case advanced and heard on a short cause day where it was important that it should be heard quickly. Wood v. Wood, 19 W. R. 972.

An appeal from an order overruling a demurrer will generally be advanced, if the right to an injunction is involved, but there is no rule that it should be advanced in other cases. L., C. & D. Ry. v. Imperial Mercantile Credit Association, L. R. 3 Ch. 231.

An application was made on the part of a plaintiff to have a cause taken out of its turn, in order that it might be tried during the existing sittings, on the ground that the defendant had died since the commencement of such sittings. The application was opposed on behalf of the defendant's executors, and refused after time taken to consider. Izard v. Milner, 4 Car. & P. 285.

Where parties are very numerous, it is a ground for taking a cause out of its turn to prevent abatement. Eyre v. Marsden, 7 L. J., Ch. 194.

Court will set down cause pro formâ, and put it at the head of the paper, in order to enable witness, attending from public office in country to prove document, to return. Swift v. Grace, 9 Price, 146.

Court will not order a cause set down for hearing to be advanced in the paper on ground that subject-matter of suit is an arbitration of matters of account, and that if award should be set aside, the applicant would, on going into account again, lose the advantage of a witness not expected to live. Dalzell v. Bailey, 3 Price, 2.

Where two suits involve the same subject-matter, and the same parties, and a decree is made in one of them, the court will in some instances direct the hearing of the other suit to stand over until that in which the decree is made is heard on further directions. Cumming v. Slater, 1 Y. & Coll. C. C. 484.

Cross cause advanced so as to be heard at same time as cause first in order for trial. Roberts v. West, 11 Price, 514.

Where there are two suits relating to the same estate in different branches of the court, one suit will not be advanced out of its turn. Worsley v. Street, 3 W. R. 192.

The Application.]—An application to advance the hearing of exceptions should be made on notice and not ex parte. Marshall v. Mellersh, 5 Beav. 496.

The court does not upon motion by the plaintiff, without notice of the defendant, order a cause to be advanced for hearing; and where a cause had been advanced by order obtained without such notice, the cause was remitted to its place, and the plaintiff ordered to pay the costs of the day. Powell v. Calloway, 11 Sim. 51; 9 L. J., Ch. 337; 4 Jur. 859.

The court will not order a foreclosure suit to be advanced and heard as a short cause, without the defendant's consent. Lewin v. Moline, 1 Beav. 99; 8 L. J., Ch. 96.

Motion by plaintiff to advance demurrer to bill for injunction and receiver, refused on account of delay in filing bill. Jones v. Taylor, 2 Madd. 181.

3. To Postpone or Adjourn Hearing.

a. In what Cases.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XXXVI. r. 34.

Other Proceedings Pending.]—The court will not delay the trial of an action until after the trial of an indictment for perjury, in a matter relating to the cause. Johnson v. Wardle, 3 D. P. C. 550; 1 H. & W. 219.

In an action brought by trustees against a party who had received moneys belonging to the cestui que trust, under a power of attorney which had previously been countermanded by the plaintiffs, the defendant applied to have the trial postponed, on the ground that a bill in equity had been filed by him against the plaintiffs with respect to the subject-matter of the suit, and that he was advised and believed that an injunction would be granted, as soon as by the practice of the courts of equity the application for one could come to be heard, and offered, in the meantime, to bring into court the money in dispute:—Held, that the court had power to postpone the trial on those grounds. Vandersteegen v. Witham, 6 M. & W. 457; 8 D. P. C. 369; 9 L. J., Ex. 174.

Absence of Witnesses.]—A motion to put off a trial in London or Middlesex, on account of the absence of a witness, cannot be made when there is not time to shew cause within the term, if the party applying had it in his power to come earlier. Anon., 3 Taunt. 315.

Where a material witness for the plaintiff is prevented from attending by the fraud and practice of the defendant's attorney, the plaintiff ought to apply to the judge to put off the trial, or he ought to withdraw the record. Turquand v. Dawson, 1 C. M. & R. 709; 5 Tyr. 418.

The judge at the assizes will not postpone the trial at the instance of the plaintiff, on the ground of the illness of a material witness, as the plaintiff can withdraw his record. Maspero v. Strachan, 5 Car. & P. 514.

It is the practice to accede to an application to postpone a cause even on the day on which it stands for trial, on the ground of the absence of a material witness, when the application appears reasonable. Stevens v. Esling, 2 F. & F. 136.

A master mariner, having gone abroad, in the course of his business, after the commencement of the action, and after time obtained to plead, but before issue joined, the court refused to postpone the trial until his return to England, on the ground that his evidence was material and necessary to make out his defence. Solomon v. Howard, 12 C. B. 463.

A judge may, in his discretion, refuse to postpone the trial notwithstanding the application to postpone is supported by an affidavit of the absence of a material witness. Turner v. Merywether, 7 C. B. 251; 18 L. J., C. P. 155; 13 Jur. 683.

—— Diligence used to obtain Attendance.]—The court will not, at the instance of a defendant, postpone the trial of a cause on the ground of the absence of a material and necessary witness, where the witness is a captain in the service of the defendant, and the defendant has been guilty of laches in abstaining from securing the testimony of the witness when within his power. Wright v. M'Guffie, 4 C. B. (N.S.) 441.

In an action on a bill of exchange against the drawer and indorser, the only plea being a denial of the indorsement, an application on his part to postpone the trial on account of the absence of the acceptor, sworn to be a material witness and to be absent in Scotland, was refused, as it did not appear that any endeavour had been made to obtain his evidence under 17 & 18 Vict. c. 34, or otherwise. Ward v. Wilkinson, 2 F. & F. 173.

The court ought not to grant to a plaintiff the indulgence of postponing the trial unless he has used due diligence and has good and strong reason for seeking a postponement, more especially if the defendant offers some accommodation to him in the matter. Steuart v. Gladstone, 47 L. J., Ch. 154; 7 Ch. D. 394; 37 L. T. 575; 26 W. R. 277.

Motion for postponement in the present case refused, the plaintiff being in India. Ib.

The court will not put off a trial on the ground of the absence of a material witness, when it appears that no application has been made to the witness to know whether he will attend. Worsley v. Bassett, 3 Dougl. 58.

The court refused to put off a trial on an affidavit that the parties had been endeavouring to find a witness but could not do so. Anon., Lofft, 653.

A defendant cannot be presumed to know what evidence will be required until after issue joined; and, therefore, where it appeared that between that time and the first day of the assizes due diligence had been used to procure the attendance of a material and necessary witness, but without effect, the judge ordered the trial to be put off, on the defendant bringing the money into court and paying costs. Dale v. Heald, 1 Car. & K. 314.

——After Postponement on former occasion.]—Where a trial has been postponed on account of the absence of a material witness beyond seas, the court will again postpone it if satisfied that there is a reasonable prospect of his return to this country, although already postponed for a year and it is not certain when the witness will return. Thompson v. Lewis, 2 C. L. R. 707. See Noble v. Lindsay, 2 W. R. 19.

On an application to postpone a trial for the second time for several months on account of the absence of a witness, a condition that security be given to the satisfaction of the master can be properly imposed. Campbell v. Read, 4 Jur. (N.S.) 1111.

Absence of Documents.]—Where copies of a correspondence material to the issue were produced on the part of the defendant, having only been discovered and obtained the day before (the originals being at Seville and Liverpool), and too late to give notice to produce the originals, and the reception of the originals was objected to by the plaintiff, the judge adjourned the trial upon terms, the case being re-tried before the same judge and jury. Cahill v. Dawson, 1 F. & F. 291.

In the statement of the case on the part of the plaintiff, a document in the hands of a third party appearing to be material, and he having declined to produce it, an adjournment was allowed for the purpose of serving a subpœna duces tecum. Higginson v. Bank of England, 1 F. & F. 450.

Absence of Counsel.]—The probable absence of counsel is a sufficient ground for postponing the trial of an issue. Bearblock v. Tyler, 1 Jac. & Walk. 225.

To make Person a Party.]—Cause adjourned in order to make a person a party who had agreed with plaintiffs to advance the expenses of the suit upon condition of sharing the benefits. Chameau v. Riley, C. P. Coop. 336.

Jury influenced.]—A motion to postpone the new trial of an issue in a tithe suit from the summer to the spring assizes, on the ground that a report of the application for the new trial, and the decision of the judge granting it, in which he observed that the verdict in the first trial was against the opinion of himself and the judge who tried it, had been recently published in the newspapers, and would influence the minds of the jury, especially as the issue would be tried before the same judge, was refused with costs. Willis v. Farrer, 3 Y. & J. 381. See the application for the new trial, 3 Y. & J. 264.

b. Practice.

Affidavits—Form and Contents.]—A motion to postpone a trial, on account of the absence of a material witness, need not be supported by an affidavit of merits. Hill v. Prosser, 3 D. P. C. 704.

The court will put off the trial on an affidavit of the defendant's attorney that a material witness is kept out of the way by the plaintiff. Duberly v. Gunning, Peake, 97; 3 R. R. 664.

But the court will not receive the affidavit of an attorney's clerk, unless it is stated that he is particularly acquainted with the circumstances of the cause, and has the management of it. Sullivan v. Magill, 1 H. Bl. 637.

The affidavit to postpone a trial, on the ground of the absence of a witness, need not state the name of such witness, though it was suggested to be material and necessary. Smith v. Dobson, 2 D. & R. 420. S. P., Buckingham v. Banks, 4 D. & R. 832.

Payment of Costs.]—Upon a motion to postpone a trial, notice of the intended application omitting to offer the costs of the postponement, the court made the rule absolute, as well on payment of those costs as of the costs of the motion, though cause was shewn in the first instance. Ward v. Ducker, 6 Scott (N.R.) 45; 5 Man. & G. 377.

Where a defendant obtains an order to postpone a trial on payment of costs, he should serve an appointment to tax with the order; and where he omitted to do so, and the plaintiff treated the order as a nullity and proceeded to trial, the court refused to set aside the verdict so obtained, except upon payment of costs by the defendant. Waller v. Joy, 4 D. & L. 338; 16 M. & W. 60; 16 L. J., Ex. 17.

When the hearing of an action is adjourned in order to allow parties to be added, the party who applies for adjournment must pay all the costs incurred by the action having been in the paper for hearing, and not merely a fixed sum for costs of the day. Lydall v. Martinson, 5 Ch. D. 780; 37 L. T. 69; 25 W. R. 866.

Application, when made.]—An application to postpone the hearing of a cause should be made before the case comes into the paper for the day. Hodges v. Patrick, 22 W. R. 390.

Cause standing in the paper of the day, and being about to come on to be heard at the sittings, the court, nevertheless, granted a motion for transferring it to a future day. Roberts v. West, 11 Price, 514.

g. Conduct of the Cause.

Party in Person.]—A party, conducting his own cause at the trial, has a right to address the jury as an advocate, without waiving his right to give evidence as a witness in his own behalf. Cobbett v. Hudson, 1 El. & Bl. 11; 22 L. J., Q. B. 11; 17 Jur. 488; 1 W. R. 54.

The wife of a plaintiff has no right to appear and conduct the cause of her husband at nisi prius. Cobbett v. Hudson, 15 Q. B. 988; 14 Jur. 982.

A party appearing in person must examine the witnesses as well as address the jury. Shuttleworth v. Nicholson, 1 M. & Rob. 254.

Counsel can only be heard to assist him on legal objections. Ib.

Where a party conducts his own case, and examines his own witnesses, counsel are not allowed to argue points of law for him. Moscati v. Lawson, 1 M. & Rob. 454.

Where counsel regularly retained appear for the plaintiff in a penal action, and claim to proceed, the plaintiff himself cannot appear and claim to be nonsuited. Marks v. Benjamin, 2 M. & Rob. 225.

By Counsel.]—Where there are several counsel the leader may, in his discretion, interpose and take the examination out of the hands of his junior. Doe v. Roe, 2 Camp. 280 ; 11 R. R. 711.

Counsel has no right to open facts which he is not in a condition to prove. Stevens v. Webb, 7 Car. & P. 60.

If one of two plaintiffs appears in person, the other cannot be heard by counsel ; for co-plaintiffs cannot sever, nor can the same party be heard both in person and by counsel. Newton v. Ricketts, 2 Ph. 624 ; 16 L. J., Ch. 372, n. ; 12 Jur. 106, 238.

When the court is sitting as a jury, the practice as to hearing counsel is the same as at common law, but, on points of law occurring, counsel will be heard according to the ordinary practice of the court. Daw v. Eley, 11 Jur. (N.S.) 923 ; 14 W. R. 48.

A plaintiff seeking alternative inconsistent relief against different defendants has a right to have the first alternative tried out. In such actions counsel for the second defendant may address the court against and cross-examine the witnesses of his co-defendant. Child v. Stenning, 47 L. J., Ch. 371 ; 7 Ch. D. 413 ; 38 L. T. 232 ; 26 W. R. 265.

One counsel only will be heard on each side upon the trial of a question of fact. Conington v. Gilliatt, 45 L. J., Ch. 273 ; 1 Ch. D. 694 ; 34 L. T. 123 ; 24 W. R. 269.

Production of Animal.]—If in an action for seizing and detaining a dog the defendant refuses to produce the dog (under notice) during the examination of the plaintiff's witnesses, he will not be allowed to produce it afterwards for the purpose of invalidating the testimony of those witnesses. Lewis v. Hartley, 7 Car. & P. 405.

Objections—Sufficiency of Proof.]—The defendant having closed his evidence in support of certain items in a particular of a set-off, and the judge having begun to sum up to the jury :—Held, that it was too late for the plaintiff's counsel to object to the sufficiency of proof of one of such items. Abbott v. Parsons, 5 M. & P. 521 ; 7 Bing. 563.

—— Plaintiff in Contempt.]—A defendant cannot object to a cause being heard on the ground that the plaintiff is in contempt. Ricketts v. Mornington, 7 Sim. 200 ; 4 L. J., Ch. 21.

—— When taken.]—An objection on a point of law may be taken at any time before verdict returned, even if the point is raised during the trial and the counsel of the objector intimates that he does not rely upon it. Martin v. G. N. Ry. (16 C. B. 179) distinguished. Foundation v. Keatinge, Ir. R. 9 C. L. 278.

If one party at a trial deliberately elects to fight one question on which he is beaten, he cannot afterwards on an appeal raise another question, although that question was at the trial open to him on the pleadings and on the evidence. Martin v. G. N. Ry. (16 C. B. 179) approved. Browne v. Dunn, 6 R. 67—H. L. (E.)

An objection to the plaintiff's title not noticed in the answer, but appearing from the plaintiff's own evidence, relied on at the hearing. O'Connell v. O'Callaghan, 7 Ir. Eq. R. 596.

An objection on account of the insolvency of the next friend of a female plaintiff, cannot be taken at the hearing of the cause, although the benefit of the objection has been claimed by the answer. Monday v. Waghorn, 21 L. J., Ch. 353 ; 16 Jur. 787.

Persons having Conduct of Cause.]—See supra, PARTIES, col. 118.

Amicus curiæ.]—As amicus curiæ any person may make suggestions to the court. Tollemache v. Tollemache, 30 L. J., Mat. 115.

h. RIGHT OF BEGINNING.

Party on whom Burden of Proof lies.]—Wherever, from the state of the record, there is anything to be proved by the plaintiff, he is entitled to begin. Mercer v. Whall, 5 Q. B. 447 ; 14 L. J., Q. B. 267 ; 9 Jur. 576.

The rule is the same in actions of tort. Ib.

The test to determine the order of beginning is to consider which party would be entitled to the verdict supposing no evidence given on either side ; as the burden of proof must lie on his adversary. Leete v. Gresham Life Insurance Society, 15 Jur. 1161. S. P., Belcher v. McIntosh, 8 Car. & P. 720.

Where the affirmative of any one material issue is on the plaintiff, and he undertakes to give evidence upon it, he is entitled to begin. Rawlins v. Desborough, 2 M. & Rob. 328.

In an action for work and labour, the defendant pleaded that the "promise was made to the plaintiff and S., and not to the plaintiff alone." Replication, that the promise was made to the plaintiff alone, and not to the plaintiff and S. :—Held, that the plaintiff ought to begin. Davies v. Evans, 6 Car. & P. 619.

By a life policy of assurance it was stipulated, that it should be void if anything stated by the assured in his declaration to the directors should be untrue. In his declaration he stated, that "he was at that time in good health, and not afflicted with any disorder, nor addicted to any habit tending to shorten life ; that he had not at any time been afflicted with insanity, rupture, gout, fits, &c. ; that he had not had any spitting of blood, consumptive symptoms, asthma, cough, or other affection of the lungs ; and that A. was at that time his usual medical attendant." The plaintiffs averred in their declaration the truth of the statement of the assured. The first five pleas alleged, that the declaration of the assured was untrue in this, that he had spitting of blood, consumptive symptoms, an asthma of the lungs, an affection of the liver, and a cough of an inflammatory and dangerous nature ; sixthly, that he was afflicted with a disorder tending to shorten life ; seventhly, that he was not at that time in good health ; and, eighthly, that he had falsely averred that A. was his usual medical attendant :—Held, that plaintiff was entitled to begin at the trial, the issue on the seventh plea being upon him ; and, semble, that the issue on the other pleas also lay upon him. Geach v. Ingall, 14 M. & W. 95 ; 15 L. J., Ex. 37 ; 9 Jur. 691. S. P., Craig v. Fenn, Car. & M. 43 ; Ashby v. Bates, 15 M. & W. 589 ; 4 D. & L. 33 ; 15 L. J., Ex. 349.

In an action on a life policy, to be cancelled in case of suicide, by return of the premiums, on a plea that the deceased died by suicide, and that the premiums were ready to be returned, the defendant is entitled to begin, the onus being upon him of proving that the death was by suicide. Stormont v. Waterloo Life and Casualty Assurance Co., 1 F. & F. 22.

—— Admissions at Trial.]—In an action on a bill of exchange by indorsee against acceptor, he pleaded pleas denying the acceptance and indorsement, and also pleas of payment, upon all which issue was joined. The defendant's counsel, at the trial, offered to admit the acceptance and indorsement, and wished to begin :—Held, that this admission of all the facts, the proof of which was on the plaintiff, did not entitle the defendant to begin. Pontifex v. Jolly, 9 Car. & P. 202. S. P., Doe d. Warren v. Bray, Moo. & M. 166.

Where Damages are the Substantial Object of Suit.] — Where it can be collected from the pleadings and statements of counsel that substantial damages are the object of an action, the plaintiff has the right to begin, though all the issues are on the defendant. Hoggett v. Oxley, 9 Car. & P. 324 ; 2 M. & Rob. 251.

The plaintiff is entitled to begin, where damages of an unascertained amount are the object of the action, though the affirmative of the issues on the record is with the defendant. Carter v. Jones, 1 M. & Rob. 281. S. P., Doe d. Worcester (Trustees) v. Rowlands, 9 Car. & P. 734 ; 5 Jur. 177. But see Wootton v. Barton, 1 M. & Rob. 518 ; Lewis v. Wells, 7 Car. & P. 221 ; Reeve v. Underhill, 6 Car. & P. 773 ; Cooper v. Wakley, 3 Car. & P. 474 ; Moo. & M. 248.

Where the substantial question to be tried is the existence of a custom affirmed by the defendant, he is entitled to begin, although the plaintiff's counsel alleges that he seeks to recover real damages. Bastard v. Smith, 2 M. & Rob. 129.

Where real damages are not the object of the action, the party on whom the affirmative issues lie is entitled to begin. Burrell v. Nicholson, 1 M. & Rob. 304 ; 6 Car. & P. 202.

Accord and Satisfaction.]—In an action for negligence, the only plea being accord and satisfaction, the plaintiff is entitled to begin. Pim v. Eastern Counties Ry., 2 F. & F. 133.

Actions on Bills, Notes, and Cheques.]—If in an action on bills of exchange, with a count upon an account stated, the defendant pleads payment to the counts on the bills, and non assumpsit to the account stated :— Held, that the defendant is entitled to begin, unless the plaintiff's counsel has evidence to give on the count upon an account stated. Smart v. Rayner, 6 Car. & P. 721.

In an action on a bill of exchange by indorsee against acceptor ; the only plea was that the bill had been altered after acceptance :—Held, that the defendant's counsel had the right to begin, and that, upon his calling for the bill, the plaintiff's counsel ought to produce it without notice. Barker v. Malcolm, 7 Car. & P. 101.

A party gave a cheque for the amount of a deposit on a sale by auction, which sale was void. In an action on the cheque, he pleaded that there was no consideration for the cheque, and the plaintiff replied that there was consideration :— Held, that the defendant must begin. Mills v. Oddy, 6 Car. & P. 728.

A declaration stated that the defendant drew his cheque on W. & Co., and delivered it to L., who transferred it to the plaintiff. The defendant pleaded, first, that the cheque was given to L. as the nominal value of counters to play at an unlawful game, as L. knew, and that before the plaintiff took the cheque he had notice of the premises ; and second, a similar plea, in which, instead of an averment of notice, it was averred that the plaintiff gave no value for the cheque. Replication, denying the notice, and stating that the plaintiff gave a good consideration for the cheque :—Held, that the defendant must begin. Bingham v. Stanley, 9 Car. & P. 374.

In an action for goods sold, the defendant pleaded as to all but 171*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* non assumpsit, and as to that sum, that he gave the plaintiff a bill of exchange for that amount, which was not due at the time the action was brought. This was denied by the replication, and by the particulars the demand was limited to 171*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* :— Held, that the defendant was entitled to begin. Edge v. Hillary, 3 Car. & K. 43.

In an action by indorsee against maker of a promissory note, he pleaded that the note was in the hand of V., and that while it was so, the claim of V. on it was, by an order, referred to an arbitrator, and that, before any award was made, the note was, in violation of good faith, delivered to the plaintiff ; and that he, at the time he took the note, had knowledge of all the premises. Replication, that he had not any knowledge of the premises :—Held, that the defendant must begin, as the plaintiff's knowledge of the other facts was an essential part of the defence. Smith v. Martin, Car. & M. 58 ; 9 M. & W. 304 ; 1 D. (N.S.) 418 ; 11 L. J., Ex. 129.

Actions for Breach of Promise to Marry.]—To an action for breach of promise of marriage, the defendant did not plead the general issue, but only that the plaintiff, after the promise, conducted herself in a lewd, unchaste, and improper manner :—Held, that the plaintiff had the right to begin. Harrison v. Gould, 8 Car. & P. 580.

If the defendant pleads that, before any breach of the promise, the parties mutually agreed to exonerate each other from their promises, and this is denied by the replication, the defendant is entitled to begin. Stanton v. Paton, 1 Car. & K. 148.

Actions for Breach of other Contracts.]—A declaration stated that the defendant agreed to build houses according to a specification. Breach, that he did not build according to the specification. Plea, that the defendant did build according to the specification :—Held, that the plaintiff must begin, and prove that the defendant had not built according to the specification. Smith v. Davies, 7 Car. & P. 307.

To a declaration on an agreement for not repairing premises in a reasonable time, the defendant pleaded that he did repair within a reasonable time :—Held, that the plaintiff should begin, for if no evidence was offered on either side, the defendant would succeed. Belcher v. M'Intosh, 8 Car. & P. 720.

To an action to recover damages for the non-performance of several contracts, by which the defendant undertook to deliver divers quantities of spelter within specified times, he pleaded, first, that the plaintiff induced him to enter into the contracts by fraud, covin, and misrepresentation ; and secondly, that he would have delivered the spelter within the time specified, but was hindered from doing so by the fraud of the plaintiff :—Held, that the defendant had the right to begin. Steinkeller v. Newton, 9 Car. & P. 313.

In an action on the warranty of a horse, where the plaintiff in his declaration averred that the horse was not sound, and the defendant only pleaded that it was, upon which plea issue was joined :—Held, that the plaintiff had the right to begin. Osborn v. Thompson, 9 Car. & P. 337 ; 2 M. & Rob. 254.

In an action for wrongfully dismissing a teacher in a school before the expiration of the year for which he was engaged, the defendant pleaded only a plea justifying the dismissal, upon which issue was taken :—Held, that the defendant was entitled to begin. Harnett v. Johnson, 9 Car. & P. 206.

Actions on Bonds.]—In an action on a bond, the only plea being solvit ad diem, the execution of the bond is admitted, and it being an affirmative issue, the defendant must begin. Sandford v. Hunt, 1 Car. & P. 118.

In an action on a bond, the conditions not being set out in the declaration, and the making of it being admitted by the pleas, which were in confession and avoidance, but breaches being suggested and admitted by the defendant's attorney before trial, the admission not being accepted at the trial, the plaintiff is entitled to begin. Brooks v. Clarke, 4 F. & F. 484.

Actions on Covenants.]—In actions on covenants, where the affirmative of the issues is on the defendant he is entitled to begin, though the damages are unascertained. Wootton v. Barton, 1 M. & Rob. 518. S. P., Lewis v. Wells, 7 Car. & P. 221.

Where the breach was, that the defendant did not repair, but suffered the premises to be ruinous. Plea, that he did repair, and did not suffer the premises to become ruinous :—Held, that the plaintiff must begin. Soward v. Leggatt, 7 Car. & P. 613.

In an action to recover damages for the non-performance of an agreement under seal, if the defendant pleads only that the deed was obtained by fraud and covin, the affirmative of the issue being upon him, his counsel has a right to begin although the damages are uncertain, and evidence is requisite to guide the jury in forming their estimate of them. Reeve v. Underhill, 6 Car. & P. 773.

In actions in form ex contractu the plaintiff is entitled to begin, if the substantial question is the assessment of damages, though the affirmative of the issue is on the defendant. Doe d. Worcester (Trustees) v. Rowlands, 9 Car. & P. 734 ; 5 Jur. 177.

Therefore, in an action on an indenture of lease, suggesting breaches, that the defendant did not use and occupy the premises demised in a good and proper manner, and did not well and sufficiently repair the same ; pleas that he did use and occupy the premises in a good and proper manner, and did well and sufficiently repair the same :—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to begin. Ib.

In an action on a covenant for repayment of money, the only plea being that the deed was a mortgage deed, given to secure money lost by gambling, if the defendant admits the amount of claim, he is entitled to begin, even although the claim, in a technical view, is partly for liquidated damages. Hill v. Fox, 1 F. & F. 136. S. P., Overbury v. Muggridge, 1 F. & F. 137, n.

Actions for Defamation.]—In libel, when there is no general issue, but a justification is pleaded as to part, and judgment is suffered by default as to the residue, the plaintiff is entitled to begin. Wood v. Pringle, 1 M. & Rob. 277.

If a defendant pleads a justification, without pleading the general issue, and the affirmative of the issue is on him, he is entitled to begin, and the plaintiff has not, in such case, a right to begin with a view of proving the amount of his damages. Cooper v. Wakley, 3 Car. & P. 474 ; M. & M. 248.

In Ejectment.]—In ejectment by the heir-at-law, the defendant is not entitled to begin by admitting the heirship and seisin of the ancestor, unless defeated by a conveyance made by the ancestor, under which the defendant claims. Doe d. Tucker v. Tucker, M. & M. 536.

To entitle the defendant to begin, the plaintiff's whole primâ facie case must be admitted. Ib.

Where a plaintiff claims as heir-at-law, and the defendant as devisee, if the heirship is admitted, the defendant is entitled to begin, though the plaintiff professes to set up an outstanding title as to part of the property. Doe d. Smith v. Smart, 1 M. & Rob. 476.

Where each party claimed as heir-at-law, and the real question was as to the legitimacy of the defendant, who was clearly heir if legitimate, he proposed to admit that, unless he was legitimate, the lessor of the plaintiff was the heir-at-law :—Held, that this admission did not give him the right of beginning. Doe d. Warren v. Bray, M. & M. 166.

In ejectment by lessors, claiming under several descents from a particular ancestor, when the defendant admits all the descents except the first, and claims under a will of this ancestor, the defendant is entitled to begin. Doe d. Wollaston v. Barnes, 1 M. & Rob. 386.

The plaintiff claimed as devisee under a will of S. At the trial the defendant admitted the seisin of S. and the due execution of that will, and that the plaintiff was primâ facie entitled under it, and proposed to set up a subsequent will, revoking the first will. The defendant was permitted to begin :—Held, that the plaintiff should have been permitted to begin. Doe d. Bather v. Brayne, 5 C. B. 655 ; 17 L. J., C. P. 127.

In ejectment by heir against devisee, he admitting the heirship begins. Martin v. Johnston, 1 F. & F. 122. S. P., Sutton v. Sadler, 3 C. B. (N.S.) 87.

Actions for Trespass.] — In trespass with a plea of liberum tenementum, and no general issue, the defendant is entitled to begin. Pearson v. Coles, 1 M. & Rob. 206.

Where there are special pleas of justification, but no plea of the general issue, the defendant is entitled to begin, although the declaration alleges special damage. Fish v. Travers, 3 Car. & P. 578.

In an action for assault and battery, and a plea of justification only, and issue thereon, the defendant's counsel has a right to begin, the affirmative of the issue being on him. Bedell v. Russell, R. & M. 293 ; 27 R. R. 749.

To an action for breaking and entering the plaintiff's close the defendant pleaded not guilty as to the force, and justified as to the residue under a public right of way :—Held, that there being in fact but one issue, the affirmative of which lay on the defendant, his counsel was entitled to begin. Jackson v. Hesketh, 2 Stark. 518. S. P., Hodges v. Holder, 3 Camp. 366.

In an action for taking goods, where the affirmative of the issues is on the defendant, and there is no allegation of special damage, the defendant has the right to begin. Aston v. Perkes, 9 Car. & P. 231.

To a declaration for a trespass, the defendant pleaded a justification, setting up an affirmative right in himself, which right the replication traversed. The plaintiff's counsel claimed the right to begin. The judge asked whether he would undertake to proceed for substantial damages, and, on his declining so to undertake, allowed the defendant to begin:—Held, correct. Chapman v. Rawson, 8 Q. B. 673; 15 L. J., Q. B. 225; 10 Jur. 287.

In Issues.]—In an issue under the Interpleader Act, the plaintiffs averred in the declaration that certain goods were not the property of the plaintiffs or either of them. Plea, that the goods were the property of the plaintiffs, or one of them:—Held, that the defendant had the right to begin. Hudson v. Brown, 8 Car. & P. 774.

On an issue from the Court of Chancery to try whether A. was at a certain time of sound mind, the plaintiff affirming the soundness is entitled to begin. Frank v. Frank, 2 M. & Rob. 314.

And on the trial of an issue as to the validity of a devise is entitled to begin. Handley v. Stacey, 1 F. & F. 253.

To reverse Outlawry.]—If a plaintiff, in a writ of error to reverse an outlawry, has assigned as error that he was beyond sea when the exigent was awarded, and the defendant in error pleads, "that he left the realm of his fraud and covin, and to defeat him of his just debt, and for the purpose of avoiding the outlawry;" and on this plea issue is taken; at the trial the defendant in error begins. Byron v. Wagstaffe, 2 Car. & P. 125; 8 D. & R. 208; 5 B. & C. 314; R. & M. 329.

False Return to Mandamus.]—To a mandamus to a rector to restore a parish clerk, the rector returned, that the clerk was guilty of acts of intoxication, and therefore he dismissed him. The clerk brought an action for a false return, and in his declaration recited the return and negatived the allegations contained in it. The rector by his plea repeated the charges contained in the return:—Held, that the defendant had the right to begin. Bowles v. Neale, 7 Car. & P. 262.

Order to admit Case.]—The plaintiff's counsel has a right to begin and state the facts, although by a rule of court the defendant is under obligation to admit the plaintiff's case. Thwaites v. Sainsbury, 5 Car. & P. 69.

If a court of equity directs an action of trover to be brought, and orders that the defendant shall admit the finding and conversion of the goods, this does not give the defendant the right to begin. Turberville v. Patrick, 4 Car. & P. 557.

On Pleas of Payment, Set-off, and Discharge.]—In an action on a promissory note, the defendant pleaded several pleas as to part, the proof of which lay on him, and also payment of money into court as to the residue, to which the plaintiff replied damages ultra:—Held, that he was entitled to begin. Booth v. Millns, 4 D. & L. 52; 15 M. & W. 669; 15 L. J., Ex. 354.

A declaration was for goods sold, and on an account stated; the particulars were for a balance; but in the particulars no credits were given or dates specified. The defendant pleaded payment:—Held, that he must begin. Birt v. Leigh, 1 Car. & K. 611. S. P., Richardson v. Fell, 4 D. P. C. 10.

A defendant pleaded as to 20*l.* payment, and as to the residue a set-off:—Held, that the defendant must begin. Coxhead v. Huish, 7 Car. & P. 63.

If a defendant pleads his discharge under the Insolvent Debtors Act, and no other plea, and the plaintiff denies the plea, the defendant must begin. Lambert v. Hall, 9 Car. & P. 506.

On Pleas of Coverture.]—Where to an action for goods sold and delivered the defendant pleads coverture, if the plaintiff elects to begin, he must go into the whole case relating to the coverture; but if the defendant admits the whole debt to be due on which the action is founded, she is entitled to begin. Lacon v. Higgins, 3 Stark. 178; 25 R. R. 779. And see Penson v. Lee, 2 Bos. & P. 331; 5 R. R. 614.

In an action on a promissory note, in which the defendant pleads coverture, and the plaintiff takes issue on that plea, the defendant has the right to begin, although, as the note did not bear interest on the face of it, the plaintiff claimed interest in the shape of damages. Cannan v. Farmer, 2 Car. & K. 746; 3 Ex. 698. S. P., Woodgate v. Potts, 2 Car. & K. 457.

On New Assignments.]—In trespass to land, the defendant pleaded not guilty, and a right of way. The plaintiff replied de injuriâ to the plea of the right of way, and newly assigned that the trespasses were committed on other and different occasions than that in the plea mentioned. The defendant pleaded to the new assignment payment of money into court, and by this plea relinquished and abandoned so much of the general issue "as traverses or denies, or can be deemed or construed to traverse or deny, the trespasses newly assigned or any part thereof." Replication to this plea, accepting the sum paid into court "in full satisfaction and discharge of the several trespasses newly assigned":—Held, that, as the plea of not guilty was not entirely withdrawn, the plaintiff had the right to begin; and that if the defendant wished to begin, he should have taken out a summons to withdraw the general issue entirely from the record. Price v. Seaward, Car. & M. 23.

Arguing as to Right to begin.]—Only one counsel on each side is to be heard on the right to begin, and the counsel for the defendant has the right to reply. Rawlins v. Desborough, 2 M. & Rob. 70.

Misdirection as to Right to begin.]—When injury has resulted from an erroneous decision of a judge relative to the order of beginning, the court will, in its discretion, grant a new trial. Geach v. Ingall, 14 M. & W. 95; 15 L. J., Ex. 37; 9 Jur. 691. S. P., Hickman v. Fernie, 3 M. & W. 505.

The court will not set aside a verdict on the ground that a wrong party was allowed to begin at the trial unless it is manifest that some injustice or injury has resulted from the error.

Edwards v. Matthews, 4 D. & L. 721 ; 16 L. J., Ex. 291. S. P., Doe d. Bather v. Brayne, 5 C. B. 655 ; 17 L. J., C. P. 127.

A new trial will not be granted because a judge has wrongly ruled as to which party must begin, unless such ruling did clear and manifest injustice. Bradford v. Freeman, 5 Ex. 734 ; 20 L. J., Ex. 36 ; 14 Jur. 987. S. P., Booth v. Millns, 4 D. & L. 52 ; 15 M. & W. 669 ; 15 L. J., Ex. 354.

i. ADDRESSING JURY AND COURT.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XXXVI. r. 36.

Number of Counsel.]—One counsel only will be heard on each side upon the trial of a question of fact. Conington v. Gilliatt, 45 L. J., Ch. 273 ; 1 Ch. D. 694 ; 34 L. T. 123 ; 24 W. R. 269.

On the argument of a case in the Court of Appeal two counsel will be heard on either side. Sneesby v. Lancashire and Yorkshire Ry., 45 L. J., Q. B. 1 ; 1 Q. B. D. 42—C. A. S. P., Robb v. Connor, Ir. R. 9 Eq. 373.

So in a divisional court of appeal, if the case is of sufficient magnitude. Le Blanch v. Reuter's Telegraph Co., 34 L. T. 691.

As a rule the court will hear only one counsel on each side upon appeals from inferior courts. Hawes v. Peake, 33 L. T. 818 ; 24 W. R. 407.

Upon the argument of a special case only one counsel is heard on each side, except when the case is stated upon an order of sessions, when it is brought before the court upon an order nisi to quash, and there all the counsel instructed on both sides may be heard. Spurling v. Bantoft, 60 L. J., Q. B. 745 ; [1891] 2 Q. B. 384 ; 65 L. T. 584 ; 40 W. R. 157 ; 17 Cox, C. C. 372 ; 56 J. P. 132.

There is no rule that only one counsel on each side shall be heard in long vacation causes. Henry v. G. N. Ry., 3 Jur. (N.S.) 1117.

Summing up.]—The right of the party who begins to sum up the evidence at the trial is confined to the case where the judge holds that there is evidence to go to the jury. Hodges v. Ancrum, 11 Ex. 214 ; 24 L. J., Ex. 257 ; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 547 ; 3 W. R. 518.

In actions with witnesses the practice in Malins's, V.-C., court was for the leading counsel for the plaintiff to open the case and put in evidence, and then for the leading counsel or junior to sum up the evidence, but so that only one counsel shall be heard after the evidence is put in. The same rule is to apply as to the defendant's case. Metzler v. Wood, 47 L. J., Ch. 139 ; 37 L. T. 523 ; 26 W. R. 125.

No Intention to adduce Evidence.]—A counsel who has not announced his intention to adduce evidence, in consequence of which the party who began sums up his case, cannot be permitted afterwards to alter his mind and adduce evidence. Darby v. Ouseley, 1 H. & N. 1 ; 25 L. J., Ex. 227 ; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 497.

Third Party.]—Where, on the trial of an issue out of chancery, it is ordered that a third party should attend the trial, the counsel for such party will not be permitted to call witnesses, nor to address the jury. Wright v. Wright, 7 Bing. 459, n. ; 5 M. & P. 319, n. ; 4 Car. & P. 389.

Counsel for a trustee of property for the separate use of a married woman, who appears by counsel, cannot be heard. Crawford v. O'Sullivan, 2 Con. & L. 410.

Address—Contents of.]—In an action for a conspiracy, the defendants pleaded the general issue, and a plea of justification, which plea was demurred to, and held bad by the court, who gave judgment on it for the plaintiff, and the award of the venire was as well to try the issue joined "as to inquire what damages the plaintiff had sustained on occasion of the premises whereof the court hath given judgment for the plaintiff :" —Held, that the defendants' counsel, in addressing the jury, had a right to refer to the allegations contained in the plea, and to comment upon them. Gregory v. Brunswick (Duke), 1 Car. & K. 24 ; 1 D. & L. 803 ; 13 L. J., C. P. 34 ; 8 Jur. 148.

Several Defendants.]—It is in the discretion of the judge to say in what order the counsel for different defendants, having different interests, shall cross-examine and address the jury. Fletcher v. Crosbie, 2 M. & Rob. 417.

The order of seniority is not imperative. Ib.

Where several defendants appear by separate attorneys and have separate counsel, if they are in the same interest, only one counsel can be heard to address the jury, and the witnesses are to be examined by one counsel on the part of all the defendants, in the same manner as if the defence was joint. Chippendale v. Masson, 4 Camp. 174. S. P., Mason v. Ditchbourne, 1 M. & Rob. 462, n.

In ejectment, where the defendants defend in the same right, but by different counsel, only one counsel can address the jury. Doe d. Hogg v. Tindal, 3 Car. & P. 565 ; M. & M. 314.

In trover, where two defendants defend by the same attorney, and in the same interest, but one appears by counsel and the other in person, the counsel only is entitled to address the jury ; but both he and the defendant appearing in person may cross-examine witnesses. Perrin v. Tucker, M. & M. 391 ; 4 Car. & P. 70.

The order in which the speeches of counsel on the trial of an action with witnesses are to be made prescribed. Kino v. Rudkin, 6 Ch. D. 160 ; 38 L. T. 461.

Where two defendants appear by different attorneys and counsel, and have pleaded separately the general issue, and several special pleas verbatim the same, the issues on each set of pleas being exactly the same, the judge will only allow one counsel to address the jury for the defendants. Sparkes v. Barrett, 8 Car. & P. 442.

Where several defendants appear by different attorneys and counsel, the latter are entitled to cross-examine the witnesses, and address the jury separately. Ridgeway v. Philip, 1 C., M. & R. 415 ; 3 D. P. C. 154 ; 5 Tyr. 131 ; 4 L. J., Ex. 14.

j. RIGHT OF REPLY.

Opening Facts for Defence—No Witnesses.]—Where the counsel for the defendant opens facts to the jury, and calls no witnesses to prove them, it is in the discretion of the judge to allow the plaintiff's counsel to reply. Crerer v. Sodo, M. & M. 85.

Where counsel for a defendant opens facts to the jury, but does not go into any evidence, the counsel for the plaintiff has not an absolute right to reply, but it is in the discretion of the judge; the object of allowing a reply in such a case being that injustice should not be done by facts being improperly opened when the defendant's counsel has no intention of proving them. Naish v. Brown, 2 Car. & K. 219.

Legal Objection.]—Where a defendant relies upon a legal objection, and calls evidence to support it, the plaintiff's counsel having answered the objection, the defendant is entitled to be heard on the law in reply. Arden v. Tucker, 1 M. & Rob. 191.

Citing Case.]—If counsel for a defendant, in his address to the jury, cites a case, but calls no witness, the plaintiff's counsel has a right to observe on the case cited. Power v. Barham, 7 Car. & P. 356.

General Reply.]—A defendant is entitled to the general reply where the plaintiff, claiming by descent, proves his pedigree and stops, and the defendant sets up a new case in his defence, which is answered by evidence on the part of the plaintiff. Goodtitle d. Revett v. Braham, 4 Term Rep. 497.

Where, in an action between subjects, the crown interfered pro interesse suo, and undertook the defence of the cause, and witnesses were called on both sides, the plaintiff was allowed the general reply. Rowe v. Brenton, 3 M. & Ry. 305; 8 B. & C. 737.

The crown has, in all cases in the Exchequer, a right to a general reply. Buckingham (Duke) v. Inland Revenue Commissioners, 2 L., M. & P. 311.

k. DUTY AND POWERS OF JUDGE.

Direction to Jury.]—When there is a case tried before a judge sitting with a jury, and there arises any question of law mixed up with the facts, the duty of a judge is to give a direction upon the law to the jury so far as to make them understand the law as bearing upon the facts. Farther than that it is not necessary for him to go. Prudential Assurance Co. v. Edmonds, 2 App. Cas. 487—H. L. (E.)

Whether Evidence to go to Jury.]—The question in all actions against infants for necessaries is one of mixed law and fact, the preliminary question being (as in all other cases) whether there is any evidence on which the jury could properly find for the party on whom the onus of proof lies. The judge (who must be supposed to know as well as a jury can know without evidence what is the usual and normal state of things, and whether any particular article is of such a description that it may be a necessary under such usual state of things) must determine, first, whether the case is such as to cast on the plaintiff the onus of proving that the articles in question are necessaries, and then whether there is any sufficient evidence for the jury to satisfy that onus; and if there is not, he ought to direct a nonsuit. Ryder v. Wombwell, 38 L. J., Ex. 8; L. R. 4 Ex. 32; 19 L. T. 491; 17 W. R. 167—Ex. Ch. S. P., Ferrand v. Bingley Local Board, 56 J. P. 277—C. A.

A nonsuit is proper, although there may be evidence to go to the jury, if the proof is such that the jury could not reasonably give a verdict for the plaintiff. Hiddle v. National Fire Insurance Co. of New Zealand, 65 L. J., P. C. 24; [1896] A. C. 372; 74 L. T. 204—P. C.

The modern rule as to a nonsuit is that in every case before the evidence is left to the jury there is a preliminary question for the judge, not whether there is literally no evidence, but whether there is any upon which a jury can properly find a verdict for the party producing it, upon whom the onus of proof is imposed. Giblin v. McMullen, 5 Moore, P. C. (N.S.) 434; 38 L. J., P. C. 25; L. R. 2 P. C. 317; 21 L. T. 214; 17 W. R. 445.

If there is any evidence to support any count in a declaration, the judge will not nonsuit. Harman v. Johnson, 3 Car. & K. 272.

When a plaintiff has closed his evidence, and the judge is of opinion that there is no case to go to the jury, he ought to direct accordingly, giving leave, if necessary, for the plaintiff to move to enter a verdict in his favour. But it is erroneous under such circumstances to take a formal verdict for the plaintiff, reserving leave to the defendant to move to enter a verdict for him should the court (to whom power is reserved to draw inferences of fact) be of opinion that on the facts the verdict ought to be so entered. Daniel v. Metropolitan Ry., 40 L. J., C. P. 121; L. R. 5 H. L. 45; 24 L. T. 815; 20 W. R. 37.

Nonsuit on Plaintiff's Opening.]—A judge has no power to nonsuit a plaintiff on the opening statement of his counsel without his consent. Fletcher v. L. & N. W. Ry., 61 L. J., Q. B. 24; [1892] 1 Q. B. 122; 65 L. T. 605; 40 W. R. 182—C. A. See Edger v. Knapp, 5 Man. & G. 753; 6 Scott (N.R.) 707; 1 D. & L. 73; 7 Jur. 583.

Nonsuit where Felony disclosed.]—When at a trial for a civil injury a plaintiff proves facts which may amount to a felony, it is nevertheless not the duty of the judge to nonsuit the plaintiff or to direct the jury that if they find that a felony has been committed by the defendant they must find against the plaintiff. Wells v. Abrahams, 41 L. J., Q. B. 306; L. R. 7 Q. B. 554; 26 L. T. 326; 20 W. R. 659.

In an action by a woman for assault, it appeared from her evidence that the assault amounted to a rape. The judge stated that he should direct a verdict for the defendant, on the ground either that a rape had been committed for which he had not been prosecuted, or that if the plaintiff had consented no assault had been committed. The plaintiff thereupon elected to be nonsuited:—Held, that the nonsuit was right. Welloch v. Constantine, 2 H. & C. 146; 32 L. J., Ex. 285; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 232; 7 L. T. 751. Cp. Cases sub tit. CRIMINAL LAW (FELONY).

Time for Nonsuit.]—A nonsuit may be directed even after the defendant has entered on his case, and evidence given by the latter may be used for the purpose of a nonsuit. Giblin v. McMullen, supra.

—— Onus on Defendant.]—When at the trial the issue was on the defendant, who accordingly began, the plaintiff, at the end of the defendant's case, claimed a verdict on the ground that there was not evidence to support the issue for the defendant. The judge refused to direct a verdict, but gave the plaintiff leave to move to enter one. The plaintiff then adduced evidence; and on the evidence which followed, the issue for the defendant was proved:—Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to enter a verdict, on the ground that there was no proof for the defendant at the close of his original case. Allen v. Cary, 7 El. & Bl. 463; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 1146.

Order in which Causes taken.]—Every cause in the list of the day should be considered by the parties as the first cause, it being within the jurisdiction of the presiding judge to take the causes in any order he may think most convenient. Cottam v. Banks, 1 B. C. Rep. 302; 11 Jur. 148. See Fourdrinier v. Bradbury, 3 B. & Ald. 328.

Hearing Defendant when Plaintiff's Case has failed.]—It is not the duty of a judge of first instance when the plaintiff's case has broken down to hear the defendant's case merely in order to put the defendant in a better position before the Court of Appeal. Hammerton v. Honey, 24 W. R. 603.

Note of Arrangement.]—A judge's note is conclusive evidence of an arrangement at nisi prius. Bikker v. Beeston, 29 L. J., Ex. 121.

Explaining Finding.]—When by agreement the jury was discharged, and the cause submitted to the decision of the judge:—Held, that on a motion for a new trial or to take a verdict for the plaintiff it was competent for the judge to explain to the court the reasons and precise meaning of his finding. Chatterton v. Cave, 47 L. J., C. P. 545; 3 App. Cas. 483; 38 L. T. 397; 26 W. R. 498—H. L. (E.)

l. THE JURY.

1. In Civil Cases.

a. Exemptions.

By 7 Will. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 34, s. 12, any officer in the service of the Post-office is exempt from serving on juries. Atkinson, Ex parte, 10 Bing. 399; 4 M. & Scott, 160; 2 D. P. C. 773; 3 L. J., C. P. 152.

The exemptions in the schedule to the Juries Act, 1870, apply to jurors summoned to serve upon coroners' inquests. Reg. v. Dutton or Dutton, In re, 61 L. J., Q. B. 190; [1892] 1 Q. B. 486; 66 L. T. 324; 40 W. R. 270; 56 J. P. 455.

b. Jury Lists.

Signing.]—A churchwarden, whose year of office has expired, continues in office where his successor has been elected, but has not been sworn, nor has made the substituted declaration, nor has done any act which would make him churchwarden de facto; and such churchwarden is therefore bound to sign the jury lists under 7 Geo. 4, c. 50, ss. 8, 9, and is liable to penalties under s. 45 for not having done so. Bray v. Somer, 2 B. & S. 374; 31 L. J., M. C. 135; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 716; 6 L. T. 49; 10 W. R. 354.

Improper Lists.]—The 6 Geo. 4, c. 50, s. 46, imposes penalties upon the sheriff or under-sheriff for an improper insertion or omission of names from the special jury list. In an action for such penalties, the declaration describing the defendant as being the acting under-sheriff, it was proved that he was the person who, in the county, acted as under-sheriff so far as receiving writs, making returns, and appearing in public; but that a Mr. T. was the appointed under-sheriff, pursuant to 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 90, s. 5. The defendant on one occasion signed his name as under-sheriff, although he stated, at the same time, that he was not the under-sheriff, but that Mr. T. was, and in an affidavit had stated himself to be the acting under-sheriff:—Held, that there was no evidence of the defendant's liability, and that the plaintiff was properly nonsuited. Williams v. Thomas, 7 D. & L. 177; 4 Ex. 479; 19 L. J., Ex. 50.

Costs—Making out Jury Lists.]—A poor-law auditor was disallowed from overseers' accounts 4*s.* 6*d.* charged to the poor-rates for fees paid to a justices' clerk for notices and oath upon verification of the jury lists. These fees were allowed in the table of justices' clerks' fees sanctioned for the county by the Home Secretary under 11 & 12 Vict. c. 43, s. 30:—Held, that the overseers' duties in respect of the jury lists under 6 Geo. 4, c. 50, and 25 & 26 Vict. c. 107, were concluded upon the production at petty sessions; that these fees for the subsequent verification were not costs properly incurred by the officers of the parish in preparing and collecting the lists under 7 & 8 Vict. c. 101, s. 60; that the justices' clerk was not entitled to demand this amount; and that the disallowance was right. Reg. v. Haslingfield, 43 L. J., Q. B. 38; L. R. 9 Q. B. 203; 29 L. T. 801; 22 W. R. 260.

c. Special Jury.

i. How Obtained.

See Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, ss. 109, 110, and R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XXXVI. r. 7.

Before Common Law Procedure Act.]—Where a defendant cannot, without special application to a judge, have a rule for a special jury before issue joined, although being under terms to take short notice of trial, he would not, if he waited till joinder, be in time to move for the special jury a sufficient number of days before trial. Sayer v. Ducroix, 9 Q. B. 800; 16 L. J., Q. B. 120.

The court has no power to grant a rule for a special jury before issue joined, even where, in consequence of the defendant's being under terms to take short notice of the trial, he would not, if he waited till joinder, be in time to move for a special jury a sufficient number of days before the trial. Dresser v. Norman, 6 C. B. (N.S.) 427; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 1083.

The subject's right to try a case by a special jury is not affected by any suggestion of the attorney-general or solicitor-general, without affidavit that the crown is interested in the defendant's estate, though that suggestion would be sufficient to obtain a trial at bar. Dunn v. Coe, 16 M. & W. 439.

A defendant, upon certain terms favourable to the plaintiff, was allowed to have a special jury after the cause had stood for trial by a common jury during a whole sittings and had been twice postponed at the instance of the defendant. Thorne v. Londonderry (Marquis), 8 Bing. 26; 1 M. & Scott, 62; 1 L. J., C. P. 46.

Discretion of Judge.]—The usual rule having been obtained for a special jury by the defendant, a judge at chambers, upon the statement of the plaintiff's attorney, without affidavit, ordered a special jury to be struck next day. The court refused to set aside that order as being irregular. Joseph v. Perry, 3 D. P. C. 699.

A judge having refused to grant a special jury at the instance of the defendant, though there had been no laches on his part, the court, in the absence of special grounds for so doing, declined to interfere with his discretion. Smith v. London and St. Katharine Dock Co., L. R. 2 C. P. 630.

By whom summoned.]—Before 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 113, when a special jury had been moved for by a defendant, and struck and reduced, the plaintiff must have summoned the special jury, if they were not summoned by the defendant. Montague v. Smith, 17 Q. B. 688; 21 L. J., Q. B. 73.

Terms.]—In a scire facias by the trustees of a banking company, they having obtained a rule for a special jury, the court made them undertake to strike out of the list any who might be shareholders in the company. Esdaile v. Lund, 12 M. & W. 734; 1 D. & L. 990; 13 L. J., Ex. 191; 8 Jur. 385.

ii. Summoning and Non-attendance.

Sheriff's Fees.]—A sheriff is not entitled to fees from the party giving notice that a cause is to be tried by special jury, although the alteration of the system as to special juries has deprived the sheriff of the fees by which he formerly was remunerated by the party for summoning the special jurors. Bennett v. Thompson, 6 El. & Bl. 683; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 613; 4 W. R. 614.

Bribery as to Summoning.]—A summoning officer was fined 200*l.* for receiving money to excuse persons from serving on juries, and for too often summoning those who refused to pay. Rex v. Whitaker, Cowp. 752.

By whom summoned when Sheriff interested.]—Where, in a special jury case, upon a challenge to the array for unindifferency in the sheriff, the jury panel was quashed:—Held, that the proper course to obtain a trial of the cause was to direct new jury process to the coroner of the county at the instance of the prosecutor, but not without applying to the court specially for that purpose. Rex v. Dolby, 1 D. & R. 145, 311; 2 B. & C. 104; 24 R. R. 645, 647.

Trial by Common Jury.]—Before 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 113, a defendant obtained a rule for a special jury, which was struck and reduced, but the jurors were not summoned. Neither the defendant nor the jurors appearing when the cause was called on, it was tried as an undefended cause by a common jury:—Held, that the trial was irregular. Haldane v. Beauclerk, 6 D. & L. 642; 3 Ex. 658; 18 L. J., Ex. 227; 13 Jur. 326.

And when a cause was entered as a special jury cause, but was taken in the defendant's absence and tried by a common jury as an undefended cause, the court set aside the trial and verdict with costs. Hague v. Hall, 5 Man. & G. 693; 6 Scott (N.R.) 705.

Where a common jury panel was returned together with a special jury panel, and no special juryman appearing, the cause was tried by a common jury, the trial was set aside. Holt v. Meddowcroft, 4 M. & S. 467.

Where a defendant obtains a rule for a special jury (in a town cause), but omits to give notice to the sheriff that the cause is to be tried by a special jury, in the absence of a special jury the cause may be tried by a common jury. Cawley v. Knowles, 16 C. B. (N.S.) 107.

Fining for Non-attendance.]—See infra, col. 479.

iii. Effect of Delay.

Before 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, s. 111, when a rule for a special jury (obtained in due time) had been obtained for delay, the proper application to the court was for a rule to shew cause why the cause should not be tried by a special jury, in its order, at the sitting for which the notice was given, if the defendant should then have one in attendance, and, in default thereof, then that the cause be tried by a common jury. Gray v. Knight, 16 C. B. 143.

The court will discharge a rule for a special jury where it has not been duly acted on, and appears to have been obtained for the purpose of delay. Stanbury v. Gillett, 9 Bing. 319; 2 M. & Scott, 397.

Or that the defendant has no real defence. Bull v. Pinkus, 5 Scott, 617; 2 Jur. 256.

If a defendant, for the purpose of delay, obtains a rule for a special jury, the court will permit him to have it tried by such jury, but will compel him to try it in its order, pursuant to the notice of trial, although on a day when the usual practice is not to take special juries. Bush v. Pring, 9 D. P. C. 188.

Where a defendant has admitted his liability as acceptor of a bill, but obtained a rule for a special jury, the court will order the cause to be tried in its ordinary course if it does not come on at the special jury sittings. De Vere v. Wickers, 11 Jur. 543.

Where after notice of trial the defendant obtained a rule for a special jury for the purpose of delay, and nominated but did not reduce the special jury, the court refused a rule nisi to discharge the rule for a special jury. White v. Eastern Union Ry., 11 C. B. 875; 21 L. J., C. P. 112.

Where a cause was set down for trial at the first sittings in term, and a special jury rule was obtained by the defendant for the purpose of delay, the court granted a rule calling on him to shew cause, on the third day before the sittings, why the special jury rule should not be set aside on that day, unless he had previously nominated the jury. Devanage v. Borthwick, 2 L., M. & P. 277.

iv. Striking a Special Jury.

Mode of Striking.]—In striking a special jury, the coroner is not bound to take the jurors as they occur upon the sheriff's book, but is to make a selection; and where he had made such selection impartially, the court refused to cancel the list of persons so selected. Rex v. Wooler 1 B. & Ald. 193; 18 R. R. 460.

Where a plaintiff moved to set aside a special jury panel, on the ground that twenty-six of the persons named therein were retail tradesmen, and therefore not entitled to the addition of esquires, the court refused to interfere, as the affidavit did not negative the qualification of the jurors excepted to. Fairman v. Ives, 1 Chit. 85 ; 1 D. & R. 252 ; 5 B. & Ald. 642 ; 24 R. R. 514.

It is no ground of error either in fact or in law that the whole of the special jurors struck were not summoned, or that the special jury panel was called over and a tales prayed before 10 a.m., the time for which the special jurors were summoned, it not being competent to the party to aver anything that is inconsistent with the record. Irwin v. Grey, 19 C. B. (N.S.) 585 ; 34 L. J., C. P. 313 ; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 860 ; 12 L. T. 847 ; 13 W. R. 1043. Affirmed, 1 H. & R. 25 ; 35 L. J., C. P. 43 ; L. R. 1 C. P. 171 ; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 193 ; 13 L. T. 409 ; 14 W. R. 208—Ex. Ch. and in Dom. Proc. 36 L. J., C. P. 148 ; L. R. 2 H. L. 20 ; 16 L. T. 74 ; 15 W. R. 593.

v. Default of Jurors.

Tales.]—In a special jury cause, the plaintiff may have a tales without the consent of the defendant. Gatliff v. Bourne, 2 M. & Rob. 100.

A rule had been granted for a trial at bar, on the 6th December, 1847, by a special jury of the county of Middlesex. On the day appointed for trial only ten of the persons on the special jury panel appearing, the cause was adjourned until the next day, when only eleven appeared, and the cause remained untried for want of a jury. The plaintiff then moved for a writ of octo vel decem tales. The court granted the rule. Buron v. Denman, 1 Ex. 769 ; 12 Jur. 82.

On the trial of an action to recover a penalty for bribery, alleged to have been committed at the election of members of parliament for a borough, which was to be tried by a special jury, the attorney on each side had given to the associate a list of the names of certain common jurors whom he did not wish to be called if a tales was prayed, with the omission of which jurors and those who did not appear, there were not sufficient common jurors to make up a full jury when a tales had been prayed :—Held, that the case should not stand over, but that all the common jurors should be called over in the usual way, and that no challenge could be allowed except for cause. Marsh v. Coppock, 9 Car. & P. 480.

If an issue is directed by the Court of Chancery, to be tried by a special jury, and a full special jury does not attend, quære whether either party is entitled to pray a tales without the consent of the other party. Wood v. Thompson, Car. & M. 171 ; 5 Jur. 708.

If, after a special jury has been struck, the cause goes off for default of jurors, no new jury can be struck, but the cause must be tried by the jury first appointed. Rex v. Perry, 5 Term Rep. 453. S. P., Rex v. Franklin, 5 Term Rep. 454, n.

vi. Costs—Certificate.

In what Cases Judge may grant.]—A defendant, who applied for a special jury, was not entitled to the costs of that jury where the judge who tried the cause nonsuited the plaintiff on his opening. Wood v. Grimwood, 10 B. & C. 689.

To an action of trespass, in which the declaration contained five counts, the defendant pleaded not guilty and not possessed, upon which issues were joined ; the plaintiff obtained a rule for a special jury. The defendant before the trial withdrew the pleas to the two last counts, and suffered judgment by default upon them. The cause was tried by a special jury, and the plaintiff obtained a verdict upon the general issue, but the defendant on the plea of not possessed to the three first counts ; and the damages were assessed at 40*s.* on the other counts. The judge certified for a special jury :—Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to the costs of the special jury. Walters v. Howells, 8 Ex. 244 ; 22 L. J., Ex. 96 ; 1 W. R. 56.

But by 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 42, s. 35, the provision of the 6 Geo. 4, c. 50, and everything therein contained, is to apply to cases in which the plaintiff shall be nonsuited, as well as to cases in which a verdict shall pass against him.

The 24 Geo. 2, c. 18, s. 1, did not extend to a case where the record was withdrawn. Clements v. George, 11 Moore, 510 ; 4 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 192.

When Judge must certify.]—An indictment removed into K. B. by the defendant, and made a special jury cause by the prosecutor, came on to be tried, and was immediately referred. The order of reference stated, that, if the arbitrator should be of opinion that the defendant was guilty and the prosecutor entitled to costs, the defendant agreed to pay the costs. The arbitrator did so find :—Held, that the prosecutor could not recover the costs of the special jury, since the judge had not certified for those costs, and the order of reference did not expressly give a power of doing so to the arbitrator. Rex v. Moate, 3 B. & Ad. 237 ; 1 L. J., K. B. 78.

In an action for infringement of a patent, the plaintiff after giving notice of trial abandoned the action. The defendant had obtained a rule for a special jury :—Held, that he was not entitled to the costs of the rule for a special jury, inasmuch as the 6 Geo. 4, c. 50, s. 34, makes the certificate of the judge universally a condition to entitle the party to those costs. Greaves v. Eastern Counties Ry., 1 El. & El. 961 ; 28 L. J., Q. B. 290 ; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 733 ; 7 W. R. 453.

Where a special jury is summoned on the defendant's process, the plaintiff, if he succeeds, is entitled to the costs of it, without a certificate from the judge. Jones v. Tobin, 5 Scott, 440 ; 4 Bing. (N.C.) 123 ; 6 D. P. C. 251.

When Judge will certify.]—If a case is not gone into, the judge will not certify that it was a fit cause to be tried by a special jury merely because the declaration is for penalties to a very large amount, and because persons of considerable rank are called upon their subpœnas. Orme v. Crockford, 1 Car. & P. 537 ; 27 R. R. 719.

Where a case turned solely on a question of law, and there was no fact in dispute between the parties, the judge refused to certify for a special jury. Wemys v. Greenwood, 2 Car. & P. 483.

Under 5 & 6 Will. 4, c. 50, s. 98, the court before whom an indictment for the non-repair of a highway is tried may certify for the costs of a special jury. Reg. v. Pembridge, 3 G. & D. 603 ; 3 Q. B. 901 ; 12 L. J., Q. B. 47.

The judge who tries a criminal proceeding may certify for the costs of a special jury under 6 Geo. 4, c. 50, ss. 30, 34. Ib.

In an action for calls, there was a plea that the calls were made for the purpose of raising capital for an illegal amalgamation, and the defendant not appearing, the judge certified for a special jury, as the plea might have raised difficult questions of fact, fit for a special jury to try. London Bank of Scotland v. Marshall, 4 F. & F. 1046.

But where, to a similar action, the plea was only never indebted, a certificate for a special jury was refused. Humber Iron Co. v. Jones, 4 F. & F. 1047.

When Certificate must be given.]—The words in 6 Geo. 4, c. 50, s. 34, that the party who applies for a special jury shall pay the costs occasioned by it, unless the judge before whom the cause is tried "shall, immediately after the verdict, certify that the cause was a proper one to be tried by a special jury," must be understood to mean that the judge may give the certificate either at the conclusion of the trial, or within a reasonable time after it. Christie v. Richardson, 2 D. (N.S.) 503; 10 M. & W. 688; 12 L. J., Ex. 86; 6 Jur. 1069.

The judge cannot certify for the costs of a special jury on the day after the trial. Waggett v. Shaw, 3 Camp. 316.

At the trial of a probate action in January, 1890, the plaintiff obtained a verdict on every issue, including that of forgery. The judge had left the building at the time the verdict was given, and the following morning, upon the application of the plaintiff's counsel, he gave judgment in accordance with the findings of the jury, but counsel omitted to ask for a certificate for a special jury. Upon application, in April, 1890, for the certificate:—Held, that the application must be refused. Webster v. Appleton, 62 L. T. 704.

If the application is made on a day subsequent to the trial it is too late. Dillon v. Caffrey, Ir. R. 6 Eq. 363.

Where a judge, during the absence of the jury to consider their verdict, intimated his intention of certifying for a special jury, but, in consequence of the delivery of the verdict taking place while the judge was engaged with another cause, his signature to the indorsement made by the officer of the court was not then applied for, and was supplied some weeks afterwards:—Held, that this was not a "certifying under the judge's hand immediately after the verdict." Grace v. Clinch, 3 G. & D. 591; 4 Q. B. 606; 12 L. J., Q. B. 273; 7 Jur. 576.

At the trial of a cause in March, the jury returned a verdict for the defendant, and the judge, on application to him, stated his intention to certify for a special jury, but did not indorse on the record a certificate for that purpose. In Easter term a rule was obtained for a new trial, and in the next term the verdict was changed to a nonsuit. On the 15th August, the judge, by whom the cause was tried, indorsed on the record a certificate for a special jury:—Held, that this was too late, and the court set aside the certificate. Leech v. Lamb, 11 Ex. 437; 25 L. J., Ex. 17; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 1175; 4 W. R. 99.

An application for a certificate of the costs of a special jury ought to be made immediately after the verdict has been given. Skipper v. Bodkin, 2 Sw. & Tr. 1; 29 L. J., P. 133; 2 L. T. 636; 8 W. R. 589.

A cause came on for trial before Wilde, C.J., on the 13th December, 1848, when a verdict was taken for the plaintiff, subject to a special case. Upon the argument of the special case on the 11th June, 1850 (which was after the chief-justice had ceased to be a judge), the court directed a nonsuit. On the 12th September, the following indorsements were made upon the nisi prius record: "I certify that this was a fit and proper cause to be tried by a special jury. T. W."; "It was assented to at nisi prius, that, in the event of judgment being for the defendants, I should certify for the special jury, which I have accordingly done nunc pro tunc. Truro." The court refused to set aside the certificate, as being informal or too late. Serrell v. Derbyshire Ry., 10 C. B. 910.

A cause having been set down for trial in Middlesex, and a rule obtained for a special jury, the parties agreed that the venue should be changed to London, and the cause tried by a special jury there, and that all costs occasioned by that arrangement should be costs in the cause. The cause came on for trial in London, and was referred to arbitration, the arbitrator to have the same power to certify as a judge at nisi prius. The award was made on the 6th August; and after the first four days of the following term, the arbitrator certified for a special jury:—Held, that the certificate was given too late. Geeve or Geeves v. Gorton, 3 D. & L. 481; 15 M. & W. 186; 15 L. J., Ex. 169; 10 Jur. 272.

Certificate—Construction of.]—If a defendant in replevin, which is made a special-jury cause, withdraws his avowries, and the judge directs him to pay "all costs," that will not include the costs of the special jury. Bell v. Tainthorp, 2 D. P. C. 518.

By whom Paid.]—Special jurors are to be paid by the party who moved for the special jury, though (to ensure a trial) the other party may have summoned them. Wilson v. Butler, 2 M. & Rob. 78.

Amount of Costs.]—Where the judge who tries a cause by a special jury certifies that it was a proper case for a special jury, the master must allow the full costs of the jury where the verdict is found for the defendant. Broadrick v. Clark, 12 Price, 154.

Where the judge certifies that the cause is proper for a special jury, the party is only entitled to the costs actually paid to the jury attending in court. Cursum v. Durham, 2 Chit. 154.

On Refusal to pray a Tales.]—A defendant obtained an order for a special jury, but when the trial came on sufficient special jurors were not present, and neither party prayed a tales. When the trial came on a second time, the defendant obtained a verdict. The practice under these circumstances is to allow the costs of the first trial to the successful party on the second. Holmes v. Albright, 25 L. T. 747.

d. Challenge.

Right of.]—The right of challenge against a juryman is a common law right, which cannot be taken away except by the express terms of a statute. Barrett v. Long, 3 H. L. Cas. 395.

Peremptorily.]—The right to challenge the jury, whether it is a common or a special jury, peremptorily and without cause, does not exist in civil actions. Creed v. Fisher, 9 Ex. 472; 23 L. J., Ex. 143; 18 Jur. 228; 2 W. R. 196.

Practice on.]—A challenge to the array, or to the polls, ought to be propounded in such a way at the trial as that it may be then put upon the nisi prius record, so that the other party may either demur or counter-plead, or deny the matter of challenge; and unless the challenges are so put on the record, the party is not in a condition as a matter of right to insist upon them. Carmarthen Corporation v. Evans, 10 M. & W. 274; 2 D. (N.S.) 296; 11 L. J., Ex. 394.

A challenge to the array must be formally tendered before the jury is sworn. Brunskill v. Giles, 2 M. & Scott, 41; 9 Bing. 13; 1 L. J., C. P. 143.

"Cause"—What is.]—On the trial of an action to recover a penalty for bribery alleged to have been committed at the election of members of parliament for a borough:—Held, that it was no cause of challenge that a juror was a tenant of a nobleman whose interest in the borough was supposed to be affected, or that he had been foreman of another jury which had tried another action between other parties for bribery alleged to have been committed at the same election. Marsh v. Coppock, 9 Car. & P. 480.

If alienage is a ground of challenge to a juror, the party who has an opportunity of making his challenge, and neglects it, cannot afterwards make the objection. Rex v. Despard, 2 M. & Ry. 406; 8 B. & C. 417; 6 L. J. (O.S.) M. C. 102.

Semble, that, since the 6 Geo. 4, c. 50, s. 27, alienage is not a ground even of challenge to a special juror. Ib.

In an action against an insurance office on a life policy, it is no objection to a special juror being sworn that he is a director of another insurance office, unless that office has granted a policy on the life in question, and the amount of that policy is unpaid. Craig v. Fenn, Car. & M. 43.

A juror cannot be challenged without cause; and it is no cause of challenge that, in a previous case, the juror has shewn some dissatisfaction with the law as laid down by the judge in favour of the party challenging. Pearse v. Rogers, 2 F. & F. 137.

e. Fining.

In what Cases.]—Where an issue was directed by a court of equity to be tried at bar by a special jury of a county in which the cause did not arise, the court fined those special jurors who did not attend, it being proved that they were duly summoned. Layburn v. Crisp, 8 Car. & P. 397.

Application to remit.]—The court will not hear counsel for a juryman who has been fined for contempt. Carne v. Nicol, 3 D. P. C. 115.

When remitted.]—A fine for not attending as a special juror at the Court of Common Pleas at Westminster having been imposed upon a gentleman having a house in London and in Brighthelmstone, but who had resided the twelve months preceding at Brighthelmstone, the court refused to remit it. Clarges, Ex parte, 1 Y. & J. 399; 30 R. R. 811.

But where the party summoned had let his house, and was abroad, which fact was communicated to the summoning officer, the court remitted the fine. Ford, Ex parte, 1 Y. & J. 401; 30 R. R. 812.

So likewise, where the summons had by mistake been left at a wrong house, the court remitted the fine, but required the affidavit of the summoning officer to that fact. Brown, Ex parte, 1 Y. & J. 401; 30 R. R. 812.

f. View.

In what Cases.]—The court cannot, even by consent, order a view in one county by a sheriff of another, neither can the court compel a jury to go out of the limits of a county for such a purpose. Malins v. Dunraven (Lord), 9 Jur. 690.

An action for work and labour as a bricklayer before the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, was not a case in which a side-bar rule for a view could be granted. Stones v. Menhem, 2 Ex. 382; 17 L. J., Ex. 215.

Effect of Trial before Jury—When viewed by Others.]—The defendants had obtained a rule for a view, which was accordingly had, but upon the trial coming on at the assizes all the viewers were impanelled and engaged in trying a cause in another court. As this, however, was the last cause on the list, the judge (against the consent of the defendant) determined upon trying it, and other jurors were impanelled instead of the viewers, and a verdict was returned for the plaintiff:—Held, that this was a mis-trial, and a rule for a new trial was accordingly made absolute. Kingston Union v. Landed Estates Co., 28 L. T. 644.

Costs.]—The costs of a view cannot be allowed, unless the writ contains the name of a shewer appointed by the defendant as well as by the plaintiff. Taylor v. Thompson, 7 Bing. 403; 5 M. & P. 255; 1 D. P. C. 218; 9 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 104.

g. Withdrawing a Juror.

Effect of.]—The withdrawing a juror by consent of the parties is no bar to a future suit on the same cause of action. Sanderson v. Nestor, R. & M. 402.

If a juror is withdrawn under the advice of counsel, and a second action brought for the same cause, the court will stay the proceedings, notwithstanding the belief of the attorneys on each side that such withdrawal would not operate as a termination of the suit. Gibbs v. Ralph, 14 M. & W. 804; 15 L. J., Ex. 7.

Withdrawing a juror does not necessarily put an end to the suit; whether it does so or not depends on the arrangement between the parties in the particular instance. Bentley v. Dawes, 10 Ex. 347; 23 L. J., Ex. 279; 18 Jur. 837. S. P., Harries v. Thomas, 2 M. & W. 32; 6 L. J., Ex. 58.

Agreement to withdraw Juror—Breach of Terms.]—At the trial of a cause the parties agreed that a juror should be withdrawn, and that the judge, instead of trying the issues, should examine the subject-matter of the dispute, and say what ought to be done by both or either party. A juror was accordingly withdrawn, and the judge undertook the matter, and was about to carry out the rest of the arrangement when the defendant refused to be bound by it:—Held, that the effect of such refusal was to set aside the arrangement, and to give the court therefore power to order the cause to be tried notwithstanding there had been such withdrawal of a juror with the consent of both parties and without fraud on the part of the defendant. Norburn v. Hilliam, 39 L. J., C. P. 183; L. R. 5 C. P. 129; 22 L. T. 67; 18 W. R. 602.

The withdrawal of a juror upon terms is not necessarily the final determination of an action; and if there be a substantial breach by one of the parties of the terms upon which the juror was withdrawn, the court before whom the case came for trial has jurisdiction to retry the action. Thomas v. Exeter Flying Post Co., 56 L. J., Q. B. 313; 18 Q. B. D. 822; 56 L. T. 361; 35 W. R. 594.

h. Discharge of Jury.

Power of Judge.]—Judges may of their own authority discharge a jury, without any consent of the parties, either from finding any verdict at all, or from finding a verdict on any particular issues. Powell v. Sonnett, 1 Dow (N.S.), 56; 1 Bligh (N.S.) 545; 3 Bing. 381; 11 Moore, 330.

As where the jury cannot agree. Ib.

Where a jury cannot agree they may be discharged, if circumstances render it improper that they should continue to deliberate. Dewar v. Purday, 4 N. & M. 633; 2 A. & E. 166; 1 H. & W. 227; 4 L. J., K. B. 164.

Where the jury have found their verdict on all the material issues joined, the judge who tries the cause may, without the consent of the parties, discharge the jury from returning any verdict on issues that in his opinion are immaterial. Rex v. Johnson, 1 Macl. & R. 1; 6 N. & M. 870.

A court has power to discharge by consent a jury from giving a verdict upon any of the issues in an action. Scott v. Bennett, L. R. 5 H. L. 234; 20 W. R. 686.

If on the trial of an issue out of chancery the jury is locked up for many hours, and is not likely to agree when the judge is about to leave the town, the judge will discharge them of his own authority, if the parties decline consenting to their discharge; but if a jury is under such circumstances in a cause depending between party and party, semble, the judge would order the jury to follow him a cart. Morris v. Davies, 3 Car. & P. 427.

If the same special jurymen are struck to try several causes on the same question, and the court, being dissatisfied with the verdict in the first, directs it to abide the event of another cause, the court will also, on motion, discharge the same special jurymen from trying the second cause. Doncaster Corporation v. Coe, 3 Taunt. 404.

—— Where several Issues, and Jury agree on some only.]—Where there are several distinct issues to be tried in one action, it is competent to the judge, in his discretion, and without the consent of the parties, to accept the verdict of the jury upon those issues on which they are able to agree, and discharge them upon the others without invalidating the trial, leaving the parties, if they think fit, to take down the undecided issues to a new trial; and the court will give judgment on the decided issues, and has power, if asked, to send down the undecided issues to a new trial. Marsh v. Isaacs, 45 L. J., C. P. 505.

Effect of Discharge by Consent.]—Discharging a jury by consent does not terminate the suit, but is the same, in this respect, as withdrawing a juror; and where the plaintiff, instead of going on with such suit, brought a new action for a cause admitted to be the same, the court stayed the proceedings, but would not grant the defendant his costs of the latter suit. Everett v. Youells, 3 B. & Ad. 349.

Presumption that Record correct.]—In the proceedings of a superior court everything is to be presumed in favour of the judgment of the court, and when, therefore, a jury has been discharged and the cause referred, and the record is silent as to consent, it must be assumed that the discharge took place by proper authority. Scott v. Bennett, L. R. 5 H. L. 234; 20 W. R. 686.

k. Costs of Actions tried by Jury—See COSTS.

l. Other Points.

Affirmation.]—A special juror objected to being sworn, and stated that he was of the persuasion of a Quaker, but not a member of the Society of Friends. He was allowed to affirm. Emmett v. Norton, 8 Car. & P. 516.

Juryman giving Evidence.]—On the trial of an action on a bill of exchange, where the cause was undefended, one of the jury said that the stamp was a forgery, and called the attention of the judge to the fact:—Held, that the juryman must be sworn as a witness to give evidence to his brother-jurors, before they could act upon his opinion, and on his declining to be sworn, the judge directed the jury to find for the plaintiff. Manley v. Shaw, Car. & M. 361.

Entry in List.]—A cause being entered on the list at the assizes as a special jury case, and the special jury panel being annexed to the record, will be tried as a special jury case; at all events, if due notice has been given. Mose v. St. Leonard's Gas Co., 4 F. & F. 324.

Maintaining a Jury.]—A private act, which provides for the expense of maintaining a jury, does not extend to a dinner given to them at a tavern, after they had delivered their verdict. Forster v. Taylor, 3 Camp. 49; 13 R. R. 748.

Too many Jurymen.]—At the trial of a cause by a special jury, it having been discovered during the examination of the first witness that there were thirteen jurors in the box, the judge offered to dismiss one, but the defendant's counsel refusing to consent, and it being impossible to ascertain which one of the jurors was sworn last, he discharged the jury, directed the special jurymen to be called over again, and tried the cause by the first twelve that answered:—Held, regular. Muirhead v. Evans, 2 L., M. & P. 294; 6 Ex. 447; 20 L. J., Ex. 211; 15 Jur. 385.

m. THE VERDICT.

See R. S. C. 1883, Ord. XXXVI. r. 41.

Finding of Jury conclusive.]—Where there is no appeal from the refusal of a new trial, the finding of the jury on the issues is conclusive.

Butters, Ex parte, Harrison, In re, 14 Ch. D. 265; 43 L. T. 2; 28 W. R. 876—C. A.

When a question of fact has been tried by a jury, the court cannot set aside or disregard the verdict, unless either there was no evidence to go to the jury or by reason of some matter of law or of some new fact the verdict has become immaterial to the decision of the case. Morgan, Ex parte, Simpson, In re, 45 L. J., Bk. 36; 2 Ch. D. 72; 34 L. T. 329; 24 W. R. 414.

Judgment given contrary to Finding.]—Under the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1875, the judge, after leaving a question to the jury, had no power to give judgment contrary to the finding of the jury on a question so left to them; where, therefore, this course had been adopted the court of appeal ordered a new trial. Perkins v. Dangerfield, 51 L. T. 535—C. A.

—— Appeal.]—Upon the trial of an action with a jury, at the conclusion of the plaintiff's case it was contended for the defendant that there was no evidence to go to the jury; the judge, however, left the case to the jury, and asked them to assess the damages. The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, and assessed the damages. Upon further consideration the judge directed judgment to be entered for the defendant, on the ground that there was no evidence to go to the jury:—Held, that an appeal against the judgment must be brought to a divisional court, and not to the court of appeal. Rocke v. McKerrow, 59 L. J., Q. B. 146; 24 Q. B. D. 463; 62 L. T. 556; 38 W. R. 342—C. A. But see now 53 & 54 Vict. c. 44.

Contingent.]—Where a verdict is found for a defendant upon an issue which bars the action, the jury cannot assess contingent damages for the plaintiff without the assent of the defendant. Newton v. Harland, 1 Man. & G. 645.

Grounds of Verdict.]—The jury cannot be asked the grounds of their verdict. Brown v. Bristol and Exeter Ry., 4 L. T. 830; 9 W. R. 872.

The judge will refuse to hear the grounds of a verdict, though the jury may desire to state them. Horner v. Watson, 6 Car. & P. 680.

If the jury state the particular evidence on which they find a fact, this is only surplusage, and will not vitiate the verdict. Plunket v. Kingsland (Lord), 7 Bro. P. C. 404.

Entry of.]—The jury being directed that the evidence upon the first count was conflicting, but that upon the second count the plaintiff was entitled to a verdict, with at least 1*s.* damages, gave a verdict for 1*s.*, which the associate entered upon the postea as a general verdict. A question arising as to the taxation of costs in the third term after the trial:—Held, that the judge who presided might at any time direct the verdict to be entered according to the plain intention of the jury. Ernest v. Browne, 4 Bing. (N.C.) 162; 5 Scott, 491; 1 Arn. 2; 7 L. J., C. P. 145; 2 Jur. 34.

When it appears at the close of a plaintiff's case that there is no evidence against one or two or more defendants, it is entirely within the discretion of the judge whether he will then direct a verdict in his favour, or will wait till the whole evidence in the cause closes. Purnell v. G. W. Ry., 34 L. T. 126.

If the plaintiff has evidently sustained some damages, and the jury being unable to ascertain the amount, finds a verdict for the defendant, the court will permit the plaintiff to enter a verdict for nominal damages. Feize v. Thompson, 1 Taunt. 121.

Amendment of.]—Semble, English courts have no inherent power to amend the verdict of a jury, but they have to correct an erroneous entry of a verdict. And they have statutory powers to amend the postea. Morgan v. Morris, 6 W. R. 776.

—— Erroneous Calculation.]—Where damages found by the jury have been calculated upon a value assented to by counsel on both sides, the court will not interfere to alter the amount of the verdict, on affidavits that counsel were mistaken in that which they assumed as the basis of their calculation. Hilton v. Fowler, 5 D. P. C. 312.

In an undefended action on a mortgage deed, the plaintiff's counsel inadvertently took a verdict for the principal only, omitting to include the interest. The court refused to increase the verdict. Baker v. Brown, 2 M. & W. 199; 5 D. P. C. 313; 2 Gale, 223; 6 L. J., Ex. 11.

—— Contrary to Evidence.]—Upon the execution of a writ of inquiry in an action for dilapidations, two surveyors were called on each side; those called for the plaintiff estimated the dilapidations, the one at 119*l.* the other at 124*l.*; those called for the defendant estimated them, the one at 63*l.* 15*s.* the other at 68*l.*; the jury returned a verdict for 36*l.* 10*s.* The court ordered that the inquisition be set aside without costs, unless the defendant would consent to the verdict being entered for 63*l.* 15*s.* Weeding v. Mason, 2 C. B. (N.S.) 382.

Motion to Vary—Form of Order.]—On a motion to reduce damages, the court, on the application of the plaintiffs, made it part of the rule that the plaintiffs should be at liberty to sign judgment and issue execution for the whole amount of the damages, but they were not to levy more than the sum not objected to, and costs, until the court should order further. Davey v. Phelps, 2 Man. & G. 300; 2 Scott (N.R.) 564.

Where a rule nisi for reducing the damages is granted, execution should be stayed only in respect of the amount mentioned in the rule. Bate v. Pane, 13 Jur. 609.

A rule nisi having been granted to reduce the damages, the court allowed the plaintiff to enter up judgment and issue execution, for that part of the damages which was not objected to, on his electing to forego the rest. Hellings v. Young, 3 Scott, 170.

Duty of Solicitor when Jury retires.]—When the jury retires to consider their verdict, the attorneys of the parties ought to remain in court to hear it delivered. Dauntley v. Hyde, 6 Jur. 133.

Special Verdict.]—Upon a special verdict, the court of error cannot draw, from other statements contained therein, any inferences of facts necessary to the determination of the case; such facts must be expressly found one way or the other. Tancred v. Christy, 12 M. & W. 316.

Where a special case is reserved, the court cannot turn the special case into a special verdict, unless there is a power expressly reserved for that purpose. Canterbury (Archbishop) v. Robertson, 2 D. P. C. 78.

The indorsement of the special finding of the jury made by the officer of the court on the back of the nisi prius record will not be treated by the court as the postea on the motion for a new trial, no application to have the facts found specially, and the finding stated on the record, having been made at the trial until after the jury had delivered their verdict. Baird v. Hodges, 18 L. J., Ex. 435.

—— Form.]—Direction as to the form of a special verdict. Reg. v. Saddlers' Co., 30 L. J., Q. B. 186; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 138; 4 L. T. 54; 9 W. R. 281—Ex. Ch.

A special verdict must find the facts, and not consist of a mere statement of evidence. Fryer v. Roe, 12 C. B. 437. S. P., Hubbard v. Johnstone, 3 Taunt. 209.

In a special verdict, where it concludes generally, the whole case must appear upon the record. Rex v. Aire and Calder Navigation, 2 Term Rep. 666; 1 R. R. 579.

General Verdict—Power to give.]—It is the privilege of a jury to decline finding any other than a general verdict, though the judge requests them to give a special verdict. Devizes Corporation v. Clark, 3 A. & E. 506.

Postea Certificate or Record—Delivery of.]—Where goods have been taken under a fi. fa., and an issue is directed to try whether the goods were those of a third person, and the jury at the assizes finds for such person, who is plaintiff in the issue, the practice is for the associate to keep the nisi prius record till after the fourth day of the next term, unless the judge orders it to be immediately delivered up to the plaintiff's attorney, upon an application in the nature of an application for speedy execution. Abbott v. Clarke, 2 Car. & K. 209.

The plaintiff's attorney obtained the postea from the associate on the morning of the quarto die post, under the pretence of having it stamped, but instead thereof signed judgment immediately, and issued execution thereon: the court set aside the judgment and execution, and ordered that the associate should not in future deliver over the postea until the morning after the quarto die post. Blanchenay v. Vandenbergh, 3 Moore, 643.

—— Who entitled to.]—If a plaintiff recovers on any part of the record he is entitled to the postea. Smith v. Edwards, 4 D. P. C. 621.

In an action for injuring the plaintiff's house by removing the support of the defendant's, the latter pleaded, first, not guilty; secondly, a denial of the right to support; thirdly, payment of money into court and no damages ultra. The first issue was found for the plaintiff without damages, the last for the defendant, and the jury was discharged from any finding on the second:—Held, that as the record stood, the defendant was entitled to the postea, and that unless the judge amended it by inserting nominal damages on the first issue, a venire de novo must issue. Grout v. Glasier, 1 D. (N.S.) 58.

—— Power of Court or Judge to amend.]—At the trial of an action the jury found certain issues in favour of the plaintiff, and the judge reserved judgment. The verdict was entered as a general verdict for the plaintiff, but the judge notwithstanding the verdict gave judgment for the defendant. On an appeal by the plaintiff from the judgment, the court of appeal amended the record by entering the verdict for the plaintiff on the issues only, and affirmed the judgment. Clack v. Wood, 9 Q. B. D. 276; 47 L. T. 144; 30 W. R. 931—C. A.

To an action for 5*l.* 15*s.* 1¼*d.*, the defendant pleaded never indebted as to all but 3*l.* 10*s.*, and as to that sum a tender; the verdict was entered on the postea as a general verdict for 5*l.* 15*s.* 1¼d., and though apprised of the informality, the plaintiff signed judgment and taxed costs. The court allowed the postea to be amended, after writ of error brought, on payment of the costs as well of the application as of the writ of error. Wallis v. Goddard, 3 Scott (N.R.) 295; 2 Man. & G. 912.

The court has no jurisdiction to alter the entering of the verdict on the postea, where the judge who presided at the trial declines, on summons, so to do. Newton v. Harland, 1 Scott (N.R.) 503; 1 Man. & G. 958; 9 D. P. C. 65.

Where a party complains of an erroneous entry of a verdict on the postea, the proper course is to apply to the judge who tried the cause to amend the entry by his notes. Ib.

A judge may amend the entry of a verdict from memory, although he has no note either of the evidence or of his summing up to the jury. Marianski v. Cairns, 1 Macq. H. L. 212, 766.

But the Court of Queen's Bench refused to amend a verdict from the recollection of the judge who tried the cause. Reg. v. Virrier, 12 A. & E. 317; 4 P. & D. 161; 9 L. J., M. C. 120; 4 Jur. 628.

A party cannot introduce a new averment into a postea. The judge before whom a cause has been tried may direct a modification of the language of a postea, but the court will not interfere. Doe d. Haxby v. Preston, 5 D. & L. 7; 16 L. J., Q. B. 337.

A judge's direction as to the amendment of a postea cannot be questioned in a court of error, for there is no power to compel the production of his notes of the trial. Sandford v. Allcock, 10 M. & W. 689; 12 L. J., Ex. 40.

The court has no power to amend the postea, or review an amendment thereof made by the judge who tried the cause. Daintry v. Brocklehurst, 3 Ex. 691; 18 L. J., Ex. 347.

A general verdict was returned for the defendant. It was entered by order of the judge by mistake for the plaintiff. After the jury had been discharged they were recalled, the judge recollected what their verdict was, and from their statement found that a mistake had been made. The judge directed the postea to be amended:—Held, that he had power to order the amendment. Baker v. Lawrence, 22 L. T. 813; 18 W. R. 835.

When a plaintiff, pending demurrers to the declaration, takes the case down to trial, and obtains a general verdict, subject to leave to move to enter it for the defendant, and the court directs the verdict to be entered for the defendant on the counts demurred to, and also holds them bad, it is for the judge who tried the cause to settle the postea in accordance with the judgment of the court on the rule to enter the verdict. Oxenham v. Smythe, 3 F. & F. 85.

The plaintiff recovered one farthing damages, by verdict on one of two counts; the defendant had a verdict on the second. In order that judgment might be pleaded puis darrein continuance in another action by the same plaintiff against a third party (suggested to be for an assault which was the subject of the first action), the defendant took out a summons to shew cause why the plaintiff should not sign judgment, or the defendant have the postea for the purpose of signing it. The plaintiff opposed the summons, and it was ordered that the postea should be delivered to the defendant. The defendant then signed judgment for the plaintiff on the first count, with a farthing damages, and for himself on the second count, with a remittance of his own costs. The court discharged a rule to shew cause why the judgment should not be set aside. Taylor v. Nesfield, 4 El. & Bl. 462; 24 L. J., Q. B. 126; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 309; 3 W. R. 163.

The court would not amend the entry of a verdict according to the notes of an arbitrator, on the ground that they had no power to compel such notes to be brought before them. Scougall v. Campbell, 1 Chit. 283.

By an order of reference, in an action for an injury to the plaintiff's reversion, by making a drain into his premises, a verdict was directed to be entered for the plaintiff, claim 500*l*., costs 40*s*., subject to the award of a barrister, to whom the cause and all matters in difference were referred, and who was empowered to direct a verdict for the plaintiff or the defendant as he should think proper, the arbitrator to have all the powers of the court or judge sitting at nisi prius, and the costs of the suit to abide the event of the award, and the costs of the reference and award to be in the discretion of the arbitrator. The arbitrator found all the issues in the action in favour of the plaintiff except the first, and that he found partly for the plaintiff and partly for the defendant; and he further directed that the verdict entered for the plaintiff should stand, but that the damages should be reduced to one farthing; and he further ordered the defendant to pay the plaintiff 5*l*.:—Held, that the plaintiff was not, in the absence of a certificate under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 24, s. 2, entitled to the costs of the cause, and the postea having been erroneously made up with the following assessment of damages and costs, "and the jury assess the claim of the plaintiff over and above his costs of suit to one farthing, and for those costs to 40*s*.," the court allowed it to be amended by striking out the words in italics. Cooper v. Pegg, 16 C. B. 264, 454; 24 L. J., C. P. 167; 3 W. R. 456.

Where the finding of the jury on two breaches of covenant is manifestly inconsistent, as appears by the postea, the judge who tried the case may amend the postea from his recollection or his notes after judgment has been entered up and error brought and argument thereon. Bowers v. Nixon, 12 Q. B. 546; 18 L. J., Q. B. 41; 13 Jur. 334—Ex. Ch.

A declaration contained a count for 139*l*., stated to be due on a judgment and account for 180*l*. rent. On the first count the pleadings led to an issue in law. To the second the defendant pleaded part payment, and issue being joined thereon, a jury was impannelled to try it, and to assess contingent damages on the issue in law. On the second issue there appeared to be a balance of 106*l*. due to the plaintiff. The jury found a general verdict for 139*l*. Afterwards the issue in law was decided in favour of the defendant:—Held, that the judge might amend the verdict by his notes, and direct it to be entered for the plaintiff, on the second count only, for 106*l*. Ferguson v. Mahon, 11 A. & E. 179; 3 P. & D. 143.

Where a verdict has been obtained in ejectment against A. and B., who defended for different parts of the premises in the declaration, the court, after setting aside the verdict as to A., refused to amend the postea, by confirming the verdict as against B. to those premises for which B. specifically defended. Roe d. Blair v. Street, 1 N. & M. 42; 2 A. & E. 329; 4 L. J., K. B. 67.

Where a general verdict has been given on two counts, one of which is bad, and it appears by the judge's notes that the jury calculated the damages on evidence applicable to the good count only, the court will amend the verdict, by entering it on that count, though evidence was given applicable to the bad count also. Williams v. Breedon, 1 Bos. & P. 329.

Where a verdict was taken by consent on two counts, the court, on the application of the plaintiff, amended the postea by entering the verdict on one (to which the evidence applied), although the judge who presided declined to interfere. Henley v. Lyme Regis Corporation, 6 Bing. 100; 3 M. & P. 310; 7 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 243.

Where a general verdict was given on a declaration, some of the counts of which were bad, the court amended the postea, by entering up judgment on a single count, after argument in error. Richardson v. Mellish, 3 Bing. 334; 11 Moore, 104; 4 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 68. S. C., nom. Mellish v. Richardson, 1 B. & C. 819.

Where a verdict was given, and judgment entered for a sum exceeding the damages laid, on error brought, the court allowed the plaintiff to amend the judgment and transcript in a term subsequent to that in which the judgment was signed, by entering a remittitur for the excess. Usher v. Dansey, 4 M. & S. 94.

So, the court permitted a plaintiff to enter a remittitur of the excess above the sum laid, on payment of the costs of the writ of error. Pickwood v. Wright, 1 H. Bl. 642.

Action against a sheriff for breaking into a house and taking goods. Pleas, not guilty, and a justification under a fi. fa. on a judgment recovered against the plaintiff. Replication, that after the sheriff entered and seized the goods, the plaintiff paid to the sheriff, who accepted, the amount of the moneys directed to be levied by the writ. New assignment, that the plaintiff brought his action for a trespass and seizure of his goods after such acceptance, and after the writ was so satisfied. Pleas to the new assignment, not guilty, and a denial of the sheriff's receipt of the money in satisfaction of the writ. The jury found for the plaintiff, damages 400*l*., and on the postea the damages were assessed "upon the premises aforesaid." After the case had been argued on a bill of exceptions to the ruling of the judge, he made an order that the postea should be amended by substituting in the assessment of damages the words, "on occasion of the trespasses above and within newly assigned":—Held, that the judge had jurisdiction to make the order for amending the postea. Gregory v. Cotterell, 5 El. & Bl. 581; 25 L. J., Q. B. 33; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 16; 4 W. R. 48—Ex. Ch.

—— Application to amend.]—An application to amend the postea should be made to the judge who presided at nisi prius, and not to the court. Smith v. Edge, 33 L. J., Ex. 9.

—— Time for Application.]—The judge who presides at the trial may at any time direct the postea to be amended and the verdict to be entered according to the plain intention of the jury. Ernest v. Browne, 4 Bing. (N.C.) 162 ; 1 Arn. 2 ; 5 Scott, 491 ; 7 L. J., C. P. 145 ; 2 Jur. 34.

Even after final judgment, and a writ of error brought. Doe d. Church v. Perkins, 3 Term Rep. 749. S. P., Newcomb v. Green, 1 Wils. 33.

Time within which an application for rectifying the entry of a judgment upon a verdict may be applied for. Marianski v. Cairns, 1 Macq. H. L. 212, 766.

A declaration contained two counts : one upon a charter-party, the other for the hire of a ship. After the trial the judge, after hearing the parties, and referring to his notes, decided that the verdict should be entered on the postea for the plaintiff upon the first, and for the defendant upon the second count. The defendant subsequently brought error upon the first count, whereupon the Exchequer Chamber gave judgment in his favour. After such judgment, and six years having elapsed from the time of entering the verdict, the court, in their discretion, refused to allow the plaintiff to amend the postea by entering a verdict for him upon the second count, and for the defendant upon the first count. Jackson v. Galloway, 2 D. & L. 839 ; 1 C. B. 281 ; 14 L. J., C. P. 141 ; 9 Jur. 373.

—— Grounds on which amended.]—The court will not, at a distance of time after the trial, amend the postea by increasing the damages given by the jury, although all the jurymen join in an affidavit, stating their intention to have been to give the plaintiff such increased sum, and that they conceived that the verdict they had given was calculated to give him such sum. Jackson v. Williamson, 2 Term Rep. 281.

But, in another case, a verdict which was improperly delivered by the mistake of the foreman, was set right, and the postea amended on the affidavits of the jury. Cogan v. Ebden, 1 Burr. 283 ; 2 Ld. Ken. 24.

The court refused to amend an order of nisi prius according to the terms contained in a paper signed by the counsel at the trial, the intention of the parties appearing from their subsequent acts to have been in favour of the terms of such order. Pearman v. Carter, 2 Chit. 29.

—— Effect of, in Evidence.]—The postea is evidence of a verdict for the sums indorsed, and is good evidence of a set-off to the extent of it. Garland v. Scoones, 2 Esp. 648.

In an action on an indemnity bond, the postea was held sufficient evidence in proof of an allegation in a replication, that the plaintiff was obliged to and did pay a sum of money, as and for the damages and costs recovered by the person against whose claims the obligor had become bound to protect the plaintiff ; where in consequence of an arrangement between the parties no judgment was ever entered up. Harrap v. Bradshaw, 9 Price, 359.

—— Parol Evidence to explain.]—A nisi prius record having been put in evidence, and there appearing to be two counts or distinct causes of action, and the verdict entered generally for the plaintiff, with 65*l.* damages, parol evidence is admissible to shew that the substantial damages were recovered on one count only. Preston v. Peeke, El., Bl. & El. 336 ; 27 L. J., Q. B. 424 ; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 613; 6 W. R. 591.

—— Rule to Deliver up.]—The court in banco did not grant a rule directing the associate to deliver up the postea in a cause, as he was an officer at nisi prius, the proper course being to take out a summons before the judge who tried the cause. South Kensington Hotel Co. v. Braginton, 14 L. T. 288.

n. NON-APPEARANCE OF PARTIES AT TRIAL.

See R. S. C. 1883, Ord. XXXVI. r. 31.

Of Plaintiff.]—When an action is called on for trial and the plaintiff does not appear, the defendant appearing is entitled to have judgment in his favour with costs, without proving that he has been served with notice of trial. Cockle v. Joyce (infra), not followed. James v. Crow, 47 L. J., Ch. 200 ; 7 Ch. D. 410 ; 37 L. T. 749 ; 26 W. R. 236.

Where the plaintiff does not appear at the trial the defendant is entitled to judgment dismissing the action with costs. Farrell v. Wale, 36 L. T. 95.

A plaintiff having become bankrupt, and no notice to the trustee having been shown, the court refused to give judgment for the defendant, and ordered the action to be struck out. Eldridge v. Burgess, 47 L. J., Ch. 342 ; 7 Ch. D. 411 ; 38 L. T. 232 ; 26 W. R. 435.

When an action is called on for trial and the plaintiff fails to appear, the defendant is entitled to have the action dismissed with costs, without proving that he has received notice of trial. Palmer, In re, Skipper v. Skipper, 49 L. T. 553 ; 32 W. R. 83.

A plaintiff not appearing at the trial the action was dismissed with costs. Subsequently, the plaintiff's counsel explaining that his absence was caused by accident, it was restored to the list. Cockle v. Joyce, 47 L. J., Ch. 543 ; 7 Ch. D. 56 ; 37 L. T. 428 ; 26 W. R. 59. But see supra.

—— Judgment, Form of.]—Where a plaintiff does not appear at the trial of an action the proper judgment to be given under Ord. XXXVI. r. 32, of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, is a judgment dismissing the action, and not a judgment for the defendant. Armour v. Bate, 60 L. J., Q. B. 433 ; [1891] 2 Q. B. 233 ; 65 L. T. 137 ; 39 W. R. 546—C. A.

At the trial of an action twelve of the plaintiffs did not attend, and no evidence was given on their behalf. An adjournment was asked for but refused, as there was no evidence as to the reason of their absence. Judgment with costs was given for those who had appeared and given evidence, and the action was dismissed with costs as to those who had not attended. The latter appealed :—Held, that the judgment as to these plaintiffs must be varied by making it without prejudice to their bringing a fresh action. Arnison v. Smith, 41 Ch. D. 348 ; 61 L. T. 63 ; 37 W. R. 739—C. A.

Of Defendant.]—Where the defendant does not appear at the trial to obtain judgment the plaintiff must prove that notice of trial has been given. Cockshott v. London General Cab Co., 47 L. J., Ch. 126 ; 26 W. R. 31.

Semble, that when a defendant does not appear at the trial, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to prove service of notice of trial. Chorlton v. Dickie, 49 L. J., Ch. 40 ; 13 Ch. D. 160 ; 41 L. T. 467 ; 28 W. R. 228.

Action to enforce specific performance by the purchaser of an open contract to purchase leaseholds. Defendant had paid a deposit and accepted the title, but failed to complete. By his pleading the defendant admitted that he was unwilling to complete. At the trial (the defendant not appearing) the plaintiff asked for judgment for rescission and forfeiture of the deposit :—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment for specific performance as claimed by his pleadings, but not for rescission and forfeiture. Stone v. Smith, 56 L. J., Ch. 871 ; 35 Ch. D. 188 ; 56 L. T. 333 ; 35 W. R. 545.

—— Duty of Plaintiff.]—The defendant not appearing at the hearing, the plaintiff is to take such decree as he can abide by. Meskill v. Dunworth, 4 Ir. Eq. R. 681.

Where a defendant makes default at the hearing, the plaintiff must take such decree as by the pleadings and evidence he may be entitled to. Browne v. Smith, 5 Jur. 1195.

The plaintiff filed a traversing order. The defendant afterwards made default in appearing at the hearing :—Held, first, that the plaintiff was not entitled to take, as of course, such decree as he could abide by, but must go through his case and take such decree as to the court might appear just ; and, secondly, that service of the traversing order must be proved by affidavit. Evans v. Williams, 6 Beav. 118.

On a rehearing, if the defendant does not appear the plaintiff must take such decree as he can abide by. M'Cann v. O'Connor, 2 Dr. & War. 42.

A declaration, being the act of the court, cannot be introduced into a decree taken by the plaintiff in the absence of the defendant, which decree must be such as the plaintiff can abide by at his own peril. In a creditors' suit the defendant did not appear at the hearing, and the counsel for the plaintiff introduced into the minutes of the decree a declaration that the defendant had notice of the plaintiff's bond, which was admitted by the answer. The declaration was irregular, the plaintiff being entitled only to the common decree in a creditors' suit. Jennings v. Simpson, 1 Keen, 404 ; 6 L. J., Ch. 234.

Since the 44th General Order of August, 1841, which directs that the decree against a defendant who makes default at the hearing shall be absolute in the first instance, without giving him a day to shew cause, the practice has been, notwithstanding the default of the defendant, to hear the cause, and make such a decree as the plaintiff upon the pleadings and evidence is entitled to, and not, as theretofore, to allow the plaintiff to take such a decree as he can abide by. Hakewell v. Webber, 9 Hare, 541.

The plaintiff is not entitled, as of course, to a decree for an account, when the defendant does not appear ; but he must make out his case. Hayes v. Brierley, 2 Con. & L. 153 ; 3 Dr. & War. 274.

—— Counterclaim.]—Solicitors brought an action against their client for the amount of their bill of costs delivered shortly before the commencement of the action. The defendant denied the retainer, alleged negligence, and counterclaimed for damages on the ground of negligence. At the trial the defendant did not appear, and the plaintiffs proved their case :—Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to have the counterclaim dismissed with costs, and to have judgment for the amount to be certified on taxation under the Solicitors Act, 1843, with costs of the action up to and including the hearing. Lumley v. Brookes, 58 L. J., Ch. 494 ; 41 Ch. D. 323 ; 61 L. T. 172 ; 37 W. R. 454—C. A.

Of Plaintiff and Defendant—Costs.]—A defendant is not entitled to move for the costs of not proceeding to trial, in a case where, owing to the absence of both the plaintiff and the defendant at the trial, the cause was struck out ; the defendant, under those circumstances, being the party in fault. Morgan v. Fernyhough, 11 Ex. 205 ; 25 L. J., Ex. 52 ; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 688 ; 3 W. R. 551.

Judgment by Default—Appeal or Application to Rehear.]—Although the court of appeal has jurisdiction to hear a direct appeal from a judgment by default, such appeals will not be encouraged. The proper course for a party against whom judgment has been given by default is to apply to the judge who heard the cause to set aside the judgment and to rehear the cause. Vint v. Hudspith, 54 L. J., Ch. 844 ; 29 Ch. D. 322 ; 52 L. T. 741 ; 33 W. R. 738—C. A.

Application to restore to List—Time for.]—An action coming on for trial on the 30th July, was dismissed with costs in consequence of the plaintiff not appearing at the trial. On the 31st October a motion was made to discharge the previous order, and to restore the case to the paper to be heard on the merits :—Held, that the court had no power to restore the action except when the application is made within six days of the dismissal. Walter or Walker v. James, 53 L. T. 597 ; 34 W. R. 29.

Where an application to set aside a judgment obtained against a party on his non-appearance at the trial is made after the time limited for so doing has expired, it is not necessary to first make a substantive application for an extension of time, but the notice of motion should show that the application is out of time. Rule 21 of Ord. XXXIII. of the Chancery of Lancaster Rules, 1884, which provides that an application to set aside a judgment obtained where one party does not appear at the trial must be made "within six days after the trial, or at next sitting of the court," does not give an option to the party against whom judgment has been given to move either within the time named (whether a court sits or not), or at the next following sittings ; but means that the application is to be made within six days, if the court is then sitting, and if it does not sit within the six days, the next time it does sit. Bradshaw v. Warlow, 55 L. J., Ch. 852 ; 32 Ch. D. 403 ; 54 L. T. 438 ; 34 W. R. 557—C. A.

—— Terms.]—In ejectment, entered at the assizes, the defendant not appearing when the cause was called on for trial, the plaintiff's counsel at once took a verdict, immediately after which the defendant's counsel came into court, strictly in time (by the clocks of the assize town), and ready to try, which the plaintiff's attorney refused to consent to ; the court let the defendant in to try without terms. Curtis v. Marsh, 3 H. & N. 866 ; 28 L. J., Ex. 36 ; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 1112.

When a plaintiff at the assizes is compelled to withdraw his record on account of the non-arrival of his witnesses by the time his cause is called on, a judge will allow the record to be re-entered on the arrival of the witness, unless it is shewn by affidavit for the defendant that his witnesses have been dismissed. Lean v. Smith, 2 M. & Rob. 126.

The court will, under some circumstances, restore a cause to its place in the paper, which has been tried out of its turn in the day's list under the supposition that it was undefended, it appearing that counsel had been instructed for the defendant. Dorrien v. Howell, 8 Scott, 508; 4 Jur. 195.

When a judgment obtained on default of appearance at the trial was set aside, the defaulting party was ordered to pay the costs of the day when the action was called on, and of the application to restore. Cockle v. Joyce, 47 L. J., Ch. 543; 7 Ch. D. 56; 37 L. T. 428; 26 W. R. 59.

Where a defendant had instructed a solicitor to enter appearance and defend an action, and the solicitor, after entering appearance, neglected the action and allowed it to come to trial without communicating with the defendant, or appearing, or instructing counsel to appear at the trial, and the defendant did not ascertain that the action had been tried and judgment recovered against him with costs until more than six days after the trial, he personally having been guilty of no negligence and having made an application for enlargement of the time within six days of his having heard that the trial had taken place, the court granted an extension of the time to enable him to apply to set aside the judgment. Michell v. Wilson, 25 W. R. 380.

A defendant obtained an order to set aside a judgment which had been entered against him in default, with liberty to appear and defend the action, upon terms of paying to the plaintiff all his costs of the action subsequent to delivery of the statement of claim. Williams v. Brisco, 29 W. R. 713.

When through a mere mistake or slip either party to an action does not appear on its being called on for trial, and judgment is given in default of appearance, and an application to restore the action is made within due time, it is a matter of course to restore the action on the applicant paying all the costs of the day. Burgoine v. Taylor, 47 L. J., Ch. 542; 9 Ch. D. 1; 38 L. T. 438; 26 W. R. 568—C. A.

When a plaintiff, against whom judgment by default had been given, applied to have the judgment set aside and the action restored to the trial list on the ground that his solicitor, acting under a belief that the action was some way down in the cause list, and that negotiations which were then going on would result in a settlement of the action, had deferred instructing counsel to appear:—Held, that the circumstances were sufficient to justify the court in setting aside the judgment and restoring the action to the list, on the payment by the plaintiff of the costs of the day and of the application. Wright v. Clifford, 47 L. J., Ch. 543; 26 W. R. 369.

A plaintiff, being unready to proceed with the trial of his action when it came on unexpectedly, applied for a postponement, and upon its being refused let judgment go by default. A divisional court refused to set aside the judgment; but the court of appeal, upon fresh materials offering a reasonable explanation of the plaintiff's unreadiness, set aside the judgment and ordered the action to be restored to the list on his paying the costs of the day, including all costs thrown away, and the costs of the applications both to the divisional court and to the court of appeal. King v. Sandeman, 38 L. T. 461; 26 W. R. 569—C. A.

Decree on default setting aside a lease of a charity estate, with covenant for perpetual renewal, and directing an account of the actual rent: rehearing permitted on paying costs, not disturbing proceedings before the master to the draft of a report of what was due, but the money not to be paid into court before the report made; petition, not motion, the proper application. Att.-Gen. v. Brooke, 18 Ves. 319.

After the order, permitting the defendant to rehear the decree made on his default, setting aside the charity lease, and directing an account of the rents; he was ordered to give security for the sum reported due. Att.-Gen. v. Brooke, 18 Ves. 496.

Where the bill had been dismissed in the absence of the plaintiff's solicitor, allowed under the circumstances to be set down again to be heard, upon payment of costs by the plaintiff. Hale v. Lewis, 2 Keen, 318.

A bill having been dismissed with costs, owing to the plaintiff's solicitor having neglected to instruct counsel or deliver papers, the cause was, on motion supported by affidavit, under the circumstances ordered to be restored upon payment of costs by the plaintiff's solicitor. Birch v. Williams, 24 W. R. 700.

—— On what Grounds.] — Where a cause which was set down for the purpose of taking the bill pro confesso, against an absconded defendant, had been struck out on account of the absence of counsel, the court permitted it to be restored on the application of plaintiff alone. Harvey v. Renon, 12 Jur. 445.

In equity, where a party shows upon affidavit that he was surprised by a cause being in the paper on a particular day, and being disposed of in his absence, the court, upon motion, will restore it to the paper to be heard, and a petition is not necessary for that purpose. Rowley v. Carter, 1 Y. & J. 511.

Plaintiff, an executor, did not appear at the hearing; and upon proof of service of the subpœna to hear judgment the bill was dismissed with costs. An application to restore the cause to the paper, on the ground that the plaintiff had, seven months previously, become bankrupt, and believed that his rights passed to the assignees, which was not the fact, refused with costs. Frost v. Hilton, 15 Beav. 432.

A decree was taken by default in consequence of the negligence of the clerk of the defendant's solicitor. The court refused to restore the cause. Flower v. Gedge, 23 Beav. 449.

Cause set down again for hearing on further directions, on the petition of defendants out of the jurisdiction at the first hearing, who subsequently appeared, in order to enable them to appeal from the decree. Prendergast v. Lushington, 5 Hare, 177. And see Cases supra.

o. Short Cause.

1. In General.

See R. S. C. 1883, Ord. XL. r. 1.

A motion for a decree in a fit case may be set down for hearing as a short cause. Ames v. Ames, 10 Hare (App.) lxxv. See also Drew v. Long, 17 Jur. 173.

A cause ought not to be set down as a short cause if it will take more than ten minutes. Anon., 17 Jur. 435.

A cause ought not to be transferred from the long to the short cause list, when it involves a decision of any point requiring argument. Kane v. Johnson, 1 Ir. Eq. R. 279.

Where a cause has been set down as a short cause without the order of the court, and is afterwards struck out, the defendants will have the costs, unless they had concurred in its being so set down. Mellish v. Brooks, C. P. Coop. 474.

Where, in a suit for foreclosure of an estate charged with an original loan to the mortgagee, and as a further security on a mortgage of other lands, the court considered that it might have been set down as a short cause, the plaintiff held entitled to the costs of the motion. Aldworth v. Robinson, 2 Beav. 287.

In an administration suit pending at the commencement of the judicature acts, the defendant had put in his answer, but no further proceedings had been taken. It was desired by the plaintiff and defendant that the cause should be heard as short. The acts make no express provision for hearing of short causes. The court directed that the plaintiff should set down the cause on motion for judgment in the same way as provided by the Judicature Act, Ord. XXIX. r. 10, when the defendant had made default in delivering his defence. Palin v. Brookes, 33 L. T. 322; 24 W. R. 20.

A plaintiff, upon the defendant dispensing with a statement of claim, set down his action as a short cause, and moved for judgment according to prepared minutes. Upon the defendant objecting that the action must be brought to trial, it was ordered that the action be placed in the general non-witness list. Wilmott v. Young, 44 L. T. 331; 29 W. R. 413.

Delivery of Statement of Claim.]—When an action by cestuis que trustent under a will against executors and devisees in trust, for administration of the real and personal estate of the testator, was to be heard as a short cause, the court considered it unnecessary for the plaintiff to deliver a statement of claim. Green v. Coleby, 45 L. J., Ch. 303; 1 Ch. D. 693; 24 W. R. 246.

When an action is brought by a legatee for the administration of the estate of his testator, and it is desired to take judgment short in the first instance, a statement of claim should be delivered. Breton v. Mockett, 33 L. T. 684.

Cause List.]—Under the chancery regulations made in 1876, motions for judgments in actions are entered in the cause-book, and if marked "short" will be placed in the paper "on the first short cause day after the day for which notice has been given":—Held, that this means "the first short cause day available after the giving of the notice." Green v. Moore, 39 W. R. 421.

Motion for a decree under the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, must take its turn in the cause list. Drew v. Long, 17 Jur. 173; 1 W. R. 207.

2. Consent or Certificate of Counsel.

Bill of foreclosure cannot be set down as a short cause, except by consent. Rashleigh v. Dayman, 2 Madd. 147.

The court will not order a foreclosure suit to be advanced and heard as a short cause, without the defendant's consent. Lewin v. Moline, 1 Beav. 99; 8 L. J., Ch. 96.

Cause may be set down to be heard as a short cause, without motion, on consent; but, if the defendant do not consent, a motion, with certificate of counsel that the cause is proper to be set down, is necessary. Rankin v. Moore, 1 Jur. 525.

The court will not order a cause to be heard as a short cause, although the plaintiff and all the defendants but one consent to its being so heard. Ker v. Cusac, 7 Sim. 521; 6 L. J., Ch. 326; 1 Jur. 494.

A plaintiff setting down his cause as short, without the consent of the defendant, is bound to give notice to the defendant that he has done so; and in the absence of proof of such notice a decree cannot be made in a short cause against a defendant who does not appear. Molesworth v. Snead, 2 N. R. 512; 32 L. J., Ch. 709; 11 W. R. 934.

A cause, upon the counsel for the plaintiff undertaking to certify that it was proper to be heard as a short cause, was directed to be put in the next paper of short causes without the concurrence of the defendant's solicitor. Inexpediency of the rule requiring such concurrence, where it is withheld merely for the purpose of delaying the taking of accounts to the master's office. Mountford v. Cooper, 1 Keen, 464.

When on a motion to hear a cause as a short cause, on the certificate of counsel, the opposite counsel certifies that it is not a proper cause to hear as a short cause, the court will not permit any discussion on the point, but will at once refuse the application. Reeves v. Gill, 2 Keen, 671; 6 L. J., Ch. 302.

The practice at the rolls as to short causes is this, that when a cause is ready for hearing it may be set down as a short cause on the certificate of the plaintiff's counsel, and the consent of the defendant's solicitor. A cause may also be set down as a short cause, on the motion either of the plaintiff or defendant, on his counsel's certificate of its propriety, provided the counsel for the opposite party declines to state that he considers the cause not to be a short cause. Hutchinson v. Stephens, 1 Keen, 659; 2 Myl. & C. 452; 6 L. J., Ch. 296; 1 Jur. 524.

A different practice prevails in the vice-chancellor's court, where a cause can only be set down as a short cause on the certificate of the plaintiff's counsel and the consent of the defendant's solicitor. Ib.

A cause cannot be set down to be heard as a short cause on certificate merely, if the defendant object to its being set down. In such a case, the proper course is to have it set down by order. Turner v. Turner, 2 Jur. 127.

The court will, under circumstances, dispense with the usual certificate of counsel that a cause is proper to be heard as a short cause Hargraves v. White, 22 L. J., Ch. 640; 17 Jur. 436.

The court will advance a special case to be heard on a short cause day, on the statement by counsel of facts shewing that it is important that the case should be disposed of shortly, and his representation that the hearing will not take more than ten minutes. Wood v. Wood, 19 W. R. 972. But see Anon., 1 W. R. 10; Dole v. Atkinson, 3 Jur. (N.S.) 41.

The court laid down the following rule for hearing short causes:—The certificate of plaintiff's counsel is a primâ facie ground for setting down the cause. The defendant, who has not consented, may appear, and if he can shew any fair reason why it should not be heard as a short cause, it will go into the general list; but otherwise it will be heard without the defendant's consent as a short cause. Felstead v. Gray, L. R. 18 Eq. 92.

22. Absence of Parties, their Solicitor or Counsel, 534.
23. Death of Parties, 536.

c. Practice, 536.

a. In what Cases.

In Penal Actions.]—The court has authority to, and will, grant a new trial in a penal action, though the verdict is for the defendant, where the court is satisfied that the verdict is in contravention of law, whether the error has arisen from the misdirection of the judge, or from a misapprehension of the law by the jury, or from a desire on their part to take the exposition of the law into their own hands. Att.-Gen. v. Rogers, 11 M. & W. 670; 2 D. (N.S.) 1037; 12 L. J., Ex. 395; 7 Jur. 704.

It is a settled rule of practice, that a rule nisi for a new trial is not granted on the ground of the verdict being against the evidence in an action on a penal statute where the defendant has obtained the verdict. Hall v. Green, 9 Ex. 247; 2 C. L. R. 427; 23 L. J., M. C. 15. S. P., Gough v. Hardman, 6 Jur. (N.S.) 402.

The court will grant a new trial in a penal action, on account of a mistake or misdirection of the judge. Wilson v. Rastall, 4 Term Rep. 753; 2 R. R. 515. S. P., Calcraft v. Gibbs, 5 Term Rep. 19. And see Rex v. Russell, 6 B. & C. 566; 9 D. & R. 566; 5 L. J. (O.S.) M. C. 80; 30 R. R. 432.

But not for any other cause. Brooke v. Middleton, 10 East, 268; 1 Camp. 450.

After a verdict for the defendant in a penal action, the court will not grant a new trial, where the verdict was contrary to the judge's direction, and founded on a mistake, if there has been no misconduct in the jury. Ranston v. Etteridge, 2 Chit. 273.

In Replevin.]—Where, in replevin, the plaintiff obtained a verdict, with damages 4*l.* 4*s.*, the court refused to grant a new trial, which was moved for on the ground that the verdict was against evidence, although it was insisted that the rule, as to trifling damages, could not apply to an action of this nature. Brown v. Ray, 9 Moore, 583.

In replevin, when the verdict is for the plaintiff, the court will not grant a new trial, even on payment of costs, without very clear grounds; for the landlord has other remedies for his rent, and a new trial would renew the liability of the sureties, and the plaintiff's risk of paying double costs. Parry v. Duncan, 7 Bing. 243; 5 M. & P. 19; M. & M. 533; 9 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 83.

Interpleader Issue.]—Granting a new trial on the ground of the verdict being against evidence applies to interpleader issues. Janes v. Whitbread, 2 L. M. & P. 407; 11 C. B. 406; 20 L. J., C. P. 217; 15 Jur. 612.

—— Application to what Court.]—Under the Rules of 1883, Ord. LVII., r. 11, where an interpleader issue has been tried by a jury, and judgment given according to their finding by the presiding judge, application for a new trial must be made to the court of appeal and not to the divisional court. Burstall v. Bryant, 12 Q. B. D. 103; 49 L. T. 712; 32 W. R. 495; 48 J. P. 119. But see next Case.

Where a party desires to obtain a new trial in an interpleader issue, the application must be made to a divisional court. If, in such a case, it is desired both to move for a new trial, and also to appeal, under Ord. XL., r. 5, both applications must be made in interpleader as in other cases, in the first instance, to a divisional court, from the judgment of which an appeal lies to the court of appeal. Robinson v. Tucker, 53 L. J., Q. B. 317; 14 Q. B. D. 371; 50 L. T. 380; 32 W. R. 697—C. A.

Seduction.]—In actions for seduction and cases of that description, the court will be careful not to grant a new trial, unless they feel that the interests of justice require it. Walker v. Entwisle, 1 L. T. 553.

Ejectment.]—A new trial will not be granted in an action for mesne profits after a recovery in ejectment. Holdfast v. Morris, 2 Wils. 115.

Writ of Inquiry—Application to what Court.]—Where, in an action in the high court to recover damages, the defendant does not appear, and a writ of inquiry issues to the sheriff to assess damages with a jury, if either party desires to question the assessment of damages the motion for a new writ of inquiry must be made to the court of appeal, under s. 1 of the Judicature Act, 1890, and not to the Queen's Bench Division. William Radam's Microbe Killer Co. v. Leather, 61 L. J., Q. B. 38; [1892] 1 Q. B. 85; 65 L. T. 604; 40 W. R. 83—C. A.

Trial before Official Referee—To what Court.]—Where there has been a trial before an official referee, a motion for a new trial must be made in the Queen's Bench Division, and not in the court of appeal. Gower v. Tobitt, 39 W. R. 193—C. A.

Compensation for Lands taken—Issue.]—The court has no power to grant a new trial of an issue directed under s. 41 of the Regulation of Railways Act, 1868, to determine the right of compensation for lands taken for the purposes of a railway. Birmingham Land Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry., 58 L. J., Q. B. 587; 22 Q. B. D. 435; 60 L. T. 317; 37 W. R. 285.

County Court—Action Remitted for Trial.]—Rr. 3 and 4 of Ord. XXXIX., and r. 1 of Ord. LII. (of 1883), have no application to cases sent for trial to a county court, under 19 & 20 Vict. c. 108, s. 26; applications for new trials, therefore, are still regulated by the old practice. Prichard v. Prichard, 54 L. J., Q. B. 30; 14 Q. B. D. 55; 51 L. T. 859; 33 W. R. 198.

See also COUNTY COURT.

In County Courts.]—See COUNTY COURT.

In Criminal Cases.]—See CRIMINAL LAW.

Verdict under 20*l.*]—It is the custom of the Queen's Bench Division not to grant a new trial on the ground that the verdict is against the weight of evidence where the damages do not exceed 20*l.*, except under peculiar circumstances, such as the trial of a right, or where the personal character of a person might be injured. Joyce v. Metropolitan Board of Works, 44 L. T. 811.

The rule of practice, limiting new trials to causes of action above 20*l.*, is founded on the reason that it must be purchased by payment of costs, and applies to the plaintiff and the defendant. The only exception is, where there has been a misdirection of the jury by the judge. Young v. Harrison, 2 C. & J. 14; 2 Tyr. 167; 1 L. J., Ex. 5.

The rule that a new trial will not be granted for either party where the sum given or recoverable is under 20*l.* does not apply to replevin. Edgson v. Cardwell, L. R. 8 C. P. 647; 28 L. T. 819.

A new trial will not be granted in hard or trifling actions after a verdict for the defendant, except for a misdirection of the judge, or where a point has been reserved. Brooke v. Middleton, 10 East, 268; 1 Camp. 450.

Where the judge misdirected the jury, by submitting for their consideration a fact not proved nor deducible from the evidence, the court granted a new trial, though the amount in question was less than 1*l.* Haine v. Davey, 4 A. & E. 892; 6 N. & M. 356; 2 H. & W. 30.

After a verdict for less than 20*l.*, a new trial is only granted where it can be granted without costs, e.g. for misdirection, and not where it could only be granted on payment of costs, e.g. for a verdict against evidence. Bryan v. Phillips, 3 Tyr. 181; 1 C. & M. 26.

Where a verdict is under 20*l.*, the court will not grant a new trial, although it be against evidence, and contrary to the opinion of the judge. Scott v. Watkins, 4 M. & P. 237; 8 L. J. (o.s.) C. P. 158. S. P., Roberts v. Karr, 1 Taunt. 495; 10 R. R. 592; Tarlington v. Starey, 7 W. R. 188.

Unless the conduct of the jury has been quite outrageous. Manning v. Underwood, M'Clel. & Y. 266. See Allum v. Boultbee, 9 Ex. 738; 2 C. L. R. 1072; 23 L. J., Ex. 208; 18 Jur. 406; 2 W. R. 459.

Where the verdict is perverse, the court will grant a new trial, although the damages are less than 20*l.* Freeman v. Price, 1 Y. & J. 402.

To an action claiming special damage for the non-delivery of goods within a reasonable time, the defendant, admitting negligence to have been the cause of the non-delivery, paid 10*l.* into court. The judge left it to the jury to say whether this sum was a sufficient compensation for the pecuniary loss the plaintiff had sustained, pointing out that the law did not entitle him to recover under some of the heads of his claim, and that on the evidence there was no pretence for saying that he had sustained any substantial loss. The jury having given a verdict for 5*l.* beyond the sum paid into court:—Held, that the amount of damages was a question for the jury, and had been properly left to them; and although the court might think the verdict wrong, and 10*l.* enough, yet the damages recovered being less than 20*l.*, the verdict could only be disturbed on the ground of its being perverse; and as the jury had not disobeyed any directions of the judge, the verdict could not be said to be perverse, and the court could not interfere to disturb it. Adams v. Midland Ry., 31 L. J., Ex. 35; 10 W. R. 84.

The rule, if the damages are under 20*l.*, applies to cases of surprise and to actions of trover. Banson v. Didsbury, 4 P. & D. 441; 12 A. & E. 631.

Where a verdict for the plaintiff is under 20*l.*, the circumstance that other actions depend on the result of such verdict is no reason for granting a new trial on the ground of its being against the evidence. Leese v. Sylvester, 12 L. J., C. P. 250.

Action for an injury to the plaintiff's reputation, by the sale by the defendant of gun-locks of an inferior fabric with the name of the plaintiff stamped thereon. The jury having returned a verdict for the defendant upon an issue on damages, ultra 5*l.* paid into court, on the ground that the sum paid into court covered the pecuniary damage actually sustained by the plaintiff, the court, on an application for a new trial, declined to interfere. Manton v. Bales, 1 C. B. 444.

Substantial Wrong or Miscarriage.]—Before exposing parties to the expense of a new trial, the court must be able to say that the verdict was manifestly wrong, and that there had been a gross miscarriage of justice. Jenkins v. Morris, 14 Ch. D. 674; 42 L. T. 817—C. A.

Novelty of Question.]—The novelty of the question at issue is an element to be taken into consideration in deciding whether a new trial should be granted or not. Metropolitan District Asylum v. Hill, 47 L. T. 29; 47 J. P. 148—H. L. (E.)

Questions of Value and Importance.]—Value and importance are not of themselves sufficient grounds for granting a new trial, unless there is also some doubt in the question, though they frequently weigh in obtaining a rule to shew cause why there should not be a new trial. Vernon v. Hankey, 2 Term Rep. 113; 1 R. R. 444.

Where there has been but a short time for investigating a question of real property, of a doubtful and obscure nature, and of great value, although conflicting evidence has been left to the jury, and the court does not think the verdict wrong, yet, if the inheritance is to be bound for over by the verdict, the court will grant a new trial on payment of costs. Swinnerton v. Stafford (Marquis), 3 Taunt. 91.

The court refused to grant a rule for a new trial in an action of trespass, on the ground that the verdict was against evidence, where the damages fell below 20*l*., though the case was stated to be of general importance, as relating to the boundaries of a jurisdiction. Sowell v. Champion, 6 A. & E. 407; 2 N. & P. 627; W., W. & D. 667.

The importance of the verdict to others besides the parties to the litigation is an element to be taken into consideration in deciding whether a new trial should be granted or not. Metropolitan District Asylum v. Hill, 47 L. T. 29; 47 J. P. 148—H. L. (E.)

Where there is no surprise and no miscarriage of justice, a new trial will not be granted on the ground that the verdict seriously affects the character of the applicant, he having been examined as a witness, although new evidence has been discovered tending to vindicate his character. Lewis v. Trussler, 2 C. L. R. 727. See Price v. Griffin, 1 Moll. 401; Shields v. Boucher, 1 De G. & Sm. 40.

Second or Third New Trial.]—There is no limit to the discretionary jurisdiction of the court in granting as many new trials as may seem to be proper, where the jury either mistake, or neglect, or abuse their duty, by finding from prejudice, &c. Lopez v. De Tastet, 8 Taunt. 712.

But where there are two contrary verdicts, and the latter is satisfactory to the court, the losing party is not entitled by any rule or practice to a third trial. Parker v. Ansel, 2 W. Bl. 963.

Although it would be otherwise after two concurring verdicts. Goodwin v. Gibbons, 4 Burr. 2108.

In an action on a policy of insurance, a verdict was found for the plaintiff. A new trial was granted, on the ground that this verdict was contrary to the weight of the evidence; the plaintiff again had a verdict, upon the same evidence. On application for a third trial:—Held, that this second verdict ought not to be disturbed, as this would amount to superseding the functions of the jury, and should only be granted in a case of perverseness; Vaughan, J., and Coltman, J., dissentientibus. Foster v. Steele, 3 Bing. (N.C.) 892; 5 Scott, 25; 3 Hodges, 231; 6 L. J., C. P. 265.

In a case involving no question of law, the plaintiff's claim was supported almost exclusively by his own testimony, and was encountered by circumstantial evidence on the part of the defendant. A common jury having found for the plaintiff, a new trial was granted on affidavits disclosing fresh evidence. At the second trial this evidence was adduced, but the second jury (a special one) found for the plaintiff. The judge certifying that the verdict was "a very wrong verdict," the court granted a third trial, on the ground of its being against the weight of evidence. Davies v. Roper, 2 Jur. (N.S.) 167.

Where the circumstances of a case had been fully put into the possession of a jury, who had twice found a verdict the same way, although there was conflicting evidence, and although the judge who last tried the cause thought the evidence against the verdict preponderated, the court refused to grant a second new trial on the same ground. Swinnerton v. Stafford (Marquis), 3 Taunt. 232.

Where a defendant on two successive trials of the same cause of action obtained a verdict, the court set aside the last verdict, and entered a nonsuit, in order that the plaintiff, who claimed title to property which savoured of the realty, might not be for ever concluded from agitating his right. Lee v. Shore, 2 D. & R. 198; 1 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 48; 25 R. R. 317.

So, after a verdict found for the defendant, the court will, in its discretion, order a nonsuit to be entered, in order that the plaintiff may not be precluded from bringing another action. Hodgson v. Forster, 2 D. & R. 221; 1 B. & C. 110; 1 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 35.

By Inferior Courts.]—Inferior courts have, generally speaking, no right to grant new trials without the aid of a statutory power to do so. G. N. Ry. v. Mossop, 17 C. B. 130; 25 L. J., C. P. 22; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 21; 4 W. R. 116.

An inferior court cannot grant a new trial, except on the ground of fraud, or irregularity in obtaining the verdict. Rex v. Oxford Corporation, 3 N. & M. 877.

b. For what Cause.

1. Excessive Damages.

Principles governing.]—In an action ex delicto in the nature of an action of libel, a new trial ought not to be granted on the ground that the damages are excessive, unless the court comes to the conclusion, upon all the circumstances, that the damages awarded by the jury are so large that no twelve reasonable men could have given them. Praed v. Graham, 59 L. J., Q. B. 230; 24 Q. B. D. 53; 38 W. R. 103—C. A.

While giving evidence at a police court in London, a witness named D. stated that H., an Irish Member of Parliament, was not an "Invincible." This was correctly reported in the "Evening Irish Times," of which, as well as the "Irish Times" (a Dublin daily morning paper), A. was proprietor. But in several London daily papers, and in the next issue of the "Irish Times," D. was represented as having said that H. was an "Invincible" (this being admittedly the name by which members of a criminal association were known). In an action for this libel by H. against A., his manager and editor, in which the defendants paid 50*l*. into court, with an apology, the jury found that the libel was inserted by gross negligence, and that the apology was not full. They were unable to agree upon the question whether the libel was inserted with actual malice, and the court was of opinion that a finding in the affirmative would have been against the weight of evidence. The jury found a verdict for 1,000*l*., which the judge at the trial considered excessive:—Held, that there was no reasonable proportion between the damages and the circumstances of the case, and that the verdict should be set aside, on the ground of excessive damages. Harris v. Arnott, 26 L. R., Ir. 55—C. A.

In an action for libel, the determining of the amount of damages is essentially for the jury. In no such case will the court interfere unless it appears clearly that the jury have given their verdict from vindictive or improper feelings. Where no such considerations exist, the verdict will not be disturbed. The amount awarded might be so large as to suggest that it might be excessive, but this must depend on the circumstances of each particular case. Roberts v. Owen, 53 J. P. 502.

Where a plaintiff had obtained against a railway company a verdict with damages, sustained by reason of an accident to a train in which he was a passenger, and a new trial was ordered by the court of Queen's Bench on the ground alone of excessive damages, the finding as to negligence by the defendant company being approved by two courts:—Held, that inasmuch as there had been no misdirection, the judge having put to the jury whether all was done which was reasonably and practically possible under the circumstances of the case, and inasmuch as the damages were not of such an excessive character as to shew that the jury had either been influenced by improper motives or led into error, there ought not to be a new trial. Lambkin v. S. E. Ry., 5 App. Cas. 352; 28 W. R. 837—P. C.

To induce the court to grant a new trial on the ground of excessive damages, it must be shewn that they are very excessive, or that a perverted view of the case has been taken by the jury. Edgell v. Francis, 1 Man. & G. 222.

The court will not grant a new trial on the ground that the damages are excessive, unless it is very manifest that the jury in assessing them have either been actuated by an improper motive, or that they have proceeded on a wrong principle. Creed v. Fisher, 9 Ex. 472; 23 L. J., Ex. 143; 18 Jur. 228. S. P., Smith v. Woodfine, 1 C. B. (N.S.) 660.

A verdict for damages will not be set aside and a new trial granted on the ground that the damages are excessive, unless the court comes to the conclusion that there was no reasonable proportion between the damages and the facts of the case. The court will be reluctant to set aside a verdict in an action of tort on the ground that the damages are excessive, where there is evidence of malice, and the nature of the case is such that malice is a legitimate consideration for the jury in assessment of damages. Reeves v. Penrose, 26 L. R., Ir. 141.

The court will not, in an action for a breach of promise of marriage, grant a new trial on the ground of excessive damages unless they are so large as to induce the court to infer that the jury was actuated by undue motives, or acted upon a misconception of the facts. Gough v. Farr, 1 Y. & J. 477.

The court may, in any case, grant a new trial upon the ground of excessive damages. Ducker v. Wood, 1 Term Rep. 277.

And there is no species of action in which the court will not grant a new trial for excessive damages, if the circumstances require it. Hewlett v. Crutchley, 5 Taunt. 277.

Even in trespass for assault and battery. Jones v. Sparrow, 5 Term. Rep. 257. S. P., Goldsmith v. Sefton (Lord), 3 Anst. 808.

But in personal torts the court will look narrowly into the circumstances, as they very rarely grant a new trial for excessive damages. Fabrigas v. Mostyn, 2 W. Bl. 929.

The jury are the proper judges of damages, and when they have once decided, the court will not in general disturb the verdict, unless they have taken into consideration matters out of the declaration or form of action; or, in matters which admit of certain estimation, they have extravagantly, or through prejudice, exceeded such measure. Gilbert v. Birkinsham, Lofft, 771; Cowp. 230.

In an action for a personal injury arising from indisputable negligence, the injury being permanent, and recovery apparently hopeless, the court will not reduce the damages if the judge is not dissatisfied with the verdict. Britton v. South Wales Ry., 27 L. J., Ex. 355.

Except in case of outrageous damages. Sharpe v. Brice, 2 W. Bl. 942. S. P., Leith v. Pope, 2 W. Bl. 1327.

To render damages excessive, the amount should be such that no reasonable proportion exists between it and the circumstances of the case. M'Grath v. Bourne, Ir. R. 10 C. L. 160.

In an action for false imprisonment, a new trial will be granted upon the ground of excessive damages if, in the opinion of the court, they are enormous and excessive. Corkery v. Hickson, Ir. R. 10 C. L. 174.

Illustrations.]—In actions for tort the court will not interfere with the damages found by the jury, unless they appear to be grossly disproportioned to the injury sustained. Williams v. Currie, 1 C. B. 841.

Where, therefore, a landlord caused considerable injury to the crops of his tenant, by selling, felling, and removing timber without applying for leave to enter, and the jury assessed the damages at 300*l.*, the court refused to interfere, although the net value of the entire crops did not exceed 200*l.* Ib.

In trover for a diamond necklace, some of the diamonds composing it were traced to the defendant. The jury found a verdict against him, with damages to the amount of the value of the whole necklace. Upon an affidavit to reduce the damages to the value of the brilliants actually traced to him, he did not swear in terms that he never had possession of the whole necklace. Affidavit held insufficient. Mortimer v. Cradock, 12 L. J., C. P. 166; 7 Jur. 45.

300*l.* are not necessarily excessive damages for a few hours' imprisonment. Leeman v. Allen, 2 Wils. 160.

So 250*l.* are not excessive damages for a malicious prosecution for nuisances. Farmer v. Darling, 4 Burr. 1971.

In an action for diverting a watercourse, where the jury, under circumstances of aggravation, gave 3,000*l.* damages, the court granted a new trial on the ground that the damages given greatly exceeded the amount of the injury proved; but they directed that the former verdict should stand as a security in the meantime for the damages which might be given on the second trial. Pleydell v. Dorchester (Earl), 7 Term Rep. 529.

An action for negligence was brought by a child of seven years old, by his next friend, to recover damages for injuries done to him by the horse of the defendant. The jury found a verdict for 150*l.* Nine days after the trial the child died. Judgment was afterwards signed by the next friend. An application for a new trial was then made, on the ground of the death of the plaintiff since the trial:—Held, that although the damages were presumably given on the supposition that the child would continue to live, the case was not one in which the court would grant a new trial. Kramer v. Waymark, 4 H. & C. 427; 35 L. J., Ex. 148; L. R. 1 Ex. 241; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 395; 14 L. T. 368; 14 W. R. 659.

In estimating the damages for breach of promise to marry where the defendant has seduced the plaintiff, the jury may take into consideration that her prospect of marrying has become less by reason of such seduction, and the mortification to her feelings in ceasing to be a respected member of her family. The court will not interfere with the discretion of the jury as to the amount of damages, if they have not acted in error, or from misconception, or from undue motives. Berry v. Da Costa, 1 H. & R. 291 ; 35 L. J., C. P. 191 ; L. R. 1 C. P. 331 ; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 588 ; 14 W. R. 279. S. P., Tullidge v. Wade, 3 Wils. 18.

The question of damages is so peculiarly the province of the jury that the court will not in an action for seduction set aside a verdict on the ground of excessive damages, even if they appear disproportioned to the condition of the plaintiff, and where the court might not in itself have awarded them so liberally. Evans v. Davies, 17 W. R. 679.

Where a jury had given 750*l.* in an action for defamation for words spoken of a beneficed clergyman to his curate, a new trial was refused on the ground that damages were excessive. Highmore v. Harrington, 3 C. B. (N.S.) 142.

3,500*l.* having been awarded by a jury as damages, in an action against an attorney for breach of promise of marriage, the court refused to set aside the verdict on the ground that the damages were excessive. Wood v. Hurd, 2 Bing. (N.C.) 166.

The plaintiff, a person in a humble station of life, had a relation, a lady of fortune, residing at the defendant's house. The plaintiff being importunate in his demands for relief, and refusing to leave the premises, the defendant ordered a constable to take him into custody, which he did, and the plaintiff remained in custody at an inn. On the following morning he was brought before the defendant, who offered him two sovereigns, which the plaintiff accepted. The defendant also gave him money to pay for the hire of a horse and refreshment. In an action for false imprisonment, the jury having found a verdict for the plaintiff, with 100*l.* damages, the court considered them to be excessive, and directed a new trial. Price v. Severn, 5 M. & P. 125 ; 7 Bing. 316 ; 9 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 99.

Power of Court to Reduce.]—In a case where the plaintiff is entitled to substantial damages, and a verdict for the plaintiff cannot be impeached, except on the ground that the damages are excessive, the court has power to refuse a new trial, on the plaintiff alone, and without the defendant, consenting to the damages being reduced to such an amount as the court would consider not excessive had they been given by the jury. Belt v. Lawes, 53 L. J., Q. B. 249 ; 12 Q. B. D. 356 ; 50 L. T. 441 ; 32 W. R. 607—C. A.

The defendant published in a newspaper several libels of the plaintiff, who brought an action thereon. The defendant, in his defence, denied that he published the words complained of in the defamatory sense alleged, and as to one of the libels paid a nominal sum into court. The cause of action in respect of which the money was paid in was the same as that set out in other paragraphs of the statement of claim with a different innuendo. The jury found a verdict for 50*l.* on the paragraph in respect of which the money was paid in, and 3,000*l.* in respect of the rest of the statement of claim :—Held, that verdict and judgment should stand for 3,000*l.*, but that a remittitur damnum should be entered as to the 50*l.* Bolton v. O'Brien, 16 L. R., Ir. 483—C. A. See Leeson v. Smith, 4 N. & M. 304.

2. Inadequacy of Damages.

It is a general rule, that the court will not set aside a verdict in an action of tort, on account of the smallness of the damages. Mauricet v. Brecknock, 2 Dougl. 509.

The jury having given a verdict for only 20*s.* in an action for slander, the court refused to grant a new trial at the instance of the plaintiff. Rendall v. Hayward, 5 Bing. (N.C.) 424 ; 7 Scott, 407 ; 2 Arn. 14 ; 8 L. J., C. P. 243 ; 3 Jur. 363.

In an action for slander, a new trial will not be granted on the ground that the damages are inadequate, unless there has been a mistake in point of law on the part of the judge, or a mistake in the calculation of figures or misconduct by the jury. Forsdike v. Stone, 37 L. J., C. P. 301 ; L. R. 3 C. P. 607. See Kelly v. Sherlock, 6 B. & S. 480 ; 35 L. J., Q. B. 209 ; L. R. 1 Q. B. 686 ; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 937.

In an action for injury by negligence of the defendant's servant, the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, with one farthing damages, though it appeared that the plaintiff's thigh was broken, and that he had paid 10*l.* for surgical attendance. The court granted a new trial on account of the lowness of the damages. Armitage v. Haley, 4 Q. B. 917 ; D. & M. 139 ; 12 L. J., Q. B. 323 ; 7 Jur. 671. S. P., Tedd v. Douglas, 5 Jur. (N.S.) 1029.

The court refused, in an action for the negligent construction of a building whereby it fell and injured the plaintiff, to grant a new trial, on the ground that the jury had given merely nominal damages, there being no reason for supposing them to have been actuated by improper motives. Howard v. Barnard, 11 C. B. 653.

So, in an action against a surgeon for negligence, whereby the plaintiff lost his leg, a verdict being found for him, with nominal damages, the court refused to grant a new trial, the judge having expressed himself satisfied with the verdict. Gibbs v. Tunaley, 1 C. B. 640.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground that from the small amount of damages the jury must have come to a compromise, unless, from the circumstances of the case, it is evident that there has been a total refusal on the part of the jury to discharge their duty, and the verdict is necessarily wholly inconsistent. Richards v. Rose, 2 Ex. 218 ; 23 L. J., Ex. 3.

The court refused to grant a rule for a new trial on the ground of the insufficiency of the damages, where the jury had given only one farthing, in an action for taking the plaintiff before a magistrate on an unfounded charge of felony, merely because a question of character was involved. Apps v. Day, 14 C. B. 112.

In an action for negligently driving against and killing a horse proved to be worth 30*l.*, the jury, there being strong evidence to negative negligence on the part of the defendant, and some evidence the other way, contrary to the opinion of the judge, found for the plaintiff, damages 15*l.* The court refused to grant a new trial on the ground of the verdict being perverse. Hawkins v. Alder, 18 C. B. 640.

Where the defendants lost a verdict through the negligence of their attorney, and the verdict was for 7*l.*, one of the defendants having been in court during the trial :—The court refused to grant a new trial, on the grounds of the smallness of the sum, and the presence of the defendant in court, where he might have heard the whole of the evidence. Watson v. Reeves, 5 Bing. (N.C.)

112; 6 Scott, 783; 7 D. P. C. 127; 1 Arn. 388; 8 L. J., C. P. 36; 2 Jur. 991.

In an action for slander imputing that the plaintiff had committed perjury, the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff, damages one farthing. The verdict was not satisfactory to the judge who tried the cause:—Held, that there ought to be a new trial, inasmuch as the amount of the damages seemed to have been arrived at by a compromise without duly weighing the circumstances of the case. Fulvey v. Stanford, 44 L. J., Q. B. 7; L. R. 10 Q. B. 54; 31 L. T. 677; 23 W. R. 162.

At the trial of an action for serious personal injuries, caused by the defendant's negligence, the defendant produced no witnesses, the jury assessed the damages at one shilling, and the judge did not express any dissatisfaction with their finding; the majority of the court being of opinion, upon the evidence, that the amount of damages bore no reasonable proportion to the nature of the injuries, and inferring therefrom that the jury had not estimated the damages at all:—Held, that the verdict should be set aside, and a new trial granted. Beattie v. Moore, 2 L. R., Ir. 28.

A new trial will be granted, in an action for personal injuries sustained through the defendants' negligence, where the damages found by the jury are so small as to shew that they must have omitted to take into consideration some of the elements of damage. Phillips v. L. & S. W. Ry., 49 L. J., Q. B. 233; 5 Q. B. D. 78; 41 L. T. 121; 28 W. R. 10—C. A.

Where in an action of contract the damages are not mere matter of computation, and there is any view upon which the jury might not unreasonably consider that there was a breach of contract, but no substantial damage, a verdict for the plaintiff for merely nominal damages will not, especially if the matter in dispute is only a small sum, be set aside. Nichol v. Bestwick, 28 L. J., Ex. 4.

In an action against a bailee for injury to and destruction of goods, the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff, with nominal damages:—Held, that it was no ground for a new trial that, according to the evidence, the damage, if any, must have been more than nominal, and that there was uncontradicted evidence of a loss of goods to the extent of 2*l*. Mostyn v. Coles, 7 H. & N. 872; 31 L. J., Ex. 151; 10 W. R. 355.

It is no ground for a new trial, in an action for an assault and false imprisonment, that the plaintiff had incurred an expense of 7*l*. 14*s*. in procuring his discharge from custody, and the jury has awarded him a farthing only. Bradlaugh v. Edwards, 11 C. B. (N.S.) 377.

3. Absence of Evidence at the Trial.

If evidence, which either was in the possession of the parties at the time of a trial, or might by proper diligence have been procured, is not produced at the trial, and the case is decided adversely to the side for which the evidence was available, no opportunity for producing that evidence ought to be given by granting a new trial. Shedden v. Att.-Gen., L. R. 1 H. L. (Sc.) 470, 545; 22 L. T. 631.

A new trial is never granted on the ground that a party did not give evidence which he might have produced. Cooke v. Berry, 1 Wils. 98.

Nor to let the party into a defence of which he was apprised at the first trial. Vernon v. Hankey, 2 Term Rep. 113; 1 R. R. 444.

A plaintiff having been nonsuited for not producing a document on the trial, the court set aside the nonsuit on payment of costs, upon an affidavit only of his attorney, that he, the attorney, "as soon as he found that the action was likely to come on," commenced inquiries to ascertain in whose hand the document was, and, upon discovering this, immediately (through a person who promised to procure it) made efforts to obtain it, but obtained it too late for the trial, and now had it. Atkins v. Owen, 4 A. & E. 819; 2 H. & W. 59; 6 N. & M. 229.

Where a plaintiff had been nonsuited on the ground of the nonproduction of a bill of exchange, the court granted a new trial, upon an affidavit stating that the bill had been out of the jurisdiction of the court; had been sent for in due time, but not received until too late for the trial; and that it was then in the plaintiff's possession. Atkins v. Owen, 4 N. & M. 123.

After a full trial by a competent jury, if no fresh light can be thrown in, a new trial will not be granted. Camden v. Cowley, 1 W. Bl. 418.

So, if there appears on the whole evidence enough to sustain the verdict found, independently of the facts brought into doubt, the court will not interfere and order a new trial, although the right is bound. Hartwright v. Badham, 11 Price, 383.

But if the question has never been fully before the jury, a new trial will be granted. Rex v. Malden, 4 Burr. 2135.

The court will not grant a new trial to let in evidence negativing the consent of a minor's parent in an action depending on the validity of a marriage, when that evidence might have been produced at the first trial. Doe d. James v. Price, 1 M. & Ry. 683; 6 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 157.

Counsel's Discretion.]—A new trial will not be granted because the counsel thought it prudent to omit evidence which they had in their briefs. Spong v. Hogg, 2 W. Bl. 802.

For a client is bound by the conduct of his advocate; and the court will not grant a new trial on the ground that the witnesses were not examined by counsel according to the request of the attorney engaged in the cause. Hall v. Stothard, 2 Chit. 267.

So, if the leading counsel takes one line of case, contrary to the opinion of his junior counsel, the court will not permit the junior counsel to obtain a new trial, upon the ground that he was prepared with evidence to support another line of case, which his leader repudiated. Pickering v. Dowson, 4 Taunt. 779.

Absence of Witnesses.]—The absence of a witness is no ground for a new trial: application ought to be made to postpone the trial. Edwards v. Dignam, 2 D. P. C. 642.

If a witness who is necessary to the plaintiff's case is not sent for in time, owing to the fraudulent management of the defendant's attorney in negotiating, till too late for the plaintiff to procure his presence at the assizes, the plaintiff should apply to the judge at nisi prius to put off the trial, and if refused, should withdraw the record; but he must not take his chance of success, for, if nonsuited, the court will not grant a new trial. Turquand v. Dawson, 1 C. M. & R. 709; 5 Tyr. 488.

A rule for a new trial will not be granted on affidavits alleging that a material witness has been prevented from attending the trial, without shewing grounds for a belief that the successful party is implicated in such misconduct; and it will not suffice to state merely a belief that the witness has been kept away at his instance. Marsh v. Monckton, 1 Tyr. & G. 34.

The court granted a new trial, on payment of costs, where the plaintiff had been nonsuited, in an action against the acceptor of a bill of exchange, by reason of the accidental absence of the witnesses subpœnaed by him to prove the handwriting of the defendant. Shillito v. Theed, 4 M. & P. 575; 6 Bing. 753; 8 L. J. (o.s.) C. P. 293.

Where a new trial is applied for on the ground of absence of a material witness, affidavits must be produced to the court, explaining the cause of the witness's absence, and stating in distinct terms that there is a good defence to the action on the merits. Flooks v. Marriott, 7 L. T. 363; 11 W. R. 121.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of the absence of a material witness, when the proceedings have been regular and the applicant does not clearly shew merits. Dunn v. Edwards, 19 L. T. 394. See King v. Kelk, 20 L. T. 974.

A rule having been obtained to set aside a nonsuit, upon the ground that the defendant had, as it was alleged, prevented two or three co-plaintiffs from giving evidence, by bribery, it was not made to appear that the co-plaintiffs said to have been kept away could have given any material evidence, or that any steps had been taken to procure their attendance, and the rule was discharged. Beale v. Martin, 12 W. R. 135.

4. Discovery of New Evidence.

A new trial was granted on affidavits disclosing a conspiracy by the plaintiff to defraud the defendants, an insurance company, by setting fire to his house, which they had endeavoured, but had not had sufficient evidence, to prove at the trial. Thurtell v. Beaumont, 8 Moore, 612; 1 Bing. 339; 2 L. J. (o.s.) C. P. 4; 25 R. R. 644.

The discovery of new witnesses to impeach the testimony of a witness examined on the former trial is not sufficient ground to grant a new trial. Dickenson v. Blake, 7 Bro. P. C. 177.

Discovery of new evidence by the attorney of an executor defendant (then absent from England), though in the actual custody of the attorney himself, yet not known by him so to be, is a ground for a new trial. Broadhead v. Marshall, 2 W. Bl. 955.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of the discovery of fresh evidence unless the proposed fresh evidence is such that there is a reasonable probability that if brought before a jury, a different verdict to that in the former trial would be given. Anderson v. Titmas, 36 L. T. 711.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of newly-discovered evidence, if it appears that the party might by reasonable diligence have procured the evidence for the former trial. Caldwell v. Johnston, Ir. R. 6 C. L. 233.

A new trial of an ejectment was granted when a verdict had been found for the defendant, where the lessor of the plaintiff had, since the trial, discovered that they had conclusive evidence of a material fact (the marriage of their ancestor), which they failed to prove at the trial, in consequence of mistaking the christian name of the person to whom the ancestor had been married, and where it was expected that they might be obliged to enter, to avoid a fine intended to be levied before a new ejectment could be brought; but they would only do so on the terms of payment of the costs of the former trial. Weak d. Burge v. Callaway, 7 Price, 677; 21 R. R. 780.

A bill in equity to set aside a verdict is not sustainable, where the facts on which the bill is founded, though discovered since the trial, might have been established at the trial upon cross-examination. Taylor v. Sheppard, 1 Y. & Coll. 271.

Papers which were in the possession of the party, and which with due diligence might have been produced, are not in the nature of evidence subsequently discovered. Dixon v. Graham, 5 Dow, 267.

Where, upon the trial of an issue, the evidence of a material witness, being uncorroborated, and being in other respects unsatisfactory, has been discredited by the judge, and the jury have given a verdict against the party producing that witness, the court, upon being satisfied, by affidavits filed since the trial, that the evidence of the witness may be substantially corroborated, will grant a new trial. Shields v. Boucher, 1 De G. & Sm. 40. See Lewis v. Trussler, 2 C. L. R. 727; Price v. Griffin, 1 Moll. 401.

5. Perjury, Forgery, or Conspiracy.

A new trial will be granted where the witnesses, upon whose testimony the verdict was obtained, have been since convicted of perjury. Benfield v. Petrie, 3 Dougl. 24.

But the mere finding an indictment for perjury before conviction is no ground. Seeley v. Mayhew, 4 Bing. 561.

In a testamentary suit the jury, being unable to agree, was discharged without giving a verdict. The question in dispute, the capacity of the deceased, was afterwards referred to a second jury, who found in the affirmative and for the plaintiff. Application was made for a new trial on the ground of the verdict being against the weight of evidence, but it was refused. Subsequently the plaintiff was convicted of perjury in reference to the evidence he gave in the suit: —Held, that that circumstance was not in itself sufficient to justify the court in allowing a new trial after an application with that object had been rejected. Davies v. Brecknell, 42 L. J., P. 39; L. R. 3 P. 88; 28 L. T. 604.

Where the evidence is positive, although evidently by perjury, the court will not in the first instance grant a new trial; but leave the party to his remedy by indictment for perjury. Wheatley v. Edwards, Lofft, 87.

An affidavit by the defendant that the plaintiff's witnesses had been guilty of perjury is no ground for a new trial in an action for an assault. Proctor v. Simmons, 9 Moore, 581.

The court will not grant a new trial on the ground that a principal witness has been indicted for perjury. Hampshire v. Harris, 3 Jur. 980.

A new trial will be granted if subornation of witnesses has been discovered since the former trial. Fabrillius v. Cock, 3 Burr. 1771.

Bill for a new trial; plaintiff suggesting that the mark to the bond was forged by one W., and all the pretended witnesses to the bond were dead, and that the verdict was recovered by surprise: a new trial ordered. Coddrington v. Webb, 2 Vern. 240.

If a witness be convicted of perjury, or the party of forgery, it is good cause for a new trial. Tilly v. Wharton, 2 Vern. 379.

Where the grand jury had found a true bill against the plaintiff for conspiring to defraud the defendants in an action, a new trial was refused. Thurtell v. Beaumont, 8 Moore, 612; 1 Bing. 339; 2 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 4; 25 R. R. 644.

6. False or Mistaken Testimony.

The court will not generally grant a new trial on the ground that a witness became agitated and confused during the examination, and gave his evidence contrary to truth, from the effects of a sudden paralytic affection. Richards v. Hammond, M'Clel. 179.

Where the plaintiff's attorney swore to a conversation with a witness for the defendant, who had denied ever speaking to him, and, upon a verdict being found for the plaintiff, the judge committed the witness for perjury; the attorney having afterwards stated to the judge that he might have been mistaken, the court granted a new trial, and directed the costs of the former trial to be paid by the attorney. Truebody v. Brain, 9 Price, 77.

So the court granted a new trial on an affidavit of a material witness that he had made a mistake in giving his testimony. Richardson v. Fisher, 7 Moore, 546; 1 Bing. 145; 24 R. R. 690.

A misstatement by one of the plaintiff's witnesses, on a matter foreign to the question at issue between the parties, is no ground for a new trial. Magnay v. Knight, 1 Man. & G. 944.

Where a plaintiff was nonsuited because an agreement appeared by the defendant's evidence to contain more than the proper number of words for the stamp it bore, but it afterwards turned out that the witness called at the trial had miscounted the number of words: the court granted a new trial on affidavit of that fact. Dudley (Lord) v. Robins, 3 Car. & P. 26.

The mere contradiction of witnesses is not alone a sufficient ground for a new trial, although the judge directed the jury contrary to their finding. Sprague v. Michell, 2 Chit. 271.

Nor the mere affidavit of one party contradicting the witnesses on the other side. Feise v. Parkinson, 4 Taunt. 640; 13 R. R. 710.

If the testimony of witnesses on which a verdict has proceeded is founded on and derives its credit from particular circumstances, and those circumstances are afterwards clearly falsified by affidavit, the court will grant a new trial. Lister v. Mundell, 1 Bos. & P. 427.

In an action for negligence the plaintiff denied at the trial that he had said that the accident was caused by his own negligence. New trial so as to give the defendant an opportunity of shewing that the plaintiff had said so, refused. Pistrucci v. Turner, 5 W. R. 85.

7. Examination and Rejection of Witnesses.

An objection to the competency of witnesses discovered after a trial is not a sufficient ground of itself to grant a new trial; but it may have some weight with the court, where the party applying appears to have merits. Turner v. Pearte, 1 Term Rep. 717.

It is no ground for a new trial that a witness called to prove a certain fact was rejected on a supposed ground of incompetency, where another witness who was called established the same fact, which was not disputed by the other side; and the defence proceeded upon a collateral point, upon which the verdict turned. Edwards v. Evans, 3 East, 451.

The improper rejection of a witness as incompetent is ground for a new trial since the 14 & 15 Vict. c. 90. Boyle v. Wiseman, 3 C. L. R. 482; 10 Ex. 647; 24 L. J., Ex. 160; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 115; 3 W. R. 206.

The court refused to grant a rule nisi for a new trial where a person (not originally intended to be examined) who was in court, and who had been there during the trial, was called to give evidence, and was not allowed to be examined on that ground. Att.-Gen. v. Bulpit, 9 Price, 4; 23 R. R. 637.

On an application for a new trial on the ground that a witness who described himself by a false name at the trial, and was sworn on the New Testament as a Christian, was at that time a Jew and attended the synagogue:—Held, that the objection was too late, and that the oath, as taken, subjected the witness to the consequences of perjury if he had sworn falsely. Sells v. Hoare, 3 Br. & B. 232; 7 Moore, 36.

The court will not grant a new trial on the ground of a refusal by the judge to allow a witness to be called after the case had been closed, unless it is made out very clearly indeed that the judge in refusing has wrongfully exercised his discretion. Middleton v. Barned, 18 L. J., Ex. 433.

Where an attorney gives evidence after opening the case as advocate a new trial will be granted. Dunn v. Packwood, 1 B. C. Rep. 312; 11 Jur. 242. S. P., Stones v. Byron, 4 D. & L. 393; 1 B. C. Rep. 248; 16 L. J., Q. B. 32; 11 Jur. 44. But see Cobbett v. Hudson, 1 El. & Bl. 11; 22 L. J., Q. B. 11; 17 Jur. 488; 1 W. R. 54.

It is no ground for a new trial that the plaintiff having been asked while under cross-examination whether he was the author of a pamphlet which contained expressions of opinion on religious subjects altogether at variance with those generally received amongst Christians, and having declined to answer on the ground that his answer in the affirmative might subject him to a criminal prosecution, the counsel for the defendant was permitted for a considerable time (obviously with a view to prejudice the plaintiff with the jury) to read various passages of a similar tendency from other printed documents, each time repeating the inquiry whether the plaintiff was the author, or whether the passage read expressed his notions on the subject, the jury being entitled to have before them all the facts and circumstances from which they might be enabled to judge of the degree of credit due to the party as a witness. Bradlaugh v. Edwards, 11 C. B. (N.S.) 377.

8. Improper Admission of Evidence.

The court will not permit a party to move for a new trial on an objection to the applicability of evidence, unless the objection was taken before the judge commenced his summing up. Abbott v. Parsons, 7 Bing. 563; 5 M. & P. 521.

The court will not grant a new trial on the ground that evidence has been admitted which ought to have been rejected, if, exclusive of such evidence, there is enough to warrant the finding of the jury. Doe d. Teynham (Lord) v. Tyler, 6 Bing. 561; 4 M. & P. 377; 8 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 222; 31 R. R. 496. But see Hodson v. Midland Great Western Ry., Ir. R. 11 C. L. 109.

Where improper evidence is received and a verdict given for the party adducing it, the court will grant a new trial, although there is no other evidence on the same point in favour of the same party, unless they see clearly that the improper evidence could not have weighed with the jury, or that the verdict, if given the other way, would have been set aside as against evidence. Wright v. Doe d. Tatham, 7 A. & E. 313. S. P., De Rutzen v. Farr, 4 A. & E. 53; 5 N. & M. 617; 1 H. & W. 735; 5 L. J., K. B. 38.

Where, in ejectment, evidence was received in favour of the plaintiff which was inadmissible, but all objections and exceptions were reserved for the opinion of the court by the consent of both parties:—Held, that the defendant was not entitled to a new trial without payment of costs, on the ground of the reception of this evidence, if the legal evidence admitted shewed the title to be in the lessors of the plaintiff; as, upon such a reservation, the court is called upon to decide whether the lessors of the plaintiff are entitled to recover or not. Doe d. Gilbert v. Ross, 7 M. & W. 102.

Where an objection is taken to the admissibility of evidence, but such objection is not afterwards pressed, and no subsequent application is made to have it struck out, the circumstance of its having gone to the jury is no ground for a new trial, even though it should appear in the result to have been on particular grounds open to objection. Ferrand v. Milligan, 15 L. J., Q. B. 103; 10 Jur. 6.

The improper reception of evidence when the fact is fully proved aliundè is no ground for a new trial. Stindt v. Roberts, 5 D. & L. 460.

The mere fact of a document being admitted, though not legal evidence, the items enumerated in which were proved by other evidence, is no ground for granting a new trial. Stindt v. Roberts, 2 B. C. Rep. 212; 17 L. J., Q. B. 166; 12 Jur. 518.

When evidence legitimately admitted in the course of a cause raises a latent ambiguity, evidence to explain that is properly admissible; but if there is, in truth, no latent ambiguity, and the evidence to explain is consequently inadmissible, still the improper admission of such evidence would not be a ground for a new trial, because the writing would then be for the court to construe without regard to the evidence. Bruff v. Conybeare, 13 C. B. (N.S.) 263; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 78.

In an action for false imprisonment, where a verdict with 200*l.* damages was given for one night's confinement in a prison, evidence of a trespass by the defendant on the goods of the plaintiff arising out of the same transaction committed on the following day, was admitted for the purpose of shewing that the defendant was actuated by malice:—Held, to be no ground for granting a new trial. Edgell v. Francis, 1 Man. & G. 222.

A new trial will not be granted for evidence prematurely admitted, but which becomes admissible in the course of a trial. Faund v. Wallace, 35 L. T. 361.

In an action against the defendant for non-payment of money for a machine, the defence was that the machine was faulty in its construction. In opening the case the plaintiff's counsel, in order to shew that the defence was not bonâ fide, proposed to read in evidence a letter written by W., the defendant's son, who had the management of the machine, and alone corresponded with the plaintiff. Subsequently W., who was in court, was called as a witness by the defendant, but was asked no question; the judge then ruled that the letter was receivable in evidence against the defendant. A verdict was found for the plaintiff, and the defendant having applied for a new trial:—Held, that whether or not the evidence was admissible in the first instance, it subsequently became so by W. being called as a witness, and the fact that W. was not examined by the party calling him, nor asked whether he had acted bonâ fide, made no difference. Ib.

Under Ord. XXXIX. r. 3, the court may refuse a new trial on the ground of the improper admission of evidence, although a rule nisi has been obtained before the Judicature Acts came into operation. Earp v. Faulkner, 34 L. T. 284; 24 W. R. 774.

A verdict ought not to be disturbed for the reception of illegal evidence which had no effect whatever upon the result of the trial. M'Creesh v. McGeough, Ir. R. 7 C. L. 236.

In trespass quare clausum fregit, on a plea of a right over the locus in quo, a witness for the plaintiff, in cross-examination, spoke of the exercise of the same right by other persons besides the defendant; on his re-examination he gave evidence of the exercise of the right over places other than the locus in quo, and the jury found for the plaintiff:—Held, that the improper reception of this evidence was no ground for a new trial on the part of the defendant; the judge ought to have been requested to expunge it from his notes at the trial. Blewitt v. Tregonning, 3 A. & E. 554; 1 H. & W. 432.

Where documents are put as the defendant's evidence in the course of the plaintiff's case, without objection on the part of the plaintiff, they are to be taken as the defendant's evidence, and as received by consent, and their reception cannot be subsequently made a ground for a new trial; the question whether the issue raised on the record called for any evidence on the particular point, being quite a distinct and separate question. Campbell v. Loader, infra.

9. Improper Rejection of Evidence.

By Ord. XXXIX. r. 6, "A new trial shall not be granted on the ground of misdirection, or of the improper admission or rejection of evidence . . . unless, in the opinion of the court to which the application is made, some substantial wrong or miscarriage has been thereby occasioned in the trial." Where, therefore, in an action against a solicitor for negligence, founded on the breach by the defendant of an alleged duty, the jury negatived the facts on which such duty was founded, and judgment was entered for the defendant, a new trial will not be granted on the ground of improper rejection of evidence, when the evidence, if admitted, would only have gone to prove failure in the performance of the alleged duty and the extent to which it had been violated, but would not have thrown light upon its existence or nature. Manley v. Palache, 11 R. 566; 73 L. T. 98—P. C.

Where the motion for a new trial is grounded on the improper rejection of evidence, the evidence ought to have been formally tendered to the judge of the court and rejected by him. Penn v. Bibby, 36 L. J., Ch. 455 ; L. R. 2 Ch. 127 ; 15 L. T. 399 ; 15 W. R. 208.

The court refused to go into the question of improper rejection of a document on the ground that it did not appear by the judge's notes that the document had formally been tendered in evidence. Campbell v. Loader, 3 H. & C. 520 ; 34 L. J., Ex. 50 ; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 286 ; 11 L. T. 608 ; 13 W. R. 348.

Where an objection is taken to the reception of a document on the ground of the want of a stamp, and the objection is allowed by the judge and the evidence rejected, it is the duty of counsel intending to rely on such rejection as a ground for a new trial, to object to the rejection of the document after the judge's decision that it requires a stamp, and formally to tender the document in evidence, and to require a note to be taken of the tender and its rejection ; and failing to do so, the rejection cannot afterwards be made available as a ground for a new trial. Ib.

Where evidence is rejected which is tendered for one purpose, and it is inadmissible for that purpose, but is admissible in another view of the case not alluded to at the trial, the court will not grant a new trial upon an improper rejection of evidence. Rex v. Grant, 3 N. & M. 106 ; 5 B. & Ad. 1081.

If a document is offered on one ground which is untenable, and is rejected, and after the trial it is discovered that the document might have been offered on another ground, which was a good one, the court will not grant a new trial : at all events, not unless manifest injustice would ensue, and the party could not by due diligence have offered the document on the proper ground at the trial. Doe d. Kinglake v. Beriss, 7 C. B. 456 ; 18 L. J., C. P. 128.

The rejection of evidence, which, if admitted, would not alter the case, or establish any fact not already proved by other means, is not a ground for a new trial. Alexander v. Barker, 2 Tyr. 140 ; 2 C. & J. 133 ; 1 L. J., Ex. 40.

Where evidence has been improperly rejected, the court will grant a new trial, unless with the addition of the rejected evidence a verdict given for the party offering it would be clearly and manifestly against the weight of evidence. Crease v. Barrett, 1 C. M. & R. 919 ; 5 Tyr. 458 ; 4 L. J., Ex. 297.

When evidence tending to establish a point already supported by more direct proof is improperly rejected, the court will not grant a new trial on that ground, if it sees that the case would not have been advanced further by admitting the particular piece of evidence. Doe d. Welsh v. Langfield, 16 M. & W. 497.

A new trial cannot be granted on the ground that documents have been improperly held protected from production, if it appears that they were irrelevant to the issues, or not admissible. Beatson v. Skene, 5 H. & N. 838 ; 29 L. J., Ex. 430 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 780 ; 2 L. T. 378 ; 8 W. R. 544.

To entitle a party to a new trial on the ground of the rejection of evidence, it must appear not merely that it was offered and not received, but that the judge was given to understand that its reception was pressed, and that he deliberately rejected it. Whitehouse v. Hemmant, 27 L. J., Ex. 295 ; 6 W. R. 488.

10. Misdirection and Non-Direction of Judge.

Misdirection.]—It is not misdirection for the judge to tell the jury his own opinion on the issue before them. Smith v. Dart, 54 L. J., Q. B. 121 ; 14 Q. B. D. 105 ; 52 L. T. 218 ; 33 W. R. 455.

It is no ground for a new trial for misdirection, that the judge expresses a strong opinion upon the facts either way ; the whole being left to the discretion of the jury, where the question is one peculiarly for their consideration. Belcher v. Prittie, 4 M. & Scott, 295 ; 10 Bing. 408 ; 3 L. J., C. P. 85. S. P., Foster v. Steele, 5 Scott, 28 ; 3 Bing. (N.C.) 892 ; 6 L. J., C. P. 265.

It is no misdirection if the judge states in strong terms the impression which the evidence has made upon his mind, unless it is clearly shewn that the impression was not warranted by such evidence. Davidson v. Stanley, 3 Scott (N.R.) 49 ; 2 Man. & G. 721.

Where in an action for the recovery of land there was evidence that part of the land claimed by the defendants under a possessory title admittedly derived from the plaintiffs, had been unenclosed within the statutory period, such evidence ought to have been submitted to the jury, and it was a misdirection on the part of the judge to say that, as the plaintiffs had not proved possession by themselves for twelve years before action, the verdict should be for the defendants ; and a new trial was rightly ordered by the Supreme Court. Kingston Race Stand v. Kingston Corporation, 66 L. J., P. C. 111 ; [1897] A. C. 509—P. C.

To entitle a party to a new trial on the ground of misdirection, it must be shewn that the jury has been thereby induced to form a wrong conclusion. Newcastle (Duke) v. Browtowe, 1 N. & M. 598 ; 4 B. & Ad. 273.

Where a new trial is moved for on the ground of a misdirection in point of law, if the court sees that justice has been done between the parties, they will not set aside the verdict, nor enter into a discussion of the question of law. Edmonson v. Machell, 2 Term Rep. 4.

It is not a misdirection if the judge refers the jury to their own knowledge of any particular facts, which have been proved as matter of illustration only, and not as matter of evidence. Rex v. Sutton, 4 M. & S. 532.

A direction, partially incorrect, is not a ground for a new trial, where the verdict is consistent with the justice of the case. Wickes v. Clutterbuck, 2 Bing. 483 ; 10 Moore, 63 ; 3 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 67 ; 27 R. R. 692.

If the plaintiff's counsel acquiesces in the judge's ruling, whereby the defendant takes a verdict without going into his case, the plaintiff will not be afterwards permitted to move for a new trial on the ground of a misdirection. Robinson v. Cook, 6 Taunt. 336 ; 16 R. R. 624.

The judge directed the jury, if they came to a certain conclusion, to give their verdict for the plaintiff ; but if they came to either of two other conclusions, which he pointed out, to find for the defendant, and state on which ground their judgment was formed. The plaintiff then chose to be nonsuited :—Held, that he was not entitled to a new trial on account of misdirection, if either of the two latter points was rightly put to the jury. Vacher v. Cocks, 1 B. & Ad. 145 ; M. & M. 353 ; 8 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 341.

In trespass quare clausum fregit, there was a plea claiming a right by custom, and another by prescription, and several others by non-existing grants; the judge called the attention of the jury to the nature of the mode of claim, and told them that, in order to support the prescription, exclusive enjoyment was necessary:—Held, that it was no misdirection, as the expression "exclusive" was used to point their attention to the different nature of the claim by custom as a public right, and by prescription as a private right. Blewitt v. Tregonning, 3 A. & E. 554; 1 H. & W. 432.

If a judge, on leaving to the jury a question partly depending upon the construction of an act of parliament, does not give the jury an explanation of the meaning of the act sufficiently comprehensive to enable them to decide the particular issue, it is a misdirection. Elliott v. South Devon Ry., 2 Ex. 725; 17 L. J., Ex. 262.

Where the plaintiff's case was clearly supported by a qualified admission made by the defendant:—Held, no misdirection, that the judge did not distinctly tell the jury that the whole admission must be taken together. Beckham v. Osborne, 6 Man. & G. 771; 7 Scott (N.R.) 520.

The court will not grant a defendant a new trial where there has been a misdirection with respect to one item only of the plaintiff's demand, and the plaintiff consents to reduce the damages by the whole sum in respect of which the misdirection took place. Moore v. Tuckwell, 1 C. B. 607; 15 L. J., C. P. 153.

Where a judge mistakes the law upon a collateral point, upon which a bill of exceptions would not lie, a new trial will not be granted as of right, but the court will exercise its discretion according to its opinion of the result being in accordance with the justice of the case. Black v. Jones, 6 Ex. 213; 20 L. J., Ex. 152. S. P., Norbury (Earl) v. Kitchin, 7 L. T. 685.

A mistaken ruling as to a matter collateral to the issue, not being ground for a bill of exceptions, will never be made ground for a new trial, unless the court can see that injustice has been occasioned by the mistake. Henman v. Lester, 12 C. B. (N.S.) 776; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 601.

It is no ground for a new trial that the judge leaves to the jury as a question of fact that which he should himself have decided as a matter of law, unless the objection is presented to the notice of the judge. Doe d. Strickland v. Strickland, 8 C. B. 724.

A wrong observation by a judge on a matter of fact, which is left as a question of fact for the jury, is no ground for a new trial. Taylor v. Ashton, 11 M. & W. 401; 12 L. J., Ex. 363.

It is no ground for setting aside a verdict that the judge in summing up has commented, however strongly, on the arguments made use of by the counsel for the unsuccessful party in his address to the jury. Darby v. Ouseley, 1 H. & N. 1; 25 L. J., Ex. 227; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 497.

On the trial of an action for slander, before the plaintiff's counsel stated his case, the judge, in the hearing of the jury, suggested to the parties that it would be better to withdraw a juror. This was declined, and the jury found a verdict for the defendant:—Held, that this observation of the judge was not calculated improperly to sway the jury to give their verdict for either of the parties. Lloyd v. Jones, 6 B. & S. 475.

The circumstance of the judge having left an immaterial question to the jury, with a direction that, if they find it one way, they must return a verdict for the defendant, does not entitle the plaintiff to a new trial, if upon all the other undisputed facts of the case the defendant is clearly entitled to the verdict. Clarke v. Arden, 16 C. B. 227; 24 L. J., C. P. 162; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 710; 3 W. R. 444.

Upon a difference of opinion, it is no misdirection to tell the jury that they ought to yield to conviction and to conversion by their fellows. Everett v. Youells, 1 N. & M. 530; 4 B. & Ad. 681.

It is for a party shewing cause against a rule for a new trial on the ground of misdirection to shew that the alleged misdirection did not cause a miscarriage of justice; and he must shew it by authentic evidence. Anthony v. Halstead, 37 L. T. 433.

Where a jury had not acted according to a misdirection, but had given damages, the court would not grant a new trial, on the ground of the misdirection. Twigg v. Potts, 1 C. M. & R. 89; 3 Tyr. 969; 3 L. J., Ex. 336.

The refusal by a judge to direct a jury to find for the plaintiff or for a defendant does not constitute misdirection. The evidence on which his refusal was founded, and the reasons for impeaching it, must be stated to him at the time. Greene v. Bateman, L. R. 5 H. L. 591.

Action by payee against the maker of a note. Plea, set-off. At the close of the defendant's case it was submitted that there was no evidence to go to the jury in support of his case. The judge declined to stop the case, and the plaintiff gave evidence; a verdict was found for the defendant:—Held, that the plaintiff could not afterwards move to enter a verdict, on the ground that the cause should have been stopped at the end of the defendant's case. Allen v. Carew, 7 El. & Bl. 463; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 1146.

Quære, whether the word misdirection in Ord. XXXIX. applies to a nonsuit. Hall v. Jupe, 49 L. J., C. P. 721; 43 L. T. 411.

The trustees of a dock were sued for injury to a vessel, on the ground that, knowing that the dock and the entrance thereto were, by reason of a bank or accumulation of mud, in an unfit state to be navigated and used, they suffered the same to continue in such state so that the vessel, in entering the dock, struck against and became embedded in the mud. The defendants denied this, ascribing the injury to another cause, and the witnesses on both sides appeared to agree that if the mud bank had existed as alleged it must have been seen by the defendants' servants. The judge was not asked by the defendants' counsel in his summing-up to leave specifically to the jury the question of their knowledge of its existence, and he left to the jury in substance the question whether the bank had existed as alleged by the witnesses on one side, and denied on the other. The jury found for the plaintiff, adding that the injury had not arisen from the cause to which it was attributed by the defendants:—Held, that there had been no misdirection, and that the verdict was not bad. Gibbs v. Liverpool Dock Trustees, 28 L. J., Ex. 57.

Where a question of fact, proper for the decision of the jury, has been withdrawn from them, and a verdict directed, a new trial would have been ordered, even though an opposite verdict would have been against the evidence. Brew v. Conole, Ir. R. 9 C. L. 151.

"Substantial Wrong or Miscarriage."]—The appellant wrote and circulated a letter addressed to the respondent charging the respondent with being "participant in illegal profits whilst holding positions of trust." Both appellant and respondent were governors and benefactors of a college. The appellant also acted as solicitor to the college, and in that capacity had received profit-costs. In an action for libel by the respondent the judge in his charge to the jury expressed his opinion that by a clause in the memorandum of the college the solicitor was entitled to charge profit-costs, and substantial damages were awarded. On motion for a new trial, the Court of Appeal held that the clause referred to did not bear the construction placed upon it by the judge, but that, notwithstanding the misdirection, the case of libel was made out, and refused the application. The house of lords reversed the decision of the Court of Appeal, on the ground that there had been "a substantial wrong and miscarriage," inasmuch as an important and serious topic had been withdrawn from the jury. New trial ordered. Bray v. Ford, 65 L. J., Q. B. 213; [1896] A. C. 44; 73 L. T. 609—H. L. (E.)

Non-Direction.] — Non-direction is only a ground for granting a new trial where the verdict is against the weight of evidence. Ford v. Lacey, 7 H. & N. 151; 30 L. J., Ex. 351; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 684. S. P., Great Western Ry. of Canada v. Braid, 1 Moore, P. C. (N.S.) 101; 1 N. R. 527; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 339; 8 L. T. 31; 11 W. R. 444.

It is no ground for a new trial that the judge, in his summing up, omits specially to leave to the jury a point made in the course of the trial, if the whole case was substantially left to them. Robinson v. Gleadow, 2 Scott, 250; 2 Bing. (N.C.) 156; 1 Hodges, 245.

—— Point not raised at Trial.]—When counsel for the defendant advisedly abstained from submitting to the jury a question of fact which was open upon the pleadings, and which, if answered in his favour, would have entitled him to the verdict, and the judge also abstained from noticing it in his summing up, the court refused to grant the defendant a new trial as for a misdirection. Martin v. G. N. Ry., 16 C. B. 179; 3 C. L. R. 817; 24 L. J., C. P. 209; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 613; 3 W. R. 477.

The defendant's counsel rested the defence exclusively on one issue, and after verdict on that, objected that the judge had omitted to notice a point of law not arising on that issue but on another:—Held, that he had precluded himself from the objection, and could not afterwards treat the judge's omission as a misdirection. Horlor v. Carpenter, 3 C. B. (N.S.) 172; 27 L. J., C. P. 1.

When counsel at a trial does not ask that a point should be submitted to the jury, but gets leave reserved to move, he cannot afterwards ask for a new trial on the ground that that point was not submitted to the jury. Morgan v. Couchman, 14 C. B. 100; 23 L. J., C. P. 36.

11. Direction as to Damages.

If the judge does not inform the jury what is the proper measure of damages on an issue on which it is admitted that the plaintiff is entitled to a verdict and to damages, the court will direct a new trial, although the point was not taken by the plaintiff's counsel. Knight v. Egerton, 7 Ex. 407.

Where there is an established rule by which the jury should be governed in the measure of damages, it is the duty of the judge to bring it to their notice, and direct them in accordance with it; and his omitting to do so is ground for a new trial. Hadley v. Baxendale, 9 Ex. 341; 2 C. L. R. 517; 23 L. J., Ex. 179; 18 Jur. 358; 2 W. R. 302.

In an action for breaking and entering the plaintiff's close, the plaintiff relied upon the bare possession, though it appeared that he had originally become possessed as tenant to W. under a written agreement. The defendant proved that five days after the commencement of the trespass he obtained a lease of the close from W., which he produced. The judge told the jury that in the absence of proof of the quantum of the plaintiff's interest in the premises he was only entitled to nominal damages:—Held, no misdirection. Twyman v. Knowles, 13 C. B. 222.

Where the judge, in the presence of the counsel, directs a verdict for the defendant, but at the same time tells the jury to assess damages for the plaintiff contingently, and the counsel do not object, it is not competent to the plaintiff afterwards to move for a new trial on the ground of a misdirection; he can only move to enter a verdict for the damages so contingently assessed. Booth v. Clive, 10 C. B. 827. S. P., Morris v. Murray, 13 M. & W. 52; 13 L. J., Ex. 261.

12. Ruling as to Right to Begin.

When injury has resulted from an erroneous decision of a judge, relative to the order of beginning, the court will in its discretion grant a new trial. Geach v. Ingall, 14 M. & W. 95; 15 L. J., Ex. 37; 9 Jur. 691. S. P., Hickman v. Fernie, 3 M. & W. 505.

An incorrect ruling as to the proper party to begin is no ground for a new trial, unless it also appears that substantial injustice or manifest injury has resulted from it. Bradford v. Freeman, 5 Ex. 734; 20 L. J., Ex. 36; 14 Jur. 987. Edwards v. Matthews, 4 D. & L. 721; 16 L. J., Ex. 291. Doe d. Bather v. Brayne, 5 C. B. 655; 17 L. J., C. P. 127. Booth v. Millns, 4 D. & L. 52; 15 M. & W. 669; 15 L. J., Ex. 354.

13. Ruling as to Stamps on Documents.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XXXIX. r. 8.

This provision does not apply where, on an objection being taken to the sufficiency of the stamp on a document, the judge, with consent of the parties, abstains from expressing an opinion on the point, and reserves it for decision in banco. Eames v. Smith, 1 Jur. (N.S.) 1025; 4 W. R. 9.

A judge holding a document admissible which has been objected to for insufficiency of stamp, ought not to reserve the question of sufficiency for the court. Siordet v. Kuczinski, 17 C. B. 251; 25 L. J., C. P. 2; 4 W. R. 153. S. P., Tattersall v. Fearnley, 17 C. B. 368.

14. Verdict against Weight of Evidence.

General Principle—Verdict unreasonable.]—In granting a new trial on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence, the court must be satisfied not merely that the verdict was one which reasonable men ought not to have given, but that it was so unreasonable that a jury could not properly give it if they really performed the judicial duty cast upon them. Solomon v. Bitton (8 Q. B. D. 176) observed upon. Metropolitan Ry. v. Wright, 55 L. J., Q. B. 401; 11 App. Cas. 152; 54 L. T. 658; 34 W. R. 746—H. L. (E.)

A new trial of an action ought not to be granted on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence if the verdict was one which the jury, acting as reasonable men, could have found. Solomon v. Bitton (8 Q. B. D. 176) explained. Webster v. Friedeberg, 55 L. J., Q. B. 403; 17 Q. B. D. 736; 55 L. T. 49; 34 W. R. 728—C. A.

The question whether a new trial should be granted, on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence, must depend upon whether the verdict was such as reasonable men ought to have given, and not upon whether the learned judge who tried the action was dissatisfied or not with the verdict. Solomon v. Bitton, 8 Q. B. D. 176—C. A.

In a suit to revoke probate of a will the jury found by a majority that the testator was of unsound mind at the date of its execution:—Held, that the verdict must be set aside as against the weight of evidence; the medical evidence being insufficient to support it, while the other evidence of incapacity related to irrelevant circumstances, and was contradicted by witnesses who deposed to actual transactions with the testator, and to his conduct and condition at the time of executing his will. Aitken v. McMeekan, [1895] A. C. 310—P. C.

Where a new trial is sought to be obtained on the ground that the verdict in the court below was against the weight of evidence, in a case where there was some evidence to support the verdict, it is not enough that the judge who tried the case, or the judges of the Court of Appeal, might have come to a different conclusion; but there must be such a preponderance of evidence against the verdict as to make it unreasonable that the jury, when properly directed by the judge, should return the verdict they did. Hampson v. Guy, 64 L. T. 778—C. A. S. P., Ferrand v. Bingley Local Board, 56 J. P. 277—C. A.

A new trial cannot be granted unless the verdict was such as no jury could have found as reasonable men. Australian Newspaper Co. v. Bennett, 63 L. J., P. C. 105; [1894] A. C. 284; 6 R. 484; 70 L. T. 597; 58 J. P. 604—P. C.

In an action for damages owing to the negligent construction of a drain, the jury found that there was no negligence, but the full court set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial:—Held, that this order must be discharged. There being evidence both ways, the verdict was one which the jury, viewing the whole of the evidence, could reasonably find. Brisbane Municipality v. Martin, [1894] A. C. 249—P. C. S. P., Dallas v. G. W. Ry., 57 J. P. 584—C. A.

Where in an action for compensation in respect of land compulsorily taken for public purposes the jury, after hearing the conflicting evidence of experts as to the existence of payable coal thereunder, assessed damages in respect thereof:—Held, that their verdict, being one which a jury could reasonably find, could not be set aside as against the weight of evidence. Brown v. Railways Commissioner, 59 L. J., P. C. 62; 15 App. Cas. 240; 62 L. T. 469—P. C.

—— Questions of Science.]—The ordinary reasoning according to which the verdict of a jury on a question of fact ought not to be disturbed, unless the preponderance of the evidence against the verdict be strong and clear, does not apply to cases in which the verdict depends upon a question of science which is not fully solved, but is still within the region of bonâ fide controversy. Metropolitan District Asylum (Managers) v. Hill, 47 L. T. 29; 47 J. P. 148—H. L. (E.)

Rules under Former Practice.]—The court, upon the weight of evidence, refused to grant a new trial of an issue devisavit vel non, although in many parts the evidence was conflicting and contradictory. Swinfen v. Swinfen, 27 Beav. 148; 28 L. J., Ch. 849; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 1276.

Though the verdict is against evidence and the strict rule of law, yet a new trial will not be granted merely to gratify litigious passions. Farewell v. Chaffey, 1 Burr. 54.

Nor where the jury has found for the defendant against evidence, if the plaintiff appears to have received no real injury. Burton v. Thompson, 2 Burr. 664; 2 Ld. Ken. 375.

Where the jury finds a verdict in opposition to the evidence of a witness, and the credibility of the witness is left to the jury, the court will not grant a new trial, though there was nothing to impeach the credit of the witness. Lacey v. Forrester, 3 D. P. C. 668.

In trespass for shooting a dog, the only witness called to prove the value stated it to be 2*l.* 10*s.*, and that was not contradicted; yet the jury found a verdict for 20*s.* The court refused to interfere either by increasing the damages or by granting a new trial. Cinn v. Facey, 5 N. & M. 405; 1 H. & W. 482.

A new trial will be ordered after a verdict for the defendant, if the jury find a verdict against all the evidence in a cause on a misapprehension of the law, whether arising from their own mistake, or the misdirection of a judge. Gregory v. Tuffs, 1 C. M. & R. 300; 2 D. P. C. 711; 4 Tyr. 820; 3 L. J., Ex. 295.

The court will not grant a rule for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was contrary to evidence, when they can see that substantial justice has already been done, and that the verdict would be the same way if a new trial were granted. Boulton v. Pritchard, 1 B. C. Rep. 173; 4 D. & L. 117; 11 Jur. 64.

Where, from the testimony before the court upon the report, it does not clearly appear that the finding of the jury was against the weight of the evidence, or that it is necessary to the justice of the case that there should be a new trial, or that the result would or ought to be different, the court will not disturb a verdict. Deacle v. Hancock, 13 Price, 226; M'Clel. 85.

Where the jury has found a verdict for the plaintiff on a presumption contrary to evidence, the court will not grant a new trial, if the plaintiff is entitled to recover in conscience and equity. Wilkinson v. Payne, 4 Term Rep. 468. S. P., Cox v. Kitchen, 1 Bos. & P. 338.

Where a judge left, as a question for the jury, a point which upon the evidence could only be determined one way, and the jury found a verdict against the evidence, the court refused to grant a new trial, otherwise than on payment of costs. Doe d. Smith v. Pike, 1 N. & M. 385; 3 B. & Ad. 738.

Where the jury has incorrectly, and contrary to the judge's direction, found for the defendant, the court will not grant a new trial, to enable the plaintiff to recover nominal damages only. Harris v. Jones, 1 M. & Rob. 173.

Where trespass is brought which involves a question of right to land, and evidence of acts of ownership is given on both sides, and a verdict is found contrary to the direction of the judge, in which he stated that he considered the evidence on one side to preponderate, the court will grant a new trial. Cooke v. Green, 11 Price, 736.

A new trial was granted where the jury had drawn a wrong conclusion on facts admitted on both sides. Bright v. Eynon, 1 Burr. 390; 2 Ld. Ken. 53.

A verdict certified by the judge to be entirely to his satisfaction is never suffered to be impeached as contrary to evidence, by affidavits. Plunket v. Kingsland (Lord), 7 Bro. P. C. 404.

A new trial was refused, though the chief justice reported that the strength of evidence was against the verdict. Swain v. Hall, 3 Wils. 45.

Where there was evidence on both sides, a new trial was refused, although the verdict was against the opinion of the judge who tried the cause. Anon., 1 Wils. 22.

The rule that, in determining whether a verdict ought to be set aside as against evidence the court will be guided by the opinion of the judge by whom the cause was tried, must be understood of those cases where there is a conflict of testimony, and does not apply where the judge only expresses his opinion as to the value of evidence given on what may be called a special verdict. Allaway v. Harris, 29 L. J., Ex. 214; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 347; 2 L. T. 434.

15. Verdict for Larger Sum than Claimed.

Where the jury found generally that the defendant had paid the plaintiff a larger sum of money than was claimed in the declaration, but found a verdict for the plaintiff, the court refused a rule to set aside this verdict, and to enter a verdict for the defendant. Freeman v. Crafts, 1 H. & H. 188; 4 M. & W. 4.

Where, by mistake, the damages had been laid at 10*l.* and a jury at the trial had found for the plaintiff damages 150*l.*, the court granted a new trial on payment of costs, with liberty to the plaintiff to amend. Tebbs v. Barron, 5 Scott (N.R.) 837; 12 L. J., C. P. 33. See infra, PLEADING (AMENDMENT), post, cols. 875 et seq.

16. In Cases of Nonsuit.

Where a plaintiff had been nonsuited upon the opening speech of his counsel, and it was afterwards shewn by affidavit that his witnesses could have proved a good cause of action, not stated in the opening speech, the court granted a new trial upon payment of costs. Edger v. Knapp, 5 Man. & G. 753; 6 Scott (N.R.) 707; 1 D. & L. 73; 7 Jur. 583.

Where a defendant applies to the judge for a nonsuit on the ground that the contract declared on is not proved, and he declines to nonsuit, but reserves the point, and the jury finds for the defendant, it is competent to him to set up the objection taken at the trial, in answer to a rule for a new trial obtained by the plaintiff, on the ground that the verdict is against evidence. Mummery v. Paul, 1 C. B. 316.

A plaintiff who chooses to be nonsuited in order to avoid an impending verdict for the defendant, cannot have a new trial on the ground that there was evidence to go to the jury. Austin v. Evans, 2 Man. & G. 430.

In an action for an allottee in a projected railway, upon the failure of the scheme, for the recovery of his deposit, where he had executed the subscribers' deed, there being no evidence that such execution was obtained by fraud, the defendant, under the direction of the judge, obtained a verdict:—Held, that as the plaintiff should have been nonsuited, a rule for a new trial ought not to be granted, although some observations made by the judge to the jury, as to what would constitute fraud, might not be legally correct, but in such a case the court will grant a rule to enter a nonsuit. Atkinson v. Pocock, 1 Ex. 796.

Quære, whether the word misdirection in Ord. XXXIX. applies to a nonsuit. Hall v. Jupe, 49 L. J., C. P. 721; 43 L. T. 411.

17. Mistake and Inconclusiveness.

Mistake.]—Where the judge, in summing up in favour of one of the parties, is stopped by the jury declaring themselves satisfied, and finding immediately for the other party, it is a good ground for a new trial. Gainsford v. Blachford, 6 Price, 36; 7 Price, 544.

A new trial of an issue will not be granted upon the ground of a mistake at the trial as to the date of a document if the court is satisfied that the correction of such mistake confirms the verdict; nor upon the ground that the unsuccessful party, relying on the mistaken document, refrained from producing other evidence at the trial. Hughes v. Jones, 1 N. R. 124.

The plaintiff having refused to answer relevant questions upon cross-examination was told by the judge that she would be nonsuited, and that she must either answer the questions or retire from the case. After conferring with her counsel, she still refused to answer, and the jury, upon the direction of the judge, found a verdict for the defendant. It appeared on the application for a new trial that the plaintiff was a foreigner, and did not understand the importance of answering the questions:—Held, that a new trial should be granted. Wiedegemann v. Walpole, 53 J. P. 614.

A new trial will not be granted after a verdict agreeable to justice, although irregular in form. Aylett v. Lowe, 2 W. Bl. 1221. S. P., Holloway v. Hewitt, Lofft, 232; Anon., Lofft, 521.

When Inconclusive.]—New trial granted on the ground that the verdict was not sufficiently explicit. Oakley v. Ood-Deen, 2 L. T. 357.

Where the jury, on the trial of an issue relating to the title to land, found for the defendant on the ground that neither party had made out a satisfactory title, the court does not regard that as establishing the right of the defendant, and will direct a new trial. Sunderland Freemen, Ex parte, Durham (Bishop), Ex parte, 1 Drew. 184; 16 Jur. 370.

New trial of an issue granted, the verdict being unsatisfactory, from the circumstances under which the jury returned it. East India Co. v. Bazett, Jac. 91.

It is no ground for a new trial, that another jury in a cause nearly similar gave a different verdict. Spong v. Hogg, 2 W. Bl. 802.

Jury not Agreed.]—Where there were three several issues in a cause left by the judge to the jury, who having retired to consider their verdict, the judge, with the consent of both parties, left the court, directing the associate to take the verdict upon each issue separately, and the associate, instead of doing so, asked the jury generally whether they found for the plaintiff or for the defendant, and the foreman answering, "We find for the plaintiff," the verdict was so entered. The court set aside the verdict, and granted a new trial, it appearing, upon affidavit of what passed in court, that there was some doubt expressed by one of the jury at the time as to the delivery of the verdict in that shape. Bentley v. Fleming, 1 C. B. 479; 3 D. & L. 23; 14 L. J., C. P. 174; 9 Jur. 402.

The judge told the jury, that, in case of their believing a fact, the verdict must be for the plaintiff; the jury retired, and afterwards returned into court and told the associate, who alone was there, that they found the fact; the associate then informed them that this was a verdict for the plaintiff, and entered it so; but the jury expressed to him their dissent, and said that they were not agréed to find for the plaintiff. The court discharged a rule nisi, obtained on affidavit of these facts, for setting aside the verdict and having a new trial, upon the ground (only) of the jury not having agreed to find for the plaintiff. Doe d. Lewis v. Baster, 5 A. & E. 129; 6 N. & M. 541; 2 H. & W. 264.

—— Affidavits.]—The affidavits of individual jurors to impugn a verdict recorded, on the ground that it was not given with their assent, are not receivable, but the affidavits of bystanders as to what passed within their knowledge touching the delivery of the verdict and the dissent of some of the jury at the time are admissible; and if the court sees reason to think that some of the jury may not have heard what passed at the time of delivering the verdict by the foreman, they will direct a new trial, and will not, at the defendant's request, merely vacate the verdict in order that it may be tried by the same panel, as if no trial had taken place. Rex v. Woodler, 6 M. & S. 366; 18 R. R. 402. S. P., Raphael v. Bank of England, 17 C. B. 161; 25 L. J., C. P. 33; 4 W. R. 10.

Admissions of Jurymen.]—An admission by jurymen, that the verdict was given by mistake, when made after they had separated, though on the day of trial, is no ground for a new trial. Davis v. Taylor, 2 Chit. 268.

Nor are subsequent declarations of jurymen after a general verdict given according to the merits of the case. Clark v. Stevenson, 2 W. Bl. 803.

18. Mistake as to Qualification of Jury.

By Reason of Interest.]—The attorney for the defendant being the under-sheriff, and having summoned the jury, is no ground for a new trial after verdict for the defendant in a case of contradictory evidence. Mason v. Vickery, 1 Smith, 304.

The fact of the person acting as deputy for the sheriff, being the attorney for the defendant, is not a ground for a new trial. Briggs v. Souton, 9 D. P. C. 105; 1 W. P. C. 3; 4 Jur. 1014.

After a trial has been had, the court will not grant a venire de novo, on an allegation that the jury has been convened by the partner of the plaintiff's attorney; at least without proof that the party who objects was not aware of the fact at the trial. Brunskill v. Giles, 9 Bing. 13; 2 M. & Scott, 41; 1 L. J., C. P. 143.

The court will not grant a rule for setting aside a verdict, on an affidavit of the failing party, stating that one of the jury was a relation of the successful party, and that they were on terms of friendship and intimacy together, and particularising various instances and expressions on the part of the jurymen of partiality and prejudice. Onions v. Naish, 7 Price, 203. And see Hewitt v. Ferneley, 7 Price, 234; and Wells v. Cooper, infra.

In an action against a provisional committee-man of a proposed railway company for goods supplied in the course of the formation of the company, and which resulted in a verdict for the defendant, the foreman of the special jury was himself a provisional committee-man of the company. He did not make any affidavit that he was unaware of the question to be tried when he entered the jury box:—Held, a ground for a new trial; but it was granted only on payment of costs by the plaintiff, as it appeared that his attorney had been aware of the juryman's interest. Bailey v. Macaulay, 13 Q. B. 815; 19 L. J., Q. B. 73; 14 Jur. 80.

Where a public company is a party to an action, the mere fact that one of the jurymen was a shareholder in the company is no ground for granting a new trial. Williams v. G. W. Ry., 3 H. & N. 869; 28 L. J., Ex. 2; 7 W. R. 97.

Not duly Qualified.]—The court will not set aside an inquisition to assess the value of land, under 8 & 9 Vict. c. 18, s. 41, on the ground that the jurymen by whom it was taken were not qualified to act as jurors, for they might have been challenged by the parties to the inquisition. Chelsea Waterworks Co., In re, 10 Ex. 731; 3 C. L. R. 329; 24 L. J., Ex. 79; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 143; 3 W. R. 174.

Where it was not distinctly sworn that the disqualification of a juror, being a town councillor of the borough in which the cause was tried, was not discovered till after verdict, the court refused to grant a rule for a new trial. Peermain v. Mackay, 9 Jur. 491.

In 1819 a level was taken and a survey made of lands in Bilsby, in Lincolnshire, liable to be rated to a drain called the Boy Grift, and the court of sewers directed a precept to the sheriff, requiring him to summon juries de corpore comitatûs, to appear at a certain place and time, and make a presentment. The sheriff having, under this precept, summoned a jury from the hundred of Calceworth, in the county, in May, 1819, they made a presentment that the Boy Grift was ruinous, and that certain works therein were absolutely necessary; and that lands in the occupation of various persons, including the plaintiff, received benefit or avoided danger by the drainage, and ought therefore to bear the charges thereof; and they accordingly assessed a rate, which the commissioners confirmed:—Held, that it was no objection to the presentment that the sheriff summoned the whole of the jury from the hundred of Calceworth. Taylor v. Loft, 8 Ex. 269.

Wrong Person serving on Jury.]—A jury retired to consider their verdict, and upon their returning into court, and their names being called over, one of the jurors, whose name was on the panel, did not answer to the name which the officer of the court had marked as the name of the party called and sworn :—Held, upon objection taken before the verdict was recorded, that it was not a mis-trial. Torbock v. Laing, 5 Jur. 318.

A mistake in a juror's name in the panel is no ground for a new trial. Dickenson v. Blake, 7 Bro. P. C. 177.

The son of a juryman summoned and returned, having answered to his father's name when called on the panel, and served as one of the jury on the trial of a cause, is not of itself a sufficient ground for setting aside the verdict as for a mis-trial. Hill v. Yates, 12 East, 229 ; 11 R. R. 371.

Where R. the elder was summoned on a special jury, and R. the younger was sworn and sat as one of such jury, he not being qualified to sit either on a special or common jury :—Held, that it was discretionary with the court to grant or refuse a new trial ; and it appearing that the clerk of the defendant's attorney was present at the trial, and knew of the mistake, and that the attorney himself did not make affidavit that he was ignorant of it, the court discharged a rule for a new trial on that ground. Falmouth (Earl) v. Roberts, 1 D. (N.S.) 633 ; 9 M. & W. 469 ; 11 L. J., Ex. 180.

It is in the discretion of the court to grant a new trial in a case where a person not impanelled has served upon the jury, and the court will not grant such new trial unless substantial injustice has been done by a wrong juror having served. Wells v. Cooper, 30 L. T. 721.

An action came on to be tried before a common jury, and the name of Thomas Fox, being on the common jury panel, was called amongst others by the associate, whereupon one Thomas Cox, who was on the special jury panel, went into the box by mistake, served upon the jury, and took part in the verdict, which was given for the plaintiff. The defendant alleged afterwards that Cox was a friend of the plaintiff, and had purposely, and in the interest of the plaintiff, tendered himself as a juror, but this was denied by Cox, in a letter written in answer to inquiries by the attorney of the plaintiff :—Held, that it was in the discretion of the court to grant a new trial, and a rule for a new trial discharged. Ib.

—— Objection before Verdict.]—When a person not summoned on the jury was sworn on a jury at nisi prius in the name of a person for whom a summons to serve on that jury was delivered, and to whose house he had succeeded ; the irregularity being noticed before verdict, the court awarded a venire de novo. Dovey v. Hobson, 6 Taunt. 460 ; 2 Marsh. 154.

On the trial of a special jury cause, when the names of the special jurymen, who had retired to consider their verdict, were called over on their return into court, it was discovered that a person on the impanelling of the jury, summoned as a special juryman on another cause, had answered by mistake to the name of a juryman summoned for the cause on trial, and had served in his stead. The defendant then objected to take the verdict of the jury so impanelled ; the plaintiff insisted on taking it ; and they gave a verdict for the plaintiff :—Held, a mis-trial, as the objection was taken before verdict ; and that there must be a venire de novo. Doe d. Ashburnham (Earl) v. Michael, 16 Q. B. 320 ; 20 L. J., Q. B. 276 ; 15 Jur. 677.

Trial by Jurors who had not Viewed after View by Others.]—The defendant had obtained a rule for a view, which was accordingly had, but upon the trial coming on at the assizes all the viewers were impanelled and engaged in trying a cause in another court. As this, however, was the last cause on the list, the judge (against the consent of the defendant) determined upon trying it, and other jurors were impanelled instead of the viewers, and a verdict was returned for the plaintiff :—Held, that this was a mis-trial, and a rule for a new trial was accordingly made absolute. Kingston Union v. Landed Estates Co., 28 L. T. 644.

Waiver of Irregularity.]—A cause was tried under a writ of trial directed to the sheriff of Cambridgeshire, by a jury of persons resident in the town of Cambridge, none of whose names were on the jury list for the county ; but as it appeared that the defendant's attorney had seen and looked over the list before they were sworn, and had expressed himself satisfied :—Held, that the defendant was thereby precluded, after verdict for the plaintiff, from objecting to the irregularity. Pryne v. Titchmarsh, 10 M. & W. 605 ; 2 D. (N.S.) 474 ; 12 L. J., Ex. 45 ; 7 Jur. 202. See Bailey v. Macaulay, and Falmouth (Earl) v. Roberts, supra.

19. Misconduct of Jury.

What is.]—Where a jury has misconducted itself in their demeanour during the trial in such a way as to lead to the presumption that justice has not been properly administered, the court will grant a new trial. Hughes v. Budd, 8 D. P. C. 315.

The absence of the jury at intervals, and their drinking ale and smoking in the same room with the attorney for the plaintiff (for whom they returned a verdict), is such misconduct as will entitle the defendant to a new trial. S. C., 4 Jur. 150.

The delivery of food to a juryman, after the jury was shut up to consider of their verdict, is no ground for setting the verdict aside, if it does not appear that such refreshment was supplied by a party to the cause, or that it was delivered to a juryman whose holding out decided the event. Everett v Youells, 1 N. & M. 530 ; 4 B. & Ad. 681.

When a jury on a writ of inquiry, after having retired, covertly procured victuals and liquor, the court ordered a new trial, on the ground of misconduct on the part of the jury. Cooksey v. Haynes, 27 L. J., Ex. 371.

Misconduct of a juror after trial, in asking money from the party who obtained the verdict, the party not being implicated, and the verdict not being unsatisfactory, is no ground for a new trial. Sibey v. Stephens, 7 L. T. 274 ; 11 W. R. 19.

In an action for seizing and impounding the plaintiff's cow, the evidence was conflicting, and a verdict was returned for the plaintiff. The judge was dissatisfied with the verdict, and the court granted a new trial, on affidavits, one of which stated that the defendant, at a public-house, before the trial was concluded, heard the jury discoursing among themselves on the subject of the cause, and that one of them said to one of his fellows, "the parson (meaning the defendant) will get served out" ; and another juryman said to one of his fellows, "You will be for the parson." Two persons (one of whom had been examined at the trial) also deposed that they would not believe the plaintiff's principal witness on his oath. Allum v. Boultbee, 9 Ex. 738; 2 C. L. R. 1072; 23 L. J., Ex. 208; 18 Jur. 406; 2 W. R. 459.

It is a ground for a new trial, if a juror before being sworn expresses a determination to give the verdict one way. Ramadge v. Ryan, 2 M. & Scott, 421; 9 Bing. 333; 2 L. J., C. P. 7.

Compromise—Evading Duty.]—In an action of tort, where the jury has made a compromise, and, instead of deciding the issue of guilty or not guilty, has agreed to find for the plaintiff without substantial damages, or has evaded the duty of applying their minds to the consideration of the amount of damages, so that there has been no real assessment of them, the court will grant a new trial. Kelly v. Sherlock, 6 B. & S. 480; 35 L. J., Q. B. 209; L. R. 1 Q. B. 686; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 937.

A verdict decided by lot is a bad verdict, and the court will, where such verdict has been given, grant a new trial. Harding v. Hewett, 8 D. P. C. 598; 4 Jur. 292.

In an action on a bill of exchange for 50*l*., the issue being whether goods were accepted by the plaintiff in satisfaction of the bill, the jury found for him with 25*l*. damages:—Held, that, if that finding could, upon the evidence, be accounted for only on the supposition that the jury had, by way of compromise among themselves, split the difference, the defendant was entitled to a new trial. Hall v. Poyser, 13 M. & W. 600; 14 L. J., Ex. 98.

Where Verdict Perverse.]—Where the judge recommends a verdict for the plaintiff with nominal damages, but the jury gives substantial damages, such verdict cannot be treated as perverse. Chilvers v. Greaves, 5 Man. & G. 578; 6 Scott (N.R.) 539.

A verdict is not perverse where it is against the advice or opinion of the judge on some matter rightly left to the jury, and their verdict of substantial damages will not be disturbed where the judge was of opinion that nominal damages should only have been awarded. Adams v. Midland Ry., 31 L. J., Ex. 35; 10 W. R. 84.

In an action on a note, by indorsee against maker, he pleaded that he was induced to make the note by the fraud of the payee, and that it was indorsed by the payee without consideration, and that the plaintiff sued thereon as trustee. The defendant having closed his case, the judge told the jury that there was no evidence to sustain the plea. The jury, however, returned a verdict for the defendant. The court granted a new trial without examining whether the direction of the judge was right or wrong. Wood v. Cox, 17 C. B. 280.

Although there is no absolute rule invalidating a verdict certified by the judge at the trial to be perverse, yet such certificate affords ground for setting aside the verdict when coupled with other circumstances appearing in the report suggestive of perversity, such as the award of nominal damages when not apparently warranted by the evidence; though these circumstances would not, per se, and in the absence of such a certificate, be sufficient to disturb the verdict. Quinlane v. Murnane, 18 L. R., Ir. 53—C. A.

Declining to find special Verdict.]—It is the privilege of a jury to decline finding any other than a general verdict; and therefore if the judge explains to them, and they clearly understand that, in the absence of a particular fact, the plaintiff's right to recover will depend upon a doubtful legal question, and the judge requests them to find that fact, if satisfied of its existence, but they nevertheless give a verdict for the plaintiff generally, and on being pressed refuse to find the particular fact, the court will not set aside the verdict. Devizes Corporation v. Clark, 3 A. & E. 506.

Affidavits to Impugn Verdict.]—The affidavit of a juror, that the jury, having been divided, tossed up, and that the plaintiff had won, was rejected; because such conduct is a very high misdemeanour in all the jurymen; and the court must derive their knowledge from some other source than the party implicated. Vaise v. Delaval, 1 Term Rep. 11.

The court will not receive the affidavit of a party stating that he was informed by one of the jury that the verdict was decided by the drawing of lots. Straker v. Graham, 4 M. & W. 721; 7 D. P. C. 223; 1 H. & H. 449; 8 L. J., Ex. 86.

Nor is the affidavit of a juryman admissible for this purpose. Ib.

But the court will receive the affidavit of a party who actually saw the jury draw lots, or take the necessary steps for that purpose. Ib. S. P., Harvey v. Hewett, 8 D. P. C. 598; 4 Jur. 292.

Affidavits of jurors as to what took place in open court, on the delivery of their verdict, are receivable. Roberts v. Hughes, 7 M. & W. 399; 10 L. J., Ex. 337.

The court refused to grant a rule for a new trial upon an affidavit stating that one of the jury declared in open court, in the presence and hearing of the others, that the verdict had been decided by lot. Burgess v. Langley, 5 Man. & G. 722; 1 D. & L. 21; 6 Scott (N.R.) 518; 12 L. J., C. P. 257.

A subsequent confession of a juryman to the defendant's attorney, that the jury drew lots which six of them should determine the verdict, and not otherwise proved to the court, is no ground for a new trial. Aylett v. Jewell, 2 W. Bl. 1299.

An affidavit of a person who was informed by a juryman of misconduct on the part of the jury will not be received as evidence of such misconduct. Davis v. Roper, 4 W. R. 9.

Affidavits in Opposition.]—Where a rule for a new trial is drawn up on reading affidavits imputing personal misconduct and partiality to some of the jurymen, affidavits of such jurymen, denying and explaining the conduct attributed to them, may be read on shewing cause against the rule. Standewick or Standerwicke v. Hopkins or Watkins, 2 D. & L. 502; 14 L. J., Q. B. 16; 9 Jur. 161.

The affidavit of a juryman is receivable to explain away an imputation of misconduct. Jones v. Powell, 4 W. R. 252.

Verdict given so as to carry Costs.]—It is no ground for setting aside a verdict, that the jury has given only a shilling damages, under a mistaken impression that it would carry costs. Meurs v. Griffin, 2 Scott (N.R.) 15; 1 Man. & G. 796.

In an action for a libel tending to ridicule the plaintiff, a sheriff's officer, in his calling, the judge told the jury that the publication was libellous. The jury asked what sum would carry costs, and being told that a shilling would, returned a verdict for the defendant; the court granted a new trial. Levy v. Milne, 12 Moore, 418; 4 Bing. 195; 5 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 153.

The judge told the jury that if they gave the plaintiff more than 40*s.* he could not influence the costs, but if they gave him less than 40*s.* each party would have to pay his own costs:—Held, no misdirection. Ib.

The counsel for the plaintiff told the jury that unless they gave damages for 5*l.* 5*s.*, in all probability the costs would be thrown upon the plaintiff:—Held, that he was wrong in so doing, and that the jury, in estimating damages, has no right to take into their consideration what amount will carry costs, the question of costs being with the judge. Poole v. Whitcombe, 12 C. B. (N.S.) 770; 3 F. & F. 79; 6 L. T. 783; 10 W. R. 732. S. P., Russell v. Wenlveser, 16 W. R. 710.

Although if a jury asks what amount of damages will carry costs, there is no reason why the judge should not inform them, yet giving a verdict in ignorance that it will not carry costs is no reason why, after an application for a certificate which implies that the verdict is recorded, the verdict should be disturbed. Kilmore v. Abdoolah, 27 L. J., Ex. 307.

20. Improper Influence on Jury.

Where, in a qui tam action for usury, the principal witness, the borrower, had distributed a printed memoir containing a statement of the case, which was only in effect what he proved, and it did not appear to have been seen by the jury, nor to be calculated to influence them:—Held, that the discovery of this circumstance after the trial was not a sufficient cause for a new trial. Spencely v. De Willott, 3 Smith, 321.

But where a plaintiff swore that hand-bills reflecting on his character had been distributed in court, and shewn to the jury at the trial, the court would not receive affidavits of the jury in contradiction, but granted a new trial, although the defendant denied all knowledge of the circulation or distribution of the hand-bills. Coster v. Merest, 3 Br. & B. 272; 7 Moore, 87; 1 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 2; 24 R. R. 667. S. C., nom. Coster v. Symons, 1 Car. & P. 148.

A witness called for the plaintiff, in answering a question put to him by the defendant's counsel on cross-examination, added a statement which was not evidence, and of which the judge did not make a note. The plaintiff's counsel, in his reply, observing upon the statement so made, was interrupted by one of the jury, who had understood the statement in a sense opposite to the truth. The plaintiff's counsel thereupon asked the judge to recall the witness, in order that the mistake might be corrected. The judge refused to do so, saying that the statement was not evidence, and told the jury that they must not take it into their consideration:—Held, that the decision of the judge was correct, and that the possibility of the jury having permitted their verdict to be influenced by the statement was no ground for a new trial. Cattlin v. Barker, 5 C. B. 201; 11 Jur. 1105.

A new trial was granted in a civil case in the time of Edward 3, because a great lord concerned in the cause sat on the bench at the trial. Anon., 6 Term Rep. 623.

Where two of the jury, during the progress of a trial which lasted two days, dined and slept at the house of the defendant on the evening of the first day, and consequently before the summing up:—Held, that this did not avoid a verdict found for him. Morris v. Vivian, 10 M. & W. 137; 2 D. (N.S.) 235; 11 L. J., Ex. 367.

Held, also, that it was discretionary with the court whether they would set aside the verdict, and grant a new trial in such a case. Ib.

The mere fact that some of the jury had during the adjournment of the trial been treated by one of the plaintiff's witnesses previously examined, who had told them that he knew more about the case than he had already stated in his evidence, thereby causing himself to be re-examined, does not necessarily invalidate the verdict subsequently found for the plaintiff. Harris v. Harris, Ir. R. 3 C. L. 294.

21. Verdict obtained by Trick or Surprise.

A verdict obtained by a trick was set aside without costs. Anderson v. George, 1 Burr. 352.

Surprise may be, not must be, a ground for a new trial. Edie v. East India Co., 1 W. Bl. 298; 2 Burr. 1216.

Where a cause, which was expected to last the whole day, was postponed, and an indictment for libel, which stood next in the paper, was tried out of its turn, and the defendants were found guilty, the court refused a new trial, on the ground of surprise. Reg. v. Richardson, 8 D. P. C. 511.

The court will not grant a new trial upon the ground of surprise, merely because the unsuccessful party has neglected properly to instruct his attorney. Tharpe v. Stallwood, 5 Man. & G. 760; 1 D. & L. 24; 6 Scott (N.R.) 715; 12 L. J., C. P. 241; 7 Jur. 492.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of surprise, though it appears on affidavit that a witness who was expected did not appear at the trial, unless it is stated that there was surprise. Hoare v. Silverlock, 19 L. J., C. P. 215.

A party must be wholly surprised by the evidence to entitle himself to a new trial on this ground; it is not enough that the fact which caused the surprise was not attempted to be elicited on cross-examination of his witness, but came upon him by way of defence. Roberts v. Holmes, 2 C. L. R. 726.

A party to a cause, who has not been called as a witness, cannot have a new trial on the ground of surprise, in regard to the effect of any conversation with himself, at all events if he admits some conversation to have occurred, and the effect of it is not necessarily decisive of the case. Holme v. Clark, 10 W. R. 527.

A new trial will not be granted to a defendant on the ground of surprise, in an action on a special count, merely because an amendment has been made in it at the trial, which in some degree altered the plaintiff's case, although it appears that if the new case had been raised in the first instance the defendant could have brought further evidence to disprove it. White v. S. E. Ry., 10 W. R. 564.

A new trial on the ground of surprise will not be granted in regard to a matter which was raised by the party at the trial, and merely to enable him to support it by further evidence not in its nature more conclusive. Timmins v. Birmingham Gas Co., 10 W. R. 546.

When an allegation of a matter of fact has been once fairly investigated between the litigating parties, before a competent judicature, the unsuccessful party not having been taken by surprise, nor being able to allege mistake, accident, or any subsequent discovery of a material kind, the investigation should be considered sufficient, and the judgment thereupon conclusive as between those parties. Waters v. Waters, 2 De G. & Sm. 591.

When a cause was about to be tried, negotiations took place ending in an agreement by the defendant to allow judgment to be signed, and by the plaintiff to withdraw the record. The defendant's attorney did not sign the agreement, and the plaintiff consequently went on to trial and obtained a verdict:—Held, that the plaintiff ought to have informed the defendant of his intention to go on, and as he did not the verdict was set aside. Skinner v. Tyson, 17 L. T. 551.

A party nonsuited for non-production of a document from a public office, is not entitled to a new trial on the ground of surprise, where he has served a clerk in the office with the subpœna duces tecum to produce the document, but has omitted to apply to the head of the office for permission for its production. Austin v. Evans, 2 Man. & G. 430.

When the clerk of the defendant's attorney had, in pursuance of the ordinary notice to admit documents, attended before the trial at the office of the plaintiff's attorney, and there inspected two deeds:—Held, on motion by the defendant for a new trial on the ground of surprise, that the court could not hold that the defendant was surprised by the production of the deeds at the trial or their effect. Caldwell v. Johnston, Ir. R. 6 C. L. 233.

Although a witness proves a fact to the surprise of the other party, and though by mistake he was not cross-examined, nor was any evidence given to contradict him, nor any observation made on his evidence, it is no ground for a new trial. Bell v. Thompson, 2 Chit. 194.

Although surprise be a good ground for a motion for a new trial, and affidavits may be used to establish that ground, they must be conclusive; and the facts in respect of which the evidence creating the surprise was given must be such as that the verdict may be mainly attributable to their effect upon the decision of the cause. Hartwright v. Badham, 11 Price, 383.

It is not, as a surprise, a ground for a new trial, that the evidence in the cause varied the facts of the case in proof from that put on the record by the pleadings, so as to defeat pleas of justification on the trial, by a variance in point of description in respect of a matter of which defendant was ignorant until so proved. Edwards v. Broxon, 2 Tyr. 163; 2 C. & J. 18.

A new trial will not be granted on the ground of surprise, where a witness has falsely stated an immaterial fact, which the other party was not prepared to contradict. Magnay v. Knight, 1 Drink. 20.

To constitute surprise a case must have been made at the trial which the opposite party could not reasonably have been expected to meet. Dillon v. City of Cork Steam Packet Co., Ir. R. 9 C. L. 118.

Unless sharp practice or fraud on the part of the plaintiff is shewn, the court will not disturb the verdict on the ground of surprise. Bransdon v. Didsbury, 9 D. P. C. 199; 1 W. P. C. 46; 12 A. & E. 631; 4 P. & D. 441.

22. Absence of Parties, their Solicitor or Counsel.

Where a verdict was obtained in the absence of the defendant, on account of no notice of trial being given, the court set aside the verdict, though he did not swear positively to a good defence on the merits. Williams v. Williams, 2 D. P. C. 350.

Where a cause which stood thirty off was taken out of its turn, as undefended, in the absence of the defendant's attorney, who was casually absent, no notice having been given that it would be taken as an undefended cause, the court set the verdict aside and granted a new trial. Aust v. Fenwick, 2 D. P. C. 246.

The court will not grant a new trial upon an affidavit by the defendant, stating that he was kept in ignorance by his late attorney of the state of the action, that he had a good defence upon the merits, and that the verdict passed against him by reason of the negligence of such attorney. Moody v. Dick, 4 N. & M. 348.

If a cause, which is meant to be defended, is called on, and tried as an undefended cause, in consequence of the defendant's attorney neglecting to deliver his briefs, the court will grant a new trial, compelling the attorney to pay the costs as between attorney and client out of his own pocket. De Roufigny v. Peale, 3 Taunt. 484; 12 R. R. 687.

A cause being entered, in a written list of the day, at nisi prius, is notice to the attorney that it may be tried at any time in the course of the day: therefore, where a cause had been for several days in that list, and tried out of its order as an undefended cause, in the absence of the defendant's attorney, the court granted a new trial, on the terms of payment of the costs of the former. Fourdrinier v. Bradbury, 3 B. & Ald. 328.

At the assizes in Yorkshire the causes are entered by the marshal in two lists, one for the E. R. and the other for the W. R. A cause having by mistake been entered in the wrong list was tried as an undefended cause, the defendant's attorney having searched only one list, without finding it; the court granted a new trial, and held, that the attorney was not bound to search both lists. Hunter v. Hornblower, 3 D. P. C. 491.

Where a cause was set down in the written list at nisi prius, and taken out of its turn as an undefended cause, and was tried as such, in the absence of the defendant's counsel and attorney, who were instructed to defend; the court refused to grant a new trial, without an affidavit of merits, though moved for on payment of costs. Blackhurst v. Bulmer, 1 D. & R. 553; 5 B. & Ald. 907.

A cause in which counsel had been instructed for the defendant, having been called on out of its turn, upon an allegation of the plaintiff's counsel that it was undefended, a verdict was taken for the plaintiff before the defendant's counsel arrived; the court granted a new trial, the costs of the application to abide the event of the cause. Dorrien v. Howell, 6 Bing. (N.C.) 245; 8 Scott, 508; 8 D. P. C. 277.

Where a cause was called on in its turn for trial, and no attorney being present, and no counsel instructed, on behalf of the plaintiff, he was nonsuited, the court granted a new trial, on payment of the costs of the day by the attorney for the plaintiff out of his own pocket, together with the costs of the application, to the defendant. Townley v. Jones, 8 C. B. (N.S.) 289; 29 L. J., C. P. 299; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 1158.

When a defendant has appeared by attorney and has not regularly displaced him, notice to such attorney, after an intimation from him that he has no instructions to defend the action, that it will be taken as an undefended case, will, if there is time for a counter-notice of an intention to defend, warrant the plaintiff in taking the case as undefended, although out of its order, on the morning of the day after the opening of the commission. Lett v. Watkins, 27 L. J., Ex. 319.

At the sittings after term in London, a cause was entered in the list of causes for trial in the second court of nisi prius. Notice was given in that court, during the temporary absence of the defendant (who appeared in person), that it would be taken in the first court, and after some interval of time it was accordingly then called on, and (the defendant not appearing) was taken as undefended. It did not appear that the defendant had been called in the second court. The court granted a new trial. Cook v. Beardsall, 29 L. J., Ex. 35; 1 L. T. 14.

The court will not grant a new trial, even on payment of costs, where the defendant or his attorney, having an opportunity of trying, permits a verdict to be taken against him, as in an undefended cause. Breach v. Casterton, 7 Bing. 242; 4 M. & P. 867; 9 L. J. (o.s.) C. P. 48.

The court refused to grant a new trial, on the ground that the cause had been called in the absence of the defendant's attorney, and that the plaintiff's case had been gone into, no one appearing on the other side, the affidavits on which the motion was founded not stating that any briefs had been prepared for counsel. Twilt v. Crawley, 1 M. & Scott, 229; 8 Bing. 144; 1 L. J., C. P. 49.

Whilst a cause stood on the paper for trial, the plaintiff having obtained an order to amend (which was, in fact, unnecessary), the defendant took out a summons to rescind that order for irregularity, and an order to that effect was obtained; whilst the second order was in discussion at chambers, the cause was tried, and the plaintiff obtained a verdict; the court refused to grant a new trial, without an affidavit of merits. Clark v. Manns, 1 D. P. C. 656.

Where a cause was taken out of its turn, and in the absence of the defendant, at the suggestion of the plaintiff, that it was a short one, the court refused to set aside the verdict. Cottam v. Banks, 1 B. C. Rep. 302; 11 Jur. 148.

Where a cause has been regularly tried as undefended, and a verdict taken for the plaintiff, in the negligent absence of the defendant's attorney, the court will grant a new trial on an affidavit of merits: but only on payment of costs. Third v. Goodier, 1 L. M. & P. 717.

The plaintiff in an action for crim. con. having been nonsuited, in consequence of the accidental absence of his attorney, the court granted a new trial on payment of costs as between attorney and client, it appearing that another action might be barred by the Statute of Limitations, and plaintiff be thereby precluded from taking ulterior proceedings. Ayling v. Goldring, 1 C. B. 635.

Where a cause was tried in the absence of the defendant's attorney, before the time specified in the notice of trial, the court set aside the verdict without an affidavit of merits. Hanslow v. Wilks, 5 D. P. C. 295.

A new trial granted in ejectment, upon payment of costs, and other equitable conditions, where the cause coming on unexpectedly had been tried as an undefended cause. Doe d. Cooling v. Appleby, 4 P. & D. 538; 9 D. P. C. 556.

The court refused to grant a new trial upon any terms where the cause had been taken (in its proper course) in the absence of the defendant's counsel, the defence intended to be set up being without equity. Blogg v. Bousquet, 6 C. B. 75.

Where a cause was taken out of its turn, upon the statement of the plaintiff's counsel that it was undefended, and it appeared that counsel had been instructed for the defendant, but that notice that the cause would be defended was not served till late on the previous night, the court granted a new trial, upon payment of the amount of damages into court; the costs of the trial and of the application to abide the event. De Medina v. Shrapnell, 12 L. J., C. P. 37.

When a cause has been entered for trial as undefended, it is the duty of the plaintiff's attorney, upon notice from the defendant of his intention to defend, to inform the court that the cause will be defended; and if it afterwards is tried as undefended out of its proper turn, a new trial will be granted without an affidavit of merits. Wolff v. Goldring, 44 L. J., C. P. 214; 32 L. T. 161; 23 W. R. 473.

23. Death of Parties.

In an action for negligence brought by an infant by his next friend, in which damages were recovered for injuries done to him, the death of the infant since the trial is no ground for granting a new trial, though the damages were presumably given on the supposition that the infant would continue to live. Kramer v. Waymark, 4 H. & C. 427; 35 L. J., Ex. 148; L. R. 1 Ex. 241; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 395; 14 L. T. 368; 14 W. R. 659.

The circumstance that the plaintiff was dead when an issue was tried, being unknown at the trial, does not afford a ground for a new trial. Bird v. Kerr, 4 Kay & J. 270.

Application to Court of Appeal.]—See Ord. XXXIX. r. 1.

—— Cases before this Rule.]—When the judge at a trial with a jury directs a finding to be given upon facts which are not really in dispute, and thereupon gives judgment for the party in whose favour the finding is entered, the party against whom judgment is given, if he is dissatisfied with the finding, may apply to a divisional court for a new trial, but cannot in the first instance appeal from the judgment to the Court of Appeal. Yetts v. Foster, 3 C. P. D. 437; 38 L. T. 742; 26 W. R. 745—C. A.

Where an action has been tried by a judge without a jury, if the unsuccessful party is dissatisfied with the judgment either on the ground that the judge has misdirected himself as to the law, or that his findings as to the facts are against the weight of evidence, the proper mode of obtaining relief is by appeal to the Court of Appeal, and not by motion for a new trial. Potter v. Cotton, 49 L. J., Q. B. 158; 5 Ex. D. 137; 41 L. T. 460; 28 W. R. 160—C. A.

Where an action has been tried by a judge of one of the common law divisions without a jury, an appeal lies direct to the Court of Appeal. It is not proper in such a case to move for a new trial. Pannell v. Nunn, 28 W. R. 940—C. A.

When, at the close of the plaintiff's case, the judge, being asked to rule that there was no evidence for the jury, left certain questions to them, which they answered in the plaintiff's favour, and judgment was entered pursuant to the findings:—Held, that the defendant, as he complained of misdirection, which, if made out, would result in a new trial, could not appeal direct to the Court of Appeal, but must apply in the first instance to the divisional court. Davies v. Felix, 48 L. J., Ex. 3; 4 Ex. D. 32; 39 L. T. 322; 27 W. R. 108—C. A.

After a trial by a judge without a jury, any application for a new trial must be made to the Court of Appeal under Ord. XXXIX. r. 1, whatever the ground of it may be. Oastler v. Henderson, 46 L. J., Q. B. 607; 2 Q. B. D. 575; 37 L. T. 22—C. A.

Upon a nonsuit at a trial before a judge and jury, an application for a new trial ought to be made to the divisional court, and not to the Court of Appeal. Etty v. Wilson, 47 L. J., Ex. 664; 3 Ex. D. 359; 39 L. T. 83—C. A.

Where, on a trial in the Chancery Division, the judge has not found a separate verdict on a question of fact, but has decided the case as a whole according to the old practice of the Court of Chancery, a motion for a new trial on the ground of improper rejection of evidence cannot be made, the remedy of the unsuccessful party being by appeal from the order, and the Court of Appeal having power at the hearing of the appeal to admit any evidence which may have been improperly rejected. Dollman v. Jones, 12 Ch. D. 553; 41 L. T. 258; 27 W. R. 877—C. A. And see Lowe v. Lowe, 48 L. J., Ch. 383; 10 Ch. D. 432; 40 L. T. 236; 27 W. R. 309—C. A.

—— Chancery Division—Trial at Assizes.]—Where the issue of fact in an action in the Chancery Division has been tried by a jury before a judge of a common law division, an application for a new trial of the issue was heard by the judge of the Chancery Division to whose court the action was attached. Jenkins v. Morris, 49 L. J., Ch. 392; 14 Ch. D. 674; 42 L. T. 817—C. A.

When an action, commenced in the Chancery Division, has been tried by a jury before one of the judges of a common law division, it is thenceforth transferred to the division to which the judge belongs, and an application for a new trial must therefore be made to a divisional court of that division. But this does not apply to an action in which an issue has been directed by a judge of the Chancery Division. The action in that case still remains attached to the Chancery Division. Jones v. Baxter, 5 Ex. D. 275; 28 W. R. 817—C. A.

When an action attached to the Chancery Division has been tried by a jury before a judge of one of the common law divisions, application for a new trial must be made to a divisional court. Hunt v. City of London Real Property Co., 47 L. J., Q. B. 42; 3 Q. B. D. 19; 37 L. T. 344; 26 W. R. 37—C. A.

Trial at Bar—Application not Ex parte.]—Where an information to recover penalties under the Parliamentary Oaths Act of 1866 has been tried at bar, a motion for a new trial must not be made ex parte, but upon notice of motion to the other side. Att.-Gen. v. Bradlaugh, 54 L. J., Q. B. 205; 14 Q. B. D. 667; 52 L. T. 589; 33 W. R. 673—C. A.

Notice of Motion.]—A notice of motion for a new trial on the ground of misdirection should state how and in what matter the judge misdirected the jury. Pfeiffer v. Midland Ry., 18 Q. B. D. 243; 35 W. R. 335. S. P., Murfett v. Smith, 56 L. J., P. 87; 12 P. D. 116; 57 L. T. 498; 35 W. R. 460; 51 J. P. 374. And Taplin v. Taplin, 57 L. J., P. 79; 13 P. D. 100; 58 L. T. 925; 37 W. R. 256; 52 J. P. 406.

It is a sufficient statement of the grounds in a rule for a new trial, that "the judge's direction to the jury that the plaintiff was entitled only to nominal damages was wrong." Watson v. Lane, 2 Jur. (N.S.) 119.

—— Amendment.]—The court will not allow a rule for a new trial to be amended, by providing that the suit should not abate in the event of the death of the defendant where a surety had previously entered into a bond for payment of the damages and costs of the second trial. Lopez v. De Tastet, 8 Taunt. 712.

A rule for a new trial having been made absolute on payment of costs by the defendant, the court refused to expunge the conditional words upon suggestion that the plaintiff's attorney was not on the roll. Punter v. Grantley (Lord), 3 Scott (N.R.) 647; 3 Man. & G. 295. See Ord. XXXIX. r. 5.

Time within which Application made.]—See Ord. XXXIX. r. 4.

—— Before this Rule.]—According to the proper interpretation of Ord. XXXIX. r. 1a, as amended by the Rules of March, 1879, a party applying for a new trial has the whole of four days within which to move; and if no divisional court sits upon the fourth day his time is then extended to the next sitting of a divisional court. Grant v. Holland, 49 L. J., Q. B. 800; 29 W. R. 32.

In computing the time within which a motion for a new trial of a cause tried in the Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, or Exchequer Divisions must have been made under Ord. XXXIX. r. 1, days on which the divisional court was not actually sitting were not to be reckoned before the Rules of Court of the 1st December, 1876, Ord. XXXIX. repealing the first-mentioned order. Hallums v. Hills, 46 L. J., Q. B. 88; 24 W. R. 956—C. A.

The time for an application for a new trial on the ground of misdirection under Ord. XXXIX. r. 6, begins to run from the time when the jury is discharged. Shaw v. Hope, 25 W. R. 729.

—— Extension of Time.]—Where a party failed to appeal from such interlocutory order within twenty-one days, under the mistaken belief that such order was final, and that appeal might be brought at any time within twelve months:—Held, that such mistake was not a circumstance which would justify the court in enlarging the time for appealing after the expiration of the twenty-one days under Ord. LVII. r. 6. Highton

v. Treherne, 48 L. J., Ex. 167; 39 L. T. 411; 27 W. R. 245—C. A.

The Court of Appeal has power, under Ord. LVIII. r. 5, to enlarge the time for moving for a new trial. Purnell v. G. W. Ry., 45 L. J., Q. B. 687; 1 Q. B. D. 636; 35 L. T. 605; 24 W. R. 909—C. A.

A married woman believing her husband to be dead, went through the ceremony of marriage with another man and had several children by him. She afterwards obtained a decree for judicial separation against her second husband, the jury having found—first, that he had committed adultery; and secondly, that the first husband was dead at the time of the second marriage. The second husband, having subsequently ascertained that the first husband was alive, instituted a suit for nullity of marriage, and applied to the Court of Appeal for a new trial of the wife's suit, notwithstanding the expiration of the time limited for that purpose by the Rules of the Supreme Court:—Held, that the court had jurisdiction to extend the time, but that such extension ought not to be granted except upon the terms of the applicant making a suitable provision for his supposed wife. Wilkins v. Wilkins, 65 L. J., P. 55; [1896] P. 108; 74 L. T. 62; 44 W. R. 305—C. A.

A suggestion of perjury on the part of a defendant and his witnesses, and that fresh evidence has been discovered by the plaintiff since the expiration of the time for moving for a new trial, affords no ground for asking the court to dispense with the rule of court as to time. Gambart v. Mayne, 14 C. B. (N.S.) 320.

The court has a discretionary power, after the lapse of the four days for giving notice of appeal from a judgment, upon an application for a new trial, to enlarge the time for giving such notice. Ward v. Lumley, 5 H. & N. 656; 29 L. J., Ex. 372; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 560; 8 W. R. 543.

Where the point had been reserved, and it was sworn that there was an intention to give the notice and that it had been omitted within the four days by mere mistake, and there had been verbal notice of the intention, and the application was made promptly, the court allowed the formal notice to be given. Ib.

On an application for further time to deliver notice of appeal from a decision on a motion for a new trial, within four days from the time of the decision, it is necessary not only to shew sufficient reason to account for the default, but likewise to satisfy the court, that supposing the court had originally a discretionary power to allow an appeal, the court could have allowed it in the particular case. Watson v. Lane, 25 L. J., Ex. 240.

It is not a sufficient reason for the default, that the attorney inadvertently allowed the time to elapse. Ib.

Parties—Notice to Co-defendant.]—An action was brought against A. and B. to recover damages for tort, and a verdict was returned against A. and in favour of B. A. obtained an order calling upon the plaintiff only to shew cause why a new trial should not be granted, which order was subsequently discharged. A. appealed:—Held, that an order for a new trial would not be made in the absence of B., and B. was ordered to be served with notice of the appeal, and directed to shew cause to the Court of Appeal why a new trial should not be granted against him, although the time for moving for a new trial had expired. Purnell v. G. W. Ry., 45 L. J., Q. B. 687; 1 Q. B. D. 636; 34 L. T. 822; 24 W. R. 720—C. A.

—— Who may be heard.]—A. and B. were found to be next of kin by the master, who rejected C.'s claim. C. excepted to the report, and upon an issue directed by the court he was found to be sole next of kin. A. alone moved for a new trial:—Held, that B. might be heard in support of the motion. Johnston v. Todd, 5 Beav. 394.

Cause cannot be shewn on behalf of the attorney who claims a lien on the verdict for his costs. Sloman v. Allen, 1 Man. & G. 96, n. S. P., Wiedemann v. Walpole, 56 J. P. 5—C. A.

Security for Costs.]—A party moving in the Court of Appeal under the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1890, and the Rule of the Supreme Court, August, 1890, for a new trial, after trial of an action with a jury, will not be ordered to give security for the costs of the motion. Heckscher v. Crosley, 60 L. J., Q. B. 75; [1891] 1 Q. B. 224; 39 W. R. 211—C. A.

—— Foreigner resident Abroad.]—The plaintiff, a foreign resident abroad, having no property within the jurisdiction, was unsuccessful upon a trial with a jury, and moved for a new trial: the defendant applied that the plaintiff should be ordered to give security for the costs of the motion:—Held, that the proper practice was to make the application in the first instance at chambers, subject to an appeal direct to the Court of Appeal. Bentsen v. Taylor, 62 L. J., Q. B. 516; [1893] 2 Q. B. 193; 4 R. 508; 69 L. T. 333; 41 W. R. 593—C. A.

Postponing Hearing.]—Where a motion for a new trial is to be made conditionally on the result of a decision pending in a similar cause, notice of motion should be given in the ordinary way and application should be made to the court to postpone the hearing till after such decision is given. Peckett v. Short, 32 W. R. 123.

Staying Proceedings pending Application.]—The Court of Appeal, following the former practice of the divisional court, will not grant a stay of execution pending an application for a new trial except under special circumstances: and the mere allegation either that there has been a misdirection, or that the verdict was against the evidence, or that there was no evidence to go to the jury, is not to be considered as a special circumstance. Monk v. Bartram, 60 L. J., Q. B. 267; [1891] 1 Q. B. 364; 64 L. T. 45; 39 W. R. 310—C. A.

When an order nisi for a new trial has been refused by a divisional court, and granted on appeal by the Court of Appeal, such order should not include a stay of proceedings. A stay of proceedings in such a case must be obtained by a substantive application to the divisional court or a judge in chambers or from the Court of Appeal on appeal from such substantive application. Goddard v. Thompson, 47 L. J., Q. B. 382; 38 L. T. 166; 26 W. R. 362—C. A.

The Court of Appeal has no original jurisdiction in any case to order a stay of proceedings or execution. Ib.

Jurisdiction—Verdict for one and against another Defendant.]—In an action for negligence against a railway company and also against H. the verdict was in his favour and against the company. Notice of an order nisi for a new trial, obtained by the company, on the ground that the verdict was against the weight of evidence, was, by direction of the court, served on H. The order nisi was discharged by the Queen's Bench Division, and the company appealed, but gave no notice of the appeal to H. At the hearing the Court of Appeal directed notice of the appeal to be served by the plaintiff on H., and also notice to him to shew cause why a new trial should not be had against him. He accordingly appeared, but under protest, alleging that the court had no jurisdiction to call on him to shew cause, since he had been discharged by the finding of the jury and the order of the court below, and since the four days within which, under Ord. XXXIX. r. 1, a motion for a new trial ought to be made had elapsed :—Held, that the court had jurisdiction. After hearing H. shew cause, the court made the order absolute for a new trial against both defendants. Purnell v. G. W. Ry., 45 L. J., Q. B. 687 ; 1 Q. B. D. 636 ; 35 L. T. 605 ; 24 W. R. 909—C. A.

The court cannot grant a new trial as to one defendant, where a verdict has been found against him, and for the other defendants. Doe d. Dudgeon v. Martin, 2 D. & L. 678 ; 13 M. & W. 811 ; 14 L. J., Ex. 128.

Where, in an action against five defendants, a verdict has been found against four, and in favour of one a rule by the four for a new trial ought to be drawn up calling upon the other defendant, as well as the plaintiff, to shew cause why a new trial should not be granted. Belcher v. Magnay, 13 M. & W. 815, n. ; 3 D. & L. 70 ; 14 L. J., Ex. 305 ; 9 Jur. 475.

In an action for false imprisonment against two, where a verdict has been given against one, it is no ground for refusing a new trial to him, that the other has obtained a verdict. Green v. Elgie, 2 Q. B. 99 ; 8 Jur. 187.

Where a rule nisi for a new trial is obtained by one only of two defendants, although it must be served upon the other, he cannot be heard in support of the rule, but he may shew cause against its being made absolute. Wakley v. Healey, 18 L. J., Ex. 426.

In an action of tort against seventeen defendants, two suffered judgment by default, fifteen pleaded the general issue ; the plaintiff entered a nol. pros. against one of the two, obtained a verdict of 900*l.* against the other, and the jury found their verdict in favour of the fifteen. The verdict as to five of the fifteen being unwarranted, the court granted a new trial against them, leaving the verdict against the others, and that against the defendant who suffered judgment by default, untouched. Price v. Harris, 10 Bing. 331 ; 3 M. & Scott. 838 ; 3 L. J., C. P. 73.

A verdict having been found for two defendants, in an action for work and labour done, a rule for a new trial was moved for on the ground of misdirection ; but it being admitted that there was no evidence against one of the defendants, the court, in granting the rule nisi, imposed as a term that his name should be struck out of the declaration, and the plaintiff should pay his costs. De Bernardy v. Harding, 8 Ex. 821 ; 22 L. J., Ex. 340.

—— Power to enter Judgment.]—On an application for a new trial under 53 & 54 Vict. c. 44, the Court of Appeal has power to enter judgment instead of ordering a new trial, where it is satisfied that the verdict is perverse and that no further evidence could be given. Allcock v. Hall, 60 L. J., Q. B. 416 ; [1891] 1 Q. B. 444 ; 64 L. T. 309 ; 39 W. R. 443—C. A.

The Court of Appeal has power under Ord. LVIII. r. 4, to enter judgment instead of sending a case down for a new trial where it has come to the conclusion that the verdict is against the weight of evidence, and that all the facts are before the court. Millar v. Toulmin, 55 L. J., Q. B. 445 ; 17 Q. B. D. 603 ; 34 W. R. 695—C. A. See S. C. in H. L., infra.

Quære, whether on appeal from an order of a divisional court upon an application for a new trial on the ground of the verdict being against the weight of evidence, the Court of Appeal has power to give judgment for the appellants instead of directing a new trial. Millar v. Toulmin (17 Q. B. D. 603) doubted. Toulmin v. Millar, 57 L. J., Q. B. 301 ; 12 App. Cas. 746 ; 58 L. T. 96—H. L. (E.)

A rule of court which provides that "upon a motion for judgment or for a new trial, the court may, if satisfied that it has before it all the materials necessary for finally determining the questions in dispute, or any of them, or for awarding any relief sought, give judgment accordingly," does not empower the court when and because it has set aside one or more findings which have been made matters of objection, to disregard or negative other findings of the jury which have not been objected to. Ogilvie v. West Australian Mortgage and Agency Corporation, 65 L. J., P. C. 46 ; [1896] A. C. 257 ; 74 L. T. 201—P. C.

A defendant, in an action which had been tried by a judge without a jury, gave notice of appeal against the judgment, and also obtained ex parte a rule nisi for a new trial. He did not set down the appeal for hearing, but, before the argument of the rule for a new trial, gave fresh notice of appeal from the judgment. There was a substantial question to be tried as to the measure of damages :—Held, that the second notice of appeal was unnecessary, inasmuch as the whole question could be tried under Rules of Supreme Court, 1875, Ord. XL. r. 10, upon the application to make the rule for a new trial absolute. Waddell v. Blockley, 10 Ch. D. 416 ; 40 L. T. 286 ; 27 W. R. 233—C. A.

Where a judge entered judgment for the plaintiffs on special findings of a jury, and the defendants moved in a divisional court for a new trial on the ground that the findings were against the weight of evidence :—Held, that the divisional court had jurisdiction, under Ord. XL. r. 10, to enter final judgment for the defendants. Hamilton v. Johnson, 49 L. J., Q. B. 155 ; 5 Q. B. D. 263 ; 41 L. T. 461—C. A.

The Appellate Jurisdiction Act, 1876 (39 & 40 Vict. c. 59), and the Rules of December, 1876, have not altered Ord. XL. r. 10. Therefore the divisional court on a motion to set aside a verdict which has been found for the plaintiff, instead of ordering a new trial, may give judgment for the defendant, where such court is satisfied that there is really no evidence to support the verdict, and that it has before it all the materials necessary for finally determining the question in dispute. Daun v. Simmins, 48 L. J., C. P. 343. Affirmed, 41 L. T. 783 ; 28 W. R. 129 ; 44 J. P. 264—C. A. S. P., Yorkshire Banking Co. v. Beatson, 49 L. J., C. P. 380 ; 5 C. P. D. 109 ; 42 L. T. 455 ; 28 W. R. 879—C. A.

The Court of Appeal has power under Ord. XL. r. 10, to order judgment in an interpleader action to be entered for the execution creditor without directing a new trial. Williams v. Mercier or Mercier v. Williams, 51 L. J., Q. B. 594; 9 Q. B. D. 337; 47 L. T. 140; 30 W. R. 270—C. A.

When judgment has been given in an action tried before a jury who have found specially the facts in dispute, upon a motion in the High Court to set aside the findings, the court has power to set aside the judgment and enter it for the unsuccessful party at the trial, if they are of opinion that the findings and the judgment at the trial cannot stand, and if they have before them all the materials necessary for finally determining the questions in dispute. Hamilton v. Johnson, 49 L. J., Q. B. 155; 5 Q. B. D. 263; 41 L. T. 461; 28 W. R. 879—C. A.

Power to review Findings as to Facts.]—Where a trial has taken place before a judge without a jury, the Court of Appeal, in all cases except that of surprise, has jurisdiction upon an appeal to review the findings as to the facts, without a rule for a new trial having been obtained. Jones v. Hough, 49 L. J., Ex. 211; 5 Ex. D. 115; 42 L. T. 108—C. A.

Terms—Condition as to Costs.]—Where a new trial is granted on the ground of the unsatisfactory nature of the verdict, a condition should not be imposed that the party applying for the new trial should pay the costs of the previous trial. Metropolitan Asylum District v. Hill, 47 L. T. 29; 47 J. P. 148—H. L. (E.)

The court will not make the payment of the costs of the day a condition precedent to the plaintiff's proceeding to a second trial. Doe d. Evans v. Edwards, 2 D. P. C. 572.

Where the Court of Queen's Bench grants a rule to set aside a trial and verdict, in a cause that has been taken as undefended, on an affidavit of merits by the defendant, it is not the practice to make the payment of costs by the defendant on a particular day a condition in the rule. Bland v. Warren, 2 N. & P. 97; 6 D. P. C. 21.

Where a cause was taken by mistake, the court refused to make the payment of costs a condition for a new trial. Etherington v. Kemp, 1 Chit. 634.

Where a bankrupt sued for the benefit of his assignees, the court refused to grant a new trial, unless his assignees would abide by the verdict, and become responsible for the costs. Noble v. Adams, 7 Taunt. 59; 2 Marsh. 366; Holt, 248; 17 R. R. 445.

Certain issues having been tried, and verdicts found for the plaintiffs, the defendants moved for a new trial, upon which it was ordered that the plaintiffs' costs of the trial should be taxed, and that, upon the defendants paying those costs, a new trial should be had:—Held that the defendants were not compellable to pay the costs under the order, unless they thought fit to proceed to a new trial. Lambert v. Fisher, 7 Sim. 525. Affirmed, Ib., 528, n.

—— Appeal.]—An appeal will not be allowed simply in respect of costs, but it does not follow that a condition involving the payment of costs is to be considered as a dispute merely about costs, in a case in which the Court of Appeal affirmed an order of the Queen's Bench Division granting a new trial to the defendants in an action, but imposed the condition that the defendants should pay the costs of the first trial:—Held, that the defendants were entitled to appeal against the order coupled with this condition. Metropolitan Asylum District v. Hill, 49 L. J., Q. B. 745; 5 App. Cas. 582; 43 L. T. 225; 28 W. R. 663—H. L. (E.)

History of Practice as to granting New Trials.]—See S. E. Ry. v. Smitherman, per Blackburn (Lord), 47 J. P. 773—H. L. (E.)

Affidavits Receivable.]—Upon a motion for a new trial, in an action for breach of promise of marriage, on the ground that the damages are excessive:—Semble, that the court will not receive the affidavit of the defendant, for the purpose of explaining or contradicting the evidence given at the trial. Berry v. Da Costa, 1 H. & R. 291; 35 L. J., C. P. 191; L. R. 1 C. P. 331; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 588; 14 W. R. 279.

When a rule for a new trial had been moved for on behalf of a plaintiff on the ground of surprise, and had been granted, the court would not afterwards, when cause was shewn against the rule, allow fresh affidavits to be used, made since the motion, for the purpose of shewing that there was reasonable ground for believing that the plaintiff would succeed at the new trial; although the affidavits before the court sufficiently disclosed surprise in fact, and two of the judges thought that justice had not been done at the trial. Horrocks v. Maudsley, 23 L. T. 853.

Affidavits cannot be used to supply alleged omissions in a judge's notes of evidence in a trial before him. Coles v. Bulman, 17 L. J., C. P. 302; 12 Jur. 586.

Upon a motion for a new trial in an action of crim. con. on the ground of surprise, the court received the affidavit of the defendant, but not that of the plaintiff's wife. Hawker v. Seale, 17 C. B. 595. S. P., Ling v. Croker, 2 C. B. (N.S.) 760.

An affidavit to contradict the statement of a judge as to what occurred at the trial before him is inadmissible. Rex v. Grant, 3 N. & M. 106; 5 B. & Ad. 1081.

Upon an application to set aside a verdict on the ground of excessive damages, the court will not receive the affidavits of the defendant's witnesses, either to explain or to add to evidence given by them at the trial. Phillips v. Hatfield, 8 D. P. C. 882.

—— Of Jurymen.]—The affidavit of a juryman may be received to explain the circumstances under which he came into the jury box, on the trial of a cause affecting his own interest, though his affidavit of what occurred in the box during the trial is not receivable. Bailey v. Macaulay, 13 Q. B. 815; 19 L. J., Q. B. 73; 14 Jur. 80.

On motion for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was entered by mistake, the court received the affidavit of a juryman as to what occurred in open court, on delivery of the verdict. Roberts v. Hughes, 1 D. (N.S.) 82.

Affidavits of jurymen are admissible as to matters which pass openly in court; but where there is a judge's report on the same points, that is conclusive. Everett v. Youells, 1 N. & M. 530; 4 B. & Ad. 681.

An affidavit of a juryman is not admissible to shew what was said by a judge at the trial of a cause where the judge's notes are before the court. Ib.

Affidavits of jurymen to the effect that they did not understand the answers given by their foreman to certain questions put to them, to amount to a finding for the plaintiff, are inadmissible. Raphael v. Bank of England, 17 C. B. 161; 25 L. J., C. P. 33; 4 W. R. 10. S. P., Rex v. Wooller, 6 M. & S. 366. See also cases, ante, col. 530.

Judge Explaining Finding.]—When by agreement the jury was discharged and the cause submitted to the decision of the judge:—Held, that on a motion for a new trial or to take a verdict for the plaintiff, it was competent for the judge to explain to the court the reasons and precise meaning of his finding. Chatterton v. Cave, 47 L. J., C. P. 545; 3 App. Cas. 483; 38 L. T. 397; 26 W. R. 498—H. L. (E.)

Point not raised at Trial.]—A new trial will not be granted on a point not taken at the trial until after the case on both sides has been closed. Eyre v. New Forest Highway Board, 56 J. P. 517—C. A.

Where at a trial the defendant's counsel relied upon one particular point, and advisedly abstained from raising others which might have been raised, on the argument of a rule for a new trial on the ground of misdirection, the court confined the counsel to the point raised at the trial. Jones v. Provincial Insurance Co., 3 C. B. (N.S.) 65; 26 L. J., C. P. 272; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 1004; 5 W. R. 885. S. P., Green v. Read, 8 L. T. 83; and cp. cases, ante, col. 519.

Leave to appeal, in an action for infringement of a patent, was granted, and the court added to the leave, "and also on the ground that, taking the specification and disclaimer to be good, there was no evidence to go to the jury of infringement." This second point had not been discussed in the court below. The exchequer chamber affirmed the judgment of the court below, on the question of the sufficiency of the specification and disclaimer, but directed a new trial, on the ground that there was no evidence of infringement to go to the jury:—Held, that the exchequer chamber had authority to grant a new trial. Seed v. Higgins, 8 H. L. Cas. 550.

Where an application for a new trial has been refused, the applicant cannot on appeal raise an objection that was not raised at the trial. Greene v. Bateman, L. R. 5 H. L. 591.

On a motion for a new trial, counsel cannot present a point which does not appear by the judge's notes to have been raised at the trial. Gibbs v. Pike, 1 D. (N.S.) 409; 9 M. & W. 351; 12 L. J., Ex. 257; 6 Jur. 465.

Disagreement of Jury—Agreement to accept Verdict of Majority.]—On the trial of an action in the county court, there being a disagreement of the jury, the parties were asked by the judge if they would accept the verdict of the majority, and they consented to do so, but afterwards the unsuccessful party applied for, and obtained from the judge a new trial, on the ground that the finding of the jury was against the weight of evidence and unreasonable:—Held, that the learned county court judge had power to entertain the application for a new trial, notwithstanding the consent of the parties to accept the verdict of the majority of the jury, the learned judge being within his jurisdiction in holding that the consent of the parties to accept the verdict of the majority meant no more than that they agreed to treat that as equivalent to a unanimous verdict. Groome v. Sluker, 69 L. T. 293.

Waiver of Right.]—If the plaintiff's counsel acquiesces in the judge's ruling, whereby the defendant takes a verdict without going into his case, the plaintiff cannot afterwards move for a new trial on the ground of misdirection. Robinson v. Cook, 6 Taunt. 336; 16 R. R. 624.

Where the plaintiff's counsel, after a judge has begun to sum up, proposes to be nonsuited, he cannot move to set aside the nonsuit, notwithstanding the judge may have expressed a strong opinion as to the effect of the evidence. Simpson v. Clayton, 2 Bing. (N.C.) 467; 2 Scott, 691; 5 L. J., C. P. 91. See Butler v. Dorant, 3 Taunt. 229.

By submitting to a nonsuit, not spontaneously, but in deference to an opinion expressed by the judge that the action is not maintainable, a plaintiff is not precluded from moving to set that nonsuit aside. Sweet v. Lee, 3 Man. & G. 452; 4 Scott (N.R.) 77; 5 Jur. 1134.

Submitting to a nonsuit, in deference to the opinion of the judge at the trial, which opinion is incorrect, does not estop the plaintiff from moving to set aside such nonsuit. Alexander v. Barker, 2 C. & J. 133; 2 Tyr. 140; 1 L. J., Ex. 40.

If a plaintiff elects to be nonsuited instead of allowing his case to go to the jury, he cannot afterwards move to set aside the nonsuit. Barnes v. Whiteman, 1 W. P. C. 17; 9 D. P. C. 181.

On what Points.]—Where a legal objection is taken at the trial, and overruled by the judge, without reserving the point, and the court is afterwards of opinion that the objection was a good ground of nonsuit, the court will grant a new trial only, and will not permit a nonsuit to be entered. Minchin v. Clement, 1 B. & Ald. 252.

When leave is reserved to move to enter a nonsuit upon one point only, the court when it has the facts before them upon the judge's notes, will take the whole of these facts into its consideration, and will come to such a decision as these facts require. Doe d. Pritchard v. Dodd, 2 N. & M. 838.

If leave is reserved to enter a nonsuit, the court will, notwithstanding the leave reserved being thus restricted in point of form, order a verdict to be entered for the defendant on one issue without disturbing the verdict found for the plaintiff on another, if that course seems most consistent with doing justice between the parties. Winterbottom v. Derby (Earl), 36 L. J., Ex. 194; L. R. 2 Ex. 316; 16 L. T. 771; 16 W. R. 15. See Ord. XXXIX. r. 6.

Court equally divided.]—When on a rule to enter a nonsuit, and for a new trial, the court was equally divided in opinion, the court, instead of allowing the rule to drop, discharged it, in order to enable the parties to appeal. Burnett v. Allen, 4 Jur. (N.S.) 488.

If a rule for a new trial drops in consequence of the judges being equally divided in opinion, the party who obtained the rule may appeal. Levi v. Green, 4 Jur. (N.S.) 86; 6 W. R. 209.

Money paid into Court.]—The amount of the verdict and costs, paid into court by the defendant to obtain a stay of execution, ordered to be paid back to him after the verdict had been set aside and a new trial granted. Cosgrave v. Trade Auxiliary Co., Ir. R. 8 C. L. 165.

Appeal from Discretion.]—In ejectment for the recovery of premises by reason of a forfeiture for breach of covenant, for converting dwelling-houses into shops, the court held that the user of the premises in their altered state for more than twenty years, with the knowledge of the lessor, although occasionally complained of, was evidence from which a jury might presume a licence:—Held, that the court might have granted a new trial, but as in its discretion it did not, the Court of Appeal would not exercise a counter-discretion by granting such new trial. Gibson v. Doeg, 7 L. T. 71; 10 W. R. 581—Ex. Ch.

Costs.]—See COSTS.

a. GENERALLY.

Junior Judge withdrawing Judgment.]—Upon a special case stated in Ord. XXXIV. r. 2, in case of a difference of opinion, the junior judge withdraws his judgment. South Staffordshire Tramways v. Sickness and Accident Assurance Association, 60 L. J., Q. B. 473; [1891] 1 Q. B. 402; 63 L. T. 807; 55 J. P. 168. S. P., Metropolitan Ry. v. Fowler, 60 L. J., Q. B. 518; 64 L. T. 662; 39 W. R. 652.

On a case coming before a divisional court on points of law raised on the pleadings under Ord. XXV. r. 2, the court was divided in opinion, and the junior judge withdrew his judgment to enable the case to be taken to the Court of Appeal. Consett Waterworks Co. v. Ritson, 22 Q. B. D. 318; 60 L. T. 360; 53 J. P. 373.

In a case referred by the judge sitting in chambers to the divisional court, the judges differed in opinion, and the junior judge withdrew his judgment. Hodgson v. Bell, 24 Q. B. D. 302; 62 L. T. 481; 54 J. P. 455.

On an appeal from a county court, the divisional court was divided in opinion and the junior judge withdrew his judgment. Stevens v. Hounslow Burial Board, 61 L. T. 839; 38 W. R. 236; 54 J. P. 309.

In a revenue case on appeal by the crown to the divisional court, the judges were divided in opinion; the junior judge withdrew his judgment in accordance with the old practice in the Court of Exchequer. Reg. v. Income Tax Commissioners, 22 Q. B. D. 305; 59 L. T. 832; 37 W. R. 294; 53 J. P. 198. S. P., Colquhoun v. Brooks, 57 L. J., Q. B. 70; 19 Q. B. D. 418; 57 L. T. 455; 36 W. R. 332: Reg. v. Income Tax Commissioners, 57 L. J., Q. B. 337; 20 Q. B. D. 549; 59 L. T. 455; 36 W. R. 671; 52 J. P. 695.

The withdrawal of the judgment of the junior judge only takes place where there is an appeal, at least I am not prepared to say that if there were no appeal it would be done, because judges are equal in point of authority.—Per Lord Esher, M.R. Colquhoun v. Brooks, 21 Q. B. D., p. 56.

Where a case, requiring to be heard before a divisional court, is heard by a court consisting of only two judges, and these judges differ in opinion, the proper practice is to have the case re-heard before three or more judges of that division, and the old practice of one of the judges withdrawing his judgment should not be adopted. Where one of two judges withdraws his judgment, the order made is that of a single judge, and not of a divisional court. Greene v. Thornton, 16 L. R., Ir. 381—C. A.

Where two judges are sitting, and have arrived at opposite opinions in respect of any particular case, the old practice of the queen's bench division will be resorted to, and the junior judge will withdraw his judgment. Att.-Gen. v. Noyes, 44 L. T. 809.

Grounds of Dissent should be stated.]—A judge who differs from the opinion of the majority of a court from which an appeal lies, should always state fully the ground of his dissent, in order to guide the unsuccessful party as to the propriety of an appeal. Price v. Salusbury, 14 L. T. 110—H. L.

Contrary to Facts — Indemnity — Costs.]—When persons, even without mala fides, make or adopt a statement, the contrary of which they ought to have known by reasonable diligence to be the truth, and a wrongful order is made by the court grounded on such statement, all such persons are liable to indemnify the persons who suffer through such an order from all the consequences. Spencer, In re, 39 L. J., Ch. 841; 21 L. T. 808; 18 W. R. 240.

The primary liability in respect of costs falls upon the solicitor, through whose agency the order was obtained, and the primary liability as to the fund lost though the order falls upon those who wrongfully received it. Ib.

Joinder of Parties.]—Notwithstanding a misjoinder of plaintiffs, the court permits a decree to be made at the hearing, when it appears that justice can be done to all parties, notwithstanding the misjoinder. Lambert v. Hutchinson, 1 Beav. 277; 8 L. J., Ch. 196.

If the defendant has a good defence against one of the plaintiffs, who hold a joint office, though not against the others, the court cannot make good a decree in the suit for the plaintiffs. Hunter v. Richardson, 6 Madd. 89.

In order to bind remaindermen they must be served with the decree: but it is a rule of practice that no such direction should form part of the decree. Greaves v. Smith, 22 W. R. 388.

Office Copy.]—An office copy of an order is for all practical purposes the same as the original order. Davenport v. Townsend, 15 L. T. 528; 15 W. R. 378.

Original order lost. New office copy issued on affidavit of loss. Scott v. Heisch, 33 L. T. 498; 24 W. R. 108.

Liberty to Apply.]—The rule that an order of the court carries with it "liberty to apply," though not expressly reserved, only applies where the order is one not of a final character. Penrice v. Williams, 52 L. J., Ch. 593; 23 Ch. D. 353; 48 L. T. 868; 31 W. R. 496.

In every order of the court, liberty to apply to the court is implied, without its being expressly reserved. Fritz v. Hobson, 49 L. J., Ch. 735; 14 Ch. D. 542; 42 L. T. 677; 28 W. R. 722.

Powers of Court.]—A private act of parliament provided that, with certain exceptions, no incumbrance should be paid unless the claim in respect thereof was proved to the satisfaction of the court. A claim being made, upon a judgment entered up for 3,850*l.*, for services performed by a non-professional person in obtaining the act and other matters, the court refused to allow the claim, the claimant failing to prove the services in respect of which the claim was made. Carew, In re, 30 Beav. 274; 31 L. J., Ch. 214; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 297; 10 W. R. 98.

On motion by petition in the court below for the discharge of a receiver, the court refused the motion and dismissed the petition with costs, but ingrafted on the order of dismissal certain directions, asked for by the defendants and supported by their affidavits, in opposition to the motion:—Held, that such addition to the order was contrary to the practice of the court, and ought not to have been made; and that, upon the facts disclosed, an order for the dismissal of the receiver ought to have been made pursuant to the prayer of the petition. Palmer v. Barrett, 1 Moore, P. C. 415.

Validity of Order.]—Where a statute directs that a proceeding under it may be enforced by application to a judge, upon an affidavit of the facts for a summons, the granting of the summons without an affidavit sworn at the time is only an irregularity, and does not affect the validity of an order duly made in other respects upon such summons. Furber, Ex parte, 27 L. J., Ex. 453; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 956; 6 W. R. 625.

A judge's order is a nullity, if obtained from his clerk by misrepresenting his decision. Woosnam v. Price, 3 Tyr. 375; 1 C. & M. 352.

An order, by consent, allowing the plaintiff to enter up judgment in default of payment of debt and costs in a certain time, is not void under 1 & 2 Vict. c. 110, s. 9, by reason of no attorney having been present. Stevens v. Miller, 3 Man. & G. 228. S. P., Brooks v. Hodson, 8 Scott (N.R.) 223; 7 Man. & G. 529.

A summons to change the venue from London to Newcastle being opposed by the plaintiff, the judge indorsed the summons, "No order; the plaintiff undertaking to tax, if successful, as if tried in Northumberland":—Held, that this was binding upon the plaintiff as an undertaking, though no order was ever drawn up. Clarke v. Tyne Improvement Commissioners, 37 L. J., C. P. 110; L. R. 3 C. P. 230; 17 L. T. 509; 16 W. R. 480.

No Indemnity on Performance.]—An insurance company paying under a decree of the court the money payable under a lost policy is sufficiently indemnified by the decree, and is not entitled to any indemnity from the person to whom the money is paid. England v. Tredegar (Lord), 35 L. J., Ch. 386; L. R. 1 Eq. 344.

b. PARTIES BOUND BY.

Estoppel.]—See ESTOPPEL.

Co-Defendants.]—Decree between co-defendants, when their whole case appears clearly upon the pleadings and proofs between plaintiff and defendant. Holton v. Lloyd, 1 Moll. 30.

A decree made between co-defendants upon evidence arising from pleadings and proofs between plaintiffs and defendants. Conry v. Caulfield, 2 Ball & B. 255.

Under special circumstances, an injunction was granted, on the application of a defendant against a co-defendant. Edgecumbe v. Carpenter, 1 Beav. 171; 8 L. J., Ch. 17.

A suit was instituted by a party entitled in remainder against a trustee, to make him responsible for a trust fund invested on an improper security, and a decree was made for its restitution:—Held, that in this suit the tenant for life, who was a defendant, was not entitled against the co-defendant, the trustee, to an account of the interest which had accrued pending the suit, there being no such case made by the pleadings. Goodwin v. Clewley, 2 Beav. 30.

The court will try a case between co-defendants, and where the decision of a right between co-defendants is essential to, and necessarily involved in, the decision of the plaintiff's right, the decree will be conclusive as between the co-defendants; but otherwise, the right of co-defendants inter se will not be affected by proceedings which are necessary only for establishing or ascertaining the rights of the plaintiff. Cottingham v. Shrewsbury (Earl), 3 Hare, 627; 15 L. J., Ch. 441.

If a case wholly destructive of the foundation of the plaintiff's title is put forward in the answer of one defendant, and established, the court will not give effect to it as between the plaintiff and that defendant merely, but it shall enure to the benefit of the other defendants, though they have not made that case by their answers. Wilson v. Bell, 5 Ir. Eq. R. 501.

Leave to Attend.]—Where a court of equity directs an issue in a cause in which there are many parties, and selects some to have the conduct of the trial, giving all leave to attend, all are bound by the result. Malone v. Malone, 8 Cl. & F. 179; West, 637. S. C., 3 Ir. Eq. R. 536; 2 Dr. & Wal. 491.

Persons with Notice.]—The defendant, having notice of a decree to which he was no party, pays money contrary to that decree. Ordered that he should pay the money over again. Harvey v. Mountague, 1 Vern. 57.

A party who has notice of an order of the court is bound by it from the time the order is pronounced; and if the order be for an injunction, and the party, after notice, be guilty of a breach of it, he may be committed for the contempt without the production of the writ of injunction, and although the writ have not actually issued. M'Neil v. Garratt, Cr. & Ph. 98; 10 L. J., Ch. 297; 5 Jur. 836.

Appearance by Person not Served.]—If person named defendant, but who has never been served with subpœna, or appeared to bill, appears by counsel, and consents to be bound by decree, the defect is cured. Capel v. Butler, 2 Sim. & S. 457; 4 L. J. (o.s.) Ch. 69.

Where a person not a party to the suit, or interested in a question, appears by counsel, and submits to be bound by the decision, the court would not hear him without the consent of the other parties to the suit. Bozon v. Bolland, 1 Russ. & M. 69.

A party named as a defendant to the bill may, with the consent of the plaintiff only, appear at the hearing of the cause and be bound by the decree, although such party has not been served with the subpœna to appear or has not appeared in the suit; but a person who has not been named as a defendant to the bill cannot appear at the hearing without the consent of all the parties to the cause. Dyson v. Morris, 1 Hare, 413; 11 L. J., Ch. 241; 6 Jur. 297.

Shareholders—Company.]—A decree declaring that all the shareholders in a company are bound to pay what may be found due to the plaintiff, does not make the shareholders personally liable. Vigers v. Pike, 8 Cl. & F. 562.

Absent Parties.]—See supra, PARTIES. col. 69.

c. FORM OF.

In Particular Cases.]—See specific titles.

Without Prejudice.]—Decree for tithes declared to be without prejudice to the right, where the party appears to have failed in establishing a modus by mismanaging the suit. Lake v. Skinner, 1 Jac. & Walk. 9.

Where a sole plaintiff united in himself the title to a residuary fund in different characters having conflicting rights in the subject-matter:—Held, that although he might maintain the suit, yet the court would not in a suit so constituted decide on those rights, but make provision by the decree that the defendants might not be prejudiced by the peculiar form of the suit. Blease v. Burgh, 2 Beav. 221; 9 L. J., Ch. 226.

—— Absent Parties.]—See supra, PARTIES. col. 69.

"Until further Order."]—When an order is made to last until a particular day "or until further order," the words "further order" mean an order made on an earlier day than the day specified. Bolton v. London School Board, 47 L. J., Ch. 461; 7 Ch. D. 766; 38 L. T. 277; 26 W. R. 549.

Conditional.]—A judge's order, "that upon payment of debt and costs by a certain day, all proceedings should be stayed," is only conditional on the defendant. Fricker v. Eastman, 11 East, 319.

An order nisi at chambers makes itself absolute. Humphreys v. Jones, 8 D. P. C. 408; 6 M. & W. 418; 9 L. J., Ex. 168.

Therefore, if the party obtaining it does not attend in support of it, the party shewing cause should go before the judge, and apply to have it discharged, otherwise it will become absolute. Ib.

"Peremptory."]—An order "peremptory" for time to plead does not preclude a defendant from again applying by summons for further time; and, if he takes out such further summons, judgment signed for want of a plea after the summons is returnable, is irregular. Beazley v. Bailey, 16 M. & W. 58; 4 D. & L. 271; 16 L. J., Ex. 1; 10 Jur. 906.

By Ord. XIX. r. 8, of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, "the party at whose instance particulars have been delivered under a judge's order shall, unless the order otherwise provides, have the same length of time for pleading after the delivery of the particulars that he had at the return of the summons":—Held, that where upon an application for extension of the time for delivering a pleading, an order "peremptory" is made for delivery of the pleading within a time limited by the order, the time continues to run, notwithstanding that the applicant subsequently obtains an order for particulars. Falck v. Æthelm, 24 Q. B. D. 174; 59 L. J., Q. B. 161; 38 W. R. 196—C. A.

Separate Decree.]—Although different suits may involve the same subject-matter, and the same parties, the court will not decline to make a separate decree in each suit, unless the frame of the two suits and the relative position of the parties to each be the same. Godfrey v. Maw, 1 Y. & Coll. C. C. 485.

A court of equity has discretion to moderate its decree in any manner that suits the real and substantial justice of the case, and in a suit for tithes, if a defendant sets up distinct farm moduses, there may be a separate decree establishing or overruling each modus separately; and the whole costs may be decreed according to the justice of the case, against each defendant. Wolley v. Brownhill, M'Clel. 317, 324; 13 Price, 500.

Benefit to both Parties.]—It is no objection to a decree in favour of a plaintiff that it must necessarily benefit one of the defendants. Smith v. Pincombe, 3 Macn. & G. 653; 16 Jur. 205.

Names of Parties.]—Where the minutes of a decree order that "A. and all parties interested should be at liberty to attend the trial," the names of all the parties interested should be specified in it. Wood v. Denne, 1 L. J. (o.s.) Ch. 89.

A decree declaring, in the terms of the prayer of a charity information, that certain persons are not entitled thereto, is not defective for not also declaring who are entitled. Shore v. Wilson, 9 Cl. & F. 355.

Entering Evidence.]—Every decree, although it only direct issues or inquiries, ought to recite the evidence on which it is founded: and, therefore, where evidence is tendered and objected to the court ought to decide at once upon its admissibility, and not to allow it to be entered as read de bene esse. Parker v. Morrell, 2 Ph. 453 ; 17 L. J., Ch. 226 ; 12 Jur. 253.

Every decree, though it merely directs inquiries, ought to contain a statement of the evidence on which it is founded, and therefore a decree reciting that certain evidence had been read, but that both parties consented that the entry of it should be without prejudice to its admissibility, thereupon directing certain inquiries, was held to be irregular. M'Mahon v. Burchell, 2 Ph. 127 ; 1 Coop. C. C. 457. Varying 3 Hare, 97.

Where an objection to the evidence at the hearing of a cause is allowed, the tender of the evidence and its rejection ought to be expressly recited in the decree, and the evidence ought not to be entered as read. Watson v. Parker, 2 Ph. 5 ; 1 Coop. C. C. 54 ; 15 L. J., Ch. 400 ; 10 Jur. 577.

The appellants from an order on a claim in a winding-up gave notice to read a mass of affidavits made in the winding-up but not used on the hearing below. The respondent objected to their being admitted, but took copies. The Court of Appeal confined the argument in the first instance to a question not affected by these affidavits, and being against the appellants on that question, dismissed the appeal with costs, so that the question as to the admissibility of the affidavits was not decided. The respondent applied to have the affidavits entered in the order, as otherwise he would not be able to get the costs of having taken copies :—Held, that the application could not be granted, and that the respondent ought not to have taken copies unless and until the court held the evidence admissible, in which case it would have given him time to enable him to meet it. Brampton and Longtown Ry., In re, Shaw's Claim, L. R. 10 Ch. 186 ; 33 L. T. 5 ; 23 W. R. 813.

It is not proper to enter in a decree evidence as "read de bene esse, saving just exceptions." If its admissibility is disputed, the point should be determined by the court. Draker v. Draker, 25 Beav. 641.

A decision having been partly founded on answers given by one of the parties in court to questions from the judge, it was ordered that evidence should be mentioned in the decree. Bousquet v. Bent, 42 L. J., Ch. 575 ; 21 W. R. 749.

Orders in chambers should not contain recitals of affidavits dated after the date of the order. Ashley v. Taylor, 48 L. J., Ch. 406 ; 10 Ch. D. 768 ; 39 L. T. 573 ; 27 W. R. 228.

Entry of Evidence as Read.]—Inquiries being directed at the first hearing, the evidence was entered as read, "saving just exceptions." Gee v. Gurney, 8 Beav. 315.

It is not the practice to enter evidence as read, saving just exceptions. Sherwood v. Beveridge, 2 Coll. C. C. 536.

In an undefended case the proofs shall be entered as read, and the plaintiff shall take such decree as he shall abide by. Raymond v. Evans, 1 Longf. & T. 582.

When a petition is dismissed with costs, the court will not limit the payment of costs merely as to the affidavits that were read on the hearing of the petition, for in general all affidavits filed are entered as read. Lucas, Ex parte, Oldham, In re, 3 Deac. & C. 664 ; 1 Mont. & Ayr. 405.

Costs of documentary evidence not read, nor entered as read, were disallowed. Stuart v. Greenall, M'Clel. 705 ; 13 Price, 755.

Upon decree taken by default of defendant at hearing, the evidence is not entered as read. Stubbs v. ——, 10 Ves. 30.

Evidence read or agreed to be so considered, is entered in decree as read at hearing, and where it does not appear, by registrar's minutes, that any evidence was read at hearing, court ought not, upon subsequent application, to make order that evidence be entered as read. Bute (Earl) v. Eden, 1 Bro. P. C. 466.

A defendant, when a decree is made in his favour without his defence having been heard, is entitled to have entered in the decree as read all the evidence which he could have put in at the hearing. Manby v. Bewicke, 3 Jur. (N.S.) 685 ; 5 W. R. 867.

Office copies of former proceedings in other courts in old suits, relating to the matters in litigation, may be read and entered in the decree as evidence, without any previous order of the court for that purpose. Ib.

Affidavits in opposition to an application to the court, notice of an intention to read which has been given to the other side, are to be entered as read, though the court decides in favour of the parties intending to use them without hearing such parties, and although such affidavits were not filed specially for the purpose of the application. Catholic Printing and Publishing Co. v. Wyman, 1 N. R. 49 ; 32 L. J., Ch. 53 ; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 436 ; 11 W. R. 49.

Deeds, which being more than thirty years old prove themselves, used at the hearing of a motion for decree, should be inserted in the list of evidence in the decree, although not included in the list of evidence to be read, and not referred to in any affidavit. Boyd v. Petrie, 19 W. R. 221.

A rule not drawn up as on reading affidavits, if any were read on moving, is irregular, and will be discharged. Mash v. Ash, 10 W. R. 85.

Order to Execute Deeds.]—An order may be made on a party to an action to execute a conveyance of lands directed to be sold in such action, although the conveyance has not been settled at chambers. Dougherty v. Teaz, 21 L. R., Ir. 379.

A direction for a conveyance to be settled by the master only, "if the parties differ," is improper, if to be executed by an infant. Calvert v. Godfrey, 2 Beav. 267.

Where an infant heir is declared by the decree of the court to be a trustee for a purchaser, the court will direct a conveyance to the purchaser by the same decree, a petition for that purpose being unnecessary. Meller v. Knight, 1 Keen, 129 ; 5 L. J., Ch. 168.

—— Refusal to Execute.]—Where by a decree all proper parties are directed to execute, and some who are within the jurisdiction refuse to do so, the court will not in the first instance direct the master to execute under the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 78, but will issue an attachment against them. In such a case, a creditor who has proved his charge under the decree is as much bound by it as if he were a party to the cause. Usher v. Scanlan, Fl. & K. 243 ; 3 Ir. Eq. R. 474.

By a deed, dated 1827, A. covenanted with B., his son and heir-at-law, after the decease of C., to convey to certain uses an estate which should thereupon descend to A. In 1828, C.

was found a lunatic, never having been married, and died in 1830, when A. conveyed the estate, which was subject to his covenant of the deed of 1827, in violation of that covenant, to D. By a decree of the house of lords the conveyance of 1830 was set aside, and B. and his children were declared entitled to the benefit of the deed of 1827. C., the lunatic, in 1820, while he was compos mentis, had made a will, under which E. took an estate tail; and in 1841 a compromise was entered into between him and D., who was in possession, by which he released all right and title to the estate, in consideration of a conveyance of a portion of it, and of a term of the whole, to secure the value of the portion so conveyed. A supplemental bill was filed by B. and his children against D. and E., who was not a party to the original suit; and a decree was made, declaring the right of B. and those claiming under him to have a conveyance in pursuance of the decree pronounced by the house of lords, such conveyance never having been procured by them. Upon appeal:—Held, that D. by that decree was bound to convey, notwithstanding the subsequent conveyance or release which he had obtained from E.; nor was he relieved by the circumstance, that it had become impossible to convey the property without parting with some other interest which the decree was not intended to affect. Persse v. Persse, 2 Jur. (N.S.) 551; 4 W. R. 629.

The probate division has jurisdiction under s. 14 of the Judicature Act, 1884, in the event of any person neglecting or refusing to obey its order to execute a deed, to direct its execution by any other person whom it may nominate for the purpose. Howarth v. Howarth, 55 L. J., P. 49; 11 P. D. 95; 55 L. T. 303; 34 W. R. 633—C. A. Affirming 50 J. P. 376.

Where a defendant refused to obey an order, directing her to execute a mortgage, the judge appointed his chief clerk to execute it under s. 14 of the Judicature Act, 1884. Edwards, In re, Owen v. Edwards, 33 W. R. 578. S. P., Derham v. Kiernan, Ir. R. 5 Eq. 217.

—— Time for Execution.]—A secret purchase, by an agent from his principal, was set aside. By the decree, possession was directed to be given, and a conveyance to be executed. Accounts were also directed to be taken of the rents and purchase-money, and the balance was directed to be paid, but no lien given:—Held, that the conveyance must at once be made without waiting for the result of the accounts. Trevelyan v. Charter, 9 Beav. 140.

After a decree for specific performance and execution of the conveyance, the purchaser neglected to pay the purchase-money. The court, on the application of the vendor, fixed a day and place for that purpose. Morley v. Clavering, 30 Beav. 108.

Where a decree directing an act to be done, has been drawn up without fixing a time within which the act is to be done, the decree is not rendered ineffectual by the operation of the 11th and 12th orders of August, 1841, but the court will, upon motion for that purpose, fix a time for the performance of the act. Needham v. Needham, 1 Hare, 633; 12 L. J., Ch. 378; 6 Jur. 1081.

An order of the court for the delivering up of a deed "forthwith" is a sufficient expression of time within the meaning of Consolidated Order XXIII. rule 10. Thomas v. Nokes, L. R. 6 Eq. 521; 16 W. R. 995.

—— Date of Deed.]—Where the party cannot obtain the rights to which the court has declared him entitled, without antedating a deed which the court orders to be executed, the court will order such deed to be dated at the time at which it ought to have been executed. Mundy v. Joliffe, 9 L. J., Ch. 95; 4 Jur. 621.

d. Entry, Drawing Up and Service.

1. In Ordinary Cases.

See R. S. C., 1883, Ord. XLI. rr. 1 & 2.

Entry of.]—Under Rules of Supreme Court, 1875, Ord. XL. the court has power to order judgment to be entered in the same way as the judge at the trial, as a matter of law, should have directed it to be entered; but the court has no power to withdraw questions of fact from the jury which are properly for their consideration. Milissich v. Lloyds, 46 L. J., C. P. 404; 36 L. T. 423; 25 W. R. 353; 13 Cox, C. C. 575—C. A.

It is no ground of objection to a judgment that the plaintiff, having it pronounced entirely in his favour, has entered it up partly for himself, and partly for the defendant. Harnidge v. Wilson, 8 D. P. C. 417; 4 Jur. 339.

Entry of judgment is not final till costs have been taxed. Pierce v. Derry, 4 Q. B. 635; 3 G. & D. 477; 12 L. J., Q. B. 277; 7 Jur. 552. S. P., Butler v. Bulkeley, 8 Moore, 104; 1 Bing. 233; 1 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 77.

Signing.]—A declaration in trespass contained two counts, upon one of which there was a verdict for the plaintiff, with one farthing damages; upon the other a verdict for defendant. The plaintiff did not sign judgment, and the defendant took out a summons calling upon him to shew cause why he should not sign judgment, and why, upon his default in so doing, the postea should not be delivered to the defendant, that he might sign it. Both parties attended, and an order being made as prayed, the postea was delivered to the defendant, who signed judgment for the plaintiff on the first count, and for himself on the second. Upon application to set aside the judgment so signed:—Held, that if the plaintiff intended to enter a nolle prosequi or retraxit upon the first count, he should have declared that intention upon the hearing of the summons, and that the judgment was properly signed by the defendant. Taylor v. Nesfield, 4 El. & Bl. 462; 24 L. J., Q. B. 126; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 309; 3 W. R. 163.

Where a verdict was taken by consent for the plaintiff at nisi prius, subject to the certificate of a barrister to be given in the following Michaelmas term, with power to enlarge the time for making it, and he enlarged the time till the following Easter term, and in the month of March gave his certificate, directing that the verdict should stand for a smaller amount:—Held, that final judgment might be signed immediately on the entry of this verdict upon the postea, and that the plaintiff was not bound to wait until after the expiration of the four first days of Easter term. Cramer v. Churt, 15 M. & W. 310; 3 D. & L. 672; 15 L. J., Ex. 263; 10 Jur. 671.

The form No. 10, of a writ of execution, where matter of account is referred to and decided on by an arbitrator or officer of the court or judge, as settled by the judges, does not dispense with the necessity of signing of judgment. Kendil v. Merrett, 18 C. B. 173; 25 L. J., C. P. 251; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 523; 4 W. R. 594.

Where a judge's order was made for payment of debt and costs, which were demanded immediately after taxation, and not being paid, the plaintiff on the same day signed judgment:—Held, that the judgment was irregular. Perkins v. National Assurance and Investment Association, 2 H. & N. 71; 26 L. J., Ex. 182; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 371; 5 W. R. 470.

Signing judgment against an order of nisi prius made by consent, is an irregularity, although it is also a breach of faith. Bikker v. Beeston, 29 L. J., Ex. 121.

All the proceedings in an action in one of the superior courts are deemed to be taken before the court itself; and although the master's office of the queen's bench is situate in the city of London, yet a judgment signed therein is in contemplation of law a step in a suit taken before the court itself sitting at Westminster. Tapp v. Jones, 43 L. J., C. P. 250; L. R. 9 C. P. 418; 30 L. T. 499; 22 W. R. 632.

Drawing Up.]—By a mistake in the registrar's office, an order made on an undertaking to speed was erroneously drawn up. The order was discharged with costs of the application to discharge it, it being the duty of the party who procures an order, to see that it is properly drawn up. Landars v Allen, 6 Sim. 620; 4 L. J., Ch. 18.

Decrees founded upon the finding of issues are not to be drawn up, except by consent, before the time for moving for a new trial has expired. Macdonald v. General Sewage and Manure Co. 23 W. R. 435.

Mode of proceeding where a difficulty arose in drawing up a decree made on appeal, in consequence of there being no proper affidavit of service of the setting down of the appeal on some of the respondents. Rackham v. Siddall, 1 Macn. & G. 607; 2 H. & Tw. 44.

Observations as to the mode and forms of drawing up and passing decrees in the registrar's office. By consent, the registrar, in drawing up a decree, sometimes permits such alterations to be made in it as he believes the court would sanction, and which are binding on the parties. Davenport v. Stafford, 8 Beav. 503; 14 L. J., Ch. 414; 9 Jur. 801.

A decree drawn up in a manner not warranted by the minutes on the hearing, set aside with costs, upon motion. Loftus v. Swift, 2 Sch. & Lef. 642.

When an order was made dismissing a petition, the court refused a motion of the respondents for leave to draw up the order, on production to the registrar of a copy of the petition, upon an affidavit that notice had been given to produce the original petition, which had not been complied with, and that the deponent believed it to be lost or destroyed. Hobler, In re, 9 Jur. 419.

An order made by the court, and correctly drawn up, will not in all cases be discharged solely on the ground that it was passed by the registrar, without notice to the other parties in the cause. Hart v. Tulk, 6 Hare, 611; 18 L. J., Ch. 162.

An order drawn up in the registrar's office, in the absence of a defendant, will not be set aside where no error is shewn. Smith v. Acton, 28 Beav. 559.

A defendant's solicitor having refused to produce counsel's brief to the registrar on drawing up an order made and consented to, the court, upon motion of the plaintiffs, ordered the registrar, on non-production of the brief within a week, to draw up the order without it, and directed the plaintiffs to add the costs of the motion to their security. Yeatman v. Reed, 35 L. J., Ch. 176; 13 L. T. 580; 14 W. R. 123.

A notice to draw up an order served one day for the next is regular. Christmas, In re, 19 Beav. 519.

When it is intended that a time for the passing of an order should be fixed verbally under the Consolidated Order I. rule 27, the time should be named by the registrar personally (not by his clerk) in the presence of the parties. An application to the registrar's clerk to fix a time for the passing of an order should be made only when it is desired to have an appointment in writing to be served on the opposite party in the way prescribed by the latter part of Ord. I. r. 27. London and County General Agency Association, In re, Pulbrook, Ex parte, 21 L. T. 283; 17 W. R. 1075.

In a case where the evidence did not shew that the provisions of Ord. I. r. 27, had been complied with, leave was given to move to vary the minutes of an order which had been actually passed and entered. Ib.

Drawing up and Service of Order.]—An order does not take effect until it is drawn up and served. Metcalf v. British Tea Association, 46 L. T. 31.

The rule that an order must be drawn up and served before the other party is in a situation to take a fresh step, in order to operate as a stay of proceedings, applies to an order to amend on payment of costs to be taxed. Normanby v. Jones, 3 D. & L. 143.

The court cannot take notice of a consent on a summons, unless followed in due time by an order drawn up and served. Wood v. Harding, 3 C. B. 968.

An order giving leave to sign judgment under Ord. XIV., unless a sum is paid before a day named, need not be served upon the defendant before judgment is signed upon it. Hopton v. Robertson, 23 Q. B. D. 126, n.

Where the defendant, in an action for the recovery of land and for arrears of rent, failed to comply with an order that if he did not within three days file an affidavit in answer to interrogatories his defence should be struck out and judgment signed:—Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to sign judgment under the order without previously serving it upon the defendant, and that a judgment so signed, being a regular judgment, could not be set aside in the absence of an affidavit of merits. Farden v. Richter, 58 L. J., Q. B. 244; 23 Q. B. D. 124; 60 L. T. 304; 37 W. R. 767.

When an order has been made in chambers dismissing an action, unless the next step is taken by the plaintiff within a specified time, and the plaintiff does not take that step within the specified time nor appeal against the order, the order takes effect, and the time for taking the step cannot subsequently be extended, the action having become dead, notwithstanding that the order has not been drawn up or served upon the plaintiff before it became operative. Dicta in Metcalf v. British Tea Association (46 L. T. 31) not adopted. Script Phonography Co. v. Gregg, 59 L. J., Ch. 406.

A plaintiff who obtains an order to be at liberty to amend his writ, is not obliged to draw it up; and if he gives notice of abandoning the order and the writ, and the defendant afterwards appears, a judgment of non pros. for not declaring is irregular. Solly v. Richardson, 6 D. P. C. 774; 1 W. W. & H. 277.

A consent indorsed on a judge's summons binds neither party, unless the order is drawn up and served pursuant thereto. Joddrell v. ——, 4 Taunt. 253.

Where upon a summons attended at chambers the judge indorses a minute of an order, it is at the option of the party by whom the summons was taken out, to have an order drawn up in pursuance of such minute or not. Macdougall v. Nicholls, 5 N. & M. 366; 3 A. & E. 813; 1 H. & W. 462.

A party who applies to a judge for indulgence, and obtains it on certain terms, may draw it up or not as he thinks proper; and the opposite party by drawing it up himself, without the consent of the party applying, does not thereby make it operative against him. Wright v. Skinner, 4 D. P. C. 727.

A judge's order for staying proceedings must be drawn up forthwith and served immediately, otherwise it will not be binding. Charge v. Farkall, 7 D. & R. 422; 4 B. & C. 865.

Delay in drawing it up operates as a waiver of it. Ib.

On a summons to change the venue from London to Newcastle, the judge indorsed the summons, "No order; the plaintiff undertaking to tax, if successful, as if tried in Northumberland":—Held, that this was binding on the plaintiff as an undertaking, though no order was ever drawn up. Clarke v. Tyne Improvement Commissioners, 37 L. J., C. P. 110; L. R. 3 C. P. 230; 17 L. T. 509; 16 W. R. 480.

A party who obtains a judge's order can derive no benefit from it unless it is duly served upon his opponent. Belcher v. Goodered, 4 C. B. 472; 4 D. & L. 814; 16 L. J., C. P. 176.

A party obtaining an order should serve it forthwith, that is, before the opposite party is entitled to take a fresh step. Kenny v. Hutchinson, 8 D. P. C. 171; 6 M. & W. 134; 9 L. J., Ex. 60.

A plaintiff obtained an order to amend the postea at half-past nine o'clock on the 22nd November, but did not draw it up until the 23rd, and it was not served until four o'clock on the 24th:—Held, that, as no fresh step could have been taken by the defendant, the plaintiff had not abandoned the order. Sandford v. Alcock, 10 M. & W. 689; 12 L. J., Ex. 40.

Service — What Sufficient.]—A defendant resident out of the jurisdiction, was directed to execute deeds of conveyance, under 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 78, s. 8. Having been denied at his residence, the messenger saw him in the house through an open window, informed him of the object of his visit, and left copies of the order and deed upon a table inside the window, requiring him at the same time to execute the deed:—Held, that personal service of the order and tender of the deed, had been effected sufficiently to give the court jurisdiction to direct the master to execute the deeds. Clarke v. De Burgh, Sau. & Sc. 100, n.

A defendant out of the jurisdiction, and directed to execute a deed of conveyance, in pursuance of the 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 71, s. 8, on hearing the messenger coming into the room where he was sitting, ordered the door to be barred. The messenger heard the defendant's voice but did not see him, and standing outside the door, in a loud voice stated the object of his visit, at the same time offering to leave copies of the decrees, order, and deed of conveyance, with the son and daughter of the defendant, which they refused, and the son forcibly turned him out of the house. He then sent to the residence of the defendant a notice and copy of the order of the court, with an explanatory letter (which there was strong evidence that the defendant received) appointing a time and place for the defendant to execute the deeds of conveyance, the defendant not having executed the deed:—Held, that under the circumstances this was good personal service of the copies of the order and decree, and a sufficient tender of the deed of conveyance within 4 & 5 Will. 4, c. 78. Piers v. Piers, Sau. & Sc. 89. And see Pasley v. Roberts, Ib., 104, n.

Notice of order of setting down an appeal dropped into a letter-box attached to the outer door of plaintiff's chambers, after the party serving it had called several times, and always found the chambers closed:—Held, to be good service on plaintiff. Lodge v. Pritchard, 2 N. R. 537; 11 W. R. 1086—L.JJ.

—— Waiver of Objections to.]—A party consenting to the alteration of a date of an order after it had been served, cannot object that the order, as altered, has not been served on him. Stubbs v. Sargon, 4 Beav. 400.

Original Lost.]—Original decree not to be found; but having been acted upon by reports, and recited in an order on further directions, was allowed to be drawn up from an office copy, and entered nunc pro tunc. Donne v. Lewis, 11 Ves. 601.

The original of an order made on a petition had been lost, and no entry could be found in the report office, but the minutes of the order appeared in the registrar's minute book; under these circumstances, and on the production of the briefs of counsel, and the evidence used on the hearing of the petition, the order was directed to be re-drawn. St. Paul's (Dean), Ex parte, 18 W. R. 724.

Where an order, not entered, but drawn up and passed, cannot be found after a lapse of nine years, the court will direct a re-issue of such order upon the affidavit of the solicitor who obtained it. Russell v. Tapping, 3 W. R. 379.

2. Minutes.

Orders must be drawn up and entered by the registrar before they bear authority; for the registrar's minutes are only a warrant for an order. Anon., 2 Freem. 46.

A motion cannot be made upon a decretal order till it is passed with the registrar. Smith v. Reynolds, Mos. 69.

Order of a preceding Lord Chancellor not to be re-heard upon minutes, but must first be drawn up. Taylor v. Popham, 15 Ves. 72.

The court pays no regard to minutes of orders in the registrar's book. Orders to be attended to must have been drawn up. Fingal (Earl) v. Blake, 2 Moll. 50.

A notice of motion to vary minutes, does not prevent their being drawn up. Bell, In re, Brown, Ex parte, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 578; 1 Deac. 690.

The minutes of a decree cannot be made use of in the court. The decree itself must be pronounced. Hall v. Hill, Fl. & K. 619.

A decree in notes is not a document which the court will act upon. Nash v. Dillon, 1 Moll. 46.

No use can be made of a decree remaining in notes. Byrne v. Frere, 2 Moll. 157.

Solicitors are entitled to charge for settling the minutes of orders, although no minutes are issued. Reece, In re, Gould v. Dummet, 35 L. J., Ch. 794; L. R. 2 Eq. 609; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 614; 14 L. T. 881; 14 W. R. 1008.

A plaintiff upon the defendant dispensing with a statement of claim, set down his action as a short cause, and moved for judgment according to prepared minutes. Upon the defendant objecting that the action must be brought to trial, it was ordered that the action be placed in the general non-witness list. Wilmott v. Young, 44 L. T. 331; 29 W. R. 413.

e. DATE OF.

When effective.]—Ord. XLI. r. 3, of the Rules of the Supreme Court, 1883, applies to actions tried before a judge with a jury; and where the judge upon the findings of the jury, pronounces judgment in court, upon entry of the judgment the proceedings are complete, and the judgment takes effect as of the date on which it was pronounced. Holtby v. Hodgson, 59 L. J., Q. B. 46; 24 Q. B. D. 103; 62 L. T. 145; 38 W. R. 68—C. A.

The time at which an order is made is that of the order being pronounced and of its date, and not of its being drawn up. Hookey, Ex parte, 4 De G. F. & J. 456.

Generally speaking, an order takes effect from the time it is made. Jones v. Roberts, M'Clel. & Y. 567.

The order for confirming absolutely a master's report as to a purchase, when served, operates from the day on which it was pronounced. Aberdeen v. Wathin, 6 Sim. 146.

Order for dismissal does not take effect till drawn up, and then it acts retrospectively from time of making it. Verlander v. Codd, 1 Sim. & S. 94.

Minutes varied.]—If, on the close of the argument, at the hearing of a cause, minutes of the decree are delivered, which are afterwards varied by any subsequent judgment, the decree may be dated at the date of the original minutes, but if the judgment is postponed, it should bear date at the time when it is pronounced. Att.-Gen. v. Stamford (Earl), 12 L. J., Ch. 297.

Orders in Chambers.]—Orders in chambers should be dated of the day on which they are finally made, and should not be antedated, nor contain recitals of affidavits dated after the date of the order. Ashley v. Taylor, 48 L. J., Ch. 406; 10 Ch. D. 768; 39 L. T. 573; 27 W. R. 228.

On what Day may be Signed.]—A judgment cannot be signed on a dies non juridicus. Harrison v. Smith, 9 B. & C. 243; 7 L. J. (O.S.) K. B. 171.

But it may be signed on a holiday. Bennett v. Potter, 2 C. & J. 622; 1 L. J., Ex. 258.

Death of Party.]—Judgment having been signed and execution issued on the day on which the defendant died:—Held, that the judgment and execution were regular. Wright v. Mills, 4 H. & N. 488; 28 L. J., Ex. 223; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 771; 7 W. R. 498.

Judicial proceedings are to be considered as taking place at the earliest period of the day on which they are done; therefore where a judgment was signed at the opening of the office at its usual hour, eleven a.m., and the defendant died at half-past nine a.m., on the same morning:—Held, that the judgment was regular. Ib.

The mere entry of judgment is sufficient within s. 139 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 76, and it is not necessary to perfect the judgment by taxation of costs. Frewen v. Lethbridge, 4 H. & N. 418; 28 L. J., Ex. 243; 7 W. R. 442.

The death of an infant plaintiff in an action for negligence between the verdict and the signing of judgment is no ground for a stay of proceedings if judgment has been signed within the time specified in the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852. Kramer v. Waymark, 4 H. & C. 427; 35 L. J., Ex. 148; L. R. 1 Ex. 241; 12 Jur. (N.S.) 395; 14 L. T. 368; 14 W. R. 659.

The 17 Car. 2, c. 8, s. 1, which requires a judgment to be entered up two terms after verdict, gives an executor two terms during which it is practicable to enter judgment. Heathcote v. Wing, 11 Ex. 355; 3 C. L. R. 1110; 25 L. J., Ex. 23.

The verdict referred to in the statute is the complete verdict on which judgment may be signed. Ib.

Therefore where, at the spring assizes in 1854, a verdict was taken by the plaintiff, subject to a reference, and in Easter vacation, before award, he died, and on the last day in Michaelmas term the arbitrator made his award, directing the verdict entered for the plaintiff to stand:—Held, that a rule obtained in Easter term, 1855, to enter judgment as of Easter term, 1854, nunc pro tunc, was in time. Ib.

A judgment for a defendant is valid, although not entered up within two terms after the death of the defendant, the verdict having been given during her life, and the delay occasioned by a motion touching an award. Brydges v. Smyth, 8 Bing. 29; 1 M. & Scott, 93.

See supra, PARTIES (CHANGE OF, &c.), col. 73, et seq.

Ante-dating — Entering nunc pro tunc.]—Where an order had been drawn up, but never passed and entered, the court allowed the order to be redrawn up, passed and entered nunc pro tunc. Jones, In re, Bullis v. Jones, 39 W. R. 619.

Decree pronounced twenty-three years ago having been lost, ordered, on motion, to be redrawn according to the minutes and entered nunc pro tunc. Lawrence v. Richmond, 1 Jac. & Walk. 241.

An order of the court was directed to be marked nunc pro tunc with the day of the month and year in which it was left to be entered. Buske v. Beetham, 9 L. J., Ch. 54; 4 Jur. 599.

The court will direct a decree to be made up from the registrar's notes, and entered nunc pro tunc, on the application of a third person. Stoney v. Saunders, Hay. & J. 341.

The court refused to order a decree to be drawn up nunc pro tunc, after a long lapse of time. Withy v. Norton, 4 Y. & Coll. 266; 5 Jur. 501.

Order on peremptory undertaking to speed the cause entered nunc pro tunc of course on motion, without notice, about two years afterwards. Dixon v. Shum, 18 Ves. 520.

A previous order of the vice-chancellor, which had been omitted to be drawn up, ordered to be entered nunc pro tunc, if the vice-chancellor should think fit. Lewis, Ex parte, 3 Deac. & C. 198.

To get leave to enter judgment as of a former date, nunc pro tunc, it must be shewn that the court could at that former date, have ordered such a judgment to be entered. O'Riordan v. Walsh, Ir. R. 8 C. L. 158.

Judgment nunc pro tunc cannot be entered unless the delay is the act of the court. Fishmongers' Co. v. Robertson, 4 D. & L. 656; 3 C. B. 970; 16 L. J., C. P. 118.

The entry of judgment nunc pro tunc is not a matter of right nor of settled practice, but may be refused or granted by the court at its discretion. Hemming v. Batchelor, 44 L. J., Ex. 54; L. R. 10 Ex. 54; 33 L. T. 16; 23 W. R. 398.

—— Death of Party.]—When a nonsuit was directed at the trial with a stay of execution, and the plaintiff died before the stay of execution had run out, the court refused to allow judgment nunc pro tunc to be entered for the purpose of the defendant obtaining his costs, on the ground that the nonsuit was provisional, and no decisive judgment had been given in the defendant's favour before the plaintiff's death. Ib.

A summons taken out by the plaintiff was not reached on the day when it was returnable and was adjourned; the plaintiff died before the day to which it was adjourned:—Held, that no order such as might have been made on the summons could now be made. Turner v. L. & S. W. Ry. (L. R. 17 Eq. 561) distinguished. Wilks, In re, Child v. Bulmer, 60 L. J., Ch. 696; [1891] 3 Ch. 59; 65 L. T. 184; 40 W. R. 13.

The death of a sole plaintiff, after argument and before judgment, does not prevent the delivery thereof, and it will be entered nunc pro tunc, as of the date when the arguments were concluded. Turner v. L. & S. W. Ry., 43 L. J., Ch. 430; L. R. 17 Eq. 561.

In an action in which there were issues of fact and of law, after verdict for the plaintiff on the former, and a rule for a new trial which was discharged, the plaintiff in the same term in which the rule was discharged, set down the issues in law for argument, but died before they were reached; judgment upon them was subsequently given for the plaintiff. In one of several actions consolidated with that action, the court ordered judgment to be entered up as of the term in which the case was set down in the special paper for argument. Miles v. Williams, 9 Q. B. 47; 16 L. J., Q. B. 56; 11 Jur. 36.

The judgment of the court relates to the time of hearing the argument, and may be entered nunc pro tunc, against one of several defendants, as well as against a sole defendant, when death takes place after verdict and before judgment. Harrison v. Heathorn, 1 D. & L. 529; 6 Scott (N.R.) 794.

A plaintiff applied to sign judgment on the 3rd January (when the time for pleading expired), but upon the officer suggesting that there was a doubt whether those three days were to be reckoned in the time for pleading, he forbore to sign judgment. On the same day the defendant died. The court refused to allow the plaintiff to sign judgment nunc pro tunc. Wilkes v. Perks, 5 Man. & G. 376; 6 Scott (N.R.) 42; 12 L. J., C. P. 145; 7 Jur. 68.

A cause in which a verdict was entered for the plaintiff was referred at the spring assizes, 1851. The arbitrator made his award, directing a verdict to be entered for the plaintiff in Trinity term following. The plaintiff died on the 2nd November following; on the 3rd December the will was taken to the proper office to be proved, in order to enable the executrix to sign judgment; but in consequence of a caveat having been entered by the defendant, probate was not obtained till the 6th May, 1852. In Trinity term, 1852, the executrix moved for leave to enter up judgment as of Michaelmas term, 1851:—Held, that inasmuch as the delay was not attributable to any act of the court, the court had no authority to grant the application. Freeman v. Tranch, 12 C. B. 406; 21 L. J., C. P. 214; 16 Jur. 1141.

A defendant obtained a verdict in December, 1829. In the following term the plaintiff obtained a rule nisi for a new trial, which rule the court afterwards directed to be suspended, to await the issue of another cause which involved the same point. The defendant died in November, 1830. The court, after a lapse of two years and a half from the date of the verdict, allowed the judgment to be entered up nunc pro tunc. Key v. Goodwin, 4 M. & Scott, 620.

A verdict was found for the plaintiff at the sittings after Trinity term, 1857. In Michaelmas term a rule nisi was obtained to enter a verdict for the defendant; this rule was made absolute to enter a nonsuit in Hilary term, 1858. The plaintiff having died on the 14th of December, 1857, the court allowed judgment to be entered, nunc pro tunc, as of Michaelmas term. Moor v. Roberts, 3 C. B. (N.S.) 844; 27 L. J., C. P. 161; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 241; 6 W. R. 297.

No will of the deceased having been proved, nor any letters of administration granted, the rule was drawn up calling upon the legal representatives (if any) upon notice of the rule to be given to them or to the attorney in the cause of the late plaintiff. Ib.

A plaintiff died after verdict and before judgment, a rule to set aside the verdict being pending at the time of his death. After that rule had been discharged, the court allowed judgment to be entered nunc pro tunc. Seymour v. Greenwood, 30 L. J., Ex. 189.

Where by the terms of an order, made by consent, a plaintiff is to be at liberty to sign judgment for debt and costs on a particular day, but before that day the defendant dies, the court will not permit the plaintiff to enter judgment nunc pro tunc, as of the day when the consent was given. Wilkins v. Canty, 1 D. (N.S.) 855; 11 L. J., Q. B. 191; 6 Jur. 807.

See also supra, PARTIES (CHANGE OF, &c.), col. 73 et seq.

Postdating Judgment.]—Where, after an order had been made in an action for the partition and sale of certain property, in which it was referred to as "firstly, &c., described in the said statement of claim," it was discovered that the property was there misdescribed, leave was given to amend the statement of claim, and the order was ordered to be postdated as of a day after the amendment had been made. Winkley v. Winkley, 44 L. T. 572; 29 W. R. 628.

Prospective Order.]—When a person, entitled to a vested interest in trust funds in court, to be paid at twenty-one, would attain that age in the long vacation, a prospective order was made for the payment out of the fund to her at such date. Penn's Estate, In re, 42 L. J., Ch. 880 ; 21 W. R. 865.

f. INROLMENT.

See now R. S. C., 1883, Ord. LXI. r. 8.

What Decrees or Orders.]—An order on motion dismissing a bill for want of prosecution may properly be inrolled, and is properly entitled in the cause as it stood at the date of the order on the record, although, in fact, some of the parties named in the title may be then dead, and the suit may have been revived between the date of the order inrolled and the inrolment. Williams v. Page, 1 De G. & J. 561 ; 26 L. J., Ch. 813 ; 5 W. R. 854.

On a petition of course the registrar made an order directing inrolment in the chancery division of a decree of the Court of Session in Edinburgh, sequestrating the estate of the company, appointing a judicial factor, and ordering delivery of the books of the company :—Held, that there was no authority, either by statute or custom, for making such an order, and that the inrolment must be vacated. Dundee Suburban Ry., In re, 58 L. J., Ch. 5 ; 59 L. T. 720 ; 37 W. R. 50.

There is no rule preventing the inrolment of a decree which, among other things, directs the taking of accounts. Parker v. Downing, 1 Myl. & K. 634 ; Coop. t. Brough. 148.

An order refusing a motion for a new trial of an issue, devisavit vel non, may be inrolled at the application of either party. McGregor v. Topham, 4 Hare, 162.

Inrolment of a decree of the commissioners under the 12 & 13 Vict. c. 77. Irish Incumbered Estates Act, In re, 2 W. R. 281.

Amendment of.]—The court directed a sum of money to which, by a previous decree, the court had in error declared that the attorney-general was entitled, to be paid to the party really entitled, notwithstanding the inrolment of the former decree. Fox v. Charlton, 6 N. R. 352.

A clerical error in the inrolment of a decree corrected by the Master of the Rolls. Att.-Gen. v. Greenhill, 34 Beav. 174.

To what Court.]—The proper court for applying for an order for the inrolment of a decree is the court of the Lord Chancellor. Patch v. Ward, 28 L. T. 260.

Effect of—Appeal.]—Under the Judicature Act, the inrolment of a decree has no effect in preventing an appeal. Hastie v. Hastie, 2 Ch. D. 304 ; 34 L. T. 747 ; 24 W. R. 564—C. A.

Time for.]—Time allowed for inrolling a decree or order is six calendar months from the date thereof. Man v. Ricketts, 1 Ph. 530 ; 14 L. J., Ch. 255 ; 9 Jur. 543.

In July, 1873, a decree declaring W. entitled to large estates was affirmed by the lords justices. In February, 1877, the unsuccessful party applied for leave to enrol the decree, that he might appeal to the house of lords. In the meantime W., believing himself undisputed owner of the estates, had, in October, 1876, accepted a peerage :—Held, that a party who applies within five years is entitled to inrolment as a matter of right, unless the conduct of the applicant has been such as to make it unreasonable that he should be allowed to inrol ; that his merely doing nothing raised no case against him ; and that his rights could not be affected by the mere fact that the opposite party had altered his position on the faith of being owner of the estates. Cope v. De La Warr (Earl), 5 Ch. D. 666 ; 37 L. T. 109—C. A.

A plaintiff within one month of the end of the five years after a decree had been made, applied to have it inrolled and obtained an order accordingly. After the expiration of the five years, he discovered that one of the defendants was dead, and having then revived the suit, he applied to have the decree inrolled. The application was refused. Patch v. Ward, 43 L. J., Ch. 486 ; L. R. 9 Ch. 269 ; 30 L. T. 152 ; 22 W. R. 458.

An inquiry as to damages having been directed on a claim under a winding-up, the official liquidator applied to have it conducted in court and before a jury. This application was dismissed on the 11th of December, 1873. The official liquidator gave notice of appeal to the house of lords, but not until after the period of three weeks from the dismissal had expired. After the damages had been assessed in chambers the official liquidator, on the 9th of February, 1875, obtained ex parte a conditional order for leave to enrol the order of the 11th of December, 1873, but on hearing the other side this conditional order was discharged :—Held, that liberty to inrol the order of December, 1873, ought not to be granted. Lafitte & Co., In re, L. R. 10 Ch. 316.

—— Enlargement of.]—A person against whom a decree was made by the Court of Appeal was at the date of the decree residing out of the jurisdiction, and suffering from softening of the brain, of which disease he died, nearly three years after date of the decree :—Held, that these were not such peculiar circumstances as to render it just and expedient to enlarge the time for inrolment of the decree under the General Order XXIII. r. 28. Hooper v. Gumm, 26 L. T. 537.

In a suit where the defendant had died after the conditional inrolment of the decree, but before it had been made absolute, the court, on the application of the executors of the defendant's will, enlarged the time for shewing cause against the inrolment of the decree. Patch v. Ward, 21 W. R. 244.

Vacating Inrolment—By whom Application made.]—The inrolment of a decree ordered to be vacated upon the application of a person not a party to the cause. Bruff v. Cobbold, 41 L. J., Ch. 402 ; L. R. 7 Ch. 217 ; 26 L. T. 223 ; 20 W. R. 284.

A fund was held in trust for a class of persons. B., who claimed to be a member of the class, obtained a decree against the trustees for the distribution of the fund. In this decree was inserted a declaration to the effect that B. was entitled to participate in the fund, and inquiries were directed as to what other persons were entitled. A., who was not a party to the suit, put in a claim to be a member of the class, and therefore entitled to participate in the fund ; he also claimed the whole of the fund in case no other person should establish his membership of the class. Being desirous of disputing the title of the plaintiff he presented a petition of rehearing, in order to strike out of the decree the declaration as to the plaintiff's title. This petition could not be heard in consequence of the decree having been inrolled. He therefore moved to vacate the inrolment:—Held, that he was entitled to have the inrolment vacated, the costs of the application being ordered to be dealt with by the judge on the rehearing. Ib.

—— By what Court.]—When a decree of the Court of Chancery has been enrolled, the Court of Appeal has no jurisdiction to order the inrolment to be vacated. Such an order can now be made by the Lord Chancellor only. Allan v. United Kingdom Electric Telegraph Co., 24 W. R. 898—C. A.

—— When Necessary.]—Where in a creditors' suit for administration of the estate of T. a decree was made in the presence of A. declaring that certain property belonged to T. beneficially, and the decree was inrolled, such inrolment does not render it incumbent on A. to file a bill of review and get the inrolment vacated before instituting a suit to set aside the sale by which T. purported to have become the beneficial owner of the property. Widgery v. Tepper, 47 L. J., Ch. 550; 7 Ch. D. 423; 38 L. T. 434; 26 W. R. 546—C. A.

That an inrolled decree in a former suit may be a bar to the relief sought by a second suit, the objects and purposes of the two suits must be identical, and in that case, before the court has jurisdiction over the second suit, the inrolment of the decree must be vacated; but where the objects are not the same there is no such necessity. S. C., 46 L. J., Ch. 703; 25 W. R. 726.

—— In what Cases.]—A plaintiff was a day too late in proceeding on a caveat against the inrolment of an adverse decree in consequence of a petition of appeal presented by him on the last day not being then answered, owing to the absence from office of the Lord Chancellor's principal secretary, and the defendant inrolled the decree. On the plaintiff's application the inrolment was vacated, but he was required to pay all the costs. Blackman v. Cornish, 42 L. J., Ch. 576; 29 L. T. 85; 21 W. R. 741.

The twenty-eight days within which, by Consolidated Order XXIII. r. 27, the party who has entered a caveat must proceed after a docket for inrolment has been left, is not to be extended, because, according to the practice of the office, he only receives notice of the docket being left next day. Ib.

Notice of appeal motion was served without any signature, though the name of the solicitors serving it appeared on the back. After some days the solicitor of the appellant, having discovered the omission, asked the solicitor of the respondent to allow the error to be corrected. The respondent's solicitor refused this, and stated that every technical advantage would be taken. The appeal motion was set down, and the respondent's solicitor informed of it, but no notice of its being set down was regularly served. The respondent's solicitor, at the earliest possible moment, inrolled the order appealed from:—Held, that as distinct notice that no technicality would be waived had been given, the respondent was entitled to avail himself of the irregularity in the notice of motion and maintain the inrolment, though there had been a correspondence which, standing alone, might have led the court to vacate it. Limehouse Works Co., In re, 43 L. J., Ch. 483; L. R. 9 Ch. 266; 30 L. T. 4; 22 W. R. 288.

g. DECLARATORY ORDERS.

Powers of Court—Judicature Act.]—Under Ord. XXV. r. 5, the court has now jurisdiction to make a declaratory order, though no consequential relief is claimed; but such jurisdiction will be exercised with great caution. Austen v. Collins, 54 L. T. 903.

In cases where a person trespasses on another's land, having done so frequently in the past, and having expressed an intention to do so in the future, the court has power under Ord. XXV. r. 5, to make a declaration that such a person is a trespasser. Harrison v. Rutland (Duke), 62 L. J., Q. B. 117; [1893] 1 Q. B. 142; 4 R. 155; 68 L. T. 35; 41 W. R. 322—C. A.

An association of shipowners and others formed for the protection of the shipping trade, but not carrying on such trade or owning goods in its corporate capacity, together with a firm of shipowners, brought an action against a dock company for an injunction to restrain them from imposing certain regulations and charges, as being ultra vires, and for a declaration that they were invalid until confirmed as required by statute:—Held, that the plaintiff firm were not entitled to an injunction without proof of special damage accruing to themselves, but that under the circumstances they were entitled to a declaratory judgment under Ord. XXV. r. 5. London Association of Shipowners v. London and India Docks Joint Committee, 62 L. J., Ch. 294; [1892] 3 Ch. 242; 2 R. 23; 67 L. T. 238; 7 Asp. M. C. 195—C. A.

The court declines to express an abstract opinion on a point of law on the construction of a will when immediate relief is not given. Hampton v. Holman, 46 L. J., Ch. 248; 5 Ch. D. 183; 36 L. T. 287; 25 W. R. 459.

Where a special case for the opinion of the court is stated in an action pursuant to Ord. XXXIV. r. 1 (1875), and the answers to the special case in fact dispose of the action, the proper course is to take the answers, in the shape of a judgment making declarations to the effect of the answers, the action being, if necessary, set down pro formâ for trial on motion for judgment. Harrison v. Cornwall Minerals Ry., 49 L. J., Ch. 834; 16 Ch. D. 66; 43 L. T. 496; 29 W. R. 258.

—— Before 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86.]—A court of equity will not make a declaration of right, except as incidental to relief given, semble. Elliotson v. Knowles, 11 L. J., Ch. 399; 6 Jur. 549.

The court will not, in a suit to carry the trusts of a will into execution, merely declare the rights of the parties, and then leave them to act on that declaration out of court. Brown v. Martyn, 2 Jo. & Lat. 333.

A court of equity will declare and give effect to a forfeiture, where such forfeiture is incidental to the administration of a trust. Duncombe v. Levy, 5 Hare, 232; 11 Jur. 262.

Pursuant to an order of reference in a minor matter to report the nature and amount of the fortune of the minor, the master reported according to his construction of a will; the court refused to make a declaration of the rights of the parties claiming under the will, or to confirm the report. Corkers. In re, 3 Jo. & Lat. 377.

Semble, if the devisees of real estates directed to be sold in a creditors' suit, being lunatic, are not trustees for the plaintiff by the effect of the decree, the court cannot make them such trustees by any declaration to that effect; and if the devisees are such trustees by the effect of the decree, an express declaration thereof, if necessary, should be made by decree, and cannot properly be made upon petition. Jackson v. Milfield, 5 Hare, 538.

Though a person uniting in himself several characters, having distinct conflicting rights in the subject of a suit, may maintain a suit as sole plaintiff, the court will not, in a suit so constituted, decide on the conflicting rights vested in the plaintiff, but by the decree will make provision for the protection of the defendants from any prejudice which may arise from the peculiar constitution of the suit. Blease v. Burgh, 2 Beav. 221; 9 L. J., Ch. 226.

By this answer, a defendant insisted that a former tenant in tail had paid off certain legacies, which he alleged were charges on the real estate out of the specified fund, and that the sums so paid off were still charges on the real estate. By the interlocutory decree it was referred to the master, to take an account of the sums advanced on foot of the specified fund, in exoneration of the lands, and whatever should appear to be so advanced was thereby declared to be a charge on the lands:—Held, that this amounted to a declaration, that the legacies were a charge on the lands. Kelly v. Lennon, 1 Jo. & Lat. 305; 7 Ir. Eq. R. 98.

Bond having been cancelled by obligor, lands settled according to bond by decree. Arnold v. Barrington, Dick. 5.

—— Under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86.]—The court will not express an opinion on a point judicially concluded by orders in the cause which have been acted on for many years, although had the matter been open an important question might have arisen. Livesay v. Harding, 21 Beav. 227.

Declaratory decree that it is fit and proper that an application should be made to parliament to extend the leasing powers affecting a settled estate. Savil v. Bruce, 29 Beav. 557.

Where a decree directed a conveyance, but did in form declare the rights of the parties:—Held, that this was defective. Lambert v. Peyton, 8 H. L. Cas. 2.

Order made containing a declaration of English law for the information of a foreign court. Hope v. Hope, 4 De G. M. & G. 328; 23 L. J., Ch. 682; 2 W. R. 545.

A bill is not sustainable under s. 50 of the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, for a mere declaratory order, when the plaintiff is not entitled to consequential relief. Rooke v. Kensington, 2 Kay & J. 753; 25 L. J., Ch. 795; 4 W. R. 829.

Where some of the parties interested in the construction of a purely legal devise are infants, the court cannot, at the request of the parties, make a declaratory decree as to their rights under such devise. Webb v. Byng, 2 De G. M. & G. 633.

By a decretal order made in March, 1862, the rights of E. and C. to participate in a fund in certain proportions were declared; and the receiver in the cause was ordered to pay to them such shares. The chief clerk ascertained the value of their respective shares, and owing to the absence from the country of the plaintiffs, the receiver paid over the moneys due to them to his solicitors. Several suits were subsequently instituted, disputing their rights as declared by the order of March, and the solicitors received notice not to pay the moneys in their hands to E. and C. Proceedings having been commenced by petition on either side, but not prosecuted, they, by their solicitor, without applying to the solicitors of the receiver, caused two writs of fi. fa. to be issued against the receiver. Those writs were, by an order made by the vacation judge, set aside as unlawful; but, as no injunction had been obtained, the judge was of opinion that the receiver was not at liberty to withhold payment of the sums due to them, which payment was accordingly made. Afterwards Romilly, M.R., whilst confirming the order whereby the writs were set aside as irregular and illegal, went on to direct that E. and C., and their solicitor, should repay into court to a separate fund, to be called "the Disputed Fund," the sums which had been received by them:—Held (reversing this order), that the rights of E. and C. having been declared by the order of March, 1862, could not be set aside by subsequent proceedings of less value or quality, and that they were entitled to retain the sums which had been so paid to them. Whitehead v. Lynes, Burrell, In re, 12 L. T. 332.

The court has no jurisdiction either under s. 50 of the 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, or otherwise, to make a declaration of right, unless it is one upon which the court could act, if required, by granting consequential relief. Bristow v. Whitmore, 4 Kay & J. 743; 1 Johns. 96; 7 W. R. 150.

Where the declaration sought is not of that nature, the court has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit. Ib.

Where a decree erroneously states that a married woman is entitled to her separate use, the court not having decided what her interest was, that is not binding as a declaration of right, and must be disregarded. Moore v. Walter, 8 L. T. 448; 11 W. R. 713.

The court of chancery could only decide legal questions so far as is necessary for the exercise of its own jurisdiction, and therefore would not make a decree declaratory of rights under a legal instrument. Att.-Gen. v. Boyle, 3 N. R. 414; 10 Jur. (N.S.) 309; 10 L. T. 290; 12 W. R. 368.

The plaintiff, on the faith of the regulations of the colonial office, spent money in a colony, so as to entitle himself to large grants of land:—Held, on demurrer to a bill filed by leave of the Lord Chancellor, upon a petition of right against the attorney-general, that the crown had entered into a contract with the plaintiff to grant the land, and that the court was empowered to make a declaration of the plaintiff's right to specific performance, though it could not proceed to a mandatory decree. Lautour v. Att.-Gen., 5 N. R. 102, 231.

To save expense, the court declared the construction of executory marriage articles, instead of directing a settlement to be executed in conformity therewith. Byam v. Byam, 19 Beav. 58; 24 L. J., Ch. 209; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 79; 3 W. R. 95.

A., previously to the marriage of his daughter B., gave to the trustee of her settlement a bond, whereby he bound himself to pay an annuity upon trusts for the benefit of B. and her children,

A. died, leaving C., another of his daughters, his sole devisee and executrix. On a bill filed by B. against C.:—Held, that B. was entitled to a decree declaring that she had a lien on the testator's real estate to the amount of the value of the annuity, but that B. should pay the costs of all parties to the cause. Norman v. Johnson, 6 Jur. (N.S.) 905; 8 W. R. 300.

When the title of a remainderman is clear, the court will, at his instance, compel the remainderman to produce the title deeds; but if his title is not clear, the court will not, incidentally, decide in favour of the remainderman's title to the estate, in a suit merely for the production of the title deeds. Pennell v. Dysart (Earl), 27 Beav. 542.

The mortgagee of A. (an alleged remainderman) instituted a suit against B. (the alleged tenant for life), for the mere production of the title deeds. B. set up a bonâ fide objection that A.'s estate had become forfeited, and also that, by the terms of the mortgage deed, the estates were not comprised therein. The assignees of A. (who had become bankrupt), though interested in the latter question, were not parties to the suit. The court declined adjudicating, incidentally, on the plaintiff's right, and dismissed the bill, with costs. Davis v. Dysart (Earl), 20 Beav. 405; 24 L. J., Ch. 381; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 743; 3 Eq. R. 599; 3 W. R. 393.

When the interests of the parties to a special case were not of such a nature as to give the court jurisdiction to decide the questions asked in the case, the court gave permission to amend the case by introducing a question as to the right of the plaintiffs to commit waste in order to give the court jurisdiction. Forsbrook v. Forsbrook, L. R. 3 Ch. 93; 16 W. R. 290.

Fictitious Suits to Decide Questions.]—The court will entertain a suit to declare the rights of children of a marriage to a fund settled by one of their parents, though the fund be settled with the object of determining, by having the individuals comprising the class ascertained, whether a reputed child is legitimate. Gurney v. Gurney, 1 Hem. & M. 413; 2 N. R. 106; 32 L. J., Ch. 456; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 514; 8 L. T. 380; 11 W. R. 659.

In December, 1859, a wife eloped from her husband, there being at that time two children of the marriage. Proceedings for obtaining a divorce were immediately commenced by the husband; a decree nisi was pronounced on the 13th February, 1861, and made absolute on the 22nd May, 1861. On the 4th May, 1861, the wife was delivered of a full-grown male child. In order to determine the status of this child, the husband, in January, 1862, vested 2,000*l.* reduced annuities in trustees, for all and every the children then living of his marriage with his wife; and a suit was instituted, seeking that the rights of the parties interested under this settlement might be declared, and the trusts of the settlement might be carried out under the direction of the court:—Held, that although the real object of the settlor might be, and probably was, to obtain a decision from the court that this child was illegitimate, and although the decision might affect property of far greater value, those circumstances were not sufficient to warrant the court in withholding the exercise of its ordinary jurisdiction. Ib.

Semble, the court will not so act in the case of a stranger making such a settlement for a purpose of which it disapproves. Ib.

A suit being merely manufactured for the purpose of compelling the present trial in an indirect way of an important question affecting the title to large estates, namely, the status of legitimacy or illegitimacy of an infant, was not maintainable. Cooke v. Cooke, 4 De G. J. & S. 704; 6 N. R. 134; 34 L. J., Ch. 459; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 533; 12 L. T. 468; 13 W. R. 697.

Where a settlement was made to raise a question of a child's legitimacy the court declined to entertain a suit for its execution when the father and mother are living, and had not concurred in the settlement or the suit, and where the guardian of the child (an infant) disclaimed at the bar. Anon., 2 Hem. & M. 124.

Upon a special case to obtain a decision whether persons not in esse would be entitled, under certain circumstances which might never arise, to a share in property, the court declined to decide the question, being of opinion that it would be injurious to the parties to have that decision until the events should happen which would give rise to the question. Bright v. Tyndall, 4 Ch. D. 189; 25 W. R. 109.

When the interest of the parties to a special case is not of such a nature as to give the court jurisdiction to decide the question, the court will not feel itself bound to decide upon a fictitious interest created for the express purpose of obtaining a decision. Ib.

On a special case raising questions of legal limitations at the instance of a plaintiff not in possession, the court declined to make any order or to entertain any fictitious question as to title deeds or accounts in order to found jurisdiction. Pryse v. Pryse, 42 L. J., Ch., 253; L. R. 15 Eq. 86; 27 L. T. 575; 21 W. R. 219.

Future Rights or Interests.]—The former practice of the court in refusing to declare the future rights of parties is altered in a case where the rights are vested, where all parties who can become interested are represented at the hearing, and when the number of classes of persons who can possibly become interested may be diminished, but cannot be increased. Curtis v. Sheffield, 51 L. J., Ch. 535; 21 Ch. D. 1; 46 L. T. 177; 30 W. R. 581—C. A.

Testator gave the remainder of his property to his mother and sisters, to be equally divided among them if living at the time of his decease, then amongst their surviving children:—Held, that the mother and sisters took as tenants in common for life, and that the children who should be alive at the death of their respective parents took the parents' share absolutely:—Held, that the above was a case where the court would declare the future rights of the children under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 50. Fletcher v. Rogers, 10 Hare (App.) xiii.; 1 W. R. 125.

Case in which the court refused to make a declaration as to the interest of parties who might be entitled in reversion. Greenwood v. Sutherland, 10 Hare (App.) xii.

The court refused to make a declaratory decree on a special case, during the lifetime of the tenant for life, with regard to the interest of parties entitled in reversion. Garlick v. Lawson, 10 Hare (App.) xiv.

In a special case the court has no power to make binding declarations of future rights. Burt v. Sturt, 1 W. R. 145.

No declaration as to future interest will be made upon a special case. Savage v. Tyers, 20 W. R. 817.

The court will not, on a special case, make any declaration of future rights. Smith v. Gibson, 25 L. T. 559; 20 W. R. 88.

Mode of framing a special case so as to enable the court, in some cases, to make a declaration, in the lifetime of a tenant for life, with regard to the interest of a party claiming in remainder. Although, in the lifetime of a tenant for life, the court has no jurisdiction, upon a special case, to declare whether an interest limited in remainder is vested or void for remoteness, yet it is competent to the court to declare, "whether the person claiming in remainder takes such an interest in the property in question as to entitle him to file a bill to have it secured for his benefit." Bell v. Cade, 2 John. & H. 122; 5 L. T. 523; 10 W. R. 38.

The meaning of s. 50 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, is only to remove the objection that a plaintiff, who might have consequential relief, prays merely a declaration of his right. It did not mean to entitle a person to have a declaration as to a claim which may be made by another, under circumstances which may or may not happen. Jackson v. Turnley, 1 Drew. 617; 1 Eq. Rep. 328; 22 L. J., Ch. 949; 17 Jur. 643; 1 W. R. 461.

The court has no power, either under 13 & 14 Vict. c. 35, or under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, to make a declaration, in the lifetime of the tenant for life, with regard to the interests of parties entitled in reversion, unless it shall be necessary to do so for the administration of an estate, or in order to grant the plaintiff the relief to which he is entitled. Gosling v. Gosling, 1 Johns. 265; 5 Jur. (N.S.) 910.

In a settlement, one of the parties covenanted, "that if he, F., should at any time obtain or become entitled to any property exceeding in value the sum of '——,' he would immediately assign the same to the trustees," upon the same trusts that had been previously declared of another sum. Upon his becoming entitled, in reversion, to some property, he filed a bill to have the settlement corrected by striking out the covenant, and to have it declared that he was entitled absolutely in reversion to the property to which he had become entitled:—Held, that the court would not make a present declaration of right. Fyfe v. Arbuthnot, 26 L. J., Ch. 646; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 651; 5 W. R. 793—L. C.

The court has no authority, notwithstanding s. 50 of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, to declare future rights. Langdale (Lady) v. Briggs, 8 De G. M. & G. 391; 26 L. J., Ch. 27; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 982; 4 W. R. 703.

The court will not make declarations of future rights in events which have not happened; and, therefore, where a testator, having given copyholds and leaseholds to trustees, to correspond with the uses of the devised freeholds, and by a codicil limited the freeholds differently after the death of the first tenant for life, but was silent as to copyholds or leaseholds:—Held, that during the continuance of the life estate the court would not determine how far the ulterior limitations of the copyholds and leaseholds were affected by the codicil. Ib.

Land, as to which a dispute as to the amount of the lessee's interest was pending (viz. whether he had a right of renewal for sixty-one years from 1885, or whether his interest expired altogether at the end of his existing term of sixty-one years, 1890), was taken by a railway company, under an agreement by which it was provided that if the lessee should substantiate his right of renewal, the company would pay him a further sum (the amount, if in dispute, to be settled by arbitration pursuant to the Lands Clauses Act) in addition to the price of the existing term. The company having since bought up the lessor's reversion in fee, the lessee filed a bill against them, praying a declaration of his right to a renewal from 1885, and payment of compensation on that footing:—Held, that the court had jurisdiction to decide this question of future right of renewal, on which the lessee's claim to compensation depended, and for ascertaining which no means were afforded by the Lands Clauses Act. Bogg v. Midland Ry., L. R. 4 Eq. 310.

h. Service of Notice on Interested Parties.

Parties out of the Jurisdiction.]—The court has no jurisdiction to order service out of the jurisdiction of an order, affecting the interests of persons not parties to the action so that they may be bound by the proceedings under R. S. C., Ord. XVI. r. 40. Cliff, In re, Edwards v. Brown, 64 L. J., Ch. 423; [1895] 2 Ch. 21; 13 R. 425; 72 L. T. 440; 43 W. R. 436—C. A.

Where a suit is commenced by summons out of chambers, parties out of the jurisdiction must be served with notice of the decree. Strong v. Moore, 22 L. J., Ch. 917; 1 W. R. 509.

A bill was, in the presence of and adversely to the cestui que trust, taken pro confesso against a trustee living abroad. The court, under the 86th order of 1845, dispensed with service of the decree on him. Benbow v. Davis, 12 Beav. 421.

The provision for serving parties with a copy of decree in 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 41, rule 8, applies to parties out of the jurisdiction. Chalmers v. Laurie, 10 Hare (App.) xvi., xxiv., xxvii.; 1 W. R. 265.

Directions to Serve.]—Cases in which the directions of the court will be given in chambers on the question of what parties are to be served with the order or decree, and as to which of the parties service may be dispensed with. De Balinhard v. Bullock, 9 Hare (App.) xiii.

Decree for the appointment of new trustees and conveyance of the trust estate, in a suit by some cestuis que trustent against the devisees of the last survivor of the former trustees, and a direction to serve the other cestuis que trustent with notice of the decree. Jones v. James, 9 Hare (App.) lxxxix.

Where an estate is to be sold under the decree of the court, the general rule (with a possible exception in some cases of extreme difficulty) is, that all the parties interested in the proceeds must, to secure a proper and advantageous sale, and protect the title of purchasers from being open to inquiry or impeachment, be parties to the suit, or be served with notice of the decree under the 8th rule of the 42nd section of the act 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86. Doody v. Higgins, 9 Hare (App.) xxxii.

The 51st section of the act 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, which empowers the court to adjudicate on questions between some only of the parties, does not render the decision binding on the absent parties, as the 42nd section of the same statute does, when notice of the decree has been served under the 8th rule. Ib.

In order to bind remainderman they must be served with the decree; but it is a rule of practice that no such direction should form part of the decree. Greaves v. Smith, 22 W. R. 388.

As to serving an infant with notice of the decree, under the 8th rule, s. 42, stat. 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86. Clarke v. Clarke, 9 Hare (App.) xiii.

Leave to attend.]—Only those persons who, under the practice prior to 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, were necessary parties to a suit before decree can, on being served with notice of the decree, obtain leave to attend the proceedings by an order of course. Colyer v. Colyer, 32 L. J., Ch. 101; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 294; 9 L. T. 214; 11 W. R. 587, 1051.

Effect of Service.]—The effect of service of a decree under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 42, rule 8, is to bind the interest of the party served in the subject-matter of the suit, and not to impose on him any liability to account. Walker v. Seligmann, 40 L. J., Ch. 601; L. R. 12 Eq. 152; 25 L. T. 294.

The effect of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 42, is at most to place persons served with notice of the decree on the same footing as if they were defendants; they cannot be treated as co-plaintiffs, and no inquiries can be obtained in such a suit for their benefit that could not have been obtained between co-defendants. Whitney v. Smith, L. R. 4 Ch. 513; 20 L. T. 468; 17 W. R. 579.

Death of Person.]—Bill and interrogatories served on E., who took no notice of them. Bill consequently ordered to be taken pro confesso against him. Judgment drawn up accordingly. Upon attempting to serve E. with judgment, it was found that he was dead at date of the decree, leaving no legal representative. Ordered, that, upon filing an affidavit verifying the circumstances under which the application was made, E.'s widow be served with notice that within six weeks from date of such service, the court would appoint a representative, and direct payment, unless in the meantime the widow appeared to contest. Alforth v. Espinach, 36 L. T. 367.

Order for Payment.] — When notice of an administration judgment has been served on parties interested, and afterwards, on further consideration, it is desired to obtain an order against them personally for payment of money, they should be served with notice of the action having been set down for further consideration, even though they have obtained an order to attend the proceedings. Rees, In re, Rees v. George, 15 Ch. D. 490.

Setting aside Order for Service.]—In an action for administration, judgment for administration was delivered on the 2nd June, 1883, and in November, 1884, notice of the judgment was served by the plaintiffs, under an order of the court on P., a purchaser of part of the testator's estate in which the plaintiffs were not interested. He was not a party to the action, and it did not appear from the judgment how he was affected. In order to ascertain his position, he entered an appearance on the 22nd November, 1884, under Ord. XVI. r. 41. On finding that he was not affected by the judgment, he served notice of motion on the plaintiffs that the order directing service might be discharged for irregularity, that the service might be declared irregular and set aside, that the appearance entered by him thereupon might be vacated, and that the costs of the application and consequent on the service might be paid by the plaintiffs. The motion was ordered to stand over, and P. was kept in the proceedings till the hearing on further consideration, when Bacon, V.-C., refused to give him any costs:—Held, on appeal, that P. was not a person who ought to have been served under Ord. XVI. r. 40, and that the service was irregular; that P. was right in appearing to the notice, that his appearance must be vacated, and that the plaintiffs must pay the costs in both courts, including the costs of appearance and all costs consequent on the service. Symons, In re, Betts v. Betts, 54 L. T. 501—C. A.

Service of Copy Bill.]—The attorney-general cannot be proceeded against by service of copy bill, under the 23rd order of August, 1841. Christopher v. Gleghorn, 8 Beav. 314.

When a party of unsound mind can be proceeded against by service of copy bill. Pemberton v. Langmore, 8 Beav. 166.

In a suit for administering the real estate of a testator, the devisees of the real estate subject to a power of sale given to trustees by the will, for the purpose of paying debts, are persons against whom "no direct relief" is prayed within the meaning of the 23rd of the orders of August, 1841. Lloyd v. Lloyd, 1 Y. & Coll. C. C. 181; 6 Jur. 162.

In a suit against the trustees of real estate having the legal fee and full powers of sale, the object being to raise a legacy charged on such estate, the equitable tenant in tail thereof is a necessary party, and it is not sufficient to serve him with a copy of the bill under the 23rd order of August, 1841. Barkley v. Reay (Lord), 2 Hare, 306; 12 L. J., Ch. 320.

A defendant against whom it is prayed that he may be bound by the proceedings on service of a copy of the bill, under the 23rd order of August, 1841, may appear gratis before or after he is so served. S. C., 2 Hare, 309.

Bill by one child entitled with the other children to the residue of real and personal estate against the widow and eldest son of the testator, who were the trustees and executors for the execution of the trusts of the will and administration of the estate, and praying a receiver; the widow claimed a life estate adversely to the children:—Held, that the residuary legatees (who were defendants), other than the executors, were properly served with a copy of the bill under the 23rd order of August, 1841. Davis v. Davis, 4 Hare, 389.

In a suit respecting the estate of B.:—Held, that notwithstanding the bill alleged that the estate of B. was fully administered, and that the parties beneficially interested in the estate were parties to the suit, yet the executor of B. was a party against whom direct relief was in substance prayed, and he was not therefore a party to be served with a copy of the bill within the 23rd order of August, 1841. Powell v. Cockerell, 4 Hare, 557.

Bill by a debtor, who had conveyed property to a trustee for the benefit of his creditors, to have the trust of the deed administered by the court, charging that one of such creditors had forfeited his debt by a breach of his covenant not to sue or molest the debtor:—Held, that the creditors parties to the deed, other than the trustee and the creditor charged with the breach of covenant, were sufficiently made parties by being served with copies of the bill under the 23rd Order of August, 1841. Duncombe v. Levy, 5 Hare, 232; 11 Jur. 262.

In a suit by some of the members of a class, claiming to be entitled under a conditional limitation by devise in favour of such class, against parties who claimed under a recovery suffered of the estate by the first taker under the same devise, the other members of the class in the same interest as the plaintiffs, who decline to become co-plaintiffs, may be served with the copy of the bill under the 29th Order of August, 1841; and if they are required to appear and answer, their costs must be paid by the plaintiffs. Abram v. Ward, 6 Hare, 170.

All the trustees named in a will having died, a bill was filed by one of the cestuis que trustent against the others, the heir of the trustee who died last, and certain persons who had been in possession of the estates, praying for an account of the rents received by those persons, for the appointment of new trustees, and that the estates might be conveyed to them by the heir of the trustee who died last:—Held, that the cestuis que trustent, who were defendants, had been rightly served with a copy of the bill under the 23rd General Order of August, 1841. Johnson v. Tucker, 15 Sim. 485; 11 Jur. 3.

A. and B., the representatives of a surviving trustee, were made parties to a suit respecting the trust property, and were served with a copy bill, and not with subpœna. They objected from the beginning, but did not intervene. New trustees were appointed, and seven years afterwards an order was made, in the absence of A. and B., for the distribution of the fund and delivery out of court of the title-deeds. A petition by A. and B. to discharge the order was dismissed with costs. Doyle v. Doyle, 12 Beav. 471.

To a bill filed by A. against B. to recover a customary estate, all persons claiming adversely against B. under the custom or by various constructions of custom are necessary parties; nor can A., with respect to those persons, avail himself of the provisions of the 23rd Order of August, 1841. Marke v. Locke, 2 Y. & Coll. C. C. 500; 12 L. J., Ch. 444.

The plaintiff by original bill claimed to be equitably entitled to certain customary premises, and prayed that the then defendants, the trustees in whom the legal estate was vested, and all other necessary parties, might be decreed to convey and give up the premises and the title-deeds, &c. to him (the plaintiff). At the original hearing, it was objected by the trustees, that certain parties claiming an interest in the premises were not before the court, and the cause was directed to stand over, to give the plaintiff an opportunity of making them parties to the suit. He accordingly made them defendants by supplemental bill; but, on the supposition that no direct relief was prayed against them, served them with a copy of the bill under the 23rd of the Orders of August, 1841:—Held, however, that they were not persons against whom no account, conveyance, or other direct relief was sought within the meaning of the order. Marke v. Turner, 7 Jur. 1102.

A defendant being out of the jurisdiction when a bill was filed, came within after decree, and after expiration of the twelve weeks within which he could have been served with a copy of the bill as of course, the bill not asking a specific relief against him, an application to serve him with a copy of the bill after decree under the 10th Consolidated Order, rr. 11 and 18, was refused. Penfold v. Kelly, 9 L. T. 674; 12 W. R. 286.

i. By Consent.

In what Cases.]—A decree may be made by consent in a cause, relating to the separate property of a married woman, in which she and her husband are co-plaintiffs. Stinson v. Ashley, 5 Russ. 4.

Accounts being directed to be taken by the Master, liberty was by consent given to the parties to submit to his arbitration any question of account. The court also gave liberty to the Master to adopt the conclusions, but would not, even by consent, make it compulsory. Scale v. Fothergill, 8 Beav. 361.

Persons authorised by the court to defend an action on behalf of others having the same interest cannot consent to the judgment against them; the proper course in case there is no defence is to submit on their behalf to judgment. Rees v. Richmond, 62 L. T. 427.

Copyhold fines were ascertained at two years' value, and a commission was issued to ascertain the value of the tenements under a decree by consent, the principle of which was disapproved. Holles (Lord) v. Hutchinson, 3 Swanst. 665.

In a creditor's suit, the court, upon motion, with the consent of all parties, directed an account of judgments affecting the lands to be sold prior to and contemporaneous with the filing of the bill. Montgomery v. Southwell, 3 Dr. & War. 171; 5 Ir. Eq. R. 71.

Interlocutory Order—Final Decree.]—A final decree cannot be made upon an interlocutory order without consent. Allan v. Bower, 3 Bro. C. C. 149.

An order embracing the whole subject of the suit cannot be made on motion without express consent. Like v. Beresford, 3 Bro. C. C. 366.

Bankruptcy of Persons Consenting.]—Upon a motion for an injunction, the defendant consented to an immediate decree, but he became bankrupt before the decree had been drawn up, and his written consent to set down the cause could not be obtained. The court made the order for setting down the cause, and dispensed with the consent. Brighouse v. Margetson, 35 Beav. 303.

Powers of Court and Parties by Consent.]—The owners of the B. sued the owners of the C. for a collision. In the course of the trial a compromise was arrived at, whereupon the court made an order by consent dismissing the action, including a counter-claim, without costs. The owners of the cargo on the B. then sued the owners of the C., and obtained a judgment declaring both ships to blame. The owners of the C. began a suit to limit their liability, and paid the limitation fund into court. Subsequently the owners of the B., with the consent of the owners of the C., obtained on summons, without application to the court, an order in the registry setting aside the first order, and made a claim upon the fund in court:—Held, that the second order was invalid, and did not operate to set aside the first order, which was a judgment of the court, and therefore that, as the owners of the B. had no claim against the owners of the C., the claim was rightly disallowed. Whether in the absence of fraud the court itself could have set aside the first order, quære. The Bellcairn, 55 L. J., P. 3; 10 P. D. 161; 53 L. T. 686; 34 W. R. 55—C. A. See Hammond v. Schofield, 60 L. J., Q. B. 539; [1891] 1 Q. B. 453.

Where an arrangement is made by consent of the parties to an action, and, in order to carry into effect their intentions, some act remains to be done under the authority of the court, the court has power, notwithstanding such previous consent, to see that such act is proper and allowable. Wade v. Simeon, 2 D. & L. 658; 13 M. & W. 647; 14 L. J., Ex. 117; 9 Jur. 117.

How far binding.]—Decree by consent not set aside. Harrison v. Rumsey, 2 Ves. 488.

An order by consent can only be got rid of by consent. Bernal v. Donegal (Marquis), 3 Dow, 146; 1 Bli. (N.S.) 594.

An order by consent, if in conformity with the rules of the court, cannot be varied except by consent. Glynn v. Bell, 6 L. J., Ch. 201. And see Thrupp v. Goodrich, 18 W. R. 125.

An order of reference having been made by consent, the court refused to vary it by introducing a new term in consequence of fresh information having come to the knowledge of one of the parties. Drake v. Brown, 2 C. M. & R. 270; 5 Tyr. 1067; 4 L. J., Ex. 313.

Relief against a consent, sought on special grounds, refused. Cochrane v. Robinson, 1 Jur. 864.

A decree made by consent cannot be impeached by any of the parties to the cause, or those claiming under them. Moss v. Leatham, 2 Moore, P. C. 73.

A decree by consent as to a personal estate binds a purchaser for a valuable consideration. Wyndham v. Wyndham, 3 Ch. Rep. 22; 2 Freem. 127.

Circumstances in which parties were held, after a case had been sent to a court of law, not to be bound by their consent at the re-hearing not to take a case for the opinion of another court of law, and the cause remitted to the court below to hear parties as to the validity of the leases in question. Sheehy v. Muskerry (Lord), Macl. & R. 493; 7 Cl. & F. 1.

Cause may be sent back to the Master, notwithstanding the decree taken by consent did not reserve further directions. Dolben v. Nash, 1 Jur. 557.

A decree nisi was taken against a defendant who did not appear at the hearing. Judgment was pronounced by the Master of the Rolls, after his appointment to the office of Lord Chancellor, by consent of all the parties to the cause, except the defendant and another party who did not appear at the hearing. The defendant could only shew cause against the decree nisi by setting down the cause to be heard against him; and a petition to stay proceedings to make the decree absolute, on the ground of his being no party to the consent to have the cause decided by the Master of the Rolls after he became Lord Chancellor, was dismissed with costs. Moore v. Frowd, 2 Keen, 242; 7 L. J., Ch. 113.

—— Authority of Counsel and Solicitor.]—See BARRISTER—SOLICITOR.

Setting aside.]—See infra, col. 591.

Whether Appeal lies.]—A decree or order made by consent cannot be appealed from. Allanson v. Doulben, Colles's P. C. 299; Blundell v. Macartney, 2 Ridgw. P. C. 557, 591; Norcott v. Norcott, 7 Vin. Abr. 398. S. C. nom. Northcote v. Northcote, Colles's P. C. 287.

An appeal brought, suggesting that decree was said to be made by consent when it was not, was dismissed. Downing v. Cage, 1 Eq. Abr. 165.

It is a known and established rule that an appeal does not lie against an order made by the consent of parties. Toder v. Sansam, 1 Bro. P. C. 468.

A decree made by consent cannot be appealed from. Bradish v. Gee, Ambl. 229; 1 Ken. Ch. 73.

Appeal not barred by consent to an order under the decree; but that order ought to be inserted in the petition of appeal. Wood v. Griffith, 19 Ves. 550; 1 Mer. 35.

Where, after trials at law, the case was left by consent to the decision of the court, upon the evidence taken at law, the decree made on such evidence was held to be subject to appeal. Morris v. Davies, 5 Cl. & F. 163.

An order was made upon petition by a vice-chancellor as if upon consent of all parties; it turned out that one of the parties was a married woman, and had not been examined as to her consent, and now appealed upon that ground:—Held, that it was not a subject of appeal, and that the petition should be heard before the court which made the order. Pearse v. Brook, 14 Jur. 143.

The appearance of counsel, who had been previously engaged at the hearing of a cause, on the cause coming on again upon the reserved question of costs, the proctor who originally instructed him being present, and not objecting to his taking part in the proceedings, and the opposite party being thereby led to suppose he was properly instructed to agree to a final decree:—Held, binding on the party for whom he originally appeared, so as to perempt an appeal previously lodged against the former decree. Kelly v. Bushby, 3 Knapp, 375.

Where an order is made by consent, neither the court making it nor the appellate court can reverse it. Dodson v. Sammell, 8 W. R. 252.

Agreement to perform Conditions.]—A judge's order, made by consent, whereby it was ordered that proceedings in an action should be taxed upon certain conditions, does not amount to an agreement to perform those conditions; and a bill for specific performance will not lie. Thames Iron Works and Shipbuilding Co. v. Patent Derrick Co., 1 John. & H. 93; 29 L. J., Ch. 714; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 1013; 2 L. T. 208; 8 W. R. 408.

Objection to Order—Infant Party.]—A party to a suit who, knowing that certain other parties are infants, agrees that a certain course should be taken in the suit, cannot afterwards object that his consent does not bind him because the other parties were infants and could not consent. Pisani v. Att.-Gen. (Gibraltar), L. R. 5 P. C. 517.

Fraud or Mistake, Effect of.]—An order consented to in consequence of mistake will be discharged, but not with costs. Irving v. Pritchard, 3 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 100.

An order was made on petition and by consent:—Held, that it could only be varied by a proceeding in the nature of one to correct the agreement on the ground of fraud or suppression of facts. Greenwood v. Churchill, 14 Beav. 160.

Two solicitors, A. and B., dissolved partnership, and it was agreed that B. should be entitled to half the profits of a suit instituted by them. After some time, an order was made, by consent of both, for the taxation of the costs down to the date. Some of the costs had, unknown to B., been already taxed and received by A.:—Held, under the circumstances, that the order comprised all such costs, and, the previous costs having been omitted in the master's certificate, the court, upon a petition to review the taxation, referred the matter back to the master. Ib.

Where a party to a suit consents to an order on the faith of a statement made at the bar, which statement afterwards proves to be erroneous, and in the absence of any evidence of unfairness or surprise, the court will not vary the order by striking out the words "by consent." Cookes v. Cookes, 12 Jur. (N.S.) 244; 14 L. T. 98. Affirmed, 14 L. T. 157—L.JJ.

After a judgment by consent has been passed and entered, it cannot afterwards be varied on the ground of mistake, except for reasons sufficient to set aside an agreement. Att.-Gen. v. Tomline, 47 L. J., Ch. 473; 7 Ch. D. 388; 38 L. T. 57; 26 W. R. 188.

Allowed to be a good error in a bill of review, that the decree was made by the consent of the plaintiff's counsel, by which he ought not to be concluded. Smith v. Turner, 1 Vern. 274.

When a decree has been made by consent, all parties are primâ facie bound, under whatever circumstances that consent is given. It may, however, be impeached when it has been obtained by fraud or on an entire mistake of facts. Stannard v. Harrison, 24 L. T. 570; 19 W. R. 811.

The court has jurisdiction to discharge an order made on an interlocutory application by consent when it is proved to have been made under a mistake, though that mistake was on one side only. Mullins v. Howell, 48 L. J., Ch. 679; 11 Ch. D. 763.

Where on motion for a mandatory injunction an order was made by consent pursuant to the terms of a previous agreement, by which the defendant gave an undertaking to remove certain obstructions, and it appeared that the defendant had by mistake consented to a more extensive undertaking than he intended to do, the court refused to enforce that part of the undertaking which had been given by mistake. Ib.

Withdrawal of Consent.]—When an order is made by consent, such consent may be withdrawn at any time before the order is passed and entered. Rogers v. Horn, 26 W. R. 432.

When the counsel and solicitors of a defendant, being aware of all the facts on which an order ought to be made, consented in court, in the defendant's presence, to an order against him, he was not allowed to withdraw his consent, on the grounds that his advisers mistook their instructions, and had no sufficient authority to bind him. Aliter if the consent is given through inadvertence. Holt v. Jesse, 46 L. J., Ch. 254; 3 Ch. D. 177; 24 W. R. 879.

A defendant in an action had undertaken by his counsel at the hearing to make certain payments which had been agreed upon as the measure of damages. After the order had been passed and entered, i.e. at least two weeks after judgment, the defendant moved to be discharged from the undertaking on the ground of its having been given under a misapprehension of facts:—Held, that the application came too late, the defendant having had ample time between the delivery of the judgment and the drawing up of the order in which to ascertain the state of facts. Att.-Gen. v. Tomline, 47 L. J., Ch. 473; 7 Ch. D. 388; 38 L. T. 57; 26 W. R. 188.

An action was brought against a local board to restrain them from pulling down certain houses of the plaintiff's, and for damages. On a motion for an injunction coming on, the defendants' counsel, by the authority of his clients, consented to an order for a perpetual injunction, with costs, and an inquiry as to damages, and such order was taken by consent without opening the case to the court. Before the order had been passed, the defendants formally withdrew their consent, and the registrar thereupon declined to pass the order without the direction of the court. The plaintiff moved that he might be directed to proceed to perfect the order. The defendants alleged that their instructions to consent had been given under a misapprehension, but did not enter into any evidence in support of that allegation:—Held, that where counsel by the authority of their clients consent to an order, the clients cannot arbitrarily withdraw such consent, and that the registrar must be directed to proceed to perfect the order, without prejudice to any application which the defendants might make to the court below to be relieved from their consent on the ground of mistake or surprise, or for other sufficient reason. Harvey v. Croydon Union Rural Sanitary Authority, 53 L. J., Ch. 707; 26 Ch. D. 249; 50 L. T. 291; 32 W. R. 389—C. A.

An action was brought for an injunction to restrain the defendant from selling certain buttons alleged to be an infringement of the plaintiffs' registered trade-mark. The defendant, believing that he had no defence to the action, consented to an order for a perpetual injunction with costs. Before the order was drawn up, he received a letter from the manufacturer of the buttons, which were made in Germany, wherefrom it appeared that the buttons had been sold in this country long before the registration of the plaintiffs' trade-mark. On motion by the defendant that he might be relieved from the consent so given:—Held, that a party who has deliberately consented to a perpetual injunction cannot be permitted to withdraw his consent merely because he has subsequently discovered that he might have a good defence to the action; that the case was not one of mistake; and that the motion must be refused. Elsas v. Williams, 54 L. J., Ch. 336; 52 L. T. 39.

Form of Order.]—Where, by arrangement, any order which is not according to the course of the court is inserted in a decree, such order must in the decree be stated to be by consent. Bartlett v. Wood, 30 L. J., Ch. 614; 4 L. T. 692; 9 W. R. 817.

Where an order has been agreed to and arranged between the parties to an action, and has not been sanctioned or directed by the court, it should appear on the face of the order that it is an order by consent. Michel v. Mutch, 55 L. J., Ch. 485; 54 L. T. 45; 34 W. R. 251.

An order directing an issue "with the consent of all parties in the cause" is erroneous so far as it purports to be with the consent of an infant party. Malone v. Malone, 8 Cl. & F. 179; West, 637; 3 Ir. Eq. R. 536.

The plaintiff's farms had been injuriously affected by some works of the defendant, which resulted in certain actions and a suit in equity. An order had been made in the latter by consent declaring that the valuation of the farms ought to be calculated upon the basis of the existing state of the farms after the damage:—Held, that such declaration ought to be omitted from the consent order. Houghton v. Bankart, 7 Jur. (N.S.) 57; 3 L. T. 606; 9 W. R. 215.

—— Amendment of.]—If an order made by consent is, through mistake, capable of an interpretation contrary to the real intention, it will be amended by the court, so as to make it plainly and clearly represent that intention. Oldershaw v. King, 26 L. J., Ex. 384.

—— Consent Order by Mistake not enforced.]—Where on motion for a mandatory injunction an order was made by consent, pursuant to the terms of a previous agreement, by which the defendant gave an undertaking to remove certain obstructions, and it appeared that the defendant had by mistake consented to a more extensive undertaking than he intended to do, the court refused to enforce that part of the undertaking which had been given by mistake. Ib.

Consent Judgment — Motion on Notice.]—There is no fixed rule in the chancery division that judgment by consent must, in all cases, be obtained by motion on notice for judgment. Pneumatic Tyre Co. v. Grappler Pneumatic Tyre Co., [1897] 1 Ir. R. 467.

j. INTERLOCUTORY ORDERS.

Orders held to be Interlocutory on Appeal.]—See APPEAL.

Application by Defendant.]—Defendant not being the party seeking relief, therefore is not entitled to apply for an interlocutory order for his own security or relief as to the subject matter of the suit, unless the object of his motion may be imposed as a condition on an order applied for by the plaintiff. Wynne v. Griffith, 1 Sim. & S. 147; 1 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 110.

Title to Fund in Court.]—When a fund, the title to which is litigated in the cause, has been brought into court, it is contrary to the practice of the court to determine the question of title upon interlocutory applications so far as to direct that the interest of the fund shall be paid to one of the parties claiming it until further order. Nedby v. Nedby, 4 Myl. & C. 367; 3 Jur. 18. Reversing 8 L. J., Ch. 23.

Rent—Receiver.]—The court will not by an interlocutory order before the hearing charge a party who is in possession of an estate, and who has been ordered to pay an occupation rent to the receiver, with the amount of such rent for any period antecedent to the date of the order for fixing the rent and appointing the receiver. Lloyd v. Mason, 2 Myl. & C. 487.

See RECEIVER.

Evidence at Hearing.]—The court will not, upon an interlocutory application, after the cause is set down for hearing, declare that at the hearing a particular document may be produced and read as evidence. Att.-Gen. v. Fishmongers' Co., 4 Myl. & C. 1; C. P. Coop. 385.

The court has jurisdiction to make any interlocutory order which is reasonably asked as ancillary to the administration of justice at the hearing. Smith v. Peters, 44 L. J., Ch. 613; L. R. 20 Eq. 511; 23 W. R. 763.

The court will make interlocutory orders for production only for security or discovery, and will not anticipate the decree. Lingen v. Simpson, 6 Madd. 290.

Final Decree.]—Final decree cannot be made upon an interlocutory order without consent. Allan v. Bower, 3 Bro. C. C. 149.

Question in Cause.]—The court, in dealing with interlocutory applications, will confine itself strictly to the immediate object sought, and, as far as possible, abstain from prejudging the question in the cause. Skinners' Co. v. Irish Society, 1 Myl. & C. 162.

Questions of Law.]—The court will not give its decision upon important questions of law upon interlocutory application. Bates v. Brothers, 2 Eq. R. 327; 23 L. J., Ch. 922.

Orders for Sale.]—In an action to enforce a charge on real estate, the plaintiff is, under ordinary circumstances, entitled to an order for sale before the trial on shewing a case upon which such an order would be made at the trial. Davis v. Ashwin, 47 L. J., Ch. 70; 26 W. R. 139.

Interlocutory Injunction.]—See INJUNCTION.

k. ORDERS EX PARTE OR OF COURSE.

Nullity until Service.]—An order obtained ex parte is a nullity till service. Ballard v. Catling, 2 Keen, 606; 7 L. J., Ch. 186.

When irregularly obtained.]—An order of course alleged to have been irregularly obtained cannot be treated as a nullity. It operates until, by a proper application, it is discharged. Blake v. Blake, 7 Beav. 514.

A party who has served and proceeded on an irregular order of course is not at liberty to abandon it upon tender to his adversary of the costs. The order must be considered as a valid and subsisting order until it is disposed of in some regular course, and when costs are due to a party the amount must be ascertained in a regular course. Pearce v. Gray, 4 Beav. 127; 10 L. J., Ch. 353.

Where an irregular order has been obtained, no subsequent order to the same effect can be had until the former has been discharged. Ib.

Knowledge but no Service.]—An order of the court of which the party affected by it has notice, though not formally served upon him, is not to be disregarded or treated by him as a nullity, however certain it may be that the order is erroneous, and would, upon a proper application for that purpose, be discharged. Chuck v. Cremer, 2 Ph. 113; 1 Coop. C. C. 338; 16 L. J., Ch. 92.

An order made by the Master, although obtained irregularly, and ex parte as to some of the parties in the cause, cannot be treated by them as a nullity; and therefore, where one defendant had, without notice to his co-defendants, obtained an order from the Master to enlarge publication, and before the enlarged time expired another defendant, knowing of the order, set down the cause for hearing, the cause was ordered to be struck out of the registrar's book, with costs to be paid by the defendant who had set it down. Hughes v. Williams, 6 Hare, 71; 16 L. J., Ch. 200; 11 Jur. 237. Affirmed by Lord Chancellor, 26th March, 1847.

Proof of Title.]— In ex parte applications seeking to affect the ownership of property, the strictest proof of title will be required, and the bar are expected to assist the court with any authorities that may exist upon the point. Chorley, In re, 16 Jur. 233.

Material Facts must be stated.]—An order obtained as of course to enlarge publication, upon an allegation that he has witnesses to examine, will, if it can be shewn that, from the nature of the suit, the party can have no witnesses to examine, be discharged, as being grounded on a false allegation. Brunt v. Wardle, 3 Y. & Coll. 503; 8 L. J., Ex. Eq. 64.

An order for an injunction was obtained ex parte after an appearance had been entered by the clerk in court, who had instructions from the solicitor for the railway company to enter an appearance immediately to every bill which should be filed against them; but the fact of the defendant's having appeared was not known to the plaintiff's solicitor when the injunction was obtained:—Held, that the order must be discharged; for, although the court might grant an injunction ex parte, under such circumstances, even after appearance, yet the fact of such appearance having been entered must be stated when the application is made; and if not known at the time, then the plaintiff must take his chance whether he obtain a good or bad order. Randall v. Commercial Ry., 3 Jur. 381.

An application for an order of course should state the material facts. If there be any suppression, the order will be discharged, and the court will not, on the application to discharge it, support it on the special merits then for the first time appearing. St. Victor v. Devereux, 6 Beav. 584; 13 L. J., Ch. 102; 8 Jur. 26.

Parties resorting to the summary jurisdiction of the court by claim are bound to state all the facts of the case which are within their own knowledge, and are not justified in merely stating those facts which they may consider material in the case they take as to the relief to which they may be entitled. Goode v. West, 9 Hare, 378; 21 L. J., Ch. 127; 15 Jur. 1025.

Therefore, where the cestui que trust of an aliquot share of a trust fund, being aware that the trustees had severed the share, and paid it into court under the trustee indemnity acts, retaining only a sum in respect of costs, filed a claim suppressing the fact of the severance and payment into court of the aliquot share, and seeking to have the whole trust fund administered by decree of the court, the claim was dismissed with costs. Ib.

Although a claim must state the whole of the case of the plaintiff, yet it need not state the defence expected to be raised by the defendant. Jacobs v. Richards, 23 L. J., Ch. 557; 18 Jur. 527; 2 W. R. 174.

A party obtaining an order of course is bound to state truly every fact which is material to the question, whether an order ought to be granted as of course or not. Upon a motion to discharge an order obtained as of course, which ought to have been the subject of a special application, the order is to be discharged on that ground, although there may be merits on which it might have been proper to grant the order. Holcombe v. Antrobus, 8 Beav. 405; 14 L. J., Ch. 378.

An order obtained ex parte upon motion discharged on account of the suppression of material facts. De Feuchères v. Dawes, 11 Beav. 46.

A party applying for an order of course should state everything which can have a bearing on the matter, otherwise the order will be discharged. Walker, In re, 14 Beav. 227.

A petition for an ex parte order, suppressing any fact which would be material to the officer in drawing up the order, and without which the order would not be drawn up:—Held, irregular; and the motion refused with costs. Lewis v. Cooper, 2 Ph. 178; 16 L. J., Ch. 265.

It is essential to an order of course that it should be made upon a true statement of facts. Brignall v. Whitehead, 30 Beav. 229; 8 Jur. (N.S.) 183; 5 L. T. 301; 10 W. R. 69.

The rule upon applications for ex parte orders is the same as that upon ex parte application for injunctions, and in both cases the suppression of a material fact is fatal to the order. Gedye, In re, 15 Beav. 254.

An order obtained ex parte was discharged on the ground of the suppression of material facts. Atkin v. Moran, Ir. R. 6 Eq. 79.

—— On obtaining Ex parte Injunction.]—See INJUNCTION.

Amendment.]—An order of course may be amended before service; but semble that after service it cannot be amended in the absence of the party to be affected thereby. Wool v. Townley, 9 Beav. 41; 15 L. J., Ch. 143.

Application where made.]—When under the rules under the judicature act an order is to be obtained ex parte on application to the court or a judge, the application need not be made in court, but an order of course may be obtained. Roffey v. Miller, 24 W. R. 109.

Discharge of.]—Though an ex parte order has been drawn up and entered, the party affected thereby is at liberty to apply for its discharge to the judge who made the order; the order being ex parte, such an application does not include a rehearing. Boyle v. Sacker, 58 L. J., Ch. 141; 39 Ch. D. 249; 58 L. T. 822; 37 W. R. 68—C. A.

A plaintiff having obtained an order of course to amend after the time limited for that purpose had expired, and the defendant being in a condition to move to dismiss for want of prosecution:—Held, that a single notice of motion to discharge the irregular order, and to dismiss the bill, was not irregular on the ground of multifariousness. Traile v. Bull, 1 Beav. 475; 3 Jur. 624.

Where an application is made at the rolls to discharge an order of course, obtained in a vice-chancellor's cause, the court can only consider the regularity of the order as an order of course, and will not enter into the merits. The rule is general, that the court will not, on an application to discharge an order of course for irregularity, sustain it as an order obtained adversely on merits. Brooks v. Purton, 4 Beav. 494; 11 L. J., Ch. 73.

Where an irregular order has been obtained, no subsequent order to the same effect can be had until the former has been discharged. Pearce v. Gray, 4 Beav. 127; 10 L. J., Ch. 353.

An order of course, though obtained within the time limited by the General Orders, discharged on the ground of the inexcusable delay of the plaintiff in proceeding and getting in the answer of a defendant under her control, and because it had been obtained for the purpose of defeating a motion to dismiss for want of prosecution. Foreman v. Gray, 9 Beav. 200; 16 L. J., Ch. 233; 11 Jur. 483.

l. Setting Aside and Impeaching.

1. Practice.

Notice of Motion.]—Notice must be given of a motion made to the court of appeal, under Rules of Supreme Court, 1875, Ord. XL. r. 4, to set aside the judgment entered at the trial before a jury and enter judgment. Jones v. Davis, 36 L. T. 415—C. A.

An order discharged for irregularity, with costs, though the notice of motion was general. An order may be impeached for irregularity, although the notice of motion do not specify that as the ground for it, the omission being material only as to costs, and not always even as to them. Brown v. Robertson, 2 Ph. 173.

The Application.]—When under Ord. XL. r. 4, a motion is made to the court of appeal to set aside a judgment and enter any other judgment, it must be shewn that the judgment was entered wrongly with reference to the findings of the jury, otherwise the motion would be to a divisional court to set aside the verdict and for a new trial. Davies v. Felix, 48 L. J., Ex. 3; 4 Ex. D. 32; 39 L. T. 322; 27 W. R. 108—C. A.

See also Cases sub tit. Appeal.

A suit to set aside a decree at the rolls on the ground of fraud might be heard by the vice-chancellor. Archer v. Slater, 10 Sim. 624.

The rule that an application to vary or discharge an order made on petition must, if made on the merits, be the subject of a regular rehearing, applies even though all parties consent to a different course. North Wales Slate Supply Co., In re, 21 L. T. 818; 18 W. R. 403.

It is irregular for a party complaining of one part of an order only to move that it be discharged altogether. Beadles v. Birch, 9 L. J., Ch. 348.

Application, by whom made.]—If a person, who is not a party to the record, seeks to set aside a judgment by which he is injuriously affected, which the defendant in the action has allowed to go by default, he ought by summons, taken out in the name of the defendant, or if not entitled to use the defendant's name then taken out in his own name, but in that case served on both the plaintiff and the defendant, to apply for leave to have the judgment set aside, and to be allowed either to defend the action on such terms of indemnifying the defendant as the judge may consider right, or to intervene in the action in the manner pointed out by the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 24, sub-s. 5. Ord. XXVII. r. 15, is designed to enable judgments by default to be set aside by those who have or who can acquire a locus standi, and does not give a locus standi to those who have none. Jacques v. Harrison, 53 L. J., Q. B. 137; 12 Q. B. D. 165; 50 L. T. 246; 32 W. R. 471—C. A.

A person who is not a party to a cause cannot, in general, apply to discharge an order made in that cause. Houghton v. Godschall, 2 Coop. C. C. 89.

A party may move to discharge an order, though he is in contempt for not obeying it. Hill v. Bissel, Mos. 258.

An order discharged, on the objection of the Bank, as being unauthorised by the trustee act; and another order substituted, under the 1 Will. 4, c. 65, s. 32. It is the duty of the Bank of England to bring an erroneous order, upon which it is asked to act, under the notice of the court. Westwood, In re, 6 N. R. 316.

On a motion to discharge an alleged irregular order, no parties can be heard in support of the application but those who have joined in the motion to discharge it. Stubbs v. Sargon, 3 Beav. 408.

Time to make Application.]—When no irreparable wrong will be done to a plaintiff who has obtained judgment by default, lapse of time is not a bar to an application to set it aside. Atwood v. Chichester, 47 L. J., Q. B. 300; 3 Q. B. D. 722; 38 L. T. 48; 26 W. R. 320—C. A.

A married woman was sued on a cheque and two promissory notes which she had signed along with her husband, who had received the money advanced by the plaintiff upon them. The plaintiff knew all the circumstances. The wife gave the writ to her husband, and he to his solicitors, who allowed judgment to go by default. After various interlocutory proceedings, all of which were unknown to the defendant, an application to attach her was made, upon which she applied for leave to set aside the judgment:—Held, that the delay was no bar to the application, the action having been improperly brought against the defendant, and the plaintiff being aware of the impropriety, and having suffered no irreparable mischief. Ib.

An action having been brought in the names of twelve persons who had formerly been shareholders in a mine, upon instructions given to the attorney by one who alleged himself to be purser, and as such authorised to sue on behalf of the adventurers, three obtained judges' orders to strike out their names, on the ground that they had no interest in the matter, and that their names had been used without their knowledge or consent. These orders were obtained on the 19th of September, 1854, after the cause had been taken down for trial, and the defendant had consequently become entitled to costs of the day on the withdrawal of the record. On the 5th of May, 1855, the defendant obtained a rule calling upon the three plaintiffs, whose names had been struck out, to shew cause why the orders for that purpose should not be rescinded:—Held, that the application was too late. Collins v. Johnson, 16 C. B. 588; 3 C. L. R. 1285; 24 L. J., C. P. 231.

A decree to all appearance just in itself when pronounced, and strengthened, moreover, by constant possession and unvarying recognition for more than two centuries, requires the strongest grounds to warrant its impeachment, the great principle applicable to such a case being omnia præsumuntur à judice rite et solennitur acta. Lee v. Johnstone, L. R. 1 H. L. (Sc.) 426.

This principle was deemed peculiarly imperative in a case where a decree, with its warrant and register, was shewn to have perished in a great fire so far back as 1700, nothing remaining but an extract. Ib.

An application to set aside a judgment on the ground of mistake must be made within a reasonable time after the discovery of the mistake. Cannan v. Reynolds, 5 El. & Bl. 301; 26 L. J., Q. B. 62; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 873.

An application to set aside proceedings alleged to have been instituted without the applicant's authority must be made as soon as he is aware of their pendency. The Bellcairn, 54 L. T. 544; 5 Asp. M. C. 582.

An application to set aside a judgment for irregularity must be taken advantage of promptly. Stopford v. Fitzgerald, 4 D. & L. 725; 11 Jur. 454.

An application to set aside a judgment, on the ground that the signing of it was contrary to good faith, must be made promptly. Saunders v. Jones, 3 D. & L. 770; 15 L. J., Q. B. 272.

Applications to discharge orders for irregularity must be made without delay. Joseph v. Simpson, 10 Price, 25.

—— Order by Consent—Passed and entered.]—Where a judgment taken by consent has been passed and entered, the court has no jurisdiction, without consent, to entertain a motion in the action by one of the parties to set aside the judgment on the ground that the consent was given under a mistake, and that the judgment does not express the true intention of the parties. Ainsworth v. Wilding, 65 L. J., Ch. 432; [1896] 1 Ch. 673; 74 L. T. 193; 44 W. R. 540.

The fact that a consent order has been passed and entered, and that the party complaining has, before he found out his mistake, sought to enforce it in the sense in which he understood it, does not prevent him from taking steps to have it set aside. Hickman v. Berens (64 L. J., Ch. 785; [1895] 2 Ch. 638) and Stewart v. Kennedy (15 App. Cas. 75, 108) applied. Wilding v. Sanderson, 66 L. J., Ch. 684; [1897] 2 Ch. 534; 77 L. T. 57; 45 W. R. 675—C. A.

Frivolous Applications — Form of Order.]—Repeated frivolous applications for the purpose of impeaching a judgment having been made by the same parties, the court of appeal made an order prohibiting any further application without leave of the court. Grepe v. Loam, 57 L. J., Ch. 435; 37 Ch. D. 168; 58 L. T. 100—C. A.

Jurisdiction of Chancery Division—Judgment of Queen's Bench Division.]—Upon an application to remove a person's name from the register of a company the court confirmed the allotment. The instalments payable on allotment had not been paid. The company had commenced an action in the Queen's Bench Division to recover them, and applied for judgment under Ord. XIV. Leave was given to defend upon paying 100*l.* into court. The defendant made default, and leave to sign judgment against him was given on the 17th January. Judgment was signed early in February, and on the 9th April the defendant took out a summons to set aside the judgment, which was transferred and came on with the motion:—Held, that the court had jurisdiction to set aside the judgment. Portuguese Consolidated Copper Mines, In re, Badman's case, 2 Meg. 65; 62 L. T. 179.

Affidavit of Merits.]—Where the defendant, in an action for the recovery of land and for arrears of rent, failed to comply with an order that if he did not within three days file an affidavit in answer to interrogatories his defence should be struck out and judgment signed:—Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to sign judgment under the order without previously serving it upon the defendant, and that a judgment so signed, being a regular judgment, could not be set aside in the absence of an affidavit of merits. Farden v. Richter, 58 L. J., Q. B. 244; 23 Q. B. D. 124; 60 L. T. 304; 37 W. R. 767.

Discretion of Court.]—A defendant against whom a judgment had been signed, and who had a good legal defence, having refused equitable terms of compromise, the court denied him the indulgence of setting aside the judgment and permitting him to plead. Anon., 4 Taunt. 885.

The court will not set aside a judgment so as to allow the defendant to plead the statute of limitations. Willett v. Allerton, 1 W. Bl. 35.

But the court will set aside a regular interlocutory judgment on affidavit of merits, though it is the defendant's intention to plead his infancy. Delafield v. Tanner, 1 Marsh. 391; 5 Taunt. 856.

So on an affidavit of merits, though bankruptcy is intended to be pleaded. Evans v. Gill, 1 Bos. & P. 52.

Waiver.]—Where an order had been obtained, that service of a subpœna on the attorney of the defendant, who resided abroad, and had brought an action at law against the plaintiffs, should be good service, but such order was obtained, and the subpœna issued and served two days before the filing of the bill, the court refused to discharge the order for irregularity, holding that the irregularity, if any, had been waived by a subsequent appearance of the defendant. Royal Exchange Assurance Co. v. Short, 1 Y. & J. 570.

Costs.]—An order to "discharge an irregular order with costs" carries the costs of the application to discharge it. West v. Smith, 3 Beav. 492; 10 L. J., Ch. 218.

2. In what Cases.

Irregularity.]—The signing judgment for debt and taxed costs, without any notice of taxation, is not an irregularity for which the court will set aside the judgment. Field v. Partridge, 7 Ex. 689; 21 L. J., Ex. 269; 16 Jur. 413.

Judgment entered upon a warrant of attorney for a larger sum than is authorised is an irregularity. Stopford v. Fitzgerald, 4 D. & L. 725; 11 Jur. 454.

A plaintiff signed an irregular judgment, and on the defendant taking out a summons to set it aside he was informed that the judgment was withdrawn:—Held, that the defendant had no right to get an order drawn up for setting aside the judgment, and that therefore he was liable to pay the expense of it. Hargrave v. Holden, 3 D. P. C. 176.

Where the sum indorsed on the writ has been reduced by payment before judgment in default of appearance has been entered, and judgment is nevertheless entered for the whole sum indorsed, the defendant is entitled ex debito justitiæ to have the judgment set aside, notwithstanding that execution has only issued for the amount actually due. Hughes v. Justin, 63 L. J., Q. B. 417; [1894] 1 Q. B. 667; 9 R. 212; 70 L. T. 365; 42 W. R. 339—C. A.

An order dispaupering the plaintiff, obtained on affidavit of service on his solicitor at his office, discharged, but without costs, on the ground of a misnomer of the solicitor in the notice of motion. Moody v. Hebberd, 17 L. J., Ch. 24; 11 Jur. 941.

An order, obtained on affidavit of service, discharged with costs, on the ground of a misnomer of a party in the affidavit. Salomon v. Stalman, 4 Beav. 243; 10 L. J., Ch. 327.

It is irregular for a plaintiff's attorney, whose judgment has been set aside as irregular, with costs, to go and strike it out, and sign judgment again, so as to avoid payment of costs. Curling v. Bingham, 10 W. R. 628.

It is not of necessity that an order shall be discharged because obtained irregularly. Anon., 4 L. J. (o.s.) Ch. 101.

Upon the motion of B., the court ordered that, upon his paying the purchase-money into court, he should be substituted as purchaser in the place of A., and that A. thereupon should be discharged from his purchase. B. having omitted to draw up the order, the plaintiffs in the cause did so, and caused a direction to be inserted for payment of the purchase-money by B. within twelve days after service of the order, in which form (after notice to B. to attend at the registrar's office) the order was passed. On the motion of B., the court discharged the order with costs. Miller v. Smith, 6 Hare, 609.

Where a plaintiff has obtained judgment irregularly, the defendant is entitled ex debito justitiæ to have such judgment set aside; and the court has only power to impose terms upon him as a condition of giving him his costs. Anlaby v. Prætorius, 57 L. J., Q. B. 287; 20 Q. B. D. 764; 58 L. T. 671; 36 W. R. 487—C. A.

In setting aside a judgment for irregularity, the court, if satisfied that there has not been any breach of faith, has power to impose upon the defendant the terms that no action shall be brought in respect of an execution on the judgment. Gailey v. Conlan, Ir. R. 9 C. L. 514.

Consent Order—Power of Court.]—The owners of the B. sued the owners of the C. for a collision. In the course of the trial a compromise was arrived at, whereupon the court made an order by consent dismissing the action, including a counter-claim, without costs. The owners of the cargo on the B. then sued the owners of the C., and obtained a judgment declaring both ships to blame. The owners of the C. began a suit to limit their liability, and paid the limitation fund into court. Subsequently the owners of the B., with the consent of the owners of the C., obtained on summons, without application to the court, an order in the registry setting aside the first order, and made a claim upon the fund in court:—Held, that the second order was invalid, and did not operate to set aside the first order, which was a judgment of the court, and therefore that, as the owners of the B. had no claim against the owners of the C., the claim was rightly disallowed. Whether in the absence of fraud the court itself could have set aside the first order, quære. The Bellcairn, 55 L. J., P. 3; 10 P. D. 161; 53 L. T. 686; 34 W. R. 55—C. A.

The court has jurisdiction to discharge an order made on an interlocutory application by consent when it is proved to have been made under a mistake, though a mistake on one side only. Mullins v. Howell, 48 L. J., Ch. 679; 11 Ch. D. 763.

A consent order which has been passed, drawn up, and acted upon can be set aside (provided that the rights of other parties have not been affected) not only on the ground of fraud, but upon any ground which would invalidate the agreement on which it is based; therefore, it may be set aside on the ground of common mistake of material facts. Huddersfield Banking Co. v. Lister, 64 L. J., Ch. 523; [1895] 2 Ch. 273; 12 R. 331; 72 L. T. 703; 43 W. R. 567—C. A. See Parker v. Simpson, 18 W. R. 204.

A consent order based on and intended to carry out an agreement come to between parties to litigation ought to be treated as an agreement which can be set aside on any ground on which an agreement not contained in an order can be set aside. Mistake as to the meaning of the words used in drawing up the agreement, whether common to both parties, or to one party only, but induced by the conduct of the other, is such a ground. So also is the fact that the parties were not ad idem as to the subject-matter of the negotiation. Wilding v. Saunderson, 66 L. J., Ch. 684; [1895] 2 Ch. 534; 77 L. T. 57; 45 W. R. 675—C. A.

An estate having been sold in which the petitioners were interested, it was represented to them that a good title could not be made; and they were induced to give a brief to counsel to consent to the purchaser being discharged; they subsequently discovered circumstances which led them to conclude they had been deceived, and that in fact a good title could be made, and thereupon petitioned the court that the order might be discharged. The court discharged the order, giving the purchaser his costs, and referred it to the Master to inquire whether a good title could be made. The solicitor for the petitioner to have the conduct of the inquiry. Butter v. Ommanney, Taml. 344.

If an order made by consent is, through mistake, capable of an interpretation contrary to the real intention, it will be amended by the court, so as to make it plainly and clearly represent that intention. Oldershaw v. King, 26 L. J., Ex. 384.

An application was made, by consent of the plaintiff and defendant, to set aside a judgment, and to add as a party to the suit another person alleged to be a joint contractor with the defendant:—Held, that, the plaintiff's rights against the defendant's joint contractor having been extinguished by the judgment, the consent of the parties thereto could not be allowed to revive them, and that the application must be refused. Hammond v. Schofield, 60 L. J., Q. B. 539; [1891] 1 Q. B. 453.

Prejudice of Creditors.]—A court of equity will not entertain a motion to discharge an order of court on the ground that such order was based on a contract made by a provisional assignee to the prejudice of the creditors. Butterworth's Trusts, In re, 1 N. R. 114—L.JJ.

Who precluded from objecting.]—If a person takes the benefit conferred by a judge's order, he must also bear the burden imposed by it; he must take the order in its entirety. Hayward v. Duff, 12 C. B. (N.S.) 364; 6 L. T. 433; 10 W. R. 562.

A party who has accepted costs under an order cannot subsequently question its validity. Tinkler v. Hilder, 7 D. & L. 61; 4 Ex. 187; 18 L. J., Ex. 429; 13 Jur. 684.

Or move to rescind it. Simmons v. King, 2 D. & L. 786; 14 L. J., Q. B. 195; 9 Jur. 250.

But when a judge makes an order out of term, to set aside a judgment by default on an affidavit of merits, and on payment of the plaintiff's costs, the defendant, by complying with such order, for the purpose of getting rid of the judgment, does not so acquiesce in the order as to prevent his applying to the court in the next ensuing term to alter its terms. Connelly v. Bremner, 35 L. J., C. P. 319; L. R. 1 C. P. 557; 1 H. & R. 612.

Nullity.]—The commencing and prosecution of an action against a nonexisting person amounts to a nullity; the judgment even of a court of record in such a case is not conclusive. Matthey v. Wiseman, 18 C. B. (N.S.) 657; 34 L. J., C. P. 216; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 603; 12 L. T. 846; 13 W. R. 914.

Mistake.]—The court will, in furtherance of justice, set aside a judgment in an action, at the instance of the plaintiff, on the ground of a mistake having been made in the amount claimed and recovered, although the amount of the debt and costs in the action has been paid. Cannan v. Reynolds, 5 El. & Bl. 301; 26 L. J., Q. B. 62; 1 Jur. (N.S.) 873.

When an allegation of a matter of fact has been once fairly investigated between the litigating parties, before a competent judicature, the unsuccessful party not having been taken by surprise, nor being able to allege mistake, accident, or any subsequent discovery of a material kind, the investigation should be considered sufficient and the judgment thereupon conclusive as between those parties. Waters v. Waters, 2 De G. & S. 591.

An order was made on a petition, which was expressed to be made by consent of one of the respondents, who was throughout the proceedings treated as an adult, although in fact she was under age, and the order was inrolled. On attaining her majority, the respondent filed her bill to set aside the order. It appearing that another infant in the same interest as the plaintiff had been a party to the petition, on whose behalf the court had ascertained that the order was one which ought properly to be made, having regard to the interests of the latter infant, the court refused to set aside the order, on the ground of the misstatement as to the age of the plaintiff. Fadelle v. Bernard, 19 W. R. 555.

Where a decree has been made by consent, all parties are primâ facie bound, under whatever circumstances that consent is given. It may, however, be impeached, when it has been obtained on an entire mistake of facts. Stannard v. Harrison, 24 L. T. 570; 19 W. R. 811.

In a foreclosure action, where judgment had been obtained against the alleged eldest son and heir-at-law of the mortgagor, who had died intestate, and a contract for sale had been entered into subject to the sanction of the judge in chambers, it having been found that there was no evidence of the heirship, on motion by the plaintiff it was ordered that the judgment be set aside, and the action dismissed without costs. Lancaster Banking Co. v. Cooper, 9 Ch. D. 594; 27 W. R. 164.

Proceedings instituted without Authority.]—Where a shipowner applied to the court to set aside an order condemning him in the costs of unsuccessful legal proceedings taken in his behalf by the managing owner, on the ground that the proceedings had been instituted without his knowledge, consent, or ratification, and that the first intimation he had of the proceedings was a notice received by him about a month previous to the present application, condemning him in the costs of such proceedings:—The court refused to grant the application, as it did not appear that the applicant, though he had no knowledge of the institution of, was not aware of the pendency of, the proceedings. The Bellcairn, 54 L. T. 544; 5 Asp. M. C. 582.

Suppression of Material Facts.]—An order obtained ex parte was discharged, on the ground of the suppression of material facts. Atkin v. Moran, Ir. R. 6 Eq. 79. See also Cases ante, col. 585.

Admission by Counsel—Fraud—Collusion.]—D., the residuary legatee of Mrs. Y., brought an action for administration of Mrs. Y.'s estate against R., the surviving executor. Mrs. Y. had been the surviving executrix of her husband. V., one of the residuary legatees of the husband, shortly afterwards brought her action against R. as sole defendant, for administration of the husband's estate, alleging breaches of trust by Mrs. Y., and asking administration of her estate, if R. as her representative did not admit assets to pay what should be found due from her estate to the husband's estate. On the 28th February V. moved for judgment. There was no evidence before the court that Mrs. Y. was indebted to her husband's estate, or that she had been guilty of wilful neglect or default. R. by his counsel admitted that she was so indebted, and he submitted to a judgment, directing an account of personal estate of the husband, which she had received with an inquiry as to the balances in her hands, and directing administration of her estate. It appeared that from information R. had received, he felt sure that Mrs. Y. would be found a debtor to her husband's estate, and that it would be advisable to submit to the judgment, so as not to incur costs. D. on the 26th of June moved to discharge or vary the judgment of 28th February:—Held, that although R. might have acted injudiciously in submitting to an order which went further than any order that could have been made adversely on the materials before the court, the order could not be discharged unless the court was satisfied that R. had submitted to it fraudulently in collusion with V., and in this case the court was satisfied that R. had acted bonâ fide. Youngs, In re; Doggett v. Revett, 30 Ch. D. 421; 53 L. T. 682—C. A.

Fraud of Solicitor.]—Where a solicitor has put in a fraudulent defence for his client without the knowledge of the client, making admissions on which judgment was obtained against the client:—Held, that the court had jurisdiction to set aside the judgment and permit the client to withdraw the defence, and put in a fresh defence. Williams v. Preston, 51 L. J., Ch. 927; 20 Ch. D. 672; 47 L. T. 265; 30 W. R. 555—C. A.

When a decree has been made by consent, all parties are primâ facie bound, under whatever circumstances that consent is given. It may, however, be impeached when it has been obtained by fraud. Stannard v. Harrison, 24 L. T. 570 ; 19 W. R. 811.

Obtained by Fraud.]—The plaintiffs commenced an action to restrain the defendants from infringing their patent, and obtained a judgment which was reversed by the court of appeal, who dismissed the action on the ground that the defendant's process was no infringement of the plaintiff's patent. After the order on appeal was passed and entered, the plaintiffs applied to have the appeal reheard with fresh evidence, on the ground that when an expert sent down by the court, and whose evidence was in fact the only material evidence before the court as to the nature of the defendants' process, examined their works, they had fraudulently concealed from him parts of the process, so that he had no opportunity of discovering the points in which it resembled that of the plaintiffs :—Held, that the court of appeal had no jurisdiction to rehear the appeal, and that the remedy of the plaintiffs was by original action analogous to a suit under the old practice to set aside a decree as obtained by fraud. Flower v. Lloyd, 46 L. J., Ch. 838 ; 6 Ch. D. 297 ; 37 L. T. 419 ; 25 W. R. 793.

The plaintiffs in the above case afterwards commenced an action to have it declared that the judgment on the appeal had been obtained by fraud, the defendants having made misstatements to and misled the inspector :—Semble, that an action to impeach a judgment on such grounds was not maintainable. Flower v. Lloyd, 10 Ch. D. 327 ; 39 L. T. 613 ; 27 W. R. 496—C. A.

The judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction may be avoided on the ground of fraud, but by this must be understood either a fraud in the procuring of the judgment, such as collusion or the like, or fraud in the court itself. Cammell v. Sewell, 3 H. & N. 617 ; 27 L. J., Ex. 447 ; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 978.

Where a judgment has been obtained by fraud, and more especially by the collusion of both parties, such judgment, although confirmed by the house of lords, may, even in an inferior tribunal, be treated as a nullity. Shedden v. Patrick, 1 Macq. H. L. 535.

But the allegations of fraud and collusion must be specific, pointed and relevant, otherwise they cannot be admitted to proof. Ib.

To set aside a judgment procured by fraud, the proper course, when such judgment has been confirmed by the house of lords, is to apply to the house of lords. Therefore it is wrong to ask the court below, upon proof of the fraud or collusion, to set aside a judgment confirmed by the house of lords. Ib.

A judgment or a decree obtained by fraud upon a court binds not such court, nor any other court, and its nullity upon this ground, though it has not been set aside or reversed, may be alleged in a collateral proceeding. Reg. v. Saddlers' Co., 10 H. L. Cas. 404.

Of former Cause in subsequent Proceeding.]—After a decree, referring it to the master to inquire whether an annuity had been properly inrolled, the master having reported against the inrolment, it was objected by the defendant (the annuitant), on a rehearing, that the decree had been obtained after two several orders made in this court in another cause, for the payment of the annuity, and after a rule to shew cause in favour of the annuity in the Court of King's Bench had been discharged : — Held, not a sufficient ground for setting aside the decree, the former cause in which those orders had been obtained, not having been instituted for the purpose of setting aside the annuities, and this court having jurisdiction, after the failure of the attempt to set aside the annuity at common law. Angell v. Hadden, 2 Mer. 164.

Semble, the existence of an order for the maintenance of an infant out of the income of a fund does not prevent the court in a subsequent proceeding in which the title to the principal comes directly in question, from making an order negativing the infant's title to the fund. Saunders v. Vautier, Cr. & Ph. 240 ; 10 L. J., Ch. 354. Affirming 4 Beav. 115.

When a judge has made an interlocutory order which does not decide the rights of the parties, the same judge or his successor may, on new facts being disclosed which shew that to follow the precise directions of the order will cause injury or inconvenience, direct that, notwithstanding the former order, a different mode of carrying out what has in substance been thereby directed shall be adopted. Prestney v. Colchester Corporation, 52 L. J., Ch. 877 ; 24 Ch. D. 385 ; 48 L. T. 749 ; 31 W. R. 757.

The court will not rescind an order in consequence of an event which has subsequently occurred, if the order was right at the time it was made. Borradaile v. Nelson, 14 C. B. 655 ; 2 C. L. R. 740 ; 23 L. J., C. P. 159 ; 18 Jur. 431 ; 2 W. R. 470.

Order Supplemental to Previous Order.]—The court has no jurisdiction to set aside or alter an order which has been drawn up, but it has jurisdiction to make a supplemental order upon new facts which have come to its knowledge, directing that something which has been ordered to be done shall not be done except on certain terms. Scowby, In re, Scowby v. Scowby, 66 L. J., Ch. 327 ; [1897] 1 Ch. 741 ; 76 L. T. 363—C. A.

By an order of the court made in 1892 certain costs were ordered to be paid to trustees out of a trust estate, and it subsequently appearing that the trustees were in default in the payment into court of money which they had, by an order made in 1887, been directed to raise in respect of costs and pay into court, and had by their carelessness allowed their solicitor to receive the same without his costs coming under the cognizance of the court—the court, upon a summons by new trustees, directed that, until the old trustees brought this money into court, no part of their costs were to be paid to them under the order of 1892 :—Held, that there was jurisdiction to make such an order, and the jurisdiction was properly exercised, although the effect of it might be to deprive the solicitors who had acted for the old trustees on the order of 1892 of costs properly incurred. Ib.

m. Varying and Amending.

1. Accidental Slip.

In what Cases.]—Upon a motion under Ord. XLI. A., an order made on petition under the Settled Estates Act, 1877, which had been passed and entered, was directed to be varied so as to dispense with the consents of tenants for life to the exercise of leasing powers granted by the order. Riley's Trusts, In re, 30 W. R. 78.

The court has jurisdiction to correct an error in a judgment arising from an accidental slip, although the time for appealing from the judgment has expired. At the trial the judgment allowed the defendant to set off a sum named for interest paid on account of the plaintiff. The amount was arranged between the parties on the faith of a statement made bonâ fide by the defendant, and accepted by the plaintiff as accurate, that the defendant had made the payments of interest from a certain date. After the judgment had been drawn up and the time for appealing had expired, the plaintiff found that the interest allowed by the judgment had for two years already been allowed to the defendant in account:—Held, that there was jurisdiction under Ord. XXVIII. r. 11, to correct the error. Barker v. Purvis, 56 L. T. 131—C. A.

Where in a former suit L. filed a charge, claiming the principal sum of 1,800*l.*, with interest thereon at 6 per cent., from the 11th May, 1818, and the defendant, T. M., the debtor, filed a discharge thereto, admitting the debt, and that same was due with interest at 6 per cent. from the 11th May, 1818; but by a mistake in the master's report, it appeared that the interest due on the said principal sum of 1,800*l.* was only from the 24th April, 1824; and the account having been taken, and the report made without controversy, the mistake was unobserved, and the final decree followed the report. L. received the principal sum of 1,800*l.*, with interest from the 24th April, 1824. Afterwards, when after several years from the date of the final decree, the residue of the fund in the cause had been transferred to the present, which was a suit for administering T. M.'s assets, L. having discovered the mistake in the report of the master in the former cause, applied to be paid the interest at 6 per cent. on the said principal sum of 1,800*l.*, from the 11th May, 1818, to the 24th April, 1824, out of the fund so transferred to the credit of the cause:—Held, that L. was so entitled, and should be paid accordingly. Hackett v. Donnelly, 1 Ir. Eq. R. 231.

Correction of a clerical error in a decree passed and entered. Tomlins v. Palk, 1 Russ. 475.

The court will allow the amendment of clerical mistakes in a judgment, on payment of costs, although one term has elapsed since the judgment was entered up, and although a writ of error has been sued out, and error assigned, on those clerical mistakes. Paddon v. Bartlett, 5 N. & M. 384; 1 H. & W. 286; 3 A. & E. 887.

Where the clerk entered judgment de bonis propriis, instead of de bonis testatoris; on error brought, the court ordered the entry to be amended. Green v. Rennet, 1 Term Rep. 782. See Burdon and Reynoldson, In re, 6 W. R. 522.

In a charity case, an omission in the original decree not declaring the nature of the charity, corrected on further directions without rehearing. Att.-Gen. v. Whiteley, 11 Ves. 241.

An order which had been drawn up for payment of a share of a fund to a married woman described under her previous name and as discovert, was corrected on her ex parte application. Robinson's Trusts, In re, 42 L. J., Ch. 354; 28 L. T. 101; 21 W. R. 356.

Where errors in a decree are obvious, the court will rectify them, even after it is inrolled. Fearon v. Desbrisay, 21 L. J., Ch., 511.

The court will not set aside an order which was made in a matter properly within its cognizance and which has not been appealed against, provided the facts were duly laid before the court when the order was made; except where the error of the court is so broad and palpable, that it is manifest that the court must have miscarried. Howard v. Shrewsbury (Earl), 36 L. J., Ch. 283; L. R. 3 Eq. 218; 15 W. R. 301.

Where an order of this court, made in pursuance of an order of the house of lords, reversing the decree below and dismissing the bill with costs, had omitted to direct repayment of a sum of money which had been paid by the defendant to the plaintiff, under the decree pending the appeal, the court, on the petition of the defendant, made a further substantive order for such repayment. Thorpe v. Mattingley, 1 Ph. 443.

An accidental slip in a decree, directing a sale, if certain persons "and the heir-at-law" should be found parties, corrected by substituting the words "other than the heir-at-law." Turner v. Hodgson, 9 Beav. 265.

An attorney cannot file a bill in equity to recover the amounts of his bill of costs; but where an attorney had commenced proceedings at law against his client, which were stopped by the client's proceedings in equity, and ultimately a compromise was had between the parties, which by consent of both was made the subject of an order of a court of law:—Held, that the attorney could maintain a bill in equity for the purpose of rectifying the order of the court on the ground of mistake. Fyson v. Pole, 3 Y. & Coll. 266; 8 L. J., Ex. Eq. 17; 3 Jur. 122.

Where it appeared that a direction to regard settled accounts had inadvertently been omitted from a decree, and that such omission had possibly worked injustice, an order for rehearing was made, although more than five years had elapsed from the date of the decree. Buckeridge v. Whalley, 3 N. R. 179; 10 L. T. 222; 12 W. R. 593.

After inrolment of a decree, errors appearing upon the face of schedules permitted to be corrected upon motion without a bill of review; but the court would not permit an affidavit, introducing a new fact, to be used for that purpose. Weston v. Haggerston, G. Coop. 134.

Where, by an error, the bill in the statement and prayer set forth the sum due to the plaintiff as less than he was entitled to under a deed, and the decree followed the prayer, the court, on motion, altered the decree, the defendants by their answer having admitted the larger sum, and no objection being made by any of the parties. Molloy v. Burke, 12 Ir. Eq. R. 18.

Mistake in title of order for sequestration, by omission of the words "and others," allowed to be rectified by amendment, inserting the words omitted. Lowten v. Colchester Corporation, 2 Mer. 395; 16 R. R. 187.

A mistake in the title of an order amended, though to charge a surety that gave a recognizance to abide the order for hearing. Spearing v. Lynn, 2 Vern. 376; Pre. Ch. 115.

Where, in consequence of erroneous spelling in the orders of the court, the names of reports has been mis-spelled in the entries of transfers in the books of the Bank of England, the court will amend its own orders, but will not make an order on the bank to correct the entries in their books. Newton v. Clark, 1 L. J. (o.s.) Ch. 166.

The costs of an interlocutory application and order were reserved, but by inadvertence on the final decree, ordering the defendant to pay all the costs of the suit, no provision was made for these costs. The defendant inrolled the decree, but upon the plaintiff's petition, the defendant was ordered to pay these reserved costs. Viney v. Chaplin, 28 L. J., Ch. 164; 7 W. R. 159—L.JJ.

Time for Application.]—Under rule 11 of Ord. XXVIII. of the Rules of the Supreme Court, Ireland, 1891, the court has power at any time to amend an accidental omission in a decree. Therefore in an action on a bond with a penalty an amendment was allowed after the lapse of forty years from the date of the decree by inserting words limiting the sum recoverable for principal and interest to the amount of the penalty. Semble, per Lord Herschell, an amendment would not be allowed in cases in which the rights of third parties had intervened. Semble, per Lord Macnaghten, an application for such an amendment is never too late so long as the fund intended to be dealt with remains in the hands of the court. Hatton v. Harris, 62 L. J., P. C. 24; [1892] A. C. 547; 1 R. 1; 67 L. T. 722—H. L. (Ir.)

By a decree, dated in 1825, an obvious error was made in declaring who were the parties entitled to a fund in court. The error was not discovered for many years, and the delay in applying for a rehearing to rectify the mistake being accounted for:—Held, that the cause might be reheard, notwithstanding the lapse of time (thirty years). Brandon v. Brandon, 7 De G. M. & G. 365; 25 L. J., Ch. 896; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 981; 4 W. R. 533; 5 W. R. 1.

On the dissolution of the partnership previously existing between the plaintiff and the defendant the lease of the house, No. 10, Tichborne Street, in which the partnership business had been carried on, was assigned to the plaintiff, and the defendant entered into a covenant with the plaintiff that he would not "during the remainder of the term of the lease" carry on the business of a hairdresser within a mile from the house. In 1870 a suit was commenced by the plaintiff to restrain the defendant from violating his covenant. On the hearing of the cause, on the 20th Dec., 1871, a decree was made granting an injunction "perpetually to restrain" the defendant from doing certain specified acts, "and further to restrain the defendant from selling any perfume, or in any way carrying on the business of a hairdresser or perfumer within the distance of one mile from No. 10, Tichborne Street." The plaintiff having served the defendant with notice of motion to commit him for breach of the injunction, the defendant served the plaintiff with a cross-notice of motion under the "slip order" to amend the decree by inserting in it (after the words "and further to restrain the defendant") the words "during the remainder of the term of the lease." The term of the lease expired in 1881:—Held, that the court had jurisdiction under the "slip order" to accede to the defendant's application, the words which the defendant desired to have inserted in the decree having been clearly omitted by mistake. Shipwright v. Clements, 63 L. T. 160; 38 W. R. 746.

Mistake in a decree corrected under the 45th Order of 1828, notwithstanding it had been pronounced seven years, and the cause had been heard for further directions. Askew v. Peddle, 14 Sim. 301; 14 L. J., Ch. 10.

After a lapse of twenty-four years the court rectified an error in an order, though the records had been deposited in the Tower. Essex JJ., Ex parte, 22 L. J., Ch. 328.

It was directed by the decree in 1811 that, if a good title could be shewn, the master was to charge the vendor with interest on the purchase-money, and the purchaser with the rents from the time of the contract (1800). In 1836, whilst the inquiries were proceeding, the purchaser presented a petition, alleging, that he had not taken possession of the property until 1814, and that the vendor had remained in possession until that time, and praying that in taking the accounts the vendor might be charged with the rents from 1800 to 1814:—Held, that as the decree could not be reheard after twenty years, no variation could be made in it on petition. Newton v. Woodrow, 5 L. J., Ch. 380.

2. In Other Cases.

Order Passed and Entered.]—The plaintiffs in a foreclosure action applied by summons under Ord. XV. r. 1, for an account. The chief clerk pronounced the usual order for an account and foreclosure. The defendants objected to the direction for foreclosure. and the plaintiffs assenting, the order was drawn up for an account only, and was passed and entered in that form. When the parties came before the chief clerk to proceed with the account, he objected to the order as not being the one he had pronounced, and refused to proceed with the account. Subsequently the registrar at the instance of the chief clerk, without any motion or summons, altered the order by adding the usual directions for foreclosure. The defendants moved to strike out the additions. Kay, J., declined to do so, as he considered that the parties were not at liberty to have an order drawn up, different from the order pronounced, without applying to the court for the purpose; but being of opinion that the addition had been irregularly made, he stayed proceedings under the existing order, giving the plaintiffs liberty to apply for a fresh order for accounts and foreclosure. The defendants appealed:—Held, that assuming the order as passed and entered to contain an error arising from an accidental slip or omission, an alteration made in it without any motion or summons for the purpose was irregular, and must be discharged, and that the plaintiffs must pay the costs, as they ought to have applied to the judge when the chief clerk refused to proceed with the accounts. Blake v. Harvey, 29 Ch. D. 827; 53 L. T. 541; 33 W. R. 602—C. A.

The court has no jurisdiction to rehear or alter an order after it has been passed and entered, provided the order as drawn up expresses the decision of the court, nor to entertain any application proceeding on the footing that the order is wrong, even though the order may have been obtained by misrepresentation or fraud. Staniar v. Evans (34 Ch. D. 470) considered. Preston Banking Co. v. Allsup, 64 L. J., Ch. 196; [1895] 1 Ch. 141; 12 R. 51; 71 L. T. 708; 43 W. R. 231—C. A.

Where a wrong order has been made by reason of misrepresentation or mistake of fact, the error may be corrected by a new order made notwithstanding the former order. Staniar v. Evans, 56 L. J., Ch. 581; 34 Ch. D. 470; 56 L. T. 87; 35 W. R. 286.

Judgment Passed and Entered.]—The court has inherent jurisdiction to correct mistakes in the record of its judgments. Where the judgment does not correctly represent what was actually decided by the court, the court has jurisdiction to amend the judgment, although it has been passed and entered. But the proper course is to move to vary the minutes after they have been settled, and before they have been passed and entered; and if this course is not followed, the judgment will be afterwards amended only under special circumstances, and on the terms of the applicant paying all the costs. Swire, In re, Mellor v. Swire, 30 Ch. D. 239; 53 L. T. 205; 33 W. R. 785—C. A.

An application to correct an order ought to be made to the court below, the judge having jurisdiction to correct an order, though passed and entered, if it does not express what he intended. Tucker v. New Brunswick Trading Co., 59 L. J., Ch. 551; 44 Ch. D. 249; 63 L. T. 69; 38 W. R. 741—C. A.

Amendment as to Costs.]—A motion for an interim injunction was adjourned to the trial of the action; no provision was made for the costs of the motion. The judgment at the trial contained no reference to the costs of the motion, and the master refused to allow the plaintiff the costs. The plaintiff then applied to the court by motion, asking that the judgment might be varied by giving him the costs of the adjourned motion:—Held, that the court had jurisdiction to make the order. Fritz v. Hobson, 49 L. J., Ch. 735; 14 Ch. D. 542; 42 L. T. 677; 28 W. R. 722. Comp. Walker v. Budden, 49 L. J., Q. B. 159; 5 Q. B. D. 267; 28 W. R. 665—C. A.

On the 31st Jan., the defendants in an action obtained an ex parte injunction against the plaintiffs until the 4th Feb. On the 4th Feb. a motion was made to commit the plaintiffs. The order on the motion to commit as drawn up by the registrar recited the ex parte injunction and the affidavits in support of it, but contained no order as to costs, except that the plaintiffs were to pay the costs of the motion, and the taxing-master disallowed the costs of the ex parte motion accordingly:—Held, that the court had power under Ord. XXVIII. r. 11, to correct the order made on the 4th Feb. by adding thereto a direction for taxation and payment by the plaintiffs of the defendants' costs of the ex parte order of the 31st Jan. Blakey v. Hall, 56 L. J., Ch. 568; 56 L. T. 400; 35 W. R. 592.

Where a party has obtained an order to set aside a judgment upon payment of costs, he cannot, if he has drawn up and served the order subsequently, procure the rescission of so much of it as relates to costs. Giraud v. Austen, 1 D. (N.S.) 703; 4 Scott (N.R.) 750.

Striking out Parties instead of Rescission.]—A petition for the appointment of new trustees and a vesting order was presented in the names of several co-petitioners, and an order made. Upwards of a year afterwards an application was made to the court by persons who had been joined as co-petitioners that the order might be rescinded on the ground that they had only recently heard of the petition, which was in no way authorised by them:—Held, that the order made could not be rescinded by the court, but should be amended by striking out the names of the applicants as co-petitioners, and treating them as not having been served with the petition. Savage, In re, 15 Ch. D. 557; 29 W. R. 348.

Allowed on Terms.]—Where a verdict was found for the plaintiff on the general issue, and no notice taken of a second issue on the statute of limitations, on error brought on this point, the court allowed it to be amended by the judge's notes, on payment of costs. Petrie v. Hannay, 3 Term Rep. 659.

According to Amended Postea.]—The court after error brought, and argument in the court of error, having amended a postea by entering the verdict for the plaintiff on the first count, and for the defendant on the others, amended the judgment roll remaining in that court by the amended postea, after the judgment had been reversed. Mellish v. Richardson, 1 B. & C. 819. S. C., nom. Richardson v. Mellish, 11 Moore, 104; 3 Bing. 334; 4 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 68.

By Arrest of.]—Where judgment on a record of the queen's bench is pronounced at the assizes, under 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 70, s. 9, the court, on motion, may, if they see fit, amend the judgment by ordering it to be arrested. Reg. v. Nott, 4 Q. B. 768; D. & M. 1; 12 L. J., M. C. 143.

Where Verdict not Specific.]—Where a defendant, in replevin, made cognizance for rent in arrear, and the jury found a verdict for him, and damages to the amount of the rent claimed in his cognizance, without finding either the amount of the rent in arrear or the value of the cattle distrained, and judgment was entered for the damages assessed, the court permitted the defendant to amend his judgment, and to enter a judgment pro retorno habendo, after a writ of error brought. Rees v. Morgan, 3 Term Rep. 349.

Erroneous Entry.]—Erroneous entry of judgment amended. Laing v. Whaley, 3 H. & N. 901—Ex. Ch.

A declaration contained two breaches; the defendant pleaded not guilty to the first breach, which involved the whole cause of action. The finding was for the plaintiff, and the damages were assessed thereon, and judgment was entered upon that finding. On the second breach there was a finding of not guilty. No entry of eat sine die was made on this finding:—Held, that there should have been such an entry, but that the house of lords had power to amend the record, by directing such an entry to be made. Hooper v. Lane, 6 H. L. Cas. 443; 27 L. J., Q. B. 75; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 1026; 6 W. R. 146.

As to Time, when no Injustice done.]—Where an executor pleads plene administravit, and the plaintiff does not take issue on it, but takes a judgment of assets quando acciderint, and sues out a sci. fa. on such judgment, if the executor receives assets between the time of suing out the writ in the first action and judgment, the court will permit the plaintiff to amend his judgment as to the time, by making it a judgment as of that term when he could at the soonest have entered it up; unless the defendant can shew that in point of fact some injustice will be done by it in the particular case. Mara v. Quin, 6 Term Rep. 1.

When Judgment of Six Years' Standing.]—But where an executor pleaded a false plea of judgment recovered against himself; on which judgment was entered up against him for the debt and damages de bonis testatoris, et si non de bonis propriis, and words were afterwards interlined on the judgment roll, by which the judgment de propriis was confined to the damages only; the court refused to amend, by striking out the words which had been interlined, where it did not appear by whom the interlineation had been made, and the judgment was of six years' standing. Burroughs v. Stephens, 1 Marsh. 211; 5 Taunt. 554.

After Alteration in Position of Parties.]—An action having been brought against one of two executors, he died, after the assizes, and before trial. The verdict was for the plaintiff, and the judgment was entered de bonis propriis within two terms afterwards, but error was brought by the defendant's executor, and the exchequer chamber altered the judgment by entering it de bonis testatoris, et si non, &c., as to costs, instead of a judgment de bonis propriis. The plaintiff, as it appeared on the record that the original defendant had died, and the final judgment was beyond the two terms after verdict, applied to the court to amend its own judgment, in accordance with that of the court of error, and to allow him to abandon the proceedings in error on payment of all costs. The court, doubting whether it had power to grant such a rule, and also whether it was necessary, refused it, as the position of the parties had altered. Garton v. Hall, 11 W. R. 281.

After Judgment in Error.]—Semble, that the court out of which a record issues has no power to amend the record after the judgment of a court of error. Jackson v. Galloway, 2 D. & L. 839; 1 C. B. 281; 14 L. J., C. P. 141; 9 Jur. 373.

Cannot be made False.]—When an infant had appeared as the defendant in an action by attorney instead of by guardian, and a verdict was given against him, and error was brought, upon motion to set aside the writ of error, and to amend the record:—Held, that the court could not amend the record by substituting an appearance by guardian for an appearance by attorney; the court cannot, in exercise of its power of amendment, render the record false. Carr v. Cooper, 1 B. & S. 230; 4 L. T. 323; 9 W. R. 611.

Judgment Rolls—Mere Irregularity.]—The date of a judgment in the judgment roll did not correspond with the date in a ca. sa. issued on the judgment, but was anterior to the ca. sa.:—Held, a mere matter of irregularity, which the court will amend. Cobbett v. Wheeler, 5 L. T. 285; 10 W. R. 40.

The date of a judgment, as entered in the judgment roll, did not correspond with the master's book:—Held, a mere matter of irregularity, which the court will amend. Ib.

—— When not requiring Amendment.]—A scire facias to repeal letters-patent was issued out of chancery, returnable there, appearance entered, declaration filed, plea pleaded, and issue joined in the petty bag office. The cause was then sent to the queen's bench for trial, and the entry here was, that the chancellor with his own hand delivered a "record." On motion (by a party being in error) to amend, by substituting the words "transcript of a record":—Held, that the entry did not require amendment. Reg. v. Bynner, 9 Q. B. 529, n.

Variation inconsistent with or to Complete Judgment.]—The 45th order of 1828 only enables the court to supply something which may make an existing direction complete, and not to make a new direction; therefore, where a decree directed an account of the real estates of a testator sold since his death, and of those which remained unsold, but had omitted to direct an account of the proceeds of such estates as had been sold:—Held, that such an omission could not be supplied upon petition under that order. Whitehead v. North, Cr. & Ph. 78.

The accidental omission of an unusual term or direction in a decree or order is an error which may be corrected by petition, under the 45th Order of April, 1828, but not so the omission of any term or direction which would only have been introduced under the express judgment of the court. Bird v. Heath, 6 Hare, 236.

In December, 1865, the plaintiff transferred to the defendant stock, to secure a loan for three months. The defendant sold the stock, but when the three months expired and the loan was paid off, he transferred to the plaintiff the like amount of the same stock, which, subsequently to his sale, he had purchased in the market. He had sold at a high and bought at a lower price, and the plaintiff filed a bill claiming the profits thus made, on the ground that he was entitled to have the identical stock returned to him; he offered by his bill to retransfer to the defendant the stock which the defendant had bought and transferred to him. On this footing a decree was made. During proceedings under that decree, it appeared that, before an amendment of his bill, the plaintiff had sold the whole of the stock, and was therefore unable to retransfer it, and he then obtained an order upon a petition for liberty to transfer to the defendant other stock to the same amount, or to account for the value of it. On an appeal by the defendant against both the decree and the order on the petition:—Held, that such a variation as was made in the decree by the order in the petition was inconsistent with the decree, and beyond the power of the court to make; and that the petition must be dismissed. Langton v. Waite, L. R. 4 Ch. 402; 20 L. T. 337; 17 W. R. 475.

A direction that the parties should be examined before the master upon interrogatories, added to a decree upon motion. Clarendon (Lord) v. Barham, 12 L. J., Ch. 215.

Omission in decree, if perfectly of course, supplied on motion with notice. In this instance, the common direction to examine all parties upon interrogatories being omitted, an order was made, that master should be at liberty to examine, &c. Wallis v. Thomas, 7 Ves. 292.

So also in the usual decree upon creditors' bill, against executors, the direction for account of personal estate. Pickard v. Mattheson, 7 Ves. 293.

An application to rectify a decree on suggestion, made in aid of the decree, which would have been embodied in it almost as of course, as if it had been an omission, may be made by motion, without the formality of petition. Davies v. Morris, 13 Price, 766.

Decree slightly varied, on motion, in a matter of costs where the merits were clear. Connell v. Frith, 1 Ir. Eq. R. 82.

Substantial variations in order cannot be effected by motion, but only on petition to rehear. Soper, Ex parte, Salter, In re, 4 Deac. & C. 275; 2 Mont. & Ayr. 55; 4 L. J., Bk. 45.

Decree made on motion allowed to be varied on motion, and without a petition of appeal. Hughes v. Jones, 26 Beav. 24.

An addition to a decree involving a complete variation will not be allowed by the court on motion. Jones v. Evans, 1 W. R. 275.

By the decree in a suit by a client against his solicitor, it was referred to the taxing-master to take an account of certain bills of costs, and to the master in ordinary to take an account of the general money transactions between the plaintiff and defendant. Afterwards the plaintiff applied on motion for an order that, notwithstanding the decree, the general money transactions should be referred to the taxing-master :—Held, that this was a variation of the decree, and could not be made on motion. King v. Savery, 25 L. J., Ch. 564 ; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 431 ; 4 W. R. 471.

An order adding to a decree under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 42, r. 8, does not form part of the decree so as to require a petition of appeal to vary it ; but may be appealed from by motion. Foster v. Foster, 37 L. J., Ch. 168 ; L. R. 3 Ch. 330 ; 17 L. T. 403 ; 16 W. R. 238.

An addition to a decree cannot be made under the above rule, except as to something raised upon the pleadings. The allowing proceedings to go on for a length of time under directions added to a decree, is not a bar to appealing against the order making the addition, but makes it incumbent on the appellant to shew that there is a substantial error in the addition, and is to be considered on the question of costs. Ib.

Where defence failed in consequence of unsatisfactory and incomplete evidence having been tendered, the court, at the request of the defendants, ordered the decree to be qualified by the introduction of a provision that it should not prejudice the right of the defendant to question any future claim of the like subject-matter by the complainants. Wolley v. Brownhill, M'Clel. 317, 324 ; 13 Price, 500.

When further proceedings in an administration suit became necessary, the court allowed a decree to be varied by inserting a direction that any of the parties be at liberty to apply. Warman v. Zeal, 25 L. T. 739.

Where counsel are instructed to state that which, upon inquiry, is found to be incorrect ; on such discovery being made, the court will order the decree to be amended. Moye v. Sparrow, 22 L. T. 370.

After a judgment by consent has been passed and entered, it cannot afterwards be varied on the ground of mistake, except for reasons sufficient to set aside an agreement. Att.-Gen. v. Tomline, 47 L. J., Ch. 473 ; 7 Ch. D. 388 ; 38 L. T. 57 ; 26 W. R. 188.

The fact of a decree having been made upon consent, will not be a reason for permitting it to be amended. Reed v. Cussen, 2 Con. & L. 384 ; 4 Dr. & War. 199.

Decree being, amongst other things, that "the parties should produce, before the master, all books, paper, &c.," the words "as the master shall direct," were added, on motion for that purpose. Punderson v. Dixon, 5 Madd. 121.

Where a decree directing an act to be done has been drawn up, without fixing a time within which the act is to be done, the decree is not rendered ineffectual by the operation of the 11th and 12th Orders of August 1841, but the court will, upon motion for that purpose, fix a time for the performance of the act. Needham v. Needham, 1 Hare, 633. Affirmed, 12 L. J., Ch. 378 ; 7 Jur. 336.

Semble, the court will not, upon motion, amend a decree by inserting therein, for a minor defendant, a day to shew cause. Tilson v. Lawder, 2 Dr. & War. 285 ; 1 Con. & L. 392.

The court refused, on motion, to amend a decree by striking out the day to shew cause, which had been given to a minor defendant, the first tenant in tail of the lands sold. Mahon v. Dawson, 2 Dr. & War. 286.

Where, in the interval between the pronouncing of an order by the court and the time of its being drawn up, a circumstance occurs which renders the order in part nugatory, the court will not vary the date to suit the happening of events, but will make a supplemental order. Havelock's Trusts, In re, 35 L. J., Ch. 228 ; 11 Jur. (N.S.) 906 ; 13 L. T. 272 ; 14 W. R. 26, 174.

The court will not vary an order on the ground that an authority which was cited when the case was heard, was not brought prominently to the attention of the court. St. Sepulchre (Vicar), In re, 11 W. R. 456.

Where a party dies since order for distributing the fund the court will not vary the order without proof of death. Bell v. Bell, 2 W. R. 135.

An order directing a contract of sale to be carried out, and the costs to be paid out of a fund in court, but not indicating the parties by whom the conveyance is to be executed, may be amended by inserting a direction that the conveyance be executed by such persons as the chief clerk shall certify to be the proper parties. Clough, In re, 32 L. T. 194.

Court will not, on motion after an order for reference, direct master to inquire (if he have found that good title can be made to premises, the subject of suit for specific performance) when such good title could be first made. Such direction should have been applied for at hearing. Lubin v. Lightbody, 8 Price, 606.

The testator in this case appointed his wife guardian of his three children, and appointed her also executrix, together with two others, whom he appointed executors. An order for maintenance of the infant had been made out of a fund in court standing to the credit of the suit generally, which order had been acted on for about two years, and directed that an allowance for the maintenance of two of the infants should be paid to the mother alone, and that the allowance for the maintenance of the third infant, who was an apprentice, should be paid to the two executors and the executrix jointly, one of the executors having gone out of the jurisdiction. On motion to have the order amended, by directing all future payments on account of such last-mentioned maintenance to be made to any two of such executors and executrix, instead of to all three, the vice-chancellor at first doubted whether, as the matter had arisen subsequently to the date of the order, any amendment could be made except by supplemental order ; but he ultimately directed the amendment to be made in the original order. Windsor v. Cross, 16 Jur. 1008.

Omitting Addition.]—Upon a bill of sale to set aside the mortgage of a reversion obtained unduly from an expectant heir, after a decree that the deeds should stand as a security for the money advanced only, it was asked, in accordance with the prayer of the bill, that certain policies of insurance on the life of the mortgagor, and which formed part of the security, might be assigned, or that the produce for which they had been sold might be paid to the plaintiff. The court made the addition requested ; but on taking the accounts, which were directed, as to the payment of the premiums by the defendant, it was found that the receipts upon the policies were far less than the payments for the premiums. Leave was then obtained to rehear the cause :—Held, on the rehearing, that the addition made to the decree ought to be omitted ; and the decree was rectified, but without costs. Pennell v. Millar, 23 Beav. 172 ; 26 L. J., Ch. 699 ; 3 Jur. (N.S.) 850 ; 5 W. R. 215.

Facts known before Trial.]—On the hearing of a partnership action judgment was pronounced declaring the dissolution of the partnership, and directing the usual accounts to be taken, but no direction as to return of the premium paid by the plaintiff was given or asked for by him. The plaintiff subsequently applied to the court that an inquiry should be made or direction given as to return of premium. It did not appear that any further facts had come to the knowledge of the plaintiff other than those which were known to him and put in evidence on the hearing of the action :—Held, that the relief sought was supplemental relief in the nature of equitable damages, and that, in the absence of evidence that new facts had come to the knowledge of the plaintiff, the court, in the exercise of its discretion, ought not to entertain the application. Edmonds v. Robinson, 54 L. J., Ch. 586 ; 29 Ch. D. 170 ; 52 L. T. 339 ; 33 W. R. 471.

Removing Stay of Execution.]—The plaintiffs having obtained a verdict in an action, under Lord Campbell's Act, for 50*l.* damages, the judge at the trial (without the consent of the plaintiffs, as they alleged), directed judgment to be entered for the plaintiffs, but that the damages and costs should be paid by yearly instalments of 20*l.*, the damages to be paid into the hands of one of the plaintiffs, in trust for herself and her co-plaintiffs (who were infants), and to be paid in priority to the costs. Judgment was entered in accordance with these directions. The defendant failed to pay the first instalment, and was, as the plaintiffs by affidavit alleged, disposing of all his available property. The court, on the application of the plaintiffs and on notice to the defendant, ordered the judgment to be amended by striking out the qualification, so as to stand for a judgment in the ordinary form for the damages awarded and costs, and directed that the order as to suspending execution should be entered as a separate order of the judge at the trial, and as of the date of the trial ; and, having regard to the circumstances disclosed on the application, gave liberty to the plaintiffs, notwithstanding such order, to issue immediate execution for the full amount of the judgment. Brien v. Sullivan, 14 L. R., Ir. 391.

Notice of Motion.]—Where a motion is to be made for any variations in a decree, the notice of motion must express the proposed variations. Wright v. Howard, 1 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 154 ; 24 R. R. 169.

On Motion by Consent.]—Directions omitted in decree by mistake, introduced on motion by consent of all parties. Skrymsher v. Northcote, 1 Swanst. 572 ; 18 R. R. 142.

No substantial addition can be made to a decree on motion without consent. Willis v. Parkinson, 3 Swanst. 233.

After decree merely directing inquiries, such an order as could be had on further directions may, by consent, be made on motion, as in this instance, to dismiss bill with costs. Anon., 11 Ves. 169.

A decree may be added to without a rehearing, where all the parties to the suit consent, although the additions principally affect persons not represented in the suit, upon whom the decree, as added to, is intended to be served. Hales v. Cox, Hales, In re, 1 N. R. 344 ; 8 L. T. 134 ; 11 W. R. 331.

Order on motion, with consent, to rectify a clear mistake in a decree. Newhouse v. Mitford, 12 Ves. 456. S. P., Lane v. Hobbs, id. 458.

The court will, upon motion, with the consent of all parties, vary a decree, so as to rectify an accidental omission. Collins v. Shirley, 9 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 111.

Where a decree has been had against several defendants with costs, and one of them had been compelled to pay the whole costs, the court will, by consent, decree contribution between the co-defendants, on motion, in the same suit. Pitt v. Bonner, 1 Y. & Coll. C. C. 670 ; 6 Jur. 636.

A suit was instituted by a client against his solicitor for an account, and by a decree it was referred to the taxing-master to tax the solicitor's bill of costs, and it was referred to the master in ordinary to take an account of all dealings and transactions between the client and the solicitor. The plaintiff afterwards moved to have the whole account taken by the taxing-master :—Held, that such a variation of the decree could not, without consent, be made upon motion. King v. Savery, 25 L. J., Ch. 564 ; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 431 ; 4 W. R. 471—L.JJ.

On Petition.]—A direction for the master to settle a conveyance, omitted in a decree, was supplied by petition. Trevelyan v. Charter, 9 Beav. 140.

Semble, an order upon petition is the proper mode of supplying any omission in the directions which the decree has given to the master. Winter v. Innes, 4 Myl. & C. 101 ; 2 Jur. 981.

All applications to rectify decree must have been made by petition. Grey v. Dickenson, 4 Madd. 464.

After an order made on petition has been drawn up in conformity with the prayer of the petition, the court will not allow the petition and the order to be amended, but a new petition must be presented, praying that the order may be varied. Marrow, In re, Cr. & Ph. 142 ; 10 L. J., Ch. 340.

The rule that an application to vary or discharge an order made on petition must, if made on the merits, be the subject of a regular re-hearing, applies, even though all parties consent to a different course. North Wales Slate Supply Co., In re, 21 L. T. 818 ; 18 W. R. 403.

In a suit for specific performance, a defective decree was on petition rectified in accordance with the prayer of the bill. The defect having arisen through the plaintiff's omission, he was ordered to pay the costs of the petition. Williams v. Carmarthen and Cardigan Ry., 19 L. T. 762 ; 17 W. R. 346.

Order on Further Consideration.]—Under the Judicature Act, 1873, s. 50, an order made on further consideration in chambers may be varied on an adjourned summons. Hodges, In re, Davey v. Ward, 47 L. J., Ch. 335 ; 7 Ch. D. 754 ; 26 W. R. 390.

Jurisdiction.]—Where one of the judges of the court of chancery has made an order on petition for payment out of court of moneys deposited by the committee of management of a railway company, under the standing orders of the house of commons, one of the other judges of the court has jurisdiction, upon a bill filed, to grant an injunction to restrain the company from receiving the money. Castendieck v. De Burgh, 15 L. J., Ch. 425.

Although one judge may in vacation make an order for another, the lord chancellor only has power to vary it, and application to the master of the rolls refused with costs. Man v. Rickets, 9 Beav. 4.

n. Varying Minutes.

In what Cases.]—Where minutes were drawn up, omitting to direct issue at law to be tried by special jury, and decree in consequence contained no such order, court refused to amend minute by insertion thereof. Stuart v. Greenall, 9 Price, 480.

Where the court directed an issue to be tried at the next assizes, and the decree was not drawn up or passed in sufficient time, the minutes were varied by directing the trial of the issue at the subsequent assizes. Grange v. Cass, 2 Y. & J. 241.

Clear mistake in a decree in minutes following the pleadings which were defective, when of such a nature that the point of sale or no sale of defendant's estate turns upon it, as where bill of revivor was by a slip at the suit of four of the co-plaintiffs, instead of the five co-plaintiffs, cannot be corrected on motion without consent. Armstrong v. Potts, 1 Moll. 257.

Court will order minutes of decree, declaring stock "not to be part of personal estate of intestate," on general claim by some of next of kin, against a particular claim by others, to be varied by adding the words, "together with the dividends which have accrued due thereon," on a special motion without a rehearing, where the amount is small, and the alteration is reasonable and consonant with the tenor of original decree. George v. Howard, 7 Price, 661 ; 21 R. R. 775.

The court will not, upon motion, amend the minutes of a decree, by striking out the day which had been thereby given to minor defendants to show cause. Quære, whether the old practice of giving a minor defendant a day to show cause is affected by the 11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 47. Esmonde v. Cooke, 1 Dr. & Wal. 250.

Where facts are stated in the answer which are not contradicted, and which, if true, would lead to a material alteration in the frame of the suit, the court will, on motion, permit the minutes of the decree to be amended, with a view to ascertain the truth of those facts. Harwood v. Fisher, 1 Y. & Coll. 110 ; 4 L. J., Ex. Eq. 10.

Notice of Motion.]—A notice of motion to vary minutes does not prevent their being drawn up. Bell, Ex parte, Brown, In re, 2 Mont. & Ayr. 578 ; 1 Dea. 690.

The Application.]—An application to the court in bankruptcy to vary the minutes of an order before they have been settled in the secretary's office, is irregular. Vittery, Ex parte, Pomeroy, In re, Mont. & M'Ar. 435.

The court will not vary the minutes of an order on the application of persons not parties to or bound by it. De Begnis, Ex parte, Chambers, In re, 1 Mont. & Ayr. 277 ; 4 Deac. & Ch. 225 ; 3 L. J., Bk. 43.

Rule of practice as to varying the minutes of decrees. The register must first complete the minutes, and any party dissatisfied must give notice of motion specifying the subject of complaint. Prince v. Howard, 14 Beav. 208.

The minutes of an order having been once settled by the registrar, cannot be altered in the absence of any of the parties interested. Major v. Major, 13 Jur. 1.

When, at the hearing, liberty is given to mention a case again on the minutes, it must be done at least within a fortnight, otherwise the parties must give notice of motion, specifying the alterations. Hood v. Cooper, 26 Beav. 373.

A party who is dissatisfied with the minutes of decree as prepared by the registrar, may move to have them varied, but the lord chancellor will not allow a cause to be set down to be spoken to on the minutes. Tennant v. Trenchard, 38 L. J., Ch. 169 ; L. R. 4 Ch. 537.

Where any party is dissatisfied with an order as settled by the registrar, and desires to bring the matter before the court, he must, whether the order be an order of the court of appeal, or of a court of first instance, give notice of motion to vary the minutes. General Share and Trust Co. v. Wetley Brick and Pottery Co., 51 L. J., Ch. 464 ; 20 Ch. D. 130 ; 46 L. T. 70 ; 30 W. R. 695—C. A.

On the hearing of a motion to vary the minutes of an order, the solicitor of the moving party ought to produce a copy of the registrar's note of what took place when the order was made. Robinson v. Barton Local Board, 21 Ch. D. 631.

Judgment Passed and Entered.]—Until a decree has been passed and entered, it is in the power of the judge, who heard the cause, to reconsider what has been done and to vary the minutes, without any of the formalities required for a rehearing. Griffin v. Hamilton, Ir. R. 7 Eq. 141.

The court has inherent jurisdiction to amend a judgment, although it has been passed and entered. But the proper course is to move to vary the minutes after they had been settled, and before they have been passed and entered. Swire, In re, Mellor v. Swire, 30 Ch. D. 239 ; 53 L. T. 205 ; 33 W. R. 785—C. A.

Refusal of Order—Appeal.]—The minutes of an order made in the trial of an action as settled by the registrar did not mention certain documents that the plaintiff contended were admitted during the trial. The judge refused to alter the minutes :—Held, that the court of appeal would not entertain an appeal from the judge's refusal. The proper course is for the plaintiff to appeal from the judgment as it stands and apply at the hearing for leave to use the documents alleged to have been omitted as evidence on the appeal. James v. Jones, 67 L. T. 584—C. A.

o. Rehearing.

1. Since the Judicature Acts.

Generally.]—Under the system of procedure established by the Judicature Acts, no judge of the high court has any jurisdiction to rehear an order, whether made by himself or any other judge, the power to rehear being part of the appellate jurisdiction, which is transferred by the acts to the court of appeal. St. Nazaire Co., In re, 12 Ch. D. 88 ; 41 L. T. 110 ; 27 W. R. 854—C. A.

After final judgment had been pronounced by the court of appeal, it is not competent for that court to rehear the appeal on the ground of the discovery of fresh facts. Flower v. Lloyd, 46 L. J., Ch. 838 ; 6 Ch. D. 297 ; 35 L. T. 454 ; 25 W. R. 793—C. A.

Whether the court of appeal has jurisdiction to rehear a bankruptcy appeal, quære. Banco de Portugal, Ex parte, Hooper, In re, 49 L. J., Bk. 21 ; 14 Ch. D. 1 ; 42 L. T. 210 ; 28 W. R. 433 —C. A.

The shareholders in a company passed an extraordinary resolution to wind up the company voluntarily, but the resolution was void, the majority of members who voted not being entitled to vote. A creditor filed a petition in the chancery court of the duchy of Lancaster for a supervision order or for a compulsory winding-up order, and as the court and the petitioner were ignorant of the fact that the resolution was invalid, a supervision order was made. Five months afterwards the petitioner discovered the invalidity of the resolution, and then moved before the vice-chancellor that the supervision order might be discharged, and a compulsory winding-up order made. This motion having been refused by the vice-chancellor on the ground of want of jurisdiction to rehear the petition, the petitioner appealed from the refusal of the motion, and also applied to the court of appeal for leave to appeal against the original order notwithstanding the lapse of time. Semble, the vice-chancellor had no power to rehear the petition himself. Manchester Economic Building Society, In re, 53 L. J., Ch. 115 ; 24 Ch. D. 488 ; 49 L. T. 703 ; 32 W. R. 325—C. A.

Order made but not drawn up.]—Whether a judge can rehear in chambers an order which he has previously made in chambers, but which has not been drawn up, quære. Adam Eyton, In re, Charlesworth, Ex parte, 57 L. J., Ch. 127 ; 36 Ch. D. 299—C. A.

Order made and drawn up.]—A charging order under the Solicitors Act, made by a judge of the high court, sitting in bankruptcy is not an order made by him under his bankruptcy jurisdiction, within s. 104 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, and therefore cannot be reviewed, rescinded or varied by him after it has been drawn up. Brown, Ex parte, Suffield and Watts, In re, 20 Q. B. D. 693 ; 58 L. T. 911 ; 36 W. R. 584 ; 5 Morrell, 83—C. A.

Though an ex parte order had been drawn up and entered, the party affected thereby is at liberty to apply for the discharge to the judge who made the order ; the order being ex parte, such an application does not involve a rehearing. Boyle v. Sacker, 39 Ch. D. 249 ; 58 L. T. 822 ; 37 W. R. 68—C. A.

Re-argument, when allowed.]—The court declined to allow a case to be re-argued on the ground that an enactment in the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881, had been overlooked. Birmingham Land Co. v. L. & N. W. Ry., 56 L. J., Ch. 956 ; 34 Ch. D. 261 ; 55 L. T. 699 ; 35 W. R. 173—C. A.

2. Previous Practice.

In what Cases.]—The true effect of a petition of rehearing is, that the decree or order complained of is to be upheld or varied according to the circumstances at the time when the decree or order was pronounced. Horne v. Barton, 8 De G. M. & G. 587 ; 26 L. J., Ch. 225 ; 2 Jur. (N.S.) 1032 ; 4 W. R. 821.

—— Varying Order.]—Where legal interests have been created under the decree of the court, and have been subsequently dealt with, the decree and subsequent orders cannot be corrected and varied upon a petition of rehearing, but to obtain relief a bill must be filed. Ib.

Where the court is asked to make an order which amounts, in fact, to the variation of an order made by a former vice-chancellor, it must be by way of rehearing. Att.-Gen. v. Croft, 15 Jur. 1028.

Decretal order for payment of interest to creditors generally cannot be varied by confining the payment of interest to particular creditors, without rehearing. Fyler v. Fyler, 1 Colly. 93 ; 8 Jur. 211.

Court cannot give interest unless reserved by decree ; but cause reheard for that purpose. Herle v. Greenbank, Dick. 370.

Substantial variations in order cannot be effected by motion, but only on petition to rehear. Soper, Ex parte, Salter, In re, 4 Deac. & C. 569.

A rehearing will not be granted where the object is not to correct an error in decree, but to remedy a grievance consequent upon it, resulting from circumstances ex post facto, not making part of the case as it originally stood. Bowyer v. Bright, 13 Price, 316.

—— Mistake or Omission.]—If a fact be mistaken at the hearing of the decretal order, it must be rectified by rehearing, and not by bill of review. Combs v. Proud, 1 Ch. Ca. 54 ; 2 Freem. 182.

Mistake in decree, unless a mere numerical error apparent on the decree itself, cannot be rectified but by rehearing. Brookfield v. Bradley, 2 Sim. & S. 64.

Where, by mistake, balances reported due from defendant were included in sums paid into court under decree ; and decree, on further directions, ordered those balances to be paid into court :—Held, that mistake could not be rectified without rehearing cause on latter decree. Ib.

Semble, that if the error be apparent on the face of the decree, the court will not take into its consideration the conduct of any of the parties as a ground for refusing the rehearing. Ashland v. Braddick, 3 Y. & Coll. 237 ; 3 Jur. 39.

Omission in a bill of review to make one defendant a party is no cause of rehearing, the proceedings having been in the said defendant's name. Peachy v. Vintner, 1 Ch. Rep. 252.

Facts which occurred since the decree, and which therefore were not comprehended in the pleadings, may be proper grounds for a rehearing, if they show error in the decree. Story v. Johnson, 2 Y. & Coll. 586.

Where a party is before the court when a decree is made by which a trustee is so seriously affected as to have committed a breach of trust, if the decree is wrong he cannot be relieved without having a rehearing, bringing forward in a supplemental bill, if necessary, any additional facts. Head v. Godlee, 1 Johns. 536 ; 29 L. J., Ch. 633 ; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 495 ; 8 W. R. 141.

—— Law Altered.]—Where since making an order the law has been altered on which the order was founded, the proper course is to present a petition for rehearing, the order to be heard with the cause. Fleming v. Fleming, 9 W. R. 757.

—— Point not raised.]—A decree having been made in a suit for foreclosure, the mortgagor was afterwards desirous of impeaching the validity of one of the securities. Upon filing a cross bill for that purpose, the decree was set up against him ; he then presented a petition of rehearing, to have the decree of foreclosure varied by inserting a reservation of his right to institute proceedings to set aside the security ; the mortgagor had not either on the pleadings or at the hearing, raised any question as to the validity of the security. The court dismissed the petition for rehearing. Ford v. Tynte, 10 L. T. 492.

Petition of rehearing dismissed because it suggested, as the grounds of rehearing, facts not alleged in the pleadings. Nevinson v. Stables, 4 Russ. 210.

Petition for rehearing ordered to be taken off the file, on the ground of its making a different case from that on which the decree was pronounced. Wood v. Griffith, 1 Mer. 35.

When counsel at the original hearing abandon an objection as to parties or as to proof of a document, the same objection cannot be made on the rehearing. Malone v. Geraghty, 2 Con. & L. 235 ; 3 Dr. & War. 252 ; 5 Ir. Eq. R. 549.

Bill by a lady, who was tenant for life of a trust fund settled on marriage upon herself and her children, against trustees, to make them liable for a breach of trust, associated with her as co-plaintiffs her children. There was no evidence in the cause that these co-plaintiffs were her children, but the answer did not deny it or raise the issue :—Held, that it was too late at the rehearing to raise the objection ; but that if the objection was good, an affidavit would have been received to prove the fact. Fowler v. Reynal, 3 Macn. & G. 500 ; 21 L. J., Ch. 121 ; 15 Jur. 1019. Affirming 2 De G. & Sm. 749 ; 13 Jur. 649, 650, n.

Where a party omitted to take advantage of any of the opportunities of raising an objection to a bond in preceding inquiries :—Held, that it was not now competent for him to harass the other party by a new suit in which no new evidence could be produced. Nicol v. Vaughan, 1 Cl. & F. 495 ; 5 Bli. (N.S.) 505. Reversing Winchelsea (Earl) v. Garretty, 1 Myl. & K. 253 ; 2 L. J., Ch. 115.

—— Consent Order.]—An agreement was signed by the parties, and by consent made an order of court to submit to such decree as the court should make, and neither party to bring his appeal ; yet the cause was allowed to be reheard. Buck v. Fawcett, 3 P. Wms. 242.

—— Decree acted on.]—The having acted under a decree is no objection to its being reheard on the petition of the party having so acted under it. Brophy v. Holmes, 2 Moll. 1.

Further Evidence—When Admitted.]—On a rehearing, depositions taken on part of defendant may be read, though not read at original hearing. Cunyngham v. Cunyngham, Ambl. 90 ; Dick. 145.

On a rehearing evidence in the cause may be read which was not read at the original hearing. Williams v. Goodchild, 2 Russ. 91.

The plaintiffs sued as devisees of A., but omitted to prove his will ; and the bill was dismissed. They afterwards presented a petition of rehearing, and moved for leave to exhibit interrogatories to prove the will, which was granted, the omission having arisen from the inadvertence of counsel, and the will not being the subject of dispute in the cause. Hood v. Pimm, 4 Sim. 101 ; 9 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 63.

A party, on a special application, may obtain an order to prove vivâ voce, on a rehearing, documents which were not in evidence at the former hearing, but he must pay the costs of the application. Higgins v. Mills, 5 Russ. 287.

On appeal and rehearing, additional evidence permitted in some instances. If the rule is so, it must be subject to costs. White v. Fussell, 1 Ves. & B. 153.

New evidence admitted on a rehearing, and a petition of rehearing permitted to be amended to state the discovery of such new evidence. Wyld v. Ward, 2 Y. & J. 381.

The court will not, on petition for rehearing, allow evidence to be read of matters which occurred before the hearing of the cause, but were not put in evidence. Ford v. Tynte, 10 L. T. 492.

Application by defendant for liberty to file a supplemental bill in aid of a rehearing, to put in issue evidence discovered during and since the hearing, refused, the evidence discovered being a deed and proceedings in suits to which the defendant was a party, and must have been apprised of their nature, and by negligence lost the benefit of them as a defence, and the object of the supplemental bill being to abandon the original defence and rely on a new one. Blake v. Foster, 2 Ball & B. 457.

On a bill by the assignees of a bankrupt to set aside a settlement made in favour of his children, on the ground that he was insolvent at the time of the execution of it ; the court held, at the hearing of the cause, that the settlor was not insolvent within the meaning of the Bankrupt Act, 6 Geo. 4, c. 16, s. 75, when he executed the settlement. The plaintiff afterwards presented a petition for leave to present a petition for a rehearing, on the ground that he had since discovered further evidence, establishing the fact of insolvency, which he might have discovered before the hearing, if he had not considered the evidence already produced sufficient. The court dismissed the petition, on the ground that it was against the order of the court, which had for its object to compel persons to bring forward their whole case in the first instance ; if this evidence was allowed, a general examination would be let in to explain it. Cutten v. Sanger, 3 Y. & J. 374. See the report on the hearing of the cause, 2 Y. & J. 459.

The general rule is, that no evidence can be adduced at a rehearing, which a party was not prepared with and entitled to produce at the hearing. Therefore an order, which had been obtained as of course to prove vivâ voce at a rehearing a document which the party had not obtained an order to prove at the hearing, was discharged for irregularity; but leave will generally be given on special application, under such circumstances, to prove a document at the rehearing. Lovell v. Hicks, 2 Y. & Coll. 472; 6 L. J., Ex. Eq. 85; 2 N. R. 435; 11 W. R. 1248.

Affidavits relating to matters which have occurred since decree, cannot be used on a rehearing of the decree. Lambe v. Orton, 33 L. J., Ch. 81; 2 N. R. 435; 11 W. R. 1243.

Although the court may in special cases permit new evidence to be given upon an appeal (e.g. where the evidence sought to be introduced is documentary, and cannot have been tampered with), it will not allow fresh affidavits made by persons who have given evidence at the original hearing to be read on a rehearing. Glover v. Daubney, 32 L. J., Ch. 547; 9 Jur. (N.S.) 90; 1 N. R. 186—L.JJ.

F., the executor, in India, of S., a Scotchman, long resident there, paid a legacy of 3,000*l.* out of his pocket. By the decree in a suit instituted for carrying into effect the trusts of a settlement made on the marriage of S., the shares of two of his children, who died in his lifetime, were carried over to a separate account, and his personal representative in England, who took out administration to them, presented a petition for payment out of court. The Crown objected that the domicil of S. was Scotch, and claimed legacy duty. The court on the hearing of the petition, held that the domicil was Scotch, and the money was subsequently paid out of court, but was by agreement retained in medio pending this application. F. was not a party to the suit, and had no notice of the petition; and it appeared that he was the only person interested in supporting an Indian domicil. He offered fresh evidence, tending to show an Indian domicil, and applied for a rehearing. Rehearing granted. Jopp v. Wood, 3 N. R. 404; 33 Beav. 372; 12 W. R. 393.

Where, after the decision of an appeal, which turned in a measure upon the absence of all invoices, delivery orders, &c., affecting the title to certain iron in dispute between the parties, documents of that nature were discovered by one of the claimants, an order was, upon his application, made for a rehearing, although he offered no explanation of the fact of their non-production, or in any way accounted for the oversight. Wiltshire Iron Co., In re, Pearson, Ex parte, L. R. 3 Ch. 443; 18 L. T. 40; 16 W. R. 444.

Parties.]—On an appeal none but the parties to the appeal can be heard, but the case is different on a rehearing. Hughes v. Turner, 4 L. J., Ch. 141.

New plaintiff by supplemental bill may impeach a decree upon rehearing, on petition of former parties. Hill v. Chapman, 1 Ves. J. 495.

Person not a party to the suit is desirous of obtaining a rehearing; he must apply for leave to present a petition to rehear. Gwynne v. Edwards, 9 Beav. 22; 15 L. J., Ch. 84.

A bill may be sustained for the rehearing of a decree, alleged to have been made fraudulently in a suit to which the plaintiff was no party. Morris v. Landon, 2 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 140.

Where a party, not being a party to the suit, desires to have the same reheard, he must apply to the court in the first instance for permission to present a petition of rehearing. Berry v. Att.-Gen., 3 Macn. & G. 16; 1 H. & Tw. 520; 19 L. J., Ch. 232.

A decree was made ex parte against A., to pay one moiety of a sum of money said to be due from A. and B. to C. upon a stated account between B. and C., but to which A. was neither party or privy. Some years passed before A. knew of this decree, but on being informed of it he applied by petition for rehearing. On appeal a rehearing was directed. Hamilton v. Manby, 6 Bro. P. C. 347.

A party had been made a defendant by virtue of his office, which he resigned before the decree, but continued to be a party to the suit, and was entitled to a retiring pension:—Held, that he was entitled to present a petition of rehearing. Att.-Gen. v. Stamford (Earl), 12 L. J., Ch. 297; 6 Jur. 117.

A party who is made a defendant by supplemental bill after a decree, and who has appeared to the bill, is not entitled to present a petition of rehearing, unless he has put in his answer. Ib.

Where a petition of rehearing is presented by different defendants, some of whom are not entitled to present such a petition, the court will allow the other petitioners to amend the petition, by striking out the names of those parties who are not entitled to join therein. Ib.

No one but the party objecting is entitled to be heard on a petition of rehearing. Buckeridge v. Whalley, 10 L. T. 222; 12 W. R. 593.

An order having been made by one of the vice-chancellors on a petition in a cause, leave was given to a person, not a party to the cause, nor served with the petition, to present a petition of rehearing by the same vice-chancellor, without signature of counsel, or payment of any deposit. Leete v. Jenkins, 14 W. R. 489.

Leave given to a person who was not a party to the cause to intervene and present a petition of rehearing of an order in which he was materially interested, and which had been made upon petition in the cause. Jopp v. Wood, 33 Beav. 372; 3 N. R. 404; 12 W. R. 393.

When a decree has been made against several defendants, the bill may be dismissed against all on a petition of rehearing presented by one defendant only. Kent v. Freehold Land and Brick-making Co., L. R. 3 Ch. 493.

Semble, that a person brought before the court by service of notice of the decree under 15 & 16 Vict. c. 86, s. 42, is entitled to present a petition of rehearing. Ellison v. Thomas, 32 L. J., Ch. 2; 1 De G. J. & Sm. 18; 1 N. R. 37; 7 L. T. 342; 11 W. R. 56.

Costs—Undertaking.]—It seems to be the modern practice, that, upon a rehearing, an undertaking should be entered into to pay such costs subsequent to the decree as the court shall think proper. See Vowles v. Young, 9 Ves. 173.

—— Taxation.]—By the decree the costs of all parties were ordered to be taxed as between solicitor and client. Upon a rehearing the decree was affirmed, and the deposit was ordered to be returned but, nothing was said as to costs. By a subsequent order the costs of all parties were ordered to be taxed, as between solicitor and client, from the last taxation:—Held, that this did not include the costs of the rehearing. Agabeg v. Hartwell, 5 Beav. 271.

The costs of rehearings are not carried by the words "costs of suit as between solicitor and client," but require to be specially mentioned in the order for taxation. Ib.

p. ACTION OF REVIEW.

1. In what Cases.

Inrolment.]—The proper course, in order to have a rehearing, or to obtain an alteration of a decree, or an order which has been inrolled, is to file a bill of review. Knierim v. Schmauss, 8 Jur. (N.S.) 692; 7 L. T. 189; 10 W. R. 860.

To oblige a man to sign and inrol a decree made against himself, in order to entitle him to bring a bill of review, is altogether unnecessary. Standish v. Radley, 2 Atk. 177.

Where decree has not been signed and inrolled, a bill in the nature of a bill of review is a proper one. Ib.

Distinction between a bill of review, and a supplemental bill in nature of it. If the decree is inrolled, it is strictly a bill of review, and prays that the decree may be reviewed and reversed; if not inrolled, the prayer is, that the cause may be reheard. In either, matter of supplement or revivor may be introduced, with the proper prayer. Perry v. Phelips, 17 Ves. 173.

Supplemental bill in nature of review is proper where decree is not inrolled. Lewellen v. Mackworth, 2 Atk. 40; Barnard. 445.

Title directly in Question.]—A bill of review, or a supplemental bill in the nature of a bill of review, is necessary where the title or subject-matter of the claim has been directly adjudicated upon in a former suit by a decree declaring or assuming a right, or, in the case of a dismissal of a bill, negativing it; but an order of dismissal is a bar only when the court has thereby determined that the plaintiff had no title to the relief sought by his bill, and therefore the dismissal of so much of a bill as relates to an issue raised by it, which is irrelevant to the relief prayed, is no bar to a new bill by the same party for a different object depending upon the same issue. Bainbrigge v. Baddeley, 2 Ph. 705. Reversing 9 Beav. 538; 10 Jur. 765.

Mistake and Ignorance.] — If a fact be mistaken at the hearing and decretal order, it must be rectified by rehearing. Combs v. Proud, 1 Ch. Ca. 54; 2 Freem. 182.

Where the matters mentioned in the decree as proved were, in fact, not proved, it is not error to found a bill of review; for if the fact should be mistaken, it should be remedied by rehearing before inrolment. Ib.

Bill of review of a decree of foreclosure was dismissed, where it appeared the defendant's agent, attorney, and solicitor had attended the master on his behalf, in taking the account under the decree. Gould v. Tancred, 2 Atk. 532.

A legatee, who, from ignorance of the contents of a will, sued for and obtained payment of less interest upon her legacy than she was entitled to:—Held, entitled, on a supplemental claim in the nature of a bill of review, to a decree for payment of the difference, or for the administration of the testator's estate. An admission of assets in the original suit for the smaller amount claimed, held not binding as regarded the larger. Matthews v. Pincombe, 4 De G. & Sm. 485; 20 L. J., Ch. 395.

Fraud.]—A bill purporting to be an original bill, sought to review a prior decree in a suit between the same parties, on the ground of the decree having been obtained by fraud; the fraud alleged was, that the defendants had in their answer concealed certain facts from the plaintiffs and the court, but it appeared that those facts might have been elicited by exceptions:—Held, that was not such fraud as to justify an original bill, without leave of the court, to review a decree. Henderson v. Cook, 4 Drew. 306; 6 W. R. 831.

Allowance of a debt in the master's report which had been obtained by fraud, rectified, the proper mode of proceeding being by original bill, not by bill of review; and held, that it was not necessary to pray specifically, that the act of the court should be set aside, plaintiff having made a sufficient case to obtain that relief under the prayer for general relief. Manaton v. Molesworth, 1 Eden, 18.

Trustee Relief Act.]—Trustees of a fund to which a lady was entitled for life, with remainder to her children, on her death paid the fund into court under the Trustee Relief Act, and under orders of the court three-fourths were paid out. One child then claimed the fund as the only legitimate child, and presented a petition for leave to file a bill of review:—Held, that orders under the Trustee Relief Act stood, pro hâc, on the same footing as a decree in a suit, and a probable case being put forward, founded on facts discovered since the date of the orders, leave was given. Smyth and Arnold's Estates, In re, 32 L. J., Ch. 779; 8 L. T. 599; 11 W. R. 850.

Omissions.]—Where a decree has been made against a party at the hearing, and he omits to present a petition for rehearing, within the limited time, an order made on a petition subsequently presented, complaining of some omissions in the decree to supply them, is irregular. The proper course would be by a bill of review. Champernowne v. Brooke, 3 Cl. & F. 4; 9 Bli. (N.S.) 199.

Other Cases.] — The primary intention of granting a review is a reconsideration of the subject by the same judge, in contradistinction from an appeal, which is a hearing before another judge. Maharajah Moheshur Sing v. Bengal Government, 7 Moore Ind. App. 283.

A review before another judge is an exception, and is only allowed, ex necessitate, as in case of death or removal. Ib.

A court of equity may, by additional orders, without a bill of review or a rehearing, deal with a fund which is still in court. Montefiore v. Browne, 7 H. L. Cas. 241.

Bill of review of a decree by consent, dismissed. Webb v. Webb, 3 Swanst. 658.

A decree taken pro confesso in the ordinary course after appearance, not under the statute 5 Geo. 2, c. 25, can be impeached as any other decree only by a bill of review, or a bill to set it aside for fraud; not collaterally by original suit seeking decree inconsistent with it; such a bill, therefore, dismissed with costs. Ogilvie v. Herne, 13 Ves. 563.

An annuitant having filed a bill to enforce his security, a decree was made on that and several other incumbrancers' suits, directing accounts and inquiries as to incumbrances, giving a receiver liberty to keep down the interest on incumbrances and the annuity in question, and any other annuities which should be certified, and declaring that the plaintiffs and the defendants who should be ascertained to be incumbrancers should be at liberty to add their costs to their incumbrances. The owner of the estate afterwards filed a bill to set aside the annuity:—Held, that the decree was a bar to this bill. Tynte v. Hodge, 5 N. R. 104; 2 H. & M. 287; 11 L. T. 490; 13 W. R. 172.

2. Grounds for.

General Principles.]—There are two grounds for review; one, error on decree apparent; and the other, new matter arising after decree, or which could not have been proved when decree passed, and was unknown to either party. Le Neve v. Norris, 2 Bro. P. C. 73.

If a decree be obtained and inrolled, so that the cause cannot be reheard, then there is no remedy but by bill of review; which must be on error appearing on the face of the decree, or on some new matter, as a release or a receipt discovered since. Taylor v. Sharp, 3 P. Wms. 371.

Grounds for a bill of review; error apparent; or new evidence since publication as to a material fact. Young v. Keighley, 16 Ves. 350.

Error Apparent on Decree.]—Error in decree must appear in the body of it. Grice v. Goodwin, 1 Eq. Abr. 165.

Matter of abatement is not error upon which to found a bill of review. Slingsby v. Hale, 1 Ch. Ca. 122; Cramborne (Lady) v. Dalmahoy, 1 Ch. Rep. 231; 2 Freem. 169.

Upon a bill of review, the party cannot assign for error, that any of the matters decreed are contrary to the proofs in the cause, but must show some error appearing in the body of the decree, or new matter discovered since the decree. Williams v. Mellish, 1 Vern. 166.

Error discovered after report confirmed, ground for bill of review. Worge v. Bradley, Dick. 570.

Where bill of review is filed without leave for reversing former decree, specifies errors in decree, and contains original matter, it is irregular. Houghton v. West, 2 Bro. P. C. 88.

Mere injustice is no ground for bill of review. There must be injustice apparent on record to a party to suit, for neither assignee nor devisee can have relief by such bill. Though plaintiff is confined to errors on record defendant is at liberty to allege every matter relevant to his defence, whether in or out of record, by way of release, &c., to prevent disturbing decree. And when pleaded, the court is to judge whether the matter alleged is sufficient to preclude the plaintiff from the review he seeks. Hartwell v. Townsend, 2 Bro. P. C. 107.

An erroneous result in point of law drawn by the court from facts apparent on the record is the proper subject of a bill of review for error apparent on the decree. A fact misunderstood by the court, and not introduced into the decree, may be ground for an appeal, but not for a bill of review. O'Brien v. Connor, 2 Ball & B. 154.

Error apparent, to support a bill of review, must be plain and obvious; as a decree against an infant without a day to show cause; not merely an erroneous judgment, which might be the subject of a rehearing. Perry v. Phelips, 17 Ves. 173.

Error to support a bill of review must appear on the decree itself. A demurrer was allowed where the errors assigned, if errors at all, were only errors of fact, and did not necessarily appear to be such on the face of the decree. Farrell v. Crosbie, Wall. Lyn. 154, 156.

To support a bill of review for error in a decree the pleadings in the cause cannot be referred to. Nothing can be looked at but the decree itself. Trulock v. Robey, 15 Sim. 265, 277. Affirmed 2 Ph. 395; 11 Jur. 999.

To sustain a bill of review for error apparent on the decree complained of, it is not enough that it contains allegations that the decree is erroneous, but error must be shown on the face of it. Tommey v. White, 1 H. L. Cas. 160.

The mere propriety of a former decree cannot be questioned by bill of review: it is only where there is error on the face of it that such a bill can be sustained. Haig v. Homan, 8 Cl. & F. 320.

It is error apparent on the face of a decree, if it declare that legacies were charged upon real estate by will (which was set out in the pleadings), when, according to its true construction, the real estate was not charged by it with the legacies, but if the decree merely declare that the legacies are charges on the real estate it is not apparent, for the court may have come to that conclusion from circumstances not apparent on the face of the decree. Kelly v. Lennon, 1 Jo. & Lat. 305; 7 Ir. Eq. R. 98.

To sustain a bill of review there must be error apparent upon the face of the decree. A mere error in judgment does not furnish a sufficient foundation for such a bill. The bill cannot be maintained unless the decree sought to be reversed is contrary to some statutory enactment, or some principle or rule of law or equity recognised or settled, by decision, or is at variance with the forms and practice of the court. Green v. Jenkins, 1 De G. F. & J. 454; 29 L. J., Ch. 505; 6 Jur. (N.S.) 515; 2 L. T. 311; 8 W. R. 380.

Upon a bill of review, the plaintiff is confined to error that he has specifically assigned. Ib.

The reformed practice, of not setting out in extenso all the proceedings in a suit, was not meant to vary the effect of bills of review. Semble. Ib.

The correctness of the proposition laid down by Lord Cottenham, in Trulock v. Robey (2 Ph. 395), that bills of review are confined to cases in which the decree is contrary to the forms and practice of the court, doubted. Ib.

An improper decree, or a refusal to withhold specific performance where the title is alleged to be doubtful, is not an error of law, but an improper exercise of the discretion vested in the judge, and a fit subject of rehearing by a court of appeal, but not by bill of review. Ib.

Matter Subsequent to Decree.]—There can be no bill of review for any matter subsequent to the decree, as the plaintiff's confession. Curtis v. Smallbridge, 2 Freem. 178; 1 Ch. Ca. 43.

A bill of review, with matter come to the party's knowledge since the hearing, lies, where the plaintiff in the bill has since the hearing discovered matter which would vary the decree; and where, if such matter was known to the other party, he was not in conscience obliged to have discovered it to the court. For if the matter was known to the other party, and such as in conscience he ought to have discovered, he obtains the decree by fraud, and it ought to be set aside by original bill. Manaton v. Molesworth, 1 Eden, 25.

It is irregular to file a supplemental bill to rectify a decree in a previous suit to which the same party was plaintiff. The proper course, on discovery of new matter, is to file a bill of review. Dynely v. Hartley, 2 Jur. 22.

Fresh Evidence.]—It is in the discretion of the court to give leave to file a bill of review on the discovery of new evidence. It was refused in this case, as it tended to deprive creditors of payment of their just debts. Wilson v. Webb, 2 Cox, 3.

Mere negligence or forgetfulness of matter, &c., is no ground for a bill of review. Ludlow v. Macartney, 2 Bro. P. C. 67. See Phosphate Sewage Co. v. Molleson, 4 App. Cas. 801.

Bill of review granted on new matter discovered. Portsmouth v. Effingham, 1 Ves. 430.

Bill of review, or a supplemental bill in nature of review, where the decree has not been inrolled upon new evidence discovered since publication, not permitted to introduce a new case of which the party was sufficiently apprised, to enable him with reasonable diligence to have put it upon the record originally. Young v. Keighley, 16 Ves. 348. S. P. Morrall v. Pritchard, 14 W. R. 172.

Petition for leave to file bill of review, after a decree, affirmed on rehearing, pending an appeal to the house of lords, for the purpose of introducing evidence, in answer to evidence admitted by surprise, viz., not in answer to an interrogatory, nor the subject directly in issue, the decree not being made upon that evidence, was refused with costs. Willan v. Willan, 16 Ves. 72.
